THE old negro wood-cutter is resting from his work in the piney woods of the South. The air is full of a resinous smell; pine-needles and pine-cones are under foot; in springtime the ground beneath the pines is usually sprinkled with forget-me-nots; here and there patches of brown-green moss hold golden sunbeams in velvety depths. We remember that "Uncle Remus," in Joel Chandler Harris' story-book, is very wise about wild things of the wood, and that his heroes and heroines are chiefly forest-folk. The folk-lore of all primitive peoples is full of forest talk. The old man in our picture could doubtless tell our little readers many an interesting story. If they stood around his knees just now, and were very quiet, perhaps they might watch with him a chipmunk running up the trees, or a flying-squirrel leaping from limb to limb; a covey of partridges might settle by like a brood of pretty wild chickens; perchance a tame turkey, deserter from the barnyard, slinks past, trying "to steal a nest," as the barn-yard owner calls the turkey-hen's sly trick of laying her eggs abroad. Maybe a gang of wild turkeys are sighted at a respectful distance; looking up, perhaps one sees a great turkey-buzzard, slowly, gracefully dipping down, down to the tree tops, feeling his sail-like wings, and from a lofty perch, regarding the world below with a gloomy and critical eye.

There is little doubt but what you will see "Brer Rabbit," or some of his family, sitting on their hind legs, or hopping away for dear life. The piled-up logs show that our woodsman has been busy, and that many hearthstone fires will burn the brighter for his humble and faithful service. His own log-cabin, on the edge of the pines, into whose hospitable precincts his children and grandchildren, and all their friends are wont to crowd, will know the cheerful blaze of the pine-knots which he stows away, and which will do duty on winter nights when prayer-meeting is held at his house.

There are many negroes still living who resemble the type in our picture—all honor be to their lowly labor—but the race-character is changing: its trend is upward; education is developing it. The negro is becoming a conscientious and valuable citizen. He makes a good soldier, and according to present plans, negro troops will perform an important part in the invasion of Cuba, and perhaps in holding the Philippines. General Heyward, who is now conducting the evangelistic work of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD among the soldiers at Tampa, paid a deserved compliment to the courage, loyalty and discipline of our negro troops when he said he "would like nothing better than to take several regiments of colored troops to Manila and hold the Philippines with them."

Nature Studies.

There is certainly something deficient, says a wise writer, in the instruction of children when they are carried through their course of studies, at an average age of fifteen or sixteen years, without learning anything of the nature, relations, habits and uses of plants and trees and birds and insects, common objects which are before them every day, and which in various ways effect them most materially. The well-informed teacher could not employ to better advantage a half hour daily than by giving instruction before the pupils collectively in relation to plants and animals; and in no other branch would there be more willing and attentive pupils.

A Distinguished Icelander.

One of the most active and prominent members of the World's W. C. T. U. is an Icelandic woman, Olafia Johannsdotter, President of the W. C. T. U. of Iceland, and Past Grand Vice-Templar of the Good Templars of Iceland. Miss Johannsdotter speaks Danish, Norwegian, German and English, and her family are prominent in the affairs of Iceland, her uncle being speaker of the lower house of the National Council. She was first Vice-President of the Icelandic Woman's Association, when she became interested in the temperance movement and organized a W. C. T. U. in Iceland.

Poetry of the Savage.

There is an element of poetry in savage tribes, as evidenced in the American Indians by the names which many of our towns and rivers bear, and which are of Indian origin. For instance, what could be prettier than to call a musical waterfall Minnehaha (Laughing Water)? An old African slave-woman used to speak of her death as, "When I grow frosty cold," and the missionaries tell some very pretty stories of the use of words by some of the tribes of Africa. One tribe calls thunder "the sky's gun;" morning is called "the day's child;" when ice was shown to them they said, "It is water asleep." It is living close to nature which creates and fosters the poetic temperament, and when taught the truths of Christianity, they bring this poetic fervor into their religious belief.

A PASSING TYPE—THE LOG-CABIN OF THE BLACK BELT.

The Room of the Dead.

Miss Elizabeth Irvine, a missionary, gives the following account of the apartment of the dead, as found in a Chinese home:

The home we called at belonged to a well-to-do family. We were met by one of the women in the compound and invited to enter the house, which had many apartments. According to Chinese etiquette we did not accept the invitation at once, but waited to be urged. My sister said that the guest room of this house was the finest she had seen in China. In one corner of the room was a coffin with the body of the head of the house, who had been dead a long time. This corner was curtained off with very pretty blue cloth curtains, which they drew, inviting us to look in. At one end stood a table on which were placed two idols, which were supposed to minister to the spirit of the person who was dead. Three sets of chop-sticks were placed side by side, and food is regularly served there. Two candles were kept burning there at night and vessels filled with ashes collected from incense burnt. I asked if they ever saw the spirit when it came back. She said "no" with a nervous sort of a smile. It is hard for us to have the slightest conception of the superstitions of these people.

A Noble Dog.

The following account is given in Our Dumb Animals of the brave deed of a Newfoundland, who deserves the monument which is being raised to him:

Wednesday morning, Ranchman Sam Dodge, went to Vinita on business, and Bessie, his five-year-old daughter, wandered from home in an attempt to follow him. The neighbors scoured the prairies all that day and night and all the next day, searching for the little wanderer. Late Thursday evening an Indian came upon her lying fast asleep, just south of Post Oak creek, in an old road known as the "Whiskey Trail." Across her body stood a Newfoundland dog, which had always been her companion about the ranch.

AN OLD NEGRO WOOD-CUTTER.

The dog was torn and bleeding, and near his feet lay the dead bodies of two wolves. Although her cheeks were stained with tears and covered with dust, Bessie was unharmed. She and her protector were taken back to her home, a distance of twelve miles, and the dog died of his wounds that night. He was given a decent burial, and yesterday Sam Dodge ordered a marble monument, which will be placed at the head of the faithful animal's grave.

A Unique Movement.

Our war with Spain has given birth to a rather unique patriotic movement on the part of American women. A number of prominent ladies, on learning that France had shown a disposition to unduly favor Spain in the present contest, decided to "draw the line" against French millinery and costumes, and for the present content themselves with articles of English and American manufacture. This patriotic movement is spreading, and promises to become quite general in our large cities where the war fever runs high. If no other good results, it may at least act as a temporary check on extravagance in dress in many quarters where American products have been discriminated against in favor of more expensive French goods, whose only claim to superiority lay in the fact of their Parisian origin. It is said, however, that this act of peaceful reprisal on the part of our women is having a good effect on French politics.

THE LITTLE "FRESH AIRS."

WHAT shall we show them, the little Fresh-Airs,
When out to the country they come from town?
Why, the swallow's nest and the oriole's breast
And the fan-tail pigeons gray and brown.

Where will they sleep, the little Fresh-Airs,
In a hurry to get to their beds at night,
After a day of the merriest play—
A day that they say is "out of sight"?

They will sleep in little white beds as soft
As the down that ruffles the goose's throat;
The pillows that wait for their drowsy heads
Will float them off in the dreamland's boat.

What shall we teach them, the little Fresh-Airs,
As they sit at our table and eat our food?
We will try to behave by the rule He gave
Who taught the world to be kind and good.

– MARGARET E. SANGSTER,
In Little Knights and Ladies, Published by Harper & Brothers.

A Little Child Shall Lead Them.

AN incident which recently occurred at a Brooklyn mission illustrates the widespread influence for good of our work among children at Mont-Lawn. A man arose one night to give his testimony, and he said that the kindness which Christian people had shown his children had drawn him to Christ. He explained that during the previous summer when they were ill from the intense heat, and he was unable to do anything for them, a kind Christian lady had come for them, taken them to the Bible House, and from there to a place on the Hudson River—a beautiful place called Mont-Lawn — where they were fed, cared for, made happy and taught to say little prayers, which they continued to repeat when they came home.

They had never tired of telling of the love and tenderness that had been shown them at the Home, of their merry play, of the flowers they had gathered, of the birds in the woods, of country rides, chapel services, of orchards, and of many things which had hitherto been unknown wonders to them. What had been done for his little children was by people who were no kin to them, but who believed in Jesus Christ. He had wanted his children to know more of a religion which led people to do such kind things, and had entered them at the Sunday School of the mission because he wanted them to be Christians; he was praying for his family; his eldest son had become a Christian—in answer, he felt, to his prayers.

Miss Collins, matron of our Children's Home, was present, recognized the speaker, and remembered his children; she learned from the Superintendent that this man had become one of the best and most efficient workers in the mission where he was giving his testimony.

Mont-Lawn will soon welcome its little guests again. Our caretakers, under Miss Collins, are busy making ready. Many garments are needed for our charges are usually too poor to be decently clad. Any of our readers, who wish to help clothe these waifs, will be doing a good work by sending summer garments to the Home. They should be suitable for children between the ages of five and twelve, and should be sent, charges prepaid, to the Matron of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y.

All contributions of money will be acknowledged through these columns, and should be sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York. Since last week, the following contributions have been received:

Previously acknowledged	$109 75
Widow's Mite, Malcomb	1 00
Amanda Lemke	1 00
Mrs. C. R. Frest	1 00
Anna L. Holden	1 00
I. H. N., Manchester	3 00
Hattie R. Johnson	2 00
Total	$118.75

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Choosing a Profession—Women in Journalism—Domestic Remedies—Engaged at Sixteen—The Love of Candy.

MY whole heart goes out in sympathy and desire toward young women who feel within themselves the ability to do earnest work in the world, but who do not quite know how to get well started. Here to-day in my morning mail is a letter from Jeanie R., a senior at —— college. In common with many of our college women, Jeanie wishes to engage in some bread-winning occupation in which her literary training will be an advantage. She does not feel attracted toward teaching, nor does she care to enter either law or medicine, though women like her are choosing these professions, and gaining in them an average degree of success.

Jeanie says: "I am inclined to try my hand at journalism. How shall I go about it? What are the initial steps? How does one effect an entrance?"

Well, my dear, the door of journalism is in these days besieged by an eager throng, and there, as everywhere else in this world those who succeed will be the persistent, the resolute, and the unconquerable. The girl who has, as her outfit, ability to see and to describe, a certain aggressiveness, combined with gentleness and tact, and a belief in herself, will probably win in this race, where, without irreverence it may be said that many are called but few are chosen. I must remind Jeanie and others whom she represents, that supplementing mental discipline and distinct literary training, and all important besides, there must be the ability to write clear, straightforward English, to spell correctly, to be concise, terse, and go right to the point, and to write a legible hand. A girl who has never been at college, who has had no advantages other than those afforded by the high school in her native place, may so excel in these requisites, that she will be a very satisfactory journalist. Note, that first of all the young woman must have quick discernment, eyes to see. Next, she must be willing to go where she is sent, to do what she is told. Next, she must not neglect small and obscure things, in her ambition to do great and fine things. I personally know several very successful young women journalists who came to New York from the country, graduates only of the country public schools, and of the country newspaper office.

* * *

A YEAR or two of work on a country newspaper is almost invaluable to a woman who seeks to be efficient and ready and, so to speak, all-round, on a city journal's staff. So, Jeanie, if you have the chance to work on a village paper, or still better, on a paper in one of the smaller or larger manufacturing towns, embrace it at once. You will probably do a little of everything there, be, in a way, a maid-of-all-work; but so much the better, for, as you will know by and by, one learns journalism just as one learns swimming, by plunging in and striking out.

Should you come to a great city and secure a footing on a daily paper, it would be as a reporter, or space, which means that you would be given assignments, and paid for what might be used of the copy you brought in. Learn the art of condensation. In your writing at present, avoid differences and seize the salient point of whatever you describe. Some of your college friends, Jeanie, have made a beginning already in sending reports of college sports, and of undergraduate life, to newspapers which receive and pay for such bits of description.

* * *

I SAID just now, Jeanie, that you must believe in yourself. Not to the point of an overweening self-conceit, but every one of us owes it to the Lord, to whom we are accountable, as well as to his or her own personality, to take a full and fair measure of what the Lord has given us. People who have no proper estimate of their own value can never hope to impress other people or set their stamp on the times. May I give you a bit of one of my most dearly loved hymns?

"A charge to keep I have A God to glorify,
A never-dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky.

To serve the present age,
My calling to fulfill,
Oh! may it all my powers engage
To do my Master's will."

* * *

THREE weeks ago, I wrote in "Friends in Council" a little paragraph about domestic remedies. A friend adds to what I then said, a very admirable suggestion as to the immediate treatment of burns or scalds. Keep the injured place wet with a strong solution of bicarbonate of soda, which is ordinary baking soda, always ready at one's hand. Make the solution by mixing in a pint of water as much soda as you can readily dissolve, and keep the burned parts covered with wet bandages dipped into this. Pain will speedily be relieved, and the new skin will soon form over the sore place.

* * *

"My dearest friend," writes Myrtle, "is a girl of sixteen, still at school. She is engaged to be married to a young minister, but her parents do not approve of the match, and her pastor opposes it, while there is a general feeling against the young man, all of which makes my friend perfectly wretched. The engagement has been broken, and then renewed, and again broken. What do you advise?"

As your friend is so young, only sixteen, she should defer to the opinion of her parents in this matter. There will be time enough for her to become engaged years hence, and if her lover is worthy, he will wait for her, and for the present cease to be an element of trouble in her life.

* * *

MOTHER PHEBE is disturbed because her small Tommy is altogether too fond of candy. I like candy myself, particularly when it is home-made, and as good as I am sure Mother Phebe's is. There is a remedy within your reach dear lady. Don't make cream drops and caramels so often. But I infer that your big Tommy, little Tom's father, and the grown-ups of the household clamor for sweets, and you like to indulge them. Well, don't distress yourself. Pure candy eaten in moderation does not hurt the ordinary small boy. Let him eat it after, not before a meal, and remove your prohibition, as to the quantity. A Spartan mother of my acquaintance broke her little daughter of taking sugar from the bowl, by obliging her to eat a whole pound at a sitting. It made her ill, and she disliked sugar ever after. Tommy will not want the candy half as much when he sees that you are perfectly willing to let him have it. But, after, not before, a meal is the time for eating sweets. MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

STRENGTH IN REST.

TWO voices hath the verb of life;
The active with work's high behest,
The passive bids the worker pause;
Come to a desert place and rest.
God giveth his beloved ones
Most precious boon, the rest of sleep,
The best of gifts falls from his hands,
While we repose in slumber deep.

When the year's work is grandly done,
Great harvests will be gathered in,
And the tired earth will fold her arms
To rest with life still safe within;
White robes upon the cloud looms woven,
Will softly wrap her silent form,
While at the feet of God she's sleeping,
Like a tired child safe from the storm.

Their leafy garments laid aside,
The trees like silent statues stand
On pedestal of hill and dale,
Above the brown and waiting land.
The winds will whisper, but no leaf
Will move in answering quick refrain,
The trees are resting till the spring,
When with new strength they wake again.

They feel the south wind in the May,
And waken at the gentle call,
Rising refreshed for life anew—
With smiling earth give joy to all,
And so we midst the ceaseless toil,
The hurry of this life estate,
Need oft to pause, to rest awhile,
Not only labor, but to wait.

Berlin, Mass. PHEBE A. HOLDER.

There is no baking powder that can compete with Royal on the basis of purity and strength. Other compounds intended for baking, sold at a lower price, are mostly made from alum, phosphatic acid or other inferior ingredient. Royal Baking Powder is requisite to make the finest and most wholesome food.

Great Victories

Over Disease are Won by America's Greatest Medicine.

Impure blood is the foe of mankind.

It is the cause and promoter of many forms of disease, including scrofula, white swelling, salt rheum, boils, sores, pimples and all eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, dyspepsia, malaria and that tired feeling.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by experienced pharmacists, after careful and patient study, for the express purpose of purifying, enriching and vitalizing the blood, and its complete success continually proves its merit.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

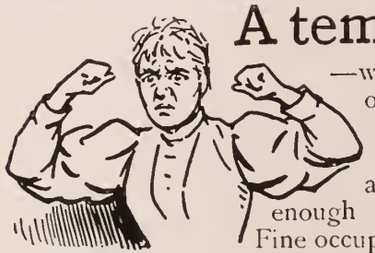
Is America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six for $5. Sold by all druggists. Get only Hood's.

Hood's Pills easy to buy, easy to take, easy to operate. 25c.

1898 Bicycles Down to $5.00.

New 1898 Model Ladies' and Gent's Bicycles now being sold on easy conditions as low as others outright at $13.95, and high-grade at $18 and $22.50, to be paid for after received. If you cut this out and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, they will send you their 1898 Bicycle catalogue and full particulars.

A temper-wrecker



—wash-day with soap. Standing on feet, hard work in the midst of soiled clothes and fetid steam, aching back, weary and tear to things washed enough to make any one grumpy. Fine occupation for a civilized woman.

A temper-soother—wash-day with Pearline—wash-day with the unpleasant features left out. Easier, quicker, better, healthier. No woman can find fault with it. Soaking, boiling, rinsing, instead of rubbing on a washboard. 569

Millions NOW USE Pearline

Throwing Money away

is economy compared with buying any other than

"HOLDFAST" Aluminum Hairpins

...The only hairpins that stay where you put them and neither fall out, warp, split nor break.

Dealers may offer you cheap imitations to make more profit. Do not be deceived, but demand the "Holdfast," and insist on getting them. They look like this Size 2¾ inches; polished or with black tops. Also 3¾ and 4½ inches, with heavy prongs, for braid or bonnet use.

SOLD BY FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

If your dealer will not supply you, send 10 cents in stamps for sample of six small or one large

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO.,

Box 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

Also makers of Stewart's Duplex Safety Pins.

SILK RIBBONS FREE

Any lady having some spare time can make a handsome income by showing our line of silk ribbons and taking orders from her friends and acquaintances. Fine qualities at manufacturer's prices. Samples free. Terms liberal. The Silk Ribbon Supply Co., P. O. Box 36, Station W. Brooklyn, N. Y

LADIES WANTED To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. McGregor & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Three Months subscription to....

"Mode"

By May Man and this elegant

Etc

Jac

Pat

No. 32 to in only

2

or only 10c.

MODES PUB. CO., Dept. I, 37 East 18th St., New York

$40 SAVED

A Practical Business Typewriter at a reasonable price, $40.

Wellington Typewriter No 2

Quick, Clean Printing and Accurate Alignment. A Powerful Manifolder. A typewriter with all the advantages of the old machines and none of their defects. Guaranteed equal in every particular to any $100 machine or money refunded after ten days' trial.

SEND FOR FREE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburg, N. Y.

$3 a Day Sure

Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure. We furnish the work and teach you free, you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138, DETROIT, MICH.

You will realize that "They live well who live cleanly," If you use SAPOLIO

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

OLD-FASHIONED FLOWERS.*

O-FASHIONED flowers! They linger round the dwelling
e gentle memories of spirits blest!
kindly faces, lovely odors telling hands that tended them, now gone to rest.

fair they look against the old gray shingles!
palace could compare with yonder cot, e the dark green with purple lilac lingers,
harmony that cannot be forgot.

shioned flowers! They line our garden closes
h yearly charms, like ever constant friends:
ansies smile up at the stately roses, aster with the flox its beauty blends.

naidens! Do not scorn grandmother's beauties!
prouder title could ye win for dowers,
h making life more sweet by lowly duties—grow each day more like old-fashioned flowers!

shioned flowers, old-fashioned friends and faces,
-fashioned love, the one true dearest heart!
breath of roses brings me back your graces
h sweet assurance they shall ne'er depart.

Old Testament and Immortality.†

THE Hebrew Scriptures contain direct affirmations of a future life. The creation of man is introduced by words: "So God created man in his image, in the image of God created he him: male and female created he them." The material likeness of God is not here referred to. God has no corporeal image. "And the Lord God spake unto you out of the midst of the fire: ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude, only ye heard the voice." (Deut. 4: 12.) "The image of God" does not involve any material resemblance. To the Hebrews "in the image of God" meant that they were created with a soul invisible and undying as the divine Spirit. Thus we are told (Genesis 2: 7), "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul." Here emphatic expression is given to man's twofold nature. Certain Hebrew scholars maintain that the doctrine of a dual is disclosed even in the fact that the Hebrew synonym for life is as a plural form. Benson translates the phrase "the breath of lives," "the souls of lives," and the author of the "Literal Translation from the Hebrew," renders the passage, "Jehovah Elohim formed a man of the dust of the ground, and blew into his nostrils the living Spirit and the man was for a living creature." Thus on the very first page of the Pentateuch the immortality of the soul was a principle well known and fully understood. Farther on in Genesis 5: 24, "Enoch walked with God and he was not, for God took him." The Israelites must have understood that Enoch was taken away to enjoy a better existence than the earthly life. God took him to Himself, to Heaven: to be with Him on high with whom he walked below. The sacred writer explains (Hebrews 11: 5), "He was translated that he should not see death."

How could Noah have been a preacher of righteousness without having some more to present from another world, or without exhibiting the end of righteousness, which is quietness and assurance forever? Paul tells us that what Noah and the Patriarchs did they did "by faith." Faith itself implies the knowledge of a future life for it is "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen," the unseen realities of another life. Paul says that Abraham and a host of others looked for a heavenly country (Hebrews 11). Christ Himself declares that Moses knew that the dead are raised. Luke 20: 37, 38. "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses showed at the bush when he called the Lord the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob. For he is not the God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto Him."

There is conclusive reason for understanding the phrase "gathered to his fathers" in its unperverted meaning of joining them in the other world. Such is the clear decision of the best commentators of various schools. Baumgarten, Gerlach, Knobel and Delitzsch. Says Gerlach on Genesis 15: 15. "Thou shalt go to thy fathers or thy people, in peace, is the gracious expression for a life after death." Says Baumgarten. "A continuance after death is assuredly expressed therein." Knobel remarks more at length on Genesis 25: 8. "Abraham was gathered to his fathers, i. e., was associated with his ancestors in the region of the dead." The phrase "to go to his fathers," "to be gathered to his fathers," and the very common one to "sleep with his fathers" all have the same meaning.

David's deep convictions of immortality breathe in his Psalms. Psalm 16: 10, "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell (the grave) neither wilt thou suffer thine holy one to see corruption." Psalm 17: 14, 15, "As for me I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied when I shall awake with thy likeness." Psalm 49: 15, "But God shall redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me." Psalm 73: 24-26, "Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel, and afterwards receive me into glory. Whom have I in heaven but thee? and there is none on earth that I desire beside thee. My heart and my flesh faileth: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever." When he is at peace with God, he declares with unshaken confidence, "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness." Isaiah with the spirit of the Lord upon him announces "He shall destroy death forever, and the Lord God shall wipe away tears from off all faces" (25: 8): and again he addresses his sublime inspiration to the house of Israel, "Thy dead men shall live, the dead bodies will arise. Awake and sing, ye that dwell in the dust: for thy dew is as the dew of herbs, and the earth shall cast out the dead" (Isaiah 26: 19). Still more distinct if possible is the utterance of Daniel 12: 2, 3, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt. And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament: and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars, forever and ever."

* The Chords of Life. Poems, by Charles H. Crandall. Pp. 157: price $1.00: published by Charles H. Crandall, Springdale, Conn.

† Into The Great Hereafter or Glimpses of the Coming World, by Madison C. Peters, D.D. A selected and inspiring collection of gems of oratory and philosophy from the world's best sources. 604 pages, cloth binding, illustrated. J. A. Willmore & Co., New York, Publishers.

The quality of the soap at even the best hotels and on sleeping cars is not usually in keeping with the luxury of modern travel.

The man who does not wish to use for his toilet and bath, a soap of poor quality and detestable odor, will carry Ivory Soap in his toilet case.

Copyright, 1897, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati.

Just Out! A beautiful Oil Painting Picture by a famous marine artist, in elaborate colors; the finest war picture published. Size 20x25 on heavy plate paper, only . . 25 cts.

Send 25c. in stamps and your name and address to

Photo Colortype Co., Dept. C,
87 Plymouth Place,
Chicago.

Agents wanted in every town to sell above picture. Everybody wants one. You can make big money. Other war pictures out. Send at once 25 cts. for sample outfit.
It will pay you.

$10 A DAY TO AGENTS
MURAT HALSTEAD'S GREAT WAR BOOK.
"Our Country in War." All about armies, navies, coast defences, Maine Disaster, Cuba, Our War with Spain and relations with Foreign Nations. Nearly 600 pages, written since the Maine Disaster. Magnificent colored illustrations. Agents making $10 to $30 per day. No experience necessary. Most liberal terms guaranteed. 30 days' credit, price low, freight paid. Handsome outfit free. Send 9 two cent stamps to pay postage.
EDUCATIONAL UNION, 324 Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.
ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N.Y.
Architects, Builders of Auditoriums
We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.
We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.
E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Secy.

WHAT SAY THE SCRIPTURES ABOUT—
The World's Hope! 2c
What is the Soul! 2c
Hope of Immortality? 2c
Hell & Eternal Punishment! 80 pp 10 cents
Spiritism — Demonism! 118 pages, 10 cents.
All together 20 Cents.
Terms to the poor:—
Nos. 1, 2 and 3, Free; Nos. 4 and 5, To Loan.
Address, O. A. KOETITZ, Box 914, Allegheny, Pa.

An Ideal Hymn and Tune Book:
Church Hymns and Gospel Songs
Compiled by Sankey, McGranahan, and Stebbins
367 Hymns, tune for every Hymn.
Only $25 per 100 in Boards. 30c. each if by mail.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO.
CHICAGO. NEW YORK.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT
AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.
$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.
Sent for 5c. postage.
Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

New England Conservatory of Music
Unequalled advantages in all departments of Music and Elocution. The Conservatory home for young women provides every comfort and safeguard.
George W. Chadwick, Musical Director.
Pupils received at any time. For prospectus address
FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

Rubifoam

Cleanses..
Preserves
Beautifies
THE TEETH.
The Perfect Liquid Dentifrice.
Popular price, 25c. Send 2c. stamp for sample vial. Address E. W. HOYT & Co., Lowell, Mass.

DEWEY AT MANILLA—IN TEN COLORS. Just out, showing Olympia and U. S. fleet destroying the Spanish squadron. Matted for framing, size 15x20, $1 per doz., $6 per 100. Sample, postpaid, 25c. Order to-day. Money in it now. CARRAINE & SLIGO, 918 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

TRUE FRIENDSHIP.

Christ's Law of Love the Measure of Friendship. Prov. 18: 24; Mark 5: 15-19; John 15: 12-18.

One important aspect of Christianity is that of comradeship. Christ intended his religion to draw men nearer to one another. In his direct teaching and in his parable of the Good Samaritan and other parables, he made this aspect prominent. His followers were to be brotherly, neighborly—were to be helpful and to show in their lives the qualities which are included in our idea of friendship. In his pathetic address to his disciples, he showed them how he had himself fulfilled his own ideal. He had taken them into his confidence, he had loved them with tender affection, and finally, he was about to give them the supreme proof of his friendship by laying down his life for them. His argument therefrom is beautifully tender. If they were his friends, they would keep his commandments, and his commandment was, not something for his benefit, but that they love one another, "as I have loved you." What a gauge of love that is! The grand unselfishness of such legislation has never been surpassed. Thus it follows that the man who wears the illustrious title of "friend of Christ" is a loving man, a man with a loving disposition, whose affections are not restricted to his own family, or tribe, or nation, but go out to the whole world. He is ready to help a stranger, or even an enemy, and at his own loss and inconvenience. "Love as I have loved you" is a measure without limit. Why, he died for us. What more could he have done? That was Christ's conception of friendship and the standard he sets for his followers. If we actually and practically realized this command, what a changed world this would be! The Christian would be known everywhere by his kindly manner, his gentle, sympathetic words, his liberal, helpful hand. The suffering and want around him would be the sphere of his activity. As a friend of Christ, he would toil and make sacrifices to help the afflicted and the poor. He would give thought and time and labor and money to ease their burdens, not looking for gratitude, but well and sufficiently rewarded if Christ regarded him as his friend. This is the secret of true friendship. When a man becomes the friend of Christ he is friendly, kind and helpful to all with whom he comes in contact. Whatsoever may be the other changes in life and conduct wrought at conversion, this one of a change to a loving disposition cannot be absent if the conversion be genuine.

GO OR SEND.

The Duty of the Church to Send the Gospel Message to Heathen Lands. Rom. 10: 14-17.

A returned missionary reports a suggestive conversation he had with a man whom he had been the means of leading to Christ. The convert was concerned about the condition of his father, who died before the missionaries came to his country. The missionary's conscience would not permit him to hold out any hope of the dead man's salvation. "How long have your people had this Gospel?" was the convert's next question. The missionary had to admit that they had had it for centuries. "Why did you not bring it to us earlier?" the man asked in surprise. The question was one difficult to answer. Even now, when the church has realized its duty, and in almost every land the Gospel is being preached, the means are far from adequate to the work. In China, in Africa, and in Japan there are millions who have never heard of Christ. Hard as the missionaries work, they cannot reach the teeming populations around them. It is a physical impossibility to carry the life-giving message to the towns and villages at a distance from their stations. More men are needed, and they are ready and eager to go if the missionary societies were able to send them. But on all hands their inability is confessed. There is scarcely a missionary society without a debt; scarcely one that has not, in its eagerness to propagate the Gospel, spent more than its income. So it comes to this, that men are dying day by day in heathenism, for no other reason than the lack of money to send them the Gospel. The responsibility is serious. It would seem that there is no duty, not even the multiplication of churches in our own land, so urgent as this of the extension of foreign missions. In every little town minor differences of creed must be considered, and each denomination must have a costly church of its own, with minister and choir, and all the apparatus of church organization, while the millions of heathen are perishing for lack of knowledge. The church of Christ has yet to learn its duty in this matter, and to take a new view of its obligations.

SAYING AND DOING.

The Apostolic Test of Vital Religion. I. John 2: 3-6; 3: 18, 19.

Right thinking, as all admit, is the only sure guarantee of right living. The springs of action are within, and if the fountain is polluted at its source, it will give forth polluted water, no matter how graceful and costly the fountain may be. But the test of inward purity is the outward life. We have a right to conclude that a life that is not in accord with Christ's principles is destitute of Christ's spirit. No matter how orthodox a man may be, or how glibly he can discourse of Christian doctrine, the essence of religion is not in him if his life is not Christly. We hear a great deal about assurance and the imputed righteousness of Christ, and there is good reason for dwelling on these themes; but it is also necessary to keep a close watch on the outward life. The righteousness which does not produce a righteous life is spurious, and the sooner that fact is realized the better. Unless religion changes character and disposition it is worthless. Like the fig tree which produced leaves but no fruit, the Christian who is loud in his profession and regular in his attendance at church, but shows none of the spirit of Christ in his home and in his business, will come under the curse. There is no substitute for this. Paul said that a man might talk like an angel and understand all mysteries and give all his goods to feed the poor, and even die a martyr's death, and yet fail if he had not this one essential of the love which transforms the life. The Apostle John applies the same test. It is in the keeping of Christ's commandments, the chief of which is that "ye love one another," that we know whether we belong to him. Words are easily spoken, and in these days there are few obstacles to making a profession of Christ, but the test is not there. Unless the disposition is right, unless there is in our daily conduct that kindness, and love and gentleness which Christ manifested, we are none of his.

Bright Cut Glass

"To make cut or plain glass bright and new, wash in hot suds made from Fairy Soap. Rinse thoroughly in warm water, then dry at once with fine linen."

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors, entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 17½x24 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY.
Chicago. St Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

ENAMELINE

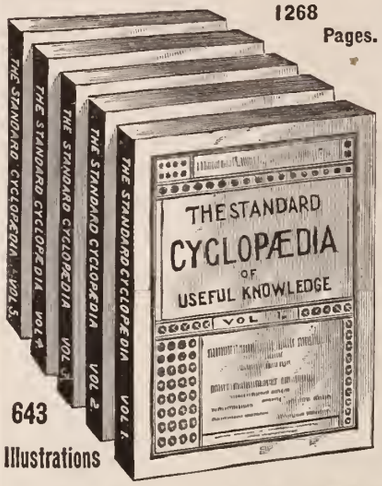
THE MODERN Quick Shine, Little Labor. STOVE POLISH

No Dust. No Odor.

NO OTHER COMPARES WITH IT. IT'S THE BEST.

J.L. PRESCOTT & CO. NEW YORK

Standard Cyclopedia FRE



Wishing to introduce our illustrated monthly, Farm and Home, into every where it is not at present taken, we will s until Jan. 1, 1899, on trial for only 30 cen stamps or silver, and to all subscribing wit days, we will send The Standard Cyclo of Useful Knowledge, as described bel mail, postpaid. The regular price of this Cyclo is $1.25.

The Standard Cyclopædia of U Knowledge, published in five volumes, c 1268 pages and 643 illustrations. The of the work is remarkable, embracing alm subjects that are of interest and value to the of the people. Among the topics treated are tory, Biography, Natural History, els, Manners and Customs, Wo of the World, Manufactures, I tion and Discovery, Wonders of Sea, Law, Mining, Foreign Pro Familiar Science, Statistics, Ag ture, Horticulture, Stock Raising, try Keeping, Architecture, Cookery, culture, Ladies' Fancy Work, Home ration, Etiquette, Lace Making, Pai Home Amusements, The Nursery, The Room, etc., etc. It describes the most fa battles and wonderful events of histo contains portraits and biographies of the est statesmen, authors, poets, generals, cler etc., of this and the preceding century; tr portant hints and suggestions to farmer cerning field crops, fertilizers, implements an chinery, stock raising, dairy farming, poultry ing, bee keeping, etc., etc. In a word, it is a house of useful and entertaining knowledge taining the cream or substance of twenty nary volumes.

Order now, as this offer will not appear aga

Address, mentioning this paper, FARM AND HOME, Springfield, Mass., or Chicag

The Mission of the Criterion Magic Lanterns and Stereopticons is more and more apparent, as a method of religious instruction, entertainment and profit. For entertainment its field is unquestioned, while its potency as a debt reducer is being better understood daily.

Send for particulars to J. B. COLT & CO., Dept. 29—3, 5 and 7 W. 29th St., N. Y.

Mother's Free Library

Vol. VI for the mother who wants to know more of baby's troubles — and the relief. A copy, free, to any mother who will write

Davidson Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.

If you have a nursing baby—send us a 2c. stamp and we will send you a free sample of "Davidson's Health Nipple." 31-2o

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. CLEANING NO CRUMBLING. CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO., 70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

Your Dinner can be cooked all at one time on one burner of any kind of stove if you use

THE IDEAL Steam Cooker

Prevents steam and odors. Will reduce fuel bills 50 per cent. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Will hold 12 one quart glass jars in Canning Fruit. Agents Wanted.

Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16 Toledo, O.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country; steady employment, commission or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES and to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

CURE YOUR BOY OF THE CIGARETTE HABIT

Anti-Cigarette—a harmless, vegetable remedy, will cure the habit in 10 days. Can be taken in coffee without discovery. Price 50c by mail. Phoenix Chemical Co., Quincy, Ill.

Tartarlithine i Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., w

"Your Tartarlithine has prov wonderful weapon for rheumatist have used a very great quantity i in the last three or four m and I have never seen anything li I had one case who had tried all alkaline lithiates, and everything He has had rheumatism all his and nothing completely stopped a manifestations of the disease like tarlithine, which did completely, one bottle.

I have another old man, who tr much on the road peddling, wh been lame with rheumatism for years, and one bottle cured all ness, and he says he has not well in five years as now. Thes only the two worst cases of that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by

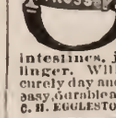
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St., Y.

SOLE AGENTS FOR

The Tartarlithine Co.

ON 30 DAYS' TRI

THIS NEW



ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad different fr others, is cup shape, wi adjusting Ball in center, adap to all positions of the body, w ball in the cup presses ba intestines, just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circular free.

C. H. EGGLESTON & CO., 1201 MASONIC TEMPLE, CHICAGO

AGENTS WANTED

We furnish samples free to agents. 5 Front Tubes, Me., sold $132.75 profit 7 days. Write for Catalog, new goods, re... Richardson Mfg. Co. 6th St., E. R. Y.

ITH OUR FLEET AT KEY WEST.

Histy-Making Days—Our Merchant Pres—Cubans and the Church—Reports of stitution Among the Reconcentrados

(From a Special Correspondent.)

KEY WEST, Fla.

T past few days have been history-akg. Key West has remained the ent of action, and at present there is m apprehension that it may yet be the j of Spanish attack. In no part of e nited States was unpreparedness r more evident in the beginning of r than at Key West. The place s ithout a water supply, save six old cistern water; the harbor s efenseless save for sunken reefs n angrove, verdured islands, and a t f the ante-bellum period, with o n-bore guns. All is changed now. d y West is one of the best protected c on or off the coast. Mines, con- from the shore, guard the harbor- tr e; search-lights at night pry into r orner, and grim monitors and other t y strongholds, together with snake- e rpedo boats, are ready to pour at nd destruction into any invading r . The United States Government w in operation a condenser capable s plying water sufficient for the troops t town, and extensive receptacles are n onstructed for the storage of coal.

Our Spanish Merchant Prizes.

In he harbor are about twenty-five r h prizes, some of them from every i f view the legitimate spoils of t thers the staff of life of some poor e an or sailor, whose family is wait- r vain for the ship that will never r This is one of the saddest features f w are. The honest, hardworking folk w be regarded, even in the remotest egr as responsible for a Weyler or a fort . Yet they suffer because they sail u e the same flag as those who de- astd Cuba and destroyed the Maine. ea all of these prizes will be con- emn d. Two or three may possibly sca but the remainder will pay tribute t th sailors who captured them, some of w or as the men on the Mangrove which a te the Panama, will receive a small

M ntime, the crews of these vessels h have suffered for want of food, but r t supplies contributed by the people f t United States. It seems astonish- e t t due preparation should not have e n ade for the support of these scores f h dreds of prisoners of war, but the f ct mains that none was made, and t t the request of the commandant h bort and the United States Marshal, w od om the stores on the relief ship. f Texas, were given to these people. e were duly grateful, and no doubt e ernment, at the proper time, will a r the supplies thus advanced. In e e of the Spanish steamer Pedro, s as an almost absolute lack of pro- vi among the crew, although the w which could not be opened, because l by the authorities after capture, d ed an abundance of food.

The Cubans and the Church.

O result of the conquest of the United t will be to open a wide field for re- work. The Rev. Dr. Sullivan F. e ho has charge of Congregational m Missionary work in this State, told e today that he had been informed that f th ousands of Cubans now at Tampa, e y w were sincerely attached to the m Church. His own opinion was that his due in a large degree to the senti- ment revalent among Cubans that the ur , as a hierarchy has been opposed t th , and in favor of Spain. This at- titd f the Church had gradually alien- d e Cubans, until now multitudes of th m and apart from the priesthood, and are at least in a receptive mood for the teachgs of Protestant missionaries. The fld ll be made all the more important by th large emigration which, it is ex- pecte will pour into Cuba from the Unit States after the conclusion of the war. ast tracts in Cuba have been de- popu ed by the extinction of their in- habi ts. Many of the reconcentrados who ve perished were land-owners, and now ir lands are without an owner. Cu , with American sanitary methods intro ced, would soon lose the bad re- pute, hich Spanish negligence and im- province have brought upon it, and it would be looked upon as a health resort by people in the United States.

Terrible Destitution in Cuba.

I was introduced this week to a band of refugees recently arrived from Cuba, and now in Key West. They described the condition of the island, so far as it is held by the Spaniards, as pitiful in the extreme. It is no longer a question of the reconcentrados. The middle class in Havana and other cities are almost starving, and the working-people generally are without work or food, or at least food sufficient to keep them in health or strength. There have been several cases of successful blockade-running, and the supplies brought in have been sold at prices that made fortunes for the blockade-runners.

In view of these reported conditions, it is believed that the relief ship State of Texas, will closely follow the troops, and that the government will do everything possible to facilitate the distribution of these supplies among the sufferers in Cuba. If Havana is to be reduced by siege operations, the situation there, bad as it is at present, will be greatly intensified, and history may have another story like that of Numantia to add to the terrible records of war. Meanwhile the activity of the Spaniards indicates that the military are not as yet suffering from famine, and that they still have spirit enough left to present a strong resistance to our invading forces.

* * *

How Birds Breathe.

Perhaps makers of flying-machines—none of whom have made a machine which can be trusted to fly—will be more successful when they take into count the fact that the manner in which a bird breathes, as well as the manner in which it uses its wings, has something to do with its "cleaving the sky." Ornithology tells us that it is a marvelous arrangement that by which the air taken into the lungs of a bird enters into the substance of nearly every part of the bird's body, reducing its specific gravity and rendering it capable of being easily supported in the air by its wings. The surface of the lungs is perforated with large openings, which communicate with air-sacs, and these penetrate to different parts of the body, occupying internal cavities of the bird's hollow bones. In young birds the bones are filled with marrow; it is not so with the older ones; and the communication between the lungs and these air-sacs is so perfect that a bird has been known to breathe through a broken wing-bone when the regular air-passages had been closed by compression.

Strange New Shrub that Cures Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Rheumatism, etc. Free.

We have previously described the new botanic discovery, Alkavis, which proves a specific cure for diseases caused by Uric acid in the blood, or disorder of the Kidneys or urinary organs. It is now stated that Alkavis is a product of the well known Kava-Kava Shrub, and is a specific cure for these diseases just as quinine is for malaria. Hon. R. C. Wood, of Lowell, Ind., writes that in four weeks Alkavis cured him of Kidney and bladder disease of ten year's standing, and Rev. Thomas M. Owen, of West Pawlet, Vt., gives similar testimony. Many ladies also testify to its wonderful curative powers in disorders peculiar to womanhood. The only importers of Alkavis so far are the Church Kidney Cure Co., of 418 Fourth Avenue, New York, and they are so anxious to prove its value that for the sake of introduction they will send a free treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail to every reader of The Christian Herald who is a Sufferer from any form of Kidney or Bladder disorder, Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Gravel, Pain in Back, Female Complaints, or other affliction due to improper action of the Kidneys or Urinary Organs. We advise all Sufferers to send their names and address to the company, and receive the Alkavis free. It is sent to you entirely free, to prove its wonderful curative power

The blood is purified, enriched and vitalized by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It overcomes that tired feeling, creates an appetite and thoroughly renovates every bodily organ. Get Hood's and only Hood's.

MAN OR LADY
of good address to travel for old established house $840 per mo. & expen's
P. W. ZIEGLER, & CO., 209 Locust St. Phila. Pa.

ALASKA

GRIPS
the lid securely, preventing all possibility of slipping. It will fit all stoves and lets go instantly when desired. Can be used hurriedly with perfect ease and safety. The Alaska Stove Lifter is the delight of every housekeeper. Handle always cold. Price 15c. at all stove, hardware, and house furnishing dealers, or mailed postpaid for 30c.
TROY NICKEL WORKS, Albany, N. Y.

THE POWER BEHIND THE BRUSH

What is it—brain or brawn? Do you clean by main strength or do you use labor savers? Do you use the best labor saver? If you are undecided which is best try
GOLD DUST Washing Powder

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia.

ALBA-LOTIO

Eczema, Pimples and Blackheads,

ALBA-LOTIO
Contains no greasy or oily ingredients, and may safely be applied by the hand. It discolors neither skin nor fabric. It is not poisonous and does not contain the slightest trace of arsenic, mercury or other mineral poisons.

ALBA-LOTIO
Is the only odorless, antiseptic, astringent Liquid Cure on the market.

When it is applied it is absolutely invisible and radically antagonistic to all skin disorders; always affording immediate and lasting relief, and invariably resulting in a quick and permanent cure.

ALBA-LOTIO
is put up in bottles containing a month's treatment.

ALBA-LOTIO
Is an unfailing remedy for all disorders of the skin of whatever character. It has been tried and proven in thousands of cases without a single disappointment or failure. The Medical Profession has for many years employed with unfailing success, and cases considered incurable have readily yielded to its soothing and healing properties. If you or any member of your family suffer from Eczema, Blotches, Rash, Pimples, Blackheads, or any cutaneous eruptions of whatever character, you will find in an ever true, loyal, and unfailing friend.

ALBA-LOTIO

ALBA-LOTIO

OSMAR CHEMICAL CORPORATION
BROOKLYN N.Y. U.S.A.

YOU cannot compare ALBA-LOTIO with any other Remedy. It is absolutely unique in Color, Consistency, Effectiveness and Results.

There is nothing like it in the world. It stands alone, head and shoulders above and beyond any and every remedy for disorders of the Skin ever devised, made or sold.

Send ONE DOLLAR for a bottle containing a full month's treatment and use as directed, and you will never get through singing the praises of ALBA-LOTIO. Address,

Osmar Chemical Corporation,
319-321 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Burlington Route

OMAHA EXPOSITION

A Suggestion—Go to the Rocky Mountains for your vacation and stop at Omaha on the way to see the Exposition. It can be done so comfortably.

COLORADO OUTINGS
THE YELLOWSTONE PARK

are titles of illustrated descriptive booklets, which will be sent free with a folder about the Exposition, on application to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent C. B. & Q. R. R. Chicago, Ill.

Big Reduction IN PRICES.

1898 Model — High Grade

OAKWOOD High-grade '98 model as per illustration. Flush Joints, 1⅛ in. Tubing. One-piece Cranks. Large Star Sprockets. Best high-grade Tires. Padded or Hygienic Saddle. None better at any price. Equal to or better than wheels retailed by others at $75. Our special price $32.50

ARLINGTON '98 Model. Flush Joints, 1⅛ in. Tubing. Two-piece cranks. Arch Crown, M. & W. or Arlington Tires. A Good Honest Wheel and Best in the World for the money. Others retail wheels no better for $60. Our special price $24.50

Other Wheels at $13.75, $15 and $19.
Juvenile Wheels at $7. to $12.50.

We have the largest and most complete line of Bicycles in the U. S. for Men, Women, Girls and Boys.

ALL BRAND NEW MODELS.

Shipped anywhere C. O. D., with privilege to examine. No money in advance. It pays to buy direct from the manufacturers. You save agents and dealers profits which means from $5 to $25 on every wheel—worth saving is it not? ONE PROFIT, MAKER to RIDER explains it. Prompt shipments guaranteed, we have the wheels in stock, thousands of them and thousands more being made at the factory. Large Illustrated Catalog Free. Write today for Special Offer. Address plainly,

CASH BUYERS' UNION,
162 W. Van Buren Street, Dept. 1B, Chicago, Ills.

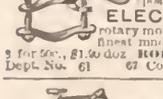
7000 BICYCLES carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of all '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.

E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

BICYCLE BELL, 10c.

Our Great '98 Introduction Offer. A fine clear ringing nickel bell with our catalogue of 3,000 cycle and other specialties, only 10 cents (postage 5c extra). 3 for 25c., $1.65 doz.

ELECTRIC STROKE BELL rotary movement, bell metal gong, nickeled, finest made, only 25c. (postage 5c extra). 3 for 50c., $3.50 doz. ROBT. H. INGERSOLL & BRO., Dept. No. 61, 67 Cortlandt Street, New York City.

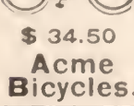


HIGH GRADE '98 MODELS. Same grade as agents sell for $75. We have no agents but sell direct to the rider at manufacturers' prices. Selected models. Best material, superb finish. Guaranteed against defects as well as defects. We ship with privilege of examination, pay express charges both ways and refund money if not as represented. Write for Catalogue.

$ 34.50 Acme Bicycles.

ACME CYCLE CO., 125 Main St., ELKHART, IND.

$5 LOWEST—$35 HIGHEST



price at which we are selling wheels. We always carry a stock of at least 2000 BICYCLES including over 100 different makes. Catalogue sent free. Wheels shipped C.O.D. subject to full examination and absolute satisfaction guaranteed. Buy your wheel from a responsible firm. We know how to take care of our customers. You can make big money acting as our agent.

BROWN-LEWIS CYCLE CO., (Dept. F) CHICAGO, ILL.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and feet on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No trash, no job lots. Send for cata. and special offer. F. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

A Low Wagon at a Low Price.

The money-making farmer of to-day wants a low built, easily loaded, easily unloaded, light draft, powerful short turn "Handy" farm wagon; a wagon that will save the farmer's own back, save his horses, save his hired labor and save his money.

This wagon is built by the Empire Manufacturing Co., Quincy, Ill. It is only 25 inches high with 4 inch tired wheels, and is sold for the low price of $19.95. This firm also manufactures Metal Wheels any size, any width of tire, hubs to fit any sized axle. Write for catalogue.

Double Value

The wastes others have in scattering their energies over half a dozen models we save to you by making but one model of the wonderful '98

Waverley Bicycles $50

Write for the Waverley Catalogue.
Indiana Bicycle Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

$50 A WEEK. Easily Made by bright business men and women selling John Clark Ridpath's Life and Time of

WM. E. GLADSTONE.

Best book on the market. Finest illustrations. Best paper and printing. Superb bindings. Lowest prices. Contains full life from CRADLE TO TOMB. For terms and particulars address

JONES BROTHERS PUBLISHING CO.,
NEW YORK OR CINCINNATI, O.

'TIS THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER,

Oh! long may it wave,
O'er the land of the free and
The home of the brave!

A gold plated lapel button in red, white and blue enamel, the American flag shape of a bow knot. Price by mail TWO CENTS. Three by mail (which make ladies' shirt waist set) FIVE CENTS. Address, LYNN & CO., 48 Bond Street, New York.

PARKER'S GINGER TONIC

The best cure for Cough, Weak Lungs, Indigestion, Inward Pains and the ills of the Feeble and Aged. Combining the most active medicines with Ginger, it exerts a curative power over disease unknown to other remedies, and in fact the most revitalizing, life-giving combination ever discovered. Weak Lungs, Rheumatism, Female Debility, and the distressing ills of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are dragging many to the grave who would recover health by its timely use.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in this paper last week is a delightful, certain cure for ailments peculiar to women and girls. It makes walking and work easy; gives good figure and light step. Write the Natural Body Brace Co., Salina, Kansas, for free illustrated book.

TYPEWRITER HEADQUARTERS

102 Fulton st., New York, sell all makes under half price. Don't buy before writing them for unprejudiced advice and prices. Exchanges. Immense stock for selection. Shipped for trial. Guaranteed first class. Largest house in the world. Dealers supplied. 52-page illus. cat. free.

WOMEN Make $2 to $10 a Day selling our Mackintosh Dress Skirts, new dress shields, etc. Cat. Free. Ladies' Supply Co., 3118 Forest Ave., Chicago

FREE COSTS NOTHING

But the asking to get our new 1898 Catalogue of either

PIANOS OR ORGANS

At wholesale prices, thus saving you every penny usually pocketed by agents and dealers.

SEND TODAY FOR OUR NEW

DUE BILL CERTIFICATE { It saves you $10.00 on an ORGAN. " " " $20.00 on a PIANO.

CASH OR INSTALMENTS.

30 days' trial. No money in advance. Safe delivery at your depot insured. Instalments. Easy payments. Our new due bill certificate shows you how to get an Organ or Piano for little or nothing. Remember, our Catalogue costs you nothing, and will positively save you money.

PIANOS, $155 UP.
ORGANS, $25.00 UP.

We furnish with each Piano a $10 hard wood Piano C free, also Plush Scarfs and $10 worth of the latest s music. Complete Organ outfit, free. Our factory, wit enormous capacity, enables us to sell you a high-grad strument at a figure much below that of any other c pany in the world.

INCORPORATED FOR 50 YEARS.
WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW

Beethoven Piano and Organ C
Box 741 WASHINGTON, N.J.

A JUNIOR QUAKER KITCHEN CABINET FOR $5 ON 30 DAYS'

A Quadruple Silver-Plated Teapot, worth $5, FREE with Every Cabinet.

THE GREATEST OF ALL STEP-SAVERS.

If pleased, remit in 30 days; if not, return at our expense. The Junior Cabinet has whitewood top, 27x42 in.; hardwood legs and frame, finished antique; one metal bottom swinging flour bin, partitioned, each compartment holding 25 lbs.; a touch will open or close it, empty or full; one drawer, partitioned for spices, etc.; one large breadboard which slides into frame. Price, $5. on board cars in Chicago. The Senior Cabinet is exactly as shown in tion. Top, 27x47 in.; two bins, one holding 50 lbs., the other part shown; two drawers—one partitioned; one bread- and one meat-board $6.50. on board cars in Chicago. The teapot goes free with every cabi Junior or Senior. It is extra large—10 in. high, 6 in. diameter; best silver plate, warranted to wear for 10 years; each teapot contains a sig cente of warranty. Worth $5—represents what you save by sending di factory for the cabinet. If you desire, we'll send, in lieu of the teapot, a Syrup Cup and Pi ter Dish, or Sugar Bowl, of the same high-grade ware. In ordering all that's necessary is to sa you want the Junior Cabinet at $5, or the Senior at $6.50, state your choice of premiums, and say you're this publication. QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 355 W. Harrison St., CHICAGO.

P. S.—If you prefer to remit in advance—we don't ask it—we'll include 6 of the finest quadruple sil after-dinner coffee-spoons that money can buy, as a grateful acknowledgment of our appreciation of your o

REMEMBER THE "MAINE"

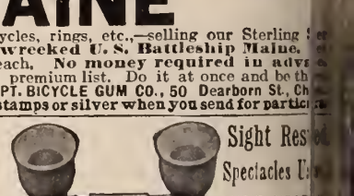
We want agents everywhere to earn money, bicycles, rings, etc.,—selling our Sterling S Plated Historic Souvenir Spoons of the wrecked U. S. Battleship Maine, are worth a dollar—but sell them for 10c each. No money required in adva Send full name and address for order blank and premium list. Do it at once and be th to show them in your town. Address SPOON DEPT. BICYCLE GUM CO., 50 Dearborn St., Ch P.S.—If you want a sample spoon, inclose 10c in stamps or silver when you send for partic

TRUSSES.

Rupture is Cured Without Pain or Neglect of Business.

It is stated that 50 per cent. of the inhabitants of this great country suffer from rupture. Many are the remedies and appliances for their relief and cure. The Improved Elastic Truss Co. of New York furnishes the most effective truss for the relief and cure, producing none of the injurious results and torturing annoyances of other trusses, and it can be worn with ease night and day, thereby effecting a radical and permanent cure. Those interested in the subject call on or write and get a catalogue free of charge to the

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.
785 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Established in New York 16 Years.



Sight Res
Spectacles U
AVOID HEAD
OR SURG OPERATION.
"ILLUSTRA TREATISE ON THE
IMPAIRED VISION, WEAK, WATERY, SOR
INFLAMED EYES, ASTIGMATISM, PRESB
MYOPIA, CATARACT, AND THE W
DISORDERS OF THE EYE." MAILED FR
THE IDEAL COMPANY, 239 Broadway, N

$18 per week and expenses eral good pa travel. No canvassing. Also several good loc ers. Permanent position. Give reference. R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimo

Have you a Home?

You can greatly improve its appearance and increase its value by fencing the lawn with this

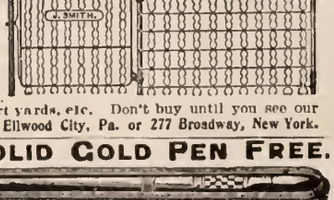
HARTMAN STEEL PICKET FENCE.

Stronger than iron, cheaper than wood and handsomer than either.



Does not obstruct the view—steel post with ornamented top. Nice for cemetery lots, school and church grounds, court yards, etc. Don't buy until you see our FREE catalogue and circulars. HARTMAN M'F'G. CO., Ellwood City, Pa. or 277 Broadway, New York.

A Good Wagon

begins with good wheels. Unless the wheels are good the wagon is a failure. IF YOU BUY THE

ELECTRIC STEEL WHEEL

made to fit any wagon, your wagon will always have good wheels. Can't dry out or rot. No loose tires. Any height, any width tire. Catalog free.

ELECTRIC WHEEL CO.
Box 186 QUINCY, ILL.

CONSTIPATION,

CANCER, SALT RHEUM, RHEUMATISM, CATARRH and all Blood Diseases cured by use of the extract of Red Clover Blossoms.

Send for circular and prices. Prepared and sold by

D. NEEDHAMS' SONS,
10, Inter Ocean Bldg., Chicago.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES; no experience needed; position permanent; self seller. PEASE MFG. CO., P. O. Box A, Cincinnati, O.

SOLID GOLD PEN FREE.

FOR ONE DAY'S WORK

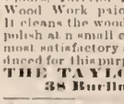
We send this beautiful Pearl-Handled Solid Gold Pen to boys and girls for selling 1 1-2 doz. packages of Bluine at 10 cents per package. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine post paid and a large Premium List.

BLUINE COMPANY Box 9, Concord Junction, Mass

LIGNITE.

Designed for cleaning and polishing Hard Wood Floors, Interior Hard Wood Work, Stained Work, Wood Work painted in dark colors, Furniture, etc. It cleans the wood thoroughly and gives it a brilliant polish at a small cost. Lignite is without doubt the most satisfactory and economical material ever produced for this purpose. Send for circular and price to

THE TAYLOR PAINT AND OIL CO.,
38 Burling Slip, New York City.



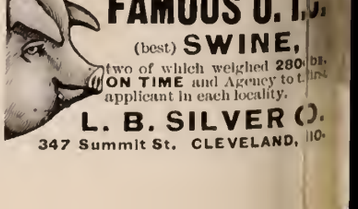
OLD GLORY SHOW YOUR COLORS. Finely Woven Silk Badge 6c. by mail; 5 for 10c.; 30c. doz.; 100 for $2. Greatseller for holidays and fairs. L. N. Cushman, 34 Oliver St., Boston, Mass.

SALARY

A YEAR. $75 STRAIGHT OUT
$900.00 BONAFIDE SAL
NO MORE, NO LE

Several trustworthy gentlemen or ladies wa each state to manage our business in th and nearby counties. It is mainly office w ducted at home. Salary straight $900 a y expenses—definite, bonafide, no commissio to understand. Six years in business compelled COMPETENT RELIABLE MA to secure to handle our rapidly growing trade. Ref Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE DOMINION COMPAN
Dept. N 26, Chica



WAR TIME MAKES A DEMAND FOR F
Send for description of the FAMOUS O. I. C.
(best) SWINE,
two of which weighed 280 ON TIME and Agency to t applicant in each locality.
L. B. SILVER CO.
347 Summit St. CLEVELAND,

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

NEW YORK, JUNE 15 1898.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 24.

PRICE FIVE CENTS

"OFF FOR THE WAR"—THE YOUNG RECRUIT'S GOOD-BYE. (See page 506.)

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Ben H., Grand Rapids, Mich. What is Admiral Dewey's nationality, what his religion, and what his descent?

The Admiral was born in Montpelier, Vt., in 1837. The first American Dewey came to Dorchester, in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, from Sandwich, England, in 1633. Admiral Dewey is a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Laurence B., Germantown, Pa. How did the name "Lucifer" come to be applied to Satan and what did it mean?

There have been at different times various interpretations of the famous passage in Isa. 14: 12: "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didst weaken the nations!" "Lucifer" means "light-bringer," and has also been translated "son of the morning," "morning star," "brilliant," "splendid," "illustrious." Tertullian and Gregory the Great interpreted the passage in Isaiah as referring to the fall of Satan, and, since their time, the name "Lucifer" has been almost universally held by the Christian church to be an appellation of Satan before the fall. Dr. Henderson, a famous commentator, simply interprets it "illustrious son of the morning," and holds that it has no reference to the fall of the apostate angels. Some later authorities claim that the passage has a prophetic reference to the fall from power of the great and illustrious King of Babylon, who surpassed all other monarchs of his time in splendor.

Reader, Davenport, Ia. We read of many complaints with regard to the government's treatment of the recruits in the matter of food and shelter. Surely our government should take good care of those who volunteer to fight their country's battles, and see that they do not suffer from neglect.

There doubtless has been a good deal of hardship and discomfort among the volunteers, but these are inseparable from the early stages of the great military movement that we have undertaken. Investigation will probably show that the government has made such preparation as was possible for the sheltering and feeding of the new regiments at the various military camps; but there doubtless have been many delays in forwarding supplies, and these have contributed to the general discomfort. The unusually wet and cold spring has also been a cause of sickness in some sections.

District, Trenton, N. J. What is the estimated strength of the Cuban insurgents?

The most reliable statements place their fighting strength at 30,000. Many of them are very poorly armed, however, and this figure might be reduced one-third. Our military leaders are not counting, to any considerable extent, on Cuban assistance, but have arranged that supplies and ammunition and if possible a small force of the Cuban allies were to be ready for the campaign.

Reader, Dayton, O. Was it ever revealed in history who the individual was who was known as "Monsieur the Iron Mask"?

Many conjectures have been written on this subject, the most probable being that which asserts that the wearer of the iron mask was Count Ercole Antonio Matthioli, a senator of Mantua and minister of Duke Ferdinand Charles. He was arrested by order of the emperor's government for having betrayed Louis XIV in a secret treaty for the surrender of the fortress Casale, the key of Italy. The agents of Spain and Austria induced him by outbidding the French king. He was compelled to wear the iron mask, or helmet, because of his attempt to the unfortunate plot, and to keep the matter as secret as possible.

J. D., Lyons, City, N. J. In the event of an attack on this country on coast defenses, which would be the most vulnerable point, and would it be better to hold or evacuate such a point?

Like all other questions, it would have its advantages and its drawbacks. Among the former may be enumerated the opening of avenues for our commercial expansion, especially in the far East. In the event of trouble arising with any nation, or nations, Great Britain would be a most powerful ally. Our relations with Canada would doubtless experience a general improvement. On the other hand, an independent attitude, with no entangling alliances, would not alienate the good-will of other nations, as the alliance with Great Britain would do.

Lewis M., Honesdale, Pa. Are foppery and overdressing always a sign of a weak mind?

Not necessarily. Some men, who certainly cannot be accused of mental inferiority, have had this peculiarity. Raleigh used to cover his shoes heavily with jewels when he promenaded. Petrarch was so vain of his small feet, that he wore shoes many sizes too small. Walpole had a weakness for the most elaborate cravats imaginable. Lord Erskine, one of the greatest lawyers of his time, in rising to plead, always drew on a pair of bright yellow gloves. Napoleon was scrupulous as to dress in himself and in those around him, and even the great Cæsar is said to have been exceedingly careful about the manner in which his hair was arranged. These are exceptions, the rule being, however, that foppery indicates a lack of the more substantial qualities of the intellect.

This communication from Mr. Geo. Brereton, of East Northfield, Mass., may be found interesting by many of our army readers during the coming hot season. The suggestion it conveys costs little, and is worth trying at all events, either at home or in Cuba:

In The Soldiers' Pocket Book for Field Service, by Field-Marshal Wolseley (page 282), it is stated that mosquitoes can be cleared from barrack-rooms or stables by a spray distributor, using two or three teaspoonfuls of carbolic acid in one-half pint water, which solution put on a towel hung up at the head of a bed, keeps away these pests, also.

Chaplain C. O. Wright, of the U. S. Receiving Ship Franklin, Norfolk, Va., writes us that he has received from our readers a number of copies of this journal, and from one gentlemen a set of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Library, for the use of the naval apprentices on board.

Mrs. H. V. P., Tarrytown, N. Y. That was a splendid fact the giving of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to the men in camp going to the war. My children have read of what Oliver Cromwell did once giving his men, going to battle, portions of God's word, say the Psalms, Gospels, &c., in small books. Good point they ought to be. The men put them over their hearts. It also states Cromwell never lost a battle after that. Be that as it may, the thing practical to me is this: cannot a sum be raised from all evangelical churches and Sunday Schools, asking only five cents from each (more if they will), so as to put in the hands of our men these portions of Scripture? I understand their knapsacks are so full that oftentimes it not always, the Bible is left out.

What our correspondent suggests is now being done. The Christian Commission, with whose work THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is in fullest and most active accord, is distributing the Gospels very widely among the troops.

Reader, Sharon Springs, N. Y. Is it wrong for a Christian to enter a bar-room and, going to the bar, call for and drink there a temperance drink?

A true Christian will avoid even the appearance of evil; will not go where vicious and depraved people gather; will avoid the "assembly of the ungodly," and by his walk and example will strive to attract others to a pure and upright life. Yet in the zeal for Christian work it is quite possible that he may have to visit strange places at times, even bar-rooms; not, however, to drink there, nor to make a boast of the strength of his temperance principles by ordering even temperance drinks; but to plead with and persuade others to avoid such places. We should very much doubt the wisdom or the genuineness of principle of a professing Christian who patronizes bar-rooms, even for temperance drinks or who goes there for any purpose other than to do the Lord's work.

Reader, London, Ill. Do you believe the principle upon which the Department Store or Mail-Order House operates to be wrong in the sight of God?

This is a question that is very often asked by smaller dealers and others, whose trade is injuriously affected by the great Department Stores. Unquestionably, to this class, the cooking for his dinner. Another schoo... that physical defects alone justified di... There were other schools holding other ... ons. Christ refused to identify himsel... any and lifted the question into the ... plane by showing the origin of marri... divine institution. 2. None that we kn... but it seems a becoming thing for the ... tian on entering so momentous a state t... a minister ask God's blessing on the un... the two lives. As the State sanction... act as a valid marriage, there is the ... reason for having the ceremony thu... ducted. 3. We do not think the charac... the person performing the ceremony aft... one way or the other, providing he is a ... authorized by the State or the church ... the duty. God's approval depends o... character, motives and conduct of the p... to be married.

S. McC., Traer, Kan. How can positions ... United States Navy be secured?

You can enlist at the nearest navy y... physically fit. If higher position than ... nary seaman is meant, it would be s... through the Navy Department, at W... ton, D. C.

H. Y., Yarbrough, Ga. Where is Hampton ... and how did it receive its name?

Hampton Roads is an arm of the ... peake Bay, lying between Hampton an... folk, Va., and it received its name fr... former town.

P. D. E., Middlesex, Vt. Will you please g... proper pronunciation of Admiral S... name?

It is pronounced as if spelled "Shly."

H. L. S., Lorraine, Kans. 1. What kind of l... must Moses have had when he appeared ... mount of transfiguration, seeing that h... ral body was buried: ... did the disciples re... him?

1. Probably the spir... body, to which Paul refe... Cor. 15: 44). It is difficu... us to conceive of such a ... because we are so accus... to recognize the soul on... manifests itself throug... senses. But it would be ... conclude that the soul is d... ent on the physical sen... its powers. It may ha... may acquire after the d... the body, new and perh... perior means of commun... thought and feeling. ... haps Christ may hav... them, or they may have l... it from the conversation. ... the Scripture is silent t... no way of answering th... tion with certainty.

G. M. G., Frederick, Mich. ... reading the newspaper al... yellow fever prevailing in ... and that it was feared t... soldiers might be in da... catching it, I happened to t... the yellow fever which p... in Wilmington, N.C., sever... while we were living in ... It seemed to me that w... New Orleans and Florid... attacked by it, part of So... olina and North Caroli... sure to get it; but since a c... started to manufacture tar ... mington, N. C., the fever ... unknown there. I think, pe... our United States soldie... would burn tar outside the... occasionally, while in Cu... might be able to ward off ... tagious disease.

G. S. H., Duluth, Minn. What nation ... Rear-Admiral Sampson, Commander ... North Atlantic Squadron?

Rear-Admiral Sampson was born in ... a... county, N. Y.

G. W. G., Norfolk, Va. We do not know ... 77 Bible House.

A. A., Highland Spring, Tenn. J. E.

H. C., Syracuse, N. Y. Send full name ... dress, and we will answer by mail.

Reader, Iowa. Write to Navy Depa... Washington, D. C., for all necessary infor...

J. A. D., Madison, Kan. Your questi... largely technical. Address the Army an... Gazette.

S. K., Upper Sandusky, O. There is n... whatever of the reality of the Cuban insur... We are astonished that such a question ... have been asked.

A. A. J., Bloomfield, N. J. There is no st... between the two, consequently they cannot ... pared to advantage. Gladstone was a st... and humanitarian; Bismarck, a soldier-sta... In the former's character, the peace and w... mankind were prime factors; in the latter, t... tary and poltical advancement of Germa... the objects most to be desired.

W. E. B., Mullen, Neb. The response ... call for Sunday School literature has bee... than our most sanguine hopes. From Ca... the Pacific Slope abundant gifts have come ... indeed than we can use in our little school, ... our trips we have and will scatter good ... among those to whom it is a rare blessing. ... volumes of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD ha... sent us, also many late numbers. Our ... thanks in behalf of our Sunday School and ... will have the opportunity of reading the good ... sent us, is returned to all who have heard ... especially do we thank "Little Ray" for th... and other kind remembrances. May God ... every reader of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

AMONG THE FISHERMEN ON A FJORD OF NORWAY.

Our illustration, presenting a scene common to Norwegian fjords, Lapland and Finland, and to the shores of British America, where French Canadians ply the fisherman's calling, shows how primitive folk of the North conduct a leading industry and at the same time do a bit of gossip.

The most profitable part of the business is the sale of goods to the men, and the profits are large. By buying large stocks of goods, they are enabled to sell at much lower figures than the average dealer, it is true; but the great purchasing public, and particularly people of limited means, are the gainers. The Department Store gives employment to numbers of salespeople and producers, and by cheapening the product and operating on a larger scale generally, is able to sell cheaper. It stands in the same relation to the small dealer that the machine operator does to the hand-worker, or the large farm of thousands of acres with latest modern appliances and hundreds of help, to the small holding of fifty acres or more, worked on the old method by a few hands. It is an outcome of modern conditions of trade, which has come to stay.

Subscriber, Hannibal, Mo. 1. Who are the people to whom Christ referred (Matt. 19: 6) as being joined together of God? 2. Is there any passage of Scripture requiring that the marriage ceremony should be performed by a minister? 3. Will God approve a marriage when the ceremony is performed by a wicked man?

1. You will understand the remark better by reading the whole passage (Matt. 19: 1–12). The Pharisees were trying to draw Christ into a controversy which, at the time, was raging between the schools of different Jewish teachers. One school contended that a man was justified in divorcing his wife for any cause as, for instance, if she burnt the food she was mammoth emporiums may seem an unmixed evil; but on the other hand, they are a positive advantage to a very much larger class. By buying large stocks of goods, they are enabled to sell at much lower figures than the average dealer, it is true; but the great purchasing public, and particularly people of limited means, are the gainers. The Department Store gives employment to numbers of salespeople and producers, and by cheapening the product and operating on a larger scale generally, is able to sell cheaper. It stands in the same relation to the small dealer that the machine operator does to the hand-worker, or the large farm of thousands of acres with latest modern appliances and hundreds of help, to the small holding of fifty acres or more, worked on the old method by a few hands. It is an outcome of modern conditions of trade, which has come to stay.

OUR GRATEFUL ARMENIAN ORPHANS.

Their Loving Letters from Bright Little Oorfa Lads to their "Christian Herald" Friends who have Supported Them.

THOSE readers of this journal who were interested in the relief work in Armenia will be pleased to hear some of the little orphan lads who were being sheltered, clothed and educated through their generosity. It will be remembered that Oorfa was the scene of the greatest of Armenian massacres, over five Christians perishing there at the hands of the fanatical Mohammedan mob. Miss Shattuck took in a large number of the helpless and homeless boys to her mission home, and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD readers have provided for the welfare of nearly 100, good boys in England and Germany doing likewise for the rest. There are four of the Armenians who are lads of very bright promise, and Miss Shattuck writes us that she hopes to train them as missionaries. She sends us very nicely written letters from three of the four, accompanied by the following note:

TEACHERS OF THE ARMENIAN ORPHANS AT OORFA.

OORFA, TURKEY, April 26.

DEAR CHRISTIAN HERALD:—The enclosed are the first attempts at English letter writing by our prospective college students. They were happy in trying to please you, and we are sure you will follow our dear boys with interest, somewhat parental, and therefore will excuse deficiencies. I have sent the names of four who are to graduate from high school. The pastor's wife has provided for, the three letter-writers will become one to help them, till they can support themselves by teaching. Will you please inform me what I am to do?

CORINNA SHATTUCK.

The letters enclosed by Miss Shattuck are:

A Boy's Letter of Thanks.

Dr Christian Herald Friends:—One day evening when we went up-stairs to say our Bible verses before Miss Shattuck after the lesson was finished, we began to talk about you and your kindness. Then one asked her if we might set forth our thanks in a little letter towards our kind friends who support us.

Yes, we know our obligation in that respect, but alas! we cannot make any offer in return. But think not we forget you: we are always praying before God for you. My companions and I will now give you some information about our school, our home, our shoe-maker's shop, and our Sunday exercises.

In two months we shall finish our school year and be examined: if God wills, and if good friends help us, Miss Shattuck will send us to college, and after we have finished study there we will hope to be seen better prepared to work for God. We ask your prayers for our progress in study. Yours sincerely, DIRADOUR A. DIKIJIAN."

Hohannes Eskijvan writes: "Our home is on the west edge of the city, and is nearer than the others. The city is spread before us, and our place is very good even season for health and pleasant [illegible] the morning the bell is rung, and the boys rise and fold their blankets. Then kneel down to pray: after five minutes the bell is rung for close of prayer. Then us go to the shoe-maker's shop. There the saddlers, and two to the kerosene-maker's. The greater number sit down to learn their lessons, and some to play. The little boys sweep the yards. After half an hour the first breakfast bell is rung, and five minutes later the second bell, and we go to eat. Six are table-waiters, five are dish-washers, twenty-three bring water for washing, cooking, etc. We have a woman cook. After breakfast the large bell of the church rings and all but five little boys go to school. At noon we come home; as in the morning two bells ring, and we eat lunch, and we go again to school. In the evening we come back and other boys go to their shops, and every week they change their time, those who went in morning going in evening. After two hours we eat our dinner. After half an hour, rings a bell, we come together in mother's (Miss Shattuck's) room and sing a hymn, then there is reading from the Bible, all the boys kneel down for prayer together, closing with the Lord's prayer. Afterward we go to the study-room for an hour. Fifteen minutes after study closes a bell rings for private prayer. Most gratefully yours. HOHANNES ESKIJVAN."

The third letter is from Hagop Beshlian, another bright orphan lad.

As Children to a Parent.

"Dear Friends:—We would have been deprived of our greatest joys, if your Christian love had not been awakened toward us. We acknowledge that, having received your kindness, we are obligated to you and we can only repay you with our prayers. I can only express our acknowledgment in this way. What the children do to their parents we also ought to do the same to you. Our letters are composed of three matters. I speak only about Sunday and our religious exercises and our work. According to arrangement made for us, on Sunday the boys of Gregorian parents go to early service in Gregorian church, once in three weeks, the boys from one Orphan house going each week. After breakfast, we all go to Sunday School, and we learn Bible lessons and say the golden text. This school numbers a thousand children, for the most part orphans. Before lunch we learn Bible lessons to say in the evening, and after lunch, the middle-sized boys go to the 'mother's room' to hear stories, and the younger to the little dormitory to see Bible pictures. During this time we big boys go to Miss Shattuck's room, and each one has to read a verse from some chapter, and after comment on its meaning, when the church bell rings, we all go to church. When we return, everybody begins to look over his lesson to make it perfect. After dinner we all again go to Miss Shattuck's room, and the little boys recite their Bible lessons by classes, and sing hymns. After prayer they go to bed. The two older classes remain for their lessons and sometimes we have prayer together and always we remember to ask blessings for our friends.

"We are trying in our present condition to not disappoint you in your hopes for us, and we entreat your continued efforts and prayers. HAGOP BESHLIAN."

HEATHEN DRAWN TO CHRIST.

Miss Sharp Writes of her Wonderful Work Among the Kroos of Liberia — Their Readiness to Accept Christ.

ONE of the best known American missionaries in West Africa is Miss Mary A. Sharp, who is stationed at Monrovia, the capital of the Republic of Liberia. Many of our readers are already acquainted with Miss Sharp's wonderful work for Christ among the Liberian tribes—a work to which she has devoted nearly twenty years of faithful and incessant labor. From time to time, interesting letters from her pen have appeared in these columns, telling of Gospel triumphs among the natives.

Last week, we had the pleasure of receiving another letter from Miss Sharp which we give in full below, believing that it will prove interesting to many readers:

Dr. Klopsch's letter of cheer enclosing a draft for ten dollars, reached me in due time. Many thanks for it. In years of work (unsustained by any society and without any salary) for a mission home for children and a church among the heathen, I have found the promise, "My God shall supply all your need," unfailing. Your previous draft came at a time when I proposed to enlarge my church, as the edifice then standing could seat but three hundred. I had been able to get no farther than the foundation of the annex with the means on hand: the foundation, however, had enabled me to hold the ground.

My mission home is not an orphanage. Children are always claimed by their relatives, especially girls, as they represent money. Men buy them for wives, paying on the instalment plan, and when the last payment is made, the wife is claimed. At first it was impossible to get girls. Girls, if educated, would object too seriously to becoming the fourth or fifth wife of an old man. Now there is no difficulty in getting girls. As they become Christianized polygamy is put away, and the men would rather marry girls who know how to wash and sew, as in their new life they adopt civilized ways. It is altogether the better plan to take the children away from the terrible superstitions of heathen life. The whole trend of heathen life is degrading. My plan is to surround them with Christian influences, and have them learn English—their own language is poor and meagre. It has no words to express purity, holiness, or heaven, or any noble sentiment. Teach them the amenities of civilized life and send them forth from Christian schools, with the English Bible, and a sure foundation is laid for future good.

I have many more applications than my means will warrant me in accepting, though it only costs $25 per year to support a boy or girl. The parents not only offer no objection to their children's adoption of our ways and worship, but are anxious that they should do so.

It is a frequent mistake to think that something can be made of the children, but not of their elders. The Gospel is still "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." One of the clearest, brightest conversions I ever knew was that of a very old man; from the data he gave of events we (Bishop Taylor, who baptized him and myself), concluded that he was not far from 100 years old. In the town where I work, where there was not one who professed to have received the Christian religion, there are now over 100 adult members of the church. These hold meetings in various parts of the town; also in the church evenings. Some have learned to read. No Kroo was ever a slave; they were said not to be accessible, and none of them had ever been known to accept the Christian religion. A bold, independent tribe, I found them the ripest and readiest for civilization and Christianizing.

Then other Kroo towns down the coast sent to me begging that someone might be sent to them "To show we the light, we be long time in the dark." It was painful to tell them I knew of none that could come. Oh, the lack of means to send consecrated men and women to this vast field with the tidings of salvation.

A few years ago one bright morning two lads came in looking very intelligent, but unable to speak one word of English, and I called a boy to act as interpreter. They had heard in their town, 200 miles away, that "Kroo pickaninny was learning book." So they came and wanted to learn book." Their entire wardrobe consisted of one gingham handkerchief, which had been divided between them, giving to each a loin cloth. I asked if they had ever heard of God. "We hear him name." To my query if they had ever heard of Jesus, "No, we never hear that name." One of these boys (whose educational expenses were largely borne by Mrs. Wheeler, of Hickany, Pa.), is in his third year as missionary in his native town, where he is supported by the Methodist Missionary Society. The younger one grew to manhood and died in the faith.

What immeasurable good could be done by a little of the surplus wealth of many Christians. What will be the answer when the Master shall say: "Give an account of thy stewardship?"

These brethren to their brethren call,
And by the love that loved us all,
And by the great world's life they cry,
Oh, ye who live! why let us die?

The photograph, which I enclose, is of some Kroo women and children, dressed for the occasion. The chalk around the eyes of one woman is a frequent mode of painting, intended to represent spectacles. The race seems to have a mania for spectacles.

When I came here not one woman wore a particle of clothing above the waist. Now the majority wear sacques, and their clothes are fastened around them.

MARY A. SHARP.

KROO WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN MONROVIA, LIBERIA.

Cuba's Rainy Season.

IN view of the probability of the early invasion of Cuba by our armies, it is important that the risks of such a movement, when undertaken in what is known as the "rainy season," should be clearly understood. The rainy season in Cuba begins about June 10th. While it lasts, the whole island is something like a rank, fermenting, malodorous swamp: incessant rains and an atmosphere which enervates and relaxes the whole system. Such is Cuba in June and July, according to the statements of Americans and others who have happened there at that time. The Boston Herald, speaking on this subject, says editorially:

Losses through disease would have to be expected in a campaign carried on in Cuba during the rainy season, even if the soldiers making up the American army were as well drilled and under as good methodical supervision as are the men making up the German army, where everything that affects the health of the soldier or detracts from his ability as a fighting machine is made the subject of painstaking study, and is subsequently made the basis of exact official action.

The Spanish soldiers who have been sent to Cuba have dropped off like flies in cold weather, and yet the Spanish authorities have considered that it would be simply suicidal on their part to attempt to campaign during the rainy season of the year. During this intensely dangerous interval they have kept their soldiers carefully sheltered, not daring to expose them to the risks of an active campaign, and the same policy has been followed even by the insurgents, who are men acclimated from early youth to the Cuban climate. But in spite of this, even in the so-called healthy season of the year, thousands of Spanish soldiers have passed through the army hospitals to untimely graves.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

A Helpful Religion.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Psalms 20: 2, ... Send thee help from the Sanctuary.

If you should ask fifty men what the church is, they would give you fifty different answers. One man would say, "It is a convention of hypocrites." Another, "It is an assembly of people who feel themselves a great deal better than others." Another, "It is a place for gossip, where wolverene dispositions devour each other." Another, "It is a place for the cultivation of superstition and cant." Another, "It is an arsenal where theologians go to get pikes and muskets and shot." Another, "It is an art gallery, where men go to admire grand arches, and exquisite tresco, and musical warble, and the Dantesque in gloomy imagery." Another man would say, "It is the best place on earth except my own home." "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning."

Now, whatever the church is, my text tells you what it ought to be: a great, practical, homely, omnipotent help. "Send thee help from the sanctuary." The pew ought to yield restfulness for the body. The color of the upholstery ought to yield pleasure to the eye. The entire service ought to yield strength for the moil and struggle of every-day life. The Sabbath ought to be harnessed to all the six days of the week, drawing them in the right direction. The church ought to be a magnet, visibly and mightily affecting all the homes of the worshippers. Every man gets roughly jostled, gets abused, gets cut, gets insulted, gets slighted, gets exasperated. By the time the Sabbath comes he has an accumulation of six days of annoyance, and that is a starveling church service which has not strength enough to take that accumulated annoyance and hurl it into perdition. The business man sits down in church headachey from the week's engagements. Perhaps he wishes he had tarried at home on the lounge with the newspapers and the slippers. That man wants to be cooled off and graciously diverted. The first wave of the religious service ought to dash clear over the hurricane decks, and leave him dripping with holy and glad and heavenly emotion. "Send thee help from the sanctuary."

In the first place, sanctuary help ought to come from the music. A woman dying in England persisted in singing to the last moment. The attendants tried to persuade her to stop, saying it would exhaust her and make her disease worse. She answered, "I must sing: I am only practising for the heavenly choir." Music on earth is a rehearsal for music in heaven. If you and I are going to take part in that great orchestra, it is high time that we were stringing and strumming our harps. They tell us that Thalberg and Gottschalk never would go into a concert until they had first in private rehearsed although they were such masters of the instrument. And can it be that we expect to take part in the great oratorio of heaven if we do not rehearse here?

But I am not speaking of the next world. Sabbath song ought to set all the machinery [illegible]. We want not more harmony and more artistic expression, but more fervor in our church music. The English Dissenting churches far surpass our American churches in this respect. An English reformed [illegible] thousand people will [illegible] of sacred song that an American audience of two thousand people [illegible] I do not know what the reason is. Of [illegible] to leave behind [illegible] sing as they [illegible] I had the opportunity of preaching the anniversary [illegible] I think the [illegible] anniversary—[illegible] in Rowland Hill's old chapel, and when they lifted their voices in sacred song it was simply overwhelming. And then in the evening of the same day in Agricultural Hall, many thousand voices lifted in doxology. It was like the voice of many waters, and like the voice of many thunderings, and like the voice of heaven.

> The blessing thrilled through all the laboring throng,
> And heaven was won by violence of song.

Now, I am no worshipper of noise, but I believe that if our American churches would with full heartiness of soul, and full emphasis of voice sing the songs of Zion, this part of sacred worship would have tenfold more power than it has now. Why not take this part of the sacred service and lift it to where it ought to be. All the annoyances of life might be drowned out by that sacred song. Do you tell me that it is not fashionable to sing very loudly? Then, I say, away with the fashion. We dam back the great Mississippi of congregational singing, and let a few drops of melody trickle through the dam. I say, take away the dam, and let the billows roar on their way to the oceanic heart of God. Whether it is fashionable to sing loudly or not, let us sing with all possible emphasis.

We hear a great deal of the art of singing, of music as an entertainment, of music as a recreation. It is high time we heard something of music as a help, a practical help. In order to this, we must have only a few hymns. New tunes and new hymns ever Sunday make poor congregational singing. Fifty hymns are enough for fifty years. The Episcopal Church prays the same prayers every Sabbath, and year after year, and century after century. For that reason they have the hearty responses. Let us take a hint from that fact, and let us sing the same songs Sabbath after Sabbath. Only in that way can we come to the full force of this exercise. Twenty thousand years will not wear out the hymns of William Cowper, Charles Wesley, and Isaac Watts. Suppose now each person in an audience has brought all the annoyances of the last three hundred and sixty-five days. Fill the room to the ceiling with sacred song, and you would drown out all those annoyances of the last three hundred and sixty-five days, and you would drown them out forever. Organ and cornet are only to marshal the voice. Let the voice fall into line, and in companies, and in battalions, by storm take the obduracy and sin of the world. If you cannot sing for yourself, sing for others. By trying to give others good cheer, you will bring good cheer to your own heart.

When Londonderry, Ireland, was besieged many years ago, the people inside the city were famishing, and a vessel came up with provisions, but the vessel ran on the river bank and stuck fast. The enemy went down with laughter and derision to board the vessel, when the vessel gave a broadside fire against the enemy, and by the shock was turned back into the stream, and all was well. Oh, ye who are high and dry on the rocks of melancholy, give a broadside fire of song against your spiritual enemies, and by holy rebound you will come out into the calm waters. If we want to make ourselves happy, we must make others happy. Mythology tells us of Amphion, who played his lyre until the mountains were moved and the walls of Thebes arose; but religion has a mightier story to tell of how Christian song may build whole temples of eternal joy, and lift the round earth into sympathy with the skies.

I tarried many nights in London, and I used to hear the bells, the small bells of the city, strike the hour of night—one, two, three, four, and among them the great St. Paul's Cathedral would come in to mark the hours, making all the other sounds seem utterly insignificant as with mighty tongue it announced the hour of the night, every stroke an overmastering boom. My friends, it was intended that all the lesser sounds of the world should be drowned out by the mighty tongue of congregational song beating against the gates of heaven. Do you know how they mark the hours in heaven? They have no clocks, as they have no candles, but a great pendulum of hallelujah swinging across heaven from eternity to eternity.

> Let those refuse to sing
> Who never knew our God;
> But children of the Heavenly King
> Should speak their joys abroad.

Again I remark, that sanctuary help ought to come from the sermon. Of a thousand people in any audience, how many want sympathetic help? Do you guess a hundred? Do you guess five hundred? You have guessed wrong. I will tell you just the proportion. Out of a thousand people in any audience there are just one thousand who need sympathetic help. These young people want it just as much as the old. The old people sometimes seem to think they have a monopoly of the rheumatisms, and the neuralgias, and the headaches, and the physical disorders of the world; but I tell you there are no worse heartaches than are felt by some of the young people. Do you know that much of the work is done by the young? Raphael died at thirty-seven; Richelieu at thirty-one; Gustavus Adolphus died at thirty-eight; Innocent III. came to his mightiest influence at thirty-seven. Cortez conquered Mexico at thirty; Don John won Lepanto at twenty-five; Grotius was attorney-general at twenty-four; and I have noticed amid all classes of men that some of the severest battles and the toughest work comes before thirty. Therefore we must have our sermons and our exhortations in prayer-meeting all sympathetic with the young. And so with these people further on in life. What do these doctors and lawyers and merchants and mechanics care about the abstractions of religion? What they want is help to bear the whimsicalities of patients, the browbeating of legal opponents, the unfairness of customers who have plenty of fault-finding for every imperfection of handiwork, but no praise for twenty excellences. What does the brain-racked, hand-blistered man care for Zwingle's "Doctrine of Original Sin," or Augustine's "Retractations?" You might as well go to a man who has the pleurisy and put on his side a plaster made out of Doctor Parr's "Treatise on Medical Jurisprudence."

While all of a sermon may not be helpful alike to all, if it be a Christian sermon preached by a Christian man, there will be help for everyone somewhere. We go into an apothecary's store. We see others being waited on: we do not complain because we do not immediately get the medicine; we know our turn will come after awhile. And so while all parts of a sermon may not be appropriate to our case, if we wait prayerfully, before the sermon is through, we shall have the divine prescription. I say to young men who are going to preach the Gospel: we want in our sermons not more metaphysics, nor more imagination, nor more logic, nor more profundity. What we want in our sermons and Christian exhortations is more sympathy. When Father Taylor preached in the Sailors' Bethel at Boston, the jack tars felt they had help for their duties among the ratlines and the forecastles. When Richard Weaver preached to the operatives in Oldham, England, all the workmen felt they had more grace for the spindles. When Doctor South preached to kings and princes and princesses, all the mighty men and women who heard him felt preparation for their high station.

People will not go to church merely as a matter of duty. There will not next Sabbath be a hundred people in this city who will get up in the morning and say: "The Bible says I must go to church; it is my duty to go to church, therefore I will go to church." The vast multitude of people who go to church, go to church because they like it, and the multitude of people who stay away from church, stay away because they do not like it. I am not speaking about the way the world ought to be; I am speaking about the way the world is. Taking things as they are, we must make the centripetal force of the church mightier than the centrifugal. We must make our churches magnets to draw the people thereunto, so that a man will feel uneasy if he does not go to church, saying: "I wish I had gone this morning. I wonder if I can't dress yet and get there in time. It is eleven o'clock; now they are singing. It is half-past eleven; now they are preaching. I wonder when the folks will be home to tell us what was said, what has been going on." When the impression is confirmed that our church [illegible] architecture, by music, by sociality [illegible] by sermon, shall be made the most [illegible] tive places on earth, then we will [illegible] twice as many churches as we hav[illegible] twice as large, and then they will n[illegible] accommodate the people.

I say to the young men who are [illegible] ing the ministry, we must put or[illegible] force, more energy, and into our re[illegible] services more vivacity, if we wa[illegible] people to come. You look into a [illegible] court of any denomination of Chr[illegible] First, you will find the men of larg[illegible] mon-sense and earnest look. The[illegible] tion of their minds, the piety of [illegible] hearts, the holiness of their lives [illegible] them for their work. Then you w[illegible] in every church court of every den[illegible] tion a group of men who utterly [illegible] you with the fact that such semi-[illegible] ity can get any pulpits to preach in! [illegible] are the men who give forlorn st[illegible] about church decadence. Frogs [illegible] croak in running water; always [illegible] nant. But I say to all Christian w[illegible] to all Sunday-school teachers, to a[illegible] gelists, to all ministers of the Go[illegible] we want our Sunday-schools, a[illegible] prayer-meetings, and our churc[illegible] gather the people, we must fresl[illegible] The simple fact is, the people are [illegible] the humdrum of religionists. R[illegible] humdrum is the worst of all humdru[illegible] say over and over again, "C[illegible] Jesus," until the phrase means ab[illegible] nothing. Why do you not tell [illegible] story which will make them come [illegible] in five minutes? You say that a S[illegible] day-school teachers, and all evan[illegible] and all ministers must bring the [illegible] trations from the Bible. Christ [illegible] when he preached. The most of th[illegible] was written before Christ's tim[illegible] where did he get his illustration[illegible] drew them from the lilies, fr[illegible] ravens, from salt, from a candle, [illegible] bushel, from long-faced hypocrite[illegible] gnats, from moths, from large ga[illegible] small gates, from a camel, fr[illegible] needle's eye, from yeast in the d[illegible] bread, from a mustard seed, fro[illegible] ing-net, from debtors and creditors. T[illegible] is the reason multitudes followed [illegible] His illustrations were so easy and s[illegible] standable. Therefore, my brothe[illegible] tian worker, if you and I find t[illegible] trations for a religious subject. [illegible] one is a Bible illustration and the [illegible] outside the Bible, I will take the l[illegible] cause I want to be like my Maste[illegible] ing across to a hill, Christ saw th[illegible] Jerusalem. Talking to the peop[illegible] the conspicuity of Christian exa[illegible] said: "The world is looking at [illegible] careful. A city that is set on a h[illegible] not be hid." While he was spe[illegible] the divine care of God's childre[illegible] flew past. He said, "Behold the [illegible] Then looking down into the va[illegible] covered at that season with flow[illegible] said, "Consider the lilies." [illegible] brother Christian workers, what is [illegible] of our going away off in some obsc[illegible] of history, or on the other side th[illegible] to get an illustration, when the e[illegible] the heavens are full of illustration[illegible] should we go away off to get an [illegible] tion of the vicarious suffering [illegible] Christ, when as near us as Bloomfie[illegible] two little children were walk[illegible] the rail-track, and a train was [illegible] but they were on a bridge of tres[illegible] and the little girl took her brother [illegible] him down through the trestle-[illegible] gently as she could toward the wa[illegible] carefully and lovingly and cautiou[illegible] that he might not be hurt in the [illegible] might be picked up by those w[illegible] standing near by. While doing [illegible] train struck her, and hardly enou[illegible] body was left to gather into a [illegible] casket. What was that? Vicari[illegible] fering. Like Christ. Pang for [illegible] Woe for others. Suffering for th[illegible] Death for others.

What is the use of our going [illegible] to find an illustration in past a[illegible] during the great forest fires in Mi[illegible] mail-carrier on horseback, riding [illegible] sued by those flames which ha[illegible] over a hundred miles, saw an old [illegible] the roadside, dismounted, helpe[illegible] man on the horse, saying: "N[illegible] up and get away." The old man [illegible] but the mail-carrier perished. [illegible] Christ dismounting from the g[illegible] heaven to put us on the way o[illegible] ance, then falling back into the [illegible] sacrifice for others. Pang for [illegible] others. Death for others. Vicafering.

I remark, that sanctuary help come through the prayers of all ie. The door of the eternal storehung on one hinge, a gold hinge, e of prayer, and when the whole lay hold of that door, it must en. There are many people their first Sabbath after some reavement. What will your prayor them? How will it help the that man's heart? Here are peohave not been in church before ears; what will your prayer do by rolling over their soul holy ? Here are people in crises temptation. They are on the despair, or wild blundering, or suicide. What will your prayer em in the way of giving them to resist? Will you be chiefly about the fit of the glove that to your forehead while you Will you be chiefly critical of ric of the pastor's petition? No. thousand people will feel, "that for me," and at every step of the ains ought to drop off, and tem- ought to crash into dust, and jude deliverance ought to brandish pets. In most of our churches three prayers—the opening prayis called the "long prayer," and g prayer. There are many peospend the first prayer in artheir apparel after entrance, and e second prayer, the "long prayishing it were through, and spend rayer in preparing to start for The most insignificant part of gious service is the sermon. The portant parts are the Scripture d the prayer. The sermon is talking to a man. The Scripn is God talking to man. Prayer iking to God. Oh, if we undergrandeur and the pathos of this f prayer, instead of being a dull we would imagine that the room of divine and angelic ap, eary friends, the old style of church o the work. We might as well o take all the passengers from ton to New York by stage-coach, passengers from Albany to Bufnal-boat, or do all the battling rld with bow and arrow, as with yle of church to meet the exi- this day. Unless the church in will adapt itself to the time, it me extinct. The people reading rs and books all the week, in turesque, and resounding style, no patience with Sabbath hum- e have no objection to bands olice and all the paraphernalia ll life; but these things make no n—make no more impression on masses of the people than the business suit that you wear on ania avenue or Wall street. A not make a minister. Some of est preachers wear the best nd many a backwoodsman has ed from the saddlebags, and in duster preached a sermon that th and heaven with its Christian e. No new Gospel, only the old a way suited to the time. No h, but a church to be the asylum, ration, the practical sympathy, ternal help of the people.

le half of the doors of the church set open toward this world, the of the doors of the church must en toward the next. You and I h only a brief space. We want to teach us how to get out of t the right time and in the right me fall out of life, some go out of life, some go groaning some go cursing out of life. to go singing, rising, rejoicing, g. We want half the doors of set in that direction. We want rayers that way, halt the sermons We want to know how to get om the tumult of this world into t everlasting peace. We do not stand doubting and shivering go away from this world; we anticipations aroused to the itch. We want to have the exof a dying child in England, r telling me the story. When he er, "Is the path narrow?" she r, "The path is narrow; it is so what I cannot walk arm in arm with Christ, so Jesus goes ahead, and he says, 'Mary, follow.'" Through the church gates set heavenward how many of your friends and mine have gone? The last time they were out of the house they came to church. The earthly pilgrimage ended at the pillar of public worship, and then they marched out to a bigger and brighter assemblage. Some of them were so old they could not walk without a cane or two crutches: now they have eternal juvenescence. Or they were so young they could not walk except as the maternal hand guided them: now they bound with the hilarities celestial. The last time we saw them they were wasted with malarial or pulmonic disorder: but now they have no fatigue, and no difficulty of respiration in the pure air of heaven. How I wonder when you and I will cross over! Some of you have had about enough of the thumping and flailing of this life. A draught from the fountains of heaven would do you good. Complete release you could stand very well. If you got on the other side, and had permission to come back, you would not come. Though you were invited to come back and join your friends on earth, you would say, "No, let me tarry here until they come: I shall not risk going back: if a man reaches heaven he had better stay here."

Oh, I join hands with you in that uplifted splendor.

In Freybourg, Switzerland, there is the trunk of a tree four hundred years old. That tree was planted to commemorate an event. About ten miles from the city the Swiss conquered the Burgundians, and a young man wanted to take the tidings to the city. He took a tree branch and ran with such speed the ten miles, that when he reached the city waving the tree branch he had only strength to cry, "Victory!" and dropped dead. The tree branch that he carried was planted, and it grew to be a great tree twenty feet in circumference, and the remains of it are there to this day. My hearer, when you have fought your last battle with sin and death and hell, and they have been routed in the conflict, it will be a joy worthy of celebration. You will fly to the city and cry, "Victory!" and drop at the feet of the great King. Then the palm branch of the earthly race will be planted to become the outbranching tree of everlasting rejoicing.

"When shall these eyes thy heaven-built walls,
And pearly gates behold,
Thy bulwarks with salvation strong,
And streets of shining gold?"

Christian Work at a Railway Station

A good work, worthy of imitation, is being done at the Grand Central Station, in Cincinnati, by Miss Buxton, who belongs to the Elizabeth Gamble Deaconess Home. Her duties are to watch for innocent and ignorant strangers who come from the trains, to pilot country girls seeking work to respectable lodging-houses, and to look out for the old, the feeble and those who fall ill. She helps mothers overburdened with babies and baggage, and often shares her own room with a wife who has impulsively run away from her husband or young girls who have aimlessly drifted to the city, and thus has effected many reconciliations and saved many homes from shipwreck. This work, begun as an experiment, has proved a success in the true sense of the word, and is indeed obedient to the divine command: "Love ye, therefore, the stranger."

A CENTURY OF CHRISTIAN EFFORT.

Trinity Church, Newburgh, and Its Long Record of Zealous Work for Souls—Rev. F. C. Iglehart, the New Pastor.

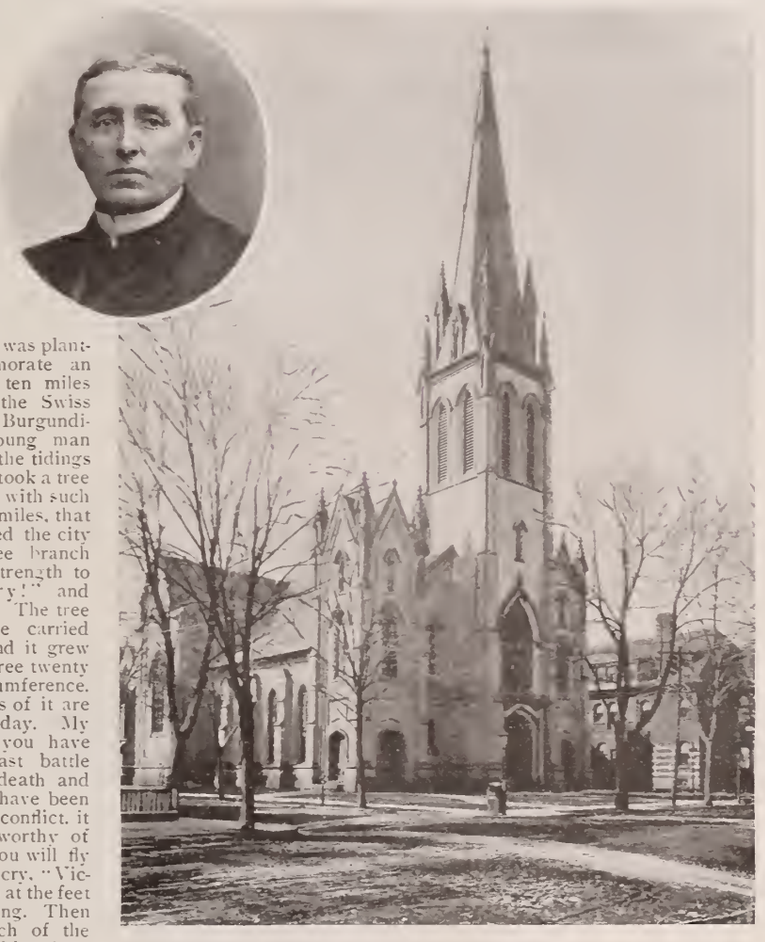
ONE of the most successful churches outside of the great cities of New York State is Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Newburgh, N. Y., of which the Rev. Ferdinand C. Iglehart, D. D., has just been appointed as the pastor. It is one of the oldest churches in the New York Conference. The class from which it grew was organized in 1786, or soon after the Methodists of the United States became a separate ecclesiastical body.

Trinity Church was organized in 1808. Its first building was erected in 1808, its second in 1834–35, and the present church was built in 1860–61. It is fourteenth century Gothic, with a tower and spire 180 feet high. The main auditorium is very large, and there is a Sunday School room that seats 600. The chapel contains parlor, class-rooms, kitchen, study, etc. In the church is an organ that cost $5,000. A handsome parsonage, whose estimated value in the minutes of the conference is $20,000, stands on the lot adjoining the church. The church and parsonage are free of debt. For many years Trinity has contributed an average of $3,000 annually to the cause of missions. The pastor's salary is $3,000, besides parsonage. The number of members, not including probationers, is about 1,000, and the Sunday School has a membership of 550.

Trinity societies and methods of work are quite varied, including an Epworth League, with a membership of 210; a Junior League, 100; Ladies' Aid Society, Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies, a Chautauqua Circle, etc. All the interests of the church are flourishing.

Dr. Iglehart began his ministrations in Trinity on Easter Sunday, and at once impressed the large congregations very favorably. That impression has been deepened by his subsequent discourses. They are richly evangelical, adhering in orthodox fashion to the old Methodistic standards, yet so permeated with the modern progressive spirit that there is a delightful blending of "things new and old" in them. There is choice thought, expressed in language that the plain people can understand, and presented in a way that holds the attention, arouses and thrills the hearers, and inspires in them a desire to reach a higher standard of Christian living.

Dr. Iglehart was born in Warwick County, Ind., Dec. 8, 1845. He graduated at Asbury, now De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1867, and later received the degree of D. D. from his alma mater. He began his ministry in humble parishes, but his ability was quickly noted and he was sent to the church in his college town. Trinity Church, Evansville, Ind., secured him. Delaware Avenue Church, Buffalo; Central, of Newark; Park Avenue, of New York, and Simpson, of Brooklyn, marked his advance to a masterful influence in the Church. Revivals attended his ministry, and many souls attest the Spirit's seal upon his consecrated life and work. He unites boldness in speech with wise judgment. In his Sunday evening discourses his eloquent words of patriotism have moved the usually staid and undemonstrative congregation of Trinity to its very depths. Besides his pulpit labors and the pastoral care of the leading church of the city, with 1,000 members, Dr. Iglehart has done much as a platform speaker.



TRINITY M. E. CHURCH, NEWBURGH, N.Y.—REV. F. C. IGLEHART, PASTOR.

Remarkable Clocks.

In a recent issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, allusion was made to several remarkable time-pieces, said to have been probably the earliest known in Europe. One was claimed to have been constructed in the thirteenth or fourteenth century. Probably one of the most unique and complicated clocks was that built by an old Jewish astrologer, named Isaac Harbrecht, and placed in Strasburg Cathedral. Every hour, three figures of Oriental kings come out of a niche in the side and bow reverently to an image of the Virgin. Besides telling the hours of the day, the clock told the days of the month and the phases of sun and moon. It was the intention of the inventor that it should never stop. As long as he lived, it did its work faithfully; but the machinery was so complicated, that after he died nobody could be found who understood how to work it. After a long rest of about two hundred years, the clock was again put in working order, and many improvements were made. It now gives the time in every principal city in the world, the days of the week and of the month, course of the sun and planets, and eclipses of sun and moon, in their regular order. At noon every day, figures of the twelve apostles march out and bow to the image of Christ, which, with uplifted hands, gives them a blessing. The clock is built somewhat like a church, is sixty feet high, and has two spires. On top of one of these spires sits a cock, which crows three times and flaps his wings, after which the chimes play some familiar tune. In a niche on one side stands a figure of Time, who strikes the quarter hours from twelve to one, while the four figures of Childhood, Youth, Manhood and Old Age pass slowly before him. On the other side an angel stands turning an hour-glass.

Droz, a Geneva mechanic, constructed a clock upon which were mounted three figures—a shepherd, a negro and a dog. This clock was taken to the King of Spain, who was requested by Droz to take an apple from the shepherd's basket. When the king did so, the dog jumped up and barked. The negro automaton then told the king the time in French.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

OUR TRANSPORTS SAIL AND THE INVASION OF CUBA IS FAIRLY BEGUN.

An Act of Heroism at Santiago which Excites the World's Admiration — Brave Lieut. Hobson and the Volunteer Crew—Cervera's Tribute of Praise.

WITH the first week of June, our invasion of Cuba has at last begun in earnest. The week was marked by several important events. First, the entrance to Santiago bay was impassably blockaded by the sinking of a coal ship by Rear-Admiral Sampson's orders; American troops have been landed on Cuban soil for the attack on Santiago and all preparations for the capture of Porto Rico are now complete. When this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD reaches our readers, in all probability the American flag will be flying over the Santiago forts and the Spanish vessels may either have been sunk or captured.

LIEUT. RICHMOND PEARSON HOBSON.

As stated in last week's issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Commodore Schley bombarded the forts at Santiago for the purpose of learning the position and character of the fortifications, and particularly of uncovering the masked batteries. The Massachusetts, Iowa and New Orleans opened fire at a range of seven thousand yards and succeeded during the reconnaissance in getting a view of the Spanish squadron, which lay behind an island in the harbor and which replied to the fire of our ships. The Cristobal Colon—the most formidable vessel of the fleet—lay nearest the entrance and replied with her heavy guns, but every shot fell wide. Our gunners are believed to have struck the Colon at least once. The shore forts were badly battered. There were no casualties on the American fleet.

Shortly afterward, Commodore Schley's fleet was reinforced by the arrival of Rear-Admiral Sampson with the Texas, Brooklyn, New York and Oregon. Being convinced of the presence of Cervera's ships in the bay, Rear Admiral Sampson determined to blockade the entrance to the harbor and the steam collier Merrimac was chosen for this purpose. She is a large iron vessel, 330 feet long, and was bought by the government only a few weeks ago.

It is [illegible] another American history [illegible] example of heroism than that of Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond Pearson Hobson and his handful of [illegible] who volunteered to perform the dangerous feat of sinking the Merrimac in Santiago harbor. When Admiral Sampson decided to sink the vessel in the narrow channel, he made it known among the fleet that volunteers were wanted. All knew that it was a desperate undertaking, and that the chances were that the vessel would never be raised by the batteries of Morro as it passed. Yet, as might [illegible] understood that the lives of those on board might be sacrificed, almost every man on the fleet wanted to go. Admiral Sampson, however, asked for only eight men for the special work on hand, and Lieutenant Hobson and seven others were chosen and sent aboard the collier, the regular officers and crew of the latter having been taken on board other vessels of the fleet. These are the heroic volunteers: Osborn Deignan, a coxswain of the Merrimac; George F. Phillips, a machinist of the Merrimac; John Kelley, a water tender of the Merrimac; George Charette, a gunner's mate of the flagship New York; Daniel Montague, a seaman of the cruiser Brooklyn; J. C. Murphy, a coxswain of the Iowa; and Randolph Clausen, a coxswain of the New York.

The Merrimac steamed toward the harbor entrance at full speed. She was almost empty and loomed high out of the water, a fair target for the Spanish guns. She was struck a number of times, but the shot and shell did not stop her. In her fore-hold an explosive had been prepared by Constructor Hobson and his crew, and a time-fuse was lighted and attached to the explosives. Then, while the shots were still coming thick and fast from the Spanish land batteries, the Merrimac's crew entered a rowboat and pushed off. Hardly were they clear of the ship when she was tossed upward and rent asunder by a terrific explosion and, lunging forward, she sank very quickly in less than forty feet of water, with smokestack and masts only remaining visible. She lies squarely across the narrowest part of the channel.

Hobson and his men, finding it impossible to row back to the fleet, boldly headed the boat for Admiral Cervera's flagship, the Cristobal Colon, and surrendered as prisoners of war. Two of them had sustained slight wounds during their terrible experience on the Merrimac. The Spanish commander, recognizing their magnificent courage, treated them with great consideration, and afterward sent out a boat with a truce-flag to Rear-Admiral Sampson, offering to exchange the prisoners for some Spaniards now held by us at Atlanta. Admiral Sampson promised to cable the proposition to Washington. The eight men are now idolized as the heroes of the fleet, and their exploit has excited quite as much admiration among the Spanish seamen as among our own. All the members of the volunteer crew are to be promoted in recognition of their signal bravery.

Although it was patent to all that the Merrimac was sunk solely for the purpose of preventing the egress of Cervera's ships, the news of the affair was cabled to Madrid as a "glorious Spanish victory," and "the destruction by Spanish guns [illegible] times of an American iron-clad steamer."

With the sinking of the Merrimac, Cervera's last hope of receiving outside aid or reinforcements vanished. The Spaniards are said to have tried to blow up the wreck with dynamite, but the attempt [illegible] failed, at last advices, still showed perilously near the surface. Cervera had hoped to keep the channel clear, awaiting the arrival of the Cadiz fleet under Admiral Camara with his warships, the Pelayo, Carlos V., and about ten others of smaller draught and lighter armament, to force the entrance, scatter the blockading American fleet, and release the penned-up ships, after which the united Spanish squadrons, being quicker sailers, could out-general our slower vessels, raise the blockade of Havana, and bring succor to Blanco. Once under the guns of Moro, the Spanish might bid defiance to their enemy. This alluring programme, however, is not destined to be fulfilled.

THE SPANISH SQUADRON OF ADMIRAL CERVERA.

Our first contingent of troops for Santiago sailed from Mobile via Tampa on June 4, in five transports, and included both cavalry and infantry. Gen. Bates commands this detachment. Twenty-five thousand men will be employed at Santiago. The movement on Porto Rico will be under General Lee, who will land a force of 15 000 troops. Both movements will be supported by our fleet, which is now free to act, having blocked Cervera effectually for a time at least. Important news may be expected soon as the result of these naval and military operations. Five thousand additional troops have been sent to Manila, to form part of General Merritt's army of occupation.

IN FRONT OF THE HARBOR OF SANTIAGO, CUBA.

Late letters from Havana via Sagua la Grande, inform us that the condition of our 160 or more children at the Lee Orphanage, in Havana, will be pitiful indeed unless relief is speedily afforded and the supplies replenished. An effort will be made by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to supply the needs of the orphanage, but it is extremely doubtful if even remittances can be safely got through, owing to the war. The military Governor has confiscated 2,000 sacks of cornmeal and 250 cases of bacon belonging to the supplies sent for the reconcentrados, and in consequence relief work among the adult reconcentrados has been discontinued. [illegible] balance of the relief funds in the hands of the Orphanage managers has been exhausted in the purchase at famine prices of food for the little ones.

Recruiting under the second call for volunteers is going forward rapidly. Many thousands of young men are leaving home and friends to go to the great camps, where the volunteers are assembled previous to being sent to the front. Our artist in the touching picture on this page, has presented a scene which is a day painfully familiar to many American households. The son—the hope and pride of his aged parents—has patriotically responded to his country's call. He is bidding the old folks good-bye before he departs. How tenderly he looks into the face of his old mother as she clasps him as only a mother can, and how his love her trembling lips can hardly express. The father, proud of his son, is loath to part with him, watches him with his own eyes moist and dim.

The War Tax Bill.

THE United States Senate has passed the War Tax Bill by a vote of forty-eight to twenty-eight, and now goes to the House of Representatives. It provides ways and means to meet the expenditures of our Army and Navy during the American-Spanish war. The new taxes are laid in almost every state on luxuries and on a class which is able to bear them. Liquors, wines, and tobaccos furnish the largest share of the revenue.

In the special yearly tax on banks for capital exceeding $25,000, and $2 for each additional $1,000), saving banks are exempt. Brokers pay $50; pawn-brokers, $20; custom House brokers, $10; insurance agents, $10; caterers to public amusement, and manufacturers and sellers of proprietary articles come in for their share; bonds, debentures, certificates of indebtedness are taxed five cents each $100; sales, agreements to sell, bucket shops of sales, transfers of stock certificates, two cents for each $100; sales or agreements of products or merchandise at stock exchanges or boards of trade, one cent for each $100; bank checks, two cents; bills of exchange, two cents for each $100; post office money orders the same; foreign rates are higher; telegraph and telephone messages, one cent; express bonds, 50 cents; Custom House entries, the first $100, 25 cents; entries of withdrawals from bonded warehouses, 50 cents; fire insurance policies, 10 cents for each $100 on the first premium; policies on industrial or weekly payment plan, 50 per cent. of the first premium; marine, inland and fire insurance, one-half cent on each dollar of premium; casualty, fidelity and guarantee, 1 per cent. Leases or contracts for the hire of tenements, 25 cents for one year; 50 cents for three, and $1 for a period exceeding three. mortgages between $1,000 and $1,500, 50 cents, and 25 cents for each additional $500; bills of passage to foreign ports, $1, when not exceeding $30; $3, between $30 and $60; $5 exceeding $60; power of attorney to sell real estate, 25 cents; protests of notes, drafts, etc., 25 cents; receipts or money over $5, 2 cents; warehouse receipts, 25 cents; each sleeping, palace or parlor-cars, and each berth therein, one cent; special tax of one-quarter of one per cent. on the gross annual receipts of refiners of petroleum and sugar in excess of $250,000; special excise tax of $10 on manufactures of adulterated flours; legacies and distributive shares of personal property between $10,000 and $25,000, 25 cents per $100 in the case of lineal descendants, brothers and sisters; more as the relationship is more remote.

OUR WAR WITH SPAIN — SCENES AT TAMPA, HAVANA AND ELSEWHERE.

Sports at Tampa, the Olivette in front.—2. Chicago Naval Reserves on the U. S. S. Mascotte.—3. Guard Mount, 1st Cavalry, Tampa, Fla.—4. Cuban Officers in Barracks at Tampa.
5. Members of Spanish Engineer Corps.—6. U. S. S. Charleston, now en route for Manila.—7. Spanish Drummer, Havana.—8. Spanish Battery, Havana.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. TERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers. We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by late renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address. Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you are in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter.

Our Armenian Fund's Work.

THOUSANDS of our readers will be greatly interested in the financial statement of our relief work in Armenia, which we publish on this page. It is a work which, having its origin in a time of the keenest distress and persecution of a multitude of God's people in a distant land, has been inevitably prolonged over several years, owing to the fact that a very large proportion of the beneficiaries are helpless orphan children. When our readers undertook this noble, Christian work, making this journal the channel of their benevolence, they did not foresee the splendid and permanent results that were destined to flow from their generosity. Their kindness of heart and openness of hand have been felt in every city in ancient Armenia, and there is hardly a mission building, from Van to the Bosporus, in which the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are not remembered with gratitude and blessing.

With the close of the immediate relief work among the destitute adult population, there remained a further duty of caring for the orphaned children. To accomplish this work, there was on hand a Fund balance of $6,696.75. At the present time the Fund is maintaining nearly one hundred children, under the care of that excellent American missionary, Miss Corinna Shattuck, at Oorfa, and, as these little ones must be supported for several years to come, we have pledged in behalf of our readers a portion of the unexpended balance of the Fund for their maintenance. Pledges have been also made in three other directions where our relief work has already accomplished much good. These are the pledges

[illegible]

Or $4,000 in excess of the Fund contributed.

We do not desire to ask our readers to make any new effort for Armenia, feeling that they have already performed their duty most faithfully and generously. Should any of them, however, desire to help at this late date, their gifts will simply be applied towards the liquidation of the balance overpledged on the Fund.

ARMENIAN RELIEF FUND.

Remittances for Armenian Relief Made Through the American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions as Follows:

VAN.
1895.	Oct. 27,	To Dr. Grace N. Kimball and Dr. Raynolds.	$ 500 00
	Dec. 3,	" " " "	5000 00
	Dec. 24,	" " " "	5000 00
1896.	Mar. 11,	" " " "	2000 00
	April 3,	" " " "	2500 00
1897.	Jan. 7,	" " " "	250 00
				$15250 00
ERZEROOM.
1896.	Jan. 2,	To Rev. W. N. Chambers and Mrs. Chambers	$1000 00
	Oct. 9,	" " " "	250 00
	Oct. 13,	" " " "	250 00
				$1500 00
ERZINJIAN.
1896.	Jan. 3,	To Rev. W. N. Chambers and Mrs. Chambers	$1000 00
				$1000 00
HARPOOT.
1896.	Jan 3	To Revs. H. N. Barnum, C. F. Gates and E. S. Ellis.	$1000 00
	Jan. 28,	" " " "	1000 00
	Mar. 11,	" " " "	2000 00
	April 3,	" " " "	1500 00
	June 22,	" " " "	1000 00
	Oct. 2,	" " " "	500 00
	Oct. 9,	" " " "	500 00
	Oct. 12,	" " " "	500 00
	Oct. 26,	" " " "	500 00
	Nov. 4,	" " " "	250 00
	Nov. 13,	" " " "	500 00
	Dec. 8,	" " " "	500 00
	Dec. 15,	" " " "	500 00
1897.	Jan. 7,	" " " "	500 00
				$10750 00
DIARBEKIR.
1896.	Jan. 3.	To Revs. H. N. Barnum, C. F. Gates and E. S. Ellis.	$1000 00
	Oct. 26,	" " " "	250 00
	Nov. 4,	" " " "	250 00
1897.	Jan. 7.	" " " "	250 00
				$1750 00
MARDIN.
1896.	Jan. 3,	To Rev. A. N. Andrews	$ 500 00
				$500 00
GEMAREK.
1896.	Jan. 3.	To Rev. J. K. Fowle	$ 500 00
	June 22,	" "	500 00
	Oct. 2,	" "	250 00
				$1250 00
AINTAB.
1896.	Jan 15.	To Rev. Americus Fuller	$ 500 00
				$500 00
SIVAS.
1896.	Jan. 15,	To Rev. H. F. Perry	$ 500 00
	Feb. 11,	" "	500 00
				$1000 00
ARABKIR.
1896.	Jan. 15,	To Rev. H. N. Barnum	$ 500 00
	Dec. 15,	" "	500 00
				$1000 00
KAISAREA
1896.	Feb. 11,		$1000 00
	Dec. 8,		250 00
1897.	Jan 7.		750 00
				$2000 00
HADJIN.
1896	Feb. 11,		$ 500 00
	Nov. 4.		250 00
				$750 00
OORFA.
1896.	Feb. 11,	For Miss Corinna Shattuck.	$1000 00
	Mar. 11,	" " "	1000 00
	April 3,	" " "	500 00
	June 22,	" " "	1000 00
	Oct. 9,	" " "	250 00
	Nov. 4.	" " "	250 00
	Nov. 13.	" " "	250 00
	Dec. 8.	" " "	250 00
1897.	Jan. 7,	" " "	250 00
	Jan. 12,	" " "	1000 00
	Feb. 17	" " "	1000 00
	Mar. 13.	" " "	2000 00
				$8750 00
MARASH.
1896.	Feb 11.		$1000 00
	April 3,		500 00
				$1500 00
PALU.
1896.	Jan. 28,		$ 500 00
				$500 00
TREMIA.
1896.	Feb. 11.	Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions	$1000 00
				$1000 00
MALATIA.
1896.	April 3.		$1000 00
	Oct. 12.		250 00
				$1250 00
GURUN.
1896.	Jan 28,		$ 500 00
				$500 00
EGIN.
1896	Oct. 2.		$ 250 00
				$250 00
SMYRNA.
1896.	Oct 12.		$ 250 00
				$250 00
BAIBURT.
1896.	Oct. 26,		$ 250 00
				$250 00

SPECIAL.

1896.	May 26.	Wm. W. Peet, Constantinople	$ 982 00
	Sept. 26.	Frances Willard and Lady Henry Somerset for Refugees at Marseilles, France	1000 00
	Sept. 11, Nov. 11,	D. M. Bedekian, Refugees in New York City	125 00
	Nov. 14.	Salvation Army Refugees at Ramseys N. J	1000 00
1897.	Aug. 16.	Rev. Th. Schneller Refugees in Palestine	500 00
1898.	Jan. 29 Feb 3.	Dr Ayvazian, Refugees in New York City	201 00
		Blankets for Refugees at New York	135 00
		R. R Tickets and Miscellaneous	8 75
		Dr Grace Kimball	350 00
		W. W. Howard	571 00	$4691 75
		Total Distribution		$59191 75

ADMINISTRATION EXPENSES.

Cablegrams and Telegrams	$203 92
Pamphlets for Soliciting Subscriptions	91 10
Postage on pamphlets	32 71
Clerical Labor, Stopping Expenses, Stationery, Printing, Postage, Acknowledgment of Contributions, &c., &c	693 75
Auditor's Fees	45 00
Total for Administration		$976 48
Balance forward—see adjoining column		$6696 75
Total Contributions Received as Acknowledged in Columns of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, from Sept 1 1895, to June 1 1898		$63867 98

Public Accountant's Certification.

I have carefully examined the books of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and diligently compared every voucher, receipt, check and stub, and find the above to be an accurate and true statement of the receipts and expenditures in connection with the Armenian Relief Fund to date, June 1st, 1898.

Sworn to before me this 7th day of June, A.D. 1898.

W. S. GUERNEAU NOTARY PUBLIC NEW YORK

W. S. Guerneau
Notary Public

Lorin Housley
Public Accountant, 31 Nassau Street, New York.

BRIEF NOTES.

There are now 1,340 Young Women's Christian Associations in Great Britain.

Fully twenty-five evangelical denominations will be represented at the approaching Christian Endeavor convention at Nashville, Tenn.

The English Wesleyan Home Mission Society is having three Gospel cars built, which will bring the number owned by the society to twelve.

The London Religious Tract Society lately celebrated its centennial. During these years it has circulated 3,215,615,110 books, periodicals, tracts, etc.

Measures have been taken by the Governor at Jerusalem to prevent any emigration of foreign Jews, the orders from Constantinople being very decided on that point.

The Church Missionary Society has received during the past year $1,657,990, including $[illegible] for famine relief and special funds. This includes legacies to the amount of $12[illegible] receipts on the mission field of $12,815.

Of the 485 students at the University of Virginia, 271 are members of the church, 214 members of the Young Men's Christian Association; and thirty-five are actively engaged in some form of religious work.

At the recent anniversary of the Serampore Theological Seminary at Isein, Burma, [illegible] young men were graduated. They belong to [illegible] different races, and will preach the Gospel in [illegible] many different languages and dialects.

Dr. I. W. Munhall's services at Waco, Tex., have stirred the whole neighborhood. The Daily Statesman of that city regularly publishes the sermons and urged all its readers to attend. The numbers of the audiences and the collections paid to the preaching were unprecedented in the history of the city, if not in the State.

Dr. F. E. Clark has been attending the Christian Endeavor National Convention at Chicago. On the Sunday after the Convention he conducted a great service in Glasgow [illegible]. It is estimated that 20,000 Endeavorers were present at the Convention. At last year's Convention, which was held in Liverpool, 15,000 were present.

Rev. Sheldon Jackson has succeeded in securing 113 Christian young men of Lapland [illegible] to accompany him as caretakers for reindeer, and to act as missionaries to the Alaska Indians [illegible] year. It is said that these Laplanders are well pleased with their work that they will remain permanently at the end of their present [illegible].

The dignitaries of the Greek Church [illegible] as much arrogance as those of the Roman Catholic Church. The Independent gives the [illegible] of the Greek Patriarch of Alexandria as "[illegible] of God Pope and Patriarch of Alexandria [illegible] and the whole of Africa, Fathers' Father, Pastor, Thirteenth of the Apostles and Judge of the Universe."

In a village three hours' distant from Foochow, China, a Buddhist temple, its idols, and its [illegible] gardens attached, have been voluntarily [illegible] by deed of gift to the Free Methodist Mission, which the Rev. W. Heywood is in charge of [illegible] as a Christian mission station. The heads of the three villages surrounding the temple have given their written consent to the establishment of the mission there.

The King's Daughters' Tenement Mission Chapter in New York will henceforth be known as The King's Daughters' Settlement. The [illegible] main at 48 Henry Street, and will continue in charge of a Board of Managers. It is entirely supported by voluntary contributions and [illegible] pledges are desired from circles as well as individuals. The expenditures for the year ending April, 1898, amounted to nearly $5,000.

At the recent convention in Yokohama of the W. C. T. U. of Japan, it was announced that the Union has now 1,300 members. The workers, many of whom are graduates from the Christian schools in Japan, will have a far-leavening influence over the future. The Union now has thirty-one societies in different parts of Japan. The growth during the past year has been very rapid, amounting to a figure nearly [illegible] the membership of last year.

A recently returned traveler from Japan says that in one respect at least Japan is an example to the civilized world. There is no profanity there. "The reason for this is that there is no word in the Japanese language which [illegible] ent to an oath. Even the vast number of [illegible] who have gone to that country during the [illegible] years, and the thousands of new words in the language, have not in the least affect the Japanese avoidance of profanity."

A remarkable example of conversion to Christianity without the aid of missionaries comes from Corea. A number of natives from the province of Kiongi sent to the missionaries for a teacher. The missionary who visited them found in a single village 140 persons who were ready to become Christians. A strong interest in the city had been excited throughout the entire region simply by the reading of stray books, and conversing with occasional Christian travelers.

The six missionary survivors of the massacre of Sierra Leone reached New York [illegible] on board the Cunard steamer Etruria. They are Rev. and Mrs. I. C. Buttner, Rev. and Mrs. Minshell, Rev. A. A. Ward and Mrs. Mullen. Their narrow escape from the natives and their perilous voyage to Freetown were described in this journal last week. The [illegible] missionaries went to Dayton, O., where the missionary Society of the United Brethren [illegible] to which they belong, has its headquarters, will not return to their station in Africa.

Rev. Charles E. Ewing, missionary of the American Board at Pekin, China, is reported in The Missionary Review as having stated that a messenger from the Emperor of China just brought an order for 160 books, made up of books of Western science and learning, some of them distinctly Christian. He added that they were for the emperor. "A week later the same messenger came again, saying that [illegible] wanted copies of all Christian books that had been printed. We selected from our mission room 400 volumes of different books to fill [illegible] as far as we are able. These books are [illegible] not for the emperor, but for those [illegible] who live in the palace, the emperor's per[illegible]

HAWAII AS AN ALLY.

ADVOCATES of the annexation of Hawaii are encouraged by the practical object lesson furnished by the Charleston and the other vessels which have been sent to the relief of Admiral Dewey at Manila. The convenience with which they were allowed to take on coal at the Hawaiian Islands was obvious. If the Hawaiian Government had followed the example of our friends in Europe and had declared strict neutrality, our fleet would have been unable to obtain there the much-needed fuel for the long voyage to the Philippines. We may be quite sure that this friendly service, thus rendered at a time when not escape the notice of Spain. At the end of the war the Spanish Government will have the right to call upon the Hawaiian Government to account under the law of nations, as we did the British Government in the Alabama matter. It is possible that by that time, Hawaii will have had enough of trouble with her own nations and will not want another quarrel, but the question will remain, even though we may waive it. Hawaii, doubtless, is not much to say about the prospect, but we are satisfied that we shall not lose her if she does not suffer from lack of friendly service to us. It is evident from all the discussion at Honolulu that the sentiment for annexation has not diminished. Even a protectorate would be welcome. The question, combined with the commercial advantage the possession of the islands would be to us, would be so long as we maintain the occupation of the Philippines. This has brought the question of annexation to the front again in our Congress. Both in the Senate and the House the matter has been again discussed with the hope that opposition to the project may be diminished. It is apparent however, that among the statesmen there are many who have not yet been convinced of the wisdom of assuming the responsibility of annexing the islands, but whether they are in the majority remains to be proved. It is well for the human race that the conditions which have hitherto prevented the nations admitting these people who desire to come under our flag, do not weigh against the Kingdom of God. It is the glory of Christ that he is willing to receive all who desire him to reign over them, no matter how unworthy they may be.

Now therefore, ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God (Eph. 2: 19).

Fatal Knot.

An accident occurred a few days ago at Stapleton Island, N. Y. A man lives there who earns his livelihood as a cabman. He owns several horses, which in his absence were cared for by his brother, a boy of about fifteen years of age. One of the horses, a new purchase, was taken by the boy to a watering-trough the other day. Fearing that the horse might run away, the boy foolishly tied the halter-rope to his own wrist. He walked beside the animal to the trough, and after it had drunk was returning with it to the stable, when the horse was frightened by something he saw and reared on its hind feet. The boy was lifted by the cord attached to his wrist and fell to the ground. This frightened to increase the horse's fright, and started on a wild race over the cobblestone road dragging the boy. The people called to the boy to let go of the cord, but it was only when a man intercepted the horse and seizing the cord brought the animal to a standstill, that it was found what the foolish boy had done. He was then so seriously injured that he died in a few hours. Probably he never thought of the danger to himself when he tied the cord to his wrist, but was concerned only about the safety of his brother's property. It is very sad that his fidelity should have cost him his life. Still more deplorable is it when, as more frequently happens, men attach themselves so firmly to their own property that they lose their souls.

What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul (Mark 8: 36, 37)?

A Legal Oversight.

A curious question was submitted a few days ago to the United States Circuit Court. An immigrant woman arrived here from Russia to join her husband, who has been in this country several years. She brought with her a child who, on being examined by the medical officer of the immigration bureau, was found to be afflicted with favus, a skin disease, which, under the law, is reason for exclusion. The child was ordered to be sent back, and the Immigration Commissioners excluded the mother, too, in order that she might accompany the child as its natural guardian. The father, however, secured legal assistance and appealed to the Court against the decision of the Commissioners. The judge, having heard the evidence, decided against the Commissioners. He admitted that common-sense required that the mother should go back, but there was no provision in the law justifying her exclusion. The question now has to be settled whether the child shall remain as the parents wish, or whether if it is sent back, the mother will voluntarily accompany it, and thus maternal affection do what the law cannot do. There is not much doubt about what the mother will do if the child is sent back. Though the law cannot compel her to go, her love will do so, which shows that in some cases love is stronger than law, as the Apostle said:

For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his son in the likeness of sinful flesh, condemned sin (Rom. 8: 3).

A Tramp's Service.

A lady in Philadelphia is rejoicing in the solution of a mystery which she attained through an act of kindness to a tramp. For several months she had been trying to ascertain what became of a gold locket containing the miniature and a lock of hair of her dead mother. She accidentally broke the locket early last summer and as her brother was starting on a business journey through New York State, she gave it to him with a request that he take it to some skilful jeweler to be repaired. Soon afterward she received a letter from him saying that he had found a firm who would make the locket as good as new, and he would bring it back with him on his return. But he died suddenly while at Utica, N. Y., and his body and effects were sent to his sister at Philadelphia. Some weeks after the funeral, the thought of the locket recurred to her and she searched his trunks for it, but could not find it. The locket was one of her most treasured possessions and its loss worried her. She advertised for it and made inquiries in various towns that her brother had visited, but without success. Two weeks ago, a miserable, ragged tramp came to her door and pleaded for food and shelter. The lady's sympathies were moved by his wretchedness and the honesty of his manner. She gave him food and was surprised when the man asked whether she could give him any work that he could do in return. She set him to several jobs which he did cheerfully and well. Finally when he left she gave him a suit of her brother's clothes, for which the man was very grateful. Two days afterwards the man came back, bringing a slip of paper that he had found in one of the pockets. It proved to be a receipt from a firm of jewelers in New York for the long-lost locket which had been left with them for repairs. The lady lost no time in applying for her treasure which was sent to her at once. She is not the first person who has received an unexpected reward for doing an act of kindness. It does not often come from the person benefited and it may not always come in this life, but when the kindness is done with pure motives, the reward is sure. There are many who will be surprised at the last, when eternal reward is conferred upon them for services which they have altogether forgotten.

Lord when saw we thee hungry and fed thee? (Matt 25:37).

THE HAWAIIAN GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT HONOLULU, SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Lost Her Treasures.

An aged woman nearly lost her life in a fire in New York, on June 4, through a singular delusion. She lived in an old frame tenement house in Birmingham street and earned a precarious livelihood by selling newspapers. One of the tenants in the house who came home late at night, noticed smoke in the passages and went to an upper floor to investigate. The smoke was more dense there and concluding that a fire was smouldering in one of the rooms, he gave an alarm. In a few minutes flames broke out. All the inmates were aroused and brought out of the burning building, among them the old newspaper-vender. She was insensible and had to be carried out. She revived in the fresh air and realizing that the house was on fire, she ran back to her room before any one could stop her. The firemen heard her scream, "my treasures will be burned," and thinking she was a miser who had jewels or hidden wealth in her room one of them followed her to help her save her property. Looking around the room, he found that the "treasures" consisted of old umbrella-frames, and other rubbish that the woman had found in ash-barrels and had stored away. She was determined to save the worthless stuff and the fireman seeing that she would be burned to death carried her down stairs by force. She stood on the sidewalk watching the destruction of the house, wringing her hands and begging the firemen with tears to save her treasures. People say she is crazy and it is easy to believe it; but they would not have said so if her treasures had been bonds and mortgages and greenbacks. Yet probably the angels have the same opinion of people who are similarly distressed at losing them. They certainly think a man foolish who imperils his soul to save them.

When riches increase set not your heart upon them (Ps. 62: 10).

A Liquor Seller's Responsibility.

One of the Appellate Courts, of New York, confirmed last week the decision of the Supreme Court of Cattaraugus county, holding a liquor-seller in heavy damages for a tragedy. It was proved by the record of the trial in the lower court that a man of good position who was uniformly kind to his family and provided for its support was in the habit of going at intervals on a debauch. This fact was known to all the liquor-dealers in the town in which he lived. During these outbreaks he was very violent and acted in a brutal way, altogether different from his conduct when he was in his normal condition. They became more violent and more prolonged of late. During one of the worst of them he shot his wife, injuring her seriously; he then turned the weapon against himself and blew out his own brains. In one of his pockets at the time was a bottle which had contained liquor, and the label on the bottle, it was claimed, showed that the liquor had been purchased at a certain saloon. The widow, after her recovery from her wound, sued the saloon-keeper for damages for her own injury and the loss of her husband's life. The saloon-keeper contended that there was no proof that the liquor he sold was the cause of the tragedy, but the jury gave a verdict in the widow's favor, which on appeal the higher court has now confirmed, holding that the liquor sold by the defendant contributed to the tragedy, if it was not the sole cause. It will be a serious matter for all of us if God's justice proceeds on the same principle. Happy is that man who has never, by a single word, or foolish act contributed to the eternal ruin of a soul.

It were well for him if a millstone were hanged about his neck and he were thrown into the sea rather than that he should cause one of these little ones to stumble (Luke 17: 2).

Strengthened by Shock.

A remarkable discovery by a scientific expert was recently tested at the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia. The discoverer insisted that vibration would increase the strength of iron if it was applied at the proper temperature. His statement was received with incredulity; but, at length, he induced some practical men to give it a test. A number of newly cast bars were subjected to some three thousand taps from a hammer upon one end, and when these were compared as to strength with other untreated bars from the same set they showed an identically proportionate increase of strength, greater even than had been claimed. Numerous other experiments made on this line of inquiry confirmed the interesting fact that a substantial increase of strength, amounting in some cases to as much as thirty-five or forty per cent., was exhibited by specimens of cast iron when subjected to preliminary repeated shocks. Some characters seem to have been strengthened by an analogous process. It is sometimes difficult to understand the trials and disappointments and hardships the Christian has to endure, but if his trust is in God, he is sure that good will come to him through them.

He knoweth the way that I take: when he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold (Job 23: 10).

The Sunday School

REVIEW OF THE QUARTER.

International Sunday School Lesson for June 26. Golden Text, Jude 21.

VIEWED as a whole, the twelve lessons comprised in this week's review, are full of sad and solemn reflections. They belong to the period of sacrifice, the culmination of Christ's mission, the ordeal by which he must complete the work that was given him to do. As he approached it, his own spirit was bowed under the shadow. He alone knew what was coming, and even his most intimate friends could not understand him when he tried to prepare them for it. How solitary he must have felt, even in that home at Bethany, in which he spent the evenings of those days of trial! Yet as we have seen, in considering each lesson, his words were tender and impressive. His thoughts were of others, not of himself, and the tears he shed were not for himself, but for those who must suffer after his departure. To the last, the love which shone from his life burned clear and undimmed, and there was no faltering in the path he trod toward the consummation of his work. As they said of him in mockery: he saved others, himself he could not save. It was true; and the taunt is a glory to him that will never fade. As we think of him passing, sad and lonely through that last ordeal, we can imagine how he must have been supported and encouraged by the prevision of the blessings which would flow to the world through his sufferings. Nothing could have brought to a nature so noble as his, so much joy as seeing, as his prophetic vision stretched across the centuries, each succeeding generation gaining a clearer view of his character and work and deriving from his life new inspiration to purity, to holiness, to love, and to self-sacrifice. His promise is still being fulfilled that, being lifted up, he would draw all men unto him. Truly as we study his life, we can realize that, even in his darkest hour, as that spectacle passed before him, he may have seen the fruit of the travail of his soul and have been satisfied.

In closing for the time these studies of that divine life, it is important to leave on every mind a clear idea of the significance of each incident as it has come under our notice during the past months, and to show the beautiful unity of action and of teaching, which have made him the Pattern and the Exemplar, as well as the Saviour of the world.

Three of the twelve lessons to be reviewed, are concerned with the events of the last twenty-four hours of our Lord's life, and it is worthy of notice that in the brief biographies we have of him in the Gospels, so large a portion of them should be devoted to the same day. Evidently the writers, who pass over so much in his life that would be interesting to Christians, saw in Christ's death a significance calling for full and careful description. Another group of three lessons gives a very different aspect of him, showing the glory that belongs to him. They are: the Transfiguration, the Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem, and the Resurrection. The contrast deserves special notice, for it is the same Jesus condemned and crucified who was transfigured on the mount and glorified at the sepulchre. Three of the other six lessons refer to the second coming of Christ, under the heads of, the Marriage Supper, the injunction to watchfulness, and the day of judgment. Of the other three, one is devoted to the unique story of the Syro-Phœnician woman, one to the duty of forgiveness, and one to the prevision of Christ's sufferings, which he gave to his disciples to prepare them for the coming trial.

To cast it to dogs (Matt. 15: 26). It is sometimes necessary to humble a person before he can be benefited. The story is told of a wicked nobleman who, being sick, and fearing he was going to die, sent for a Methodist preacher, and announced himself as desirous of becoming a Methodist. He evidently supposed that having so distinguished a convert would impress the minister, and that he would be received with open arms. The minister perceived that he had no true sense of his condition before God, and would need to be brought into a very different state of mind. He therefore bluntly told him that heaven was not for such as he, but for men of pure hearts and clean lives; and he could not admit to communion anyone, no matter how illustrious his rank, who had not the qualifications for admission to heaven. The nobleman was astonished and indignant. He declared that he was no worse than others of his rank, and mentioned several of his associates who were exceptionally bad men. The clergyman set before him God's warning and commandments, and showed that there was scriptural ground for refusing to receive him. A few days later he called again and found that a great change had occurred. The nobleman was no longer comparing himself with his associates but with the requirements of God's law. "You are right," he said. "I am not fit for heaven. I had no idea I had been so great a sinner. I see there is no hope for me." "There you mistake," said the clergyman. "If you admit that you are a sinner, there is every reason to hope. It is sinners that Christ came to save."

And suffer many things (Matt. 16: 21). Peter in his love and reverence rebuked his Lord when Christ spoke of the sufferings that were coming on him. He did not have the slightest conception of suffering which would be a glory to the sufferer. He had only the common view of suffering as evil, that he could not bear to think of in connection with his Master. He had yet to learn that every suffering and sorrow might have in it a glory unseen to human eyes. Sir Edwin Arnold relates a Buddhist legend to this effect: The father of Prince Siddartha had a dream that to his mind portended four terrible evils to his son. He dreamed that the flag of Indra was rent in twain; that the earth was shaken by the tread of ten huge elephants; that a drum pealed like thunder; that his son sat on the summit of a tower scattering the treasures of his regalia, and at the foot a crowd was gathering the jacinths and the rubies as they fell. The king, greatly depressed, told his dream to a wise counsellor, who cheered him by giving each item a new meaning. The rent flag was but the beginning of a greater, better era; the ten elephants were the ten gifts of wisdom; the drum was the proclamation of the new Gospel; the gems were the truths which his son would give to the world.

Send her away (Matt. 15: 23). It is not clear whether the disciples wanted him to grant or refuse her request. But Christ's answer implies that he understood them as pleading for her. They knew how he usually sent suppliants away, and they may have wanted him to do as she asked in this case, not because they cared for the woman, but because she was a nuisance. During the horrors of the French revolution, Barere astonished every one by pleading for the life of one of the suspects. He was so invariably on the side of the guillotine, that his colleagues could not understand his advocating mercy in this case. It was learned afterwards that the wife of the prisoner knew some of Barere's secrets and threatened him with exposure if he did not save her husband's life. So a hard, merciless man was led to plead for mercy for his own sake. Sometimes charity is done in the same spirit. A man who gives money to a beggar because of his importunity is not entitled to credit for it. He gives not out of compassion, but out of regard for his own comfort, which is disturbed by the beggar's pleading.

Was transfigured before them (Matt. 17: 2). Christ seems to have foreseen that his disciples would be bewildered by the events about to take place. They believed him to be the Son of God, but they would surely doubt when they saw him arrested, beaten and killed by the soldiery. He therefore gave to three of them a vision which let them see the glory that properly belonged to him. The story is told of a woodsman in an English forest that, returning home from his work, he found his wife in altercation with a man whose clothes were covered with mud and torn with briers. He had asked her for a drink of milk, and she had refused it and was ordering him away from her door. The woodsman was of a different spirit. He was sorry for the wayfarer, who was evidently tired and weak. "Come in," he said, "and share my supper. Wife, we must not be hard on the poor and unfortunate. We have not much to offer, but we won't grudge that to a weary man." The visitor entered gladly, and the wife with no great good grace prepared supper. The meal was scarcely begun when three horsemen rode up to the door. "Have you seen the king?" they asked. Looking into the cottage, they cried, "here he is," and forcing their way in, addressed the muddy, bedraggled stranger as "your Majesty." Their reverence and the evident rank of their guest almost frightened the woodsman, and especially his wife, out of their senses. The king only laughed at them, thanked them for their hospitality at parted with his officers, one of whc returned next day with a purse of go for the woodsman.

Forgave him the debt (Matt. 18. 2 is related of a famous Christian l that a friend came to him to tell wrong he had suffered at the hands neighbor. He did not know whet would be more dignified to challeng to a duel, to sue him at law, or to p the story in all the local newsp Which did the judge think was the way, or could he think of any still for getting even with him? "Cert said the judge, "I believe that a way of punishing him than any yo proposed would be to forgive him." angry man exclaimed: "Forgive h would not be manly to do that." judge assented, but added, "It wo God-like." His friend went away s decided. On his way home, in cros bridge over a swollen stream, his stepped through a hole where the had carried away some beams. F eral minutes the man lost hope of he was borne down the river and like a log on its surface, but he g the overhanging branch of a tree and himself out. In those few minutes of when he thought he must soon app fore God to ask forgiveness of his the lawyer's advice come to his min the next day he amazed his enemy ing to him and telling him that he f him. Completely broken down b magnanimous act, the other expres sorrow and promised reparation.

Shall find so doing (Matt. 24: 46) injunction may be obeyed by pers business just as well as in religiou cerns. There are men serving th in business as faithfully as the m can serve him in the pulpit. A man had occasion one morning t one of his deacons, who was a Not finding him at home, he went mill. The miller greeted him co but excused himself from shaking Showing his soiled and dusty pal said, "I did not expect a visit fro this morning, otherwise I woul been in better shape." The minis plied: "Do not apologize. I onl that when my Master comes he w me, as I find you, engaged in my d Divideth the sheep from the goats 25: 32). Dr. J. A. Broadus, when P estine, saw just such a scene saw a flock of sheep and goats fol a shepherd. At a superficial glanc did not seem to be much difference sheep had long, coarse, hairy wo unlike goat's hair. When the sh reached the pasture, a beautiful valley, he turned and faced his Holding his crook before him, he gentle tap on the side of the head animal as it came up. As the shee the touch of the shepherd seeme clearly understood, for it moved right, and the goat receiving the touch turned to the left. In a few the flock was divided into two part Sick, and ye visited me (Matt. 25: writer in Nature describes a curio acteristic of apes, whose habits studied. He had a large cage in his in which was a spreading tree and iature cottage. In the cage he number of monkeys. Among the an ape who, running along one highest branches of the tree, fe broke his wrist. His injury was a to, but afterwards he avoided the took shelter in the cottage. As never seen at feeding time, his m sent to the cottage to him, but it was that there was no need. The othe taken to him the finest of the pl that had been given them. Som afterwards, one of the apes fell si retired to the cottage. The own posed that the others would feed they had done the one with the b wrist; but none of them went nea and the poor animal nearly sta death before their neglect was disc Another fell ill and was similarly a They evidently make some dist between sickness and injury, but o principle it is based is unknown. one, in any case, that should not o in men, especially in men who have upon themselves the name of They should never forget that from abode where a Christian brother li fering, there is a call from the Mas sympathy and service.

BETHANY, FROM WHICH CHRIST WENT ON HIS LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM.

Soldiers' Songs of Praise.

Progress of our Gospel Work in the Great Military Camps—North and South Worshipping Together—The Christian Commission Active—Soldiers' Testaments Sorely Needed.

(From our Special Correspondents.)

TAMPA, Fla. The Rev. A. C. Dixon, Prof. J. H. Burke, and Ira D. Sankey, singer, the Rev. J. W. Carpenter, the Rev. W. W. De Hart, the Rev. F. H. Norton, and the Rev. J. G. Anderson are among the good men whose labors in this camp will doubtless bear fruit in the fierce campaign that is impending for our army in Cuba. Never there a richer field. To call it a ripe could seem a misnomer when one the fresh, young faces, and the step of the boys that wear the blue. any a mother's heart is aching for ow many a father's breast is filled xiety for these young men, some bear every appearance of having petted darlings of happy homes! ertainly would be no nobler mis- n to impress on their minds the of the Gospel, to inspire them true courage of the Christian sol- strengthen their souls al fortitude, while their re being trained to the e of war. The evan- ovement in the camp, r the camps, has been with deepening inter- ne part of the men, and iring devotion on the the evangelists.

memorial services of before Decoration day de especially attractive ressive by Sankey's tones, which lost none charm in that pictur- ackground of camp and palmetto, with the hot ing down on the glar- Flida sands. The audi- g patriotic hymns.

ian work is not confined gelism. The Young hristian Association is g good influences the men by providing th the means and op- y to write to their copies of THE CHRIS- ERALD have been extensively ed in the camp, and no effort l to keep up, on this far-off south- t, the associations which elevate ate. A magnificent and touch- ure of these services is the pres- ke of the children of those that blue and those that wore the ting and singing side by side, with soldiers also joining in the worship hat died for all, without distinction If the Civil War restored the he Spanish War is cementing it. the charitable are doing so much Cubans, it may not be amiss to that there is considerable suffer- ng the planters of orange-groves den-stuff, living in this and ad- ounties—Hillsborough, De Soto, d Manatee. The frost of last win- royed their vegetables, and the g of spring and early summer has the orange-groves, until now the of the storekeeper is worn out. planter appeals in vain for further These people are, in most in- too proud to ask for charity. efer in many cases to starve rather ke known their needs.

a news reaches here through an al refugee who has seen, or heard able informants, the condition of the Cuban capital. The block- almost accomplished the destruc- the reconcentrados. It is probable se who have escaped, or been to the country are no better off os worse off—than those in the hey cannot cultivate the land, al- vergrown with brush and trees; rgents have no food to spare for d the Spanish guerrilas and regu- a equally merciless. How many ds have perished cannot be told. feared that very few survive, and that when the food now on the steamer State of Texas reaches Cuba, it will be needed for a new class of sufferers.

Mr. Sankey Sings to the Troops.

U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS,
TAMPA BAY, FLORIDA.

Dear Christian Herald: Our meetings with the soldiers yesterday were largely attended and deeply interesting. The new collection of hymns for the Army and Navy, containing a number of the best known and popular patriotic songs, are greatly appreciated by the boys in blue. They are furnished free of cost to the troops in camp. The singing in the meeting last evening could easily be heard over half a mile away.

The leading generals of the army are in sympathy with our Gospel work here and give us every facility for preaching and singing at such times as will not interfere with the regular duties of the men. I have never seen a finer body of men than those now encamped in and about Tampa. They are all anxious to go to Cuba at once; but it may be some time before the new recruits are ready.

THE GOSPEL PAVILION AT THE GREAT MILITARY CAMP, TAMPA, FLA.

The weather is very warm, but so far, the health of the camps is very good.

I send you herewith a copy of a new song which I had Fanny Crosby write for the "Army and Navy." I introduced it at my service of "Song and Story," in the Tabernacle at Tampa Heights last night, and it went with a rush. A big choir of "regulars," on the platform helped, and it was a grand sight to see how quickly they caught it up.

IRA D. SANKEY.

Gospel Work.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,
TAMPA, FLA.

The army here goes to bed with its clothes on, and sleeps on its arms. The fleet of transports lies at the long wharf out in the harbor, with steam up. Tiny wreaths of black smoke pour out of forty funnels. The last bullet and the last ration and the last lump of coal are aboard. The ships are full; clean up to their hatches.

One of the prisoners in our care was brought here as the captive of brave Captain Dorst, who commanded the Gussie expedition. The mission of the Gussie, a small side-wheeler, was to land arms, ammunition and food on Cuban soil for the use of the insurgents. Captain Dorst failed; failed because betrayed by this same, harmless Spaniard, who calls himself a Cuban. At the point where the expedition landed, Dorst found this man living alone in a shamble. Asked if there were any Spanish soldiers in the neighborhood, the man replied, No! Would he guide the party to the nearest insurgent camp? Yes! Whereupon the man led the landing party straight into an ambush of Spanish cavalry. The Gussie returned to Tampa, and the traitor is now in a sort of guard-tent in the First Infantry camp.

When I saw the prisoner, I said to him: "Are you sorry." His reply was astounding: "The Spaniards paid well," he said, "and who cares!"

General Howard and Major Whittle have left Tampa for Mobile. Religious work here is carried on by Dr. Dixon and the regimental chaplains. All the services and good works described in last week's CHRISTIAN HERALD continue. Meetings are held twice, and sometimes thrice, every day—not in one place, but in many parts of the field at once. Every volunteer regiment has its own chaplain but for some good reason, perhaps because the civilian soldiers have so recently come from cities where there are churches on every street corner, the services at the volunteer camps are not nearly so largely attended as those held in the camps of the regulars.

REV. H. M. WHARTON, D.D.

In all the military camps, the "church call" has become one of the routine duties of the buglers. The calls are all adjusted to suit the demands of drill and fatigue work, so that the men's spare hours may be given to hearing the Gospel.

Last Sunday, a pastor of a Tampa church told me that his own service and those in all the other churches in Tampa had the very smallest congregations. Their flocks had all gone out to the camps to enjoy the novelty of a military sermon.

One of the volunteer regiments has hired a piano and sheltered it in a spare commissary tent. Last Sunday night the boys gathered in this tent and sang Moody and Sankey hymns till tattoo call.

It is a positive delight to wander about the camps at night after the camp fires are lighted. The volunteer boys from New York and Massachusetts gather around these campfires and talk of home.

"Wonder what my mother is doing now?" says one.

"Oh, I would love to see my folks just once more before we go," says another.

"How rough the regulars look!"

"Yes; we'll look like that before a year is over."

"I'm worried. My sister is ill. Wish I could be with her—just a moment.

GILSON WILLETS.

Dr. H. M. Wharton, who is now conducting services in the camp at Tampa, Fla., and whose portrait we give on this page, has had a most successful career as a minister and evangelist. He was engaged in lucrative practice at the Bar when the call to preach the Gospel came to him. He became pastor of a church in Baltimore, Md., about ten years ago. It had then about thirty members. The membership is now nearly one thousand, and the church building accommodates two thousand persons. The church has engaged actively in philanthropic work, and has now two orphanages, which have been offered to the Government for the use of the children of soldiers who may fall in the war. Besides pastoral work, Dr. Wharton has been active in the evangelistic field, and has rendered efficient service in connection with Mr. D. L. Moody and in independent missions in nearly all of our great cities. It is matter for thankfulness that a preacher so successful should be proclaiming the Gospel in the camp, where such preaching as his is so urgently needed.

From Mr. Lougee, of the Young Men's Christian Association, and from Gen. O. O. Howard, who has been personally working in the camp at Tampa, come confirmations of the statements made by our correspondents, describing the readiness of the young men in the camps to listen to the preaching of the Word, and the eagerness with which they accept New Testaments and Christian literature. Such an opportunity must not be neglected. The good work already so well begun must go on. But money is needed, and we are sure it will be forthcoming in a cause that appeals alike to the patriot and the Christian. All contributions sent by our readers to this office for the purpose will be gratefully received, and will be acknowledged in these columns.

The following contributions for carrying on the work of the Christian Commission for Army and Navy have been received:

Prev. ack'd	$805 71
Armstrong, I	2 00
Bacon, Mrs Franklin	5 00
Beadl, Wm	1 00
Beekman, Mrs & Mrs Plimpton	4 00
Bordery, L S	1 00
Bryant, Mrs Susan	1 00
Bridges, J G	1 00
Brown, Mrs Effie A	1 00
Bruce, Mrs L A	1 00
Carlson, Mrs I	2 50
Clements, Sophie	1 00
Cole, James	50
Cortelyon, J J & L	1 00
Dilling, Wm	1 00
Fisher, Mrs A B	1 00
Fitch, W W	5 00
Foss, Mrs H C	2 00
Fox, Mrs M J	1 00
Freer, Catherine M	1 00
Freer, Eliza	75
Gilbert, Grace	5 00
Greene, C W	2 00
Handsaker, W H	10 00
Hawes, Mrs M J	1 00
Howes, H R	1 00
Irwin, M R	3 00
Leaming, Mrs Dr	25
McClurkin, Mrs J	1 00
McPherson, E W	25 00
Macomber, A W	10 00
Malcolm, Llewella	1 00
Malcolm, Mrs S J	50
Mansfield, E Glover	3 00
Martin, Horace	1 00
Maxwell, Mrs E	1 00
Meyer, Peter	1 00
Miller, Mrs Adam	2 00
Neil, Mrs E	2 00
Nuten, Mrs Mary	1 00
O'Keefe, C A	1 00
Orcutt, Emma H	5 00
Parham, Mrs L F	1 00
Park, Andrew J	1 00
Patmore, J C	10 00
Piper, Ida P	25
Poister, John W	3 00
Randolph, Mrs Jas	1 00
Riner, Mrs M M	2 00
Short, Mrs J C	1 10
Simmonson, Dr John	1 00
Smith, M E	2 00
Smith, Mrs W A	1 00
Swanson, F O & wife	1 00
Szabo, A A	2 50
Tapley, L R R	5 00
Thatcher, Mrs	5 00
Walker, G M	1 00
Warburton, Frank	1 00
Watsl, J C	1 00
Williamson, Mrs E	1 00
Wilson, Fannie C	1 00
Mary, Freeport	2 00
Sister Louise	1 00
A O C, Marengo	2 00
A S W, Washington	1 00
C C Milldale	25
C J & moth & J W J & wife, Levisay	1 00
C L, Lost River	1 00
C M S, Seneca Falls	1 00
E A F, Pawnee City	50
Mrs E	5 00
E C, Fairbury	1 50
E H Whitlock, Mariposa	1 00
E M, Milldale	25
E J P, Binghampton	20
F C H, Milwaukee	1 00
F I B, Hogan	56
J S, Boothbay Harbr	1 00
L C, Tomah	1 00
L W, Milldale	50
M D S, Balto	1 00
M R B, Portsmouth	3 00
P C, Milldale	1 00
T, Providence	1 00
X Y Z, Leacock	10 00
——, Fernandina	3 00
——, Iowa City	1 00
——, Wimer	2 00
Friend, Deckertown	30
" Norfolk	1 00
" Romney	50
" Barnes	1 00
I H N, Morristown	1 25
In Jesus Name, Athena	4 00
Reader, H L M D	5 00
" Pierceton	1 00
" Benton	25
S S, Hancock Point	4 52
Sterrett, Sab Sch	25
S W Stockbridge Soc of C E Dargville	1 00
Ep Leag, Rewey	7 47
Coll taken at Union Decoration service, Plymouth	2 50
Little Girl on her 6th birthday, Evanston	6 00
A Christian Bal'o	1 00
A Soldiers Widow, Rochester	1 00
In remembrance of Him, Mary	2 00
Mother's Son, Chanute	1 50
Chris Sister, Armada	2 00
Total	$843.26

A CHRISTIAN DOCTOR'S WORK IN MEXICO.

How Dr. Levi B. Salmans has Overcome the Prejudices of Mexican Roman Catholics to Protestantism by His Medical Labors.

A REMARKABLE illustration of the value of medical skill, as an aid to missionary effort, is furnished in the success which has attended the labors of Dr. Levi B. Salmans at Guanajuata, Mexico. There is probably no mission field so discouraging as one in which a majority of the people are Roman Catholics, who have learned from their priests to distrust the Protestant preachers and avoid them. Not even among the people of India or the savages of Africa does the missionary find it so difficult to obtain a hearing as in Catholic Mexico. Guanajuata was no exception to the rule. It was rare indeed that a Catholic could be induced to enter a missionary service; and when a new face was seen there it was safe to infer that it belonged to one who had already been converted to Protestantism by the conversation of the pastor or some of his helpers. Services were regularly held in the city by the Methodists, the Cumberland Presbyterians, the Congregationalists, and Baptists, but it was not in that way that men were won to Christ. The chief difficulty encountered was in getting the ear of the people. So fierce and implacable was the opposition that twice during the twenty years that missionaries have labored in the city attacks have been made upon them in which their lives were in dire peril.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH AT GUANAJUATA, MEXICO.

A marked change in the attitude of the people dates from 1891, when Rev. Levi B. Salmans, who had suspended his labors as a missionary in order to study medicine and had received his M.D. diploma, settled in Guanajuata as a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church. The region is thickly populated, but medical facilities were few and antiquated. In multitudes of cases the poor who had been hurt in the mines, or had been attacked by chronic disease, suffered unaided. Some of them, indeed, made pilgrimages to virgen shrines in the hope of gaining the intercession of the saints. But as one poor paralyzed child, who had made several such pilgrimages, said: "The saints did not seem to care, or else they did not know how to cure the disease of the poor sufferer." Dr. Salmans, with the permission of his church, began to visit the sick people of the city and to prescribe for them. It caused some surprise in Mexico at first that a religious teacher should be doing such work, but Dr. Salmans explained that he believed Christ's command, "As ye go, preach the Gospel and heal the sick," was still binding on his servants, as it was on the first disciples, and as he wished to obey it, but had not the power to work miracles, he was taking the only means available to him by prescribing the medicines which other physicians had found efficacious.

It was astonishing how many persons thankfully accepted his services for the healing of the body, who would not have listened to him as a spiritual healer. During the first six months over 200 patients applied to him for treatment and the number increased from month to month until 1894, three years after the beginning of the work, he had 3,055 new patients of whom, so far as he could discover less than fifty had ever heard the Gospel message. A large number were treated free of charge, a few paid a nominal sum for medicine and a fair proportion, who belonged to the substantial classes paid moderate fees. Dr. Salmans turned the entire proceeds into the general treasury and the results at the end of that year were fairly satisfactory. True, the money received from those who had paid, had not covered the cost of the medicine supplied to those who had been unable to pay, but considering how much suffering had been relieved the deficiency was very small. It was little to pay compared with the good that had been accomplished. As a matter of pure benevolence, therefore apart from religion the kindly physician was satisfied with the results.

From a commercial, professional, standpoint, of course, nothing could have been more unsatisfactory. Dr. Salmans was paid as a missionary the poor remuneration that missionaries usually get, and this he earned by his preaching and pastoral labor. To this he added the labors of a physician with a large practice without remuneration of any kind. He thus vastly increased his work without increasing his private resources. Well, missionaries do not enter the work with any idea of making a fortune. From a worldly standpoint it is a poor profession. Such rewards as there are in it are not paid in worldly currency, but the missionary counts them as beyond price. So Dr. Salmans was not disappointed by the result. He had made no money for himself nor for anyone else by his effort, but he had not expected to make any. He hoped, however, that his medical work would afford him opportunities of propagating the Gospel, which was his chief business, to which all else was subsidiary, and in this there was no room for disappointment but rather for joy and gratitude. Over 3,000 persons had heard the Gospel, many of them for the first time, and a large number of hopeful inquirers were seeking Christ. In addition to this, the prejudices of the people against the foreign preacher were disarmed when they saw his usefulness as a physician.

During the following year Dr. Salmans had the assistance of two other medical missionaries—Drs. Hyde and Cartwright, and the number of patients sprang up to 6,634. Many of these were critical cases and 441 involved surgical operations. The amount received in fees was $3,011, which was an average of less than half a dollar for each patient, though, of course, many patients gladly and gratefully paid many times that amount, while as before a large number were treated gratuitously. Altogether the cost of the medicines and apparatus exceeded the receipts by a thousand dollars. The loss was in part made up by the generosity of Bishop J. P. Newman, who visited the city and was so delighted with the work which he personally witnessed, that he delivered his famous lecture on his travels and turned the entire proceeds into the treasury. Mainly through the Bishop's influence, too, permission was obtained for the erection of a medical dispensary and hospital on the large section of eligible land belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Mission, providing Dr. Salmans could raise sufficient money to defray the cost of building. The project had been very close to his heart for some time and, when he learned that there would be no need to pay for a site, he took new courage and began to collect funds for the purpose.

REV. LEVI B. SALMANS, M.D.—ENTRANCE TO THE DISPENSARY AT GUANAJUATA, MEXICO.

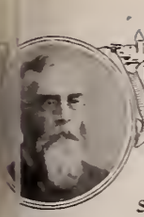
From friends in Guanajuata and in the United States the sum of $1,103 was received in a short time, and with this as a nucleus to which additions were made from time to time, the work commenced. It has been interrupted from various causes, and is not yet fully completed. But the work of medical service has never halted. Its effects are felt everywhere. There is one district or neighborhood of the city where years ago it was not safe for any Protestant missionary to go, but now, as Dr. Salmans said recently, neither Dr. Salmans himself can get through the section because of grateful patients who insist on forcing hospitality on the visitors whenever they appear on the streets.

The gain to missionary work has been enormous. The mission has gained membership from the people who have benefited under the medical treatment of Dr. Salmans and his helpers, have come to hear him preach and have found the truth. But indirectly the advantages have been much greater. Seed has been sown beside the beds of the sick and in the hospitals the people that is fast ripening to harvest. All this has been accomplished through the devotion and consecration of a man who has willingly doubled his labors without adding to the burdens of the Home Board. Dr. Salmans merits the hearty appreciation and the sincere gratitude of the heads of his church, which he has served with rare energy and fidelity.

He is now anxious to bring his work of a hospital and dispensary into complete and effective work. During a recent visit to New York he said that the sum of $2,000 would suffice to finish the building and furnish the beds and apparatus. One half of this amount he believes he can secure from people who have seen the work, and the good it is accomplishing. The other half he looks to Christian people who are interested in extending a knowledge of Christ in the dark places of the earth. The hospital contains twenty rooms, of which three are large wards, one an isolation room for infectious diseases. All the rooms are occupied, but could be kalsomined and fitted up. The work could be completed and the hospital furnished in from six months to a year if money were in hand. It appears, however, that the Board of Missions does not feel justified, in its present circumstances, in advancing the two thousand dollars that is needed. Any funds that our readers may be willing to give for this purpose may be sent to this office and will be forwarded to Dr. Salmans.

Y. M. C. A. in the Klondike.

A new departure is about to be made in the work of the Young Men's Christian Association. Alaska is to be opened up to the movement. Mr. W. A. Reid, secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at Kalamazoo, Mich., and Mr. Dwight H. Robinson sail, June 15th, via St. Michael's for Dawson City direct. They are experienced men and will proceed at once to organize the Young Men's Christian Association at that point. They will take in such supplies as are necessary for an all-round work for young men, viz.: Christian literature and supplies, musical instruments of various kinds, stereopticon, phonograph, besides modern athletic appliances, etc. They will secure a building and fit it out as a reading room and for the holding of Gospel services, Bible classes and social gatherings to counteract the influence of the saloons and gambling dens. The work is already the assurance of a hearty welcome in the field, and the project is a very commendable one. Mr. Reid and Mr. Robinson are consecrated Christian young men, and their experience in Association work specially fits them for this movement.



IN JERUSALEM OF TO-DAY

BY HON. SELAH MERRILL D.D. LL.D

PECULIAR INDUSTRIES OF PALESTINE.

Salt Gathering at the Dead Sea—Whitewashing the Tombs—Workers in Stone—Fuel Gatherers and Forests.

THE phrase "earning a livelihood" means one thing to a wealthy citizen of America, and quite another thing to a poor peasant of the Holy Land. With fifty thousand dollars annual income the one may claim that he is pinched financially and can hardly make his ends meet, while with a total income of fifty dollars a year the other may count himself rich. To watch the poor man's long-drawn-out struggle for existence is often a very painful matter. It is always interesting, for with the poor more than with the rich, we see how wonderfully ingenious the human mind is in discovering ways for keeping body and soul together. Under the above heading I have grouped a few incidents of Palestine which I believe will be somewhat new to my readers, and which, although briefly described, may nevertheless enhance the interest in that wonderful and sacred land.

LOAD OF STONE.

YOUNG TREES CUT UP BY THE ROOTS.

Palestine possesses many remarkable features in the world. Every Bible reader knows as the Dead Sea. The water of this lake contains twenty-five per cent. of salt. Moreover, at the Southern corner of the Dead Sea there is a mountain six miles long, three quarters of a mile wide, and several hundred feet high, which is chiefly composed of rock salt. On the sides of this mountain where fissures have collected, the salt masses stand like an iceberg in the sunlight. The name of the mountain is the Jebel Usdom or Mountain of Sodom. In this mountain and sea there is a mine of wealth which is awaiting the advent of capital and skill to yield up its riches.

"But," it is asked, "what prevents this mine from being worked at once for the good of the world and the enrichment of Palestine?" The answer is this, that the Turkish government stands in the way. It will not allow this, nor any other of the resources of the country to be developed. I like to think that it is being providentially reserved for better times, to be a blessing to later generations. At present salt is a government monopoly and if persons are detected in getting the salt from the Dead Sea they are punished. Still, considerable amounts are collected every year and disposed of in different parts of the country. During the six or seven hot, dry months of summer the stones and drift wood on the shores of the Dead Sea become thickly encrusted with salt, so as to give the appearance of there having been a light fall of snow. The effect on the eye is peculiar—the silvery clearness of the water of the lake, the belt of pure white sticks and stones on the shore, and the wild masses of barren mountain above.

LIME BROUGHT TO MARKET ON CAMELS.

Several times I have found men getting salt at the north end of the Dead Sea, and when they saw us approaching in the distance they ran away and hid themselves. When they discovered that we were not natives or government officers, they gradually came out of their hiding places and returned to their work. During my two visits to the south end of the Dead Sea, a portion of the country almost never visited by travelers, I secured several pictures of these salt gatherers while at their work. On the dry, hard earth they had deposited the salt they had collected by simply scraping it up with their hands, in little piles two or three feet high, which looked in the distance like hillocks of snow. In that terribly hot region clothing is not necessary for the natives, and some of the men who with their guns were guarding the salt were absolutely destitute of clothing. This illegal salt gathering on the shores of the Dead Sea I regard as one of the interesting and peculiar industries of the Holy Land.

An industry, or more properly an occupation, of which we in America know nothing, is that of whitewashing tombs. The persons engaged in this business I shall term the "Whitewashing Brigade." My readers will recall what is said in Matt. 23:27, about "whited sepulchres." When one first enters a Turkish cemetery he remarks at once on the fact that many of the tombs or structures of stone built over the graves have been whitewashed. The Jews are in the habit of doing this as well as the Mohammedans. This ought to be done every year because the color washes off during the winter rains.

One of the oldest industries of Palestine is that of working in stone. Remains of ancient quarries are found all over the country. About Jerusalem, at points near and remote, we find large piles of stone chippings where workmen cut out blocks for temple, palace or common houses in ancient times. Among the ruins there are still in position massive stones such as must have required machinery of some sort to move them. Since the Roman period in that country stones have not been used in building that could not readily be carried on the backs of camels. To put burdens of stone upon the backs of animals, upon flesh that can feel and suffer pain seems cruel, but all the stones that for centuries have been used for building have been transported in this manner from the quarries to the places required. This is the practice to-day and not infrequently the poor beasts have their limbs broken or their backs crushed by falling stones; but the business is always a good one, and new levies of camels are made to take the places of those that have been killed or ruined. Our illustration shows how a block of stone, five, six or more feet in length is balanced on the back of a camel so that it may be taken to market. Not only is this severe work for animals but for men as well, since these stones, after they have been dropped near where the building is going on, have to be carried on men's backs to the walls where workmen are laying them in mortar. All blocks weighing from two hundred to six hundred pounds are carried in this manner. The limestone of the Judean hills is of different degrees of hardness, from that which can easily be carved with a knife up to the firmest, finest marble.

PORTERS CARRYING STONES.

In one of our illustrations we see a man leading several camels that are loaded with bundles of long sticks, and are curious to know what they are for. He has come from some distant hillside or mountain, and is bringing these sticks to market for fuel. The question of forests in Palestine is one of great general interest, but to its inhabitants the question of fuel is one of great vital importance. The outlook for the future is not bright. There is no coal, the forests have disappeared, and as the supply of fuel diminishes year by year, the price increases accordingly. In large sections of the country dung is used for this purpose, but where people depend upon wood and charcoal they have learned to reduce their wants to almost nothing. Were the government to take any pains in this direction, large sections of Palestine that are not needed for agricultural purposes, could in fifty years be covered with forests. Given more forests, there would be more moisture. There is reason to believe that in ancient times the country was well wooded, and in the Gilead hills some fine forests are still left standing, simply because they are out of the way of vandals. Many of the hills of Palestine are covered with small bushes four or five feet high, and these are constantly being cut off and brought to market by the camel-load, and the thirty or forty sticks in each load represent as many young trees slaughtered. Fuel is brought to market on camels, donkeys, and on the backs of women. To American eyes it is always a painful sight to see women barefoot and with very thin clothing, who have slight limbs and do not look overstrong, staggering under loads of fuel, consisting of bushes and small sticks, which they have gathered at a great distance, hoping to earn a few cents, perhaps five or ten, by its sale. Such a picture illustrates the poverty of the people, and, incidentally, the wretched character of the government.

SELAH MERRILL.

LIME GATHERERS IN THE VALLEYS.

GATHERING SALT BY THE DEAD SEA'S SHORES.

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

Syrian House-Wives.

The Syrian Home—The Moslem and the Christian as Wife and Mother.

TRAVELERS, writing from Syria, have said that the Christian woman could be distinguished from the Moslem by the appearance of her dress, her home and her children. The home of the Syrian peasant is painfully squalid. Even in the harems of the rich, housekeeping is often such as would greatly vex the soul of the average American housewife. The Moslem home, rich or poor, smells of coffee and tobacco. In the one living-room of the peasant wife and mother, perhaps all the family cooking, eating and sleeping is done; and windows are conspicuous by their absence. In the centre of this room stands "the inevitable brazier, and the unavoidable coffee steams upon it." Tobacco is usually taken in the form of cigarettes, which they roll for themselves and guests. The day is passed in sipping, smoking and gossiping. Life is without educational interests and intellectual aspirations, or the homely, womanly industries of the civilized woman, whose activities develop herself while they clothe her household, and make the atmosphere of her dwelling a means of grace to inhabitant or guest. A water-bottle, a bowl in which to knead bread or prepare vegetables, a cruse of oil, a few crude cooking utensils, constitute the average equipment of Syrian housekeeping. Soiled matting covers the floor; beds and other furniture are not necessities.

The Syrian baby is bound fast and painfully in a cradle until old enough to crawl, when he is "tossed upon the bosom of Mother Earth and left to hustle for himself." His mother pets him when in a good humor; when in an ill humor, beats him and curses the day he was born; when he is grown, becomes his slave and tyranizes over his wives. It is not to be expected that these poor women should be competent wives and mothers. Married while children, they know nothing of sewing, cooking or other womanly accomplishments, and have no appreciation of the sacred responsibilities of motherhood. When, however, the Syrian girl has been under missionary training, even if it be but the two short years between ten and twelve she will have been taught something about sewing and keeping house. Many of these girls, after marriage, become missionaries in the truest sense in their own homes, and other homes also, quietly and naturally teaching their less fortunate sisters how to make this garment or that, or how to prepare this or that article of wholesome food.

SYRIAN PEASANT WOMEN PREPARING A MEAL.

A Laborious Cat.

The following story is told of an enterprising cat and the patient king, mistress who has trained him:

A lady in California has a cat and an olive orchard. She has taught the cat to pick up the olives that fall from the trees, and put them in a basket. The basket is put under a tree, and Bildad—that is the cat's name—is called. He sets to work at once, and acts as if he enjoyed picking up the nuts, which he does with his mouth. When the basket is full, he goes in and pulls his mistress' apron to let her know she must come and get the basket before the nuts are stolen. The second thing that Bildad has been taught to do is to churn. The churn is a small one, and the treadle light. At the side of the churn a small bell is hung. Bildad has learned when the butter is ready by the sound in the churn. When he thinks the butter is ready he stops churning and rings the bell. Bildad seems to enjoy the churning, so perhaps his natural industry is his enjoyment.

The Swallows of France.

The Zoological Society of Paris, says a foreign exchange, has lately been occupying itself with the fact that, owing to the enormous captures of swallows, arriving on their vernal migration, in the district of the Bouches-du-Rhone, at the end of March, to supply the demands for swallows' wings for cheap millinery purposes, insect pests threaten to increase appallingly, and in ten years' time, it is said, France will have no swallows, except the stuffed ones in the museums. For several years the number of these birds returning in spring has notably diminished, and the localities in which they had built in colonies from time immemorial are many of them now completely deserted.

A Rose and a Moral.

Here is a pretty story which tells how one of our favorite roses got its name:

The Empress Eugenie gave the name "Marechal Niel" to the lovely rose which is so called. When General Niel returned from the field of Solferino, where he had signally distinguished himself, a poor man presented him a basket of lovely yellow roses. To perpetuate their beauty, the General had a cutting struck from one of the blooms, and when a rose tree had grown from this, he presented it to the Empress Eugenie. She was delighted with the dainty gift, but was much surprised to learn that the rose was known by no distinctive name. "Ah," she said, "I will give it a name; and it shall be the Marechal Niel." Thus the Empress achieved two ends—named the flower and acquainted the General with the fact that he had been raised to the coveted office of marshal of France.

The sight of this lovely flower must recall to the lonely widow of the last Napoleon one of the pleasantest incidents of her reign, and we are reminded that it is the kind deed we do to others, whose memory blesses when fame and fortune perish. The lilies and violets of France, emblems of kingdom and empire, must bring bitter thoughts to the desolate ex-queen, while the Marechal Neil will remind her that she was kind when opportunity was given.

Ministering Children.

In all the world movements are being instituted for the purpose of teaching children to help children. In London, there is a society known as "The Children's Salon," which has raised, since its organization, seven years ago, $25,000 for charitable purposes. A large sum was realized at their last entertainment, which was held in Westminster Town Hall. Competitions in music, recitations, drawing, etc., occupied the forenoon, and the evening was given over to awards of merit and childish merry-making. The League of Ministering Children is another and a very prominent organization in charitable work; royal children are members.

A Novel Occupation.

There is a young lady in Ohio, Miss Webb, who makes a very efficient servant of the United States, although just out of her teens. She is a mail-carrier, having personally conducted for two years her duties as contractor on mail route No. 31,277, which takes in five thriving towns. Every day, except Sunday, she drives thirty-two miles, thus making 192 miles a week. At the same time that she carries the mail for four post offices, she acts as buyer for four stores in the villages, and conveys passengers back and forth. Miss Webb enjoys her work, makes a good living out of it, and incidentally has opportunities of doing missionary work in the form of many little kindnesses.

The Eagle and the Swallow's Nest.

At Lilford, England, a swallow chose a curious site for its nest: it was inside the wooden pent-house roofing of an aviary, quite near to a perch which was occupied by a white-tailed eagle. The parent swallows passed constantly in and out through the wire-netting in front of the cage, and reared their five young birds without any notice apparently being taken of them by the great bird.

A Song of Childhood.

A song of childhood! Raise the artless numbers
That rhyme with brooks and flowers and busy birds;
With merry romps, with angel-guarded slumbers,
With joy that laughs at inexpressive words.

C. H. Crandall, in The Chords of Life.

THE CHILDREN'S CRY.

THE children droop in the crowded street,
They wither like fading flowers;
Fiercer grows the summer heat,
Longer the noonday hours.

And little ones perish for lack of air,
They cry with fever and pain—
Dear God! the world is wide and fair,
We'll make them well again.

We'll take them where fresh breezes blow,
Through noontide, night and dawn.
And where sweet flowers and grasses grow
On hillsides, at Mont-Lawn.

M. A.

"Will the Country Open"

MONT-LAWN will soon w many happy little guests. F blooming on the hillside birds singing in the woods seem for our children's coming, and our will be glad to know that the child soon be at their merry play, as mers past. Over four hundred tions have already been entered offices of THE CHRISTIAN HER behalf of children needing a s outing. As the days become h close, faithful Sunday School t and kind-hearted city missionarie continually to the pleading questio children who want to know "if the will open this summer?" and b them the outing which was so de an experience last of which they onl through the descri more fortunate c upon whose lips count sounds like tale of impossibl Mothers with ma
dren and with sick already stifling in t air of tenement he gin to wonder Christian hearts an will help their little the breath of fres
which often means ing of a life.

Below is an extr a letter that will our readers, as illu the character of t work in which operate with us.
such letters are daily from devote ers and missionar carry on their he consciences the b
the little childre poor.

I wish to recom
children of two ver but unfortunate whom I have trie within the past ye first are the childr widow, whose pov caused by the lon and death of the and father. It is a struggle with her to wolf from the door other family, the fat of work; there ar little ones, the youn months old. The m fit physically for w all kinds of sewing for private fan factories. I do wish you would do s for these people by sending the child for a change of air. The children ne

People in cool country place large airy city homes can hardly ate the suffering which the summe to the unhappy poor who liv crowded tenement districts of N
City, where the fetid, sweltering a so much sickness and death. Al the narrow, closely-built streets a ly populated alleys the heat is s evil odors abound, the children d perish for air, and to many the gif days' outing is the gift of life.
is a gain in health and strength.

Donations of clothing for child five to twelve, should be sent p
the Matron of THE CHRISTIAN H
Children's Home, Nyack, N. children who come to us are of in need of clothing. Contribu money for the Home, sent to th this paper, will be promptly ackno
Since last week the following su been received:

Prev. ack	$118 75	K A. Greenwi
A little girl on her sixth birthday, Evanston	3 00	I R R Taple
		Mrs. I. F Farl
W W Fitch	3 00	Jas Ferguson
		Total

Jack Tars Loved Him.

Chaplain John M. Wood, of the Brooklyn Navy-Yard—A Life Spent for Christ.

THERE are few men connected with the United States Navy who have not, at some time, heard of John M. Wood, the zealous Christian man of the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, who died suddenly of hemorrhage of the lungs at his home in Brooklyn, a few days ago. Chaplain Wood was a most interesting character in mission work, and was the first layman the American Sea-man's Friend Society ever placed in charge of a navy-yard or work of importance He was eminently successful and saved multitudes of seafaring men to the service. One of his converts perished in the explosion on the Maine in Havana harbor. Chaplain Wood started a Christian Endeavor Society on board of each vessel of the white squadron, and they did some great good in the various harbors of the world.

THE LATE CHAPLAIN JOHN M. WOOD.

Mr. Wood came into the old Jerry McAuley Water Street Mission on October 7th, 1890. He was crazed with drink, and was on his way to the East River to end his unhappy life. He had been in the United States Navy for thirteen years and had finally been discharged. Across his discharge papers these words were written: "Discharged for Chronic Alcoholism." He had been all around the world wherever a war vessel could stop, and had been "drunk in every seaport on the globe." He had been paid off, received some $400, and had come over to New York for a wild debauch. Fortunately his steps were directed to the mission. At the corner of the street he heard the notes of a Gospel song issuing from the mission, and he remembered that his sainted mother used to sing the same tune while he was a happy boy:

There is a fountain filled with blood,
Drawn from Immanuel's veins,
And sinners plunged beneath that flood,
Lose all their guilty stains.

He came in and took a seat in the rear of the hall. When the invitation was given he came tremblingly up to the "Mercy Seat," and there he poured out his sorrows and obtained relief in salvation. Shortly afterward, brother Wood went back to the Navy Yard to tell the good news to his companions. He began to hold meetings on board the ships when they lay in the harbor. Subsequently he received a call to become a chaplain in the Navy Yard.

Mr. Wood married an excellent Christian woman, who aided him greatly in his work in the Navy Yard meetings. His wife and one child survive him. In one of his testimonies at the Water Street Mission, speaking of his first visit to the Mission, he said: "It was the first time in twenty years I had been in the house of God but as I listened to the wonderful testimonies of the redeemed men, God's love and mercy pierced my heart. And when the invitation was given to sinners, my trembling arm was uplifted, and I then met Jesus of Nazareth who has been my guide ever since. The rags have disappeared, the chains that bound me have been broken, the remorse and awful thirst for liquor, and all the vile, sinful passions of my nature have been buried in the sea of God's forgetfulness. I have not wanted a drink since that night, and there is not money enough in America to induce me to, and I am bound to fight the accursed stuff that robbed me of a home, of luxury and a son's patrimony, driving my poor gray-haired old mother in sorrow to the grave, made me a homeless outcast, a bundle of rags and vermin, a bloated, sin-disfigured, human shipwreck."

Chaplain Wood's funeral was held in the Central Baptist Church, New York City, and was attended by a large company of sailors from the Navy Yard and many loving friends.

BOYS IN BLUE DELIGHTED.

Many of them Greatly Pleased at Receiving "The Christian Herald" in Camp.

FROM a number of the soldiers now at the military camps in Tampa and Chickamauga and elsewhere, letters have come expressing pleasure at the receipt of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, for which subscriptions have been made in their behalf by friends direct through this journal. One volunteer writes:

I don't know to which of my acquaintances at home I am indebted for this weekly visit of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, but my thanks will be sure to reach the right one if you will only publish this line. It is the best paper that could be sent to a soldier in camp. Many a restful hour it gives me, and I always feel the better for having read it. The boys in camp are by no means given to serious thinking, and a soldier's life, anyway, is one that hardly permits him to think of religion. There are lots of company with which one can put in his time to anything but good advantage, when not at drill or sentry duty, and I am afraid that, in view of the serious task before us, we give all too little heed to sacred things. Here is where a wholesome inspiring paper like THE CHRISTIAN HERALD comes in, like a blessed influence, to change the current of a soldier's thoughts. I only wish every man in camp could have a copy regularly. He would be a better man, and possibly a better soldier for it.

Others write in the same vein. It was for the purpose of carrying out as far as possible this plan of giving a fresh weekly Christian paper to the soldiers, wherever they may happen to be, that we have established a special rate of 25 cents for three months' subscription, and one dollar for a year's subscription, in order that our readers in any State in the Union may subscribe in behalf of their friends or acquaintances in the army. For one dollar four of our boys in blue may be made happy by receiving the paper regularly for three months. There are many of our friends who would be glad to be kept in constant remembrance by dear ones at the front, and there can be no better way than this of reminding the soldier of their interest in his welfare. Addresses will be changed as often as necessary. A large number of readers have already taken advantage of this opportunity, and THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is now being sent regularly in every case to the soldiers in camp. Subscribers, in forwarding money for this purpose, may either send us the name or names to whom they wish the paper to be sent, or, if they should prefer, we will apply any sum forwarded to us for this purpose to sending the paper to soldiers who would otherwise be without it altogether.

The following sums have been received during the week for the purpose of supplying THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to our soldiers in camp:

Prev ack	$185 84
Abbott, Mrs M F	1 00
Abbott, Mrs N G	50
Anderson, Mrs E A	1 00
Bartholomew, A G	2 00
Boothby, Mrs S M	1 00
Brown, Mrs E	1 00
Brown, W J	2 00
Bnrt, Lncy	1 00
Bntler, D W	1 00
Bntler, J F	5 00
Chase, H G	1 00
Colburn, Mrs E	25
Colburn, Mrs W	1 00
Collins, Mrs C E	1 00
Cram, Abbie M	1 00
Dean, Emma	1 00
Dond, Mrs A A	25
Dyke, Mrs J	2 00
Ellis, Mrs J	25
Fenner, Mrs A	1 00
Fentsman, Jos	50
Fostlehe, H J	5 00
Francis, Mrs A	1 00
Fuller, Mrs A F	25
Gardner, S C	1 00
George, Mrs E	1 00
Germann, Christian	1 00
Gilson, Annie S	25
Gordon, S P	1 00
Greamha, Miss N	25
Greenongh, Lizzie L	1 00
Grey, Alex	25
Hadley, A M	25
Hayes, Mrs O	25
Haywood, Miss E	1 00
Hedges, Ettie C	1 00
Herron, Mrs S W	1 00
Hicks, J	5 25
Hnddleston G W	25
Hnnter, C C	25
Johns, Emma	1 00
Kirkwood, Mrs W B	1 00
Knndson, Hans	25
Little, Mary A	1 00
McNeil, Miss	25
Mallory, Mrs C B	1 00
Maxon, Mrs C F	25
Merriam, J E	1 00
Miller, Mrs Lottie	1 00
Moore, Mrs M I	1 00
Mutschler, Mrs Martha	1 00
W F H and L Nobes	1 00
Olmsted, Miss Nellie	25
Parker, Mrs Ella	1 00
Plnmmer, Mrs G H	1 00
Pond, Mrs N F W	5 00
Rockfellow, Mrs V S	1 00
Rouble, Mrs Aaron	25
Ronse, Mark B	1 00
Rnssell, Pauline	50
Schroeder & Tubbs	2 00
Simonds, Miss S A	1 00
Smith, Ellen	25
Smith, Mrs J F	25
Smith, Joseph M	1 00
Spencer, F M	50
Stephens, Miss M F	1 00
Stites, Benj	1 00
Stone, Mrs Z	2 00
Straight, C I	1 00
Swartz, Josie	26
Ulmer, S J	1 00
Ulrich, Aug	1 00
Vawter, Mrs L K	5 00
Walker, G M	2 00
Warren, Mrs F	25
Weed, Mrs R M	1 00
Weeks, Mrs	1 00
Welles, Mary E	1 00
Wheelock, H L	50
White, Mrs H	1 00
Wilfong, Mrs A	25
Wilson, Fannie C	50
Winans, Mrs J S	1 00
Wood, M A	2 00
A S W, Washington	1 00
A W, Senoia	1 00
E E H, Whitlock	1 00
F I B, Hogan	50
M R B, Portsmouth	3 00
M W B, Kennett Sq	1 00
Mrs O K W, Raynham	1 00
R C T, Fishermans Bay	25
W A C, Providence	2 00
——, Elkhart	25
——, Parsons Sta	25
I H N, Bean	2 00
Reader, Brownsville	1 00
Friend, Ashtabula	50
" Chicago	25
" M H E, La Grange	1 00
Dorcas Soc of King's Daughter's, Sniffern,	25
Helpless Invali, Burlingame, Kans	1 00
Mother and daughter Chanute, Kans	1 50
Widow's Mite, Malcom, Iowa	1 00
A Friend of the Soldiers, Orwell, Vt	1 00
A Str in Christ Rolla	1 00
Total, $301 10

The Hero of the "Merrimac."

Greensboro, Ala., the birthplace of the dauntless commander of the dauntless six who sunk the Merrimac, has asked the government to place her famous son in command of the Alabama. Richmond Pearson Hobson was born July 15, 1870. His parents are Judge James M. and Mrs. Sallie Pearson Hobson. When his father, walking on the streets of Greensboro, received the first news of his son's heroism, he turned pale and said: "I always knew Rich would do something like that if he got a chance." His mother, when told, said: "When the war opened, I committed my boy to God. I wrote him to do his duty, but prayed that he would refrain from unnecessary rashness." When serving as midshipman at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, his moral courage was tried once when his classmates ostracised him, because he reported a breach of discipline while acting as cadet captain of a gun crew. He carried himself with such dignity that on his graduation day a committee of his classmates waited upon him to express their good fellowship. He quietly declined to accept their advances collectively, but expressed himself as willing to meet them on the day after his graduation on terms of good friendship.

SWEET THOUGHTS OF THEE.

My meditation of him shall be sweet. Ps. 104:34.

I THINK of thee, dear Saviour, at the dawning of the day,
When all the earth is waking and the gloaming fades away.
Thy glory stirs my soul like zephyrs on the standing wheat.
At dawning of the morning, Lord, my thoughts of thee are sweet.

I think of thee at noonday when the world is bathed in light,
And all of God's creation drink the sunbeams with delight;
The flowers lift their crimson cups for heaven's sunny heat;
At floodtide of the sunshine, Lord, my thoughts of thee are sweet.

I think of thee at evening when the shadows longer grow;
I think of how they fell upon my Saviour long ago;
How angels from the Father came with light and help complete;
When shadows darkly gather, Lord, my thoughts of thee are sweet.

Noank, Conn. —W. C. MARTIN.

United States Government Reports show Royal Baking Powder to be stronger, purer and better than any other

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

THIS AUTOGRAPH IS NEVER ON A POOR SHADE-ROLLER AND NEVER ABSENT FROM A GOOD ONE.

Stewart Hartshorn GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

Did Much Good.

Nervousness Cured, Appetite Restored and Kidney Difficulty Relieved.

"I felt very weak and my appetite was poor. I took a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon felt better. It has done me more good than any other medicine I have ever taken. My father had been troubled with nervousness and a kidney difficulty, and was not able to do a day's work for several months. He made up his mind to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and he took four bottles. He was soon able to work, and his health has been greatly improved." JOSEPHINE HARMON, Levant, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Hood's Pills are the favorite family cathartic. Price 25c.

Tartarlithine in Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., writes: "Your Tartarlithine has proved a wonderful weapon for rheumatism. I have used a very great quantity of it in the last three or four months and I have never seen anything like it. I had one case who had tried all of the alkaline lithiates, and everything else. He has had rheumatism all his life, and nothing completely stopped all the manifestations of the disease like Tartarlithine, which did completely, with one bottle.

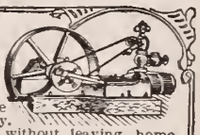
I have another old man, who travels much on the road peddling, who has been lame with rheumatism for five years, and one bottle cured all lameness, and he says he has not felt as well in five years as now. These are only the two worst cases of many that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St., N. Y.

SOLE AGENTS FOR

The Tartarlithine Co.

MONEY



is not more surely a defence against poverty than technical knowledge that can always be converted into money. You can learn now without leaving home. Success guaranteed. Best text books free.

STEAM ENGINEERING

Bridge, Electrical or Civil Engineering; Mathematics; Chemistry; Mining; Architectural or Mechanical Drawing; Surveying; Plumbing; Architecture; Metal Pattern Drafting; Prospecting; Book-keeping; Shorthand; English Branches

TAUGHT BY MAIL

Circular free. State subject you wish to study. Estab. 1891. 45,000 students and graduates. The International Correspondence Schools, Box 861 Scranton, Pa.

$2.00 a Month

Better than Ever.

Oberlin College

The College, the Theological Seminary, the Conservatory of Music, the Academy. Sixty-sixth year begins Sept. 21. Full information from the treasurer.

JAMES R. SEVERANCE, Oberlin, Ohio.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N. Y.

Architects, Builders of Auditoriums

We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.

Sent for 5c. postage.

Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

HELPFUL ANECDOTES

By Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D.D.

Destiny Hanging on Humble Honesty.

THE world is such a network of influences that the humblest human worker cannot be regarded as unimportant. The life of the richest, or most powerful citizen in the land may depend at any moment on the fidelity with which some unknown worker has performed his duty.

The P. & O. steamer, Kaiser-i-Hind, was nearly lost in a typhoon off the Paracels recently. Perhaps no steamer ever lived through a more terrific storm. She was often in great danger. Huge seas swept the quarter-deck aft, gutting the cabins and flooding the saloon. The bridge was wrecked, navigation and steering having to be done from the hurricane-deck. All the boats, one after another, were carried away, many of the davits being snapped off like carrots. Her salvation depended on everything going right in the engine-room. The smallest breakdown in the engines would have meant certain destruction. A flaw in the shaft, a rotten nut even, the least imperfection due to dishonest work, and there would have been another disaster to record, a disaster as appalling as the wreck of the Bokhara, a disaster like the loss of the Aden—unlike these only in that there would have been no survivor to tell the tale.

Coming Into the Harbor.

Human life is often compared to a voyage. It is perhaps as apt a figure as could be used. Strong character can only be built up through battling with the waves. It is a glorious thing to make the harbor of a successful life in the teeth of the gale.

A splendid sight was witnessed from the Golden Gate, off San Francisco, not long since. There had been a great storm outside, and beginning seven miles off shore the white-caps could be seen rushing shoreward, and by the time they reached the Seal Rocks they had grown into overwhelming billows that rose fully thirty feet above the largest rocks and dashed their spray to the second balcony of the Cliff House. Enormous breakers would wash over the highest Seal Rock, and submerge the herd of seals that had climbed to the topmost point for protection against the heavy waves. Even the birds were driven inland, finding no foothold on the rocks, and being unable to rest upon the water even inside the little channel between the shore and the home of the seals. But despite the war of the elements, the white sails of ships and trailing smoke of steamers came out of the misty distance, and steadily battled toward the entrance to the harbor. At first it was difficult to distinguish between white-capped waves and glistening sail, but as the vessels came in with all canvas set, they presented such pictures as are never seen on painter's walls, for the lights and shades, the colors and tones, the tints and multichromes, were such as no human mind could invent, and no mortal hand could arrange.

Hold Fast to Thy Crown.

We are urged in the New Testament to let no one take our crown, and every sincere disciple of Christ's may make sure of a crown of life that shall never fade away. Ours is an imperishable crown and we are not put in the position of some of the crown-chasers of the old world.

The young Duc d'Orleans is said never to miss a chance to bring his name before the French people. After his marriage a year ago he held an imitation royal court in Brussels. On that occasion his wife, formerly Marie Dorothea, Arch Duchess of Austria, wore a jeweled crown presented by the "women of France." In reality it represented the tributes of certain royalist families of the Faubourg St. Germain." After the Brussels function the crown was placed on exhibition in the window of a Parisian jeweler who made it. The young candidate for the throne has now conceived another advertising scheme. He has had existing royal sculptor make a set of busts of himself and cheap reproductions of them are on sale in the store windows in Paris. And so the farce goes on to the amusement of republican France.

Over-Reaching Greed.

Greed among human beings often overreaches itself and falls of its object as certainly as among lumber creatures.

A young naturalist living in Rockland, Maine, tells of an incident he witnessed last summer, which shows the intelligence of our feathered friends, the birds. Four young swallows were sitting on a fence. Father swallow was darting around in the air catching flies for them, and every few minutes he would come and feed them with a juicy fly, beginning at the right hand bird, which we will call No. 1, and continue on to the next, feeding each bird and departing to catch more. The little birds looked as much alike as four peas, and the young man could not distinguish one from another. But the mother bird could. While she was pursuing flies, No. 4 climbed over No. 3, thus making himself the third in rank, evidently expecting his turn would come sooner. But the scheme did not work, for when his mother came back with more flies she skipped this wily youngster—he got none; the next time he got fed. Then he tried the trick again, jumping over one more and becoming No. 2, but again he failed, for the old bird fed the one whose place he had usurped.

The Fate of the Reckless.

It is an old saying that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread;" the result is usually disastrous to the fools. Many grasp at giddy ambitions only to be destroyed by their successes.

The Public Museum in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, has received as a present the dead body of a rare specimen of the South African baboon. The baboon was a pet brought from Germany by a professional gentleman of Milwaukee. It was a most intelligent animal but its overweening curiosity, and recklessness in investigating things, led to its death. It took a great interest in the incandescent electric lights which were out of its reach, and would sit and eye them sometimes for hours at a time. One night it sprang upon the chandelier and grabbed one of the globes in its mouth. It probably swallowed some of the glass for it was taken ill immediately afterwards and soon died.

The Gold of Common Life.

Common life is full of joy, and there is no profession or business or trade so utterly tame and commonplace but what the genuinely sincere and honest soul, whose mind and heart is receptive, cannot find and treasure up the true gold of happiness.

Sea-water has long been known to contain a small per cent. of gold and silver: one grain of gold and two of silver, to every ton of sea-water. Experiments have proven that this proportion exists in every part of the sea, as well in mid-ocean as at the mouths of the gold-laden Alaskan rivers. A Baptist clergyman, of New England, is said to have invented a machine which will save this gold in such quantities as to make it profitable mining. It is claimed that this machine will take the precious metal out of the sea-water, and that $r.500 in gold has been taken out of the ocean with his first machine. A stock company has been organized and contracts let in New York for the construction of one hundred of the machines.

The Humility of Greatness.

Humility belongs to true greatness. Science wins its way by humbly sitting at the feet of nature. Man becomes great by opening mind and heart with the simplicity of a child to win knowledge from all quarters.

Sir Arthur Sullivan has said of Charles Dickens that he was the most delightful companion. "Apart from his high spirits and engaging manner," the musician adds, "one might have two special reasons for this. On the one hand he was so unassuming he never obtruded his own work upon you." It is said that the great novelist would revel in enjoyment with younger men, and one would never have known from his conversation that he was an author, that is, he never discussed himself with his associates, but he gave himself up with the most natural sincerity of interest to the conversation of younger men. He would treat their feeblest banalities as if they were the choicest witticisms, or the ripe meditations of a matured judgment.

Enriching Others while Enriching Ourselves

The death of Sir Henry Bessemer calls attention to the business career of a man who succeeded in making an immense fortune, and yet did it in a way to bless everybody else in the civilized world.

As the result of long and laborious scientific investigation and experiment he came to the conclusion that it was possible to convert iron ore into steel, so that the latter material could be sold at a mere fraction of its, then, cost. The patents which he took out to cover his invention called him for a series of years to obtain a royalty from the use of his apparatus. The result has been to reduce the price of steel to about one-tenth of its old quotations. While the inventor made a great fortune, he benefited the world many hundreds of millions of dollars a year—a benefit which has been shared, both directly and indirectly, by every person in every civilized country on the earth. The career of this man is a signal illustration of the universal blessing of Christian character. Every person who finds salvation in Jesus Christ and enters into the joy of communion with God, not only enriches his own soul beyond comparison, but enriches everybody else that comes in contact with him. And every sinner whom he can lead into the same blessed experience becomes endowed with spiritual wealth, which also adds to the joy of the one who won him to Christ.

Children and Civics.

An instructive spectacle was recently witnessed by an interested audience at St. Christopher House, New York City, where Miss Pacal's elementary class in civics demonstrated effectively that they possessed a knowledge of their country's history and government, national, state and municipal, that many intelligent adults, who never possessed such opportunities as these children enjoy, might covet. Every little man and woman in the class carried a small United States flag, and it was very pretty to see this multitude of flags waving above heads, golden, brown and black, during the singing of patriotic songs. The class possesses a large and handsome edition of the Stars and Stripes, and when a manly little fellow planted it in front of them, the salute to the flag made by the class in unison was a picture of childish reverence for "Old Glory," too beautiful to be forgotten. The practical side of the matter is that East Side children are being trained to the duties of Christian citizenship, and that this work, which is being supported by the Lafayette Post, G. A. R., and inspired and influenced by the Women Councillors of the American Institute of Civics, is a national beneficence of exactly the right kind to do incalculable good.

Wine Stains Removed

"Wine stains on linen are speed fly removed by the sulphur fume of a burning match. Then was the resulting yellow spot with Fa ry Soap."

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rore

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Centur

Sold everywhere in three convenient siz for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, addre and one Fairy Soap wrapp to nearest office below, a we will mail you free a co of our booklet, "Fairy Tales," second ries, larger and handsomer than the fir and containing new stories and illust tions.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY, Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Bosto Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore

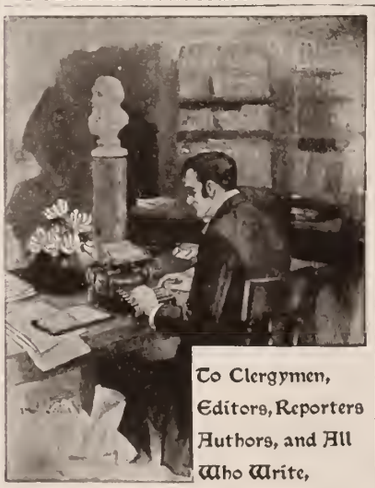
DENT'S TOOTHACHE C STOPS TOOTHACH INSTANTLY. The Only Perfect Remedy for To This is Not a Chewing Ask for DENT'S—Take Sold by all Druggists, or by m (A SWELL AFFAIR) C. S. DENT & CO., Detroit

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLIS AND SUN PASTE

"IN CAKES FOR GENERAL BLACKING APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A BRUSH"

SUN PASTE "FOR A QUICK AFTER-DINNER SHINE APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A CLO"

Morse Bros. Props. Canton, Mass., U.S.A.



To Clergymen, Editors, Reporters Authors, and All Who Write,

The Smith Premier Typewriter

Is an Invaluable Aid.

Easy and Rapid Composition.

Clean and Legible Manuscript. More Work and Less Labor. New Art Catalogue Free.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co., Syracuse, N. Y., U. S. A.

OVER 400,000 COPIES OF SACRED SONGS No 1 ALREADY SOLD.

$25 per 100, by Express; 30c. each, postpaid.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO. New York City and Chicago.

Farmers Break the Buggy Monop

It is claimed that for years buggy manuf have secured exorbitant prices for their go recently, through the combined assistance farmers of Iowa, Illinois and other States. ROEBUCK & Co., of Chicago, have got t of open buggies down to $16.50; Top $22.75; Top Surries, $43.75 and upwards. a are shipping them in immense numbers farmers in every State. They send an Buggy Catalogue free, postpaid, to any asks for it. This certainly is a big victory farmer, but a severe blow to the carriage turers and dealers.

$10 A DAY TO AGENT MURAT HALSTEAD'S GREAT WAR B "Our Country in War." All about armies, coast defences, Maine Disaster, Cuba, Our with Spain and relations with Foreign N Nearly 600 pages written since the Maine ter. Magnificent colored illustrations. making $10 to $30 per day. No experience nec Most liberal terms guaranteed. 20 days price low, freight paid. Handsome outfi Send 9 two cent stamps to pay postage. EDUCATIONAL UNION, 324 Dearborn St., CH

"How Uncle Sam Fight"

All about War, Army and Navy: Spain's Ar Navy; Rules of War-fare; Use of Torpedoes Air-Gun; Ships in Action; Harbor Defence Money, etc., etc. Retail, only $1.50. 100 illustra book everybody needs and wants. $200 00 selling 200 copies. Chance of a lifetime with One agent sold 46 copies in one day; anoth $10.00 in five hours. Freight paid, credit give tit free. Send 25c. for postage and packing. International News & Book Company, Baltim

20th Edition—Postpaid for 25 cents (or s

THE HUMAN HA Why it Falls Off, Turns Grey, and the Rem By Prof. HARLEY PARKER, F. R. A. S. 19, 18, LONG & CO., 1013 Arch St., Philade "Every one should read this little book."

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OTH SWEETER, M DUR ABLE, LOW GUARANTEED TELLO Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cinci

GLEANINGS FROM NEW BOOKS.

Our Nation's Defenders.*

It has never been the policy of the United States to maintain a large standing army. At the close of the Revolutionary War, when it might have been supposed that the army would have stood in high and grateful appreciation of the people, the popular jealousy and apprehension of the national power was absurdly intense. Congress refused to authorize the enlistment of two hundred men to garrison the frontier posts about to be surrendered by Great Britain. McMaster says: "The history of the army is the history of Rome, and the history of England were then ransacked for examples of the ills of a standing army." The policy of the general government was followed—only eighty men being retained to protect the public stores at Fort Pitt and West Point. The army is now composed by law to twenty-five thousand enlisted men. There are five regiments of artillery, of twelve batteries each; ten regiments of cavalry, of twelve troops each; twenty-five regiments of infantry, of twelve companies each. The enlisted men in the regiments of cavalry and two infantry are colored men.

The War Department maintains a bureau of information with a view to the collection of all the data necessary to the understanding and solution of every military problem. Arms, rations, transportation, topography and concentration of troops, the strength of the armament of the world are taken account of, not only as they relate to our forces and territory, but also as they relate to those of a possible enemy. An army and naval officer are attached to the embassies of the United States at the principal European capitals, for the purpose of observing and reporting things which the military department should know about—arms, or construction, or tactics.

The higher officers of the Army are chiefly graduates of the West Point Military Academy, though a door is open for the promotion of meritorious soldiers who, as non-commissioned officers, have made a good record and have passed an examination as to their qualifications; and now and then, when there happens to be an unusual number of vacancies, appointments are made of second lieutenant are made from civil life. The graduates of the Academy are assigned to vacant second lieutenancies, and, if there are not enough such vacancies, are borne on the rolls as additional second lieutenants until vacancies occur. The corps of cadets from the Academy is composed of one from each Congressional district, and one from each territory, one from the District of Columbia, and ten from the United States at large, and all save these ten must be residents of the districts or territories from which they purport to be appointed. They are all appointed by the President. Those from the Congressional districts and territories have by custom for many years been selected by the representative and the delegates in Congress. The cadets receive $540 a year.

The Army is small, in fact, and minute, when compared with any of the armies of the other great Powers, but under the operation of recent laws relating to enlistments, and the laws intended to protect the rights and promote the self-respect of the private soldier, and to relieve him from assignments to menial duties, the quality and esprit de corps of the enlisted men are very high, and the character and military skill of the officers are excellent.

There is no menace to the liberties of the people in our little army, and its trained and patriotic officers may again in the case of a great war, as in 1861, become the organizers and leaders of great armies; and, with the little army of trained men they now command, will within the constitution and the laws, during our longer years of peace be the efficient conservators of public order.

 Fr[om] This Country of Ours: by Benjamin [Harrison], ex-President of the United States. A [interesting] and instructive volume which [every] reader a better, broader, and deeper knowl[edge] of our government and its institutions, and [inspires] with patriotic zeal for good citizenship. [12]mo: cloth binding; price $1.50. Charles [Scribner's] Sons, New York, publishers.*

An Asthma Cure at Last.

It gives us great pleasure to announce the discovery of a positive cure for Asthma, in the wonderful Kola plant, a new botanic product found on the Kolla River, West Africa. The cures wrought by it in the worst cases are really marvelous. Sufferers of twenty to fifty years' standing have been entirely restored to health by the Kola Plant. Hundreds of others, many ministers of the gospel testify to its wonderful powers. Rev. J. L. Combs, of Parkersburg, West Va., was perhaps the worst case, but was cured by the Kola Plant after fifty years' suffering. Mr. Alfred C. Lewis, Washington, D. C., Editor of the Farmer's Magazine, gives similar testimony, as do many others. To prove to you beyond doubt its wonderful curative power, the Kola Importing Co., 1164 Broadway, New York, will send a large case of the Kola Compound free by mail to every reader of The Christian Herald who suffers from any form of Asthma. They only ask you to try it when cured yourself you will tell your friends about it. You should surely try it, as it costs you nothing.

Before the warm weather prostrates you, take Hood's Sarsaparilla which expels disease and makes the blood strong. Delays are dangerous. Merit wins and Hood's Sarsaparilla has the most merit.

We Will Send You

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST
FOUNDED A.D. 1728

Every week from now to January 1, 1899—the balance of this year—on receipt of only 25 cents (stamps or silver). The regular subscription price is $2.50 per year.

A WEEKLY MAGAZINE

Founded A. D. 1728 by Benjamin Franklin. 16 pages without an uninteresting paragraph. Equal in literary merit to the best of the monthly magazines, with strong short stories as a special feature.

HANDSOMELY ILLUSTRATED

By America's best Artists. Fiction with illustrations from life by Photography, and many Special Articles of timely interest, accompanied by views taken by THE POST'S staff of Photo-Reporters.

The Curtis Publishing Company
PHILADELPHIA

GAIL BORDEN EAGLE BRAND
CONDENSED MILK.

TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE FOR THE "EAGLE BRAND"
THOUSANDS OF MOTHERS TESTIFY TO ITS SUPERIORITY.
"INFANT HEALTH" SENT FREE. NEW YORK CONDENSED MILK CO. N.Y.

BLINDNESS PREVENTED

The Absorption Treatment a Success;
No Knife, No Risk.

Over 75,000 treatments given at our institution in 1897. Representative people from all parts of United States and Canada indorse this institution.

"Do not Wait to be Blind."

Two of the seven large buildings forming the Bemis Sanitarium.

Thousands Have Everything to Gain and Nothing to Lose. Pamphlet No. 4 Free, describing home treatment and institution, the largest and most successful in America.

THE BEMIS EYE SANITARIUM, Glens Falls, N. Y.

Soft as a Glove

Vici Leather Dressing not only polishes any kind of shoes but makes them soft. The more you use it the better your shoes will look and the longer they will wear. It is a medicine for leather—leather lives upon it. It is not an enamel, therefore it does not peel off nor crack the shoe.

Vici
Leather Dressing

is sold by all dealers at 25 cents a bottle. It is made by the makers of Vici Kid, the most famous shoe leather in the world. A book that tells you all about buying, wearing and caring for shoes, mailed free.

ROBERT H. FOERDERER, Philadelphia, Pa.

TRUSSES!

ARE YOU RUPTURED?

The Improved Elastic Truss is the only truss in existence that is worn with absolute comfort night and day, as it retains the rupture under the hardest exercise or severest strain, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure without regard to the age of the patient. Will you, after these plain, truthful statements, continue to suffer and risk your life by wearing an old-style imperfect truss?

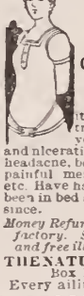
Dare you go without a truss, knowing that you are daily growing worse and that within a short time you will be a physical wreck?

Don't suffer any longer.

Those interested, call or send for one of our catalogues, free of charge.

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.
785 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Established in New York 16 Years.

Costs You Nothing to Try It.



THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

Cures Female Weakness, Restores Health and Vigor.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 1, 1897.

"I wouldn't be without my Brace for it has cured me of all female trouble. Had suffered twelve years with falling, laceration and ulceration of womb, with backache, headache, bearing down, constipation, painful menstruation, ovarian pains, etc. Have had Brace a year, and haven't been in bed an hour from any illness since. Mrs. Austin Berry.

Money Refunded if Brace is not Satisfactory. Send for full information and free illustrated book.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO.,
Box 171 Salina, Kansas.

Every ailing woman should have this Brace.

Combined Steam Cereal Cooker and Egg Poacher.

$2 OUTFIT FREE

We want agents in every town in the U. S. to make $4 to $7 a day introducing our new Household Necessities in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. We are manufacturing the largest assortment of new and useful ideas in the world. They are needed in every home, and housewives at once see their merit and buy them. We guarantee permanent employment, as our goods sell the entire year. Send for illustrated catalogue with full particulars how to obtain a $2 Outfit Free.

P. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

NEW WAIST SET, 10c.

Our new 98 set of handsome design includes 1 pair rigid-link ball-end cuff buttons, 3 studs, 1 collar button, and the latest belt buckle. Extra heavy 14k Roman gold or sterling silver plate, worth 40c. at any store. We send complete set, with new catalogue of bargains, postpaid for ONLY 10c., 3 for 25c.

Ingersoll & Bro., Dept. 61
67 Cortlandt St., N. Y.

"Sanitas" Book Free.

"How to Disinfect," an illustrated book giving practical instruction for disinfection in everyday life and during cases of infectious illness, sent free.

Every one having the care of a house or an institution should have it.

The American & Continental "Sanitas" Co. Ltd.
636 to 642 West 55th St., New York City.

Your Dinner can be cooked all at one time on one burner of any kind of stove if you use THE IDEAL Steam Cooker

Prevents steam and odors. Will reduce fuel bills 50 per cent. Whistle blows when cooker needs more water. Will hold 12 one quart glass jars in Canning Fruit. Agents Wanted.

Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16 Toledo, O.

HEALTH, LUXURY, BEAUTY

Obtained by use of our NEW IMPROVED VAPOR BATH CABINET (Patented). Excels all others in material and workmanship. All varieties of Dry and Vapor Baths enjoyed at home at a trifling cost. Its curative properties are invaluable. Renovates the system and beautifies the complexion, opening the pores of the skin and expelling all poisonous matter from the body. Our Cabinet is not a cloak or sack, but supported by a galvanized frame. Size, 39 in. by 1 in., folded; weight, 7 lbs. A child can adjust it. Descriptive pamphlet sent free. Price low. Agents wanted. O. MOLLENKOPF & McCREERY, Toledo, O.

HIGH ARM.

USE IT FREE

30 days in your own home before paying one cent in advance; shipped anywhere, to anyone, for 30 days' trial. We risk you.

$60 White Star Machine, . . $22.00
$50 Pearl Machine . . . 18.00
Standard Singers, $9, $12.50, 16.00

Full set of attachments free; buy from factory and save $10 to $40. WE PAY FREIGHT, thousands in use; catalog, showing all other styles, free. Each machine guaranteed 10 years.

Warranted Ten Years.

Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co.
Address (in full) Dept. 67 215 S. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.

Dr. HAYES, Buffalo, N. Y. ASTHMA Cured to Stay Cured

SILOS

Round, of Any Size, and all Machinery Needed.
G. D. Harder, Cobleskill, N. Y.

Lady Agents

If you are in need of employment send us your address and we will show you how to make $18 a week easy and sure. If you are in need of employment, write to us at once. We guarantee that you can make $18 a week absolutely sure. You will be surprised at how easy it can be done. Send us your address anyway. It will be to your interest to investigate. Write to-day. You can positively make $18 a week easy. ROYAL MFG. CO., Box 207, Detroit, Mich.

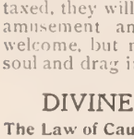
VACATION TEMPTATIONS.

Tests for Discriminating Between Recreations that are Legitimate and those that are Evil. Ruth 1: 2; Acts 28: 3.

An old hymn familiar to childhood's days warns us that "Satan finds mischief for idle hands to do." Looking back over our years, if we are candid with ourselves, we have some compunction about charging the responsibility for all the mischief they contain to this mysterious personage. There are times when we have not waited for him to find it but have provided it for ourselves. It is notorious that the idle man is liable to be a vicious man. Like the garden that needs only to be left untilled to bring forth weeds, the unoccupied life is likely to bring forth evil in some shape. It is therefore especially important that in the intervals of labor, in those seasons when we rest from our habitual pursuits, we give our time systematically to recreation, in the true sense of the word. The physical, mental and spiritual powers should not lie fallow, but should be so employed as to gain new strength for better service. With this principle adopted vacation temptations are robbed of their power. "May we do this or that?" asks the young Christian who has a week or two at his disposal and is anxious to get such enjoyment as he can without compromising his Christian character. The answer is one he can supply for himself. Any amusement that degrades him, that so excites him as to leave him physically or mentally feeble, any pleasure that gives him a distaste for his Bible, or for prayer, ought to be avoided. Anyone who has known men like Drummond, or Phillips Brooks, or hundreds of other men of our time is aware that it is possible to enjoy life, to be merry and light hearted, to enter heartily into athletic sports and yet to be truly and thoroughly Christian. Christ never intended his religion to be one of gloom. He went to the wedding at Cana, he accepted the invitations to feasts alike from the Pharisee and the Publican and set the example of cheerfulness and geniality which some Christian men forget to follow. So in shutting out of our lives the pleasures that besmirch and debase, we do not exclude all pleasure. Such pleasures are offered to every one in a vacation, but if there is a love of Christ in the heart and a sincere desire that the vacation shall be the means of strengthening and energizing powers for service that have been overtaxed, they will appeal in vain. Rest and amusement and enjoyment will all be welcome, but not the joys that clog the soul and drag it down to earth.

DIVINE RETRIBUTION.

The Law of Cause and Effect Explains the Doom of the Wicked. Joel 3: 1-17.



How far we are justified in speaking of any experience as divine retribution may be doubted. When a mother has warned her child against touching the hot stove, has placed a barrier around it and has done all in her power to keep the child away from it, we do not speak of the burns on the hands of the child who is disobedient as the mother's retribution. She grieves over her darling's suffering, and does all she can to alleviate it, and her only consolation is in the hope that the child may have learned in his suffering a lesson that will be useful to him in the future, not only as to hot stoves, but as to general obedience. When a boy takes something that does not belong to him, or does some other wicked thing, calling for punishment, the wise father administers it with a sad heart, not as retribution, but that the boy may realize the wickedness of such courses and avoid them. But the father suffers more than does the child, and he grieves over the necessity that is laid upon him by concern for the child's welfare. We are told that "like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him." We work our own retribution when we sin. He that sinneth wrongeth his own soul. The law of the race has joined evil with sorrow and suffering, and there is no escape. The interval between them may be long or short, but the one inevitably follows the other. God is no arbitrary tyrant meting out capricious punishments to the wrongdoer and vindictively torturing the impenitent. As we see some wealthy young man spending his patrimony in dissipation and vice, we know that the end will be poverty and disease and premature death without the intervention of any legal penalties; so we may be sure that rebellion against God and the persistent pursuit of wicked indulgences will work out their own results. He that loves vice and corruption must become vicious and corrupt, and must drink the dregs of the fatal cup. What else can he do? Not even God himself can prevent it. To those who have begun to realize the doom toward which they are drifting and cry to him for deliverance, he holds out the hand of his power to help them turn again, and they do turn again and are, as we say, converted, but in no other way can they avoid the abyss. As a man soweth, that he must reap.

THE RIGHT USE OF TIME.

How Time May Best be Spent to Avoid Waste and Disappointment. Eccl. 3: 1-8; Acts 24: 24, 25.

When the writer of Ecclesiastes prepared his list of occupations, he seems to have had in mind the impossibility of laying down a fixed rule to govern the whole of life, or to govern different lives. There are men whose usefulness consists in "plucking up that which is planted," just as there are others whose true work is in planting. The same man may have to do both, if some child who has been playing about the streets and learning evil things, comes under his care. There are no talents without their use, and whatever is evil is generally good that is perverted, as has been said of dirt, "it is only matter in the wrong place." So in laying out the plan of our lives and arranging our time so that it shall not be wasted, it would be unwise to force it into one channel. To be constantly at work, without recreation, is to wear out our powers before their time. There is a time for play, and if we do not give it we injure ourselves. On the other hand, if all our time be given to recreation we have no useful results to show for our lives. Probably no one sets out in life with the deliberate purpose of wasting it. The reason that so many do waste it is generally that they have no plan, nor any high and worthy object clearly perceived and diligently sought. With all his wisdom, the Preacher seems to have made a poor outcome. He had all the facilities he could desire, yet in the end his labor in every field, he declared to be vanity—worthless. It did not bring him the content he expected. In the last chapter of his book he gives the result of his experience, and it is one that young people especially will find it to their advantage to consider. Not in pleasure, nor in power, nor in wealth, had he found joy, but in the performance of daily duty, with the sincere desire of serving God and helping his fellow man. There are multitudes whose experience is like his. They cannot plan the occupation of a single day because they do not know what opportunities the day may bring forth; but if they have strong Christian principles; if they have firmly fixed in their hearts their resolve to serve Christ in any way that is opened to them; if they are alert to seize opportunities, their days will never be wasted, and the end will be useful lives.

MARION McBRIDE.

One of the famous workers in the W. C. T. U. ranks and one who stood very close to Frances Willard, is Marion McBride of Boston. She is a tireless worker and an authority on pure foods. Everywhere she goes she recommends Postum, the famous food drink, for she knows of its great work in furnishing a pure, toothsome, hot beverage for breakfast, much like coffee in appearance and taste, but made by food experts from parts of field grains, selected to furnish brain and nerves with the food demanded by nature.

It is especially welcome to those who find distress and disease follow coffee drinking.

Grocers supply it at 15 and 25 cents per package.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN } St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO Philadelphia.
MORLEY Cleveland.
SALEM Salem, Mass.
CORNELL Buffalo.
KENTUCKY Louisville.

IF YOU want to get the best results in painting use Pure White Lead (see list of brands which are genuine) and Pure Linseed Oil, and give your painter time enough to apply it properly. It will pay.

If any shade or color is desired it can be easily produced by using the National Lead Company's Pure White Lead Tinting Colors and Pure White Lead.

Pamphlet containing sample shades, and giving directions for mixing and applying, sent free upon application.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

THE PRUDENTIAL

Policy Combines present protection with profitable Investment for the future.

Amounts, $15 to $50,000.
Premiums Payable Yearly, Half-yearly, Quarterly, or Weekly.

Write for information.
THE PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE CO ...OF AMERICA...
JOHN F. DRYDEN, Pres.
Home Office: Newark, N. J.

HAIR ON THE FACE, NECK, ARMS OR ANY PART OF THE PERSON.
QUICKLY DISSOLVED AND REMOVED WITH THE NEW 60 TION
MODENE

AND THE GROWTH FOREVER DESTROYED WITHOUT THE SLIGHTEST INJURY OR DISCOLORATION OF THE MOST DELICA

Discovered by Accident.—In Compounding, an incomplete mixture was spilled on the back of the hand, and on washing afterward it was discovered that completely removed. We purchased the new discovery and named it MODENE. It pure, free from all injurious substances, and so simple any one can use it. It acts surely, and you will be surprised and delighted with the results. Apply for a few min hair disappears as if by magic. It has no resemblance whatever to any other preparati for a like purpose, and no scientific discovery ever attained such wonderful results. NOT FAIL. If the growth be light, one application will remove it permanently growth such as the beard or hair on moles may require two or more applications b roots are destroyed, although all hair will be removed at each application, and withe injury or unpleasant feeling when applied or ever afterward. MODENE SUPERCEDES al

—Recommended by all who have tested its merits—Used by people of refinem

Gentlemen who do not appreciate nature's gift of a beard, will find a priceless boon which does away with shaving. It dissolves and destroys the life principle of the h rendering its future growth an utter impossibility, and is guaranteed to be as harmless to the skin. Young persons who find an embarrassing growth of hair coming, should to destroy its growth. Modene sent by mail in safety mailing cases, postage pa sealed from observation) on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle. Send money by lette full address written plainly. Correspondence sacredly private. Postage stamps same as cash. (ALWAYS MENTION YOUR COUNTY AND THIS PAPER.) Cut this advertise

LOCAL AND GENERAL AGENTS WANTED.

MODENE MANUFACTURING CO., CINCINNATI, O.
Manufacturers of the Highest Grade Hair Prepa
You can register your letter at any Post-office to insure its s

We Offer $1,000 FOR FAILURE or the SLIGHTEST INJURY, of EVERY BOTTLE GUARA

SILK RIBBONS FREE

Any lady having some spare time can make a handsome income by showing our line of silk ribbons and taking orders from her friends and acquaintances. Fine qualities at manufacturer's prices. Samples free. Terms liberal.

The Silk Ribbon Supply Co.,
P. O. Box 36, Station W. Brooklyn, N. Y

$9.50 BUYS A HIGH ARM VICTOR SEWING MACHINE
Adapted to Light and Heavy Work. Reliable and Finely Finished; Guaranteed for 10 Years. Write for 40 Page Catalogue. Attachments Free. 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL. Address Dept. 65, VICTOR MFG. CO., 90-98 Market St., Chicago.

EPILEPTIC FITS Most remarkable cures by our great English Remedy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Free particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to L. A. Castle, Wyoming, Illinois.

LADIES WANTED To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. McGregor & Co., Brooklyn, N.Y.

High Arm

TRY IT FREE
for 30 days in your own home before $10 to $25. No money down. $40 Kenwood Machine for $20. $50 Arlington Machine for $25. Singers (Made by us) $8, $10 and 27 other styles, all sent FREE. We pay freight. Factory. Save agents large profits. Over 100,000 in use. Catalogue and testimonials Free. Write at once. Address (in full), CASH BUYERS' UNION, 158-164 West Van Buren St., B-18 Chicago.

Warranted Ten Years.

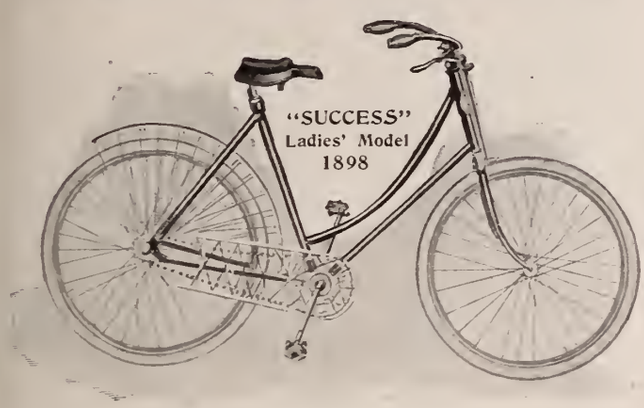
$60 Sewing Machines
We sell every reliable sewing machine made. We employ no agents, pay no commissions, buy for cash in large quantities, which enables us to save you $25 to $42 on any Sewing Machine you may select. All machines brand new, warranted latest improved, with all attachments, and warranted for 10 years. Every machine guaranteed or money refunded. Our illustrated catalogue gives full particulars and will be mailed free. Do not think of buying a machine before investigating our catalogue. Address
J. N. HOOK & CO., CINCINNATI, O.

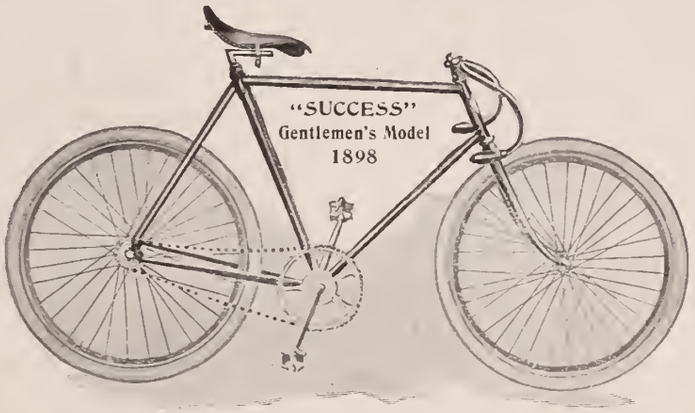
We pay the Freight.

It was before the day of SAPOLIO They used to say "Woman's Work is never Done."

THIS TELLS YOU HOW

YOU CAN GET AN UP-TO-DATE BICYCLE WITHOUT MONEY....





1,000 BICYCLES ABSOLUTELY Free

Never Sold for Less than $100.00

Our Marvelous Offer...

SUCCESS has arranged with a leading manufacturer for One Thousand high-grade wheels to be known as "Success," and if the reader of this announcement will act quickly he may be among the thousand riders of this, one of the finest and most carefully built bicycles in the world, who, within a few months, will gladly testify to its merits. "Success" Bicycle is made by one of the largest, oldest, best known and most reliable makers in America. Other bicycles of the same make are sold everywhere under the regular name plate at $100.00. Never less. The name of the maker is a household word among bicycle riders. We are pledged not to use the name or nameplate of the makers in disposing of the 1,000 we have purchased for Free Distribution to our workers. This unprecedentedly large order, combined with prompt cash settlement, enables us to make this wonderfully liberal offer.

We are determined to increase the circulation of SUCCESS to the 100,000 mark before Sept. 1st, 1898, and at a large financial sacrifice, we will send to any reader of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD who sends forty new subscriptions at $1.00 each between June 15th, 1898, and Sept. 1st, 1898, this superb wheel. "Success" Bicycle is free—Costs you Nothing. Write us if you intend to work for "Success" Bicycle. Enter your name at once or you may be too late.

Description of the "Success" 1898 Bicycle

It is made from the very best material throughout, only first-class mechanics are employed, and the finish is such as can be found only in the highest-grade wheels. Frame is 24 inches deep, true diamond (ladies' is 22 inches, curved shape with two center braces), 1 1-8 inch highest grade imported German seamless tubing. Fork Crown drop forged, highly polished and finished, and nickle-plated. Handle Bars, very latest and best. Wheels, highest grade, 28 inch. Spokes, highest grade, 14, 16 gauge. Hubs, latest large tubular, turned from bar steel. Rims, highest grade, non-warpable wood. Tire, special guaranteed high-grade, single-tube pneumatic. Cranks, highest grade forging, 6 1-2 inch throw, highly nickle-plated. Pedals, handsomest and best. Bearings, highest grade tool steel, highly finished. Sprockets, finest forgings, heavily nickle-plated, both detachable. Saddle, strictly high grade, padded. Full ball-bearing, with ball retainers throughout. Finished in the highest possible enamel, and shipped complete with tool-bag, pump, wrench, oiler and repair kit.

OUR GUARANTEE: We issue a written, binding, one-year guarantee, during which time if any piece or part gives out by reason of defect in workmanship or material, we will replace it free.

To be Successful You must Read "Success"

SUCCESS is the winning Magazine of the day. Born to win popular favor, it leaps from victory to victory, rolling up thousands of enthusiastic subscribers at every bound. It helps you to start in business for yourself—it helps you to INCREASE YOUR SALARY — it helps you to be worth more to your business, to your employer, to your family, to the community and to yourself. Every copy is worth its weight in gold. Forty large pages beautifully illustrated every month; every page an Acre of Diamonds. ONE DOLLAR A YEAR. Send for full particulars. Grasp this chance of a life-time—it will never come again.

"What is this paper 'SUCCESS,' 'SUCCESS'?
I see it and hear of it everywhere."
'Tis a message of sunshine that comes to bless
Whoever is ready to do and to dare.

YOU MUST ACT TO-DAY.
Enter your name and address if you expect to strive for a Bicycle. To-morrow you may be too late. It costs nothing to make the entry.

WE REPEAT OUR GREAT OFFER AND BY IT WE WILL STAND

We are Determined to increase the circulation of SUCCESS to the

One Hundred Thousand Mark

before Sept. 1st, 1898, and at a large financial sacrifice, we will send to any reader of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD who sends forty (40) new subscriptions at $1.00 each between June 15th, 1898, and Sept. 1st, 1898, a Gentlemen or Ladies "Success" Bicycle.

ADDRESS TO-DAY THE SUCCESS CO., Cooper Union, New York.

To Your Profit

All the skill, knowledge, and resources of our great factories are this year concentrated into making one matchless model—the

Waverley Bicycle $50

The Waverley Catalogue is sent for the asking. It is worth your careful study.

Indiana Bicycle Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

FOOD FOR BABY.

If mother can't nourish it; if it is pale and thin, try

SOMATOSE.

Pamphlets mailed by Schieffelin & Co., New York, agents for Farbenfabriken vorm. Friedr. Bayer & Co., Elberfeld.

BLINDNESS

PREVENTED

IMMATURE CATARACTS

REMOVED BY ABSORPTION

SANITARIUM ST. CLAIR

SEND FOR PAMPHLET. 496 LA SALLE AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

7000 BICYCLES

carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of swell '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.

E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

YOU GET THE DIFFERENCE

between the wholesale price and the retail price when you buy woven wire fence from us.

WE SELL ONLY DIRECT TO THE FARMER AT WHOLESALE PRICE AND WE PAY THE FREIGHT.

That saves you the middle man's profit. The fence is as good as the best made. It will turn anything that any other fence will turn and injure nothing. Tie wires don't slip. Prices way down. Write at once for circulars and extra special discount.

ADVANCE FENCE CO. 37 Old St. Peoria, Ill.

HIGH-GRADE BICYCLE FREE

for distributing samples among our friends and selling our fine Perfumes, Flavoring Extracts, Toilet Soaps, etc.

Best goods made—Best prizes given. Crofts & Reed, 842 Austin Ave., Chicago.

1898 BICYCLE $3.00

Yes, $3.00 takes our up-to-date, guaranteed bicycle on our great co-operative offer. You do a little work in your spare time. Write soon. COOK CYCLE CO., Office, 67 4th Ave.; Factory, 16-18 Franklin St., Chicago.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country; steady employment; commission or salary. $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

WANTED NOW. AGENTS AT ONCE to sell Sash Locks and Door Holders. Sample Sash Lock free for 2-cent stamp. Immense; better than weights, burglar proof. $10.00 a day. Write quick. Address RICHARD & CO., Dept. 14, Philadelphia, Pa.

WAR WITH SPAIN

A set of six magnificent souvenir battleship spoons that will live in history and be an heirloom to your grandchildren. They are practical, -able souvenirs that will hand down the glorious deeds of our heroes on the sea. They will last for all time. Entire set of six spoons put u a lined box and mailed prepaid.

SIX BEAUTIFUL WARSHIPS.

Set No. 8. Texas, Oregon, Iowa, Maine, Mass., Indiana.

Only 99cts.

Set No. 9. New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Minneapolis, Baltimore, Brooklyn.

Only 99cts.

ONLY 99c FOR ALL SIX.

CUT SHOWS EXACT SIZE OF SPOONS.

"REMEMBER THE MAINE."

So certain are we that these wonderfully beautiful keepsakes of the Cuban war of freedom will surprise and delight you with their artistic elegance richness and positive value that we mail either set entirely on approval, subject to full examination and if they are not just as we represent them we will promptly refund your money.

They are After-Dinner Coffee size, finely coin silver plated with the entire bowl outside and inside plated with pure gold, each bowl containing a different raised or embossed battleship—perfectly engraved, exactly like cut, and an exact reproduction of the ship itself. These fascinating souvenirs could not be made more beautiful at any price. It is absolutely impossible for us to misrepresent them. They are equal in appearance to the very finest silverware made and will last a lifetime and delight the generations a hundred years hence. Either set, No. 8 or No. 9, as above, sent prepaid by mail on receipt of 99 cents. These spoons are substantial, valuable souvenirs, and can be used every day on the table. (They are NOT CHEAP, TRASHY STUFF and will refund your money if they are not strictly as represented. We refer to any commercial agency or express company or the proprietors of any Chicago newspaper. Leonard Mfg. Co., Dept. N 152 and 153 Michigan Ave., Chicago

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS

OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS.

SCHOOL FURNITURE COMPANY

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color great ly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING CLEANING. CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO., 70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE.

Agents who desire a profitable line of goods, which are extensively advertised, to canvas with are wanted at once for Dr Scott's Celebrated Electric Corsets, Brushes, Belts, Safety Razors and other goods. At the commissions we give you can make from $1,000 to $2,000 a year, send at once for our liberal terms; we give exclusive territory and free samples to every agent who works for us.

GEO. A. SCOTT, Room 7, 812 Broadway, New York.

LARKIN SOAPS AND PREMIUMS.—THE LARKIN IDEA fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free Sample Soap if mention this publication.

THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

EARN A BICYCLE

"I worked five weeks." You Can Do it in a Few Days. "It took me just two weeks."

Dear Mr. Baker. Enclosed find money-order for $19.20. This makes the sixth order my children have sent you in all; which fact speaks for itself, that is that we are very much pleased with your premiums. Ada was the first one in Green Bay to work for a wheel two years ago, and from what I can see it is as good as new yet and she gets a great deal of pleasure out of it. Hoping to receive the goods soon, I remain,

MRS. V. MATTERN.
April 12, 1898. 304 Quincy Street, GREEN BAY, WIS.

Just go among your friends and sell Baker's Teas, Etc. The work is easy and your friends will be interested in your success, and when you receive the reward you will be proud of your Bicycle (High-Grade) and proud of having earned it. Sell a total of 150 lbs. for a Ladies' or Gentlemen's High Grade Bicycle (lower grades for 125 and 100 lb. sales); 90 lbs. for a Youths' or Maidens' Bicycle; 60 lbs. for a Boys' or Girls' Bicycle; 50 lbs. for Waltham or Elgin Gold Watch and Chain or Dinner Set, or Silver Tea Service; 45 lbs. for Queen Kitchen Cabinet; 40 lbs. for Music Box or Brass Bedstead; 25 lbs. for Solid Silver Watch and Chain, Chenille Portieres, Mandolin, Guitar, Violin, Autoharp, Tea Set or Banquet Lamp; 35 lbs. for Gramophone (talking machine) or Parlor Clock; 30 lbs. for Shot-Gun or Case of Silver Knives, forks, etc., (26 pieces), or Large Camera; 20 lbs. for Gold Ring or Crescent Camera; 6 lbs. for Small Typewriter or Electric Battery; 175 lbs. for Parlor Organ. Express Prepaid. Write for Catalogue, Etc. W. G. Baker (DEPT. 76), Springfield, Mass.

A JUNIOR QUAKER KITCHEN CABINET FOR $5 ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL

A Quadruple Silver-Plated Teapot, worth $5, FREE with Every Cabinet.

THE GREATEST OF ALL STEP-SAVERS.

If pleased, remit in 30 days; if not, return at our expense. The Junior Cabinet has whitewood top, 27x12 in.; hardwood legs and frame, finished antique; one metal bottom swinging flour bin, partitioned, each compartment holding 25 lbs.; a touch will open or close it, empty or full; one drawer, partitioned for spices, etc.; one large breadboard which slides into frame. Price, $5, on board cars in Chicago. The Senior Cabinet is exactly as shown in illustration. Top, 27x47 in.; two bins, one holding 50 lbs., the other partitioned as shown; two drawers—one partitioned; one bread- and one meat-board. Price, $6.50, on board cars in Chicago. The teapot goes free with every cabinet, Junior or Senior. It is extra large—10 in. high, 6 in. diameter; best quadruple silver plate, warranted to wear for 10 years; each teapot contains a signed certificate of warranty. Worth $5—represents what you save by sending direct to factory for the cabinet. If you desire, we'll send, in lieu of the teapot, a Syrup Cup and Plate, Butter Dish, or Sugar Bowl, of the same high-grade ware. In ordering all that's necessary is to say which you want the Junior Cabinet at $5, or the Senior at $6.50, state your choice of premiums, and say you're a reader of this publication. QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., 355 W. Harrison St., CHICAGO.

P. S.—If you prefer to remit in advance—we don't ask it—we'll include 6 of the finest quadruple silver-plated after-dinner coffee-spoons that money can buy, as a grateful acknowledgment of our appreciation of your order.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES, no experience needed; position permanent; self seller. PEASE MFG. CO., P.O. Box A, Cincinnati, O

CRAZY WORK 800 SILK REMNANTS, Quilt 4 sq. yds. 50c. Enough floss & patterns, 10c, postpaid. Lemarie's Silk Mill, Lim. Factory, N.J.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICE: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 25.

Re T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

NEW YORK, JUNE 22, 1898.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Providentially Escaped Massacre.

Arrival in New York of American Survivors of the Massacre of the Missionaries of the United Brethren in Sierra Leone, Africa.

SELDOM has a steamer brought to our shores a party so sad and yet so thankful as the little group of missionaries whom the Etruria landed in New York a few days ago. They were the survivors of the massacre in Sierra Leone, Africa, which was described in this journal on June 8. Their portraits, taken specially for this journal with that of a native boy, appear on this page.

Mr. A. A. Ward was a missionary at Rotufunk, but was absent from the station when the savages descended upon it and killed all the inmates. Dr. Burtner and Dr. Minshall with their wives were stationed at Shengeh, in the same district, and were to have been the next victims. Happily, they heard of the approach of the blood-thirsty savages, who were marching upon them a thousand strong, in time to make their escape by boats to Plantain Island, six miles up stream, whence by a perilous voyage of two days and nights they reached Freetown in safety. They took with them a number of native women and children, the converts of the mission, whose lives also were threatened by the savages. Miss Muller's escape was almost miraculous. She was alone at the station at Mamaliga, when the house was suddenly surrounded by men whose blood-besmeared bodies and spears showed the hideous work they had been doing. They told her they had come to kill her, but before they could force an entrance into the house, a band of soldiers sent by the English Governor arrived and the murderous gang fled to the woods.

Mr. William H. Heard, of the African Methodist Episcopal Mission, who is United States Consul at Monrovia, and is now on a visit here, says that the whole district is in a state of unrest. The King is securely living in French territory, where he has access to all the arms and ammunition he wants, and he is organizing his people for a desperate struggle for the perpetuation of the slave trade.

REV. L. O. BURTNER. MRS. BURTNER. HENRY TUCKER. REV. F. S. MINSHALL. MRS. MINSHALL. MISS MULLER. MR. A. WARD.

THE MISSIONARY SURVIVORS OF THE MASSACRE AT ROTUFUNK, AFRICA, NOW IN THE UNITED STATES.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Wife, Reading, Pa. In sending a letter to Manila shall I address it as being now a part of United States territory?

Manila, Philippine Islands, is a sufficient address, although letters have already been mailed at the post office in New York addressed "Manila, U. S. A.," and "Havana, Cuba, U. S. A." These are probably a little premature, although they will be all right in good time.

Sir Gawain, Camden, N. J. 1. To what does the fig-tree mentioned by Christ (Matt. 24: 32) refer? 2. To what generation does he refer in the next verse? 3. Why was Abel's offering accepted, and Cain's rejected? 4. Why did Christ warn Mary not to touch him after his resurrection, and yet invite Thomas to do so?

1. It does not appear to have had any prophetic significance. Christ's hearers were instructed to act as to the signs he had been describing, as they acted about the signs of the seasons. When they saw the tree putting forth leaves they realized that summer was near; and when they saw the sun darkened, etc., they were to realize that his coming was near. 2. It is difficult to understand from the report in the Gospels. He may have been referring to the siege of Jerusalem, which occurred about thirty years afterwards, or he may have been referring to his second coming. If the latter, he doubtless meant that the events would follow each other so closely that the generation which saw the beginning would see the end. 3. The orthodox explanation is that Cain's offering did not make acknowledgment of sin, nor of the fact that atonement was necessary, as Abel's did. In short that there was no shedding of blood. 4. Mary's action was a movement of the old familiar intercourse, which could not be resumed after the resurrection. Christ shrank in his spiritual state from contact with the human touch; but when the end to be accomplished was the conviction of Thomas, who was to be one of those to bear witness of the resurrection, then Christ yielded and invited contact.

W. I. W., North, S. C. I read that Havana and Western Cuba were captured by the English, in 1762. When and how did the Spanish again get possession?

In 1762, Havana was taken by the English fleet and army under Lord Albemarle. The defense was exceedingly obstinate. The English commenced operations on the 6th of June; but it was not until the 30th of July that Morro Castle surrendered, and on August 14th, the city capitulated. By the Treaty of Paris, in February of the following year, Cuba was restored to the Spaniards.

D. B. I am a widow and have no children. Shortly after my marriage, my husband made a will in which he left all his property absolutely to me; I did not influence him in any way. After we had been married some time and were both in poor health, I felt it would be right for his relatives to have some part at least of his property after my death, if I outlived him; so I asked him to draw up a memorandum, giving me his ideas of how he would wish me to divide among them whatever I left them, intending, as I expected to do, to leave them the most of his property. This he did, and I found this memorandum among his papers after his death. I have, of course, made my will in strict accordance with his memorandum. I want to know whether you think this is sufficient. I now fear, he might have still intended to make the change had he lived, since he never told me when in health that he had given up the idea.

If the writer lives in New York State, the memorandum, unless witnessed like a will, would have no binding force. In England, an unattested memorandum is allowed, in some cases, to control the action of executors or legatees, and it may very likely be that the same rule prevails in some of the States other than New York. To answer the question completely and with precision requires a particular examination of the law of that State governing the point involved. A satisfactory examination of the question would also require inspection of a complete copy of the memorandum, omitting perhaps the names of the persons. If your heart and conscience tell you that an injustice has been done to the relatives, you have in your own hands the opportunity to rectify it during your own life time. Consult a good lawyer.

Norma B., Miss. I am a little girl thirteen years old, but read the Bible nearly every day. I have wondered why so many words are printed in italics.

The words in italics are not to be found in the original, and are inserted by the translators to make the meaning or sense of the original writers clear.

This letter explains itself:

GOSPEL SETTLEMENT, 211 Clinton St., N. Y.

Christian Herald:—We are very grateful for the gift of One Dollar from Reader of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. It will take five little pale-faced girls to the sea air for a day. We are praying for money to give us a fund for daily outings for sick women and children. Yours,

SARAH J. BIRD.

G. L. R., Pittsburg, Pa. Who wrote "an editor is a ruler of the world?"

Carlyle, in The French Revolution, wrote, "Is not every able editor a ruler of the world, being a persuader of it; though self-elected, power and trusting their salvation wholly to him, striving with all their might to live as he would have them live. 3. At any age between the dawn of intelligence and death, but the earlier the decision is made the more likely is it to be effective. 4. Because no one has the power to work them. That power was given for the specific purpose of proving a divine commission, as when Pharaoh asked Moses (Ex. 7: 8-10) how he was to know that God had sent him and Moses was to throw his rod down and it would become a serpent. 5. Yes, to this life and the next. 6. He cannot start at the same point as if he had not sinned. God may graciously forgive him and his soul may be cleansed by the blood of Christ from the pollution, but he is not the same man that he would have been. The thing done can never be undone.

As a very large proportion of our readers are deeply interested in missionary work, at home and abroad, we give space to the following letter received from a native preacher in far-off Africa, as one that peculiarly deserves a hearing:

FREETOWN, SIERRA LEONE, May 5, 1898.

Editor The Christian Herald:

Your humble servant is the first among the native ministers ordained by Bishop Turner in Sierra Leone, to the Christian ministry of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, at his first visit to Africa in November, 1891. Immediately after my ordination I was sent out as city missionary among my poor, neglected people in the city of Freetown.

Seven years ago I came across your valuable paper, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. It was loaned me by a friend, and from the time I saw the first copy, he sent me every number that came out up to the time of his death, which was a great grief to me. I would have been a subscriber, but my slender means could not allow me. Some time ago I

UNLOADING TEA-SHIPS AT TACOMA, WASHINGTON.

One of the most progressive features of the growing commerce of Tacoma, is the tea import trade. Since the framing of the new War Tariff Bill, Japan has protested against the extra duty proposed to be placed on tea. Tacoma receives large cargoes from both China and Japan.

yet sanctioned by the sale of his numbers?" This is perhaps the quotation to which you refer.

Subscriber, Council Grove, Kans. 1. Please give the correct pronunciation of "Quo Vadis." 2. What is the author's nationality, and how is his name pronounced?

1. As spelled; the first word as one syllable with the "u" silent; the "a" broad in the second word. 2. Polish. He was born at Wola Okrejska in Lithuania, in 1845. His name is Henri Sienkiewicz, and the surname is pronounced as if spelled Sinkyvitz.

Subscriber, Augusta, Ga. 1. Is there any harm in running a street car on Sunday if a man can get no other employment? 2. How can a person who has led a dissipated life be healed, body, mind and soul, of his sins? 3. Between what ages does a man decide his eternal destiny? 4. How is it there are no miracles performed in our day? 5. Does the statement that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap apply to this life? 6. Will a person who has sinned and repented reap the fruit of his sins, or will he start clear?

1. There is the harm of using the Lord's Day for secular purposes. We can understand a man doing it under dire pressure of circumstances although many would rather starve than do it; but one who desires to please God will get out of the occupation at the very first opportunity. 2. Christ promises healing to all who go to him, believing in his came across an advertisement of a Bible, which you have published as entitled "Large Print, Divinity Circuit, Red Under Gold, Silk Sewed, Leather-Lined Teachers' Bible." I saw the illustration. My heart yearned, but how to get it? Where to get the means to purchase it? Oh, if I could get one of these Bibles! It will be a complete vade mecum and help to me in the pulpit, in my study, in my Bible class of young people, and in my Sunday School. I shall make it my friend; and on my death-bed, if Providence permits me to die among my friends, I shall hand it over to my son, who is studying for the ministry, as a memento from a loving father. I am your humble servant,

GEO. DOVE DECKER.

Believing that it would be a pity to deny this poor African pastor's eager request, we have sent him a Bible such as he describes. Doubtless he will make excellent use of it in his work of winning souls for the Kingdom.

O. A., Larimore, N. Dak. 1. How many Spanish soldiers are in the Philippine Islands now? 2. Are there any insurgents against the Spanish there? 3. Can the Spaniards land any more men there now?

1. The Spanish military strength in the Philippines at the outbreak of the war was between 8,000 and 12,000, including native regiments. Some of the latter have since gone over to the rebels. 2. Yes, an overwhelming force, probably twice or thrice the number of the Spanish soldiers. 3. There is no prospect of their sending an expedition there at present.

Reader, San Antonio, Tex. Since reading T... Talmage's sermon on the Sheikh's daugh... have been concerned about my life. I can ... and sew, but I do not see how I can be of ... God's service with the knowledge of thos... things. How am I to lead a Christian lif...

Are you sincerely anxious to lead a C... tian life? If so, you will find many oppor... ties of usefulness. Are there among ... personal friends any who are not Chris... whom you could lead to Christ? Are ... any sick, or poor people, for whom you ... cook or sew? Perhaps there is some Su... School in which teachers are needed. T... help some one who needs help. If you ... in your heart the Christian spirit and wi... Christ to show you some way of doing ... thing for him, an opportunity will come. ... pose a dear dead father, or brother, ha... a deep interest in some poor people in ... city who at his death felt that they ha... a friend, your love for him would lead y... do what you could for them, and so you ... show your love for Christ.

Constant Reader, Crapand, P. E. I. Is t... university in the State of Massachuse... any other State in the Union, in whos... course Latin and Greek are displaced by ... more practical subjects; and if so, what ... name and address?

Greek is omitted at Cornell, Harvard, ... liams and Bryn Mawr, and in some of th... at least, Latin is omitted or optional.

Mrs. C. M., Adrian, Mich. Who was the ... of the following verses;

Were I so tall to reach the pole,
Or grasp the ocean in my span,
I must be measured by my soul—
The mind's the standard of the man.

The verse is from Isaac Watts, the ... brated hymn writer, but the idea is s... have been borrowed from the ... of Horace.

Subscriber, Elliott, Iowa. 1. How ... soldiers are in a troop? 2. H... is Dewey? 3. Has Spain any ... except the Cape Verde fleet?

1. The word troop, as a military ... means a body of soldiers of an ... nite number. 2. Sixty-one. H... born December 26, 1837. 3. Yes ... is called the Cadiz squadron.

Subscriber, Lansingburgh, N. Y. S... be justified in the sight of God ta... ing bread and declining wine ... communion if I honestly belie... it is not wise to drink from ... from which hundreds of person... drunk?

If you have so great a fear of f... tion you should try to induce ... church to use individual cu... might attend some church wher... are used. It seems a pity to sp... harmony of the service by de... to partake of the wine. Phy... agree with you, that there is ... but considering how long the ... ment has been administered, wi... cup for a number of commun... and how few instances of in... have occurred, the danger see... finitesimal. We do not think tha... drinking or abstaining would fe... your standing "in the sight of ...

R. F. D., Deer Creek, Ill. Ever... holiday.

Wilmit, Elkhart, Ind. The aut... is unknown.

Subscriber, Johnstown, Pa. T... address is Tarrytown, N. Y.

Subscriber, Conoquenessing, P... have no means of knowing.

C. H., Maxwell, Tenn. Write ... Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for list.

Mary A. C., Hanford, Cal. Writ... P. Putnam's Sons, New York City.

Weekly Reader, Texas. Doubtless a ten... structure, probably serving both for coun... such worship as they had.

Herbert W., Marceline, O. Great Britain, ... Russia, Germany, Japan, Italy, United ... Austria, Spain, Turkey, Portugal, Greece.

E. R. B., Marion, S. C. 1. We cannot ... the information. 2. Yes; but the work ca... resumed until the Cuban ports are reopene...

Subscriber, Lincoln, Tenn. You must re... matter to a lawyer. No one at a distance ... knowing all the facts, can advise safely i... matters.

Constant Reader, Salisbury, N. C. It is ... to be pernicious physically and morally, and ... not be indulged by any one professing ... Christian.

S. A. B., Bayard, Ia. We never heard ... question, but it is a notorious fact that a ... tion which gives itself to study and learning ... out proper physical exercise, does become w...

Mary Spofford. 1 and 2. Both are modern ... ers, consequently their names are not found ... encyclopedia. 3. We believe so. 4. Prou... Harden. 5. The editors—neither of the pers... mention.

H. M. C., McDonald, Kans., and Sub... Platteville, Wis. The question has been an... so many times that we wonder you have n... it. Send us your full name, repeating you... tion, and we will answer by mail.

Old Subscriber, St. Louis, Mo. The kin... north is supposed to be Antiochus, and kin... south, the King of Egypt. But there are s... different modes of interpretation that this q... tion is not satisfactory to all. The "vile p... of verse 21, is generally referred to a potent... to arise, who will be the Antichrist mentio... prophecy.

PREACHING CHRIST IN COREA.

Missionary Fenwick Relates a Cheering Story of Gospel Progress—An Open Door For Christian Effort in a Distant Land.

READERS of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be pleased to read the following letter from Corea, written by Mr. Malcolm C. Fenwick, a devoted missionary, from whom they have heard before:

PALACE SUMMER HOUSE, SEOUL, COREA.

"This letter is a belated Christmas and New Year's greeting, and in it I will tell you how we spent the holidays. We left Wonsan in the morning of Dec. 24, reaching the west of the mountains by dusk. Our packpony carrying a couple of blankets and a few books and wearing apparel, was led by a dwarf boy of twenty-nine years (boys are boys in Corea until married), and followed by a tall boy of thirty-four year with black whiskers and wearing a big frieze overcoat.

"Christmas found us fourteen miles from Wonsan, at the foot of a range of mountains said by travelers to be 5,000 feet above sea level. As our road to the Yellow Sea lay across this pass, we were obliged to mount its rugged sides, and as the range measures thirty miles across, our Christmas must necessarily be spent there and our Christmas dinner eaten among the hardy mountaineers. Mistletoe in great beauty, each uniform bunch resembling a hanging basket about a foot in diameter, hung over us from branches of oak, walnut, and pear trees.

"We traveled until dusk, fetching up at a village of farm houses, just twenty miles from where we started. We were cordially received by one of the farmers, and put down in the little room, 7x7, to our Christmas dinner. Menu—Millet, boiled in water; kunchie, sodden in salt water; soup made of spoiled beans; turnips, sliced in water; fish, frizzled in salt; cabbage, boiled in water; water cold, not hot.

"We spent Christmas night as we had spent Christmas eve, in telling the Coreans of Him who, 1,900 years ago, came to save the world from sin. The story was listened to with quiet simplicity. The next day we spent in reading the Word, in prayer, in exhortation and in house-to-house visitation. On Sunday night the house was packed with eager listeners.

"In my itinerancy thus far of nearly 250 miles I have been profoundly struck with these two things: 1. The attitude of the people. I can only describe them in these words: 'A people prepared of the Lord' ready to receive missionaries kindly, and eager to hear the Gospel. 2. The entire ignorance of the Gospel by those in close proximity to the largest centers of work. This means that the native church needs more careful oversight than the present missionary force will permit, and more workers to act as pioneers. It will be a great joy to me to learn from any of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD friends that they consider this their work."

The Needs of the Corean Field.

In a later letter, received last week, Mr. Fenwick writes:

"Last Sunday I spent in a village district only thirty-three miles from the capital where there had been missionaries for thirteen years, and also situated on a public thoroughfare that had been continually traversed by missionaries, and yet I found not only entire ignorance of the Gospel, but of even the name of Jesus. This looks as though the missionaries in the capital and those travelling this thoroughfare had been remiss in their duty, but it is hardly probable that any missionary had ever stopped in this village for even a meal, previous to my coming. It is the policy of the Corean Itinerant Mission to have a competent teacher from among the missionaries to coach all newcomers, for two months, in the language, after the natural method of study, and then to send them to different parts of the country to live with the natives apart from English-speaking people, for a period of four months, by which time it is expected they will become accustomed to the peculiar idiom of the language. By this policy it is believed the natives, so easily approached, will be won to the confidence of the missionary, who will then be able to move to another village, and so on, visiting the former place of residence regularly.

"I find here, as elsewhere, a peculiar preparedness of the people for receiving the Gospel messenger.

"Russia is pressing her claims for large tracts of land in Corea, and license to enter these now wide-open doors seems fast drawing to a close. Are you besieging the throne of grace to have it averted?" Mr. Fenwick appeals for helpers in the work. His efforts deserve the most cordial and substantial cooperation of all who are interested in the evangelization of Corea. Letters may be addressed to him at Wonsan, Corea, and will receive due attention.

SEAMEN'S MISSIONS ABROAD.

Mr. McKee's Visit to Harbor Missions and Sailors' Institutes of Various Countries—Interesting Christian Work.

MR. RUSSELL W. McKEE, a prominent business man of New York City, and senior partner of the firm of Bruce & Cook, lately returned from an extended tour in the Orient. During his journey in Eastern lands, Mr. McKee visited Gibraltar, Malaga, Granada, the Alhambra, Algiers, Naples, Pompeii, Malta, Alexandria, Cairo, the Pyramids, Jaffa, Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Bethany, Caifa, Mt. Carmel, Constantinople, Athens and other points of interest. For many years, Mr. McKee has been actively interested in various phases of Christian work. While abroad he took occasion to visit and make a special study of a number of Seamen's Missions at different ports. These he found extremely interesting and instructive. Among those visited was the Genoa Harbor Mission. This institution, whose headquarters are on the Via Milano, has now been established for twenty-five years and is under the spiritual charge of Rev. Donald Miller, Superintendent, with Captain P. M. Clucas and Herr Torelin Farnes as missionaries, whose duty it is to visit the ships in port, converse with the men, and aid in the work generally. The Harbor Mission has a church and a Sailor's Rest House and the annual attendance averages nearly 16,000 of whom 13,000 are British sailors. Many good results have been accomplished by this excellent mission. It is occasionally visited by the men from our United States war-ships, and last year its missionaries held services on our cruisers San Francisco and Cincinnati, which were then visiting Genoa.

Another organization which has accomplished much good among sailors of all nationalities, is the Naples Harbor Mission, now seventeen years in existence. Rev. T. John Stone Irving is the Superintendent and Mr. George Bell the visiting missionary. The "Bethel" of the Naples Mission is open day and night for the reception of seamen, and the services are always well-attended. Here, also, British sailors predominate. As at Genoa, much of the work consists of harbor visiting among the various ships in port. American sailors rarely fail to go to the Naples Mission, when any of our vessels are lying there.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' INSTITUTE, GIBRALTAR.

Twenty-two years ago, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute at Gibraltar was founded. In its comfortable quarters under the shadow of the great fortress, it carries on a successful spiritual work among the wanderers of the deep. The Superintendent is Mr. C. Coupland, and among the committee are some of the most distinguished military dignitaries of the fort, including His Excellency, Sir R. Biddulph, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Gibraltar. This mission has been the means, under Divine Providence, of helping many soldiers and sailors in that large and important garrison, to live better lives. Many have experienced conversion at its simple Gospel meetings, and its influence is felt far and near, its converts being scattered abroad through many lands. It is a splendidly organized institution, highly efficient in Gospel work, and with a Soldiers' Christian Association, a large Visiting Committee, a Band of Hope, a Children's Mission League, a Mothers' Union, a Blue Ribbon Society, and a Band of Helpers which comprises some of the most influential people in Gibraltar and many connected with the garrison.

A visit was next paid to the Constantinople "Sailors' Rest," the mariners' mission in the Turkish capital. The "Rest" was established fourteen years ago, and its activities are fully occupied in work among the large foreign fleet which is always to be found there. Its annual ship visitations average nearly fifteen hundred. Gospel meetings are held on board the vessels, where permission can be secured, and regular evangelical meetings are held at the "Rest." Religious literature is distributed to the crew of every ship, and especially to men starting on a voyage. Among its supporters are many of the foreign residents of Constantinople, and its official patron is Mr. Philip Currie, the British Ambassador. Mr. Haire is the port missionary.

Mr. McKee also inspected the Piræus Mission at Athens, and the "Sailors' Rest" in the ancient city of Smyrna, Asiatic Turkey. There he found a corps of devoted Christian workers, including Miss Turnly, Miss Tilby, M. Constantine, Mrs. Moschou and others. Much of the work done at the Smyrna Mission is among the crews of warships and many striking conversions are reported. During the past year, nearly 200 ships were visited by the missionaries, and 624 sailors visited the "Rest." Large quantities of religious literature, Bibles and Testaments were distributed. It is encouraging to know that these missions are well supported by Christian people, both in the seaports where the missions are located, and in other parts of the world as well. Wherever there is a good work that touches the hearts of Christ's followers, no matter how far from them its field may lie, it will find generous support for all its needs. The age in which we live is one that is characterized by the grandest missionary efforts the world has ever known.

During his tour, which covered fully 13,000 miles of travel, Mr. McKee was accompanied by his family. It was chiefly undertaken for health and recreation, but his visits to the widely extended missionary field, and to the many places of historic and Biblical interest in the East, gave to his journeyings a new delight, and combined interest and instruction in an unexpected degree.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

Pleasures of Life.

A Sermon by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on the Text, Judges 16: 25:

"And it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison-house; and he made them sport."

THERE were three thousand people assembled in the Temple of Dagon. They had come to make sport of eyeless Samson. They were all ready for the entertainment. They began to clap and pound, impatient for the amusement to begin, and they cried, "Fetch him out! Fetch him out!" Yonder I see the blind old giant coming, led by the hand of a child into the very midst of the temple. At his first appearance there goes up a shout of laughter and derision. The blind old giant pretends he is tired and wants to rest himself against the pillars of the house, so he says to the lad who leads him, "Bring me where the main pillars are." The lad does so. Then the strong man puts his hands on one of the pillars, and, with the mightiest push that mortal ever made, throws himself forward until the whole house comes down in thunderous crash, grinding the audience like grapes in a wine-press. "And so it came to pass, when their hearts were merry, that they said, Call for Samson, that he may make us sport. And they called for Samson out of the prison-house; and he made them sport." In other words there are amusements that are destructive and bring down disaster and death upon the heads of those who practise them. While they laugh and cheer, they die. The three thousand who perished that day in Gaza are nothing compared with the tens of thousands who have been destroyed, body, mind, and soul by bad amusements and by good amusements carried to excess.

In my sermons you must have noticed that I have no sympathy with ecclesiastical strait-jackets, or with that wholesale denunciation of amusements to which many are pledged. I believe the Church of God has made a tremendous mistake in trying to suppress the sportfulness of youth and drive out from men their love of amusement. If God ever implanted anything in us, he implanted this desire. But instead of providing for this demand of our nature, the Church of God has for the main part ignored it. As in a riot the mayor plants a battery at the end of the street and has it fired off, so that everything is cut down that happens to stand in the range, the good as well as the bad, so there are men in the church who plant their batteries of condemnation and fire away indiscriminately. Everything is condemned. They talk as if they would like to have our youth dress in blue uniform, like the children of an orphan asylum, and march down the path of life to the tune of the Dead March in Saul. They hate a blue sash, or a rosebud in the hair, or a tasseled gaiter, and think a man almost ready for the lunatic asylum who utters a conundrum.

Young Men's Christian Associations of the country are doing a glorious work. They have free reading-rooms, and all the influences are of the best kind, and are now adding gymnasiums and bowling-alleys, where, without any evil surroundings, our young men may get physical as well as spiritual improvement. We are dwindling away to a narrow chested, weak-armed, feeble voiced race, when God calls us to a work in which he wants physical as well as spiritual athletes. I would to God that the time might soon come when in all our colleges and theological seminaries, as at Princeton, a gymnasium shall be established. We spend seven years of hard study in preparation for the ministry, and come out with bronchitis and dyspepsia and liver complaint, and then crawl up into the pulpit, and the people say, "Don't he look heavenly!" because he looks sickly. Let the Church of God direct, rather than attempt to suppress, the desire for amusement. The best men that the world ever knew have had their sports. William Wilberforce trundled hoop with his children. Martin Luther helped dress the Christmas tree. Ministers have pitched quoits, philanthropists have gone a-skating, prime ministers have played ball.

Our communities are filled with men and women who have in their souls unmeasured resources for sportfulness and frolic. Show me a man who never lights up with sportfulness and has no sympathy with the recreations of others, and I will show you a man who is a stumbling-block to the kingdom of God. Such men are caricatures of religion. They lead young people to think that a man is good in proportion as he groans and frowns and looks sallow, and that the height of a man's Christian stature is in proportion to the length of his face. I would trade off five hundred such men for one bright-faced, radiant Christian on whose face are the words, "Rejoice evermore!" Every morning by his cheerful face he preaches fifty sermons. I will go further and say that I have no confidence in a man who makes a religion of his gloomy looks. That kind of a man always turns out badly. I would not want him for the treasurer of an orphan asylum. The orphans would suffer.

Among forty people whom I received into the church at one communion, there was only one applicant of whose piety I was suspicious. He had the longest story to tell; had seen the most visions, and gave an experience so wonderful that all the other applicants were discouraged. I was not surprised the year after to learn that he had run off with the funds of the bank with which he was connected. Who is this black angel that you call religion—wings black, feet black, feathers black? Our religion is a bright angel—feet bright, eyes bright, wings bright, taking her place in the soul. She pulls a rope that reaches to the skies and sets all the bells of heaven a-chiming. There are some persons who, when talking to a minister, always feel it politic to look lugubrious. Go forth, O people, to your lawful amusement. God means you to be happy. But, when there are so many sources of innocent pleasure, why tamper with anything that is dangerous and polluting? Why stop our ears to a heaven full of songsters to listen to the hiss of a dragon? Why turn back from the mountain-side all abloom with wild flowers and adash with the nimble torrents, and with blistered feet attempt to climb the hot sides of Cotopaxi?

Now, all opera houses, theatres, bowling alleys, skating rinks and all styles of amusement, good and bad, I put on trial to-day and judge of them by certain cardinal principles. First, you may judge of any amusement by its healthful result or by its baneful reaction. There are people who seem made up of hard facts. They are a combination of multiplication tables and statistics. If you show them an exquisite picture they will begin to discuss the pigments involved in the coloring; if you show them a beautiful rose, they will submit it to a botanical analysis, which is only the post mortem examination of a flower. They never do anything more than feebly smile. There are no great tides of feeling surging up from the depth of their soul in billow after billow of reverberating laughter. They seem as if nature had built them by contract and made a bungling job out of it. But, blessed be God, there are people in the world who have bright faces and whose life is a song, an anthem, a paean of victory. Even their troubles are like the vines that crawl up the side of a great tower on the top of which the sunlight sits and the soft airs of summer hold perpetual carnival. They are the people you like to have come to your house; they are the people I like to have come to my house. Now it is these exhilarant and sympathetic and warm-hearted people that are most tempted to pernicious amusements. In proportion as a ship is swift it wants a strong helmsman; in proportion as a horse is gay it wants a strong driver; and these people of exuberant nature will do well to look at the reaction of all their amusements. If an amusement sends you home at night nervous so you cannot sleep, and you rise in the morning, not because you are slept out, but because your duty drags you from your slumbers, you have been where you ought not to have been. There are amusements that send a man next day to his work bloodshot, yawning, stupid, nauseated, and they are wrong kinds of amusements. There are entertainments that give a man disgust with the drudgery of life, with tools because they are not swords, with working aprons because they are not robes, with cattle because they are not infuriated bulls of the arena. If any amusement sends you home longing for a life of romance and thrilling adventure, love that takes poison and shoots itself, moonlight adventures and hairbreadth escapes, you may depend upon it that you are the sacrificed victim of unsanctified pleasure. Our recreations are intended to build us up, and if they pull us down as to our moral or as to our physical strength, you may come to the conclusion that they are obnoxious.

Still further: Those amusements are wrong which lead into expenditure beyond your means. Money spent in recreation is not thrown away. It is all folly for us to come from a place of amusement feeling that we have wasted our money and time. You may by it have made an investment worth more than the transaction that yielded you a hundred or a thousand dollars. But how many properties have been riddled by costly amusements? The table has been robbed to pay the club. The champagne has cheated the children's wardrobe. The carousing party has burned up the boy's primer. The table cloth of the corner saloon is in debt to the wife's faded dress. Excursions that in a day make a tour around a whole month's wages; ladies whose lifetime business it is to "go shopping," have their counterpart in uneducated children, bankruptcies that shock the money market and appall the church, and that send drunkenness staggering across the richly figured carpet of the mansion and dashing into the mirror, and drowning out the carol of music with the whooping of bloated sons come home to break their old mother's heart. When men go into amusements that they cannot afford, they first borrow what they cannot earn, and then they steal what they cannot borrow. First they go into embarrassment and then into theft, and when a man gets as far on as that he does not stop short of the penitentiary. There is not a prison in the land where there are not victims of unsanctified amusements. How often I have had parents come to me and ask me to go and beg their boy off from the consequence of crimes that he had committed against his employer—the taking of funds out of the employer's till, or the disarrangement of the accounts! Why, he had salary enough to pay all lawful expenditure, but not enough salary to meet his sinful amusements. And again and again I have gone and implored for the young man—sometimes, alas! the petition unavailing.

How brightly the path of unrestrained amusement opens! The young man says: "Now I am off for a good time. Never mind economy; I'll get money somehow. What a fine road! What a beautiful day for a ride! Crack the whip, and over the turnpike! Come, boys, fill high your glasses! Drink! Long life, health, plenty of rides just like this!" Hard-working men hear the clatter of the hoofs and look up and say, "Why, I wonder where those fellows get their money from. We have to toil and drudge. They do nothing." To these gay men life is a thrill and an excitement. They stare at other people and in turn are stared at. The watch-chain jingles. The cup foams. The cheeks flush, the eyes flash. The midnight hears their guffaw. They swagger. They jostle decent men off the sidewalk. They take the name of God in vain. They parody the hymn they learned at their mother's knee; and to all pictures of coming disaster they cry out: "Who cares!" and to the counsel of some Christian friend: "Who are you?" Passing along the street some night you hear a shriek in a grog-shop, the rattle of the watchman's club, the rush of the police. What is the matter now? Oh, this reckless young man has been killed in a grog-shop. Carry him home to his father's house. Parents will come down and wash the wounds and close his eyes in death and forgive him all he ever did, though he cannot in his silence ask it. The prodigal has got home at last. Mother will train her little garden and get the sweetest flowers and twist them into a chaplet for the silent heart of the wayward boy. She will push back from the bloated brow the matted locks that were once her pride. A new suit of air will be rent with the father's cry: "O my son, my son, my poor son; would to God I had died for thee, oh, my son, my son!"

You may judge of amusements by their effect upon physical health. The majority of many good people is physical recreation. There are Christian men who say hard things against their immortal souls when there is nothing the matter with them but an incompetent liver. The state of the body has a powerful effect upon the mind. There are people whose ideas of God and duty are all shut out with clouds of tobacco smoke. There are people who dissipate and shatter the physical vase in which is to be put the jewel of eternity. Oh, it seems to me outrageous that men through neglect should allow their physical constitution to go down beyond repair, spending the best and rest of their life not in some great work of enterprise for God and the world, but in considering what is the best thing to take for dyspepsia. A ship which ought with good outfit and every man at his post to be speeding a rich cargo for eternity, employing all its men in stopping up leakages! Alas! as you may through some of the popular and unhealthful recreations of our time waste your spleen and your querulousness and one-half of your physical and mental endowments, do not turn your back from the only grand medicament.

Again, judge of the places of amusement by the companionship into which they put you. If you belong to an association where you have to associate with the intemperate, with the unclean and with the abandoned, however well they may be dressed, in the name of God quit it. Such a life will despoil your nature. They will undermine your moral character. The world will drop you when you are destroyed. Business men will not give one cent to support your children when you are dead. They will not shed not one tear at your burial.

Again, any amusement that gives you a distaste for domestic life is bad. How many bright domestic circles have been broken up by sinful amusements. The father went off, the mother went off, the child went off. There are all around us the fragments of blasted households. Oh! if you have wandered away, I would like to charm you back by the sound of that one word, "Home." Do you not, O father, that your children are soon going out into the world, and all the influence for good you are to have over them you must have now? Death will break up your conjugal relations, and, alas! you have to stand over the grave of one who perished from your neglect. I see the wayward husband standing at the bedside of his Christian wife, and I see her point to a ring on her finger and hear her say to her husband, "Do you see that ring?" He replied, "Yes, I see it." "Well," said she, "do you remember when you put it there?" "Yes," said he, "I put it there." And all the past seemed to rush upon him. By the memory of that day in the presence of men and angels you promised to be faithful in joy and sorrow, and in sickness and in health; by the memory of those pleasant hours when you sat together in your new house talking of a bright future; by the cradle and the excited hour when one life was spared and another given; by that sick bed, when the little one lifted up the hands and cried for help and you knew he must die, as he put one arm around each of your necks and brought you very near together for that dying kiss; by the little grave in the cemetery that you never think of without a rush of tears; by the family Bible where in its stories of heavenly love and the brief but expressive record of births and deaths; by the neglects of the past and by the agonies of the future judgment day when husbands and wives will stand to be caught up in shining array, or to shrink down into darkness—by all that, I beg you to give to home your best affections.

Let me say to all young men, Your style of amusement will decide your character and destiny. One night I saw a young man at a reet corner evidently doubting as to whi direction he had better take. He had is hat lifted high enough so you ou see he had an intelligent forehead. Wh did he stop there while so many ver going up and down? The fact s t t every man has a good angel nd bad angel contending for the mas- ery of his spirit. And there was a oo ngel and a bad angel struggling th at young man's soul at the corner f t street. "Come with me," said the o angel, "I will take you home. I ill read my wing over your pathway. wi lovingly escort you all through life. wi bless every cup you drink out of, er couch you rest on, every doorway u ter. I will consecrate your tears he you weep, your sweat when you l d at the last I will hand over your av into the hand of the bright angel a Christian resurrection." "No, no," aid he bad angel, "come with me; I ve something better to offer; the wines p are from chalices of bewitching ar al; the dance I lead is over floor as ated with unrestrained indulgences; he s no God to frown on the temples f s where I worship. The skies are tal . The paths I tread are through ea ws daisied and primrosed; come t ne."

T young man hesitated at a time when esi ion was ruin, and the bad angel mo the good angel until it departed, pre ing wings through the starlight up- ar nd away, until a door flashed open in e y and forever the wings vanished. Ha as the turning point in that young m history; the good angel w he hesitated no longer, ut rted on a pathway which b tiful at the opening, but las d at the last. The bad ng leading the way, opened te fter gate, and at each gate e road became rougher nd he sky more lurid, and, a as peculiar, as the gate lan ed shut it came to with t ja that indicated that it ou never open. Passed each ort there was a grinding of ock nd a shoving of bolts; nd e scenery on either side e d changed from gardens o certs, and the June air bec e a cutting December bla and the bright wings of e d angel turned to sack ot nd the eyes of light be- m hollow with hopeless gri and the fountains, that it t start had tossed wine, pou l forth bubbling tears id aming blood, and on the igh side of the road there as serpent, and the man aid the bad angel, "What s t t serpent?" and the an- swe as, "That is the serpent of s ging remorse." On the eft le of the road there was a li , and the man asked the ad ngel, "What is that lion?" and he answer was, "That is the lion of all- couring despair." A vulture flew thr gh the sky, and the man asked the bad ngel, "What is that vulture?" and the nswer was, "That is the vulture wai g for the carcases of the slain." And hen the man began to try to pull off of h the folds of something that had wou him round and round, and he said to t bad angel, "What is it that twists me t this awful convolution?" and the ans r was, "That is the worm that never die " and then the man said to the bad ang "What does all this mean? I trusted m hat you said at the corner of the stre that night; I trusted it all, and why hav you thus deceived me?" Then the last eception fell off the charmer, and it sai "I was sent forth from the pit to des y your soul; I watched my chance for any a long year; when you hesitated tha night on the street I gained my trip h; now you are here. Ha! ha! You are here. Come, now, let us fill these two chalices of fire and drink together to rkness and woe and death. Hail! hai O young man, will the good angel sen orth by Christ, or the bad angel sent for by sin, get the victory over your sou Their wings are interlocked this mo ent above you, contending for your des y, as above the Apennines eagle and con r fight mid-sky. This hour may de- cid your destiny. God help you! To hes ate is to die!

Soul-Saving at the Camps.

Religious Work Among the Departing Troops—Farewell Scenes—A War Testament for Our Soldier-Boys—Activity of the Christian Commission.

GOSPEL work among the soldiers at various military posts throughout the country has continued during the past week, and the evangelists and preachers associated with the Christian Commission are holding daily services to crowded audiences. In this way, the Gospel is being preached to thousands of our brave volunteers and regulars, on the eve of their departure for foreign shores.

The workers at Tampa were exceedingly active on the days preceding the sailing of our thirty transports with General Shafter's 27,000 troops on the Santiago expedition. To many of these brave fellows, it was the last opportunity they may ever have for hearing the Word: to all it will be a consolation that, with the latest good-byes before sailing, were mingled the earnest prayers and kindly admonitions of the zealous workers of the Commission.

Application has been made by the Commission to send its workers to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines along with the armies, and arrangements will soon be completed to send nearest workers to these points at an early date. Mr. Moody, who is at the head of this noble religious movement, is profoundly impressed with its importance, which can be readily understood even by the casual reader, when it is remembered that our country has at present, nearly a quarter of a million men in the field. Mr. Moody says: "Probably a large number of these young men will not return to their homes, and this is the one opportunity to lead them to accept Christ as their Saviour."

Gen. O. O. Howard, another member of the Commission, has been holding services at Tampa, Mobile, and Chickamauga, Camp Alger, and Jacksonville, and nearly all the State camps, and Major D. W. Whittle, the evangelist, who was on Gen. Howard's staff during our civil war, has held meetings at Chickamauga. Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D., of Brooklyn, spent three weeks at Tampa, and the soldiers in large numbers came to hear him. Mr. Ira D. Sankey conducted daily meetings at Tampa. Mr. D. L. Moody will send other good men as the movement calls for them, and will also engage in it himself. Army chaplains have the use of the tents and the secretaries co-operate with them in their work.

Rev. H. M. Wharton, of Baltimore, has been added to the corps of evangelists at Chickamauga and is now laboring among the soldiers there. Rev. R. A. Torrey, of the Moody Institute, Chicago, goes to Tampa this week to aid in the work. It is understood that Rev. R. S. MacArthur, Rev. Cortland Jones and a number of other preachers will shortly go to the camps to assist in the work.

In a letter from Rev. John G. Anderson, pastor Presbyterian Church, Tampa, Fla., to Mr. Moody, the former says:

We carry on nightly service at four different places. At some of the camps the attendance will go at times as high as 3,000. I heard a soldier only a few nights since in one of our Christian Endeavor meetings stand up and earnestly testify to the saving power of the Gospel. "I thank God," he said, "that I ever came to Florida. It is here during the meetings that have been held that I became a Christian; and now if I die in Cuba it is all right. And if I go back home again it will be to tell all at home that I am a child of God."

The little song books are doing good service. After I had concluded my service one night in the camps it was a pleasant sight to see a great knot of the men still standing around the big lamp hanging from a limb of a tree, and singing over and over the songs and making the camp ring with them. One of them talking to another, said, "I have become a Christian." His friend asked him how it happened. He replied: "It was the singing of these hymns. The boys got hold of some hymn books, and they kept singing these songs till they sung me to Christ; and now sir, it is true, I am a Christian, and was won by a song." Mr. Sankey and Mr. Burke have done much good by their singing.

A minister was speaking to a soldier on the street car about the effects of the services and work being done in the camps, when one sitting near by reached out his hand and taking hold of the minister's, regardless of surroundings, said with great earnestness, "I wish you would pray for me."

A hundred soldiers arose for prayer one night lately. It was a sight I had never witnessed before in my ministry. Dr. Dixon said he had never preached before to such responsive and appreciative audiences, and I must give similar testimony. I have never seen fields whiter to the harvest.

Their eagerness to obtain a Testament is most refreshing. I believe that if the Christian people of the United States could only see what good is being done they would respond quickly to the call of this opportunity.

The King's business requires haste. I know it is impossible to prosecute this work without money; but if the churches take the matter up earnestly, all the money needed could be obtained. May God help us, and make us to use and improve our opportunity.

To this Mr. Moody adds: "I am sure such a testimony as this ought to encourage us to keep right at this work, not only in Tampa, but in all the other great camps throughout the country. Arrangements are also being made to begin work in the navy. Let us pray God to continue to pour out his blessing upon these men."

One of the special needs of both army and navy is Bibles and Testaments. We quote from a letter from one of the members of the Y. M. C. A., Twenty-third Street, New York, Branch:

U. S. S. Panther, KEY WEST.

We have 800 men on board our ship, which left New York April 22, and religion is sadly neglected. We have not had service of any kind since we came on board, and it is doubtful if there is a Bible on the ship. If the men had them, they would surely read them at present, for we simply do not know what to do with ourselves.

Mr. W. E. Lougee, Secretary, Business Department, Y. M. C. A., in charge of arrangements for Gospel work in the camps, writes to the proprietor of this journal:

Enclosed find our Treasurer's receipt for $1,000, kindly sent Mr. Moody by you for our work in the Army. It was forwarded to me by Mr. Moody. He also enclosed to me your letter of June 4th. I note with a great deal of interest the order for War Testaments, which you have issued. I hope you will send me a copy as soon as one is out. I agree with you that there is nothing like putting the Word of God in the hands of the people, and that is what we are doing. I have sent within the past week 10,000 Testaments from the American Bible Society to Tampa, and that is only a part of the number which have been sent.

You will be interested to know that we have just made arrangements to send our first man to Manila, who goes with Gen. Merritt, from San Francisco, taking with him a large tent and full equipment for a good work. We hope to be able to report the same thing for Cuba in the near future.

We believe that there has never been a grander opportunity for Christian work than this which is now opened to God's people in connection with the present war. All contributions for the preaching of the Gospel to the army should be addressed "Army Gospel Fund," and readers who specifically wish to have us send "War Testaments" to the soldiers in their behalf, should mark their contributions "War Testament Fund." All will be acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and any special inquiries by churches and societies will be answered by letter. At the suggestion of many friends, THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has undertaken to print and distribute among the troops, "A Soldier's War Testament." The New Testament is printed in clear type, one-column to the page, and is substantially bound. It is just suited to fit snugly into the soldier's pouch or pocket, being about the size that would go into an ordinary vest-pocket. In addition to the New Testament, there are bound into the little volume some twenty of the best Gospel hymns, specially selected by Mr. Sankey for this purpose—hymns of encouragement and inspiration, the singing of which will help the soldiers to face their duties with braver hearts and higher hopes. Many an evening at camp will be enlivened by these Gospel hymns, as our "Boys in Blue" sit together in groups, in the foreign land where they are likely to be sojourners for many months.

We invite our readers to co-operate with us in this work of supplying and distributing the "Soldier's War Testament," and all moneys forwarded to us for this purpose will be applied to the printing and circulating of the Gospel among the soldiers. It would be a blessed work, indeed, if every soldier, before leaving American soil, could be supplied with one of these precious "War Testaments," as a reminder of the lively interest the American people feel in his spiritual welfare.

The following have been received for the Army Gospel Fund.

Prev. ack	$743 26	Shattuck, Myrtie L	1 70
Abbe, E A	1 00	Shutt, E M	5 00
Andrews, B H	5 00	Simpson, Edw E	5 00
Bauer Bros	2 00	Smith, Lillie T	1 00
Brahy, M Lonise J	2 00	Smith, Margt Taylor	1 00
Cavit, Anna	50	Tobias, L C	5 00
Cavit, H	50	Ward, Chas E	1 00
Conover, S S	2 00	Webster, Mrs D	1 00
Dunnton, Fanny E	1 00	L H G, Gallipolis	2 00
Each, Jos E	50	Mrs S M L, Buffalo	1 00
Frost, Mrs Mary	1 00	In His Name, Clev'nd	1 00
Gaddis, Mary	1 00	" Champoeg	5 00
Glide, Mrs J H	20 00	" C M S, Palmyra	25
Gress, R L	1 00	" St Albans	2 00
Johnson, Mollie	1 00	" Portland	13 00
Johnson, Mrs Peter	1 00	Friend, Hardwick	1 00
Kent, Hervey	25 00	" Nunda	2 00
Marsh, Mr & Mrs	1 00	Reader, Oswego	1 00
Merrell, Clark	1 00	Salem C E So, Norton	2 00
Miller, Mr & Mrs C L	50	Circle of K's Ds of M E Ch, Southport	2 00
Miller, Mary & Amelia	1 00	Pres Ch, Bellevue	15 00
Nelson, Mrs C A	3 00	Mother, Chicago Hts	1 00
Niles, J O	1 00	For Jesus' Sake, Bklyn	1 00
Orton, M A	1 00	Klondike Glee Club, Lovells Sta	1 00
Osborn, S B	1 00
Rassuriler Lorene	1 00
Reuting Clemintina	5 00
Robey, Mr, Mrs Morrill	2 00	Total	$896.21

THE LONELY SENTRY, 8TH INFANTRY CAMP, TAMPA, FLA.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

SPAIN SAID TO BE CONVINCED OF THE HOPELESSNESS OF THE CONTEST AND ANXIOUS FOR PEACE.

Defences of Santiago, Aguadoros and Caimanera Destroyed—Sailing of the Transport Fleet with our Army of Invasion—Manila Ready to Surrender—The Caroline and Ladrone Islands to be Occupied—Spain Dreads a Revolution at Home.

VIGOROUSLY, yet without undue haste, our naval and military leaders are now prosecuting the war against Spain in every direction, by land and sea. Our fleet of transports sailed from Key West, after various delays, and American troops have been landed at ports in southeastern Cuba. In the last bombardment of the Santiago forts, our guns were trained against the Moro, the batteries of Punta Gorda, Zocapa and Cincoreales, and hundreds of shells tore up the masonry and dismantled the guns, riddling the strong fortifications and silencing the batteries. As on previous occasions, the American fire was exceedingly effective while that of the Spaniards, notwithstanding that it was directed by trained French and German artillerists, was practically harmless. Many of our shells reached the inner harbor and two of the Spanish ships were struck, the Reina Mercedes being sunk by a shell and her captain and several members of her crew killed, while the Viscaya is reported to have been slightly damaged. At the same time fighting took place on shore, the Cuban insurgents during the bombardment keeping up a sharp fire, which is said to have resulted in heavy losses in the Spanish ranks. Among those killed in the Spanish land forces were Col. Ordonez, Capt. Sanchez, Lieut. Yuzar, of the artillery, two officers named Perez and Garcia, and many others. During the bombardment the Spanish fleet came up near the second line of forts and under the protection of a slight elevation replied to the fire of the American warships.

The event of the week was the sailing from Tampa, Fla., of General Shafter's expedition with 15,000 troops for Santiago. Considerable delay was occasioned at the beginning of our Santiago expedition by reports which reached the Navy Department that Spanish warships had been sighted off Western Cuba. It was decided, at the last moment, to recall the troopships and wait for a strong convoy of warships from Sampson's fleet, the President and his advisers being unwilling to expose the lightly-guarded expedition to the possible peril of an attack by hostile ironclads. Thirty transports were employed in this movement, being convoyed by the battle ships Indiana and Texas, the cruiser Brooklyn, the Nashville, Detroit and a fleet of smaller warships. This invading force is the most formidable and completely equipped that has ever left American shores. In anticipation of the arrival of the troops and in order to prepare for a landing, Admiral Sampson detached five warships of his fleet including the Oregon, Marblehead and Yosemite, to shell the defences of the town of Caimanera in the Bay of Guantanamo, which was quickly accomplished.

After the bombardment, the cruiser Marblehead with the harbor while a force of 600 American marines was landed from the troopship Panther. A small party of marines from the Oregon had previously gone ashore and hauled down the Spanish flag beside the ruins of a blockhouse which our shells had riddled. Several buildings near the entrance to the bay were burned to prevent the possibility of infection from yellow fever. The town was almost deserted, its Spanish defenders having been frightened away by the bombardment of the harbor defences. Caimanera will be utilized as a naval base, and harbor of refuge for our fleet, and as a coaling station, for which the harbor is especially suitable. Several brass guns, a quantity of Mauser rifles and considerable ammunition were seized, and some documents giving details of the fortifications at other points were found among the debris of the blockhouse. Possession was also taken of the railroad leading to Santa Catalina. Crest Hill, a wooded height near the blockhouse, was quickly fortified by our marines and several big guns mounted, as it was learned that 3,000 Spanish troops were near by and might venture an attack.

Hardly had our troops settled down in their new camp on the hill and thrown out pickets, when they were suddenly attacked by Spanish guerrillas and regulars. Beginning at night, the fighting was almost continuous for thirteen hours, until 6 a. m. on June 12, when reinforcements were landed from the Marblehead, and the assailants were repulsed. Four Americans, including Assistant Surgeon John Blair Gibbs, were killed, and several who were on outpost duty are missing. The Spanish loss is said to have been considerable. Our force at Caimanera will be largely augmented by a Cuban detachment which is on the way to unite with the Americans, but it is not unlikely that the Spanish will make another attack before the transports with the army of invasion can arrive.

The defences of the little coast town of Aguadoros, near Santiago, were also shelled and demolished by Admiral Sampson, and a force of marines was landed from our ships. A Spanish force of infantry appeared and opposed the landing, but the American troops, who were quickly supported by a body of Cubans, drove them off with considerable loss. Our blockading fleet had several encounters with Spanish torpedo boats, and one of the latter is believed to have been sunk by a shell from the battleship Oregon, at short range.

It is probable, before this issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD reaches its readers, that Santiago will have passed from Spain's control and that the surrounding country will be fully occupied by our invading troops, who are sufficiently strong to overcome any resistance the Spanish forces may oppose to our operations there. A combined naval and military assault on the town was planned, in which 3,000 Cubans under Gen Garcia were to participate. After the fall of Santiago, it is proposed to hasten the Porto Rico campaign, and some of the troops that have been sent to Santiago may be available for this purpose. Less than 6,000 Spanish troops are now stationed on the island, the main force being now at San Juan under Governor-Gen. Macias. Our Porto Rico expedition of 12,000 men will be led by Maj.-Gen. Coppinger, an experienced military campaigner, and will be sufficiently powerful to effect the capture of the island quickly. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee will be appointed temporary Military Governor.

All indications now point to an early conclusion of the campaign, Spain having apparently reached the limit of her available naval and military resources. Captain-General Blanco has cabled urgently to Madrid for both war munitions and food supplies, as he is dangerously short, and the stringent blockade allows little hope of replenishment. He claims to have greatly strengthened his fortifications, but the grip of the American fleet around the island has gradually tightened and battery after battery has been demolished as soon as erected. What effect the downfall of Manila (which is now reported to have surrendered) and the movement on San Juan and Santiago have produced on Havana's defenders cannot be ascertained, but it must have revealed to them the utter hopelessness of the struggle and the certainty of ultimate disaster.

Rumors of peace negotiations have multiplied during the week. It is asserted that Spain is quietly, but energetically, endeavoring to bring about an understanding, and hopes for mediation, either through the Pope, or through Austria and France, on the basis of the relinquishment of Cuba and the restoration of the Philippines to Spanish control. The Madrid government, however, finds itself in a dilemma. No European power is yet willing to undertake the negotiation, unless the assurance is first received that the basis is such as can be entertained by both principals, and no power believes, at the present time, that the United States will consent to restore the Philippines, even if to the loss of Cuba and Porto Rico, Spain should add the payment of an indemnity. Sagasta and his associates dread lest, by conceding more than this, a Carlist revolution should be instantly precipitated, and Spain would have to endure war, with results even more terrible than those that have attended her Ar... campaign. Several of the powers have warned her that her cause is ho... and that if she means to save an... from the wreck, she should sue for ... without delay. It is believed in the ... pean capitals, and by not a few in W... ton, also, that the end of the war ... far off, and that when our troops ... finished their work at Santiago an... Juan, Spain will be prepared with ... of capitulation. It is even said that ... dent McKinley is hopeful that th... invasion of Cuba, for which ex... preparations are now being made, ... unnecessary. Meanwhile, our gove... is determined to prosecute the w... greater vigor than ever, and it is ... likely that when peace proposa... actually advanced by Spain, the Am... flag may be waving over the Carol... Ladrone islands, as well as Cuba, ... Rico and the Philippines.

By per. of Frank Leslie's Weekly.

OFF FOR THE FRONT—THE LAST MAN BOARDING A TRANSPORT.

NOTES OF THE WAR.

THE Astor Battery goes to Manila.

BLANCO'S troops are on short ration...

POPE LEO XIII. has offered his ser... Spain as mediator for peace.

IMPROVED arrangements at the ... camps now assure a plentiful supply ... for the troops.

EUROPEAN military critics believe th... does not intend to send the Cadiz s... to Cuba after all.

TWO HUNDRED Spaniards were kil... ing Commodore Sampson's bombardm... the San Juan forts.

GEN. FRED GRANT will probably g... front this week, in command of a div... the First Army Corps.

COL. E. F. EVANS, of San Franci... been appointed to take charge of the ... revenues of the Philippines.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, latel... date for President, goes to Manila as ... of the Third Nebraska Regiment. ... thousand troops have now been sen... Philippines.

Remembering Our "Boys in Bl..."

Many readers are taking advan... our special offer to send THE CH... HERALD to some friend, relative ... quaintance in the army. Twe... cents pays for a three months' s... tion, or the paper will be sent o... for a dollar. This rate is made exc... for the benefit of our "boys in Blu... sending them the paper weekly ... arrangement, home friends can be ... constant remembrance by the s... who may often be sent to places t... out of the reach of other communi... Regimental chaplains welcome the ... as one of the most efficient aids ... spiritual work. Addresses are ... as often as required. During the ... the following persons have se... tributions for the purpose of sendi... CHRISTIAN HERALD to the soldie...

Prev ack ...	$301 10
Ayers, Mrs J L	1 00
Baker Mrs S R	25
Burns Mrs	5
Passett Mrs., Burton	1 00
Benedict, Miss L P ..	2 00
Pogert Miss A F....	25
Longston Mrs. ...	10
Boyd, David ...	20
Bradley Miss H ...	25
Frankam, Albert ...	50
Burns, Mr ...	10
Cameron, Wm ...	5
Christman, Chas ...	25
Colb, Harlan I ...	25
Conkey, Mr	10
Connolly, Mr ...	25
Corrigan, Mr ...	50
Cox, Ed ...	5
Coyle, J ...	10
Croft Mrs Martha ...	50
Delbeare, Miss S R ...	1 00
Dunton, F E ...	1 00
Everett, D E ...	25
Everett, N F ...	1 00
Fletcher, Mr ...	10
Ford, Mrs Ellen ...	2 10
Gail, G B ...	25
Glenn, R C ...	2 50
Goddard Mrs M M ...	25
Gross, R L N ...	1 00
Hammond Mrs J H	25
Helman Emma ...	25
Herrington, Mrs M E	1 00
Hoffler, J C ...	1 00
Houston, Miss Janet	1 50
Huncington, Alice ...	25
Kenedy, Capt ...	25
Keppel Miss Lou ...	1 00
Krause, Geo ...	1 00
Landrum, Mrs N ...	1 00
Leutchford, Mrs H ...	1 00
Lind, Mr	25
Long, Misses Martha and Anna E.	1 25
McManess, Mrs James	5 00
Martin, Julie A ...	25
Mason, Mrs Mary ...	90
Maurer, Mrs Ellen ...	1 00
Meyer, Henry G ...	1 00
Mitchell, Miss M B ...	2 00
Morse, Mrs S E ...
Olson, Mrs Mar...
Peabody, Mrs M...
Peters, Maggie ... Margie ...
Poole, L H ...
Raphael, Mrs G ...
Rowland, F L ...
St Louis News ...
Schaffer, Mr ...
Sedgwick, Mrs A ...
Severence, B F ...
Shean, Mr ...
Simpson, E ...
Souder, Mrs J ...
Stewart, J ...
Stinchcomb, Mr E ...
Strew, Mr ...
Sumption, M T ...
Tannehill, S R ...
Terry, Fettie ...
Thompson, Ida ...
Tilden, Mrs R I ...
Webster, Mrs D ...
Wells, Miss ...
Whipple, Miner ...
Wight, Mrs I H ...
William, Judson ...
Woodhouse, E L ...
Woods, John H ...
Wright, Mrs T L ...
Wyer, Miss ...
Young, J J ...
Cash ...
—— Churington ...
—— Keota ...
—— Pittson ...
A H I, Newark ...
Box 21 Universal ...
H E M, Kennett ...
Friend, Navarro ...
" Navarro ...
" San Antonio ...
2 Friends, Post M...
A Constant Re...
Jefferson ...
C E Soc, Bruce ...
7th Pa Reg F B ... America, Phila ...
Total ...	$ 7.60

Our Army of Invasion—Scenes at Its Headquarters in Tampa, Fla.

1. amp Sentinel at Tampa.—2. 25th Infantry (colored) firing from breastworks, Tampa.—3. Gen. Shafter and Staff; (a) Lieut. Greene, Signal Corps; (b) Col. Babcock, Adj. General; (Capt. Stair; (a) Lieut. Miley; (e) Gen. Shafter; (f) Lieut. Noble; (g) Gen. Ludlow, Chief of Engineers.—4. Tampa Bay Hotel, headquarters of Staff Officers.—5. A Field Kitchen.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. De Witt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE, G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter

Owing to the pressure on our columns this week, we are obliged to defer the publication of the balance sheet of the India Famine Relief Fund, which had been prepared for insertion in this issue.

Gladstone the Only.

THE world is in tears. William E. Gladstone, after doing the most illustrious work of the century, has ascended. Wondrous was he in body. From a two hours' walk with him at Hawarden, which was more a run than a walk, I know what was his physical strength at eighty-four. From the trees whose biography he gave me, and his admiration even for the dog that he whistled up to follow us in our excursion, I know he was in sympathy with nature, animate and inanimate. From the questions he asked about this country and his expression of interest in our welfare, I know he loved America. From his preference for religious subjects above all others, I know his faith in God and his fondness for our holy religion. From his facetiousness on many themes of social and political life, I know his humor and wit. From the sculptured marble representing his wife and his saying "that is Mrs. Gladstone as she was at twenty-two years of age, and she is now just as beautiful," I know what must have been the agony of the last parting. From his translation of the hymn "Rock of Ages" into the Greek language, a copy of which hymn he presented me, I know he believed in the Christly atonement.

Better friend Ireland never had, and he said to me, "At my age a man loves peace, and I have no taste for controversy, but when I saw Ireland ready to do its duty I threw myself into the struggle." I see him now, standing at his front door, his white hair flowing in the cold wind, as I begged that he go back, and told him that there was pneumonia in the air, but persisting in staying there until he had said: "Give my love to all Americans, especially to your President and Cyrus W. Field, and know that I am interested in every turn of your prosperities."

And had he been upon his feet in these times, with what emphasis he would have declared his sympathy with our government in its attempt to put an end to Cuban suffering and Spanish atrocity. Here was a man who could gloriously change his mind again and again and not be ashamed of it, never adhering to old theories because he had once espoused them. Here was the greatest intellect of the century, consecrated to Christianity. Here was a man often hated and defamed, and I have a whole volume filled with caricatures of him, yet keeping right on in his splendid work for God and humanity, until all civilized nations mourn his going.

Here was a death-bed, the last word of which after the prayers of his church had been read him, was a glorious and triumphant "Amen!" Let all the cathedrals toll their bells and roll their requiems, and Westminster Abbey swing wide open its doors to let him lie down among the kings and orators and statesmen, himself greater than any of them. Magnificent soul! The earth is poorer for his departure, but heaven is grander for his arrival.

The Golden Rule and the War.

SO far as the Cubans are concerned our consciences must be very clear. Cuba is the man who went down from Jerusalem to Jericho and fell among thieves, who stripped him of his raiment and left him half dead. The photographs in the front windows on our public streets need no argument. These are the Lord's creatures, and what we do for them we do for him. The work of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD is the work of the Good Samaritan. This organ has shown itself equally anxious to distribute the bread earthly and bread celestial. And the generous givers all over the country will eventually hear, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

But how about the Spaniards and the Golden Rule? Are our consciences as clear respecting them? Are we doing by them as we should like to be done by? Kossuth tried to make the overture of the Bethlehem angels read thus: "Peace on earth to men of good-will." The Golden Rule requires us to interrupt all violations of it. If a man is a thief, a robber, a cutthroat, an assassin, the Golden Rule requires that we interpose and break up his practices: not alone for the sake of those whom he persecutes, but for his own sake. He is serving the devil. Whosoever delivers him from that service, morally and by persuasion if possible, by force if need be, does him a good turn. The Spaniards have once before depopulated Cuba, in their efforts to govern it. They have the fighting function, but not the governing. They know not how to govern themselves.

If, as some people believe, horses are to figure in the other world, what a host of witnesses will appear against Spain. Her bull-fights indicate her tastes. She cultivates cruelty. Such scenes are degrading and brutalizing. It never has been argued that bulls are to figure in the heavenlies; if so, perhaps, buffaloes; and there we have the handwriting against us. But we never did it for cruel sport, or to feast ourselves with the sight of blood and the torture of animals. Still, we must to some extent, confess judgment here. We never made buffalo-baiting national, a part of our Sundays. Well the Golden Rule requires us to get rid of this kind of civilization; peaceably, if we can, forcibly, if we must. And so, Admirals Dewey and Sampson with their warships.

* * *

How many worry themselves into unhealth. They mistake morbidity for religion. Always on the guard about the questions of health, and questioning himself about this and that symptom, taking every flutter of the heart and every heavy cold as evidence of the fact that life will soon pass away and he will be called before God for judgment. It is folly for a man to be guessing about his departure, since the strongest men fall down in apoplexy and the weakest live for fifty, or sixty, or seventy, or eighty years. We have noticed the fact that it is the invalids who live longest, because they are necessarily called to be careful about their health.

BURDENS.

THERE are two kinds of burdens—those that God lays on us, and those which we lay on ourselves. When God lays the burden on the back, he gives us strength to carry it. There never was a Christian who, in his weariest and dreariest hours, could not say, "His grace is sufficient." If God smiles on him, he can smile under any burden that he may have to carry. He can go up the "hill of difficulty" singing, and walk confidently into the very land of the shadow of death. For God's burdens are easy to bear; because he walks with us, and when the journey is too great, and the burden too heavy, and our hearts begin to fail and faint, he is sure to whisper, "Cast thy burden upon me, and I will sustain thee."

The burdens that are hard to bear are those we lay upon ourselves. What a burden to themselves, and to everyone around them, are the lazy and the unemployed! If it is a man prayers should be offered up for his family and his dependents—for who is so morbid and melancholy, so pettish and fretful, so devoured by spleen and ennui, as the man with nothing to do? There is a lion in every way to him. He is out of God's order of creation; the busy world has no sympathy with him; society has no use for him; no one is the better for his life, and no one is sorry for his death. He is simply the fungus of living, active, breathing humanity. The lazy lay a burden on their backs which would appall men who have fought winds and waves, and searched the bowels of the earth, and bound to their will the subtle forces of electricity and steam.

The burdens we bind for ourselves we shall have to bear alone. God is not going to help us, and angels stand afar off; good men and women are not here bound by the injunction, "Bear ye one another's burdens." The envious, the proud, the drunkard, the seducer, the complainer, the lazy, etc., must bear their self-inflicted burdens, till they perish with them.

If the kingdom of heaven could be taken by some wonderful coup d'etat, many would be first, that are now last. But of great deeds little account is to be made. They are indigenous in every condition of society. It is a great life that is never a failure. A great life composed of a multitude of little burdens, cheerfully borne, and little charges faithfully kept. And this is a kind of Christian warfare, that is specially to be carried on in the sphere of the home. Many a professor, faithful in all the weightier matters of the law and the sanctuary, and blameless in the eyes of the world, is a rock of offence in his own household. His wife doubts his religion, his children fear him, and his servants call him a hard master. He pays all his tithes of mint, anise and cummin to the church and society, but as regards the little burders of his own household, he is worse than a publican.

Small burdens make up the moral and religious probation of a majority of women, for they have but rare occasion for the exercise of such faith and fortitude as commands the eye of the world. But these burdens, though apparently small and contracted in their sphere, are not only very important in their results, but also often singularly irritating. Sickly, fretful children—impertinent, lazy servants—a thoughtless, irregular husband—a hundred other burdens so small she does not like to say how heavy she feels them to be and how sorely they weary her. These are "her warfare," and because the Master has laid them upon her, shall she not bear them? The world may call them "little burdens," but there is nothing small in the eyes of Infinity.

In no way can a woman cultivate beauty and strength of character so well as in the patient bearing and carrying of the small burdens that every day await her—the headaches and toothaches—the weariness and weakness incident to her position and condition. For it is the glory of a woman that her weakness or weariness never shrouds a household in gloom, or makes the atmosphere electrical with impatience and irritability. To carry her burden, whatever it may be, cheerfully, is not a little victory, and such daily victories make the last great one easy to be won. It is hard to die before we have learned to live; but death is easy to those who have conquered life. To such the grave is but a laying down of all burdens, a rest from labor and obligation, while yet their works of love and unselfishness do follow them with fruit and blessing.

We must not forget that in our journey through life there are burdens which we may lawfully make our own. We may help the weak and the struggling on to their feet, when they have fallen in the battle of life. We may comfort those "touched by the finger of God." We may copy the Good Samaritan, not forgetting the oil and two pence. We may wipe the tears from the eyes of the widow and the fatherless. In bearing such burdens as these, we shall find ourselves in good company; for in the tabernacles of sanctified suffering, we may come near to the Divine Burden Bearer; and going on messages of mercy, we may meet angels going the same way.

Amelia E. Barr

Our Great Library Offe

WE are pleased to note that very l of our subscribers are availing n selves of this exceptional oppo nity to secure the choicest ki books at a merely nominal figure. It is a thing to have good books in the house and the Libraries of ten books which we off $1.00 contain some of the best ever publi while every volume is interesting, instru and entertaining.

Just now everybody seems interested i tory and especially American History. more suitable, more instructive volum fill the requirements than The American citizens' Hand-book—contained in Library or The Land We Live In—contained brary No. 2. Then the marvelous and achievements of Dewey and Hobson rea interest in the Book of Golden Deeds tained in Library No. 1. While the won events that are now taking place mak Notable Events of the Nineteenth Cen contained in Library No. 2, peculiar ap propriate and timely reading. Each L contains ten splendid, beautifully boun umes, aggregating 3,200 pages, delivere for $1.00—just half of what they sold f month. But we need the room — we have it—to accommodate the surpris have in store for our readers next seaso hence these Books must go, however the sacrifice.

Our Wonderful Proposition Re as Follows:

We have in our stock room a num CHRISTIAN HERALD Libraries No. 1 and Each set contains ten excellent book artistically bound, and altogether new book-case in which these Libraries are put up by us is missing, but the books selves have never been unpacked. Here these Libraries have always sold at Two Dollars each, but now in order to clo the stock we Cut the Price in Two an either set of the books at One Dollar. value cannot be obtained even at a ba sale, and this offer is made exclusively subscribers. The stock is limited, and you already have one set or the other state your preference, and authorize send the other in case the one you pr sold out when your order reaches us.

Library No. 1 is bound in Turkey-Re gilt back and side stamp.

Library No. 2 is bound in Olive-Gree red and gilt.

Better books were never offered at the price.

Here is the Complete List of Book

Our Turkey-Red Library consists of t lowing ten splendid books:

1. Around the Tea-Table, By T. De Witt Talmage, D.D.
2. Book of Golden Deeds, By Charlotte M. Yonge.
3. How to Get on in the World, By Major A. R. Calhoun.
4. The Golden Treasury, By C. H. Von Bogatzky.
5. The Children's Portion. By Robert W. Shoppell.
6. A Budget of Christian Tales, By Chas. Dickens and others.
7. Capital Stories, By Nathaniel Hawthorne and others.
8. The Citizen's Handbook, By Henry Mann.
9. Reading and Recitations, By B. J. Fernie.
10. Entertainment and Etiquette, By G. H. Sandison.

Our Olive-Green Library consists of t lowing ten splendid books:

1. The Wedding-Ring, By Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D.
2. Notable Nineteenth Century Events By John Clark Ridpath, D.D.
3. Holiday Stories for the Young, By Margaret E. Sangster.
4. Winter Evening Tales, By Amelia E. Barr.
5. Recitations for the Social Circle, By James Clarence Harvey.
6. How to Succeed. By Orison Swett Mardeo, M.D.
7. The Fairy-Land of Science, By Arabella B. Buckley.
8. The Land We Live In, By Henry Mann.
9. The Secret of a Happy Home, By Marion Harland.
10. Thoughts of Many Minds, By Louis Klopsch.

Remember each set, heretofore s $2.00, is now offered at half-price, n One Dollar. Order to-day. Each Libra tains altogether 3,200 pages clear type cellent reading, with illustrated Title P

We Prepay all Express Charges.

This Offer is Good for the Month of Jun only.

Address THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York.

LADSTONE'S GRAVE.

YIELDING to the wish of the public, expressed in Parliament, in the press, and in public meeting, Mrs. Glad one and her children consented to their eloved dead being interred in England famous Abbey, rather than in the quie hurchyard at Hawarden, which he lovec The great statesman belonged to the tion, and the fact was recognized by h family. They asked, however, that the ublic funeral which had been voted, shou be very simple, in compliance with his pressed wish. There was, therefore, one of the gorgeous display which is usual on such occasions, but there has been such an assemblage of England's most lustrious men for many years. The Prin of Wales and his son walked beside the coffin as pall-bearers, and behind them were the Marquis of Salisbury, the former, Lord Rosebery, and the chief leaders of both political parties. Four hundred members of the House of Commons and 200 lords were in the procession that brought the body from Westminster Hall, the scene of his triumphs, to Westminster Abbey, his last resting-place. The grave had been dug in the pavement of one of the aisles under which have been buried the remains of Lord Chatham and his son William Pitt, the Cannings, and other illustrious British statesmen. The statues line the aisle and commemorate their services to the nation. Mr. Gladstone's body could have had no more appropriate resting-place. The intense sorrow on all faces and the heartiness with which all joined in singing his favorite hymn "Rock of Ages," gave a solemnity to the ceremony more impressive than could have been given by a more imposing pageant. Since his death the newspapers have been full of reminiscences of Mr. Gladstone's characteristic acts and words. One of these, related by his son-in-law, deserves to be remembered as an illustration of the spirit of his whole career. Leaving his bedside on the last Sunday morning of his life to go to church, Mr. Drew told the dying statesman that he would be remembered by the congregation in their prayers. Mr. Gladstone answered: "Yes, pray for me and for all our fellow creatures." Then, after a pause he added: "Do not forget those who are oppressed, and unhappy, and down-trodden." It was very touching, that he who had done so much in his life and might for such people, should in his last hour of feebleness ask others to pray for them! It was the request of a man whose faith in God's power and love was unshaken, like that of him who said:

When he giveth quietness, who then can make trouble? and when he hideth his face, who then can behold him? Whether it be against a nation or against a man only (Job 34:29).

MR. GLADSTONE'S GRAVE IN STATESMEN'S AISLE, WESTMINSTER ABBEY.

Invited to His Own Funeral.

A strange inadvertence is reported by a journal of Portland, Me. It says that a man who was at one time prominent in the professional life of that city died. He was a member of a certain society, which sent representatives to the funeral. The members of the organization were notified of the death of their fellow-member by post cards sent out by the Secretary. One of the cards was addressed to and delivered at the late residence of the deceased, inviting him to attend his own obsequies. The strangest part of the thing was that it was directed to him in his own handwriting. He had been the Secretary of the organization, and had addressed sets of postal cards to the members at his leisure. When a member died a set of the addressed cards was taken, and the name of the deceased filled in the blank left for the purpose. The Secretary withdrew from the set the card addressed to the dead member, but when he died, his successor or deputy omitted to do this and mailed the entire set of cards. The Secretary, of course, knew every time he addressed a set of cards that he was writing one more than would be required, and he may have wondered which one it would be. He was a happy man if, like the Apostle, he could feel that it would be no loss to him if it was his own card that would be superfluous.

For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain (Phil. 1:21).

Married on a Ferry-Boat.

Among the incidents of the war-fever chronicled by the daily press is one of a romantic marriage. A young man residing in Jersey City, N. J., felt it his duty to enlist. He mentioned his wish to the lady to whom he was engaged, expecting to have some difficulty in getting her to consent to his entering the service. But as her father had fought in the Civil war and her grandfather in the war of Independence, she had inherited a patriotic spirit and applauded his project. Thus encouraged he went to New York and enlisted at the first recruiting office he saw. It happened to be in a cavalry regiment that he was accepted and to his consternation he learned that it would start for the front in two days. He had not expected to leave for several weeks and he hoped that in the interval he would be able to get married. He realized that the time was too short and he expressed his disappointment to the lady when she and her friends came to see the regiment start. She sympathized with him and at once sent one of her friends to find a clergyman. The regiment was already on board the ferry-boat which was to take it to the railroad depot in Jersey City, when the friend returned with the minister. The necessary formalities were speedily settled and the marriage was solemnized on the boat as it made its passage across the river. The bride accompanied her husband to the train and saw him start on his long journey to the front. Then she returned to her home. To ordinary, prosaic people it would have seemed wiser to postpone the marriage until the soldier's return from the war, but lovers have reasons of their own for their conduct, that defy criticism. It will doubtless be a satisfaction to the bride to bear her husband's name during his absence, and he will feel that now no rival can supersede him in her affections. It is much to be wished that those who form the bride of Christ always had the same realization of belonging to him and of living worthily of him that this lady will feel while she is waiting for her husband.

I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness and in judgment and in loving kindness and in mercies. I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness. (Hosea 2:19).

A Millionaire Bankrupt.

One of the most surprising events of the financial world for many months past was the bankruptcy of Mr. Ernest Terah Hooley, of London. The fame of this bold financier was almost as brilliant in this country as in his own. People talked with wonder of his bargains, by which he has been known to make a million dollars in a single day, and of the skill by which in one year his operations brought him fifty millions. His method was to look out for a business capable of development, such as the manufacture of pneumatic tires at the beginning of the bicycle fashion. He would buy the business at a price satisfactory to the owners, and would then put it on the market, as a company, at double the price he had paid for it, receiving the difference in shares, which he easily sold at a further profit. He was also a large buyer of real estate, from which he derived enormous profits by buying large sections and selling in small holdings. The public seemed to have implicit confidence in his judgment and eagerly sought to share in any scheme he handled. He was popularly supposed to possess fabulous wealth, so that when a few days ago he filed a petition asking to be declared a bankrupt, the astonishment of the public was unspeakable. Mr. Hooley ascribes his failure to the sums he paid to blackmailers. These were chiefly on the press. He cites one instance in which he paid fifty thousand dollars for one article in a certain journal, recommending one of his schemes. He declares that when his affairs are wound up, there will be sufficient funds to pay all legitimate claims and leave a balance of two million dollars. That is a sanguine view of the situation which is little likely to be realized. It is remarkable how frequently these brilliant financiers who make their money by adroit tricks and not by legitimate production, end in the same way. Though the conditions of modern society have so wonderfully changed, the ancient prophet's warning is still being fulfilled:

As the partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth riches and not by right, shall leave them in the midst of his days (Jer. 17:11).

BRIEF NOTES.

We regret to learn that people are being swindled by persons claiming to be authorized agents of this journal. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD does not send out any canvassing agents. If our readers will warn their friends against intrusting subscriptions for this journal to strangers, they may save them from being victimized.

There are now in China seven Protestant colleges besides the Imperial University at Peking. St. John's Episcopal, at Shanghai; Southern Methodist, at Shanghai; Methodist Church North, at Peking, Nanking, and Fuhchow; Presbyterian Church North, at Shantung and Canton.

The recent Italian census shows that there are now in Italy 62,000 Protestants among the 31,000,000 inhabitants. The Waldenses number 27,000 souls in forty-eight churches and forty-five missions. There are now not less than fifteen Protestant churches in the city of Rome, while before 1870 there were none.

Arrangements are already being made for beginning Missionary work in Manila, in expectation of better conditions. Should the Philippines continue a Spanish possession no effort will be made, but should they belong to us or become independent, missions will be established there by the American Board, The Methodists and the Baptists.

Statistics of divorce recently published show notable differences in various countries. In Switzerland there were forty divorces to every thousand marriages. In France the proportion was 21; in Prussia, 18; in all Germany, 17; in Denmark, 13; in Belgium, 11; in Sweden, 10; in Austria, 5; in England, less than 2.

Yale College is preparing plans to build a $15,000 mission in the down town district of New York which will be held in trust by the Graduates' Advisory Committee of the College Young Men's Christian Association.

Tacoma has a Woman's Missionary Social Union whose purpose is to promote interdenominational missionary interest. Among other good works it has arranged for a missionary department in the public library.

A Christian Endeavor Society has been organized among the boys of Harpoot school, Turkey, by Mr. Hunting, late of Beloit College, now assistant of Dr. Lates. They go out two by two on Sundays and give Bible readings, and preach in the neighboring villages.

Mr. Gladstone's daughter writing to a friend quoted her father as saying shortly before his death that he did not believe he would have lived nearly so long if he had not always kept his Sundays quite apart from his ordinary, and specially his political life.

The Summer Assemblies at Keuka Park, N. Y., begin on July 1, with an address by Rev. A. C. Dixon, of Brooklyn. The Bible School will begin July 12, and continue three weeks. Among the teachers will be Dr. R. A. Torrey, of Chicago; B. F. Estes, of Hamilton; W. C. Betting, of New York; and T. J. Villers, of Indianapolis.

The Religious Tract Society of England issued during its ninety-ninth year, just closed, nearly 60,000,000 books and other publications. The combined trade and missionary income was $666,135. The centenary fund of $250,000 is approaching completion, $170,000 having been raised. The number of languages and dialects in which the society has publications is 229.

Mission Inspector Merensky of the Evangelical Union of Berlin, is quoted by the Independent as saying that the division of the Evangelical churches into sects was not marked in the mission field, as the different societies worked hand in hand, all resting on the New Testament. In Cape Colony the Evangelical missions have gathered 530,000 converts, while the Catholics have at most 3,000.

Mr. D. L. Moody writes: "I wish to extend to the young men of our country a hearty invitation to spend their vacations this season at Camp Northfield. For the last ten summers the college students have enjoyed coming to Northfield so much that I am very anxious now to extend the privileges offered at our town to the great mass of young men outside of the schools and colleges. May I suggest that churches, Endeavor societies and Young Men's Christian associations have a tent at Camp Northfield, and keep it full throughout the season by sending different delegations to stay one or two weeks." A man in camp need not spend more than four dollars a week.

At the recent annual meeting of the China Inland Mission, the report showed that in 1896 the number of baptisms was 1262, and this was the largest number hitherto recorded; in 1897 this number was 1325. Some of these were first-fruits of newer work. Seventy new missionaries and associates had been added during the year. During the present year there had been a further accession of twenty-nine new missionaries, bringing the total from 744 on January 1 to 773 on April 11. The number of native workers and mission stations has undergone a corresponding increase; the total of paid and unpaid helpers at the close of 1896 was 507, but at the end of last year, 605; while the number of stations and out-stations has increased from 277 to 318.

The Sunday School

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED.

S. S. Lesson for July 3. I. Kings. 12: 16-25. Golden Text, Prov. 15: 1.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

DIVISION and unity are both in the plan of God's working. David, the man after God's own heart, was an especially prepared instrument to work out his will, and to be in many ways a type of Jesus, the Son of David. But "Solomon in all his glory" (Matt. 6: 29), although himself a type of Jesus, failed in the separation unto God to which he was called as king over his people. He "loved many strange women . . . and his wives turned aside his heart. Yet it came to pass when Solomon was old, that his wives turned away his heart after other gods: and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father." In judgment for this sin of Solomon's, God declared that he would rend the kingdom from him, not in his days, but in his son's days (I. Kings 11: 1-4; 9-13; 30-36.) This was the origin of divided Israel.

God uses men as his instruments, but never without their voluntary co-operation. Although by some means or other God would have taken away the ten tribes from Rehoboam, yet he might have done it in quite another way had not this young man, by his own foolish conduct, made himself the means of severe judgment coming upon his land—the land of promise. "All Israel" came together to his coronation; he had a splendid opportunity to serve his God by a humble and faithful rule over them; but pride and self-sufficiency possessed him, and led to his humiliating downfall. He had not been long upon the throne, when Jeroboam, to whom God had promised the ten tribes by his word through Ahijah the prophet, was recalled by the people from Egypt, and Rehoboam knew that mischief was brewing.

What an opportunity to act as his grandfather David had acted, and, making the Lord his Shepherd and his Guide, to seek his counsel and strength from God in this great crisis for himself and for his people! How many years of usefulness and peace might he not have enjoyed, had he taken the lowest place, yielded himself to God, and borne his yoke! But Rehoboam did not know God. He sought counsel first from his father's counsellors, and then from his young and inconsiderate acquaintances. The counsel of the old men who had heard and taken in the wisdom of Solomon, had in it precious elements of truth: "If thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and wilt speak good words unto them, then they will be thy servants forever." Jeroboam and his followers would have been disarmed had the king followed this counsel.

Oh, how true it is that he who would rule must learn to serve! When the mistaken disciples were contending even at the table where our Lord instituted that remembrance of him in the breaking of bread which is to be "till he come," he taught them the principles of rule from the heaven side. "The kings of the Gentiles have lordship over them; and they that have authority over them are called benefactors. But ye shall not be so, but he that is the greater among you, let him become as the younger; and he that is chief as he that doth serve. For whether is greater, he that sitteth at meat or he that serveth? Is not he that sitteth at meat? But I am among you as he that serveth" (Luke 22: 24-27, R. V.) And then he told them of a future kingdom, where those who learn thus to serve now shall reign indeed.

The old men with whom Rehoboam had taken counsel had stood before his father; but, surrounding Rehoboam, were young, inconsiderate, senseless young men who "stood before him" (ver. 8). Their object was not the good of the people, but simply to curry favor with Rehoboam. When the king laid before them the petition which the people, with Jeroboam at their head, had brought to him, "Make the yoke that thy father put on us lighter," the silly young men encouraged Rehoboam in a policy of self-assertion and self importance, which he had no power to maintain.

When God sent judgment upon Israel, after David had numbered the people, the king prayed and said: "Lo, I have sinned, and I have done perversely, but these sheep, what have they done? Let thy hand, I pray thee, be against me and my father's house" (II. Samuel 24: 17). When Solomon came to the throne his great petition was for a wise and hearing heart to judge God's so great a people (II. Kings 3: 9, R. V. margin). David was his people's shepherd: he had learned to serve them. Solomon, under the greatest sense of responsibility, prayed that as judge over them he might do the right thing; he was also in the spirit of service. Rehoboam looked on the people as those who should minister to him, to his pride, vanity and selfishness; was he not the son of the great Solomon? was it not due to him that he be obeyed? But the foolish young man never considered whether he had either influence or force of any kind with which to sustain his empty boasting.

Thus it was patent to the people that Jeroboam was more of a man than their silly young king, and consequently they revolted against him. To assert his authority Rehoboam sent Adoram who was over all the laying of the taxes, but the poor man was stoned to death, and the king himself had to make an ignominious retreat from Shechem, the northern capital, and fly to Jerusalem, there to learn the depth of his folly. He did not easily, however, relinquish the position in which he had so boasted himself. He assembled a hundred and eighty thousand soldiers to fight against Israel and make them submit by force of arms. But he found a stronger opponent than he had reckoned upon. "The word of God came unto Shemaiah, the man of God, saying, Speak unto Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and unto all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the rest of the people, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel; return every man to his house; for this thing is of me. So they hearkened unto the Word of the Lord, and returned and went their way, according to the Word of the Lord."

"This thing is of me!" A wrong thing in itself, but permitted to work out his ends! Let us learn to accept whatever God permits. When the Lord shall have restored Israel to their own land, and when his ancient people, who have been for eighteen centuries scattered like dry bones, are brought together as a people—and surely we see this being accomplished before our eyes—then God will make them one nation again.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

THE question will naturally be asked by intelligent children, why, among all the peoples of the world, we should take the history of the Hebrew people for our study. As Christians, there is obvious reason for studying the life of Christ and the teaching of his Apostles, but what benefit can come to young people, in a free republic, in the nineteenth century, from the study of the reigns of Oriental kings, who lived twenty-seven hundred years ago? It will be well to answer this question at the beginning of a period of study which is to occupy the next six months. The chief reason is that we may learn the principles on which God still governs the world. The conditions of national life have been changed, but the fundamental principles are the same in all ages. When a nation disregards God and disobeys his laws, it is punished now, as it was punished in the early times. There is an immutable law which involves in misery and ruin the nation which gives itself to wickedness. This fact is seen more clearly in the history of the Hebrew people than in the history of other peoples, because the history of that nation was written by men inspired by God, and gifted with clear insight into the results of the policy which the nation and its rulers adopted. The boys in our schools to-day may thus learn from the history of that ancient people lessons which will be valuable to them when they have to take their share in deciding the policy of the United States in the next half century.

PALESTINE AS IT WAS DIVIDED UNDER REHOBOAM.

The king hearkened not. The fact is not surprising. Though he was the son of the wise king Solomon, he had seen his father offering sacrifices to strange gods and living the voluptuous life of an Oriental despot. Then, in such a court as that of Solomon, the young man would be a great deal under the influence of his idolatrous mother, Naamah. She was an alien in race and religion, and had clearly implanted in her son's mind ideas which unfitted him for ruling over such a nation as the Hebrew. He came to the throne with the conviction that it was his right, as his father's heir. That was his first mistake. The principle of hereditary succession had never been admitted by the nation. Of his immediate predecessors Saul and David had been chosen by the people. The accession of Solomon had been allowed, because the prestige which David had gained and his choice of his successor was respected, but the people had not waived their right to choose their own king. Rehoboam did not realize this fact, nor did he appreciate know that the northern people were already restive under his father's rule. They had been asking them why they should give labor and money to make the southern capital a city of palaces, to build walls and adorn its streets. In any case, their consent to Rehoboam's accession was necessary, and they were indisposed to give it unconditionally.

It was not much that they asked. They were willing, for the sake of peace, to acquiesce in Rehoboam succeeding, if he would promise reforms. Under Solomon the country had been drained of its wealth and of the services of its men to enrich the southern tribes, to which the king's family belonged. They were tired of this injustice, discrimination and wanted only an equitable arrangement. It was foolish not to listen to prot reasonable, but Rehoboam intoxicated with pride and h tions of his own importance heir to the kingdom, and he a deaf ear to the men w been his father's advisers an how difficult it was to kee northern men in subjection arrogant counsel of the yo bles who had been his co panions was more in accor his disposition, and so "t hearkened not" to the hun tition of his northern st Charles I., of England, made ilar mistake, and his son Ja repeated it. Both though could govern as they chose regard to the wishes of the In each instance the peop reluctant to oppose their ki would have submitted if yielded in matters in which clearly wrong, but when he a ed to force them to obey, the in rebellion. Charles lost and James his throne as a quence of their obstinacy.

So Israel rebelled. The ern section which was fro time known as Israel, cove area of about 9,400 square about as large as the State mont. The southern section, wh mained loyal to Rehoboam, and was Judah, was 3,600 square miles in ex about half the size of New Jersey. ered the area assigned by Joshua t and Simeon, but the latter tribe ha gained complete possession of under David and Solomon had gr been absorbed into the tribe of The entire population of both s appears to have been about six m of whom probably about two m lived in the southern section, over Rehoboam continued to reign. T ruption appears to have occurred the year 937 B.C. If statesme learned the lesson of Rehoboam, would not have lost the America nies; Turkey would not have lo mania and Bulgaria, and Spain wo have lost the vast possessions she all parts of the world. The pri arrogance of rulers who will not the grievances of their peoples caused the undoing of autocrats in ern as well as in ancient times, end of the process is not yet.

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

INDIAN DANCERS.

They Dance for Amusement, War, and Worship—Missionary Progress.

ONE of our illustrations shows an Indian war dance at Billings Fair, Montana. Sioux come from Dakota to Billings to dance in contest against the Crows, and a lamentable amount of in provisions, etc., goes on. Art- p Indians to dance for them, while aw, or paint, or photograph them. e eart is a champion war dancer: t Crow and the Sioux are specially r their dances and ball games, the in particular, being called "the k Indians." They have a dance erything, and the drumbeat can be rd y hour of the day or night in a village.

real war dance, as seen in an Indian s a serious business as it is the e te precursor of war. The chief the tribe, in council, decide on en runners are sent out bearing f's pipe, its stem painted red, and ndian, who wants to fight, draws f through it. After this form of nt they assemble for the war- en red paint and feathers. The e, the Indian's way of honoring a t, driving away devils, making the , and of paying devotions to his s. All his dances are grotesque, some ghastly, others excite pity, many te ble. Among the last is the scalp- in celebration of victory, when dens of the tribe stand in the h ng scalps that have been taken. e braves leap around and shriek eir story of slaughter. There are buffalo and bear dances, where they ear e heads of these animals, with orns tached; the eagle dance, the snow- ice and the beggars' dance. Their dance is a clamorous beseeching buffalos to come, so that they may m for food: the bear dance is of the Great Bear Spirit: the ance, an act of reverence to the r which bird they have a religious on. In the beggars' dance, the ng men of the tribe, with pipes, and whistles, beseech the Great with strange clamor to incline by- to give to the poor. In the snow- nce, which is said to be pretty, g thanksgiving for the first fall snow, which brings them game. the Indian has not fallen a prey water and ruthless speculators, who prejudice him against Christianity, he has often been ready to hear of a better and more loving "Great Spirit" than his own, and in spite of the difficulties surrounding their labors, our frontier missionaries and our teachers of Indian schools have accomplished much good among these people, and many have left off savage ways and become servants and ministers of Christ.

INDIAN WAR DANCE AT BILLINGS, MONTANA.

A Soldier's Letters.

"The things that somehow touched me most in the boxes that used to come from home," said a weather-beaten veteran the other day, "were some little pen-scratches that came from my baby sister. She wasn't more than four years old when the war broke out, and the scratches came right along until the end. They took on by degrees the form of letters and then of single words. Once it was the whole alphabet she had printed out at infinite pains. The first whole word she wrote me, God bless her! was 'cat.' I showed it all around to the fellows, and—you won't believe me, such a tough old fellow as I am—but we were going into the Wilderness next day, and I kissed that word—the first word she ever wrote, you know. After awhile she could spell out, 'I love you,' and then, 'Come home.' But, bless you! when they were only her first scratches, I could read 'em. I got superstitious about 'em, and used to carry 'em in my breast-pocket when I went into the fight, and I felt somehow like the bullets wouldn't strike me."

How to Address Soldiers' Letters.

The Postoffice Department, at Washington, urges upon those sending letters or parcels to soldiers, the importance of properly addressing them. The company, regiment, and State, to which the recipient belongs constitute essential parts of the proper inscription; as William Brown, Company D, 16th Illinois Infantry, Falls Church, Va." Several regiments in camp may have the same numerical designation. Of course, the soldier wants to get his letters, and his folks want him to get them, so this little reminder may be acceptable to the mothers, wives, sisters, daughters and sweethearts who read this page. Postal curiosities of the present war are letters that have already come through the United States mail, addressed Manila, U. S. A., and Cuba, U. S. A.

Meni, the Little Esquimau Boy.

When Lieutenant Peary returned last October from his Arctic expedition, he brought back a family of Esquimaux, six in number. Four have since died of grippe. Anlungalinak soah (which means old boot's sole), and Meni, a boy of ten, are the survivors. "I brought these Esquimaux here for the experts of the Museum of Natural History to study Esquimaux life and character. It was our desire that they should learn English, and as far as possible adopt our ways and become civilized, thus opening the way to a complete understanding of their modes of thought, ideas, history, folk-lore, etc."

RED HEART, A NOTED WAR DANCER.

Meni, a bright little fellow with a sunny disposition and very pleasant ways, lives in the family of Superintendent Wallace of the Museum, and is the companion of little Willie Wallace. His long black hair has been cut, he speaks English, rides a wheel, loves to talk on the telephone, and seems thoroughly Americanized, even to preferring tea and coffee, strawberries, cream and cake, to blubber and frozen walrus meat. He remembers his Greenland life, and can talk about it, but has no desire to return. He would be very lonely, however, but for his playmate, Willie.

The Bird's Plea.

CROWN your head with roses,
From the garden closes,
Where we sing.

From their enemies, your flowers
We will save through busy hours,
As we sing.

Spare our lives, O ladies dear,
And our songs upon your ear,
Glad will ring.

Crown your head with roses,
From the garden closes,
Where we sing. M. L. A.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER contains no acid except that derived from grapes, and is pure, healthful, sure in making the finest food, and of highest practical strength.

Baking powders made from harsh, caustic acids are lower in price. They may puff up the dough, but they will ruin the stomach.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Good Results.

Terribly Afflicted with Erysipelas and Eczema—Hood's Cured.

"I have found Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines for building up the system and restoring health. When my little girl was a year old she had erysipelas and eczema, and was in a terrible condition. Nothing that I tried gave her relief until I began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla, and she has had no trouble from skin disease since. She is now fat and healthy. We have all taken Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results and cannot say too much in its praise." MRS. HENRY O. WHEATLEY, 16 Main St., Port Chester, N. Y.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six for $5.

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills; easy to take, easy to operate. 25c.

Tartarlithine in Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMALL, OLCOTT, VT., writes: "Your Tartarlithine has proved a wonderful weapon for rheumatism. I have used a very great quantity of it in the last three or four months and I have never seen anything like it. I had one case who had tried all of the alkaline lithiates, and everything else. He has had rheumatism all his life, and nothing completely stopped all the manifestations of the disease like Tartarlithine, which did completely, with one bottle.

I have another old man, who travels much on the road peddling, who has been lame with rheumatism for five years, and one bottle cured all lameness, and he says he has not felt as well in five years as now. These are only the two worst cases of many that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St., N. Y.,
SOLE AGENTS FOR
The Tartarlithine Co.

Babies' Toilet

health, happiness and growth—the things we tell about in "Mother's Free Library." Vol. VI free on request from any mother.

Davidson Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.

Enclose a 2c. stamp and we will send a free sample of "Davidson's Health Nipple." 51-13

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country; steady employment; commission or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

CURE YOUR BOY OF THE CIGARETTE HABIT
Anti-Cigarette—a harmless, vegetable remedy, will cure the habit in 10 days. Can be taken in coffee without discovery. Price 50c by mail. Phoenix Chemical Co., Quincy, Ill

WOMEN Make $2 to $10 a day selling our Mackintosh Dress Skirts, new dress shields, etc. Cat. Free. Ladies' Supply Co., 3115 Forest Ave., Chicago

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

CHURCH SOCIAL LIFE. *

IT is highly important that methods should be devised of promoting acquaintance among church members. In small churches this task is not difficult: there are many churches in which it is not impossible for every member to know every other. But in large churches in the cities, where the membership is scattered over a wide territory, and where the social engagements are many, this problem becomes somewhat difficult. It is never solved with entire satisfaction to the faithful pastor, but a warm heart and a resolute purpose can accomplish much. There are many churches in which it seems almost a physical impossibility that acquaintance should be universal; but it is possible to provide that no household and no individual shall be left friendless; that every one shall have ample opportunities of Christian fellowship. If no one can know all his brethren, each one may know many, and may find in the social life, which the church provides, the supply of his highest wants.

Those church members who reside in the same neighborhood ought to be able to maintain some neighborly relations. To this end pains should be taken to inform those who live in any given neighborhood when a family living in their vicinity is added to the congregation. In some churches it is customary, when individuals or households are received into the church to name the place of their residence, that those who live nearest them may be able to discharge their neighborly obligations. It is well for the pastor to have a supply of cards printed in blank, on which he may inscribe the name and residence of every new member, inclosing them to those who can most conveniently call, and inviting them to manifest to the new-comers the fellowship of the church.

For many reasons it is better that the people themselves should do this work than that it should be done by the pastor. The pastor's call is perfunctory. He goes because it is his duty to go. It is well if he has the grace to conceal this disagreeable fact; but many of those, on which he calls, must be aware that it is an official service, and does not possess any social significance. A friendly call from one of the members of the church, living in the neighborhood, might wear a different look. It would almost uniformly be accepted as an act of friendship; it would manifest the fellowship of the church more clearly than a call from the pastor.

There are, doubtless, congregations in which such recognition of the fraternal relations of members, would not be possible; in which the members would resent the suggestion that they owe any courtesies to one another because they belong to the same church and live in the same neighborhood; in which the barriers of social reserve are far too high and strong to admit of any genuine brotherhood; but these churches greatly need to consider the charter of their existence and their right to bear the name of Christ.

In churches which recognize a fraternal relation among their members, and desire to promote and strengthen it, a convenient device is the division of the parish into a number of well-defined geographical districts, each of which should be placed in charge of a pastoral committee consisting, perhaps, of one gentleman and three ladies. The directory of the church should be printed, with the boundaries of each district distinctly defined, and the names and residences of families and individuals living within the district brought together. The members of the congregation can thus see at a glance who their neighbors are and where they live, and they can, if they desire, show themselves neighborly to those within their reach.

The pastoral committee should visit every family in its district at least once a year, and should report to the pastor any changes of residence in the district and any removals from it, with the names of new-comers within their territory who are attending the church.

Such a division of the parish into geographical districts, with a pastoral committee in charge of each, is a convenient arrangement for many purposes. It is necessary to canvass the parish from time to time for various objects; this machinery provides a way whereby every family can be expeditiously and surely reached. In some churches the benevolent collections are thus taken with but little labor. Cottage meetings and neighborhood sociables may also be held, occasionally, in the several districts under the direction of the pastoral committees.

* From The Christian Pastor and the Working Church, by Washington Gladden, D.D., an excellent practical work, covering every department of ministerial and church life, including the Sunday-school and other institutions. It is invaluable to the pastor and church officer, being full of useful suggestions and sound advice. Price, $2.00. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, Fifth avenue, New York.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

An Outline of Christian Theology. By William Newton Clarke, D.D., Professor of Christian Theology in Colgate University, Hamilton, N. Y. Pp. 488; price $2.50. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, Fifth Ave., New York.

Buds that Bloom on Bonnier Banks. By Rev. Norman Plass. This collection of forty-eight poems is pervaded by a spirituality as cheerful and refreshing as the spring-like name the volume bears. Pp. 55; decorated boards, 30 cents. Fleming H. Revell Co., publishers, New York, Chicago, Toronto.

Heroes of the Mission Field and Modern Heroes of the Mission Field. Two volumes, by W. Pakenham Walsh, D.D., Bishop of Ossory. A cheap edition of Dr. Walsh's well-known and most valuable works. Pp. 249 and 344; 12mo, cloth, $1 each. Published by Thomas Whittaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

The Appletons will shortly publish Eastern Journeys, a book by the late Charles A. Dana, which describes his travels in Russia, and the Caucasus and to Jerusalem. The same firm announces A Voyage of Consolation, by Sara Jeannette Duncan (a delightful recital of experiences on the Continent); The Broom of the War God, by Noel Brailsford, a tale of the late Greco-Turkish war, and The Disaster, a story of the Franco-Prussian War, by Paul and Victor Margueritte.

A Curious Fact.

A shilling's worth of gold to the [illegible] said to be contained in the red [illegible] which bricks are made; and it is estimated that in the 5,000,000 tons of brick (approximate figure, of course,) which [illegible] the construction of London houses would be about $1,250,000 of gold. The precious metal is found almost everywhere, though in most soils in such quantities that it would not pay for mining. The golden treasure of good and desire to do right, exists in every character, in some measure, in this case the mining pays. We should seek to bring out the best in every with whom we come in contact, and the way to do this is by being good and true ourselves.

In Honor of the President the July Issue of The Ladies' Home Journal

Has a cover printed in the National colors, presenting a striking figure of President McKinley, surmounted by the President's private flag, and portraits of his mother and wife.

A SPECIAL NUMBER

The Anecdotal Side of the President

An article prepared specially by the closest friends and associates of the President. It will be accompanied by a series of

New Portraits of the President

Secured expressly for this article, including what the President himself considers the best portrait ever taken of him.

The Declaration of Independence

AS IT IS TO-DAY

Photographic reproductions of the original draft and the authentic document, now rarely shown to any one.

The President's March

Composed by Victor Herbert. Destined to be the National march as associated with the office of the President of the United States.

10 Cents a Copy

At All News-Stands

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

HONORING PARENTS.

A One Command Blessed in its Observance. Eph. 6:1-4; Prov. 17:6, 21, 25.

How much light does experience shed on the injunctions of the Bible, as to the duties of children to their parents! The unruly boy who is restive under parental control, who causes his father and days and nights of anxiety and n, never finds out fully how much s made them suffer, until a boy of s n is growing up in his home and sting the spirit of his father. Then d overs the causes of conduct on the t his parents, that seemed unnecesharsh to him, when he was a boy. applies to his own son the treatment a boy he resented. It is then too r him to atone for the harass he sed, and he learns how irreparable e wounds he inflicted. It is sad e cannot travel over the course of n, and cannot turn to account the ess we thus learn by experience. To however, who are willing to be the unavailing remorse that is proby such lessons, the Bible utters its and emphatic injunctions. Parents be not only obeyed, but honored, e re to receive from their children t perfunctory, mechanical obedience slave, but the intelligent, loyal reect heart and lip. Probably there is try in the world that so needs to e s lesson inculcated as does our We have allowed our love of liberty interfere with the wholesome enncement of family discipline. Our young both boys and girls, have been ed and even encouraged to assert ves and to go their own way to an unparalleled in any other country. sult has not been satisfactory. In amilies there is anarchy, and the have no control over their children. way is far better, both for parents ildren. It is good for a man that the yoke in his youth. He is ept from acquiring habits which injure him, and from committing to courses which lead to misery. s own sake and for the sake of his usefulness, the child ought not to is own life. Although his father e less education than he, although have less social culture, he has experience of life, and is better d than his son to decide questions ent. On his side, the son, recognizfact, ought, under the law of God a religious duty, as well as for his ke, to pay the deference that is nded and to yield his own inclinathe better judgment of his parents. doing this, he has for his encouragee promise of divine reward.

Spanish Ideas About America.

E European magazine writer has aken the trouble to gather the views ecently expressed in Spanish journcerning this country. Many of e extremely interesting, and they what extent misinformation can eliminated and find credulous readne journal, speaking authoritativeses that there are very few whites in United States and they are largely to the east, and that the Indians, e known as cow-boys," compose ater part of the western population. r publication, discussing the prosct a Spanish invasion of America. its readers that it would be a simer for Spanish troop-ships to land y in Chicago, from which point it only be a few hours march to gton, which could be easily cap- Another, which has evidently been special inquiries, states that the ans gave a contract for "building late for their ships to Mr. Bethle- but the work was unsatisfactory contract was given elsewhere. is only one railroad in America, is a very short one." This same r gravely assures us that "the peo- but half-civilized." These are mples of the misinformation that is beg doled out to the Spanish people, of whom the United States is mp a geographical name. It is inconceivable that the editors themselves should know better. Their cable news concerning the present war has been quite up to the standard of their statistical information, in point of accuracy. A week ago, the people in many of the Spanish towns were joyfully celebrating the complete triumph of the Spanish fleet in Cuban waters, and the utter demolition of our ships—a story which appeared in all the leading Spanish journals simultaneously, and was allowed by the Madrid government to pass uncontradicted, although it knew it to be wholly untounded. The editor of a leading Havana paper, announced that the Philippines had been regained and that the Atlantic Spanish fleet had already "bombarded Boston and driven the inhabitants to the interior." There is, he declares a tumult among the American populace, because of their defeats by the formidable Spanish fleet: New York is panic-struck: the President never goes out without an armed guard 1,000 strong, and the wealthy have everywhere barricaded their houses, and much more to the same purpose. Such is Spain's method of warfare and to the philosophic Castilian mind it possesses this unquestionable advantage over the real thing, that they can have a victory whenever and wherever they please.

GOOD CAUSES HELPED.

THE following sums have been contributed by the readers of this journal for the support of the various worthy causes mentioned below:

The Bethesda Home.

Prev ack'd	$94 85
W W, Silver Cliff	2 50
E's Thank Offering, Bklyn	10 00
W B W, Greeley	5 00
L F Easton	50
H D Stearns	3 00
Mrs C R Forest	1 00
Total	$116 85

Philafrican Liberators' League.

Prev. ack	$43 20
H D Stearns	3 00
W B W, Greeley	5 00
Total	$51 20

Foreign Missions.

Prev. ack	$53 71
—, Tina for India	2 00
Total	$55 71

Any Good Cause.

Prev. ack	$135 03
—, Pontiac	7 00
Mrs Alex McLeod	50
To help the Lord's work	5 00
W Scott	50
A J Roffol	1 00
—, Genoa	1 00
A R Morison	45
Jas W Walker	1 00
Jno A Cock	1 00
Mrs H S Hull	1 50
Total	$153 98

School for Syrian Girls

Prev. ack	$14 00
I H N, Seneca	2 20
Total	$16 20

Christian Herald S. S. Missionary.

Prev. ack	$44 75
P H H, Charlottesville	5 00
Widow's Mite, Malcom	1 00
Total	$50 75

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop.

Prev. ack	$59 75
Mrs McVicar	2 00
Total	$61 75

Dr. P. B. Keskar.

Prev. ack	$1 00
H Heitscher	2 00
Christian friend, London	3 50
Geo Boliman	1 00
Child of a King, Bklyn	4 00
Total	$11 50

New York Rescue Band

W. Chanute	10 00
Jno B Woods	1 00
C Crossmyre	1 00
Total	$12 00

Armenian Fund.

Prev. ack	$141 45
B G, Glens Falls	1 00
Simon A Hershey	1 00
Rose Snyder	5 00
G W Bartrana & wife	5 00
Jane Brownlee	1 00
Messrs Schroder and Tubbs	1 00
Sundries	6 00
Total	$161 45

The Pennsylvania Railroad's New Double-Track Line to Atlantic City.

With the new schedule of early summer trains in effect May 28th, the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad practically opens to travel its new double track line from Camden and Broad Street Station to Atlantic City.

During the Winter and Spring the line from Camden to Atlantic City has been actually rebuilt. The old light rails have been replaced by new steel rails weighing one hundred pounds to the yard, and an entirely new road has been constructed by the grading necessary for the double tracks.

The grade crossing over the tracks of the Jersey Southern Railway at Winslow has been eliminated by the building of an elevated roadway high above the intersecting tracks, and thus enabling the fastest trains to pass this point without slackening speed. An absolutely new roadbed has been constructed across the meadows. Upon the magnificent foundation of the old Camden & Atlantic roadbed, which has been building by the accumulated work of forty years, thousands of carloads of gravel and sand have been placed to the depth of six feet from the surface up, so that the tracks are elevated above the height of the storm tides, in order that the elevated tracks may the better withstand the action of storm tides. canals have been opened at intervals to carry the accumulated water beneath the roadway and the exposed sides of the embankment have been thickly coated with the heavy and adhesive soil dug from the meadows. The new track is as firm as the old ever was, and with these protections and reinforcements it will stand firmly the brunt of any ordinary storm. The new roadway has been coated with an application of oil so as to free it from the dust naturally incident to the new grading.

Under these improved conditions the West Jersey and Seashore's double-tracked lines to Atlantic City form the finest and best line of railroad to any Summer resort in America. The speed of trains both from Broad Street Station and Camden will be materially accelerated and the time of transit proportionately reduced. The rolling stock and equipment will be fully up to the high standard maintained by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Summer traveler to Atlantic City by this popular route will enjoy the finest facilities offered by any railroad in the world.

Divide a cake of Ivory Soap with a stout thread and you have two perfectly formed cakes of convenient size for the toilet.

WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Copyright, 1897, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati

STEWART'S DUPLEX SAFETY PINS.

The Guard
Must be on Inside of Spring

DUPLEX PINS have the only effective Guard to prevent catching or tearing. It is on the arm of pin that passes through the cloth. Patented and cannot be used on any other pin.

DUPLEX PINS work as easily in the dark as in the light; fasten from either side, but cannot slip through, as all others do. Dealers may offer other pins with so-called guards. Demand the genuine "STEWART'S DUPLEX." Take no others. If dealers cannot supply you send 3 two-cent stamps for samples of 12 assorted sizes.

Made in Nickel-Plate and Jet Black.
Made out of Hollow Aluminum Hair pins.

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO., BOX 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING CLEANING. NO CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT

AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.

Sent for 5c. postage.

Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

"The more you say the less people remember." One word with you, SAPOLIO

"How Uncle Sam Fights."

All about War, Army and Navy: Spain's Army and Navy: Rules of War-fare: Use of Torpedoes, Deadly Air-Gun: Ships in Action: Harbor Defences: Prize Money, etc., etc. Retail only $1.50. 100 illustrations. A book everybody needs and wants. $200 00 given for selling 200 copies. Chance of a lifetime with Agents. One agent sold 46 copies in one day; another made $10.00 in five hours. Freight paid, credit given. Outfit free. Send 25c. for postage and packing. Address International News & Book Company, Baltimore, Md.

WHAT SAY THE SCRIPTURES ABOUT—

The World's Hope!	2c
What is the Soul!	2c
Hope of Immortality!	2c
Hell & Eternal Punishment!	80 pp 10 cents
Spiritism—Demonism!	115 pages. 10 cents.
All together 20 cents.

Terms to the poor:—
Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Free; Nos. 4 and 5. To Loan.
Address, O. A. KOETITZ, Box 914, Allegheny, Pa.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N. Y.
Architects, Builders of Auditoriums
We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.
We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.
E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Secty.

JUST OUT ROYAL HYMNAL for the Sunday School
By REV. ROBERT LOWRY and IRA D SANKY
This new collection contains 232 pieces, the productions of over 100 prominent hymn writers.
The best Sunday School song book offered.
$30 per 100 by express; 35c. each, if by mail.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

TYPEWRITER HEADQUARTERS
102 Fulton st., New York, sell all makes under half price. Don't buy before writing them for unprejudiced advice and prices. Exchanges. Immense stock for selection. Shipped for trial. Guaranteed first class. Largest house in the world. Dealers supplied. 52-page illus. cat. free.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

The Art of Contentment A Brother's Problem The War Excitement, &c.

WE have had a long spell of rainy weather in New York recently, and it is quite natural that some of us should have found the persistent downpour interfering with our plans. Still, dear Mary Beatrice, I think it is as well for you and me to adopt the practice of the old shepherd of Salisbury Plains and when asked what sort of weather it will be to-morrow, reply it will be such weather as pleases me, and then when an explanation is asked add that it will be such weather as pleases God, which, of course, ought to please us. An eminent English clergyman gave these five rules to a person who wished to gain contentment of mind: 1st. Allow thyself to complain of nothing, not even of the weather. 2nd. Never picture thyself to thyself under any circumstances in which thou art not. 3rd. Never compare thine own lot with that of another. 4th. Never allow thyself to dwell on the wish that this or that had been or were otherwise than it was or is. God Almighty loves thee better and more wisely than thou dost thyself. 5th. Never dwell on the morrow. Remember that it is God's, not thine. The heaviest part of sorrow often is to look forward to it. The Lord will provide." St. Paul summed it all up when he said, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." This, of course, is living on a very high plane, but is it not as well to live on a high as on a low bit of ground? The air which blows around the mountain top is pure and bracing, and it is more profitable spiritually to dwell there than to linger in the lowlands. By the time you read this I have no doubt that the sun will again be shining, and we shall have forgotten all about the rain and its inconveniences. Meanwhile, I never saw the grass so green, nor the trees in finer foliage.

* * *

NOTWITHSTANDING all the turmoil of war days—the coming and going of marching men; the flutter of flags and the great excitement about the war; the wonder what will happen to our dear ones who are out of our sight; the prayers and tears of mothers and wives, whose hearts are in camp and on the battle field because their loved ones are there—the processes of nature are going on as silently and sweetly as ever. There are acres of violets in bloom to-day, and there will be acres of daisies in bloom to morrow. I took a drive the other day through woods which were fragrant and beautiful with dogwood, its snowy flowers showing starlike through the openings among the trees, and before long I expect again to ramble through the woods and see the pink clusters of the laurel and smell the fragrance of the wild honeysuckle.

* * *

YOUR problem, M. M. R., is certainly an interesting one. To have been parted almost fifteen years ago from a little sister; to have neither seen nor heard from her until this time a year ago; then to have discovered her again to find her the adopted child of a family of wealth and culture; all this places in eventful and most unusual experience. You say (and I am glad that you can say) that there is nothing in your life which can cause your sister to feel ashamed or distrustful of you, your only disadvantage being that the hard circumstances of life have not permitted you to receive such an education as has been given to her. Try to put yourself to some degree in her place. Her life has been surrounded with comforts and luxuries, she is now a beautiful young woman in her twenties, dear to the idol of a loving circle. You come to her somewhat as a stranger, very much as an outsider. The people who have adopted her probably did not wish to adopt at the same time other members of her family. Not infrequently when people adopt a child they have a decided feeling that they prefer to have the child become entirely theirs, and they do not especially wish to have any of its kindred come into very intimate and close relations with them or their protege. This feeling may not be entirely justifiable, but I have seen many illustrations of it, and it is natural enough. As, however, your sister's adopted parents do not forbid her to see you, and in fact allow you occasionally to take her to concerts and other entertainments, and interpose no objection to your meetings in their presence, it would be more dignified for you not to complain, but to accept things as they are. Possibly you would not enjoy frequent visits in her home, even if you should be invited. You might not feel quite at ease with the people who are now her people. My advice to you after much reflection is to accept the circumstances as they are without protest and without too much regret.

Is there not somewhere among your acquaintance any friend to whom you are drawn so strongly that you may win her love, marry her and make a new home for yourself. The tie between your sister and you will probably strengthen after a while when she is older. At least, as blood is thicker than water, there will always be on her part the recognition of the fact that she has a brother, and should the occasion arise you may stand between her and harm; but it is due to the people who have cherished her through her childhood and bestowed upon her the love and care they would have given to a daughter of their own, that they should exercise their own discretion with regard to the degree of intimacy she shall have, even with members of her own family.

* * *

A SUNDAY School teacher with a class of lovely young girls about her, occupies a very responsible position. When her girls consult her about amusements—whether it is right to do this thing or that thing, she must be careful that her counsel is so given that it will conciliate rather than offend them. As a rule, it is not right to ride a wheel on the Sabbath. I cannot imagine a Christian young woman doing such a thing merely for pleasure, because God has distinctly said that there are six days in the week in which we may do our own work and engage in our own recreation, but that one day is to be kept holy to himself. Still there are exceptional circumstances, where one may ride her wheel not for pleasure merely. It may be necessary to go for the doctor in haste on Sunday, and in that case a young woman would be very foolish to walk when she had a wheel which she might ride. I cannot see where the harm would be in riding a bicycle to church or to Sunday School. It would be considered all right by most of us to harness a horse, or saddle one, and ride or drive a distance to church. Why then should we hesitate about riding a wheel for the same purpose? If I were in the place of this teacher, I would say to my girls that there were so many pleasant things to do on Sunday which are quite legitimate, that to go out rowing on the lake, or to study the lessons for the next day, or to read secular books and papers, is a waste of precious time which can be better employed. Books taken from a Sunday School library ought to be proper reading for Sunday. If they are not, there is something wrong with the library. We make a mistake when we see nothing pure and good in books which are entertaining stories or lives of good people. Few young girls can bring themselves to sit down and read sermons on Sunday or any other day, unless, indeed they are bright and crisp as those of Dr. Talmage, which are quite apt to please both young and old every day in the week.

To go back to cycling. So far as exercise is concerned, there is nothing of which I have any knowledge which gives more pleasure, so much health, and so much delightful movement. Ride six days of the week if you can. I love to see the girls and boys spinning along on their wheels, coming home with the roses in their cheeks and their eyes bright and merry. There are very few things which cannot be abused, and our great mistake is perhaps in devoting too much time to games and sports merely because we enjoy them. When our Lord was here on earth he did not frown on social pleasure. His first miracle was wrought at a wedding, and a wedding is usually a scene of festivity. He must have been happy and bright, or the little children would not have run to meet him and clustered around him as they did. Religion should make us happier and better. None of us should be so unfortunate in our religion as to act like the old grandfather of whom the children said they did not want to go to heaven "if grandpa were to be there."

Many good people approve of dancing, with certain restrictions, limiting it to proper hours and the company of relatives and intimate friends. Others condemn it. The individual must decide for herself. It is best not to dance if you live in a community where the general sentiment pronounces it an unfit diversion for a Christian man or woman. No one, so far as I know, objects to the dancing of children, or of girls at school, where there are only themselves.

Margaret E. Sangster

Free Cure for Kidneys and Bladder.

We advise our readers who suffer from Kidney and Bladder disorders, weak back or Rheumatism, to try the new Botanic Discovery, Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava shrub. Convincing proof of the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis is given by Rev. A. C. Darling, Constantia, N. Y.; Hon. R. C. Wood, Lowell, Ind.; Mrs. I. D. Feggely, Lancaster, Ills., and others cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, after many years' suffering. The Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 40 Fourth Avenue, New York to prove its great value and for introduction, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. Alkavis is certainly a wonderful remedy and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

The testimonials published by Hood's Sarsaparilla are from people who are anxious to tell of their cures for the benefit of others. If you are not well Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for you.

30 BOXES OF GOLD.

Easy Mining for Pin Money.

To secure some desired information ec from the people, it is proposed to send ri little box containing 5 gold dollars to e o 30 persons who writes the most inter ing description of their experience and ob tion on the following topics:

How have you been affected by drinking?

Do you know anyone who has been away from Postum because it came table weak and characterless at the firs

Did you set such a person right reg the easy way to make Postum clear and with a crisp, pungent taste?

Have you ever discovered a better make it than to note the clock at th actual boiling commences, (not when first put on stove) and keep it boiling ately for full 15 minutes, using 2 heapi spoonfulls for each cup of beverage?

Give names and account of thos know to have been cured or helped in by the dismissal of coffee and the daily the Food Coffee in its place.

Address your letter to the Postum
Co., Lim., Battle Creek, Mich., writin own name and address clearly.

Decision will be made and the 30 littl of gold sent out on June 30, next.

Every friend of Postum is urged t and each letter will be held in high est the company, as an evidence of such ship, while the little boxes of gold wil many a modest writer whose plain an ible letter contains the facts desired, al the sender may have but small faith ning at the time of writing.

Your Dinner all at one time on one bur kind of stove if you use

THE IDEAL Steam Cooker

Prevents steam and odors. Ill reduce fuel bills 50 per cent blows when cooker needs w Will hold 12 one quart in Canning Fruit. Agents Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16

LOOSE BOTTOMS IMPROVED REFLECTION TINS

AGENTS WAN

We furnish samples free to agent Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retai Write for Catalog, new goods, Richardson Mfg. Co. 6th St.

THE EDGE OF A DOLLAR doesn't look so big as the face of it. —the woman who buys soap for house-cleaning loses sight of economy—she looks at her money edgewise. The woman who values her money as well as her strength uses and has something to show for her labor beside a worn face and a pair of rough hands. Largest package—greatest economy.

GOLD DUST

Washing Powder.

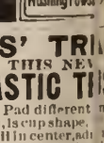
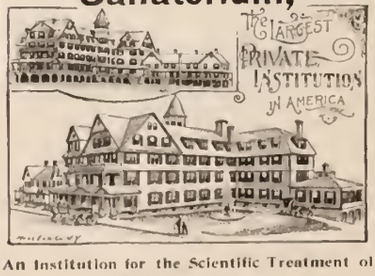
The N. K. Fairbank Company,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York.
Boston. Philadelphia.



The Berkshire Hills Sanatorium,



An Institution for the Scientific Treatment of Cancer

Tumors, and all forms of Malignant Growths

WITHOUT THE USE OF THE KNIFE

We have never failed to effect a permanent cure where we have had a reasonable opportunity.

Books and circulars giving description of Sanatorium, Treatment, Terms, and References, free.

DRS. W. E. BROWN & SON, North Adams, Mass.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

THIS NEW

ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad different m others, is cup shape, adjusting Ball in center, ad to all positions of the body, ball in the cup presses intestines, just as a person does w finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held curely day and night, and a radical cure cert easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circu

LEE, Illinois, Oct. 1

The old man I fitted 2 years ago wore your truss ab and said he was cured. Saw him last week and was 63 years old and a hard worker, he is as sound boy. Yours truly, M. C. Mess

STANARDSVILLE, Va., S

I have had splendid result from your truss in quite of cases of grown people. E. W. Sim

DERRICK CITY, Pa., J

I received my truss the 27th and since I have be taken more comfort with it than any I ever have be day I got it I put it on and mowed grass all day and fitted that I had it on me. ALEX.

TENN., N. C., Ju

About 3 years ago I bought one of your trusses I w 6 months and it has made a final cure. Was badly would have written to you about this before but was if my cure was permanent. O. G. Bat

$1,000 Forfeited to you if every testimon by us is not genuine. Address

E. H. ECCLESTON & CO., 1201 MASONIC TEMPLE, CHICAGO.

The Natural Body Brace advertised in last week is a delightful, certain cure for peculiar to women and girls. It makes wa work easy; gives good figure and light step. Natural Body Brace Co., Salina, Kansas, illustrated book.

Our Children's Home

Ready to Open

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD CHILDREN'S HOME, MONT-LAWN, NYACK, N. Y.

ONE week from to-day, our Children's Home at beautiful Mont-Lawn opens its doors. Word has gone abroad through the sweltering tenements, and there is great rejoicing among the children. The Sunday School teachers and the d y missionaries who are co-operat- wi us, are glad also, and the names a children who stand in sore need t days' outing are coming in rapid- Mron Collins and her assistants at H e are busy as bees, getting every- g perfect readiness for the recep- o our little guests. The big tent s bn repaired; the wagonette over- lec swings are going up; the pantry is g berally stocked; and during the wn week, the dormitories will bloom w little white iron beds, dressed th snowy coverlids and downy pil- s. Everything is fresh and clean and eet, om top to bottom, as loving care m e it.

Th summer, the purpose is to more n er discriminate in favor of the y p rest children. In apportionment o t s, the most extreme cases of over- w g, poverty and distress will be h ut and will receive the first atten- n. any applications are coming in to r missionaries and teachers, and m ers themselves are writing touch- a als in behalf of children who rely ed a change of air. After a some- at d spring, a season of intense heat s s n, and suffering and sickness in e te ment districts of the great over- w d city are on the increase. One of w Y rk's dailies, said in the early June ys:

There are tens of thousands of hard-work- fo who have neither the time for a y s ing nor the spare cash which it sts. ever much they need to take the ildre with them and get a breath of air a pite from the general grind. If that true this season of the year, what shall say out July and August? When the ated rm is at hand, and not a breath of as ring in the congested districts, the eme house population are to be pitied eed hey work all day and gasp all night. It is ifficult for dwellers in airy homes coo ountry places to realize what the ldr suffer in the stifling heat of the rro closely-built streets and alleys— ere e no shade trees in lower New ork. The scorching sun shines pitiless- do on the baking sidewalks and ir in where the children, wan, hollow- ed a pinched-looking, uncomplaining, t or lk about listlessly, with that pa- ant s nce which characterizes the chil- en o he poor; inside their over-crowd- ho s it is no better. Death relieves any ery many of them; Board of ealt reports always show a heart- eak increase in the mortality of the ung the tenement districts of our large ties ring the summer months.

Our aders have again an opportunity t bei a means of health and blessing a ma of these poor little waifs during he pr nt summer. There is no more eauti charity than this of saving the children of the slums from the killing heat, which, like the sword of Herod, slays its army of innocents every midsummer in New York. In very many cases, the first religious instruction in the life of a waif is that received at our Mont-Lawn Home. Children carry this influence back with them into their tenement homes, where it often bears unexpected fruit.

It is frequently necessary to furnish clothing for a large proportion of the children who come to Mont-Lawn. Matron Collins wishes to return thanks to the many kind friends who have helped in this work hitherto. Any summer garments, suitable for children between five and twelve, sent prepaid to her at THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y., will be gratefully acknowledged.

This summer, we hope that friends of the Home will visit it, whenever possible. Especially do we desire this in the case of the missionaries, who send children to us. It is a gratification to those who help us to see how much good is being done in the Home. The King's Daughters Circle, in Hackensack, N. J., which has helped clothe our children during the past, has written asking to visit the Home at the same time that it pledges help anew, and we are sure the children will be benefited in this and other instances by the display of such friendly interest in them. One young missionary, a choir-singer with a beautiful voice, who has lent frequent financial aid to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S charities, has asked if she might come to Mont-Lawn and sing to the children.

On several occasions, when hard-working mothers have visited their children at the Home, the maternal delight has been very fervently and often quite naively expressed. The children are drilled to fall in line at the sound of the dinner-bell, and march to the tent, where they take their seats, fold their hands and say grace. Last summer, a tenement-house mother, sitting between her two children, listened to them, and watched their decorous conduct with wide-eyed wonder, exclaiming: "My! I never thought my children could have such manners."

All contributions for the Children's Home Fresh Air work should be sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House New York. The following were received last week:

Previously Acknowledged	$141 25
Lillie T Smith	2 00
B F S, East Shelbourne	1 00
Wm Boshart	5 00
B H Andrews	5 00
I Girod	3 00
In His Name, Manchester	1 00
Friend, Munda	3 00
H L Abbe	1 00
Friend, Pendleton	3 00
Ladies of Sewing Soc, Gibbonsville	1 50
Mrs Louis Schwerer	5 00
Justin M Copeland	15 00
Friend, Glen Wilton	3 00
Mary J Gates	50 00
Mary Williams	12 00
Sympathizers, Marietta	5 00
Fourth Grade Public School, Freeport	2 00
Miss A R Y, Hagerstown	3 00
Total	$261 75

Soldiers and Spectacles.

In view of the recent public discussion in America over physical requirements for enlistment in our army and navy the following brief paragraph from The British Medical Journal may not be uninteresting: "It is not encouraging to read in the annual report of the Army Medical Department for 1896 that the total ratio of men found unfit, either on inspection or after three months' enlistment, shows an increase on the previous year. With regard to this question, two alternatives present themselves — either the medical examination is more exacting than formerly, or else the average recruit is deteriorating in physical fitness. The commonest form of disability is a deficiency in the chest measurements; next to this is defective vision. It is a serious matter to reject over two thousand recruits on account of defect of vision, which undoubtedly in many instances might be corrected by 'wearing glasses.' The British public have a peculiar prejudice against seeing a spectacled soldier, but the same error of refraction would be corrected in Germany; and if he is healthy in other respects he would be as fit a man to serve his country as any of his more fortunate normal-eyed brethren. It cannot be asserted that the German soldier is rendered physically unfit by wearing glasses.'" Defective vision has debarred many Americans from enlistment.

Ecru Curtains

"Ecru curtains will not fade if washed in cold light suds made from Fairy Soap. Rinse in two clear waters and dry in shade."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 17x24 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

"There's the rub." (Hamlet.)

The "rub" in one hand, and the effect of it in the other. Good design for a soap "ad."—isn't it? Question of health, if nothing else, ought to make you give up this wearing washboard rubbing with soap, and take up the sensible way of washing with Pearline—soaking, boiling, rinsing. The washboard rubbing, done in the midst of soiled clothes and tainted steam is harmful to any woman. If you think it isn't, you'd better think again. 570

Millions NOW USE Pearline

RUBIFOAM

is endorsed by the leading dentists and the most refined people everywhere. Its ingredients are recognized as being without equal in imparting to the teeth a pearl-like whiteness; in fact, is most truly a perfect liquid dentifrice.

RUBIFOAM

Popular price, 25c. Send 2c. stamp for sample vial. Address E. W. Hoyt & Co., Lowell, Mass.

BATTLE OF MANILA.

Just Out! A beautiful Oil Painting Picture by a famous marine artist, in elaborate colors; the finest war picture published. Size 20x25 on heavy plate paper, only . . 25 cts.

Send 25c. in stamps and your name and address to

Photo Colortype Co., Dept. C,
87 Plymouth Place,
Chicago.

Agents wanted in every town to sell above picture. Everybody wants one. You can make big money. Other war pictures out. Send at once 25 cts. for sample outfit.

It will pay you.

A Special Offer

Send $60 and we will deliver, carriage paid, a

Wellington Typewriter No. 2

If it does not prove satisfactory after ten days' trial, we will refund the money. The WELLINGTON is guaranteed equal to any $100 typewriter. It possesses all the advantages of the high-priced instruments, and none of their defects.

Our Catalogue tells all about it. Send for it.

The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburg, N. Y.

RIDE YOUR WHEEL,

but not with a truss like the one above, an instrument of torture. Use one of our latest Improved Elastic Trusses. It holds the rupture under the severest strain. Can be WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY, THEREBY EFFECTING A PERMANENT AND RADICAL CURE. Call or write for free catalogue. IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 785 BROADWAY, New York.

Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 Years.

SPECTACLES at wholesale. Send for catalog. Agents wanted. COULTER OPTICAL CO. Chicago, Ill.

OLD GLORY SHOW YOUR COLORS. Finely Woven Silk Badge 5c. by mail; 3 for 10c.; 30c. doz.; 100 for $2. Greatseller for holidays and fairs. L. N. Cushman, 34 Oliver St., Boston, Mass.

Big Reduction IN PRICES.

1898 Model — High Grade

OAKWOOD High-grade '98 model as per illustration. Flush Joints, 1⅛ in. Tubing. One-piece Cranks. Large Star Sprockets. Best high-grade Tires. Padded or Hygienic Saddle. None better at any price. Equal to or better than wheels retailed by others at $75. Our special price $32.50

ARLINGTON '98 Model. Flush Joints, 1⅛ in. Tubing. Two-piece cranks. Arch Crown, M. & W. or Arlington Tires. A Good Honest Wheel and Best in the World for the money. Other wheels as tall wheels no better for $60. Our special price $24.50

Other Wheels at $13.75, $15 and $19.
Juvenile Wheels at $7. to $12.50.

We have the largest and most complete line of Bicycles in the U. S. for Men, Women, Girls and Boys.
ALL BRAND NEW MODELS.

Shipped anywhere C. O. D., with privilege to examine. No money in advance. It pays to buy direct from the manufacturers. You save agents and dealers profits which means from $5 to $25 on every wheel—worth saving is it not? ONE PROFIT, MAKER to RIDER explains it. Prompt shipments guaranteed, we have the wheels in stock, thousands of them and thousands more being made at the factory. Large Illustrated Catalog Free.

Write today for Special Offer Address plainly,

CASH BUYERS' UNION,
162 W. Van Buren Street, Dept. 18 ,Chicago. Ills.

7000 BICYCLES carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of awell '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.

E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

$ 34.50 Acme Bicycles.

HIGH GRADE '98 MODELS
Same grade as agents sell for $75. We have no agents but sell direct to the rider at manufacturers' prices. Elegant models. Best material, superb finish Guaranteed against accidents as well as defects. We ship with privilege of examination, pay express charges both ways and refund money if not as represented. Write for catalogue.
ACME CYCLE CO., 195 Main St., ELKHART, IND.

"THE DOCTOR"

SAVES YOUR ICE
AND REFRIGERATOR

Heavily Nickel Plated. Breaks the ice any size you want it. Does not crumble or waste your ice. For sale by all hardware dealers. If your dealer does not have it, send 25 cents in stamps or coin and we will send it prepaid to any address. Agents wanted. Troy Nickel Works, Albany, N.Y.

$5 LOWEST—$35 HIGHEST

price at which we are selling wheels. We always carry a stock of at least 2000 BICYCLES including over 100 different makes. Catalogue sent free. Wheels shipped C.O.D. subject to full examination and absolute satisfaction guaranteed. Buy your wheel from a responsible firm. We know how to take care of our customers. You can make big money acting as our agent.
BROWN-LEWIS CYCLE CO., (Dept. F) CHICAGO, ILL.

BICYCLE BELL, 10c.

Our Great '98 Introduction Offer. A fine clear ringing nickel bell with our catalogue of 3,000 cycle and other specialties, only 10 cents (postage 5c extra). 3 for 25c., $1.05 doz.

ELECTRIC STROKE BELL
rotary movement, bell metal gong, nickeled, finest made, only 20c (postage 5c. extra). 3 for 50c., $1.90 doz.
ROBT. B. INGERSOLL & BRO. Dept. No. 61 67 Cortlandt Street, New York City.

HIGH-GRADE BICYCLE FREE
for distributing samples among friends and selling our line Perfumes, Flavoring Extracts Toilet Soaps, etc.

Best goods made—Best prizes given. Profits & Reed, 842 Austin Ave., Chicago.

You Dye in 30 minutes Turkey Red on Cotton or Wool as you work. Sell or wash at Carpets, Dresses and clothing made to look like new, no experience necessary with 10 cent a French Dyes Tolnitro-Dyes them and 40c. for 6 packages or 15c. for one any color. Big per cent. FRENCH DYE CO., Box 824, VASSAR, MICH.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES; no experience needed; position permanent self seller. PEARL MFG. CO., P.O. Box A, Cincinnati, O.

For Men and Women

We offer this year but one model of bicycle, but that the finest our skill and resources can produce. We don't make tandems. We don't make juveniles.

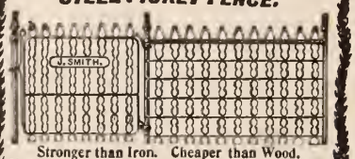
Waverley Bicycles $50

The Waverley Catalogue is sent for the asking. It is worth your careful study.

Indiana Bicycle Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

TRICYCLES & INVALID CHAIRS
FAY MFG. CO. 267 PINE ST. ELYRIA, O.

HARTMAN
STEEL PICKET FENCE.



Stronger than Iron. Cheaper than Wood.
Made of best steel wire and woven into a handsome fence, which when constructed with our ornamental steel posts adds greatly to the beauty of the lawn or cemetery lot.

THE IDEAL FENCE
for enclosing Public Grounds, Church Yards, Court Yards, School Grounds, etc. Catalogue and circulars sent FREE.
HARTMAN MFG. CO., Ellwood City, Pa. or 277 Broadway, New York.

FENCE YOUR FARM
With a Good Fence Cheaply.

THE ADVANCE WOVEN WIRE FENCE
which is sold direct to the farmer, freight paid, we believe to be the best fence made for the money. Our plan of selling saves the farmers the dealer's profit and brings the fence to a price that bents the hand fence machine both for cheapness and quality of fence. A continuous fence; all the wires being interwoven—no loose ends; the wires can't slip. Prices way down. Send for our new circulars and extra special discount to farmers.
ADVANCE FENCE CO., 37 Old St. Peoria, Ill.

SOLID GOLD PEN FREE.

FOR ONE DAY'S WORK
We send this beautiful Pearl-Handled Solid Gold Pen to boys and girls for selling 1 1-2 doz. packages of Bluine at 10 cents per package. Send your full address by return mail and we will forward the Bluine post paid and a large Premium List.
BLUINE COMPANY Box E, Concord Junction, Mass.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and feet on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No trash, no job lots. Send for cata. and special offer. F. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure, we furnish the work and teach you free, you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once.
ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138, DETROIT, MICH.

REMEMBER THE "MAINE"

We want agents everywhere to earn money, bicycles, rings, etc.,—selling our Sterling Silver Plated Historic Souvenir Spoons of the wrecked U. S. Battleship Maine. They are worth a dollar—but sell them for 10c each. No money required in advance. Send full name and address for order blank and premium list. Do it at once and be the first to show them in your town. Address SPOON DEPT. BICYCLE GUM CO., 50 Dearborn St., Chicago.
P.S.—If you want a sample spoon, inclose 10c in stamps or silver when you send for particulars.

ENAMELINE

THE MODERN STOVE POLISH

Quick Shine
Little Labor
No Dust
No Odor

NO OTHER COMPARES WITH IT. IT'S THE BEST.

FREE COSTS NOTHING

But the asking to get our new 1898 Catalogue of either PIANOS OR ORGANS

At wholesale prices, thus saving you every penny usually pocketed by agents and dealers.

SEND TODAY FOR OUR NEW
DUE BILL CERTIFICATE { It saves you $10.00 on an ORGAN. " " " $20.00 on a PIANO.

CASH OR INSTALMENTS.

30 days' trial. No money in advance. Safe delivery at your depot insured. Instalments. Easy payments. Our new due bill certificate shows you how to get an Organ or Piano for little or nothing. Remember, our Catalogue costs you nothing, and will positively save you money.

PIANOS, $155 UP.
ORGANS, $25.00 U

We furnish with each Piano a $10 hard wood Piano [illegible] free, also Plush Scarfs and $10 worth of the latest [illegible] music. Complete Organ outfit, free. Our factory, with enormous capacity, enables us to sell you a high-grade instrument at a figure much below that of any other company in the world.

INCORPORATED FOR 50 YEARS.
WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW

Beethoven Piano and Organ Co.
Box 741 WASHINGTON, N.J.

$15.00 COUCH FREE

To quickly introduce our popular plan of selling goods to consumers at strictly wholesale prices and make customers at once, we give this Couch, Free to each purchaser of our sample grocery order. This is our regular $15.00 Couch, is 27x72 inches, upholstered in the finest imported figured velour or wide wale corduroy in any standard shade or color. Full set of best springs. Spring edge and end. Deep biscuit tufted. Samples of the covering free upon request.

We Want no Money in Advance.

We sell groceries at wholesale prices and we want to place a sample lot in your home. We want you from 10 to 25 per cent. on all your purchases, and to prove our statement have made up what "sample order," itemized in this ad., which amounts to $15. We want you to try the groceries and yourself that our goods and prices are all we claim. We know that you will help advertise us and your supplies from us after receiving this "sample lot" to be used as a test trial, and returned if not as

Our Sample Order.

50-lbs. best gran'l'ted sugar	$2.50	1 box stove polish,	.10
3-lbs. best Golden Rio coffee,	.90	1 box shoe blacking,	.10
3-lbs., best tea, any brand,	2.25	1-lb. best pepper, ground	.35
2-lbs. best baking powder,	1.00	½-lb. pure cinnamon, gr'nd,	.25
3-lbs. best Carolina rice,	.30	½-lb. best mustard, ground,	.25
1-lb. best corn starch,	.10	½-lb. best grade ginger,	.25
6-lbs. best gloss starch,	.50	½-lb. best grade cloves,	.25
2-lbs. choice raisins,	.25	¼-lb. large new nutmegs,	.40
2-lbs. extra cleaned currants,	.20	1-pt. triplo extract lemon,	1.20
20-lbs. best laundry soap,	1.00	1 pt. triplo extract vanilla,	1.20
12-hxs. parlor matches, 200hx.	.30	1 qt. best liquid bluing,	.30
6 cakes toilet soap 10c size,	.50	1-pt. household ammonia,	.15
1-lb. shredded cocoanut,	.40

These groceries amount to $15.00
Couch sells for 15.00
Both would cost $30.00

Our sample order price only $15.00
You get the Couch Free.

HOW TO ORDER.
Simply say you are a reader of this paper and accept our Sample Offer No. 16, and give full shipping directions; also state color of upholstery first and second choice. Orders should be signed by the head of the family. Price includes packing and delivery for goods on board cars in Chicago. When goods arrive at depot, examine them and if not as ordered and bordered. This about pays us for booking the order, other clerical work and should go to the manufacturer as a saving to them. The towels are given as a premium for cash in advance and are not to be given with C. O. D. orders. Money refunded if goods are not as represented.

To Our Friends who prefer to remit in advance we give the ladies 1 doz. Turkish Bath Towels 16x27-in. fringed and bordered. This about pays us for booking the order, other clerical work and should go to the manufacturer as a saving to them. The towels are given as a premium for cash in advance and are not to be given with C. O. D. orders. Money refunded if goods are not as represented.

Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co., Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen: The sample order of groceries came in due time. I do not see how it is that you give so much of good quality for $15 and then such a beautiful couch for a present. Those who have not seen the goods and couch almost impossible, but I know it is so for I have received the goods and couch.
Respectfully yours, H. E. E.

Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co., Chicago, Ill. New Orleans, La.
Gentlemen. Groceries and couch received. Everything just as advertised. No packages broken, and correct weight.
Respectfully yours, EUGENE W. [illegible] Natchitoches, La.

Gentlemen. Groceries and couch arrived safely. Am highly pleased with them. Will say that you have perfect you advertised.
Yours truly, MRS. E. R. [illegible]

NOTE.—We have hundreds of other testimonials of a similar nature, but lack of space prevents publishing them in this article.

CONSOLIDATED WHOLESALE SUPPLY COMPANY,
215-219 S. Clinton St., CHICAGO.

NAZO

for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

1898 Bicycles Down to $15.00

New 1898 Model Ladies' and Gent's Bicycles now being sold on easy conditions as low as others outright at $13.95, and high-grade at $22.50, to be paid for after received. Cut this out and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, they will send you their 1898 Bicycle catalogue and full particulars.

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—THE LARKIN IDEA fully explained in beautiful free book-let. Free Sample Soap if mention this publication.
THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO., BUFFALO, N.Y.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICE, BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., EDITOR.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

NEW YORK, JUNE 29, 1898.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 26.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

REV. F. E. CLARK, D.D., President. MRS. M. C. DORRIS, Chairman Decorating Committee. JOHN W. BAER, General Secretary.

GOSPEL TABERNACLE, NASHVILLE, WHERE THE INTERNATIONAL C. E. CONVENTION MEETS NEXT WEEK. (See page 539.)

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

F. M., Baltimore, Md. Can telegraphy be studied at home?

No more than navigation. You should enter the employ of a telegraph company and study it under practical auspices, at the same time reading the best books on the subject.

J. P. 1. In the parable of the marriage feast (Matt. 22:1-14) were the invited guests under obligations to go? 2. What is the meaning of a message being in cipher?

1. Such an invitation was counted so high an honor that an invited guest neglecting it for a mere matter of business, showed a contempt for the king that he could not afford to pass over. It was a direct insult. Besides this, invitations were usually sent several weeks previously and accepted or declined. Then, on the day appointed, servants were sent to the guests who had accepted, to remind them of their engagement and to tell them that the feast was ready. If, after they had accepted, they did not come, the insult was very marked. 2. That the message is so worded that no one can read it except the person for whom it is intended. There is a previous agreement between the sender and receiver that certain words shall have a different meaning from that they usually bear. A common cipher consists of numbers only. The sender and receiver each has an identical copy of a dictionary. In the telegram the first number is that of the page and the second that of the word on the page. Thus a couple of numbers indicates a word, but what that word is no one can tell but the person who has a copy of that particular dictionary.

Hattie M. W., Darien, Wis. What is the story of the "Judgment of Paris"?

Paris is said to have been appealed to as judge among three goddesses—Hera (Juno), Athene (Minerva), and Aphrodite (Venus), to decide which was the most beautiful. Eris (Strife), a goddess who had not been invited to the feast which they were attending, had revengefully thrown among them a golden apple inscribed "To the most beautiful." All three tried to bribe Paris and win the verdict. Hera offered him wealth and dominion over all Asia; Athene promised wisdom and military renown; and Aphrodite offered him the fairest of women, Helen the wife of Menelaus the Lacedæmonian king, for his wife. Paris, liking the last offer, decided in favor of Aphrodite. He then went in search of Helen who was carried away. This was the legendary cause of the Trojan war.

Enquirer, Derby, Ont. 1. Have astronomers been able to find out whether any worlds are inhabited besides this? 2. Did Christ refer to other worlds when he spoke (John 10:16), of having "other sheep not of this fold"?

1. No; they have found that many worlds could not be inhabited by people like ourselves, as those worlds have no atmosphere. Others, however, may have inhabitants of a different kind, who have not lungs like ours. Mars is a planet most nearly resembling the earth. It is not known whether it is inhabited. If the curious lines on its surface are really canals, as some astronomers believe, there must, of course, be inhabitants on the planet, but it is not proved. It is not known, but the general supposition is that Christ referred to heathen Gentiles, but it has not been proved.

Constant Reader, Cherokee, Ia. In answering a question recently as to the difference between Campbellites and Baptists, you said that the former hold to "creed" but the latter do not. Is not that the position of the Baptists too?

Scarcely so. Although the Baptists have no standard creed, such as the Presbyterians have, they have what the Campbellites have not, "a confession of faith," which each church may adopt, or may formulate for itself. Those in most general use are known, respectively, as the New Hampshire confession and the Philadelphia confession. Both, of course, derive their authority from the Bible, in the sense that Biblical texts are cited in proof of the various clauses.

Knowledge-Seeker, Lemont, Pa. If a man who has been pardoned for his sins and feels in his soul the assurance of the fact, falls, in a moment of strong temptation, under the power of a sin to which he was a slave before he was forgiven, and after an interval falls again, and is conscious that he is liable to fall in the future—what would be his condition if he were to die before he had overcome?

He would be in the hands of a God of whom we read: "He knoweth our frame; he remembereth that we are dust." It is, however, important for such a man to realize his position before God. It is peculiarly shameful for him to fall after having received forgiveness of his sins. His repentance ought to be very sincere, and his resistance to temptation should be intelligent and valiant. He ought to avoid the circumstances and surroundings which are liable to bring the temptation upon him. Especially he should pray for power to resist, and if he is in earnest it will be given him. The man who yields with the idea that he will be forgiven, is likely to be abandoned of God, and being left to himself to become a slave to sin, with no desire for emancipation. Then his case would be hopeless. He should never become "conscious that he is liable to fall in the future." Power is placed at his disposal, which can make him victor over any sin if he will use it.

S. B. L., Philadelphia, Pa. What is known as the "Dark Ages"?

The period between the death of Charlemagne and the close of the Carlovingian dynasty. That period was the most barren of learned men that has ever been recorded.

Reader, Philadelphia, Pa. Will you kindly tell us something of "The Logia" containing some unpublished sayings of Christ? What and where is it, and when was it discovered?

Last year, Bernard P. Grenfell, M. A., reported the discovery while exploring under the auspices of the Egyptian Exploration Fund, of a leaf of papyrus containing eight alleged sayings of Christ. The report states that it was found among other papyri, 1,600 to 1,700 years old, in a rubbish heap on the site of Oxyrhynthus, an ancient African city, 120 miles south of Cairo. The style of writing indicates a date earlier than 300 A.D. A picture of this leaf and a full account of it was published in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, August 4, 1897.

W. B. M., Pennsylvania. Will you still receive donations for Cuban sufferers?

As soon as the Cuban ports are opened, relief work among the reconcentrados will be resumed, and any funds contributed meanwhile for that purpose can then be employed to advantage.

Reader, Council Bluffs, Ia. Two young evangelists who have been preaching here lately, claim to be missionaries of the Klondike Band, which they say is operating under the auspices of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Is this true?

You must surely be mistaken, as there is no band of missionaries, Klondike-bound or otherwise, under the auspices of this journal, or in any way connected with it. The party of evangelists, of which Alex. de Soto is leader, is the only Klondike Band we know of, and it is an independent organization under nobody's auspices.

Student, Montpelier, Vt. 1. What was the origin of flags and where were they first employed in war? 2. When was the eagle first used on a standard?

Their origin is lost in antiquity. It is evident, from the inscriptions, that they were in use during the earlier Egyptian monarchies. The Israelites bore tribal flags, or banners, in their march through the wilderness (see Numbers 1:52), some tribes having lions, others stags and eagles as their tribal emblems. Wilkinson, Rosellini and other authors devote considerable space to a description of the Egyptian ensigns and the banners of the Chaldeans. Among the sculptures unearthed at Nineveh two flags or standards were found, one having a figure drawing a bow, the other showing two bulls. 2. The eagle was first used by the Persians as far as known.

Here is a beautiful thought from a missionary in far-off India. Writing from Bidar Deccan, Rev. A. E. Cook (in discussing the hot weather) says:

If it was not for the grace of God, I think I would follow the example of Jonah and make for the nearest port, leaving this horrid, torrid country to remain in its desolate condition. I can't understand why men will undergo such hardships for worldly gain. It sometimes appears as though there were more martyrs for worldly emolument than for the cross of Christ.

Believer, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A friend of mine declares that she hears an audible voice answering her prayer, and that she has been often directed in an audible voice to do certain things. Why does God do so to one and not to another?

He does not do it to any one. Your friend is deceived. She is probably of an imaginative temperament. She does not hear God's voice. No one does. But she may imagine that she does. The fancy plays strange tricks with us. Travelers in the desert, when they become thirsty, are sure they see lakes surrounded with palm trees. But they are deceived, as your friend is deceived, in thinking she hears a voice.

Mrs. F. H. M., Toronto, Can. Some time ago I read an article, which I think appeared in a paper, on singing, by Mr. Moody. He said that singing appeared oftener in the Bible than prayer. Will you please, if possible, let me know how often sing, song and singing, and prayer and praying appear in the Bible, by the name of book, if there is one printed, or would give the number of different words.

The words referred to appear the following number of times in the Bible, Old and New Testament included: Sing, 101; song, 81; singing, 21; pray, 210; prayer, 133. Young's or Cruden's Concordance will give you the information you desire on the subject.

G. R. C., Hollidaysburg, Mo. Is it not the duty of the Sabbath to lay the corner-stone of a Christian church on that day, when there are working days in a week?

Corner-stone laying is, in such a case, more of a religious than a secular ceremony, and would be more appropriate to have it take place on a week-day.

A. N. T., Germantown, Pa. Does the promise of guidance apply to believers in our day, or is it only to the disciples, and does it relate to temporal as well as to spiritual affairs?

It applies to us, though guidance is promised less directly given to us than it was to the Apostles. In their exceptionally difficult position, God's will seems to have been communicated more clearly than it is now, though sometimes they appear not to have had it. It refers to temporal as well as to spiritual concerns, but is not intended to supersede our reason. It does follow, however, that a person asking God's guidance in earnestness, is sure to be successful. God may see that a denial will be better in some cases for his child than prompt answer.

W. E. T., Rahway, N. J. 1. Did Christ K., Exeter, N. H. 1. ... knew all things, did he know that Judas was not a true believer? 2. In what sense can a believer do greater works than Christ did, as stated in John 14:12? 3. Do the Jews of the present day show any distinction between the descendants of Judah and those of the ten tribes?

1. Christ did not know all things. He mentioned one thing that he did not know (Mark 13:32). At the same time he is not said to have known what was in man (John 2:25), so he may have been aware of the possibilities of evil in Judas when he was chosen as an apostle. Christ knew of the intended treachery before it was committed. Doubtless Judas himself, at the moment of his call, had no idea that he would commit such a crime. Even at the last, he probably expected that Christ would deliver himself by his miraculous power. He was overwhelmed horror-stricken when he realized the result of what he had done, as is proved by his committing suicide. 2. Christ proved his miracles in light of day. They were merely his credentials. They proved those who witnessed them to be ready to follow his teaching, not to be concerned with the miracle. He regarded a change of heart and spirit as something greater, and this was to be effected by his disciples through his power. 3. There is no opportunity of recognizing the distinction as the ten tribes are lost, probably absorbed by other races.

THE UNIVERSITY OF VIENNA.

This great institution of learning, established in 1365, is attended by nearly 6,000 students, and its medical faculty enjoys a world-wide reputation. It is one of the noblest structures in Vienna.

Cadet, Gardner, Ill. For all information address Navy Department, Washington, D. C. Superintendent of the Naval Academy, Va[illegible]

Subscriber, San Francisco, Cal. 1. Steamers are regulated by reasonable hygienic rules, varied by the condition of individual cases. We cannot advise. 2. It is certainly wrong.

C. D. D., Etna, Me. 1. Pronounced "Veethkaya." 2. We doubt if anybody knows them at present. 3. He is a member in good standing of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Reader, Granite City, Ill. 1. The Ma[illegible] to Havana was altogether of a friendly character. 2. She was not "cleared for action" when the explosion occurred. Stories to that effect are unfounded.

Bible Student, Lemont, Pa. 1. The most ancient know of is Genesis 3:19. 2. We do not know that it does any one. 3. There is none, except that in allowing it to grow he fulfilled a vow, which would be broken when it was cut.

Mrs. S. A., Kiowa, Kan. 1. No; in the case of the great charitable movement, the railroads do not give gifts free. 2. We do not believe a girl should be sent so far. 3. You can help, as your circumstances permit; remembering that every poor city child, who is helped to an outing, may owe a debt to its benefactor.

Christian Endeavor's Hosts.

The Seventeenth Annual International Convention of Christian Endeavorers to be Held Next Week at Nashville, Tenn.

SEE PICTURES ON FIRST PAGE.

THE honor and labor of entertaining the vast International Christian Endeavor Convention falls this year to Nashville, Tenn. How much labor such hospitality entails, the devoted body of ... ose portraits appear on this page, ... this time, from experience. And ... e only the chairmen of the com... The mem bers, whose name is ... ave been loyally toiling with ... r more than a year past, giving ... l labor cheerfully to the great ... preparing for the thou... guests who next week ... r into the city. It ... volumes for Christian ... enthusiasm that such ... taking is not only wil... ccepted, but is eagerly ... y some city, and gener... several, every year. Rev. ... drith, the Chairman of ... eral Committee, who is prac... ommander-in-Chief, has had ... all his administrative capa... energy and of the efficient ... tion of each of his aids in ... spective departments. ... drith has proved ... dotion to his ... rk by re... n the pas... e a large ... erland ... sbyterian ... n order to ... time to the ... arions for the ... reion. The re... om Nashville ... ate show that ... has been thor... ly and carefully ... d that no matter ... rny Endeavorers ... shville next week ... ll be no confusion ... ar neglect of the com... ne guests. ... was some hesita... the beginning of the ... gments as to the best ... Nashville for holding ... he meetings. On the ... hid the large halls in ... te ial Park recently oc... by the great Exposi... ered cool and airy ... in places, which is ... t to be consid... Nashville ... n sitors are ... e in July ... nada and ... r north... States. On ... er hand, ... re ns in the ... t the great ... c Gospel ... nacle, a ... di already ... p d for such ... a se m b lage, ... r nychurch... In e immedi... n hborhood ... c vere free... pled at the ... o of the ... eorers for ... erfi meet... s. Each plan ... i dvocates ... compromise was accepted which ... sur the advantages of both. The ... ly rayer-meetings and the business ... t nical meetings are to be held in ... he ci in the morning and the larger ... mer meetings will be held in the after... n the beautiful Centennial Park. ... s ems to be an exceedingly happy ... n ment, the product of some fertile ... n elonging to one of those peace... ake who earn their blessing by an ... ger us compromise. A picture of the ... Tab acle which will be the main au... tor n for the morning meetings ap... pears n the first page. The appearance of the Exposition buildings where the afternoon meetings will be held, our readers are already familiar with, through the pictures we published of that great celebration last year.

According to the provisional programme, the Convention will informally begin by ten meetings in as many churches on Wednesday evening, July 6. The subject will be, "The Enduement with Power," an appropriate topic for a prelude to the great conference. Bishop Fallows, Dr. J. W. Chapman, Dr. A. C. Dixon, Dr. David Burrell, and other well-known clergymen will conduct the various meetings, which will be followed in each instance by "the quiet hour." Early morning prayer-meetings will be held in the churches on the following morning at 6.30 A.M., and there will be "a quiet hour," conducted by Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, each day of the Convention at 8.30, in the Union Gospel Tabernacle.

The formal opening of the Convention is to take place in the great Auditorium of the Exposition at three P.M., on Thursday, when Dr. F. E. Clark, President of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, or more affectionately and familiarly "Father Endeavor" Clark, will preside. Addresses of welcome will be delivered on behalf of committees and the City and State authorities. Secretary Baer will read his report, showing the progress of the society during the year, and the badge-banners will be presented to the societies entitled to them. The great evening meeting assembles at 7:30, and in the interval of two hours between the two meetings those who prefer remaining in the Park to returning to the city will have the opportunity each day of attending Dr. Robert F. Y. Pierce's chalk talk and Dr. J. F. Cowan's Bible Study Conference.

On Friday, after the morning prayer-meeting and quiet hour, the Denominational Rallies, always one of the most interesting features of the Convention, will be held. There will probably be not less than twenty-five of them this year, and they will thus present an instructive and significant spectacle of the essential unity of Christianity and show how co-operation in work is compatible with denominational loyalty. This is a feature which Christian Endeavor has as a monopoly unshared by its two sister organizations.

The afternoon meetings are to be doubled on Friday. Dr. Boynton will preside at the Auditorium and Dr. Clark in the Minerals and Forestry Building, which receives the temporary title of Hall Williston for this occasion. Practical subjects relating to Christian Endeavor work will occupy both meetings. In the evening the same halls will again be occupied, and among the speakers in one will be Commander Booth-Tucker of the Salvation Army, and in the other Commander Ballington Booth of the Volunteers.

Saturday morning is given to the Juniors who are continually passing by the promotion of years to the regular Society. In the afternoon two simultaneous meetings will again be held with Gen. O. O. Howard, Gen. Clement A. Evans, Gov. Robt. Taylor, of Tennessee, and Bishop McCabe as the chief speakers. Following this meeting there is to be patriotic singing in the open air and a salute to the Stars and Stripes.

On Sunday there will be no meetings at the Park. Visiting pastors will preach in the city churches, and each church will doubtless find its congregation largely increased by delegates and their friends. In the afternoon there will be appropriately a meeting in the First Cumberland Presbyterian Church to consider the best methods of promoting the observance of the Lord's Day.

Monday, the last day of the Convention is to be a busy day. The morning will be given up to Committee conferences and consultation on the new spheres of work which are continually presenting themselves to this great and influential society. The topic of the afternoon meetings in the Park—simultaneous again—may be called aggressive work. How to extend Christ's Kingdom in our own and in heathen lands and how to organize the contribution of funds will be the subjects under consideration. In the evening the Convention sermons will be preached. That in the Auditorium by Dr. George C. Lorimer, of Boston, and that in Hall Williston by Dr. Z. T. Sweeney, of Richmond, Va. Both meetings will close with the usual consecration service, which fitly brings the great Convention to a conclusion for this year.

The significance of such a Convention as this will be cannot be over-estimated. The numbers attending have been increasing from year to year, and will probably be larger this year than ever before. Yet there is nothing, from a worldly point of view to be gained by going to the Convention. There are no salaried places to fill and no facilities for "grinding axes" of any kind. The object to be attained is to make the society still more effective in the extension of Christ's kingdom, in promoting the growth of grace in the hearts of its members and winning souls for Jesus at home and abroad. Conference with each other and a comparison of methods, and above all, the fraternization of workers of different names, but all inspired by the same high aims, have a wonderful influence in preparing for the year's campaign. The experience of those who have attended former Conventions has proved this. They have returned to their distant homes with new energy, new consecration and a firmer resolve than ever to labor for Christ and his church. It is an exceedingly hopeful sign for the future of the Church, that so many thousands of young people should year by year be so deeply interested in such objects as to make a long journey year by year to take part in these Conventions.

CHAIRMEN OF COMMITTEES OF THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENTION AT NASHVILLE, TENN., NEXT WEEK.

1. ERSKINE REED, MUSIC COMMITTEE.
2. CAPT. M. B. PILCHER, HALLS COMMITTEE.
3. PROF. J. D. BLANTON, LOCAL EXCURSIONS.
4. JOEL O. CHEEK, REGISTRATION.
5. ELDER T. A. REYNOLDS, PULPIT SUPPLY.
6. J. N. RUST, RECEPTION COMMITTEE.
7. EDGAR JONES, FINANCE COMMITTEE.
8. PEYTON ROBERTSON, ENTERTAINMENT COM.
9. W. L. NOELL, PRESS COMMITTEE.
10. E. S. MCFADDEN, USHER'S COMMITTEE.
11. B. G. ALEXANDER, SECRETARY.
12. REV. IRA LANDRITH, CHAIRMAN OF COM OF 1898.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

A Glorious Rest.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Micah 2: 10, ...

Arise ye and depart; for this is not your rest.

THIS was the drum-beat of a prophet who wanted to arouse his people from their oppressed and sinful condition; but it may just as properly be uttered now as then. Bells, by long exposure and much ringing, lose their clearness of tone; but this rousing bell of the Gospel strikes in as clear a tone as when it first rang on the air.

As far as I can see, your great want and mine is rest. From the time we enter life, a great many vexations and annoyances take after us. We have our holidays and our seasons of recreation and quiet, but where is the man in this world who has found entire rest! The fact is that God did not make this world to rest in. A ship might as well go down off Cape Hatteras to find smooth water as a man in this world to find quiet. From the way that God has strewn the thorns, and hung the clouds, and sharpened the tusks; from the colds that distress us, and the heats that smite us, and the pleurisies that stab us, and the fevers that consume us, I know that he did not make this world as a place to loiter in. God does everything successfully; and this world would be a very different world if it were intended for us to lounge in. It does right well for a few years. Indeed, it is magnificent! Nothing but infinite wisdom and goodness could have mixed this beverage of water, or hung up these brackets of stars, or trained these voices of rill, and bird, and ocean—so that God has but to lift his hand, and the whole world breaks forth into orchestra. But after all, it is only the splendors of a king's highway, over which we are to march on to eternal conquests.

You and I have seen men who tried to rest here. They builded themselves great stores. They gathered around them the patronage of merchant princes. The voice of their bid shook the money-markets. They had stock in the most successful railroads, and in safe-deposit vaults great rolls of government securities. They had emblazoned carriages, high-mettled steeds, footmen, plate that confounded lords and senators who sat at their table, tapestry on which floated the richest designs of foreign looms, splendor of canvas on the wall, exquisiteness of music rising among pedestals of bronze, and dropping, soft as light, on snow of sculpture. Here let them rest. Put back the embroidered curtain, and shake up the pillow of down. Turn out the lights. It is eleven o'clock at night. Let slumber drop upon the eyelids, and the air float through the half-opened lattice, drowsy with midsummer perfume. Stand back, all care, anxiety, and trouble! But no! they will not stand back. They rattle the door. They look under the canopy. With rough touch they startle his pulses. They cry out: twelve o'clock at night. Awake, man! How can you sleep when things are as they are? What about those stocks? Hark to the tap of that [illegible]: How if you should fail next week! Awake, man! Think of it! Will you get your property when you die? What will they do with it? Wake up! Rouse yourself! Take wings. How if you should get poor? Wake up!" Perhaps you may have heard of a man of fortune who looks out over the pillows of the room, and with the sharpness of death his forehead and says: "Ah! for all this scene of wealth I'm a ruined man—a ruined!"

I passed down a street of a city with a merchant. He knew all the rich houses on the street. He said: "There is something the matter in all those houses. In that one it is consumption. In that one a dissipated son. In that a dissolute father. In that a blind child. In that, the prospect of bankruptcy." His world's wealth can give no permanent satisfaction. This is not your rest.

You and I have seen men try in another direction. A man says, "If I could only rise to such and such a place of renown; if I could gain that office; if I could only get the stand, and have my sentiments met with one good round of hand-clapping applause; if I could only write a book that would live, or make a speech that would thrill, or do an action that would resound!" The tide turns in his favor. His name is on ten thousand lips. He is bowed to, and sought after, and advanced. Men drink his health at great dinners. At his fiery words the multitudes huzza! From galleries of beauty they throw garlands. From house-tops, as he passes in long procession, they shake out the national standards. Here let him rest. It is eleven o'clock at night. On pillows stuffed with a nation's praise let him lie down. Hush! all disturbant voices. In his dream let there be hoisted a throne, and across it march a coronation. Hush! Hush!

"Wake up!" says a rough voice. "Political sentiment is changing. How if you should lose this place of honor! Wake up! The morning papers are to be full of denunciation. Hearken to the execrations of those who once caressed you. By to-morrow night there will be multitudes sneering at the words which last night you expected would be universally admired. How can you sleep when everything depends upon the next turn of the great tragedy? Up, man! Off of this pillow!" The man, with head yet hot from his last oration, starts up suddenly, looks out upon the night, but sees nothing except the flowers that lie upon his stand, or the scroll from which he read his speech, or the books from which he quoted his authorities, and goes to his desk to finish his neglected correspondence, or to pen an indignant line to some reporter, or sketch the plan for a public defence against the assaults of the people. Happy when he got his first lawyer's brief; exultant when he triumphed over his first political rival; yet, sitting on the very top of all that this world offers of praise, he exclaims: "No rest! no rest!"

The very world that now applauds will soon hiss. That world said of the great Webster, "What a statesman! What wonderful exposition of the Constitution! A man fit for any position!" That same world said, after a while, "Down with him! He is an office-seeker. He is a sot. He is a libertine. Away with him!" And there is no peace for the man until he lays down his broken heart in the grave at Marshfield. While Charles Matthews was performing in London, before immense audiences, one day a worn-out and gloomy man came into a doctor's shop, saying, "Doctor, what can you do for me?" The doctor examined his case and said, "My advice is that you go and see Charles Matthews." "Alas! Alas!" said the man, "I myself am Charles Matthews." Jeffrey thought that if he could only be judge, that would be the making of him; got to be judge, and cursed the day in which he was born. Alexander wanted to submerge the world with his greatness; submerged it, and then drank himself to death because he could not stand the trouble. Burns thought he would give everything if he could win the favor of courts and princes; won it, and amid the shouts of a great entertainment, when poets, and orators, and duchesses were adoring his genius, wished that he could creep back into the obscurity in which he dwelt on the day when he wrote of the Daisy, wee modest, crimson-tipped flower.

Napoleon wanted to make all Europe tremble at his power; made it tremble, then died, his entire military achievements dwindling down to a pair of military boots which he insisted on having on his feet when dying. At Versailles I saw a picture of Napoleon in his triumphs. I went into another room and saw a bust of Napoleon as he appeared at St. Helena; but oh, what grief and anguish in the face of the latter! The first was Napoleon in triumph, the last was Napoleon with his heart broken. How they laughed and cried when silver-tongued Sheridan, in the mid-day of prosperity, harangued the people of Britain; and how they howled at and execrated him when, outside of the room where his corpse lay, his creditors tried to get his miserable bones and sell them.

This world for rest? "Aha!" cry the waters, "no rest here—we plunge to the sea." "Aha!" cry the mountains, "no rest here—we crumble to the plain." "Aha!" cry the towers, "no rest here—we follow Babylon, and Thebes, and Nineveh into the dust." No rest for the flowers; they fade. No rest for the stars; they die. No rest for man; he must work, toil, suffer, and slave.

Now, for what have I said all this? Just to prepare you for the text: "Arise ye and depart; for this is not your rest." I am going to make you a grand offer. Some of you remember that when gold was discovered in California, large companies were made up and started off to get their fortune, and a year ago for the same purpose hundreds dared the cold of Alaska. To-day I want to make up a party for the land of Gold. I hold in my hand a deed from the Proprietor of the estate, in which he offers to all who will join the company ten thousand shares of infinite value, in a city whose streets are gold, whose harps are gold, whose crowns are gold. You have read of the Crusaders—how that many thousands of them went off to conquer the Holy Sepulchre. I ask you to join a grander crusade—not for the purpose of conquering the sepulchre of a dead Christ, but for the purpose of reaching the throne of a living Jesus. When an army is to be made up, the recruiting officer examines the volunteers; he tests their eyesight; he sounds their lungs; he measures their stature; they must be just right, or they are rejected. But there shall be no partiality in making up this army of Christ. Whatever your moral or physical stature, whatever your dissipations, whatever your crimes, whatever your weaknesses, I have a commission from the Lord Almighty to make up this regiment of redeemed souls, and I cry, "Arise ye, and depart; for this is not your rest." Many of you have lately joined this company, and my desire is that you all may join it. Why not? You know in your own hearts' experience that what I have said about this world is true—that it is no place to rest in. There are hundreds here weary—oh, how weary—weary with sin; weary with trouble; weary with bereavement. Some of you have been pierced through and through. You carry the scars of a score of conflicts, in which you have bled at every pore; and you sigh, "Oh, that I had the wings of a dove, that I might fly away and be at rest!" You have taken the cup of this world's pleasures and drunk it to the dregs, and still the thirst claws at your tongue, and the fever strikes to your brain. You have chased Pleasure through every valley, by every stream, amid every brightness, and under every shadow; but just at the moment when you were all ready to put your hand upon the rosy, laughing sylph of the wood, she turned upon you with the glare of a fiend and the eye of a satyr, her locks adders, and her breath the chill damp of a grave. Out of Jesus Christ no rest. No voice to silence the storm. No light to kindle the darkness. No dry dock to repair the split bulwark.

Thank God, I can tell you something better. If there is no rest on earth, there is rest in heaven. Oh, ye who are worn out with work, your hands calloused, your backs bent, your eyes half put out, your fingers worn with the needle, that in this world you may never lay down; ye discouraged ones, who have been waging a hand-to-hand fight for bread; ye to whom the night brings little rest and the morning more drudgery—oh, ye of the weary hand, and the weary side, and the weary foot, hear me talk about rest!

Look at that company of enthroned ones. It cannot be that those bright ones ever toiled? Yes! yes! These packed the Chinese tea-boxes, and through missionary instruction escaped into glory. These sweltered on Southern plantations, and one night, after the cotton-picking, went up as white as if they had never been black. Those died of overtoil in the Lowell carpet factories, and these in Manchester mills; those helped build the Pyramids, and these broke away from work on the day Christ was hounded of Jerusalem. No more towers to b heaven is done. No more garmet weave; the robes are finished. No harvests to raise; the garners are Oh, sons and daughters of toil! ari and depart, for that is your rest.

But there are some of you who w hear about the land where they have any heartbreaks, and no grave dug. Where are your father and mo The most of you are orphans. around, and where I see one man w parents living, I see ten who are or Where are your children? Where one family circle that is unbroken. three or four that have been des One lamb gone out of this fold flower plucked from that garland golden link broken from that chain a bright light put out, and there a and yonder another. With such how are you to rest? Will there e a power that can attune that silent or kindle the lustre of that closed put spring and dance into that litt When we bank up the dust over th is the sod never to be broken? cemetery to hear no sound but the the hearse-wheel, or the tap of the the gate as the long processions c with their awful burdens of grie the bottom of the grave gravel, a top dust? No! no! no! The tom a place where we wrap our robes us for a pleasant nap on our way The swellings of Jordan will only off the dust of the way. From the the grave we catch a glimpse of the glinted with the sun that never set.

Oh, ye whose locks are wet w dews of the night of grief; ye hearts are heavy, because thos known footsteps sound no more doorway, yonder is your rest! T David triumphant; but once he ber Absalom. There is Abraham enth but once he wept for Sarah. T Paul exultant; but he once sat w feet in the stocks. There is Payso ant with immortal health; but o he was always sick. No toil, no t partings, no strife, no agonizing no night. No storm to ruffle the sea. No alarm to strike from the ca towers. No dirge throbbing from s harps. No tremor in the everlastin but rest—perfect rest—unending r

Into that rest how many love have gone! Some put down th of mid-life, feeling they could ha spared from the store or shop fo but are to be spared from it forever went in old age. One came totte his staff, and used to sit at the foo pulpit, his wrinkled face radiant w light that falls from the throne Another having lived a life of consistency here, ever busy wi nesses for her children, her heart that meek and quiet spirit that sight of God of great price, sudde countenance was transfigured, a gate was opened, and she took h amid that great cloud of witnes hover about the throne!

Glorious consolation! They dead. You cannot make me belie are dead. They have only mo With more love than that with wh greeted us on earth, they watch their high place, and their voices in our struggle for the sky. Ha blessed! now that ye have passed and won the crown. With weary press up the shining way, until lasting reunion we shall meet ag won't it be grand when, our conflic and our partings over, we shal hands, and cry out, "This is heav

By the thrones of your depar dred, by their gentle hearts, and derness and love with which th call you from the skies, I beg you the high-road to heaven. In the ing rest may we all meet.

One of the old writers wished I have seen three things: Rome in perity; Paul preaching; Christ in t I have three wishes: First—To s in glory, surrounded by his re Second—To see Christ in glory, s ed by his redeemed. Thi Christ in glory, surrounded by deemed.

When on my new fledged wings I To tread those shores beyond the I'll run through every golden stree And ask each blissful soul I meet Where is the God whose praise ye O! lead me stranger to your King

TENEMENT WAIFS MADE GLAD...

Their Joy Over the News of the Opening of Mont-Lawn—Gathering the First Recruits from the Homes of Poverty.

In many an alley and slum of lower New rk, there are two red-letter days in e year, which the children never fort. These are the opening day of our Chil- Home at Mont-Lawn and the ious Fourth," so dear to young ca everywhere and in every station . Last week, when the news went d among the tenement-dwellers that Lawn was ready to open, there was st exuberant joy, and the children d and crowed with delight. When Delaney, the kindly superintendent Catherine Day Nursery, together he writer, visited some of the lower ns of the city, they were surrounded ups of children chattering like mag- and all eagerly pleading to be in- d in the first contingent of little s for Mont-Lawn. And such chil- Barefoot and ragged, and evident- erfed, but forgetting all their mean ndings and everything else in the g picture which the missionary's had conjured up before them. eyes glistened with delight, as they told that the "golden time" had come hat Mont-Lawn's gates were open. e missionary and the writer went a dark, narrow passage and began ing stairs, seven flights there were: y enough light to find your way; y enough air to breathe: indescriba- vil and sickening smells. The light e narrow passages came from door- of tenants which opened upon them. and then the feeble wail of a sick fell upon the ear; here and there a rose from the steps and held its thin s for a flower.

"THE CHILDREN OF THE TENEMENTS CROWED WITH DELIGHT OVER THE GOOD NEWS."

the seventh floor the visitors paused. ere," whispered Miss Delaney, "is a y of ten, father and mother and children, and they have one bed. s one of the poorest cases."

ere were two tiny rooms, in which available inch of space was taken y bed, stove, table, kitchen imple- s, laundry appliances, a few chairs, ing and various necessities. The er was at the wash-tub: there were children, the youngest an infant p on the floor, the eldest, a girl of very thin, very neat, her hair carefully ed, her manners gentle and refined. mother made us welcome.

"he others not back from school yet?" d Miss Delaney.

So, ma'am. They'll be here soon. I he teacher to let Sallie come home an sooner to-day so she could help me. y ain't just well."

"How is Sallie?" asked the writer.

"She aint over strong, and hot weather's hard on her," said the mother, with a troubled expression in her eyes. Sallie was putting some daisies in a tumbler.

"Sallie, do you want to go to the country this summer?"

Her pale face grew radiant.

"O, yes ma'am—" then, looking at the five-year-old who was pulling at her dress and turning beseeching eyes on us—"please, ma'am, can my little brother go with me?" "Both."

There was joy in that home. Tears stood in the mother's eyes, as she wiped her hands on her apron, and shook hands at parting, while she said:

"She always gets sick in the summer—it don't seem to agree with her. Every time I'm afraid it'll kill her. God bless THE CHRISTIAN HERALD!"

There were other homes, just as crowded, but from which love, neatness and order were absent, and where children cowered under harsh looks and words. These, too, were gladdened by the promise of an outing.

The worst places visited were those of which pictures could not be taken, the courts being so dark (although it was early afternoon) that the camera could not do its work. The court in which our picture was taken is on Cherry Street. It is reached by a narrow dark passage from the street, and is about ten by twelve feet. It is in the centre of a high building, and many windows and tier after tier of fire-escapes look out upon it. Every window was crowded with heads of men, women and children. Every fire-escape was hung with dilapidated clothing and bedding; overhead, laundried clothes fluttered from innumerable lines stretched across, and children sat around, some trying to play in a small pile of black, ill-smelling dirt.

"Missus," said several eager voices. "Will the country open?"

All wanted to go: all listened with glad faces to the promise that they should. Our readers who are helping us in this good work, can see in these smiling faces something of the joy that this beautiful fresh-air charity brings to the children of the tenements.

From the many encouraging letters received, we have room for the following extracts:

Marie and Ida Y., two dear little friends in St. Louis, Mo., write: "May God richly bless the good work. The enclosed amount ($3) is the mite savings of two little girls. May the little child that gets the rest be doubly blessed of God, and take away a blessing that will never pass away."

Last week, Mary J G. sent for herself $50, and for another Mary, $12.

"A Friend," Smith Centre, Kansas, sends $6, adding: "Last year I sent $3, which was used for a little girl, Sadie Mock. If she is still alive, I want her sent again, and some other needy child. May God richly bless you in your work for the little children."

Eva D. H., another friend, writes: "Enclosed please find check for $15 from the Sunbeam Mission Band of Schraalenburg. The children ask that it be used to send children from the city to Mont-Lawn."

Our readers are cordially invited to help in this deserving work. Contributions of money should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York City. All contributions are acknowledged in these columns. Since last week the following sums have been received:

Prev. ack'd	$261.75	Elizabeth R Stephens	10 00
Mrs L M Smith	3 00	Birthday offering of Sarah J Tibbals	5 00
Walter S Harper	2 00	Wm Curtis	10 00
Augusta Lawrence	5 00	Mrs C A Seymour	1 50
Ida Lawrence	5 00	Mrs A E McIntyre	8 00
E J H, Moretown	15 00	Marie & Ida Young	3 00
—, Cobourg	2 00
Mrs F M Leonard	1 00	Miss H E Strong	9 00
W W, Silver Cliff	5 00	Mrs H T Danner	1 00
Fanny Marsh	3 00	Mother & dan's, Uxbridge	50
I H N, Freeport	1 00	Mrs R Rushmore	5 00
Friend, Smith Centre	6 00	Phebe K Dunham	2 00
Mrs Mackrell	12 00	I H N, Grapeville	6 00
C A Hagaman	3 00	C Corkins	1 50
G Palen	5 00	Mrs F S Titus	1 00
Mrs F Beckingham	1 00	I H N, Oxford	3 00
Emma L Blanvelt	2 00	From estate of Phebe L Totman	55 97
Amelia E La Fincott	2 00
Mrs W E Tunison	3 00	Total	$461.22
Anna Needham	1 00

Copyright F. A. Rinehart, Omaha, 1898.

OPENING DAY EXERCISES AT THE TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION, OMAHA, NE

The Trans-Mississippi Exposition Open.

Another "White City"—An Object Lesson in Western History, Progress and Resources—Foreign Exhibits.

THE great Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition, which was fully described in a former issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, opened with appropriate ceremonies, according to programme, on June 1, when President McKinley touched in Washington the button which set the machinery of the far West in motion. Architecturally, the exposition is another "White City," built on classic lines of material which looks like old marble. The landscape gardener, and architect have done their best; and it is an education, as well as a pleasure, to sail on the long lagoon of opaline water, dotted with gray colored gondolas or to traverse the broad thoroughfares, with noble statuary, clusters of shrubbery and swards of green on either side, and stately white palaces tipped with pearl and gold, lifting their domes against the Nebraska sky.

The Government exhibit is naturally superior to any that has been previously made. Its Alaskan features are of peculiar interest. The electrical exhibit, the electrical display in fountain and lagoon, the navy and army, life-saving and educational exhibits show the wonderful progress which has been made along these lines in the five years that have elapsed since the World's Fair. The machinery exhibit, on a much smaller scale than then, nevertheless bears witness to the advancement in mechanical science, especially in those features which concern agriculture, irrigation and mining.

Western exhibits are, of course, more full and complete than they have ever been seen elsewhere. The Indian exhibit, covering four acres, and showing hundreds of tepees of Apaches, Kiowas and other tribes, is an unexampled treat. The exhibits in live-stock, wild and tame, in horticulture, fruit growing, and in the beet sugar, dairy, poultry, apiary, and similar industries are very instructive. The Fine Arts Building displays a worthy collection of much that is best in both Europe and America.

On June 18, Wisconsin Day and Woman's Club Day, the General and State Federations were represented in a notable gathering of ladies from many States, to whom the city of Omaha gave loving greeting. New York, Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, Kansas, Iowa, Georgia, other States and various associations and municipalities, contribute on special days, their quota to the interest of the Exposition.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

A Land and Sea Attack on Santiago Imminent.

Shelling the Fortifications there and at Guantanamo—The Dynamite Cruiser "Vesuvius" Terrifies the Enemy—Spain's Home Troubles Increasing—Captain-General Blanco Shot—The Manila Campaign—Arrival of our Ships with Reinforcements.

WITH the arrival of our fleet of transports off Santiago, and the landing of our invading forces on Cuban soil, the second stage of our war with Spain has been reached. General Shafter's army made the voyage without incident, and the 15,700 men were in excellent health and spirits when the cliffs of Santiago were sighted with our blockading squadron in the offing. It was a great undertaking to move so large a force, and not wholly free from danger. As our boys in blue crowded the decks of the transports they were greeted with a royal welcome by the warships. Admiral Sampson directed that the troopships lie some ten miles off shore until the last of the Santiago forts could be reduced and all arrangements made for a safe landing. It was thought quite probable that General Shafter's troops might land simultaneously at three places, viz: Cuero (thirteen miles west of Santiago), Guantanamo, and a third point not indicated. It was known that General Linares, the Spanish commander of the land forces at Santiago had received reinforcements and had massed his troops at commanding points near the coast with the purpose of resolutely opposing the landing of our men. There are in all about 12,000 to 15,000 Spanish soldiers in and around Santiago, scattered over a territory twenty miles in length, and it is not expected that a landing will be effected by General Shafter without a sharp battle. If Santiago is not captured at the first onset, immediately after the landing of our troops, ten days may be required to do the preliminary work, in preparation for the general assault. In any event, hard fighting is expected. All the harbor defences will first be reduced, including the Morro fort, which our ships are now free to attack as Lieutenant Hobson and his brave associates are there no longer, having been removed to Santiago by the Spanish Admiral.

Our transport fleet, after landing the troops, will be anchored in Guantanamo harbor, and will be guarded until needed to carry the soldiers to Porto Rico, or home again to Key West.

It is believed that the Porto Rico expedition under Major-Gen. Coppinger, which will sail from Tampa, Fla., will start not later than July 1. It will include infantry, heavy artillery and cavalry, the first predominating. Gen. Miles has ordered the chiefs of bureaus to hasten preparations, and supplies are now being rapidly forwarded to Tampa.

Our naval and military operations at Guantanamo Bay and the establishment of a landing point near Cumanera, were but the preliminaries to the more important work. Strong reinforcements were sent on swift transports, ahead of the main body of the fleet, and the beleaguered marines at Camp McCalla, who had held their outpost so gallantly against superior numbers, were supported by a force, which quickly took possession of every point of advantage, driving back the Spanish troops and leaving the road to Santiago open. The experience of the pioneer invaders, however, had been a perilous and exciting one. Their first brush with the enemy was described in our last issue. On the morning of June 14th the marines, reinforced by a body of Cuban insurgents, assumed the aggressive and sent out four strong scouting parties against the Spanish guerrillas, who had fought them from the bush. These scouting parties had a most exciting all-day battle with the guerrillas, and routed them at every point. It is estimated that fully a hundred Spaniards were killed. Forty dead bodies were counted at one point along the crest of the Guantanamo hills, where the Americans stormed and destroyed a small block-house. Our Cuban allies fought courageously and succeeded in capturing nineteen Spanish prisoners, one being an officer. One Cuban soldier was killed and another wounded, but there were no casualties among the Americans, although some of our men were overcome by the scorching rays of the sun. As it had been discovered that the Spaniards were concentrating a considerable force of troops at Guantanamo, the warships Texas, Marblehead and Suwanee shelled the fortifications along the bay, destroying the barracks, the brick fort and new earthworks at Caimanera and driving the Spanish garrison into the bush.

Prior to the arrival of the American troops at Santiago, Admiral Sampson's squadron had again subjected the forts to a fierce bombardment, the Spaniards having repaired much of the damage inflicted by previous attacks. In this work, our dynamite cruiser, Vesuvius, had her first experience of actual service. There is one of the forts to the west of Morro which Admiral Sampson felt uncertain about having silenced during former bombardments, and against this fortification the Vesuvius was ordered to hurl her powerful missiles. She began the work at eleven o'clock, in a night of almost pitchy darkness, and fired one shot from each of her three pneumatic dynamite tubes, delivering the fire at short range. Each shell exploded with a deafening roar as it struck, shaking the land for a considerable distance, as by an earthquake, and throwing up huge masses of dirt and stone to an immense height. Even our warships, far out of reach, felt the shock, and their officers and crews viewed with astonishment the blinding glow that lighted up the heavens as the shells exploded. One of the Spanish vessels in the inner harbor was struck, and Gen. Joral and several other officers are reported to have been killed. The Vesuvius will be employed to demolish the Morro fort and to clear the channel of all mines and torpedoes.

While our own government, in accordance with its avowed intention, is urging matters forward vigorously with a view to ending the war as soon as possible, the Madrid authorities seem resolved to continue the policy of delay. A portion of Admiral Camara's fleet has sailed from Cadiz to Carthagena, but it is impossible to state whether its ultimate destination is the Philippines or Cuba. In either event, its existence gives our government no serious concern, as its weakness is beyond dispute.

Late dispatches from Manila state that the city is practically surrounded by the insurgents and at the mercy of Gen. Aguinaldo. Our first detachment of reinforcements has arrived, and there is little doubt of the city's early capitulation. Gen. Augusti, the Spanish commander, has resigned, in order that he may not have the disgrace of surrendering the capital. A third expedition of troops for Manila, about four thousand strong, will leave San Francisco about the first of July. Gen. Merritt and staff may accompany this force. Chief Aguinaldo has given Commodore Dewey the assurance that no excesses will be committed by the insurgents. Twelve vessels now in Manila harbor are filled with refugees, chiefly foreign residents. Aguinaldo's programme is to ultimately establish a Philippine republic, under American protection, and on the model of our own government. Meanwhile, the country will be governed as an American protectorate, with Gen. Merritt as Military Governor. It is even said that a proclamation by President McKinley will shortly be issued with reference to the Philippine Islands tariff and the collection of duties, according to a schedule prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury. Secretary Gage estimates that the Treasury receipts from this source will average $20,000,000 a year. Prospects favor our holding the islands and collecting the revenues for a guarantee of the war indemnity, the final disposition of the islands to be decided hereafter.

Spain's domestic troubles are on the increase, and with all except the official class, the war is becoming more unpopular daily. Thirty-five associations and eighteen newspapers in the province of Catalonia, of which Barcelona is the capital, have united in a manifesto against continuing the war, which, it is declared, will involve the nation in utter ruin. It is conceded that sacrifices would have to be made to bring about peace; but, the manifesto adds, "a painful amputation is a hundred fold preferable to a terrible and disastrous war. . . . Spain asks immediate peace, despite the opposition of those who desire the utter destruction of the country in order to impose their domination upon its ruin." Similar protests have come from other quarters, and the Queen Regent and Cabinet would, unquestionably welcome any opportunity of opening peace negotiations were it not for the apprehension of a revolution.

Havana is greatly excited over an attempt to assassinate Gen. Blanco. He was shot and dangerously wounded by Mariano Salva, a young Cuban member of the Havana volunteers, whose brother had been accused of treason, condemned and executed by Blanco's order. The volunteers hitherto wholly loyal, sympathized with young Salva, and join in demanding the recall of Weyler.

A GENERAL VIEW OF THE ARTILLERY CAMP AT TAMPA, FLA.—TRANSPORTS IN THE DISTANCE.

Gave a Million to the Church

MRS. Mercy Maria Gray, the widow of Rev. E. H. Gray, long a leader in the Baptist denomination in California, died recently at Oakland, Cal., at the ripe age of four-score years. During her lifetime, it is estimated that Mrs. Gray has given a million dollars to the advancement of religion and the prosecution of charitable work of various kinds under Baptist auspices.

The San Francisco Examiner says:

Mercy Maria Andrews was born in Maine, Mass., on December 20, 1818. She married Mr. Fay, an inventor who had accumulated a fortune. He died about forty years ago, leaving all his property to his wife. She was greatly interested in the Baptist denomination. At Washington, D. C., she met the Rev. E. H. Gray, D.D., pastor of the leading Baptist church of Washington, and chaplain of the Senate during Lincoln's administration. They were married and came to California. Her husband was pastor of the First Baptist Church of San Francisco for many years, and he afterwards became pastor of the First Baptist Church of Oakland, where he died four years ago. Mrs. Gray is said to have given more generously to the American Baptist Missionary Union than any other person in the United States, excepting John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil magnate, donations amounting to $1,000,000. Her donations to California College in China have amounted to $25,000. She gave $50,000 to the Baptist Theological Seminary in Chicago, $30,000 to the Baptist Missionary Society and $100,000 to Missionary work in this country. She gave $5,000 to the Baptist Publication Society and deeded valuable property to the Women's Home Mission Society. Her orphan child (adopted) is in New York City. She was engaged in supplying the necessary funds to translate and circulate in China a large number of Baptist literature. Those who knew her say that her donations to the denomination will amount to $1,000,000.

WAR SOUVENIR SPOONS

For the Wives of Pastors.

TO every pastor's wife who will send the names of twenty-five adult members of her husband's church—no two members of the same family—with full post-office addresses, legibly written on one side of the paper only, and ten cents in cash, to send, postage prepaid, two beautiful full-size, coin, silver-plate, war souvenir spoons, guaranteed A1.

For fifty names and 20c. in cash we will send four spoons, and for seventy-five names and 25c. in cash, we will send the entire set of six spoons.

These are not toys, but genuine, serviceable full-size teaspoons, nearly six inches long. Each spoon has in relief on the handle a fine picture, and in the bowl a design appropriate to the portrait as follows:

Spoon 1—Pres. McKinley and the American flag.
Spoon 2—Mrs. McKinley and the White House.
Spoon 3—Admiral Dewey and the "Olympia."
Spoon 4—Gen. Miles and Chickamauga Park.
Spoon 5—Captain Sigsbee and the "Maine."
Spoon 6—General Lee and Moro Castle.

When less than the whole six are taken, the selection must be left to us to insure a uniform demand for the above designs. Do not write any other communication in the same envelope, and write in the left-hand corner of the envelope the words "For the Million Fund."

Our readers are requested to kindly call the attention of their pastor's wife to this extraordinary proposition, and thus aid us in our efforts to introduce THE CHRISTIAN HERALD into a million new homes.

Scenes at Tampa, on the Eve of Embarkation for Cuba.

1. Troops just arrived and ready to go aboard the transports.—2. The last meal (1st Ohio Reg't) before embarking for Cuba.—3. Gen. Miles and Staff on the field at Tampa. 4. Transports waiting in Tampa Bay.—5. The 2nd Massachusetts embarking for Santiago.

Our India Famine Relief Fund.

Audited Statement Showing the Total Receipts from all Sources, the Particulars of Distribution through American Missionaries, and by the Inter-Denominational Committee, of which Bishop J. M. Thoburn is Chairman; with the cost of sending out the steamer "City of Everett" with a cargo of food, which, as acknowledged by the Government of India, saved thousands of lives, also the Special Fund apportioned among various missionaries as per list at foot of this column for the support and education of Orphans whose parents perished in the Famine.

RECEIPTS.

CASH CONTRIBUTIONS RECEIVED BY THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Week ending			Week ending
Jan. 23, 1897.		$354 65	July, 31, 1897.		$1193 53
" 30.		517 99	August 7.		769 91
Feb. 6.		986 73	" 14.		1769 21
" 13.		1737 14	" 21.		740 55
" 20.		2195 49	" 28.		1001 85
" 27.		3636 17	Sept. 4.		821 33
March 6.		7562 94	" 11.		944 19
" 13.		9784 54	" 18.		658 67
" 20.		8257 40	" 25.		547 10
" 27.		7191 62	Oct. 2,		723 77
April 3.		7375 71	" 9.		519 23
" 10.		6914 91	" 16,		537 19
" 17.		8367 48	" 23.		485 87
" 24.		14845 04	" 30.		345 30
May 1.		18624 70	Nov. 6,		226 25
" 8.		15618 71	" 13.		257 75
" 15.		13876 11	" 20.		203 91
" 22.		13215 67	" 27,		159 74
" 29.		10176 24	Dec. 4.		155 35
June 5.		6307 19	" 11,		111 51
" 12.		5551 02	" 18.		155 60
" 19.		3921 27	" 25.		53 15
" 26.		2698 84	Jan. 1, 1898		364 26
July 3.		4369 90	Contributions received through Rev. Dr. Hobbs.		3561 93
" 10.		1800 50	Total Amount,		$196,561 68
" 17.		3162 82
" 24.		1203 75

CASH RECEIVED FROM SALE OF GRAIN, ETC.

Louis Rosenfield, N. Y.	$ 121 99
Bowery Mission, N. Y. (Potatoes)	40 00
Des Moines Committee. Des Moines, Iowa.	5639 09
F. G. Logan, Chicago, Ill.	421 69
J. B. Bell, Mercer, Pa.	678 21
P. Lenane & Bros., N. Y.	681 81
Milmine, Bodman & Co., N. Y.	17484 99
W. H. Story & Co., N. Y.	14046 92
S. D. Eldredge, Chicago, Ill.	1489 14
Bowery Mission, N. Y. (Maple Sugar)	5 00
Bowery Mission, N. Y. (Flour)	101 00
Geo. W. McNear, San Francisco, Calif.	1107 93
H. Dutard, San Francisco, Calif.	4992 58
Total	46,810 35

CASH FREIGHT REFUNDS.

Received from Railroads and Transportation Lines.

New York Central and H. R. R. R.	$ 674 18
Delaware L. & W.	13 64
Star Union Line	1577 58
Red Line	3957 76
Erie Despatch	177 41
White Line	269 20
Penn. R. R.	202 49
Central R. R. of N. J.	80 57
Blue Line	1244 45
Lehigh Valley R. R.	20 37
Empire Line	103 87
Southern Pacific	4808 49
Total	13,130 01

Total receipts from all sources	256,502 04
Cash Value in India of "City of Everett" Cargo	150,000 00
Overpledged in the Special Orphan Fund (see below.)*	3130 72
Grand Total	$409,632 76

*The "Special Fund for the Support and Education of Orphans" was apportioned among the following [illegible] and payments on account of it are forwarded regularly each quarter. Leaving over pledged $3130.72 to be met by future contributions:

Pandita Ramabai	Sharada Sadan		$3,375 00
Miss W. W. Bruce	Poona	$300 a year for 3 years	900 00
Dr. J. S. Johnson	Jabalpur	300 " "	900 00
Rev. Dennis Osborne	Bombay	300 " "	900 00
Rev. W. A. Mansell	Lucknow	300 " "	900 00
Rev. J. O. Denning	Narsingpur	300 " "	900 00
Rev. R. [illegible]	Allahabad	300 " "	900 00
Miss Lawson	Meerut	300 " "	900 00
Rev. Edward S. Hume	Bombay	300 " "	900 00
Miss Esther B. Fowler	Sholapur	300 " "	900 00
Rev. Richard Wyncoop	Sirur, Poona	300 " "	900 00
Rev. Robert A. Hume	Ahmednagar	300 " "	900 00
Rev. W. O. Beardslee	Rahuri	300 " "	900 00
Rev. John Newton	Umballum	300 " "	900 00
Rev. David Downie	Nedbro	300 " "	900 00
Rev. J. E. Clough	Dingole	300 " "	900 00
Miss Lillian Deitrich	Cawnpore	300 " "	900 00
Miss Ethel H. May	Allahabad	300 " "	900 00
Rev. John N. Forman	Futtehgarh	300 " "	900 00
Rev. G. L. Wharton	Hurda	300 " "	900 00
Rev. T. M. Gordon	Mungeli	300 " "	900 00
Joseph Taylor	Seoni Malwa	300 " "	900 00
Miss Ada Lee	Hoshangabad	300 " "	900 00
			$23,175.00

Sworn to before me this 16th day of June, A D. 1898.

[illegible] GUERINEAU NOTARY PUBLIC NEW YORK

Wm. S. Guerineau
Notary Public

DISBURSEMENTS.

CASH REMITTANCES AND PLEDGES, $197,890.30, as follows:

Interdenominational Committee, Bishop J. M. Thoburn, Chairman	$110100 00
Foreign Miss. Society, M. E. Church	16000 00
American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions	10500 00
American Baptist Missionary Union	8500 00
Lord Elgin, Viceroy of India	5000 00
Salvation Army in India	2000 00
Women's Union Missionary Society	3000 00
Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions	5000 00
United Presbyterian Missionary Society	1500 00
Foreign Missionary Society of the Reformed Presbyterian Church	1000 00
Foreign Christian Missionary Society (Disciples)	3500 00
Pundita Ramabai	2125 00
B. Aitken, Calcutta, for distribution to Missionaries for famine relief	2000 00
Christian & Missionary Alliance	2500 00
Rev. G. Lambert, (Mennonites)	500 00
Rev. J. R. Newcomb (Madras)	490 30
Rev. C. B. Newton (Lodiana)	500 00
Miss Esther B. Fowler (Missionary for A. B. C. F. M., Sholapur)	500 00
Special Fund for Support of Orphans (see foot of adjoining column)	23175 00
	197890 30

EXPENSES IN CONNECTION WITH RELIEF SHIP "CITY OF EVERETT,"

Of which $4808.49 was Refunded by Southern Pacific R. R.

H. Dutard and G. W. McNear, for Corn, Beans and Rye to Complete Cargo	$19379 60
Atlantic Mutual Insurance Co., Marine Insurance	475 00
A. J. Grove, Grain Inspection	136 50
G. W. McNear, Weighing Grain	71 41
Harrison & Mills, Stevedores	22 25
W. H. Schwerin, Loading	4 00
Rev. Dr. Hobbs, Expenses in United States and India in connection with the collection and distribution of cargo	956 09
Rev. Dr. Hobbs, extra allowance for relief personally distributed in India and incidentals not contained in above, and return expenses via Europe	500 00
Rev. Dr. Hobbs, salary as Commissioner in charge of Cargo (over 6 months) including journey to India	1000 00
Southern Pacific R. R.	12133 68
" " " per G. W. McNear	631 84
" " " per H. Dutard	19 61
Rio Grande R. R., Trans. & Mileage	72 60
Un. Pacific R. R. Transfers	114 80
Charter of "City of Everett" donated by U. S. Government.	337 30

EXPENSES IN CONNECTION WITH GRAIN SALES.

Of which $8321.52 was Refunded by R. R. and Transportation Cos.

(This refers to expenses of handling grain not sent to San Francisco for shipment per S. S. "City of Everett," but sold either in New York or Chicago, resulting in an income of $40810.35, exclusive of freights refunded.

Victor H. Roedelheim Directing shipment of grain from the various centres of donation and superintending its receipt and transfer in New York	$ 288 37
Western Union Telegraph Co	20 25
Postal Telegraph Co	773 76
Miscellaneous Telegrams, received "collect" from shippers	126 21
Polhemus Bros., Fire Insurance	50 00
New York Telephone Co., Telephone Service	65 70
G. H. K. White, Grain Inspection	64 50
J. H. Bowne, Weighing Grain	114 33
S. L. Saville, Lighterage	38 07
L. D. Crossmond & Co., Cartage	17 75
Brooklyn Wharf & Warehouse Co., Actual Cash Outlay, Handling Grain	32 33
The B. W. & W. Co. placed their vast storage accommodation, with elevator service, &c., &c., at the disposal of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD absolutely free of cost for a period extending over three months.
Delaware & Lackawanna	13 64
Erie R. R.	177 41
West Shore R. R.	69 60
Central R. R. of New Jersey	80 57
Baltimore & Ohio	908 50
N. Y. Central Transportation Lines	10105 88
Penn. R. R.	2198 90
Lehigh Valley	682 88
Metro. S. S. Co.	26 26
	15400

ADVERTISING, CIRCULARIZING AND LECTURE TOURS.

A large proportion of the entire amount raised, both of money and grain, was the direct result of Advertising and Circularizing, which entailed an expense of $2597.89, as follows:

Sunday School Times, April 10 } Net after deduction of a generous donation } Sunday School Times, April 24 } of $370.92 not included above. }	$ 450 44
	450 44
Epworth Herald	267 75
Golden Rule	200 00
Advance	50 00
The Lovejoy Co., Electrotyping	217 12
Photo Electro Engraving Co., Engraving	4 42
Printing Circular Letters, &c., &c	180 84
Special Clerks, directing and mailing circulars	96 00
The Brown Bailey Co., Mite Boxes	65 09
Paper for Circulars, per Buckley, Dunton & Co	205 00
Paper for Wrappers, per Geo. W. Millar & Co	8 92
Press Work and Ink	28 00
Binding and Mailing	63 75
Station H Postoffice, Mailing	59 00
Station D Postoffice, Mailing	251 12
Chicago Bible Institute Students, for Distribution of Circulars	152 66
Rent of Auditorium, Chicago	600 00
W. B. Brocchus, Expenses in connections with meetings	241 35
Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ills., Rent	153 00
Western Methodist Book Concern, per Curts & Jennings, Chicago, for Printing	349 75
Chas. J. Blewitt, Expenses in Connection with Chicago Meetings	187 90
Other Printing, Rental of Halls, Traveling Expenses, Distribution of Mite Boxes and Circulars, Local Advertising, Telegraph and Telephone Tolls, Fares, Helpers, Postage, &c.	1199 27
	5134 80

ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS.

Paper for Printing Acknowledgements, The Jessup & Moore Paper Co		$1944 30
Composition on " "	Time Work	448 00
" " " "	Contract Work, Polhemus Printing Co.	205 00
" " " "	" " Wynkoop, Hallenbeck & Co.	167 00
" " " "	" " Theo. L. De Vinne & Co	47 50
Presswork and Ink " "		439 28
Station H Postoffice, for Mailing		486 07
		3737 15

ADMINISTRATION EXPENSES AND AUDITOR'S FEES.

Salaries paid to extra Clerks Handling Correspondence, &c., &c	741 33
Station D Postoffice, Postage and Postals	161 12
Raynor & Perkins, Envelopes	16 92
Fred Meyer, Letter heads	46 25
Geo. H. Hughes & Co., Job Printing	74 67
Bleyer Bros., Stationery	9 [illegible]
Gavin Houston, Public Accountant, Auditing Statement	101 50
	1141 30

Total	$25042 76
Cash Value of Grain Distributed in India	150 00 00
Grand Total	$400 42 76

Public Accountant's Certification.

I have carefully examined the books of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and diligently compared every voucher, receipt, check and stub, and find the above to be an accurate and true statement of the receipts and expenditures in connection with the India Famine Fund, under the auspices of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

Gavin Houston
Public Accountant,
31 Nassau Street, New York.

Te Canadian Commission.

UR neighbors across the border may rejoice with us in the better, prospect there now is of permanent amicable relations. The Commission, it has been resolved to create, for the consideration of all matters of controversy tween our country and the Dominion, as it the promise of peace and goodSo much appears to have resulted n he cordial friendliness displayed tos by England, almost alone among r ean nations, in our trouble with The Commission is the outcome ferences between Secretary Day, r uis Davies, the Canadian Minister Wine, and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the t Ambassador to Washington. It s to be composed of men untrammelled pt utterances, and having no pecur interest in the questions at issue. The al details have yet to be arranged, t th the present good feeling there is el o be no difficulty in making them t y acceptable. The office of Com- per will be no sinecure. Re- t the Alaska boundary ques- . nich the discovery of gold in ondike has made of great cance, has been added to the hring Sea dispute and the nsettled differences. None will be easy of settlement. hen they are submitted to s men who desire a fair and ble solution of the problems. an be accomplished in a few than by years of diplomatic rrondence. It is understood at he Commission's powers l ver every question at issue etwn the two countries, and if, s robable, it becomes a perma- t ourt of arbitration, it will e harge of future disputes as ey ay arise. Provision is thus d or the avoidance of quarrels. c are more difficult of settlentter the public on both sides s en excited by a section of the es which seems to take a fiendd ght in widening any breach t y be made. The two nations th uture will be in the position l gants in a law court, and ou the attitude of litigants to e other is generally far from ie, it is far better than the ad of quarrelling men struggling g a grip on one another's o . The creation of the Coms has caused widespread mment in Europe. It would be a good f the nations there followed the exp An international court of arbitrawhich all nations had confidence, l make large armies unnecessary, d ould relieve the people of their e burdens of taxation. There seems t rospect of such a court being esli ed in the immediate future, but ven lly the vision of the prophet will e fulled, and men will no longer settle eir arrels by war:

e all judge among the nations, and they shall t r swords into plowshares and their spears p ang-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword n nation, neither shall they learn war any re a. 2:4).

Te of Fireproof Building.

A ientific journal calls attention to s i dental lessons of one of Chicago's re fires. It says that the contenn builders of steel structures has en onfirmed as to the capacity of rel amed fireproof buildings to withstan he effect of heat, by the burning of e eat Shoeneman building in Chi- The structure was seven stories in eig and immediately adjoined the not- le old Colony building, some seven- en ories high, on the north side, and he anhattan building, which rises sixteen ories, on the south. The heat to hic the last mentioned two buildings ere ubjected in this ordeal was intense, nd ve as fair and thorough a test in this respect as could be desired. The Manhattan gigantic pile suffered no injury from heat or fire, except that some window casings were burned and fifty or sixty windows broken. The effect on the Old Colony building was even less, according to the report of the architects who were employed to make a professional examination. It would appear from this that a way has been found at last for making a building really fireproof. A more severe test than that of the burning of a large building immediately adjoining could scarcely be imagined. That test is being continually applied to moral character in the world; for sin, like fire, spreads by contiguity. There is no protection in that case that has stood the test but the one Christ provides.

I pray not that thou shouldst take them out of the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil . . . Sanctify them through thy truth (John 17:15-17).

Aiding the Enemy.

An extraordinary instance of disloyalty is reported from Pennsylvania. As is well known, one of the chief difficulties

THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT BUILDING AT OTTAWA, ONT.

Spain has encountered in waging war by sea is the difficulty of getting coal on this side of the Atlantic for the engines of her warships. She has obtained it by some means, and there is reason for suspecting that some of our citizens have been concerned in supplying her with it. The Secret Service officials have been informed that since the war has been in progress hundreds of tons of coal have been shipped by brokers near Philadelphia to the Spanish agents. United States District Attorney James M. Beck and Chief McManus of the Secret Service Bureau, are busily engaged in conducting an investigation which they believe will result in sending several prominent coal dealers to jail. The officials are in possession of valuable information regarding the sale of large quantities of coal to the Spanish Government, and the District Attorney, it is said, is simply waiting for certain other developments before taking action. Chief McManus is believed to have made several important discoveries in connection with the searching investigation which he has commenced and which implicate well-known men. It is humiliating to think that we have among us men whose desire for gain is stronger than love of country. But while we naturally despise a man who thus plays the traitor, we too often forget that it is still more disgraceful for one who is a member of the kingdom of Christ to encourage the enemies of his Lord by his presence and support of worldly amusements which retard his cause.

For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the Cross of Christ (Phil. 3:18).

Caught in the Avalanche.

Among the men who started for the Klondike when the news came of the discovery of gold, were four citizens of Michigan. The Detroit Free Press publishes the following story from a letter one of them sent to his wife, of his rescue from under the great avalanche which caused the death of several travelers: "We had gone about a mile in forty-five minutes when the avalanche struck us. We were almost up to our shoulders in the trail so had no chance to run, even had we heard the slide coming, but the wind howled so we heard nothing. The first we realized we thought the man back of us had fallen against us. I held up my arm as high as I could, though I thought once that I could not hold it up any longer, then the snow swept over my face, then it stopped. I found my hand was still out, so I turned my arm enough to let the air down to my face which I had turned toward the hole I had made. I kept saying, 'Here I am,' and moving my hand. My body and legs and other arm seemed held as if in a vise. Soon a man caught hold of my hand and pulled, but could not pull me out. Then he pulled the snow away from my face and from Will's face also, as his head laid on my shoulder. Then I told him to hunt for the rest of the boys for 'I'm all right.' It was slow work getting out, but eventually we were all free and helping to search for the others." The man probably took the only course that could have saved his life. It enabled the searchers to find where he was and extricate him. The extended hand and the appealing voice brought help. It is so with those who need Christ's help to rescue them from their sins.

Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved (Rom 10:13.)

Needlessly Alarmed.

An excited German woman caused the police of New York some trouble a few days ago. She rushed down the steps of the Elevated road at the foot of Whitehall street, screaming for a policeman. One was found, and to him she told a confused story of her ten-year-old daughter having been kidnapped. She had lost sight of the child in the crowded car and on reaching the end of the route had been unable to find her. On inquiring of the conductor, he told her that he had seen the child leaving the train at one of the stations with a tall, dark man. She was sure the child had been stolen and begged the policeman to help to recover her. He reported the case at headquarters, and a general alarm was sent out. The mother went into hysterics at intervals for the next hour or two, but was relieved late at night by the news that the child was safe at an up-town station-house. It appeared that a detective, who was on the train, noticed the child's distress at losing sight of her mother, and he questioned her. She told him that she lived at a certain number in Fourth avenue, and thinking to render her and her parents a service he got off the train and took the girl to the address she gave. But she was not known there, neither did she recognize the house. The detective after some fruitless searching took the child to the station-house, where she remained until the general alarm brought her mother and her together. It appeared that the child did live at the number she mentioned on Fourth avenue, but it was Fourth avenue, Paterson, N. J. It would have been better for mother and child if the detective had not interfered, though he had only the best motives for his interference. The Christian is never in danger of doing such mischief when he offers himself as guide to those who are spiritually lost. When he leads them to Christ, he does them the best service that could be rendered:

Let him know that he who converteth a sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death (James 5:20).

BRIEF NOTES.

While THE CHRISTIAN HERALD was engaged in raising funds for the relief of the India famine sufferers and for the poor reconcentrados of Cuba, it occasionally received pieces of jewelry with instructions to sell them and apply the amount to the one or the other of these charity funds. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has invariably declined to entertain such propositions, owing to the fact that the selling price of an article is usually much lower than the owner expects to realize, and therefore, whenever it was possible to do so, we have returned these gifts to the sender at our expense. Some jewelry still left on our hands has come from anonymous sources, and we therefore respectfully request persons who have sent us jewelry during either the year 1897 or the present year, and to whom it has not yet been returned, to kindly give us such details as may aid us to identify the articles contributed by them, and on receipt of the desired information, we will, as in the other cases, gladly pay the charges of transportation and return the goods free to their owners.

The Russian Government has asked the Sultan of Turkey to allow 30,000 Armenian refugees, who fled into Russia at the time of the disturbances two years ago, to return to their homes.

The two great assemblies of the Scotch churches have just been held. The report of the Established Church shows a membership of 641,803, an increase for the year of 8,305. The report of the Free Church shows a membership of 290,789, an increase of 3,177.

The Inter-Seminary Missionary Alliance will henceforth be merged in the Inter-Collegiate Young Men's Christian Association. This change will, it is believed, bring the movement into closer touch with missionary interests in the colleges of other lands, and will promote greater continuity of effort.

The recent report of the Church Extension Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church shows that the society has received since its organization in 1864, $1,020,000. The society has added 10,912 churches throughout the States and Territories of the Union.

The United Presbyterian Mission in Egypt is almost the only mission among the millions of that now partially awakened land. It is carried on by forty-one American missionaries, and sixty-eight native evangelists. There are forty-two organized congregations, and the total membership is 5,725.

A communication from the Princess of Wales is published by an English journal in which she expresses her distress at the suffering involved to birds, and especially the egret, by the present demands of fashion. She begs English women to discountenance the practices mentioned, and to see to it in making their purchases that they do not buy plumes or feathers that are obtained by cruelty to the birds.

Dr. L. W. Munhall's Evangelistic Services, at Austin, Tex., have aroused a widespread interest. The meetings for men only have especially attracted large audiences. At one of them held on June 12, over 300 men rose to ask for prayers. At the general meetings in the Tabernacle immense numbers of persons have gathered in spite of the stormy weather and the number of inquirers has been growing daily.

Glowing reports of progress are brought from South Africa by Bishop Turner, of the African Methodist Episcopal church. President Kruger, of the Transvaal gave the Bishop a cordial reception and expressed his sympathy with the work of the church. The Bishop ordained sixty ministers during his stay. The membership of the A. M. E. churches in South Africa aggregates over 5,000 and is increasing rapidly.

The American Bible Society has secured government permission to work in Ecuador. It is sixty years since the agent of the Society was excluded from the country at the request of the Roman Catholic Bishop and his clergy. Work has been done since then, but always at the risk of prosecution. Now, however, Senor Vatay, a Peruvian of great tact and piety has accepted the agency of the Society and has been admitted to an audience by President Alfaro who purchased a Bible from him and promised him all the protection the law could afford.

The Sunday School

ELIJAH, THE PROPHET.

S. S. Lesson for July 10. I. Kings. 17: 1-16.
Golden Text, I. Kings 17: 16.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

THE dividing of Israel was permitted by God, but it was in the way of judgment. Jeroboam, instead of following the Lord and doing that which was right in his eyes, as the prophet Ahijah had exhorted him, took things into his own hands. He could not trust God to keep the people loyal to him, and he feared above all that if they went up to Jerusalem three times in a year to keep the feasts of the Lord (Ex. 23: 14 17), they would, by their very fellowship in worship, be drawn away from him to Rehoboam and the people of Judah. And thus, setting aside altogether the promise of the Lord to make him a sure house if he obeyed him, he devised means of his own to secure the kingdom, and made two golden calves, doubtless in imitation of the cherubim, and placed one in Dan, at the northern frontier of his kingdom, and one in Bethel, on the frontier which everyone must pass to enter into the kingdom of Judah. Thus the unhappy man earned the reputation which can never be disassociated from him: "who made Israel to sin."

Jeroboam's dynasty ended with his son Nadab, who reigned only two years, and then came to a violent death at the hands of the conspirator Baasha, who succeeded him. And now things went from bad to worse in Israel, until Ahab came to the throne, in whose depth of sin things came to a crisis. He did evil in the sight of the Lord "above all that were before him, and married not only a Gentile, but one who was the prophetess of Baal; possessed undoubtedly by an evil spirit. This woman Jezebel gained such an ascendancy over this wicked king, that he publicly set up the worship of Baal in the royal city of Samaria, and he "did more to provoke the Lord God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel which were before him" (I. Kings 16: 30-33). It was a hard thing to serve God in days such as these when sin and idolatry were patronized in the highest circles.

It is in such circumstances that God develops his prophets. The rulers of Israel caused God's people to sin, the priesthood of Israel ministered to golden calves. God needed someone on whom he could count to assert his right over his people. In Elijah he found such a man. It might be a matter of little moment to the multitude that Israel had departed from God, but to Elijah it was the burden of his soul. He understood his God, and it was shame and grief to him that his people had forsaken the God of their fathers. How long this burden had been upon him we know not. All his antecedents are summed up in the pregnant words, "The Lord God of Israel before whom I stand." A man who has learned to live so in the presence of God that this is all that can be said about him is a man qualified to be a prophet of Jehovah. The school of the presence of God is where man learns his own nothingness, and God can have a free hand with one who does not seek to serve himself in his service of God.

The first ministry of this prophet which God has put on record is a mission to the king. From the presence of God to the presence of the king. From the Most High to one of his creatures who had been trusted to rule his people and had betrayed the trust. Elijah did not study court etiquette as a preparation for his mission, neither did he seek some form of eloquent words; he simply waited on his God for the message, received it and delivered it. "As the Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word." What had gone on in that Presence in which Elijah was at home, before it came to this?

God never sacrifices the worker to the work. Man does only too often. Such a message to such a personage might easily have led to self-consciousness and this chosen vessel might have been misled. "Get thee hence and . . . hide thyself" was the word of command, and the place which was in the will of God was revealed to Elijah, and also God's extraordinary provision for him. "Thou shalt drink of the brook and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there." Was it true economy to let so large a share of the time of such a man be absorbed in doing nothing, and only learning to trust for his food by unusual means? There lay behind the external things deeper lessons. Elijah was learning to look, not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen (II. Cor. 4: 18), to "walk by faith, not by sight" (II. Cor. 5: 7). It might naturally occur to him that the right thing would have been to warn the people everywhere of God's coming judgment, but the same man who could hide himself and trust the people to God was exercised by accepting voracious ravens as his unlikely providers. If we could only see the other side of all which happens in our daily life, and God's wondrous provision for our education, we should see a greatness in every apparent trifle, and that nothing is little so long as we take it from his hand, and so allow it to answer its true purpose.

But a new trial of faith awaited the prophet, the brook dried up; the last little trickling drops of water failed: to the human sight, fever and death awaited him. But the learner in God's school did not move until he was bidden: "God was still responsible; it was not until every drop of water had dried up that "the word of the Lord came to him." But Elijah had learned his lesson, and no doubt there was linked with his physical need a diminishing of hope for his people; they were in great suffering; thousands must have died of famine, yet there was no evidence that they or their king were humbled. Hope was perhaps drying up like the brook. At last the word of the Lord came to him: "Arise and get thee to Zarephath, which belongeth to Zidon. Behold I have commanded a widow woman there to sustain thee."

TRADITIONAL SCENE OF ELIJAH'S REFUGE AT THE BROOK CHERITH.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

SIXTY troublous years followed the disruption of the Hebrew kingdom described in last week's lesson. The little state which, even when united under Solomon, had with difficulty maintained itself against the powerful nations around it, was a tempting prey after it had been weakened by division. The king of Egypt descended on Judah, took Jerusalem and stripped the temple of its gold. But the son succeeded the father on the throne and the Southern kingdom was thus spared the miseries of civil war. The Northern kingdom was not so fortunate. Jeroboam's son was slaughtered in an insurrection and Baasha, the leader of it, tried to secure the permanence of his dynasty by murdering all Jeroboam's family. But his son was murdered in a new insurrection, the leader of which committed suicide seven days afterwards, when he found that his accession was not acceptable to the people. Omri, the commander-in-chief of the army, thereupon became king, and after twelve years of almost continuous war with the Moabites on one side and the king of Damascus on the other, died a natural death, leaving the crown to Ahab, his son. Asa, the great-grandson of Solomon was then king of Judah.

Elijah the Tishbite. Many guesses have been made as to the meaning of this title. No satisfactory explanation has been found, but it probably referred to the place of his abode which cannot now be identified. His subsequent history shows that he was a man of strong faith and dauntless courage. He appears suddenly in the narrative, with no record as to his previous history. He enters the presence of the king, and briefly and bluntly announces him of a prolonged drought which would involved extensive famine. Elijah must have been a brave man to go to court with such a message; but in times of national wickedness doing God raises up such men. There was a similar time, when Mary, the wicked queen, educated in France, tried to bring Scotland under the power of the Pope. John Knox, like another Elijah, went to court and denounced her. "Who are you," she asked, "that presume to school the sovereign and nobles of this realm?" He answered boldly, "Madam, a subject born within the same." He had a subject's rights and would not permit his country to be handed over to Romanism without protest. They made him a galley slave, and while he toiled, a prisoner at the oar, they brought him and the other prisoners an image of the Virgin Mary, requiring that they should "do reverence to the Mother of God." When it came to Knox's turn he exclaimed: "This is no More of God. This is only a painted block," and he flung the thing into the river, an act that nearly cost him his life.

Hide thyself by the brook Cherith. Farrar thus describes the hiding place: "On each side, deep, winding and precipitous rise, the steep walls of rock, the valley full of tropical foliage, among which are conspicuous the small dark-green leaves and stiff thorns of the Nubk [illegible] below the summit of the ravine, marked by its almost imperceptible thread of water by the brighter green of the herbage protected by masses of dewy leaves from the fierce power of evaporation, the sudden torrent preserves its life in all but the most long-continued periods of drought. In such a scene Elijah was absolutely safe. There was nothing cowardly in thus hiding himself. He had a work to do, which he would not have lived to do if the Tyrian she-wolf could have found him. God often finds a place for his instruments. When Luther's life was in danger, and princes and people were seeking him to kill him as they had killed Huss, he was hidden in the castle of the Wartburg, where he was translating the Bible, a work he could not have done but for his enforced seclusion.

The ravens brought him bread. It is uncertain whether birds are meant here, for the Book of Kings was composed before ten Hebrew words had no vowels. Only consonants were used and the vowels were inserted many years afterwards when the Hebrew language was becoming less common among the people. The Hebrew word, translated "raven" consisted of three consonants which also represented the word for Arabs or Orbites (people dwelling near Mt. Oreb). It is difficult to imagine the prophet eating food brought to him by the unclean, carrion-loving raven. It is much more reasonable to think of him being fed by people who knew of his hiding place. At the same time, a raven, of course, may have been worked for the support. A missionary writing in Sunday School Times, says that he has seen birds in India snatch food out of the hands of children and carry it away. He has seen a bird snatch a piece of meat off a dish which a servant was carrying to be set on a table out of doors near by.

Get thee to Zarephath. This is more easy of identification. It is Sarepta which Luke mentions as belonging to, or in the neighborhood of Sidon, which is now called Surafend. The miracle had already been worked, here was another miracle. It has sometimes seemed to the tired Christian as if such a miracle has been worked in his experience. "Many a time," says a man who has an assured income, "have I been reduced to my last nickel. Once, I remember, I had been out of work for three months and all my little savings were exhausted. I was going out to search for work as usual, and was going to walk so that I might leave my last nickel with my wife to buy a loaf for her lunch, but she would not hear of it. I yielded to her when I saw it would give her pleasure. In the car, I met an old friend whom I had not seen for many years, who, unknowing to me, was in business in the city. I entered his service, and am now his partner. I have not known want since. I paid my fare that morning, and my wife had the nickel still that I took with me.

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

Little Cuban Exiles.

Mrs. Selden's Good Work for Cuban Children of New York and Brooklyn.

MANY of our readers are familiar with the good work which Mrs. C. W. S. Selden and her sister, Miss Susan Strong, have been doing in Brooklyn in training Spanish-speaking girls to Christ-vice for the past eight years; and will be interested to know that her ...inities are being enlarged and that ...hil dren of Cuban refugees are com-...er her charge. Thus, in our own ...e can do something for the natives ...stricken island.

The Home Training School for Spanish-speaking Children, located at 126 Ma...eet, Brooklyn, is crowded to over-...i. Of the thirty pupils, there are ...xicans, one Central American, one ...e an born, and the ... Cubans. Nineteen ...the latter are children ...refugees, driven here ... strife that has des-...e their homes in the ...y island; a number ...hans. Many chil-...n plying for admis-...n the Home Train-...School, and standing ...sa...eed of its advan-...s cannot be received ...d: of room. In con-...q...nce of admitting ...s to the same educa-...a privileges as girls, ...t building and an ...e caretaker are to be ...vid. A large num-...o boys under twelve ...e pplied for admis-...nd are impatiently ...ing it. Mrs. Selden's ...k as been so greatly ...ss that it has been ...d her girls: "They ...ing in an atmos-...ere of faith, love and ...re and already are ...coming light-bearers ...on their families and ..." Her long ex-...ee with Spanish-...a...g children gives ...re...eptional knowledge ...their characteristics. ...t little Cubans who ...e under her motherly ...e pecuiarly fortu-...e. he labored in Mex-...i five years as a reg-...rly appointed missionary of the Amer-...n ...ard before coming to New York, ...r she began her work of house-to-...se...sitation among Spanish-speaking ...pl... Later, "The Evangelical Aid ...ie for Spanish Work in New York ... ...ooklyn" was formed, with Mrs. ...deas superintendent and Miss Strong ...te...er; in 1887 the Industrial School ...s ...anized: in 1888 a Sunday School; ...1...a day school, and out of this de-...p... a training class and the Home. ...e ...le Cubans are, for the most part, ...d... of refined parentage, and their ...we...or doing good among their own ...p... when Cuba is free, and her ports ...e o... again, will be great. Now, it be-...ve us to be kind to the little exiles ...i... ur gates, that they may remember ...at ...anner of Christians we are. Our ...ade will be glad to know that the ...di... of Mrs. Selden's little Cuban ref-...gees ...ill be guest's for a short outing ...t M...t-Lawn this summer.

REFUGEE CUBAN GIRLS, WHO WILL PROBABLY VISIT MONT-LAWN THIS SUMMER.

Protection for Song-birds.

The Audubon Society has recently won a test case in Chicago. The society's attention has been directed for some time to the wholesale trapping of native song-birds throughout the State, and especially in Chicago suburbs, for the big millinery and bird stores in Chicago. Game Warden Loveday, with Edward B. Clark, an Audubon Society director, went to a big millinery store, seized the caged Illinois birds in the collection, and went before Judge Underwood, who decided in favor of the Audubon Society, and the songsters who had piped their sweet music in the millinery store, surrounded by their dead brothers and sisters, and artificial flowers. The case created a sensation among live-bird dealers, who thronged the court-room. The penalty was forfeiture of the birds, which were turned over to Warden Loveday. The judge's decision will be an effective measure against bird-trapping, since it demonstrates the purchaser's as well as the catcher's liability.

The World's Oldest Postmaster.

During May, officials of the Post Office Department in Ottawa, Canada, were much interested in a report, which passed through it, giving the history of Robert Taylor, a postmaster, 134 years old, in the employ of the English postal service for seventy-six years.

By reliable statement, he was born in Scarva, north of Ireland, in the reign of George III. He was 51 years old when the battle of Waterloo was fought. He was five years old when Napoleon was born, and he can clearly remember the revolt of the American colonies against England in 1776. The report further says that the old gentleman still possesses all his faculties and discharges all the duties of postmaster in his native village of Scarva. Mr. Taylor is said to have lived the life of a bachelor until he had passed the age of 100 years, and in 1872 he married a lady whom he had known for over fifty years.

The Orphan Owlets.

A little boy, living in a city, had two soft, downy, motherless little screech-owls for pets. They shared the stable-barn with other pets, consisting of a coon, two doves and a squirrel, and were fed on morsels of fresh meat.

Clothed in mantles of exquisite texture and finest tint of gray, they surveyed the garden with calm compassion from the shoulder of their young master, and when brought into the house inspected its unwonted belongings with unruffled dignity of demeanor. One morning, the call to breakfast, failed to bring them fluttering down in glee. Thieves were suspected, murder most foul was found, the cat was whipped, the squirrel most severely scolded, and general sorrow prevailed. The young master accidentally kicked an empty tomato can, when out rolled two very sleepy little owls. Their disappearance became frequent, and when one of them failed to appear for a day, it was the mournful uneasiness of the little mate that instigated search. A telephone wire half concealed in an apple tree had caught and held the owlet, and he was hanging stiff and cold, hidden from sight by the pink and white blossoms, leaving the little survivor to droop and perish.

Her Sorrow's Cure.

If your sorrows appear hopeless get away from them by applying your energies to helping somebody else; and often your own troubles will settle themselves. Here is a true story which illustrates this forcibly. It is told by Miss Collins, Matron of our Children's Home, and prominent in various good works:

One day a carriage drove up to the door of the Home, and a quietly and handsomely dressed lady got out and came in. "Are you the matron of the Children's Home?" she asked as I met her, and continued impulsively, "I have come all the way from Illinois to see if I could do anything for the children." I saw she was in trouble and under nervous excitement, and took her off by herself and had a little talk with her. She was a widow whose little ones were dead; her health was wretched; she had gone about from one sanitarium to another—her thoughts taken up with herself and her troubles; she was down-hearted and despondent and on the point of committing suicide, when a friend sent her some reading matter, among which was a copy of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD containing an account of The Children's Home. Without waiting to weigh the matter, she had gotten on the cars and come. I saw that she was not strong enough to help care for the children, but I did know of some work for Christ which she could do, and I put her at it. Her health has improved and she does much good. It took her out of herself, and that is cure for real, as well as imaginary woes. Bearing another's burden often lightens your own.

A Suggestive Work.

Two public school teachers, Miss Gillespie and Miss Jones, of Evanston, Ill., have been doing much good in the neighborhood of their schools in a natural but rather unusual way. Miss Gillespie wanted to keep her charges off the street, and organized boys' and girls' clubs, which met in the school-room in the evening. Opportunities for recreation and improvement were provided, and before she knew it Miss Gillespie had on her hand a full-fledged manual training school, in which prominent ladies of the town gladly co-operated with her. Miss Jones' work was among the mothers in the neighborhood of Noyes street school, and developed into a far-reaching influence for good.

I DON'T WANT TO SAY MY PRAYER.

"SAY, 'Now I lay me,' my little one,"
To my baby one night, I said,
When the happy evening frolic was done,
And she was all snug in bed;
She looked at me with a glance half shy,
From under her sunny hair—
"But, mamma—to-night—I dess zat I—
I don't want to say my p'ayer!"

"Don't want to say your beautiful prayer?
Don't want the dear Lord to keep
My darling safe in his loving care,
While she shall be fast asleep?
Don't want to thank him for food and drink—
For sunshine and flowers fair?
For home and love? Do you really think
You don't want to say your prayer?"

"Oh! mamma," she said—"I will—I must—
I dess I do need dear Dod!"
And she prayed with the old-time love and trust,
And was soon in the "land of Nod."
But I thought of the wanderers near and far,
Who stumble in many a snare—
Who never think of their "Guiding Star"—
And don't want to say their prayer.

And oh! I prayed they might soon be brought To turn from the way they've trod—
To pray the dear prayer their mothers taught
And to seek their mothers' God.
I pray they may feel their need to-night
Of a Saviour's pitying care—
And find the beautiful way of light,
In the way of the old-time prayer.

Oberlin, O. MRS. FRANK A. BRECK.

A Little Hero of the Tenements.

SOLOMON KORJEVSKY, a ten-year-old child of the tenements, performed a deed of unconscious heroism, which has caused him to be compared to the man who sunk the Merrimac. Samuel Korjevsky, Solomon and a host of relatives occupied the top floor of 27 Eldridge street, the lower floors of which were used by sweat shops. One night, Samuel woke to find smoke everywhere. He gave the alarm, and the tenants followed him, as he climbed the scuttle stairs to the roof; the scuttle would not open, and they almost suffocated while they tried to break it, succeeding at last, and reaching the roof, only to find themselves fast prisoners on a burning building, for the scuttle of the next tenement, through which they had meant to descend, like their own, would not yield. "Solomon," said Mr. Korjevsky, "go down in our kitchen and get the hatchet." Solomon went; he found flames in the hall below; he could not hear even his father's voice on the roof—only the crackling of fire. But he got that hatchet and carried it up to the roof. When our Heavenly Father bids us go through sore trials to help each other, are we so obedient to His command?

Decorating Servants.

A very interesting German custom, well worth mention, is the fact that serving women are frequently decorated by the Empress Augusta Victoria, as a recognition of faithfulness. The decoration is bestowed upon servants who have remained in one family for a term of forty years. In the provinces, many of these medals were given last year, but in the city of Berlin, only one woman could claim it. This German custom is worth thinking over and worthy of being imitated in some way. If anybody in the world contributes to the health, happiness and good morals of a family, it is the kind, faithful, conscientious servant, and if anybody deserves gold medals, she does. Next to mother, no one so influences baby's life as nurse; and the housemaid an l cook have the appetite, digestion and good temper of the entire household in their keeping. Every training school which makes a feature of domestic science is doing a good work, and every act which recognizes the value of efficiency and faithfulness, is a move in the right direction. We must seek to make our service honorable and to dignify home-keeping.

The Gospel Flag Kept Flying.

Work of the Christian Commission at the Army Camps—Gen. Howard Interviewed—A Great Opportunity for Christian Service.

EACH passing week witnesses the expansion of the Gospel work in the army, which is conducted under the auspices of the Christian Commission and by its devoted workers. Money is needed to enable the workers to carry the Gospel tidings into all the camps and the co-operation of good people everywhere is invited. In an interview with Gen. O. O. Howard, who has just returned from an extended preaching tour in the Southern camps, that veteran Christian soldier explains the situation most interestingly. He says:

I have been South visiting the army camps with Major Whittle, at Chickamauga, at Mobile, and remained over a week at Tampa, and then revisited Mobile and Chickamauga on my return. We went down to make some arrangements about religious work among the soldiers. Before leaving New York we called on the Bible Society, the Tract Society, the publishers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and publishers of song and hymn books, all of whom furnished us with supplies of their books, sending them to the front for us free. These books and papers were all sent to a central distributing tent, an office in charge of our committees. We decided upon the name of Army and Navy Christian Commission for our organization; like the old Commission of which George H. Stewart was president. It is a branch of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, with Mr D. L. Moody as Chairman of the Evangelistic department of the work. We hope to unify under it all the work of this character that is to be done in the army.

Army Officers Aiding.

Secretary Alger has given us permission to enter all camps of the United States Army. This includes Cuba and the Philippines. The Generals commanding at the different encampments received us with great cordiality. Shafter at Tampa said that nothing could be better for the discipline and comfort of the men. He afforded us every facility he could for transportation from camp to camp. We hold meetings in the camps and the officers aid in the services. At the first meeting we held on the ground near Tampa Bay Hotel, Gen. Guy V. Henry was present, and when I had finished my address he arose and made a five minutes' speech, which was strongly Christian, showing that the better the man the better the soldier. I believe that the majority of the officers in the regular army are Christian men, and many of them are in earnest sympathy with religious activity.

Many Conversions.

There were undoubtedly conversions at every meeting we held, and large numbers responded to Dr Dixon every time he called. One man wanted to have his name changed on the army roll. He enlisted under his mid[illegible] name and asked me how the change could be effected. He told me that he had just found the Saviour; he seemed to be a thoroughly changed man. Of course, there are also large numbers of Christian men in the regiments, and all of these exercises—the Y. M. C. A. and its helpers, the speakers that Mr Moody has sent and the chaplain's services—make them to keep the flag of Christ flying. A great many chaplains were left behind when the regiments moved. There are a few chaplains now on the front line, who are doing as well as men possibly can do to meet the wants of their regiments, but they need [illegible] help and help of our Christian Commission. They need the books, the tents and the portfolios for common service.

The average age of these young men who come to us is from twenty to twenty-five years. It is a particularly good time to meet them during this long waiting at the camp, and we find many of them are not reachable at home [illegible] camp there. What they need [illegible] the simple Gospel. Mr Moody has already rendered good service [illegible] camps when will do [illegible] such work, there [illegible] Tampa could [illegible] of the regiments that hardly [illegible] Christian Commission.

Religious Work in Tampa.

[illegible]

PORT TAMPA, FLA.

Port Tampa is the water terminus of Tampa. It is the vortex and the point of concentration here. Here at Port Tampa you see a hundred officers where you see only one at the Tampa Bay Hotel. Only here the officers wear their field clothes, while at the Tampa Bay Hotel one sees gold lace, spotless uniforms and ceremonial entertaining.

There is no chaplain with the regiments at Port Tampa, and the spiritual welfare of the men is therefore left to chance visits from chaplains and pastors from Tampa. Occasionally a religious mass-meeting is held in the open field, near the camp of the First Artillery. This regiment is one of the first to leave for Cuba, and Rev. Dr. Dixon spoke to them particularly of the approaching dangers and temptations to forget God in the field in a strange land. This happened to be pay-day. After the service, for the first time in the present campaign, a collection was taken up. I was surprised to find that many of the soldiers dropped dollar-bills into the hat. "Well, you see," they said afterward, "we might as well give a dollar to the church as to the saloon. A soldier must spend his money quickly, for it burns holes in his pockets. Now there's Bill, from Idaho, and Jim, from Arizona, spending dollar-bills in the saloons up above, just as fast as they can, treating the boys. Well, we men came here this afternoon just to show you that we prefer the church to the saloon."

The Christian Commission's Work.

Perhaps it has already been chronicled in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD how the Christian Commission has rented one of the best office buildings in the city, and how a whole floor of the building has been given to the soldiers for their exclusive use. Writing paper and envelopes are supplied, together with writing materials, and here I find every day hundreds of the hardy boys in blue, writing letters home. Reading-rooms, amply supplied with newspapers and magazines, have also been opened, and here the men sit by the hour reading about the war. In the hall of this building I saw many copies of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Each man as he entered or left the building helped himself to a copy. I encounter the paper everywhere.

The twenty-seven regiments comprising the Fifth Army Corps is packed up ready to move. Orders were received several days ago for this corps to hold itself in readiness to go aboard the transports "at short notice." Everything not absolutely necessary to health has been ordered shipped home. The officers have stripped themselves of all jewelry, such as watches, chains, rings, studs, etc. Only flannel shirts are seen and a linen shirt would be greeted with ironical applause.

Despite the suspense and the preparations for moving, the gentler nature of the men is made apparent every day. Both men and officers, in these last days, are thinking of those left behind; of mothers, wives and sisters; of sweethearts and aged grandmothers. At midnight, in midst of his guard duty, a second-lieutenant fresh from West Point said: "I hope pay-day will come before we go, for I simply want to take out what money I need and send the remainder home to my dear old mother."

Sad Hearts at Parting.

The only volunteer regiments going with the Fifth Army Corps, that is, with the first expedition to Cuba, are the Seventy-first of New York and Second Massachusetts. In these regiments occur the saddest scenes. Many of them feel that they are going to Cuba to die. They are ready, but still it comes hard. Most of these men left good positions and gentle homes in civil life, and the hard knocks and the discipline of army life are not yet second nature to them as to the regulars. Two deaths have already occurred in the Seventy-first New York. One man died of pneumonia, contracted as the result of the change from Hempstead Plains to the heat of the sand-fields of Florida. The other man sank into the valley of the shadow of death as the result of something which all the volunteers seek but which they should avoid, namely, eating rich food, bought at cheap restaurants instead of eating the less palatable but more wholesome food supplied by the army. Above all our soldiers should remember never to eat fruit that has just been in the sun—and better still, not to eat any fruit at all.

Our Fleet of Transports.

Twenty seven transports, numbered from one up, lie out in the harbor ready to sail. The numbers are painted fore-and-aft on the sides of the ships—numbers four feet long. There is no number 13. Not a single captain could be found willing to allow the number 13 to be painted on his ship. No crew, superstitious as they are, would have sailed on a steamer thus numbered.

There are 27,000 men in the expedition—an average of 1,000 men on each steamer. These 27,000 have lived aboard the ships since last Tuesday, the 7th. Hence they have spent five wholly wretched and unhappy days. Imagine hundreds of men in the hold of a vessel, sleeping in rough wooden bunks, with the ports closed and the temperature of the hold never less than 110 degrees. Appalling! The men have suffered. They are living on travel rations; that is, cold food and hot coffee. They went aboard with only ten days' travel rations. Fortunately they have fourteen days field rations in the hold, which can be impressed into service.

A Notable Gathering.

Tampa's board-walk is a mile long, but every foot of the way is fringed with a human mass of soldiers in blue. On the porch of the inn are hundreds of officers and men. Suddenly, a quartet of men, some who have evidently sung together before, begin singing Gospel hymns. Perhaps they think that as there has been no religious service they will at least preserve the semblance of religion. "Nearer my God to Thee"—on the eve of departure, a significant hymn—they sing beautifully. Everybody listens and all feel a peculiar thrill. These four men sang because it came from the heart, and because they felt better by doing so. I had just received my weekly package of CHRISTIAN HERALDS and I took these out and gave some of them to the men. They were greatly pleased and began at once sharing the copies among their comrades.

Waiting to go to Cuba.

All the leading men of the expedition, waiting to go to Cuba, sit on the inn piazza. Here is General Shafter, the commanding officer, listening to the conversation of one of his brightest aide-de-camps, Col. John Jacob Astor. Here is Theodore Roosevelt, head of the "Rough Riders," and Gen. Joe Wheeler, and Gen. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, and Mrs. Miles and little groups of New York society men in the uniform of private soldiers. There is a great babble of tongues. Never has Florida seen anything like this. The mails are four days behind. This little postoffice is utterly incapable of handling the mass of matter. Besides, as long as the expedition is delayed, the newspaper correspondent's mail is not allowed to go through. For nearly a week we have been practically isolated.

Hymn Music by the Bands.

Over on the steamer Matteawan, transport number 18, I hear the band playing hymns. A number of men are congregated in the bow, and the Chaplain of the 8th U. S. Infantry is preaching a short sermon—the only religious service of the day.

The orders have arrived. We sail tomorrow morning. All the artillery horses are ordered aboard. The soldiers ought to have thin clothing, but they are wearing the same heavy uniforms they wore in the midst of the snows of Montana and Idaho. The boys ought to have hammocks and rubber blankets, but they have neither. GILSON WILLETS.

Rev. H. M. Wharton, of Baltimore, now preaching to the troops at Tampa, writes:

It is wonderful what you may do with a sand reef. You can make lakes; bore artesian wells; build railroads; plant orange groves, flowers, vegetables; erect fine hotels; establish splendid harbors, and turn the whole business into a State and call it Florida. Ponce de Leon was 'way off when he came here looking for the spring of eternal youth, or any other spring, as to that, for the heat and sand are death to springs. Tampa is no doubt a fine winter resort, and it is quite pleasant here now, except a few hours in the middle of the day, even at this time of the year. All the reports of riot and martial law, and what not, are newspaper creations mostly. The people are kind, patient and loyal, and bear the crush of the military with becoming dignity. The health of the place seems perfect.

Preaching to the Rough Riders.

I am here preaching the Gospel to the soldiers, and I never had a more cordial reception or more attentive listeners. To-night I preached in the camp of the "Rough Riders." The officer of the guard, Capt. McGinnis, of Oklahoma, was as pleasant and courteous gentlemen as you would wish to meet. introduced me to several other officers, whom were exceedingly polite and gentlemanly. An impression has gone abroad these men are toughs. Of course, ther some rough fellows, but show me a reg that hasn't some of these, or church e There were several camps near by, an men came from every direction. We had line lights, and it was refreshing to se soldiers sit right down on the ground eagerly bend over the little books as sang heartily the good old hymns. conclusion, I am quite sure that every rose for prayer, and there were hundre 20,000 Troops Moving.

Twenty-two thousand soldiers left he day, with Gen. Shafter in command. are thousands remaining, waiting and s for orders to move. The men are i spirits, bearing any privation in good h and full of loyalty and enthusiasm. I Confederate soldier boy at Appomatto feel just as much at home here wil Miles as at Jacksonville with Fitzhug Thank God for this great big, happy, p sive, unconquerable America!

Let me say another thing. The m well fed, well sheltered, well watered. advisedly. Their religious interests are after, too, not only by the resident mi and chaplains, but by far the most ef work is done by the "Army Christia mission," a large and thorough organ of the Young Men's Christian Asso They have men preaching at every ren and are giving away hundreds and tho of Bibles and Testaments, and pages c ature without number, besides providin brigade with a reading and writing te with stationery in abundance.

This is a great war, and its proble already more perplexing than any in tory, but a new era is dawning on the God will overrule all this for good, an ance, superstition and despotism will be forever from our western hemisphere will come out of this the leading natio world, and closest of all to the will a of Almighty God. H. M. WHA

Helping the Gospel Work.

The following have been receiv the Army Gospel Fund.

Prev acknowl	$896 21	Potter, Mrs Cha
Allen, Mrs Eliza	1 00	Randolph, Mrs I
Baslable, A N	20 00	Speicher, F
Bonham, Mrs S	25	Tilton, E
Bonta, Ella B	60	Tunison, Mrs W
Brown, G F	3 00	Yahlsing, Chas
Burgess, Mrs Jno	1 00	Walker, Herbert
Chase, H G	2 00	Walter, Minnie
Clough, Laura	1 00	Webb, Talena
Coffee, M L	50	Wright, Miss Ad
Cooper, Mrs E A	1 00	Paynter, Lassom
Corkins, Chas	1 50	C, Carlisle
Danner, Mrs H T	1 00	E D G, Eaton R
Dempsey, Mrs F A	5 00	S E C, Cottage G
Dondale, Mrs W P	5 00	—, Anon
Gill, R C	2 00	—, Longleston
Hanlin, J P & family	5 00	Friend, Lima St
Hansen, Mrs Hans	1 00	Friend, Phila
Hazzard, L	2 00	Friend, Freedon
Lee, Mrs E A	2 00	Friend Bridge
Leonard, W F	3 00	Two Friends
Lorosh, Nellie A	1 00	Friends of the c
Lynde, J D	10 00	Reader, Weton
Madison, Maria C	1 00	Subr, St Louis
Martignon, Emma	50	Horicon S S
Mitchell, Mr O A & dau	2 00	An SS class, Ne
Munson, Joel S	5 00	A Soldier's Mi
Needham, Anna	1 00	Unnamed, Mon
Otis Salina	50	Two Sisters, Ph
Pierce, Charlotte J	1 00	Total	$ 5

All contributions will be ackno in these columns.

A Test of Civilization

In railroad mileage, the U outranks every other country of ance, having 180,000 miles more t of Europe and South America co Persia stands lowest of any, her mileage being only 34. The railro age of Japan is over 2,237; of Ch Spain has fewer railroads in p to its area than any other country; Belgium has more th other. Russia is gaining rapid European nations in this respect. the largest increase during the s years; Germany, France and Gre follow. Africa has 9,500 miles road, and Australia, 14,000. Railr age is a test of a nation's civiliza

A Book Every Family Should ad

FEW books were ever written culated to exert a blessed inf the family circle than Mrs. Home Life Made Beautiful. the book circulates, it will in a larg contribute to make the home brigh and happier.

Of the latest edition of this b are somewhat over four hundred and as we expect to offer next fall a by Mrs. Sangster, we wish to clos lot. We will therefore sell this 65c. each. Any of our friends avail selves of this opportunity will get a viceable and beautiful book at an ally low figure. Of course we pa pressage.

THE TOPICAL BIBLE.*

THIS is in every sense a remarkable book. It is not a new Bible, as the name might imply, but it is the rearranged topically in alphabetical and is the outcome of fourteen years' study by the reverend author. Dr. Nave, in preparing the Topical was brought together in cyclopædic ed under similar headings all that e contains on particular subjects. pical Bible is, therefore, in the r prehensive sense, a guide-book whole Scriptures, and is so simple so effectively arranged that it will d invaluable to students of the It is explained by the publishers re are over twenty thousand topics -topics treated in the volume, and contains one hundred thousand re references. It is a convenient dium of Biblical religion in the nases of doctrine, ethics and in- s, and comprises the whole range cal history, biography, geography, t, science, philosophy, manners, s, etc. As a digest of the sacred t must occupy a unique place in re, and should find its way into rary and to the table of every of the ancient theological systems, ry preacher and teacher and writer s with topics of a Biblical charac- udents of the Bible, and especially rs, have found the necessity of a rk which the prominent parts of the ight be arranged under topical nd this Chaplain Nave has now ed in a wider, more comprehensive ier manner than has ever been erto. There is neither duplica- r omission in the book, and it has the commendation of the very critics who have pronounced it ll and perfect." By its use the is enabled, without consulting any work, to turn immediately to any desired, and not only does he e subject itself, exhaustively dealt t all the sub-topics or related sub- re also included. In many cases. ages have been devoted to promi- t oft-recurring topics, thus greatly ting the work of the student. In this the subject "Commandments" fifteen pages: "Death," thirteen: ," sixteen: "God," eighty-eight: Christ," ninety: "Righteousness," two: "Salvation," twelve: "Sin," e, and "The Word of God," eleven. ain and sub-topics being treated e necessary fulness. The Topical n addition to the features stated contains cross references to even st distantly related topics, thus g it unnecessary for the student elsewhere for such information; e whole subject is set forth plainly him.

rly characterized, the Topical Bible the purpose of a Textual Index. dance, Commentary, Book of Illu- s, Book of Bible Readings and e Cyclopædia of ancient history, y and geography, law, science chanics. It is all that could be de- to paper, type and binding. Dr. has compiled a really remarkable nd one which is almost certain to is name remembered among the ne tors of literature.

How to Treat Scepticism.†

interesting letter to the late Dean nley, Mr. J. R. Green, the historian, s him that in his lecture-room he ed from scepticism. He had gone Oxford a hard reader and a pro- d and enthusiastic High Church-man. But two years' residence found him idle and irreligious. "High Churchism fell with a great crash, and left nothing behind—nothing but a vague reverence for goodness." It was the wise and kindly liberalism of Stanley which built up for him once more a Christian faith. And when Renan tells us that with his belief in the inspiration and infallibility of every word of the Old Testament he felt constrained to throw overboard the whole orthodox creed, we cannot read his naive confessions without being amazed that a man of his acuteness and knowledge should so confound the essentials with the accidents of Christianity, and without wishing that there had been at his elbow a judicious friend who had already thought his way through these morning mists. No doubt controversial discussion is apt to generate more heat than light. But friendly and natural talk about the subjects of greatest interest to earnest men at the very least prevents scepticism from hardening into dogmatic unbelief, and may in the most unexpected manner prove of critical importance.

At present a peculiar phase of scepticism prevails, which perhaps deserves a word to itself. Among the working-classes there seems to be a growing resentment against the Church for its supposed or real non-interference in labor disputes. Christianity is being judged by its power to lighten the burden and right the wrongs of the oppressed: and in many instances it is being rejected as helpless for present needs, promising much but performing little. This is precisely the scepticism of John the Baptist. He lay in his dungeon listening for the crash of revolution and the shout of the armed followers of the Messiah sweeping oppression from the land, and all he heard was the indistinct rumor of a few sick healed and one or two blind beggars restored. He could not understand why nothing decisive was immediately accomplished. He began to doubt whether indeed Jesus could after all be the Messiah. John had to learn, and many in our own day have to learn, that the method of Jesus is not superficial. But radical: that it begins at the beginning of all evil and slowly works its way to results that are permanent. To one who demanded the interference of Jesus, he replied, "Who made me a Judge over you?" But at the same time he lodged such principles in human society as produce justice and charity. He does not strive, nor cry. He does not rule by spasmodic interference or measures of violence. His methods are inward, spiritual and gradual, and "Blessed is he whosoever is not offended in him."

BOOKS RECEIVED.

The Way of the Cross. By the Rev. C. Armand Miller, M. A. It is a series of devotional studies for Lent. Pp. 227; cloth, gilt top; price $1.00. Published by Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

Paul, a Servant of Jesus Christ. By the Rev. F. B. Meyer, B.A., London. The author considers this book by far the most interesting of the many sacred biographies he has written. Pp. 203; cloth covers; price, $1.00. Published by Fleming H. Revell Co., New York, Chicago and Toronto.

The Bible Story, retold for young people. The story of the Bible is here made interesting to young minds and the bountiful supply of maps and illustrations given is a valuable aid in simplifying some of the difficult points that present themselves to a young Bible scholar. Pp. 424; cloth. Published by the Macmillan Co., New York.

The Laborer and the Capitalist. By Freeman Otis Willey. A book in two parts presenting arguments on matters pertaining to labor trade and education, and on matters economic and political. Pp. 311. Photograph of author as frontispiece; cloth covers; price, $1.25. Published by the Equitable Publishing Co., New York.

Sandy Scott's Bible Class. A bright little book written in Scotch dialect. Its spiritual insight into the mind of the Master and the close application of the Word of God to the heart of man, make this little volume one in which many readers will find hope and comfort. Pp. 85; cloth, 50 cents; paper, 25 cents. Published by Thomas Whittaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

Character Through Inspiration, and Other Papers. By T. T. Munger, D.D., New Haven, Conn. This little book combines seven instructive essays on such subjects as "Character Through Inspiration," "Pity as Wisdom," "How to Live in the World," etc. Pp. 136; cloth and gilt; price, 50 cents. Published by Thomas Whittaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

On the Edge of a Moor, by the author of Probable Sons. This is a prettily told love story. It is the narrative of a young city girl who makes her home on the edge of one of England's moors that she may do missionary work among the rough country people. She succeeds in her purpose and becomes an influence for good in her entire neighborhood. Pp. 247; with illustrations; cloth; price $1.00. Published by Fleming H. Revell, New York.

Apostolic and Modern Missions. By Rev. Chalmers Martin, A.M. A series of lectures on theological subjects. Pp. 235; cloth covers; price $1.00. Published by Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

Life of Mrs. Sarah A. Lankford Palmer. By the Rev. John A. Roche, D.D. The biography of a remarkable Christian woman, who contributed largely to the extension of the Redeemer's kingdom. Pp. 280; cloth; price $1.50. George Hughes & Co., New York, Publishers.

SPIRITUAL ATTAINMENT.

The Rainbow of Christian Character. II. Peter 1: 5-7.

Persons who look on religion as a species of contract by which, in consideration of performing some rite or going through some ecstatic excitement and joining the church, they are to enjoy eternal felicity, must be disagreeably surprised by the study of such a programme as the Apostle Peter describes. The series of attainments is a long one and at each step in the upward course, there are difficulties which are not easily overcome. With faith as a starting point, the convert is to go on to virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly-kindness, and finally, the supreme attainment, love, or charity, as it is clumsily translated. Human nature does not take kindly to development on these lines. Yet, what a lovable character that is in which all these qualities are combined! If every Christian had them, how the church would be revered and loved! It would then, indeed, be like a city set on a hill which could not be hid. Like that other list which Paul gave, and against which he said there was no law, the qualities are precisely those we delight to see in others, howsoever little of them we have ourselves. In any home or in any community, a person with these characteristics would be a blessing. The difficulties in the way of their attainment are really proofs of the power of Christianity. He who overcomes them must have supernatural aid. Such aid is offered to every follower of Christ. He came to impart power and he does impart it. Contact with him is thus the secret of development. Like the leaven hidden in the meal, it works until the whole is leavened. It was never intended that Christianity should be mere doctrine, or theory, or a plan of escape from punishment. It was no scheme for enabling a man to enjoy the pleasures of the flesh without incurring the penalty. It is distinctly reformatory, and it is intended to cleanse, purify and transform the character. It does not restrict, or prohibit, but is designed to render restrictions unnecessary. It proposes to arrest a man's course downward, to turn him around and give him an impulse upward; to so change his desires and tendencies, that even if worldly pleasures and delights were open to him, he would have no inclination to them. When, therefore, the worldling asks in what respect he differs from the Christian, the answer should be in the fact that the Christian is continually adding some higher attainment to his character and is rising to a higher plane day by day. It is not always so, but it is a possibility within reach of the weakest, for the power imparted is divine.

ROYAL

The absolutely pure

BAKING POWDER

Contains no alum, lime or phosphates.

Bear in Mind that "The Gods help those who help themselves." Self help should teach you to use SAPOLIO

Appetite---Strength

Without the First You Cannot Have the Last.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives both. It gently tones the stomach and gives digestive power, creates an appetite and invigorates the system. By making the blood rich and pure it strengthens the nerves and gives refreshing sleep.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six for $5.

Hood's Pills are the favorite cathartic. 25c.

Conservatory Life

Is most healthful and delightful. The teachers are masters; the students are enthusiasts. Everything in the equipment and environment of the tends to encourage high ideals and a devotion to art.

New England CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

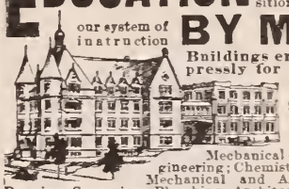
GEORGE W. CHADWICK, Musical Director.
Send for our Catalogue to
FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

EDUCATION BY MAIL

Thousands have been helped to better pay & positions through our system of instruction



Buildings erected expressly for this purpose at a cost of $225,000

Courses of Steam, Electrical, Mechanical or Civil Engineering; Chemistry; Mining; Mechanical and Architectural Drawing; Surveying; Plumbing; Architecture; Metal Pattern Drafting; Prospecting; Bookkeeping; Shorthand; English Branches.

$2 A MONTH pays for a College Education at Home. 40,000 Students and Graduates.

Circular FREE. State subject you wish to study.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS
Box 861, Scranton, Pa., U. S. A.

Better than Ever.

Oberlin College

The College, the Theological Seminary, the Conservatory of Music, the Academy.

Sixty-sixth year begins Sept. 21. Full information from the treasurer.

JAMES R. SEVERANCE, Oberlin, Ohio.

Meaningless words thrown together make heartless singing. Enthusiasm follows the use of

Sermons in Song

containing 196 pages of newest and best songs with words and music; not one dull or wornout; more than 100 original pieces found in no other. Limp cloth cover, good paper, 20c per copy; $15.00 per hundred Tullar-Meredith Co. 110 Washington St., Chicago. 204 Broadway, New York.

Send 15 cents for a year's subscription to the Tuller-Merredith Quarterly.

JUST OUT ROYAL HYMNAL for the Sunday School

By Rev. Robert Lowry and Ira D. Sankey.

This new collection contains 232 pieces, the productions of over 100 prominent hymn writers.

The best Sunday School song book offered.

$30 per 100 by express; 35c. each, if by mail.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N. Y.

Architects, Builders of Auditoriums

We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

G. L. Schicker, Prest.
E. Henry Kelly, Acoustician. Wm. A. Mickle Sec'y

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT

AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.

Sent for 5c. postage.

Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., D. & H. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

$18 per week and expenses to sell ers good par ies to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give reference

R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

A Consecrated Life—Women Story Writers—Timidity in Public—Morning Bible-readings—Children's Play Living for Others—Transient Affections.

A VERY beautiful letter lies on the table before me. It is signed, "Yours in His loving service," and the writer is one who says: "Just a few brief years ago, when my greatest desire was about to be realized, and a college career was open before me, I became broken in health and spirit and for awhile was laid aside, but God gave me health again. It returned with a full consecration of thought and purpose to his work. The Master has been teaching me in his own great school. Standing where I do, with perfect health and perfect trust in the maturity of young womanhood, I shall not say nay to any call that comes. Life is so full and sweet to me; the other world so real, more so than ever since Miss Willard went home. I am going to meet her there some glad, sweet day." This friend is at work now in providing literature for boatmen and prisoners, and she tells me she has given away copies of our dear CHRISTIAN HERALD, and that they have been greatly esteemed by those who have received them. Such a letter brings with it a real uplift, and I thank the sender.

* * *

A NEW ENGLAND friend writes: "I am a very young woman, the mother of two little girls, and the wife of a noble Christian husband. My husband's occupation keeps him much away from home in the evenings, and when my little ones are asleep I have a great deal of time on my hands. Do you think I could employ this time profitably in writing stories." Judging from your letter, your experience of life has undoubtedly fitted you for writing agreeably. The style of your letter is straightforward, and what you have to say is very interesting; still, my present advice to you is to employ the time when you have leisure, not in writing, but in reading and study. Map out for yourself a course of reading along some definite lines. You could not do better than to join a Chautauqua circle, because then you would have the additional zest of reading with a number of others, even if you do not know them, and at the end of a year you would feel that you had really made a very great gain. One forms a good style by reading the best books, and there is so much to attract the lover of literature that you can have no trouble in selection. Wait a little before you attempt to write. The writing field is crowded, and the competition there is something beyond my power to describe. Before long when your little ones are older they will claim more of your care and time, and you should make good use of the leisure you now have.

* * *

MY DEAR ALLIE, why should you take part in entertainments in the Sunday school if doing so makes you nervous and uncomfortable. You say that when you attempt to speak in public your heart starts to beating fast, your throat fills up and your voice shakes. There can be no pleasure to the audience in listening to you in such circumstances. In fact, they are as uncomfortable in observing your distress as you are in feeling it. Leave recitations to girls who do not feel as you do, there are plenty who do not mind it. For my part, I think it is rather agreeable to meet a young girl who is a little shy about such things. At the same time, just think of this, that everybody in the audience feels kindly toward you, and that if you once conquer this distress, it will never return to you again. It is really what is called stage fright which oppresses you, and this is a thing which can be overcome, if one is very resolute. In the meantime, do not be too much depressed. There are many other things to do besides speaking pieces in public.

* * *

A PERPLEXED correspondent asks whether it is wrong to pray that she may be able to pay a certain debt, which in conveniences her very much and weighs upon her mind. How can you have any misgivings on such a subject? Certainly, pray about this all the time, and as soon as possible look about you and see if God will not open up some way in which you can help yourself a little. Being an invalid and suffering a good deal of pain, there is not very much you can do, but still we can all do something. I am quite sure your physician does not feel about the matter as you do. There is a great deal of chivalry and kindness in the medical profession, and nearly all good doctors have patients on their lists whom they serve without much hope of reward in this life. Possibly some friend who knows you will be willing to give you assistance. In the meantime, remember that your Father in heaven asks you to carry these burdens to him.

* * *

VIOLA B. C. sends a word of excellent counsel to those who are not enjoying to the full their privilege of reading God's Word. It will be remembered that some time ago this subject was discussed in "Friends in Council." The friend who now writes says that she, too, for a long time found little profit in her reading of the Word, but after a while she discovered that it was largely due to the fact that she always read her Bible at night just before retiring, when both mind and body were weary. She has now adopted another plan, and by rising half an hour earlier in the morning secures the time to read when her mental powers are fresh and she is rested after sleep. Then, too, in the quiet of the early morning before the people in the house are stirring, there is great pleasure in a season of communion with God. I am very glad to welcome letters of this kind, for this department is really a sort of exchange in which we all should write to one another and everybody who reads it owes me a letter. When you see something which pleases you or something with which you do not agree, just take your pen, sit down and write and express your opinion. You will be very welcome. I thank this correspondent for her extremely kind words.

* * *

MY DEAR "Mother May," let me beg of you to let your little girl play just as much as she wants to. As for jumping the rope, the exercise is very good in moderation, but too much of it may bring on serious troubles. In my childhood I remember that we used to have an ambition to jump a great many times—fifty or a hundred without stopping, and this was most undesirable. Perhaps the little girls of to-day are more sensible. A child's impulse to play should not be repressed. Remember that we are children only once. When I hear a mother reprove a little maiden of ten or twelve for giggling or laughing immoderately, I always feel like putting my hand on that mother's shoulder and saying: "Remember she will never be twelve years old again." Life brings us so much work and care and usually so much sorrow, that we soon get over the desire for play. About a piano for the little daughter. By all means get one when you can. It will be a great resource to her, and if she has a talent for music, it will tide her over many hard places in life. But as to going in debt for a piano, dear friend, do not buy anything which you do not see your way clearly to pay for. The better plan is to economize beforehand, so that you can avoid a debt which is apt to be a very millstone around one's neck.

* * *

THE nurse's profession appeals to many women. A subscriber asks where is the best place for a woman to go to learn to be a trained nurse and what would be required of a person on entering a school of that kind. You must select the city nearest your home; then ascertain which hospitals have connected with them a training school for nurses. Choose the one you prefer and send a written application to the superintendent of the school. This must be accompanied by a certificate from your physician and a letter from your pastor testifying respectively to your perfect health and your good character. You must have a good common school education, and in most cases, though I fancy not in all, there is some qualification as to age. This you can find out by writing to the school for a circular. As a rule, the nurse should be at least twenty years old before beginning her studies. In some hospitals the prescribed course is a two years' one; in others, three years are required. The nurse is paid some monthly amount from the time of entering, the amount being increased as she goes on and becomes more and more useful.

* * *

C. M. W. TELLS me that she is very much handicapped by her diffidence. She says, "People tell me bashfulness may be conquered, but I simply cannot conquer mine." You must indeed be diffident if after two years at school you do not yet feel acquainted with a single schoolmate. I have great sympathy with you because I am sure your suffering is real. The only cure for it of which I can think is in resolutely fighting this trait. Compel yourself to speak pleasantly to people whom you do not know; stop thinking about yourself and always have it as your object wherever you go that you must make somebody else happy. Diffidence has its root in extreme self-consciousness. In your case it may be inherited, or possibly you were not wisely guided in your childish days. Whatever the cause of the trouble is, you at least are aware that it exists. Now make up your mind that you will not go through life hampered in this foolish way. Begin to-morrow or this afternoon and forget all about yourself and simply live for others. You will soon find that you will not be so stiff and dull as you think yourself, once you have really made the effort to go into society. Let me give you a favorite stanza of mine.

I ask thee for but thoughtful love
Through constant watching years,
To meet the glad with joyful looks,
And to wipe the weeping eyes;
A heart at leisure from itself
To soothe and sympathize

* * *

MY DEAR Emily, it hardly seems to me worth while for you to so distress yourself about your affection for a woman older than yourself, and in every way a character whom it would be fine for you to imitate. I can imagine a young girl idealizing a teacher or an older friend in a rather indiscreet way; but, as a rule, these transient affections settle themselves. From what you tell me, I am sure that if you continue to make the lady of whom you speak your model, and if in every way you do the best you can to be like her, no one will have any reason to complain. When, however, you add that you think of this friend so much that it interferes with your work and your reading, and that you cannot be happy because you cannot see her oftener, my old-fashioned ideas lead me to the conclusion that you have not quite enough work to do. Throw yourself with more energy into the work which lies around you, try to help that poor tired mother, who has some cause to complain as she does of her daughter is neglecting the duties that are just at hand. Once more I repeat as I have done several times, we must never part company with common sense.

* * *

THE report of the second Mothers' Congress has not yet been published in pamphlet form. When it is, if the lady who signs herself an "Anxious Mother" will send me her name and address, I will take pleasure in procuring a copy of the report for her.

Margaret E. Sangster

CONVENTION NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the National Educational Association Convention to be held at Washington, D. C., July 7 to 12, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from points on its line to Washington and return at rate of single fare for the round trip plus $2.00 membership fee. These tickets will be sold on, and good going, July 4 to 7, and good to return leaving Washington July 8 to 15, when stamped by Joint Agent at Washington. By depositing ticket with Joint Agent on or before July 12 and on payment of 50 cents the return limit may be extended to August 31. Tickets for side trips from Washington to Gettysburg, Richmond, Old Point Comfort and Southern battlefields will be on sale at the ticket offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in Washington during the continuance of the Convention.

Good News for Asthma Sufferers.

We are glad to announce that the Kola Plant recently discovered on the Congo River, West Africa, has proved itself a sure cure for Asthma, as claimed at the time. We have the testimony of ministers of the gospel, doctors, business men and farmers, all speaking of the marvelous curative power of this new discovery. Hon. L. G. Clute, of Greeley, Iowa, writes that he could not lie down night or day from Asthma, and the Kola Plant cured him at once. Rev. G. Ellsworth Stump, pastor of the Congregational Church at Newell, Iowa, was cured by it of Asthma of twenty years' standing, and many others give similar testimony. To prove to you beyond doubt its wonderful curative power, the Kola Importing Co., No. 1164 Broadway, New York, will send a large case of the Kola Compound free by mail to every reader of The Christian Herald who suffers from any form of Asthma. In return they only ask that you tell your neighbors of it when cured yourself. This is very fair, and we advise all sufferers from Asthma to send for the Case. It costs you nothing.

Gail Borden

Eagle Brand

Condensed Milk
HAS NO EQUAL AS AN INFANT FOOD.
"INFANT HEALTH" SENT
FREE ON APPLICATION.
NEW YORK CONDENSED MILK CO. N.Y.

Preventing vs. Curing.

The most wonderful strides in modern science have been in the direction of preventing disease. A few cents invested in "Sanitas" saves untold suffering and anxiety, caused by sickness in the home.

How to have thoroughly sanitary surroundings told in a pamphlet by King Zett, the eminent chemist. Price 10 cents. Every household should contain this little help to comfortable living. It will be sent FREE to subscribers of this paper.

THE SANITAS CO. (Ltd.
636 to 642 West 55th Street, New York City.
Disinfectant and Embrocation manufacturers.

Your Dinner can be cooked all at one time on one burner of any kind of stove if you use
THE IDEAL Steam Cooker
Prevents steam and odors, will reduce fuel bills 50 per cent, blows when cooker needs more water. Will hold 12 one quart cans. Just the thing in Canning Fruit. Agents wanted.
Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16

DO YOU LOVE YOUR WIFE
Then save her health and strength by buying her a
DILLEY'S QUEEN WASHING MACHINE
Washes cleaner, easier, and in one-third the time it can be done by hand. LIVE AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive territory to right parties. Get our circulars and prices, SENT FREE.
The Mully Washing Mach. Co. Dep. C Mulr, Mich.

HIGH ARM.
USE IT FREE
30 days in your own home before you pay one cent in advance; shipped to anyone, for 30 days' test trial. $60 White Star Machine, $50 Pearl Machine, Standard Singers, $20, $18, $16.00. Full set of attachments free; buy direct and save $10 to $30. WE PAY FREIGHT and ship on approval. Catalog, showing 25 styles, free. Each machine guaranteed for ten years.
Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co.
Address (in full) Dept. G7 215 S. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.

EPILEPTIC FITS Most remarkable success of our great English remedy, which has won for itself golden opinions from all parts of the world. Free particulars (with testimonials) free on application to L. A. Castle, Wyoming, Illinois.

CNSECRATED ABILITY.

God s a Use for Every Man and Accepts th Offering of Himself. Haggai 2:1-9; Ma 12:29-31.

Near the close of his life, a man who had made a brave struggle against adverse circumstances, said to some friends who criticized his conduct: "I made as much of myself as could be made of the t, nd no one should be required to n e than that." The same thought e ressed with more refinement by t, who said: "He that does the t s circumstance allows, does well— t s bly: angels could do no more." s s a good deal of chagrin and re- m to take this view of ourselves, but t s ot a complete view. There are n who do all that they can for self- u and self development, who might e ne more for themselves and for w ld than they have done, if they d iled themselves of God's help. l el of a man's power is not the limit o sibility. There are some boys who ldget an education if they never t school. They would toil along, r sly groping their own way, study- b s and solving educational difficul- l themselves. All honor to them! l much toil they might have been s d how much more progress they o l have made if their studies had e rected by some learned, tactful c h. Infinitely more advantageous is o r God makes to his children. If w ll consecrate themselves to him, e r themselves to him, he will direct r es and make them instruments for u s. It seems as if the omniscient o nipotent Ruler of the universe d ve no use for a power so puny as t wch a human being possesses: but t s otherwise. The betterment of e rld must be achieved by men. e re useless for the purpose. Even s o Son could not save the world l had put on human form and lived a among men. It is human power t o transform society, but how much o re can accomplish when that power w ed by the omnipotent hand. We c ge this principle in combination. a y, or a trades-union, is composed u none of which alone could make i ression on the foe, but acting in s they become a mighty power. h nen can do, when they help one n oth, is but small compared with what w do when God helps them. So, e man consecrates his ability to o d, places himself at the divine dis- o al, be made efficient and to be put t se for which he is adapted. It a humble service, but it is not w ste and we may be quite sure that it s ac table to God. And the reward is u re. The "Well done, good and faithful servant," will fall upon the ears of the man with one talent as it does on the ears of him with five, if the one talent is consecrated to the Master's service.

"The Christian Herald" and the Army.

During the week, many more readers have taken advantage of our special offer to send THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to friends and relatives in the army or navy at the nominal rate of 25 cents for a three months' subscription, or $1 for a year. Addresses are changed as often as the necessity arises. There are thousands of youths in the service who would be grateful to anyone who would send them a paper. Contributions for this purpose will be duly acknowledged in these columns.

The following contributions for sending THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to our soldiers and sailors at their various military stations have been received during the week:

Prev ackgd ...	$377 60
Artman, Mrs C ...	25
Bird, J S ...	5 00
Bray, Mrs K ...	25
Brockway, L G ...	25
Brown Mrs F A ...	2 00
Brown, Mrs J M ...	1 00
Burdick, M ...	25
Butts, E N ...	25
Belle Carey, Lowell Thayer, May Sheffar	50
Carson, L ...	1 00
Collins, Mrs G P ...	25
Copeland, Minnie L ...	25
Danner, Mrs H T ...	50
Fincher, Juha C ...	25
Frick, A P ...	25
Hardesty, Helen ...	25
Hayes, Henry M ...	25
Hessoh, Jennie ...	2 00
Hill, Mrs H H ...	1 00
Jeffreys, Mrs L A ...	5 00
Jennings, E M ...	25
Johnon, Mrs C B ...	25
Joslin, Lydia ...	1 00
Kemp, Mrs S ...	1 00
Killey, Minnie ...	1 25
Kirk, Geo ...	25
Linton, Ida ...	1 50
Lyons, Miss Bessie ...	1 00
McCullough, Mrs Jas	50
Mackrell Mrs & dau ...	1 00
Mills, S M ...	50
Morris, C O ...	1 00
Morton, Miss Elizab ...	2 00
Nutt, Elizabeth D ...	75
Randall, Roxie ...	1 00
Routson, J H ...	1 00
Seeley, Mrs E L ...	1 00
Seymour, Mrs C A ...	1 00
Stafford, Mrs S M ...	25
Starr, F E ...	1 00
Stewart, Mrs A ...	25
Strong, Miss H E ...	6 00
Titus, A L ...	2 00
Veeder, John S ...	25
Waddell, J N ...	1 00
Walker, Mrs M ...	25
Watson, Mrs R ...	5 00
Westbrook, Mrs M E	50
Westbrook, Ransom	50
Williams, Isaac N ...	25
Winstead, Mrs S B ...	25
Woodworth, Mrs B F	1 00
Worcester, Mrs A E	1 00
Wright, Mrs J C ...	1 00
Zellar, W A ...	25
A——, Auburn, Me ...	24
C B, Warner, N Y ...	1 00
E B W, L B C Chicago	5 00
Mrs L—— ...	1 00
P E C, Brooklyn, N Y	2 00
——, Birchton, N Y ...	25
——, Crete ...	25
Reading, —— ...	1 00
——, Traverse City, Mich	25
I H N, Freehold, N J	25
I H N, Lyme Cent, NH	1 00
Subr, Harrisburg, Pa	2 00
F d, Leominster, Mass	1 00
F ds, New Lexington, O	25
Friend, Waterloo, NY	1 00
Pleasant View S S Washington ...	10 00
Riverside Union S S, Highland, N Y ...	3 00
Good Templars, Salisbury, N H ...	1 00
Aunt Nela Ainsworth	1 00
An old lady 86 years Essex ...	2 00
Mother and two daus Uxbridge Mass ...	50
Total ...	$469.34

Free Kidney and Bladder Cure.

Nature has provided a positive cure for diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism, in the New Botanic Discovery Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava Shrub. Convincing testimony of its wonderful curative powers is given by Rev. W. B. Moore, D.D., of Washington, D.C.; Mrs. James Young, of Kent, Ohio; Mr. Joseph Whitten, Wolfboro, N. H.; and many others who were cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder by Alkavis. To prove its great value, and for introduction, The Church Kidney Cure Co., No. 409 Fourth Avenue, New York, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. It is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

If you are half sick, ailing, weak, weary, nervous, or suffering from impure blood, Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine to lift you to the plane of perfect health. Thry it this season.

Richard Baxter's House.

IN Acton, Middlesex, England, stands the quaint old weather-beaten house in which the great non-conformist preacher, Richard Baxter, author of "The Saints' Everlasting Rest," and other books, lived with his gentle companion and amiable wife. It has suffered from time and vandalism, and efforts are now being made to rescue it from threatened destruction. This house speaks of one of the most interesting periods in Baxter's life. It was to Acton, he went in 1662, after being dispossessed of his Kidderminster parish, and preaching his last sermon in London before the Act of Uniformity (St. Bartholomew's Act, it was called, because it went into effect on St. Bartholomew's Day) which excluded 2,000 divines from service in the English Church. From here he was sent to Clerkenwell prison on the charge of holding a conventicle, of which matter, he says, he was "grieved to leave his people, and that he was to be deprived of the exceeding grateful neighborhood of the Lord Baron Hale (Sir Matthew, the Chief Justice) who could scarce refrain from tears when he heard of the first warrant for my appearance." Mrs. Baxter chose to share his incarceration. "My wife," he wrote, "was never so cheerful a companion to me as in prison. She had brought so many necessaries that we kept house as contentedly and comfortably as at home, though in a narrower room." It was to Acton, he had brought her a bride, he near fifty, she in her twenties. He had expressed positive and public disapprobation of marriage for clergymen, and "the king's marriage was hardly more talked of than his." Margaret Charlton came under deep conviction while listening to him at Kidderminster. She learned to love him; their marriage ended more happily than was feared by those who knew his peculiar disposition and the incongruity of their ages. "We lived," he wrote, "in inviolated love. I know not that ever we had any breach in point of love or interest, save only that she somewhat grudged that I had persuaded her to surrender so much of her estate, to the disabling of her from helping others so much as she desired." Of their life in this old house at Acton, he says, she busied herself in household affairs and was very happy. The conditions of marriage which he had laid down and she accepted, were these: 1. He should have possession of no property belonging to her before marriage. 2. That she should so alter her affairs that he would be entangled in no law-suits. 3. That "she would expect none of my time which my ministerial work should require." He testifies after her death that she increased his usefulness, often calling his attention to duties which sickness caused him to forget.

RICHARD BAXTER'S HOUSE AT ACTON, ENGLAND.

Laces Cleaned

"Laces of all kinds can be cleaned by soaking for twenty minutes in a warm suds made from Fairy Soap. Pat, do not rub. Dry on a pillow, pinning out all points."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and one Fairy Soap wrapper to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of our booklet, "Fairy Tales," second series, larger and handsomer than the first, and containing new stories and illustrations.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

Soft as a Glove

Vici Leather Dressing not only polishes any kind of shoes but makes them soft. The more you use it the better your shoes will look and the longer they will wear. It is a medicine for leather—leather lives upon it. It is not an enamel, therefore it does not peel off nor crack the shoe.

Vici Leather Dressing

is sold by all dealers at 25 cents a bottle. It is made by the makers of Vici Kid, the most famous shoe leather in the world. A book that tells you all about buying, wearing and caring for shoes, mailed free.

ROBERT H. FOERDERER, Philadelphia, Pa.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country; steady employment; commission or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY	Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN	Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS	Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK	Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR	Cincinnati.
ECKSTEIN	Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC	New York.
BRADLEY	New York.
BROOKLYN	New York.
JEWETT	New York.
ULSTER	New York.
UNION	New York.
SOUTHERN	Chicago.
SHIPMAN	Chicago.
COLLIER	St. Louis.
MISSOURI	St. Louis.
RED SEAL	St. Louis.
SOUTHERN	St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO	Philadelphia.
MORLEY	Cleveland.
SALEM	Salem, Mass.
CORNELL	Buffalo.
KENTUCKY	Louisville.

NOTWITHSTANDING the extravagant assertions of the manufacturers making White Lead by quick process, comparative painting tests, carefully and honestly made, show that Pure White Lead made by the "old Dutch process" will cover more surface and cover it better than White Lead made by the quick or so-called "up-to-date" process.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

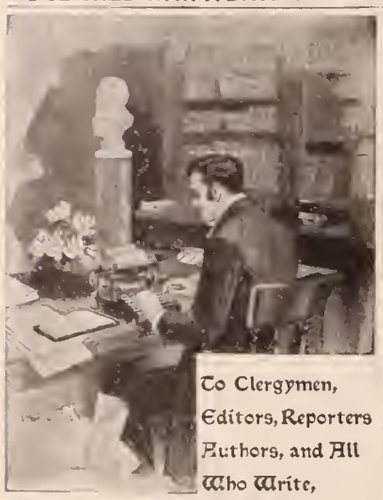
National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH AND SUN PASTE

"IN CAKES FOR GENERAL BLACKING APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A BRUSH"

SUN PASTE "FOR A QUICK AFTER-DINNER SHINE APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A CLOTH"

Morse Bros. Props. Canton, Mass., U.S.A.



To Clergymen, Editors, Reporters Authors, and All Who Write,

The Smith Premier Typewriter

Is an Invaluable Aid.

Easy and Rapid Composition.

Clean and Legible Manuscript. More Work and Less Labor. New Art Catalogue free.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
Syracuse, N. Y. U. S. A.

Chronic Invalids find nearly all food repugnant after a time. Give a trial to which stimulates the appetite and never cloys the palate. Odorless, tasteless, and may be given without patients' knowledge.

Somatose

At druggists, in 2-oz., ¼, ½ and 1-lb. tins.

Also the following combinations: Somatose-Biscuit, Somatose-Cocoa, Somatose Chocolate each containing 10 per cent. Somatose. Very convenient and palatable preparations.

Pamphlets mailed by Schieffelin & Co., New York, agents for Farbenfabriken vorm. Friedr. Bayer & Co., Elberfeld.

FACTORY TO FARM

THE ADVANCE WOVEN WIRE FENCE

Is sold only direct to the farmer—freight paid. That saves him the dealer's commission and we give him a fence that is cheap and better than the use of any hand fence machine made. THERE CAN'T BE A BETTER FENCE made for the money than this one. Prices way down. One small order will satisfy you on this point. Don't buy until you get our extra special discount to farmers.
ADVANCE FENCE CO., 37 Old St., Peoria, Ill.

7000 BICYCLES

carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of all '98 models. RIDE CYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.

E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite. Buy Quincy granite. More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price based on Work delivered everywhere. Color great variety. Write for designs and information. Cost [illegible]

NO MOSS GROWING CLEANING NO CRUMBLING CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS.
OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS.
SCHOOL FURNITURE COMPANY
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

DENT'S TOOTHACHE GUM

STOPS TOOTHACHE INSTANTLY.
The Only Perfect Remedy for Toothache.
This is Not a Chewing Gum.
Ask for DENT'S. Take no other.
Sold by all Druggists, or by mail 15c.
(A SWELL AFFAIR) C. S. DENT & CO., Detroit, Mich.

1898 BICYCLE $3.00

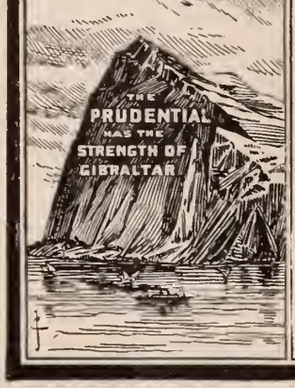
Yes, $3.00 takes our up-to-date, guaranteed bicycle on our great co-operative offer. You do little work in your spare time. Write soon. COOK CYCLE CO., Office, 67 Lake Ave.; Factory, 16-18 Franklin St., Chicago.

Ladies Wanted to do stamping at their homes. We pay $6 a week and furnish material. Send stamp. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—THE LARKIN IDEA fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free Sample Soap if mention this publication.
THE LARKIN SOAP MFG. CO., BUFFALO, N.Y.

THE PRUDENTIAL



ISSUES
Life Insurance Policies
UNDER EVERY APPROVED FORM.

Whole Life, Limited Payment, or Endowment Policies, $500 to $50,000.

Industrial Policies, $15 up.

COMBINING
PROTECTION and INVESTMENT

WRITE FOR INFORMATION.

The Prudential Ins. Co. of America
JOHN F. DRYDEN, Pres. Home Office, Newark, N.J.

Simplicity

1898 Waverleys are marvels of mechanical construction and skill, yet so simple any child can understand and care for them.

Waverley Bicycle $50

Result of concentrating all effort in one model.
The Waverley Catalogue is free.
Indiana Bicycle Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Costs You Nothing to Try It.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

Cures Female Weakness, Restores Health and Vigor.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 1, 1897.
"I wouldn't be without my Brace for it has cured me of all female trouble. Had suffered twelve years with falling, laceration and ulceration of womb, with backache, headache, bearing down, constipation, painful menstruation, ovarian pains, etc. Have had Brace a year, and haven't been in bed an hour from any illness since. Mrs. Austin Berry.

Money Refunded if Brace is not Satisfactory. Send for full information and free illustrated book.
THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO., Box 171 Salina, Kansas.
Every ailing woman should have this Brace.

OH, MY POOR BACK!

s the cry from men and women who wear a truss made on the plan of the one above, with that awful pressure on the back and spine; throw it away. We can relieve you with our Improved Elastic Truss. WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY. THEREBY EFFECTING A PERFECT CURE, without neglect of business; holds the rupture in any position. Call or write for free catalogue.

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.,
785 Broadway, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 years.

AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE.

Agents who desire a profitable line of goods, which are extensively advertised, to canvas with are wanted at once for Dr Scott's Celebrated Electric Corsets, Brushes, Belts, Safety Razors and other goods. At the commissions we give you can make from $1,000 to $2,000 a year; send at once for our liberal terms; we give exclusive territory and free samples to every agent who works for us.
GEO. A. SCOTT, Room 7, 842 Broadway, New York.

Farmers Break the Buggy Monopoly.

It is claimed that for years buggy manufacturers have secured exorbitant prices for their goods, but recently, through the combined assistance of the farmers of Iowa, Illinois and other States, SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., of Chicago, have got the price of open buggies down to $16.50; Top Buggies, $22.75; Top Surries, $43.75 and upwards, and they are shipping them in immense numbers direct to farmers in every State. They send an immense Buggy Catalogue free, postpaid, to any one who asks for it. This certainly is a big victory for the farmer, but a severe blow to the carriage manufacturers and dealers.

TRY IT FREE

for 30 days in your own home and save $10 to $25. No money in advance. $60 Kenwood Machine for $23.00
$50 Arlington Machine for $19.50
Singers (Made by us) $8, $11.50, $15 and 25 other styles. All attachments FREE. We pay freight. Buy from factory. Save agents large profits. Over 100,000 in use. Catalogue and testimonials Free. Write at once. Address (in full) CASH BUYERS' UNION 158-164 West Van Buren St., R. 18 Chicago, Ills.

$60 Sewing Machines for $18.

We sell every reliable sewing Machine made. We employ no agents, pay no commissions, buy for cash in large quantities, which enables us to save you from $25 to $42 on any Sewing Machine you may select. All machines brand new, guaranteed latest improved, with all attachments, and warranted for 10 years. (Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.) Our illustrated catalogue gives full particulars, and will be mailed free. Don't think of buying a machine before investigating our catalogue. Address,
J. N. HOOK & CO., A CINCINNATI, O.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.
Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

$2-OUTFIT FREE TO AGENTS

In order to introduce our new novelties in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. Write quick. J. F. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 225 Randolph St., CHICAGO

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES; no experience needed; position permanent; self seller.

PEARE MFG. CO., P.O. Box A, Cincinnati, O

Money Made Easy

BY MEN OR WOMEN in your own locality. Capital not required. Honorable and pleasant employment. No books, no scheme. Write us.
MANTUA M'F'G CO.,
3501 Lancaster Ave., Philadelphia, Pa.

NAZO

for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

Tartarlithine for Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., writes:
"Your Tartarlithine has proved a wonderful weapon for rheumatism. I have used a very great quantity of it in the last three or four months and I have never seen anything like it. I had one case who had tried all the alkaline lithiates, and everything else. He has had rheumatism all his life and nothing completely stopped the manifestations of the disease like Tartarlithine, which did completely with one bottle.

I have another old man, who lives much on the road peddling, who has been lame with rheumatism for five years, and one bottle cured all lameness, and he says he has not been as well in five years as now. These are only the two worst cases of any that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St., N. Y.
SOLE AGENTS FOR
The Tartarlithine Co.

NEW WAIST SET, Oc.

Our new '98 [illegible] some design [illegible] pany rolled-[illegible] cuff buttons [illegible] collar button [illegible] latest belt [illegible] tra heavy [illegible] gold or sil[illegible] plate, worth [illegible] store. We se[illegible] ject, with ne[illegible] of bargains, [illegible] ONLY 10c. for [illegible] Ingersoll & [illegible] Dept. 07 Cortla[illegible] St., N.Y.

HEALTH, LUXURY, BE[illegible]TY
Obtained by use of our NEW [illegible] VAPOR BATH CABINET (Patente[illegible] Es[illegible] all others in material and workman[illegible] varieties of Dry and Vapor Baths [illegible] home at a trifling cost. Its cura[illegible] ties are invaluable. Removes [illegible] and beautifies the complexion, o[illegible] pores of the skin and expelling a[illegible] matter from the body. Our Cabinet cloak or sack, but supported by a [illegible] frame. Size, 30 in. by 4 in., folded [illegible] lbs. A child can adjust it. Descriptive pamphlet sent [illegible] low. Agents wanted. O'MOLLENKOPF & McCREERY [illegible]

Lady Agents

Make $18 a Week Easy and we will show you how to make $18 a week easy you are in need of employment, write to us at once. We that you can make $18 a week absolutely sure. You will at how easy it can be done. Send us your address and be to your interest to investigate. Write today. You can make $18 a week easy. ROYAL MFG. CO., Box 207, D[illegible]

CURED TO STAY CURED. HAY FEVER

Dr. HAYES, Buffalo, N.Y.

WANTED NOW. AGENTS AT O[illegible] sell Snap Lock Door Holders. Sample Snap Lock free [illegible] stamp. Immense; better than weights; proof. $10.00 a day. Write quick. RICHARD & CO., Dept. 14, Philadel[illegible]

$9.50 BUYS A HIGH ARM VICTO[illegible]
Adapted to Light and Heavy Work. Retail Finished; Guaranteed for 10 Years. Write for logue. Attachments Free. 30 DAYS FREE TRI[illegible] Dept. 65, VICTOR MFG. CO., 99-99 Market

CRAZY WORK 800 SILK REMNANTS [illegible] Quilt 4 sq. yds. 50c. Inser[illegible] floss & patterns, 10c, postpaid. Lemarie's Silk Mill[illegible]

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFIES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.
VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 27.

Re T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

NEW YORK, JULY 6, 1898.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Preaching Christ in the Camps

Faithful Gospel Workers Spreading the Truth Among Our Troops at the Front.

OUR photographs on this page represent scenes which will be instantly recognized as familiar to all who have visited any of the great military camps, that are now crowded with as numbers of soldiers, a majority of who are preparing to embark for service n foreign lands. Already the Living Word as been delivered by earnest evangelists to e thousands composing the army of invion now in Cuba. Still larger armies re oon to depart, many of the gallant ell s doubtless never to return, and it is a ut as well as a high privilege to give the Go el to these brave men ere they go, so tha hey may carry with them in their hearts the nowledge that their future is in divine keeng. In this Christian work, the readers of this journal are taking a prominent part. Their gifts are the means, to a large extent, of carrying on the work in the camps, by evangelists and others under Mr. D. L. Moody's able spiritual leadership. Many have been already won to Christ through these services, and the good influences awakened are such as will assuredly bear blessed fruit hereafter.

In a letter from Major Whittle, written June 16 from Chickamauga, speaking of the new army hymn-book, compiled by Mr. Sankey, he says: "We received 9,000 last Saturday, and I have written to-day for 5,000 more. The men are eager for them. I have also written for colportage books. There are none at all now left, and we much need them. There are scores of inquirers at every meeting,

(Continued on page 558.)

CHAPLAIN JONES LEADING THE SOLDIERS OF THE 2nd N. J. VOLUNTEERS IN PRAYER AT CAMP CUBA LIBRE, JACKSONVILLE.

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Baptist, Tacoma, Wash. My son is in a district where there is no Baptist church accessible; but he was converted recently under a Methodist preacher. He is very anxious to take the sacrament. Do you think under the circumstances he might go to the Lord's table without being baptized? He might have to wait a year or more to be baptized.

Certainly. The minister of the church will probably wish him to be baptized by sprinkling before he is admitted to communion, and he will do well to consent. He can be baptized by immersion, if he desires it, at the first opportunity. All who love the Lord ought to be welcomed at his table.

M. S., Bloomington, Ind. When I joined the church there was one sin I could not give up, but since then I have resolved to give up everything, but now I cannot find Christ, and he seems to have cast me off. Is there no hope for me? Have I committed the unpardonable sin?

There is certainly hope for you. Do not worry about the unpardonable sin; there is not the slightest fear of your having committed it. If you have really given up your sin, have asked God to forgive you, for Christ's sake, and are really trusting in Christ, and are trying in his strength to lead a holy life—there is no occasion for the distress you describe in your letter. You should believe God's promise and thank him for receiving you. The peace and joy you want to feel, may come later. They are very comforting, but are not necessary to salvation. If a father promised to forgive an undutiful child, on certain conditions, what ought the child to do? Ought he to go around fretting and repining that he does not feel he is forgiven? Ought he not rather to take care he fulfils the conditions, and then rejoice in the certainty that his father, who loves him, will keep his promise? You should trust in Christ and not in your own feelings. None who put their trust in him will be lost.

Reader, Erie, Mich. Why did Christ discourage the men who wanted to be his followers (Luke 9:57-62), but wanted to go home first, and one of them to attend the funeral of his father?

Because they did not realize what following him involved. No one was fit to follow him, in those trying times, who did not cut loose from all domestic ties. If Christ were here now, what would you think of any man who, being in his company and having the privilege of listening to him, should propose to leave it for a funeral, or any purpose whatever? You would say that he did not appreciate his privilege. Christ did not condemn domestic affection, but men whose hearts were divided between him and their friends, were not fit for his disciples. Then, men must be ready to forsake all to follow him.

G. L. M., Tarrytown, N. Y. How did Cuba get its name? Is it a Spanish name?

The original Indian name was Cubanacan, and the present abbreviated form came about perhaps through Spanish usage. The first name by which Spanish discoverers called the island seems to have been Antilla. Next it was known as Juana, then Fernandina, Santiago, Isla of Ave Maria, and finally back to the name by which its Indian inhabitants had known it.

Arnold, Northport, L. I. Where and how did the political term "mugwump" originate?

The Irish Fenian war party in England, some thirty years ago, was known by this name which originated in a popular war song, written about that time. Ever since that time the term "mugwump" has been applied to the party favoring war.

Subscriber, Americus, Ga. Kindly let me know through your paper what the colors are of the American flag.

Pole to the left and flag to the right, with the union in the upper left-hand corner. The flag is usually thus represented.

Inquirer, Xenia, O. A minister, whom I heard lately, said that a certain book in the Bible could not have been written by the man whose name it bears, because its date was fixed by the words used in it. How can words fix a date?

They cannot absolutely fix a date, but they may prove that a book was not written before a certain date. If, for example, a play, purporting to be written by Shakespeare, contained a reference to the telephone, or to the practice of boycotting, every one would know that it was not written by Shakespeare, because no such word as boycotting, nor such an instrument as the telephone, was in use in his time. The references would not fix the date, but it would be evident that it was not written before 1800. The critics, however, have been rash in some of their judgments about the Bible. There was, for instance, a higher civilization in the time of Moses than they supposed. Recently discovered tablets show that the art of writing was common much earlier than had been believed.

E. M. K., Plainfield, N. J. I have a number of garments which my children have outgrown, and which I would like to send to Mont-Lawn, if they are suitable, since I see that the children you take there are often very ragged and needy. What kinds and what sizes of garments are acceptable?

Any summer garments for children from five to twelve will be welcome. Boys, for some inexplicable reason, are not usually so well remembered as girls in donations received by us, and trousers, blouses, etc., are in great demand. All packages should be sent prepaid to the Matron of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y.

HAULING LOGS IN THE GREAT FORESTS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Our illustration shows one feature of the lumber industry as conducted near Tacoma. The great forests of Puget Sound divide honors with those of California. The estimate of standing timber in Washington has been estimated at several billion feet; for 1897 the total cut is placed at 600,000,000 feet; for 1896 its valuation was $6,500,000.

J. G. Y., Spring City, Pa. What is the signification of the "Passion Flower?"

It means, in what is known as "the language of flowers," holy love, religious fervor. The flower is called the Passion from the supposed resemblance of certain parts of it to the thorns, the hammer and the nails. Its blossoms are blue, white and purple. There is also an Oriental Passion Flower, known in Palestine as the "Passion Everlasting," intense in hue, and with a blossom which runs from pearly white to deep pink, becoming crimson at the leaf tips. This is a popular favorite.

Herald Reader, East Highlands, Cal. 1. What is the real meaning of a profession of religion? 2. If a man acknowledges that he is a sinner and asks God earnestly to forgive him, and resolves to lead a different life, is that sufficient? 3. If God, knowing the future, is aware that a certain man will be lost, is it not impossible for that man to be saved, even if he tries?

1. The public declaration that a man is a follower of Christ and pledges himself in Christ's strength to live according to his commands. 2. Not sufficient. He must have faith in Christ and must look to him for power to lead "a different life." God will have his Son honored. He is the way, and no man cometh to God but by him. 3. Why worry course or merely in the quickening of the man's perceptions and business acumen so that he is able to decide with greater confidence. The answer, however, may appear to be misleading. For example, a man may be hesitating whether he shall buy a certain business. He may be led to buy it and the venture prove disastrous, but the reason may be that God saw that business disaster would be beneficial to the man's soul, as it often is. God does not always answer our prayers in the way we intend, but his answers are for our highest interests.

Sympathy, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 1. When will the Cuban relief work be resumed? 2. Will THE CHRISTIAN HERALD continue to do relief work there after the ports are open?

1. There is a reasonable expectation of its early resumption. It is now probable that after the military operations at Santiago are ended, there may be an opportunity to reach the reconcentrados. 2. Yes. It has been impossible to send either money or supplies under existing circumstances. Our latest attempt to send relief remittance through to the Lee Orphanage was unsuccessful.

K. E. M., Luconia, Ind. What is conscience? Does it ever lead us to do wrong?

There has long been a dispute as to whether conscience is a separate faculty or is merely the reason applied to moral questions. This, however, is probably a matter in which you are not interested, and it is not of much practical importance. Every one is conscious of possessing some inner monitor which approves or condemns his actions. It is not perfect or infallible. It needs to be educated, for if not educated it fails to reprove its possessor of sins. A child brought up among thieves would probably have no pricking of conscience when he stole, while the child of pious parents would be troubled if he committed a theft. It may lead us to do wrong if it is blind or biassed, as it did Paul, who obeyed his conscience when he persecuted the church (see Acts 26:9).

E. H. G., Montreal Junction, Que. What is the best school of oratory in the United States or Canada?

The best school of oratory is the debating club, whether it be in city or village. The lyceums and similar institutions for oratorical exercises, but to attempt to point out the "best" would be invidious.

H. A., Kingston, Minn. When and under what circumstances did "All Fools' Day" originate?

An old tradition states that the first dove was sent from Noah's Ark on April 1. It is that a custom of sending people out on useless errands originated in a sort of penance imposed upon those who neglected to celebrate the deliverance of Noah and his family from the flood. From this there grew the present forms of playful and sometimes, mischievous trickery common to the day.

Mrs. T. E. P., Mineola, L. I. There is a discussion in our Sunday School class as to what Punch and Judy originated from. Some say Punch was first called "Jesus before Pilate." Will you please inform us?

It originated in an early mystery play in which the characters represented were Pilate and Judas Iscariot. It was introduced into England, 1666, by an Italian, and was first produced near Charing Cross. The parish books of St. Martin-in-the-Field shows the rental that was "Punchinello," as it was entered, paid for the booth.

B. B., Sanlsbury, Tenn. Will you please give me some information relating to the lives of William Carey and Robert Morrison.

William Carey was born in 1761, at Paulersbury, England, and early in life became active in missionary work. He was one of the principal organizers of the Baptist Missionary Society in 1792, and he volunteered for India in 1793. The record of his magnificent work for Christ, the conversions under his preaching, the numerous translations of the Gospels, and the churches and missions founded, would fill a volume. He died in 1834. Robert Morrison was born in England, 1782. He received a thorough theological education and in 1807 went to China as a missionary under the London Missionary Society. His record of work was monumental, including many translations of the Gospel, a Chinese dictionary, the establishment of colleges and schools. He died at Canton in 1834.

B. P. M., Lancaster, Pa. Is there any message in the Bible which implies that there will be different degrees of happiness in heaven?

We do not know of any, but there appear to be different degrees of reward or glory which may give different degrees of happiness. Paul's comparison (1. Cor. 15:41) of the condition of the glory of the sun, the moon and the stars seems to convey this idea. The parable of the pounds (Luke 19:12-27) is another suggestion of the same kind.

Subscriber, Mexico. Tarrytown, N. Y.

H. A., Parkersburg, W. Va. American Presbyterian.

N. Y. Z., Westchester, Pa. We cannot give the information.

J. B. R., Welcome, Ark. We do not know where they can be bought.

J. H. M., Campville, Fla. We do not know a dermatologist only could advise.

A. M. S., St. Augustine, Fla. We have written concerning the case referred to.

F. W. H., Gambier, O. In making the engraving the engraver has reversed the negative.

G. M. E., Black Walnut, Va. His address is No. 4 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York City.

Gipsy, Greensboro, N. C. Send correspondence and address, and we will forward to proper authorities.

H. M. S., Seymour, Ind. Barry's Fruit Recipes, Orange Judd Co., N. Y.; Strong's Fruit Recipes, the Rural Publishing Co., N. Y.

A Subscriber, Holstein, Ia. Write to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 161 Eighteenth Street, New York City.

Mrs. F. P. W., Bowdoinham, Me. We do not know the exact nature. Witnessing the execution in Cuba is said to have precipitated her death.

Subscriber. 1. Biglow & Main, East Twelfth Street, New York City. 2. Write to the Secretary of the National Temperance Society, 3 West Eighteenth street, New York City. 3. Same.

D. L. B., Merkle, Pa. If you will read the accounts of Christian work in the army that appear from week to week in these columns, you will find that your wish has been anticipated.

Mrs. Ella M. B., Kenosha, Wis. It can be satisfactorily self-taught. Text books do not give the accent and the proper pronunciation, which are a great part of the battle in acquiring a foreign language.

HEARTS TOUCHED BY THE GOSPEL.

Soul Won to Christ by Devoted Missionaries in Barbados—The Anchor Mission and its Earnest Band of Workers.

THERE is now visiting this country, a lady who has had a most interesting experience in missionary work t tropics. Missionary Antoinette Esterbrooks General Superintendent of the Seamen's Anchor Mission and Tropical Training School

ORY ESTERBROOKS.

A CONVERT OF THE MISSION.

rbados, has ately returned to the te in obedience h physician's e out her heart sl with her rk n the West di to which she pe o return very n n interview in e ices of THE HRISTIAN HER-D. he missionary spoke freely of her rk Barbados, and said:

"Th world's attention is just now ted upon these beautiful islands of S th Seas. We have watched Cuba's ge for liberty and freedom until r arts have been hushed with awe. t slavery more abject and a yoke realling than that of Spain binds not y uba but all of these beautiful ies the sea. Only the simple Gospel, e rgion of Jesus Christ, can liberate r eople from sin and superstition. T missionaries must take these is-ds or the King of kings and redeem s mountains and fertile valleys. We re ging millions to save their bodies ge them political freedom. What re w doing to save their souls and de-er em from the slavery of sin?

"Aer six years of constant work among p santry of these islands, I believe at them liberty is license without the w of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. It n seven years since I left my own d began work in the West India an. The first convert of Anchor ss n, a young soldier in the Duke of Wellington Regiment, is now lifting up e ss of Christ in Africa. One of our s om the Home, who left all to fol-w Jus, is expecting to go to Africa as mi onary, as the wife of Albert Pea-y prince of a Bassa tribe, educated th country, who will return to Africa a th all, and as the chief of his people u e them for Christ. Another of r rls, a graduate from the W. I. o is now in school in Boston, pre-arir to give her life in service to the as .

Fe Missions, a rescue home, a new ap and a training school have been esta shed. In the past year I have sent out fo missionaries. Rev. J. M. Perkins, of th Union Missionary Institute, Brooklyn, in July, 1897, and Miss Marion Speer (now Mrs. Perkins), in November. Our work is unsalaried and undenominational. Romanism has failed to change the lives of these people. An English historian says 70 per cent. of the children here are illegitimate. Almost our first work was the opening of a rescue home for fallen women. I counted in one testimony meeting sixty women who had been saved from lives of sin.

A STREET IN BARBADOS.

"Native converts and American missionaries have labored and preached the Gospel in St. Kitts, Martinique, Guadeloupe, Dominica, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Tobago, Grenada, Trinidad, and South America, in the last five years. None of the workers has had any salary or any pledged support. We have endeavored to make the work self-supporting, and we succeeded until the past two years. First, the failure of the sugar crop, and next, the Spanish-American war completely paralyzed West Indian commerce. Rev. J. M. Perkins writes me from Barbados: 'The people are starving: the little food produced has been bought up by a few of the merchants, and the poor, numbering over 200,000, are ready for a rebellion to get food.'"

In the midst of these scenes of misery, the Anchor Mission and Tropical Training School has been persevering in its excellent work among the people of Barbados. Notwithstanding the fact that the means for carrying on the mission have been greatly reduced, the workers have not slackened, but are as zealous and energetic as ever. They have witnessed with pain the suffering near them, and have seen with no little anxiety, a debt of several hundred dollars accumulating on their mission. In the past, however, they have been remembered by God's people, and they have confidence now that there are friends in many quarters who will come to their aid and give their soul-winning work the generous support its importance deserves. Any letters of inquiry about the mission addressed to S. Antoinette Esterbrooks, Far Rockaway, L. I., will receive immediate attention.

The Seamen's Anchor Mission is located in a neighborhood once utterly given over to evil practices, and covers a spot once occupied by a notoriously sinful resort. The alley led to one of the most desperately wicked quarters of all Barbados. Miss Johnson, a convert of the mission, illustrates in an industrious life of great usefulness among her people the good work which is being accomplished among the young. We see in a picture of a business street in Barbados that the place is one of commercial improvement and promise.

Work at Tuskegee.

Rev. R. C. Bedford, who has kept up a close acquaintance with Tuskegee graduates and former students, has spent much time recently in visiting among them in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, and his report shows that the graduates without exception are honorably employed. Many have labored as teachers and otherwise for years in the same place. Some have built up splendid schools, bought land, married, made good homes and are excellent citizens and of large influence in their communities. Almost every one of them knows how to do some useful work aside from teaching. The men build their schoolhouses, churches and homes, and work at and teach trades in schools similar to Tuskegee. Many are superintendents of industries in other schools. Two young men of the class of '97, who graduated also in blacksmithing, have had work all the year at $1.50 per day and board.

SEAMEN'S ANCHOR MISSION AND READING-ROOM, BARBADOS.

The girls are dressmakers, tailoresses, millners, nurses and cooks, as well as teachers and housekeepers. As an evidence that those who are called to higher learning are not discouraged by industrial training, it is interesting to note that five of the graduates are physicians, several are druggists, two are dentists, two lawyers, quite a number ministers, several principals of large schools, and still others are in various colleges and technical schools, fitting themselves for the largest possible usefulness.

It is a marked fact that even those who have been at the school but for a short time and some who were sent away because they did not seem sufficiently responsive to the instruction given them when they get away awake to their opportunities and come to be among the most useful of those sent out by the school. One of the young men still in school has become so proficient in shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping that he will have charge of instruction given in these branches.

A Native African Preacher.

Good Work Being Done in Freetown by Rev. George Dove Decker, a Native of Sierra Leone in West Africa.

ONE of the most pathetic letters we have read was that published in the MAIL BAG on June 22. It came from Rev. George Dove Decker, a native missionary in Sierra Leone, Africa, who was ordained in 1891 by Bishop Turner, of the African M. E. Church. This week we publish a portrait of Mr. Decker and a picture of the church of which he is pastor, for which we are indebted to the Society under whose auspices he labors. It is known as Providence Church, and is in Freetown, the nearest important town to the scene of the recent massacre of American missionaries. Mr. Decker describes the joy he has felt in laboring among the men of his own race in Sierra Leone and the hope of the ultimate regeneration of the whole of that dark region of the great continent. That it is with him a labor of love, with very little remuneration, is evident from the fact that his intense desire for a teacher's Bible could not be gratified except through the generosity of the proprietor of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Even the small sum necessary for its purchase was beyond his means. He began his ministerial work in a cellar which he hired in a neglected district of Freetown. He commenced house to house visitation, and whenever he could collect an audience, preached in the open air. For four years he worked in this way, and during that time carefully husbanded his funds in the hope of building a church. At last sufficient funds were in hand for a modest building, and the plain, simple edifice represented in the illustration was erected. It is fifty feet long and thirty wide. There the good pastor preaches regularly and has organized a church of earnest believers. He continues his home missionary work in addition to his labors as a pastor, and has proved very successful in reaching some of the lowest and most depraved classes of society in Freetown.

REV. GEORGE DOVE DECKER.

The Missionary Society, which superintends his work, has workers in Barbados, Demarara and Hayti besides those in Africa. Bishop Turner is now on his way to Africa to organize a Conference in the South. Already there are 1,700 communicants in the country and five flourishing schools in which large numbers of native children are receiving Christian training. The bishop has been promised a cordial welcome in the South. Several promising converts have been made in that section. One of them Marshall Mokeke of Johannesburg, is now being prepared for ministerial work at Wilberforce University. It may be that we have here a hint toward the solution of the problem of African regeneration. If this society can enlist the services of such men as Decker and Mokeke and can direct their work in their native land other societies can do likewise, and so the lives of white missionaries to whom the climate is fatal may be saved.

PROVIDENCE A. M. E. CHURCH, FREETOWN, AFRICA.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

Woman Wronged.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Esther 1: 11-12:

Bring Vashti, the queen, before the king with the crown royal, to show the people and the princes her beauty: for she was fair to look upon. But the Queen Vashti refused to come.

WE STAND amid the palaces of Shushan. The pinnacles are aflame with the morning light. The columns rise festooned and wreathed, the wealth of empires flashing from the grooves; the ceilings adorned with images of bird and beast, and scenes of prowess and conquest. The walls are hung with shields, and emblazoned until it seems that the whole round of splendors is exhausted. Each arch is a mighty leaf of architectural achievement. Golden stars shining down on glowing arabesque. Hangings of embroidered work in which mingle the blueness of the sky, the greenness of the grass and the whiteness of the seafoam. Tapestries hung on silver rings, wedding together the pillars of marble. Pavilions reaching out in every direction. These for repose, filled with luxuriant couches, in which weary limbs sink until all fatigue is submerged. Those for carousal where kings drink down a kingdom at one swallow. Amazing spectacle! Light of silver dripping down over stairs of ivory on shields of gold. Floors of stained marble, sunset red and night black, and inlaid with gleaming pearl. In connection with this palace there is a garden, where the mighty men of foreign lands are seated at a banquet. Under the spread of oak and linden and acacia the tables are arranged. The breath of honeysuckle and frankincense fills the air. Fountains leap up into the light, the spray struck through with rainbows falling into crystalline baptism upon flowering shrubs—then rolling down through channels of marble, and widening out here and there into pools swirling with the finny tribes of foreign aquariums, bordered with scarlet anemones, hypericums, and many-colored ranunculi.

Meats of rarest bird and beast smoking up amid wreaths of aromatics. The vases filled with apricots and almonds. The baskets piled up with apricots and figs and oranges and pomegranates. Melons tastefully twined with leaves of acacia. The bright waters of Eulæus filling the urns and dropping outside the rim in flashing beads amid the traceries. Wine from the royal vats of Ispahan and Shiraz, in bottles of tinged shell, and lily-shaped cups of silver, and flagons and tankards of solid gold. The music rises higher, and the revelry breaks out into wilder transport, and the wine has flushed the cheek and touched the brain, and louder than all other voices are the hiccough of the inebriates, the gabble of fools, and the song of the drunkards.

In another part of the palace Queen Vashti is entertaining the Princesses of Persia at a banquet. Drunken Ahasuerus says to his servants, "You go and fetch Vashti from that banquet with the women, and bring her to this banquet with the men, and let me display her beauty." The servants immediately start to obey the king's command; but there was a rule in Oriental society that no woman might appear in public without having her face veiled. Yet here was a mandate that no one dare dispute, demanding that Vashti come in unveiled before the multitude. However, there was in Vashti's soul a principle more regal than Ahasuerus, more brilliant than the gold of Shushan, of more wealth than the realm of Persia, which constrained her to disobey this order of the king, and so all the righteousness and holiness and modesty of her nature rise up into one sublime refusal. She says, "I will not go into the banquet unveiled." Ahasuerus is infuriate and Vashti, robbed of her position and her estate is driven forth in poverty and ruin to suffer the scorn of a nation, and yet to receive the applause of after generations, who shall rise up to admire this martyr to kingly insolence. Well, the last vestige of that feast is gone, the last garland has faded; the last arch has fallen; the last tankard has been destroyed; and Shushan is a ruin; but as long as the world stands there will be multitudes of men and women, familiar with the Bible, who will come into this picture gallery of God and admire the divine portrait of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent.

In the first place, I want you to look upon Vashti the queen. A blue ribbon, rayed with white, drawn around her forehead, indicated her queenly position. It was no small honor to be queen in such a realm as that. Hark to the rustle of her robes! See the blaze of her jewels! And yet it is not necessary to have place and regal robe in order to be queenly. When I see a woman with stout faith in God, putting her foot upon all meanness and selfishness and godless display, going right forward to serve Christ and the race by a grand and a glorious service, I say: "That woman is a queen," and the ranks of heaven look over the battlements upon the coronation; and whether she comes up from the shanty on the commons or the mansion of the fashionable square, I greet her with the shout, "All hail, Queen Vashti!"

What glory was there on the brow of Mary of Scotland, or Elizabeth of England, or Margaret of France, or Catherine of Russia, compared with the worth of some of our Christian mothers, many of them gone into glory?—or of that woman mentioned in the Scriptures, who put her all into the Lord's treasury?—or of Jephthah's daughter, who made a demonstration of unselfish patriotism?—or of Abigail, who rescued the herds and flocks of her husband?—or of Ruth, who toiled under a tropical sun for poor, old, helpless Naomi?—or of Florence Nightingale, who went at midnight to stanch the battle wounds of the Crimea?—or of Mrs. Adoniram Judson, who kindled the lights of salvation amid the darkness of Burmah?—or of Mrs. Hemans, who poured out her holy soul in words which will forever be associated with hunter's horn, and captive's chain, and bridal hour, and lute's throb, and curfew's knell at the dying day?—and scores and hundreds of women, unknown on earth, who have given water to the thirsty, and bread to the hungry, and medicine to the sick, and smiles to the discouraged—their footsteps heard along dark lane and in government hospital, and in almshouse corridor, and by prison-gate? There may be no royal robe—there may be no palatial surroundings. She does not need them; for all charitable men will unite with the crackling lips of fever-struck hospital and plague-blotched lazaretto in greeting her as she passes: "Hail! Hail! Queen Vashti!"

Again, I want you to consider Vashti the veiled. Had she appeared before Ahasuerus and his court on that day with her face uncovered she would have shocked all the delicacies of Oriental society, and the very men who in their intoxication demanded that she come, in their sober moments would have despised her. As some flowers seem to thrive best in the dark lane and in the shadow, and where the sun does not seem to reach them, so God appoints to most womanly natures a retiring and unobtrusive spirit. God once in a while does call an Isabella to a throne, or a Miriam to strike the timbrel at the front of a host, or a Marie Antoinette to quell a French mob, or a Deborah to stand at the front of an armed battalion, crying out, "Up! Up! This is the day in which the Lord will deliver Sisera into thy hands." And when the women are called to such out-door work and to such heroic positions, God prepares them for it; and they have iron in their soul, and lightnings in their eye, and whirlwinds in their breath, and the borrowed strength of the Lord Omnipotent in their right arm. They walk through furnaces as though they were hedges of wild-flowers, and cross seas as though they were shimmering sapphire; and all the harpies of hell down to their dungeon at the stamp of womanly indignation.

But these are the exceptions. Generally, Dorcas would rather make a garment for the poor boy; Rebecca would rather fill the trough of the camels; Hannah would rather make a coat for Samuel; the Hebrew maid would rather give a prescription for Naaman's leprosy; the woman of Sarepta would rather gather a few sticks to cook a meal for famished Elijah; Phebe would rather carry a letter for the inspired apostle; Mother Lois would rather educate Timothy in the Scriptures. When I see a woman going about her daily duty, with cheerful dignity presiding at the table, with kind and gentle but firm discipline presiding in the nursery, going out into the world without any blast of trumpets, following in the footsteps of him who went about doing good—I say: "This is Vashti with a veil on."

But when I see a woman of unblushing boldness, loud voiced, with a tongue of infinite clitter-clatter, with arrogant look, passing through the streets with the step of a walking-beam, gayly arrayed in a very hurricane of millinery, I cry out: "Vashti has lost her veil!" When I see a woman struggling for political preferment—trying to force her way on up to conspicuity, amid the masculine demagogues, who stand with swollen fists and bloodshot eyes and pestiferous breath, to guard the polls—wanting to go through the loaferism and foul defilement, to decide questions of justice and order and civilization—when I see a woman, I say, who wants to press through all that horrible scum to get to public place and power, I say: "Ah, what a pity! Vashti has lost her veil!"

When I see a woman of comely features, and of adroitness of intellect, and endowed with all that the schools can do for her, and of high social position, yet moving in society with superciliousness and hauteur, as though she would have people know their place, and with an undefined combination of giggle and strut and rhodomontade, endowed with allopathic quantities of talk, but only homœopathic infinitesimals of sense, the terror of dry-goods clerks and railroad conductors, discoverers of significant meanings in plain conversation, prodigies of badinage and innuendo—I say: "Vashti has lost her veil."

Again, I want you this morning to consider Vashti the sacrifice. Who is this that I see coming out of that palace gate of Shushan. It seems to me that I have seen her before. She comes homeless, houseless, friendless, trudging along with a broken heart. Who is she? It is Vashti the sacrifice. Oh! what a change it was from regal position to a wayfarer's crust! A little while ago, approved and sought for; now, none so poor as to acknowledge her acquaintanceship. Vashti the sacrifice!

Ah! you and I have seen it many a time. Here is a home empalaced with beauty. All that refinement and books and wealth can do for that home has been done; but Ahasuerus, the husband and the father, is taking hold on paths of sin. He is gradually going down. After awhile he will flounder and struggle like a wild beast in the hunter's net—further away from God, further away from the right. Soon the bright apparel of the children will turn to rags; soon the household song will become the sobbing of a broken heart. The old story over again. Brutal Centaurs breaking up the marriage feast of Lapithæ. The house full of outrage and cruelty and abomination, while trudging forth from the palace gate are Vashti and her children. There are homes in all parts of this land that are in danger of such breaking-up. Oh, Ahasuerus! that you should stand in a home, by a dissipated life destroying the peace and comfort of that home. God forbid that your children should ever have to wring their hands, and have people point their finger at them as they pass down the street, and say, "There goes a drunkard's child." God forbid that the little feet should ever have to trudge the path of poverty and wretchedness! God forbid that any evil spirit born of the wine-cup or the brandy-glass should come forth and uproot that garden, and with a lasting, blistering, all consuming curse, shut forever the palace gate against Vashti and the children.

One night during our civil war I went to Hagerstown to look at the army. I stood on a hill-top and looked down on them. I saw the camp-fires all through the valleys and all over the hills. It was a weird spectacle, those camp-fires and I stood and watched them; and the soldiers who were gathered around them were, no doubt, talking of their homes, and of the long march they had taken, and of the battles they were to fight, and after awhile I saw these camp-fires begin to lower; and they continued to lower until they were all gone out, and the army slept. It was imposing when I saw the camp-fires; it was imposing in the darkness when I thought of that great host asleep. Well, God looks down from heaven and he sees the firesides of Christendom, and the loved ones gathered around these firesides. These are the camp-fires at which we warm ourselves at the close of life and talk over the battles of life we have fought and the battles that are yet to come. God grant that when at last the fires begin to go out, and continue to lower until finally they are extinguished, and the ashes of consumed hopes lie on the hearth of the old homestead, it may be because we have > Gone to sleep that last sleep,

> From which none ever wake to weep.

Now we are an army on the march of life. Then we shall be an army encamped in the tent of the grave.

Once more: I want you to look upon Vashti the silent. You do not hear the outcry from this woman as she goes forth from the palace gate. From the very sublimity of her nature, you know there will be no vociferation. Sometimes in life it is necessary to make a retort; sometimes in life it is necessary to resist; but there are crises when the most triumphant thing to do is to keep silence. The philosopher, confident in his newly discovered principle, waiting for the coming more intelligent generations, willing that men should laugh at the lightning-rod, the cotton-gin and steamboat and telegraph—waiting for long years through the scoffing of philosophical schools—grand and magnificent silence.

Galileo, condemned by mathematicians and monks, and cardinals, caricatured everywhere, yet waiting and watching with his telescope to see the coming of stellar reinforcements, when the stars in their courses would fight for the Copernican system; then sitting down in complete blindness and deafness of soul for the coming on of the generations that would build his monument and bow at his grave. The reformer, execrated by his contemporaries, fastened in a pillory of slow fires of public contempt burning under him, ground under the cylinders of the printing-press, yet calmly waiting for the day when purity of soul and heroism of character will get the sanction of earth and the plaudits of heaven. All this enduring without any complaint at the sharpness of the pang, and the violence of the storm, and the heft of the chain, in the darkness of the night—waiting until a divine hand shall be put forth to take off the pang, and hush the storm, and release the captive. A wife abused, persecuted and a perpetual exile from every home comfort—waiting, waiting, until the Lord shall gather up his dear children into the heavenly home, and no poor Vashti will ever be thrust out from the palace of Jesus, in silence and answering not a word, drinking the gall, bearing the pain in prospect of the rapturous consolation when

> Angels thronged his chariot wheel,
> And bore him to his throne;
> Then swept their golden harps and sang,
> "The glorious work is done!"

Oh, woman! does not this story of Vashti the queen, Vashti the veiled, Vashti the sacrifice, Vashti the silent, move your soul? My sermon converges into this absorbing hope that none of you will be shut out of the palace gate of heaven. You can endure the hardships, and the privations, and the cruelties, and the misfortunes of this life if you can only get admission there. Through the blood of the everlasting covenant you go through those gates, or never go through. God forbid that you should at last be banished from the society of angels and banished from the companionship of the glorified kindred, and banished forever. Through the rich grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, may you be enabled to imitate the example of Rachel, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Deborah, and Mary, and Esther, and Vashti.

HAPPY DAYS AT MONT-LAWN.

The Glorious Fourth at the Home—New and Familiar Faces Among Our Little Guests —Cuban Children—Reformatory Influences.

OUR first happy band of children went to Mont-Lawn June 30, on the little steamer Chrystenah, which has taken them up the Hudson each year since the Home opened. They came to the Bible Home under care of the missionaries, who gathered them together from the very poorest and most overcrowded district of the city. There they were examined by the doctor, who passes all not provided with contagious diseases: then the surface cars took them to the steamer, and they enjoyed a delightful sail to Nyack, where our Mont-Lawn wagonette was waiting, and a happy ride brought them to the hospitable doors of our Children's Home. Matron Collins and her helpers stood ready to welcome them. They had them a good supper of bread and butter, oatmeal and sweet, rich milk; then took them up to the clean, cool dormitories, undressed them, have them say "Our Father," or "Now I lay me," and tucked them into their snowy cots. To many of these children who had never seen the country before, and never known what kind, womanly care and Christian love would do for a little ragged girl or boy, it was a novel and pleasing experience.

A LONELY LITTLE WAIF.

Next morning they fairly took possession of the lawn, the woods and the fields, and early evening, when the second party came up on the Chrystenah, they felt quite at home and ready to welcome the newcomers.

Those who went before the Fourth esteemed themselves fortunate. The Fourth is a day of ardent patriotism and great delight among our little tenement folks at Mont-Lawn. "Old Glory" is run up with appropriate ceremonies, in which every child takes part: patriotic hymns are sung, and in the evening the little folks have a good time with the fireworks. To some of the children, who are foreign-born, these patriotic demonstrations are object lessons whose influence is often more far-reaching than we think. A number of these Cuban exiles lent their little hands and voices this Fourth to the honor of the flag which is doing so much for their country.

Those of the children who had been at Mont-Lawn in former summers, the return was like coming back to a dear home, while the happiest—perhaps the only happy hours—of their little lives had been spent.

Great changes are wrought in children by "fresh-air days" outing, and in cases where the child has come for successive seasons, the transformation is often wonderful. The following account of two little lads, which will show that Mont-Lawn is truly their home, will interest our readers, who have been instrumental in bringing similar blessing into many little lives:

Gussie put in an early application for an outing, asking if he could not help William in the kitchen. Little Goldie has lost both parents. He was first brought to our notice by the well-known missionary, Miss Gilmore, when his mother died, at which time he was keeping house for his father. Miss Collins called to look into his case, found the little bent figure stooping over its work, and, without hesitation, invited Goldie to the Home. No fairy life could be more to that child than the four holidays he has spent in the Home. He looked very dull and heavy when he first came; was slow; thought he ought to work, and was like a little old woman. He would stand at the kitchen window, looking in so longingly that we finally invited him in, to see if he wanted something to eat before dinner. He set to work, helping William the cook, and has been William's almost inseparable companion each season since. He has a very sweet voice, and sings for the children in the chapel. When he came to us he was a little bundle of rags, and was most forlorn and untutored. He is quite neat now, his big dark eyes have lost their sad look, he has nice manners, and we think him a fine little boy.

Ernest was very rough when he first came, and nobody wanted to have anything to do with him. Kind-hearted William, who always sees good in every one of the children—"I don't know what I would do if William didn't love the children as he does," says Miss Collins—asked us to let him see if he could not do something with Ernest. So he took the child in the kitchen, and there Ernest found his place. A wonderful improvement has been noticed in him during these four seasons. Now, all the caretakers want Ernest. He is very fond of sitting in the kitchen with the big Bible story book on his knee; it is more interesting than a fairy tale to him, and he is always asking the teachers to explain some picture or story, which he wishes to understand more fully.

Another little guest, named Nellie, was very rude and uncouth—so rough that the other children shunned her. The teachers enlisted the better children in missionary work for Nellie, and they sought her out to play with and show her little kindnesses. She had a wild look when she came, and her only garment was very ragged and dirty. With her hair combed, a new suit of clothes on, good food, and unvarying kindness from those around her, Nellie seemed to put on a new dignity and gentleness. She was full of energy, and made herself quite useful, and at the end of a week every body wanted Nellie in their dormitory. When she went away it was with a very sad little face, for Nellie's home is one to which drink has brought evil looks and words, as well as crushing poverty. Our missionary, gathering in Cherry Street's wee waifs for an outing, noticed a gloomy little figure, standing all alone by some garbage barrels, watching her intently, but making no advance. The teacher recognized Nellie, who had been in her dormitory. Nellie had relapsed; harshness and suffering had made her harsh, and she was being shunned. The teacher walked straight up to her.

"Nellie, dear," she said, "I was looking for you. Will you go to the Home this summer?"

The child's answer was an outburst of tears.

There is always effort made to provide each child with a good suit of clothes, which means as much to the child and its poverty-stricken parents as the outing. Our friends, whose little folks have outgrown their garments, might like to remember this. Our children are from five to twelve years old. Matron Collins will gladly acknowledge all packages of summer garments, and these should be sent, prepaid, to The Children's Home, Nyack, New York.

Cash contributions in aid of the work will be welcomed. Three dollars will provide an outing for a tenement child, covering all the expense of doctor's examination, transportation, food and shelter during the ten days. If those of our readers who are interested in this kind Samaritan work will lend their aid, many hundreds of these poor, helpless, joyless little ones will be made better, brighter, happier and healthier, and the giver will be conscious of having obeyed the injunction of him who said: "Inasmuch as ye do it unto the least of these ye do it unto me."

There is not a more excellent work than this fresh-air charity, which brings relief to so many little children of the poor. They have no other help than that which comes from kind friends, who feel that they cannot stand by and see little children perish for the breath of fresh air, which is God's bounty to all. Our readers who have contributed to this work of mercy have a sure and present reward in the fact that they are helping little children who suffer many things through no fault of their own.

The following contributions in aid of the work at Mont-Lawn have been received during the week:

Prev. ack	$461 22	Miss Ida W Derby and friends	14 60
Unnamed, Monroe	3 00

MISS STAFFORD AND THE PAUL JONES FLAG.

The photograph also shows the sword and musket the Commander used in his battle with the Serapis, September 23, 1779. The lady wears the costume of a century ago.

Mrs Julia F Rose	1 00	Mrs S W T. Santa Rosa	2 00
Children, Hartford Co Home	1 68	Miss Tillie Herman	25
Jos D Mitchell	3 00	Mrs Jas P Hart	2 00
State School C E Soc. Trenton	9 00	Friend, Soudan	3 00
Mrs Duncan	1 00	Mrs J S Cass	50
Mrs M D Palmer	3 00	Emma & ClaraBonath	1 00
C W Charles	3 00	J P, Bklyn	2 00
Mrs Ira M Corwin	3 00	I H N AEC, Newtown	6 00
From little Frank Watson's Bank	1 00	Mrs H H Ingraham	1 00
Friend, Howard	1 00	Mrs N R Voorhees	3 00
Mrs J M Stead	1 00	Prim Dept of 1st Pres S S, Lincoln	3 00
Interested Reader, Vt	1 00	Baby Keith Burt	1 00
Friend, Eldora	5 00	Mrs L C Allen	2 00
The Lords Tenth, Hermosilla	10 00	H D Baldwin	10 00
R W Jones	2 00	S B Horton	1 00
Mrs Verda Gillogly	50	Henry Koerber	10 00
Mrs Harriet Evans	3 00	M Clute	1 00
E L Handfield	2 00	Mrs E E Bathrick	50
A Mack	1 00	A Meyerstown Friend	2 00
Wm Eicher, Hartford	10 00	Mrs F P Furnald	5 00
	50	Mrs M I Cramton	2 00
Two Sisters, Elmira	2 00	Mrs G S Nason	50
		T Bjornstad	3 00
		J T Turner	2 00
		Total	$607.25

All contributions should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York, and all will be acknowledged in these columns.

Where "Old Glory" was Made.

The Story of the Flag Which Thrills the Heart of Every True American.

THE house in which the first American flag was made is still standing in Philadelphia. It is No. 239 Arch Street, a quaint little old-fashioned building with gabled roof and dormer windows, familiarly known as the Betsy Ross House, and was erected over two centuries ago, under supervision, it is said, of William Penn, the bricks used having been brought from England in the ship Welcome. In 1776, it was the residence of Betsy Ross, widow of John Ross, an upholsterer, whose uncle, the Hon. George Ross, suggested to General Washington that his niece might be able to construct a flag from a design which the Commander-in-Chief had sketched. So, one day, Washington and the great financier, Robert Morris, came to Betsy's door, and in her little back parlor General Washington explained what he wanted, and Betsy suggested a five-pointed instead of a six-pointed star. The flag she constructed was approved, and she filled an order to fit out the American fleet in the Delaware with flags. For years she made all government flags, and at her death her daughter assumed the contract. Since the Spanish-American war began, love for the old flag, which has floated bravely over so many battlefields, has received a fresh impulse, and interest in every detail of its history has brought many inquiries into this office. To some of these questions it has been difficult to give, in the short compass which MAIL-BAG replies permit, complete answers, and we take pleasure now in publishing the following letter of information from Miss Alice D. Adams, M.A., who has made a specialty of American history, and who has kindly supplied this synopsis of correct and reliable dates and facts:

The first National American flag, consisting of thirteen stripes and a blue union with the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, was hoisted on January 1, 1776. The origin of this flag is uncertain. On June 14, 1777, a bill was passed, which went into effect on Sept. 3, 1777, changing the union to thirteen stars on a blue ground. This is the first appearance of the "stars and stripes," and the honor of having first hoisted such a flag is claimed to belong to Paul Jones, and the flag to have been made in Philadelphia. On May 1, 1795, the flag was changed again to fifteen stripes and fifteen stars, in honor of the two new States added to the original thirteen. This flag was used till 1818, when a bill regulating the flag was passed, which is still in force—thirteen stripes and a star for every State to be added on the fourth of July following its admission. A flag in accordance with this bill was hoisted over the U. S. House of Representatives on April 13th (14th), 1818.

Our picture shows Miss Harriet Percy Stafford, a descendant of Revolutionary heroes, costumed as Betsy Ross, and beside her a famous flag and other sacredly preserved relics of American patriotism.

As years pass, the nation feels that more and more reverence should be paid to the standard which history consecrates. In public schools, north, south, east and west, our children are taught to honor the flag which means:

The land shall be sacred to freedom and Thee.
With love for oppression, with blessing for scars:
One country, one banner, the stripes and the stars!

Preaching Christ in the Camps.

(Continued from first page.)

"Last night we had a great meeting in a big temperance tent, put up by Chaplain Brauer, of the Third Illinois, to fight the canteen. After being around to the different regiments we have concentrated for three nights in this tent. There were nearly 2,000 soldiers there last night and much blessing. A party of Epworth Leaguers were out from Chattanooga to form a choir; to-night the Christian Endeavorers come and to-morrow the Baptist people."

A Converted Lieutenant.

Those who ridicule the idea and underrate the importance of the good being done among the troops should read the following pathetic story just from the front. Major Whittle writes: "I called on a dying lieutenant this morning, who says he was turned to God at the first meeting held by me in the camp. I did not know about it at the time, but my heart was full of gratitude to God as this dying man's face lit up in recognition of me, and his hot hand pressed mine while he drank in 'Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out,' 'Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest,' 'Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls,' and 'Fear thou not, for I am with thee, be not dismayed, for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee; yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.' He told me that he did in his heart trust in Christ.

God Reaching the Soldiers' Hearts.

A letter has also come from Mr. Maham from Tampa, who begins:

"DEAR MR. MOODY:—You can say with all sincerity that God is reaching the soldiers." He then goes on: "Dr. Wharton has just come. We have given him a permanent place, where he can touch nearly 5,000 men in that one camp. We meet with encouragement in so many different ways that we are sure God is using the work freely. A marked evidence is the willingness of the men to help us in any and every way. We went in a hurry to Roosevelt's Rough Riders, as they are held close within the lines. Major Dunn cordially welcomed us, invited us to come often, and personally conducted us within the lines. The men entered heartily into the service, and fairly swarmed around us at the conclusion, begging us to come often. As these men cannot get away, I got one of their number to take some Testaments to them, together with some paper and envelopes. One of the men in the troop, on hearing of the distribution, remarked, I afterwards learned, 'That is the only evidence of practical Christianity I ever saw.' An officer in one regiment said, 'You are doing a great deal of good. This kind of work counts with these men.' Last night a young man waited for Dr. Wharton after the service and said, 'I wish you would pray for me. I am falling under the temptations of the camp.' Instantly Wharton's arms went round him, and we stopped there and prayed. The man cried like a child, and was forgiven, and took fresh courage. The men are eager for Testaments. We give them out by the thousands."

Evangelistic Work at Camp Alger, Va.

There are nearly 25,000 troops encamped here, twelve miles away from Washington. There are ten Y. M. C. A. tents in operation and fully manned. The attendance at each during the day varies from 500 to 1,000. There are games, newspapers, magazines and other periodicals on the tables and are read daily by thousands of soldiers. The meetings held every evening are attended by usually about 400 soldiers. Bible classes are held every Sunday afternoon under the direction of competent teachers. There is one at each tent and the enrolled attendance is about forty. Music is another great feature of the work and the organs and pianos at each tent are in constant use.

Evangelist Frank Smith is doing a fine work here. His experience as a soldier in the Civil War is valuable, and enables him to reach the men when others find it difficult. Last Mondy night a very interesting meeting was held. Mr. Smith had just closed relating his Andersonville experience when he extended an invitation to all those who wanted to begin a Christian life, to come up and take his hand. He promised to give those who did a Testament. Immediately one large, tall man walked up from the rear of the tent and took Mr. Smith's hand. As he did so his comrades gave him three cheers. Forty-nine others followed his example.

Touched by a Gospel Hymn.

Another interesting incident occured the other night at a meeting in one of the tents. The closing hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers," was being sung. In the middle of the audience there a young man who began to weep. After the meeting was dismissed this young man stepped up to the leader and said that he wanted to become a Christian. He said that the words of the last hymn reminded him of his mother's last words, "Jack, above all remember your Creator?" He gave his heart to God and asked to pray. He withdrew into one of the small tents with one of the workers and prayers were offered. The next morning the young man received a letter from a lady out West. She wrote in reply to a small note handed to her by him as the latter was passing through the town. He said that while his regiment was passing through this town the boys wrote short notes to young ladies who were at the depot to see them off. In these notes the boys gave their addresses and asked for correspondence. In reply to the one handed her by this young man she said that she would not write to a stranger, but that as he was a soldier boy she would. She said that she had just returned from an Epworth League Convention held in an adjoining town. In closing she wrote these words: "Remember the Maine, but above all remember your Saviour, who is able to protect and bring you safe home to your loved ones again." It is enough to say that this innocent letter served to encourage the young man in his new life.

Christian Work at Camp Cuba Libre.

Union evangelistic services are very popular with the volunteers. The services are held in an open shed on the site of the old base-ball ground, and here, nightly, assemble the boys of the Fourth Illinois, Second Virginia, First North Carolina, Second New Jersey and Fiftieth Iowa.

The Women's Christian Temperance Union have put up a tent on the grounds, and are supplying the soldiers with books, newspapers, stationery and writing facilities. Two of their number are selected from different churches to take charge of this work. The guardian angel of the Second Illinois Camp is Mrs. Moulton, wife of Col. Moulton. She makes herself a blessing to the boys by mending their clothing, sympathizing with them where sympathy is needed, and advising where advice is welcome. She originated the system of a circulating library of books and magazines, passing this much needed reading matter from camp to camp.

Gen. Lee has just ordered this important notice to be posted in all camps:

ACCORDING TO SECTION 272 OF THE POSTAL LAWS, ANY SOLDIER MAY POST LETTERS WITHOUT ATTACHING A STAMP AND THE POSTAGE WILL BE COLLECTED AT THE DESTINATION. THE WORDS "SOLDIER'S LETTER" MUST BE WRITTEN PLAINLY IN THE UPPER RIGHT-HAND CORNER, AND A COMMISSIONED OFFICER MUST SIGN HIS NAME THEREUNDER.

The practical and patriotic interest displayed by the ladies of Jacksonville in our soldiers is refreshing. Bands of these "ministering angels" start out from their homes every morning. I see them scattered all over the camp, smiling and chatting with the soldiers, learning their needs and supplying everything as far as their means will allow. Here is the wife of the President of a Florida railroad, teaching the volunteer cooks how to fry bacon. There the wife of the hotel proprietor is comforting a homesick boy-trumpeter in the camp of the Fiftieth Iowa—the youngest soldier in camp, age sixteen. Here is a group of ladies from Jacksonville's leading church distributing spools of cotton, needles, beeswax, court-plaster, collodium, and homely medicines.

With a due regard for both the physical and the spiritual sides of a soldier's life, with the kindness and hospitality of the city, with the eyes of 20,000 home folks upon them, the boys in Camp Cuba Libre are certainly as cheerful, happy and healthful a lot as one could wish to see.

GILSON WILLETS.

PARTIAL VIEW OF THE CITY AND HARBOR OF SANTIAGO.

The following have been received for the Army Gospel Fund.

Prev. ack	$1052 56
Burnhaur, S C	2 00
Charles, C W	2 00
Craven, Clara	9 00
Davies, Mrs.& friends	2 00
Ellis E L	3 00
Furnald, F P	5 00
Goodpastor, Mrs T	1 00
Hargrave, Russell W.	5 00
Hauser, B	1 00
Hubbard, H and A	3 00
Kang, Miss Carol	50
Ladd, Marie S	1 00
Lewis, Mrs E A	1 00
McAlpine, Jas B	2 00
McGill, Wm, and Mr Mrs E B Stewart	3 00
McGorin, S J	3 00
Marsh, Mrs W T	1 00
Matthews, Mr A	1 00
Maynard, L	50
Merrick, Lonella	1 00
Myer, E J and G V	1 15
Myers, Mrs T R	2 00
Orne, John H	1 00
Pullen, T S	1 00
Storer, Mrs C J	50
Storer, Saml	2 00
Turner, J T	4 24
Vrooman, Mrs H & daughter	2 00
Wilkes, B G	50
Williams, John	1 00
Wright, A M	2 00
A H T, White	1 00
D J H, New York	1 00
S J G, Red Cloud	1 00
S T, ——	2 00
W O P, Worcester	50
Widow's Mite, Greenland	1 00
Widow, Pawtucket	1 00
The Lord's Tenth, Hermosilla	10 00
——, Concordia	7 00
——, Gettsburg	2 00
——, Beverly	40
Friend, Patterson	3 00
" Cuba	50
" Soudan	3 00
A Myerstown Friend	2 00
Friends, Bismarck	1 00
H N, Newmarket	2 00
In Jesus Name, Parma	2 00
Bapt Young People's Union, Hingham	3 00
Total	$1209 85

All contributions will be acknowledged in these columns.

PROGRESS OF THE WAI

The American Advance in Eastern Cu— Santiago Completely Invested — F ce Prospects Brightening.

EVER since the landing of our y of invasion at Baiquiri, on e Cuban coast, fighting with e enemy has continued without n termission, and many br e Americans have fallen. Alth gh success has attended every moveme of the American troops, the week has en the saddest since the war opened, n marked by the loss of many pre us lives and the saddening of many h es, whose dear ones only lately left fo e front, full of health and in the hope early return.

After landing, Gen. Shafter's t ps and their Cuban allies under Gens cia and Castello, successively cap and occupied Demajayabo, Juragu Firmeza, driving the Spaniards l them as far as Sevilla, where the e under Gen. Linares, had consti strong defences and decided to m stand against the army of invasion villa is only a few miles east of San In the van of the American arm a body of troopers of the First and Regular Cavalry and the famous co "Rough Riders," with Col. Woo Lieut.-Col. Roosevelt each in con of a small detachment of the corps. They were ambus by a large party of Spanish try, the enemy being concea a dense thicket, near Quasin the Americans only succeede a hot two hours' fight and w aid of reinforcements, in the Spaniards from their po Sixteen of our soldiers wer ed and thirty-six injured, mortally, while nine were ed missing. Among the were Captain Allyn K. and Sergeant Hamilton Fi of the "Rough Riders." Th of this unfortunate occurre which is said to have been sult of a movement unauth by the commanding general ed general sorrow.

Contrary to expectations, t my made no stand at Sevilla they deserted, and on Sa Gen. Chaffee's brigade oc the place, which was made tary headquarters.

Attacking Santiago s n neously by land and sea, its is assured, but it will not be plished without heavy sac Gen. Linares has 12,000 posted to advantage in a l of defences, and these will re forced by 2,000 marines fr vera's ships. To oppose the Shafter has fully 20,000 men ing 4,000 Cuban allies. To t of Santiago, Garcia has a erable force of Cubans, who vent the Spanish Gen. Pan effecting a junction with Linares' Eighteen thousand additional are to be sent to Gen. Shafter fr West. As soon as Santiago f army will embark for Porto Rico, in the Cuban stronghold a larg son of Cubans.

Admiral Camara's Spanish squ at last fairly en route to Manila Suez Canal. As a counter-movem now proposed to send an America squadron to the Spanish coast.

Indications of an early end to are multiplying. The Spanish pres almost a unit for peace and the may soon be driven, by public to open peace negotiations with ernment. In nearly all the E capitals, the sentiment favoring steadily growing. It is generally that Spain cannot much longer as domestic political upheaval whi been impending for weeks; even Sagasta may be swept into th current, in obedience to the publ for a cessation of the conflict ruining the country. In Berlin, even talk of the terms upon whic will sue for peace, and it is s will consent to Cuban independ Philippine pretectorate, the loss Rico and the cession of a coaling in the Canaries. On the whole, t there is reason to hope that the the war may not be far off.

Army Farewell Scenes at "Camp Cuba Libre," Jacksonville, Fla.

1 Writing last letters to the home folks before embarkation.—2. The Big Gospel Tent at Camp Cuba Libre.—3. The 2d New Jersey Regiment at Sunday dinner after service. 4. Chaplain Jones in his tent.—5. The Chief of the Commissariat at Cuba Libre.—6. Enlisted men "cleaning up" before service.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.
T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.
B. J. FERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas, and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post office at New York, as Second class Matter

The India Famine Fund.

THE statement of the India Famine Relief Fund which occupied this page last week, affords ground for mutual congratulation. THE CHRISTIAN HERALD highly values its association with the worthy people who read its pages and who so nobly contributed for the relief of the sufferers from the appalling calamity which desolated India last year. Never before in the history of journalism have the readers of one religious journal given so magnificent a sum for so Christ-like a purpose. It has been a rare object-lesson to the whole world of the power of Christ's spirit living and working in the hearts of his followers of this generation.

Our readers were informed from time to time of the methods by which their generous gifts were distributed As may be seen by the statement of the account, the utmost care was taken to avoid expense in administration. The American missionaries who were laboring in India, generously co-operated with us and cheerfully undertook free of all charge the arduous labor of feeding the starving people around them. As their needs were urgent, and the mail takes a month to reach India, it was necessary to send them the money by cable. This was an expensive process, but no part of the cost was charged to the fund. In several instances the missionary boards in this country bore the expense, and when they were unable to do so, the proprietor of this journal defrayed it, so as to remit to India intact, the money contributed for the relief of the starving people. The costs, therefore, of administering this unprecedented charity were limited to the actual necessary payments for labor and material used in the extensive work. Never before has relief on so large a scale been collected and given to the beneficiaries, with so infinitesimal an outlay.

It will be especially gratifying to our readers to find that the beneficent work they have done is to be continued over an extended period. In response to the urgent appeals for help which have come from missionaries who during the famine undertook the care of orphans, and have not sufficient funds to continue their support, it has been decided to aid them in the critical period of the next three years. The following letter which has been sent to each of the twenty two missionaries whose names were published in our statement last week, will gladden their hearts and relieve their anxieties:

DEAR FRIEND: We have heard with much pleasure of the great and good work which you are doing among the famine orphans of India. The report of it is as ointment poured forth, fragrant and full of sweetness, and we are glad, in behalf of the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, of an opportunity to take an additional share in this blessed labor of love.

Acting on the advice of Bishop J. M. Thoburn and other missionaries, we have combined the belated contributions to the Indian Famine Relief Fund, received at this office, and the $13,000 recently received from several of the railroad companies of the United States, who generously undertook to refund the whole or part of the freight moneys paid to them for the transportation of grain donated last year for the relief of the starving people of India, and this combined fund we have now apportioned among those missionaries who have undertaken to shelter, care for and educate the thousands of homeless and helpless orphans, who, but for such assistance, must have shared the terrible fate of their parents. We enclose a check for the first quarter in advance, and the same amount will be sent you regularly every three months during the next three years.

We heartily appreciate the Christ-like work you are doing in caring for these helpless waifs, and pray that God will bless your efforts in their behalf to their temporal and eternal welfare.

Faithfully yours, LOUIS KLOPSCH.

Thus the Famine Fund will have far-reaching results. In the years to come, many a native Christian teacher will be telling in the villages of India the good news of the Gospel of Christ, having learned the lesson while an orphan under the care of a missionary, who was enabled to do the good work through the help rendered him by the Christian people of America.

The New Cuba.

CUBA is not only to be free; she is to be renewed after the pattern shown her and shown the world, in the United States. She is to have free schools and free churches, as well as the free ballot. This we may depend upon President McKinley to secure.

All things mediæval are to be shed, as the reptiles shed their skins. Many people think it will be a hard thing to accomplish. But the open Bible, free intercourse, commercial and social, with Americans will insure it. There is nothing so mighty in its transforming power as the exercise of self-government. That the Cubans want self-government, are willing to make sacrifices for it, they have abundantly shown. Their aspirations and struggles show their fitness for it. Once give them a chance to form their own institutions, and their generous climate and great commercial possibilities will make their future certain. This country, indeed, will derive great commercial advantage from the change.

When Cuba shall have become a republic, shall have risen from Spain's centuries of oppression, shall begin to make her own laws and establish international relations, Americans will go there and take part in her new national life, and the world will wonder that the regeneration was permitted to delay so long.

Triumphs of Rum.

TWO houses.—I sketch two houses. The first is bright as home can be. The father comes at nightfall, and the children run out to meet him. Luxuriant evening meal, gratulation, and sympathy, and laughter. Music in the parlor. Fine pictures on the wall. Costly books on the stand. Well-clad household. Plenty of everything to make home happy. House the second.—Piano sold yesterday by the sheriff. Wife's furs at pawnbroker's shop. Clock gone. Daughter's jewelry sold to get flour. Carpets gone off the floor. Daughters in faded and patched dresses. Wife sewing for the stores. Little child with an ugly wound on her face, struck in an angry blow. Deep shadow of wretchedness falling in every room. Door-bell rings. Little children hide. Daughters turn pale. Wife holds her breath. Blundering steps in the hall. Door opens. Fiend, brandishing his fist, cries—"Out! Out! What are you doing here!" Did I call this house the second? No; it is the same house. Rum transformed it. Rum imbruted the man. Rum sold the shawl. Rum desolated the hearth. Rum changed that paradise into a hell!

Two men.—I sketch two men that you know very well. The first graduated from one of our literary institutions. His father, mother, brothers, and sisters were present to see him graduate. They heard the applauding thunders that greeted his speech. They saw the bouquets tossed to his feet. They saw the degree conferred and the diploma given. He never looked so well. Everybody said, "What a noble brow! What a fine eye! What graceful manners! What brilliant prospects!" All the world opens before him and cries, "Hurrah! hurrah!" Man the second.—Lies in the station-house to-night. The doctor has just been sent for to bind up the gashes received in a fight. His hair is matted and makes him look like a wild beast. His lip is bloody and cut. Who is the battered and bruised wretch that was picked up by the police, and carried in drunk, and foul, and bleeding? Did I call him man the second? He is man the first! Rum transformed him. Rum destroyed his prospects. Rum disappointed parental expectation. Rum withered those garlands of commencement day. Rum cut his lip. Rum dashed out his manhood.

The Greatest Bible Offer Ever Made to Sunday School Teachers.

THE ONLY GENUINE
London Art Bible

852 Magnificent Original Half-Tone Engravings... Large Type, Divinity Circuit, Red Under Gold...

FOR Only $1.00 DOWN

Last year we purchased a special edition of 25,000 London Art Bibles, printed from new plates, extra large type, and containing 852 beautiful half-tone engravings. Theretofore these Bibles had been sold exclusively by subscription at Twelve Dollars each. This unprecedentedly large order, combined with prompt cash settlement, enabled us to offer these Bibles with Thumb Index at Five Dollars each, and we sold an enormous quantity. Part of the edition was made up without the Thumb Index—in fact, many people prefer them so—and now we are closing out this lot at the exceptionally low figure of Three Dollars each—One Dollar down, and One Dollar a month for only two months. There were only 800 of that kind, but recently more than half were sold, and now we wish to dispose of a little more than 300 of them to make room for our new premiums, and therefore we are willing to sell them at this great sacrifice.

We do not pay expressage unless you send the whole $3 with the order.

Remember these Bibles are in extra large type, containing 852 beautiful engravings, are richly bound in American Levant, Divinity Circuit, red under gold edges, and sent securely packed, guaranteed to arrive in first-class condition.

We cannot supply any more of these Bibles with the Thumb Index, as our edition is entirely exhausted.

After ten days, if not fully satisfied, send the Bible back, and we will refund your money.

No Sunday School teacher can afford to be without one of these beautiful Bibles, no matter how many other Bibles he may possess.

The London Art Bible is a perfect gem, and you will never regret having purchased one. Remember, you only pay one dollar down, and one dollar a month for two months, but if you send the whole three dollars with the order, we prepay all charges. Only three hundred or so left. Order at once, or you may be too late.

The Christian Herald Book Dept.
92 - 104 Bible House, N. Y.

BRIEF NOTES.

Our new "War Testament," beauti printed and bound, and of a shape to carry i vest-pocket, is now ready. They are intende our "boys in blue" at the front or in camp, an doubtless be read, in the quiet moments of life, by many thousands. Ten of these Testaments will be forwarded to any addres $1, or for that sum we will send them direct camps, as the gift of the reader contributin amount.

In India there is one ordained missio to every 300,000 inhabitants; in America the 500 to the same number.

Chancellor MacCracken announces th anonymous friend has offered a gift of $50,0 the productive endowment fund of New University.

The Jesuits are said to number at the ent time 14,251. Of these, 2,700 are in Ger 2,070 in Spain; 2,322 in France; 1809 in En and the remainder scattered in small numb various lands.

The Bible in English and the Bible i nese will, says the Missionary Review, supp half the human race with the word of God the other half it is necessary to print it in guages and dialects.

The new Guide to the City of Gl shows that the city with its suburbs, measu miles in length by five miles in width, po 140 miles of streets, and about 162,000 in houses, sheltering a population of 685,988.

The number of new Christian En Societies added to the British Union duri past year was 927. The aggregate member now 215,000. The first World's Conventio be held in 1900 in the Crystal Palace, Londo

The friends of Mount Holyoke Colle be glad to learn that of the $150,000 which raised to secure the $50,000 promised by Dr sons, $120,000 has already been paid into th ury in cash, leaving only $30,000 remainin raised.

Dr. Newman Hall recently celebrat eighty-second birthday, which this year fe Sunday, by preaching twice to enormous co tions, and giving an address at a Sunday Dr. Hall retains the full power of his voice, mental vigor is unimpaired.

Bishop Earl Cranston, of the Me Episcopal Church, has sailed from Van British Columbia, for an episcopal visit to Corea and China. He expects to visit the ences and missions of the Methodist E Church in those countries.

Eugene Young, son of the late B Young, declares that the Mormon Churc in control of every department of governi Utah, except the judiciary, and that its is decisive in the nominating conventions o Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

The Salvation Army in Canada h invited to send an officer to conduct mee the Central Prison and the Mercer Refor Toronto. The secretary for social work women has also been asked to lead a meeting monthly amongst the girls in the Reformatory.

The Yearly Meeting of the Soc Friends has just published an enumeratio several quarterly meetings, which shows membership of 11,698. The last previous tion was that of the census of 1890, which 12,029 members. According to this, there a loss in the period of 331.

Interesting services were held rec the Assembly Room at the Presbyterian Fifth Avenue, New York. About thirty women, who are going out as missio China, India, Corea, Persia and Colom together for three days for fellowship and addresses by the officers of the soc several prominent ministers.

Bishop Thoburn says that in India longer necessary to go to the jungles t quirers. In many parts of India thous manifesting a practical interest in the Ch ligion. Thirty years ago the great diffi to find converts who desired instruction. enough Christian teachers can not be fou struct the applicants for baptism."

The Missionary Boards are prepa work in the Philippine Islands in the ever way being opened by the victory of Dewey. Should they become an America sion or be turned over to any toleran Christian work will be commenced at on representatives of the American Board, th dist, Baptist and Presbyterian Societies sulted together to insure co-operation.

The Training School in Springfiel has just graduated nineteen men for wo Young Men's Christian Association. Of teen, thirteen are to be general secreta physical instructors and two education tors. One is to work in Berlin, German among the Dakota Indians, another goes Scotia, while the rest take work in variou the United States. Thirteen men, most graduates, have gone out to do army wor

One lady who decided to give money to the cause of missions on accou luxury and extravagance of missionaries, by the Missionary Herald. Her re that she had seen the photograph of th a missionary in Japan, which was an building covered with beautiful vines. A time, representations were being ma owners, of the necessity of rebuilding as it was erected of mud and the wall customed to fall in great pieces several whenever it rained heavily.

The Triennial Council of the Congr Churches of the United States asse week at Portland, Ore. Dr. A. J. Lym South Church, Brooklyn, preaches the mon on July 10. It is expected that at th final arrangements will be made for a the Christian Connection, which has a m of about 100,000 wholly in the West. very different organization from that of tians or Disciples, with which it is often The Council will also make arrangemen International Council, which is to be held Mass., next year.

PRESIDENT KRUGER ILL.

A CABLE dispatch from Cape Town, in South Africa, reports the critical condition of the venerable President of the Transvaal, Paul Kruger. So serious was his condition at the time the dispatch left, that even his private friends were not allowed access to his sick room and the gravest fears were entertained of the issue of his illness. President Kruger's years—he is now seventy-three—render his recovery doubtful, but the wonderful old man has so many times survived attacks which were believed to be fatal, that he may disappoint his enemies again. It was only on May 14 that he was inaugurated for the fourth time President of the Transvaal for five years. The scene in Pretoria when his procession was on its way to the Raadzaal for the ceremony, is depicted in the illustration on this page. His death at this time would be deplored throughout the Transvaal. Probably no man not excepting Dr. Leyds himself, is so implicitly trusted by the Boers as Kruger, both as to his ability and fidelity. They were expecting that "Uncle Paul," as he is affectionately called, would signalize this term by finally delivering his country from the bondage of England. The controversy has already reached an advanced stage, and has been conducted by Kruger with all his old-time skill and dexterity. It turns on the question whether the preamble of the Convention of 1881, which acknowledges the suzerainty of England, remains in force. Mr. Chamberlain, on the part of England, contends that the Convention of 1884, merely changed certain articles of the Convention of 1881, and left the other parts still valid and operative. Dr. Leyds, on the part of Mr. Kruger's government, contends that the Convention of 1884 cancelled the whole of the Convention of 1881 and that England has no rights, but such as are conceded to her in the later instrument. As England does not claim any right to interfere in the internal affairs of the Transvaal it does not seem that the question is one of vital importance, and as suzerainty involves protection, it may be that England will eventually see that it is to her interest to yield the point, to escape the responsibility for the other. At present, however, England is charging the Boers with ingratitude and reminding them that if she had not protected them from the power of their old enemy, the Zulus, they would not be so eager to shake off the protectorate of England. Whether this charge be well grounded or not, we know that that disposition is common, and that, unhappily, it is sometimes manifest toward God. When a man is at ease and is prosperous and has no fear of calamity, he is apt to forget past deliverance. Israel's ancient prophets had frequent occasion to utter the reproach:

They were filled and their heart was exalted; therefore have they forgotten me (Hos. 13:6).

PROCESSION AT PRETORIA IN THE TRANSVAAL, AT PRESIDENT KRUGER'S FOURTH INAUGURATION.

Slow Poisoning.

A official document, recently issued, calls attention to a danger menacing the community. Referring to the practice of coloring substitutes for butter with aniline dyes, it urges legislatures to make it an offense to color foods with aniline dye, unless the purchaser is informed of the fact. Investigation shows, however, that the quantity of the poison taken in the consumption of any one ordinary colored article is most minute, so that in few cases could really decided symptoms be produced; on the other hand, when sugar, butter, milk, cream, sausages, candies and a number of other things all have a small trace of aniline, these traces in a day become large. Observation and experiment have shown that the aniline dyes in small doses interfere with digestion—indeed, scientific opinion is that the increase of maladies of the digestive organs is in part due to the increasing use of the aniline dyes in food products. Similar mischief is done to the soul by sins that we call small, but which in the aggregate are destructive.

The motions of sins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death (Rom. 7:5).

A Professor's Revenge.

Genuine surprise has been caused by the arrest at Duncannon, Pa., of a man who was formerly a professor in Lafayette College at Easton, Pa. He was adjunct professor of moral philosophy a year ago, but was dismissed owing to a disagreement with the President. Since then the gardens and buildings have been injured in a mysterious way. Rare vines were cut, beautiful marble frescoes were daubed with tar, and finally one of the finest buildings in the college was wilfully burned. Several young students were suspected, but happily were able to prove their innocence. At last suspicion was turned to the discharged professor and he was arrested. He admitted that he had committed the outrages and said he had planned others which he meant to execute. He had brooded so long on the wrong which he considered the President had done him, that his mind became unbalanced and the impulse to destroy was uncontrollable. That is doubtless true, but it does not excuse him. A man so well educated as he must have known the consequences of cherishing evil thoughts.

Deliver me, O Lord, from the evil man; preserve me from the violent man which imagines mischief in his heart (Ps. 140:1).

An Ingenious Fraud.

The Appellate term of the Supreme Court gave judgment last week in a remarkable suit. It had been brought in the lower court by a merchant in New York to recover the value of certain goods which he claimed to have shipped by the United States Express Company. He was a regular customer of the Company and had been supplied with the usual signal card which he exposed when he had a shipment to make. On the occasion in question he hung out the card and shortly afterward, a man wearing a cap on which was displayed the metal badge of the Company, entered the warehouse, took the package and signed a receipt for it. But the goods were never received by the consignee and when the merchant complained, the Company denied ever receiving them. The merchant, thereupon brought suit. He admitted that it was possible that some dishonest person may have obtained the badge of the Company and have personated one of their employees as the Company claimed, but he held the Company liable for the loss. The courts now, however, have decided that it is not responsible, as it has no person in its employ of the name that the messenger placed on the receipt. The merchant, therefore has to bear the loss. It would appear that it is not safe to assume that a man wearing the badge of an express company is in its employ. Merchants will therefore probably be more careful in future as to the identity of the men to whom they intrust their shipments. Unhappily the same care needs to be exercised in respect to men professing to be the Lord's servants. There are some who wear the badge, who are not sent by him and are not to be trusted.

There were false prophets among the people even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord who bought them, and many shall follow their pernicious ways, by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of. (II. Peter 2: 1).

A Wonderful Lamp.

The new light acquired by the Lighthouse Board of the Washington government appears, by the description of it in a scientific journal, to be a triumph of ingenuity. It says: "Experiments that have resulted in bringing to a high degree of perfection certain features of the great light projector, will give to it a prominence unequalled by anything of the kind on the American coast. The light has an enormous valve lens, nine feet in diameter, capable of illuminating an object one hundred miles off, besides throwing its reflection on the clouds, so as to be seen at a much greater distance. As the lamps have interchangeable carbons of different sizes, the light can be varied in intensity according to the condition of the atmosphere. Carbons of one inch diameter give a power of 8,000 to 10,000 candles; the light, in this case, is gathered in a nine-foot beam, which has an estimated intensity of nearly a hundred million candles. How valuable such a light will be, only mariners can understand. But every one can see that its value will be determined by the heed that is paid to it. God has given us a light in his Word sufficient to save men from spiritual wreck, but the wrecks continue because it is not heeded.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path (Ps. 119:105).

Suit to Break Five Marriages.

A remarkable divorce case is before a court in New York. The parties to the case were married at Camden, N. J., in 1883. Both had been married before and divorced. Subsequently, the husband having heard that his former wife was dead, thought it might remove any doubt as to the legality of his second marriage if the ceremony was performed again. They were therefore remarried in New York. News reached them afterwards that the wife's former husband was dead, and acting on the same principle they were married a third time. About a year afterwards the husband's father died in England, leaving property to his grandchildren, and in order to comply with the conditions of the will the couple went to England and were married again according to the forms of the English church. During their stay in that country they took a tour into Scotland, and on their way visited Gretna Green, the famous scene of runaway marriages. There, by way of amusement, the marriage ceremony was performed between them for the fifth time. Now the wife is suing for divorce, and if she can prove her allegations she will get it in spite of the unusual number of times the marriage ceremony was performed. It is strange that a man so anxious as to the validity of his marriage as to have the ceremony repeated so often, should not have been more careful as to his conduct. But people often act so as to their religion. They worry about their conversion, and whether they were properly baptized and joined the right denomination, instead of being concerned about a consistent life and fidelity to their Lord.

By their fruits ye shall know them (Matt. 7:20).

A Dual Personality.

One of the most extraordinary psychological cases on record involving a long-sustained duality was described recently to a reporter of the New York Herald by Dr. Goodhart, a physician of New York. It was that of a young clergyman of Connecticut who has been for several months under Dr. Goodhart's care. In April of last year he was injured in a carriage accident, and though he speedily recovered his physical health, his mental condition was that of absolute wreck. Previous to the accident he had been an accomplished scholar, familiar with Latin, Greek and Hebrew classics, and an impassioned pulpit orator. After the accident he was unable even to write his own name or to recognize the letters of the alphabet. He did not know his parents nor even the lady to whom he was engaged. The whole of his former life was an absolute blank to him, and he was in all respects like an infant in his mental power. Gradually and painfully he was taught to read and write, but even then, the books placed in his hands were incomprehensible to him. Like a child he toiled through the primer, and learned again the rudiments of education. But one day he had a dream that puzzled him. He related it to his father and the father at once perceived that his strangely afflicted son had, in his sleep resumed his former personality. He tried to explain it to his son but could not make him understand. A few days later for a few brief moments the young man became conscious of his former life, but quickly relapsed into his childish condition. Again there came, after a long interval, another brief period of restored memory, and it was then found that while in this condition he could remember everything previous to the accident, but nothing that occurred since. So for several weeks he has been living alternate existences, but gradually under careful treatment, the periods of normal consciousness have lengthened, until now they have become continuous, and the whole period of his childish life is completely lost to his memory, and he has recovered the learning and accomplishments which had been lost to him. Physicians say that there is no record of so complete a case of dual personality and they are studying the case in the hope of gaining light from it on psychological problems. Ministers and Christian workers, however, are familiar with changes still more wonderful, in which the disposition of a man has been suddenly changed so completely that he is really like one born again and is in all respects a new man.

This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark (Phil. 3:13).

The Sunday School

ELIJAH ON CARMEL.

S. S. Lesson for July 17. I. Kings. 18: 30-40. Golden Text, I. Kings 18: 39.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

ELIJAH'S assertion that he stood before the living Lord God of Israel had been amply verified. Test after test had found him dealing with God; brought under the power of neither men nor circumstances, nor yet the needs of his own body; in all he recognized and trusted his God. The presence of the king, the danger of death by starvation, the presence of death itself placed no limits to his faith in God. He, as Almighty was in Elijah's eyes greater than all. In the secret of his communion with God the prophet had prayed that it might not rain (James 5:17). For three years and a half no rain had fallen, and King Ahab must know that in Israel there was a man who stood before the Lord, and from that place of power could do what neither king nor princes could either do or withstand. All Israel were under the blast of judgment in answer to that one man's prayers. And now God said to him: "Go show thyself unto Ahab and I will send rain upon the earth."

"And Elijah went to show himself to Ahab." To human eyes this meant that he went into the jaws of death, but the presence of God annihilates all fear but the fear of grieving him. Thus, while Ahab and his God-fearing minister, Obadiah, were taking a survey of the land, that every spot where grass was to be found might be utilized in keeping alive all the horses that remained, God and his servant were speaking of deliverance. Why did not the stubborn heart of the king bow down before God in brokenness and confession that his sin had brought this judgment upon the land?

In the midst of his survey, Obadiah came across Elijah. Once before he had seen this man, and heard his bold word to the king. Now he knew him, and fell upon his face, saying: "Is it thou, my lord, Elijah?" (R. V.). "It is I; go tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here." Terror filled the heart of the man, who feared God more than he knew him. At court he had a good opportunity to know that Elijah was dreaded as the greatest enemy of the king and of the land, and he disclosed to Elijah the search that had been made for him, even into other lands and the price that had been set upon his head. But instead of urging Elijah to flee for his life, the poor cowardly man thinks only of his own supposed danger, and gives the rein to his imagination, that so soon as he has told Ahab that Elijah is discovered, the Spirit of the Lord will carry the prophet away, and that he himself will lose his head. But Elijah had no fear: "As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whom I stand I will surely show myself unto him to-day."

To Ahab Elijah said, "The Lord God of Israel before whom I stand;" to Obadiah "The Lord God of hosts." The king was accountable for Israel, God's people. Obadiah must know that God had hosts at his command. So Obadiah went to meet Ahab and told him, and Ahab went to meet Elijah and accosted him with the words, "Is it thou, thou troubler of Israel?" "I have not troubled Israel, but thou and thy father's house in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed the Baalim. Now therefore send and gather to me all Israel unto Mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty and the prophets of the Asherah [or groves] four hundred which eat at Jezebel's table. And the king did so. There was more than regal power in the presence in which Elijah stood, and Ahab sank to the level of a servant before it and obeyed.

Now was the moment for God and for Elijah. In the presence of the people the king had obeyed the orders of the prophet who stood in the presence of a Greater than he, and Elijah was in a position to deal with the people. He "came near to them." One secret of soul-winning is to get near to the people. And he said, "How long halt ye between two opinions; if the Lord be God, follow him, but if Baal, then follow him." The people were not yet free. "They answered him not a word." Things must go farther yet, a crisis must come. So Elijah challenges the false prophets, "You four hundred and fifty men put your God to a test; and I, one man alone, will put my God to a test, and the God that answereth by fire let him be God." And from one end of that vast assembly to the other the unanimous word arose, "It is well spoken." Now God was on Elijah's side and the people also.

"Choose you one bullock for yourselves and dress it first," he said to the prophets of Baal, "for ye are many, and call upon the name of your God, but put no fire under." And the infatuated men did so, and called upon the name of Baal from morning until noon: "O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice nor any that answered." The prophets were earnest enough; they leaped up and down at the altar (margin), and in spite of Elijah's mocking words: "Cry aloud for he is a god; either he is musing, or he is gone aside, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth and must be awaked" (R. V.). They went on "crying and cutting themselves with knives and lances till the blood gushed out." But all was in vain, there was none to answer, for Baal's cause was proved a failure.

Elijah, filled with the presence of his God, had been able to wait till last; his cause was a sure one. Now he said to all the people, "Come near unto me." And they came near. And then taking twelve stones to represent the twelve tribes of Israel, he built an altar with them to signify God's claim upon every tribe, and how neither Baal nor themselves had a right to them; they were his redeemed people.

MOUNT CARMEL, THE TRADITIONAL SCENE OF ELIJAH'S SACRIFICE.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

ONE of the most dramatic scenes in Old Testament history is this on Mount Carmel. Elijah was determined to make a solemn appeal to the people on this subject of the worship of Baal. Gradually the Tyrian queen was spreading her vile idolatrous worship throughout the country, and people who wished to stand well with the court, and people whose foul passions were gratified by the degrading orgies of the new religion were drifting away from Jehovah. Unless some bold servant of God stood up and made a direct challenge the whole nation would become idolatrous. The famine had been sent to bring the people to reflection. As soon as he judged that it had done its work, Elijah emerged from his hiding-place and boldly demanded of Ahab the summoning of a national council. The King must still have held Elijah in respect, otherwise he would have killed him, instead of obeying him. The council was summoned, and Carmel was chosen as an appropriate meeting-place. It is a ridge of rock, rising to a height of 1,600 feet at its eastern extremity and sloping toward the west to 600 feet. At one part there is a level plateau about 1,000 feet high, which was probably the scene of the meeting. There Elijah made his solemn appeal to the people, to which there appears to have been no answer. Then he proposed a test, the fairness of which was obvious to all and which the prophets of Baal could not decline.

Let it be known. The test was skil[fully] chosen. Baal was the sun god, so, a[s the] people must perceive, if he had any p[ower] at all, he must be able to send fire [which] was quite in his department. It was [not] that was needed, but Elijah was co[ntent] to give all the advantage to his rivals [and] therefore proposed the test of fire. [The] reproach is frequently brought ag[ainst] Christians in these days that they [do] not propose such a test. One fa[mous] preacher against whom it was bro[ught] answered: "My Master expressly [for]bidden the test when his disciples [sug]gested it. You are in danger of h[aving] more fire than you desire, but I will [give] you another test. Find me ten men [saved] through infidelity, have been turned [from] wickedness to virtue. I will find [hun]dreds who were nuisances to their [neigh]bors and a curse to their families, dru[nkards] vicious, gamblers who, through [Chris]tianity have become peaceable, resp[ectable] citizens, and are living clean, re[spectable] lives. If you want a test by re[sults] there you have it. No power kno[wn] men can change the human heart [which] here are hearts and lives which [have] been changed and I am therefore jus[tified] in claiming that the power whic[h has] changed them is supernatural.

He Repaired the Altar of the Lord. The question will nat[urally] be asked, whether Elijah could [have] read the Pentateuch at this [time]. The prohibitions of sacrific[ing] "high places" are so very e[xplicit] (see Deuteronomy 12:1-6, and [other] passages) that we are forced [to the] conclusion that he did not [know] of them. Perhaps in the no[rthern] kingdom, at that time, no c[opy of] the book existed. If so, the [character] of Elijah is all the m[ore] remarkable. The fact that G[od] answered his prayer is a sure [proof] that his act had the divine [approbation], and shows how much [more] acceptable in the sight of G[od] the faith that trusts him [fully] than is any observance of rit[es and] ceremonies. Many a man, [blind] to perceive this fact, has be[en] distressed by formalists, who ha[ve] him that unless he belon[gs] some particular church, or [has] observed some particular rite, h[e] not be saved, but the case of [Naaman] shows what God really does r[equire] and how pleased he is with t[he] ice of the spirit, even when i[t is] companied by unconscious [vio]dience of the letter of the l[aw]. famous author describes the [exa]ination of a candidate for [church] membership. One of the [church] officials asked her many qu[estions] which, being an ignorant [woman] she could not answer. She [knew] nothing about predestinat[ion], election, or final persevera[nce], the second blessing, and, [finally] as she saw that she was m[aking a] bad impression on her exa[miners] she broke down in a flood [of tears]. "I see I am too ignorant," s[aid] "to go to the Lord's table, a[nd I'm] very sorry, for it was his ow[n wish] and I would like to have do[ne it], I love him so much." The [minis]ter, who was present, mov[ed that] she be admitted, and said [she] has the essentials. I wish we all had [more] a ground as she for sitting at his t[able].

The fire of the Lord fell. The [answer] to Elijah's prayer was unmistaka[ble]. could be seen not only by the peop[le] ent on the mountain, but for a [radius] of twenty miles around. Still m[ore] come to the people must have l[ooked] answer granted the same night to h[is] prayer, which was for rain. [Canon] Cheyne tells a story of a more m[odern] cident of a similar kind. It was [at Or]leans, in France, when the Hu[ns were] overrunning Europe. They were [known] to be near Orleans, and the little [city] was hourly expecting to be attac[ked]. few were set to watch; the re[st] were prostrate in prayer, beseec[hing] liverance. The governor sent a [boy] to the ramparts, as Elijah sent his [servant] to look out. Twice the man ca[me] with no comfort. The third time [he came] back with his face beaming. [He had] seen a cloud of dust on the hori[zon]. the governor knew that it was t[he] of cavalry being sent to his relief [and] was immediately changed to prai[se]

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

Fasant Life in Brittany.

W re Druids Worshipped—Ancient Cus- ns and Superstitions—Breton Laborers Their Homes and Picturesque Customs.

UR illustration presents such a typical old world pay-day scene as may be witnessed on some of the large estates of Brittany. Agriculture in Brittany, is conducted on primitive and unprofitable sy ms, and usually with crude imple- m s. In some districts, small farms are g swallowed up in larger ones, the eant finding his daily or weekly stipend f few sous, more certain provision for itself and family than he can command w ing independently. The laborer's pa ay recalls our Lord's parable of the steard and the laborers, "who received ev man a penny," inasmuch as the Oriental laborers pay was hardly less than is at of the Breton hired man.

ttany is a most interesting country: n istorians, artists and romancers have m it a favorite theme. It has never ta on modern ways. It lingers in the m le ages and bears in marked degree he press of its old feudal lords an pagan priests. It is a land of gr walls and grass-grown bas- io, of ruined castles and manor- o es, medieval towers and fort- re s, moats and drawbridges. The gr stones of Carnac like those f onehenge, England, stand as str ge memorials of Druid wor- sh —perhaps of sacrifice. In the gr nds of an old chateau at Quini- p there is a mile-stone image f woman called La Couard, wh n the Breton peasants wor- sh ed less than four hundred ye ago. On some of the menhirs, (as he great stones are called) cr es and images of Roman Catholic saints appear, and Breton wo ip and folk-lore is a strange bl ing of this religion and old Dr d beliefs.

e Bretons are a serious people, alt ugh their holiday attire would no ndicate this. The women nc e to wonderful white caps and bi ibbed aprons, and red skirts are high favor with young girls. Th men effect jackets and knee- pa of white flannel and black rel t resplendent with silver but- on which have often been in the fa y for ages. Baby's cap is al- wa quite close; on holiday oc- asns it may be of crimson or lu ibbon, embroidered with gold. Th Breton peasant's home often co sts of one large room. In it, in sp ite of the appearance of poverty, yo may be surprised to find pieces of mas- iv ld furniture, such as carved oak chests an urious metal work. The floor is the na l earth; chickens cluck around, and ho s, cows and pigs have right of way. Of the cow-stall takes up a corner of the welling. Cheeses supply much of the living, and cows are highly thought f. n the way to Nicodeme Fair, you may see omen walking along with the heads of t ir pretty black and white cows tucked un their arms, though usually they lead the by a halter, as they do their pigs, wh n are often very refractory. In a Bre n peasant home the babies sleep in bas ts, called bransels, which are hung to rafters: sometimes a kitten shares the aby's bransel.

Me is for Servants.

F land has adopted and improved upon the erman custom of decorating servants for thfulness and efficiency. The German Em ess bestows a medal on every servant who as stayed in the same family for twenty yea In England, Princess Christian re- cen presided at the presentation of certifi- cat of merit to servant girls, who, entering a pla when they were still under twenty, have kep t for three years or more. The cere- mo took place in the Botanic Gardens under the patronage of the Metropolitan Association for Befriending Young Servants, of which the Princess is President. This society was founded by Mrs. Nassau Senior, purposely to watch over and care for the young workhouse girls who go out to "little places." Each girl is made the special charge of a lady friend, who writes to her, visits her occasionally if the mistress permits, and generally affords her the comfort of feeling that she has a friend and supporter.

"Shot an Angel."

An engineer on the Panhandle Branch of the Santa Fe had a thrilling experience recently, which demonstrates that trainmen, as well as sailors, have their superstitions. One night a clear, white light, like a will-o'-the-wisp, danced over the track a hundred yards in front of his engine; he shut off steam and brought the train to a standstill; and the conductor and crew came running to see what was the matter. "Someone swinging a lantern across the track," said the engineer. "We can't find anybody," retorted the rear brakeman, and the engineer pulled out, only to come to another standstill before he was well started. There was the mysterious light just in front, swinging to and fro, and returning no answers to customary hails. The conductor drew his revolver and fired at the light; at the second shot there was a crash, a scream, and something white fluttered down from the clouds. The engineer was scared; his face turned pale. "You've shot an angel, sure!" he said to the conductor. "What did you bust my lantern fur?" cried a little boy, running up, as investigations were going forward. "Sich a nice lantern as I had tied to the tail of my kite—and you've gone and ruined everything."

THE STEWARD AND THE LABORERS—A PAY-DAY SCENE IN THE OLD WORLD.

Children's Essays on Toads.

The Massachusetts Woman's Club is cooperating with Prof. Clifton F. Hodge of Clark University in his efforts to interest children in humane treatment of animals and conscientious study of animal life. This year two prizes are offered, $15 and $10 each for essays on the toad, and the first is the Massachusetts Woman's Club prize. The essays must be sent in before Oct. 1. Awards will be based upon the original investigation displayed rather than upon literary merit. Last year a prize of $10 was offered, and Prof. Hodge, who thinks that cruelty comes from ignorance more than heartlessness, says of the result: "The mutilation of toads by boys and others seems to have been wholly stopped in the ponds that I was able to observe in Worcester last spring. If children were taught early what a perfectly harmless animal and valuable friend of man our homely little toad really is, the children would be its most careful protectors. One little boy came to me of his own accord and told me that he and another boy killed three hundred toads in University Park Pond last year by count, one afternoon. I asked pleasantly what they did it for. He replied, 'For the fun.' I asked him how many he wanted to kill 'for fun' this year, and he said, 'I don't want to kill any, but I didn't know any better last year.' He had probably been told not to do it a hundred times, but that did not make him 'know any better' and never can."

Cooks to Rank as Officers.

Since "misery loves company," it may be consolation to our tried housewives to know that Uncle Sam is having trouble with his cooks, too. It may also be profitable to know how he is meeting the emergency. It is by raising the dignity of the culinary profession in the army. The company's cook will belong to the official staff, will be amenable to military discipline, and will rank as corporal. It is hoped that this plan will awaken the cook's pride, and will improve the soldiers' bacon and beans.

A Hint to Mothers.

Professor Giles, of the University of Chicago, says: "If we wish to use correct grammar always, to be courteous, etc., we must begin now to do so, and soon it will become habitual so that we need not be constantly thinking if this is right or not." And so with everything. There are many questions which we waste time in deciding, which we ought to decide almost automatically. Parents should not let their children acquire bad habits by disorderly speech or conduct any more than they should let them acquire curvature of the spine by continual stooping. And the way to correct bad habits is to interest the children in acquiring good ones. By tactful management a child may become as interested in contracting a good habit as in securing a coveted toy.

AT MONT-LAWN.

Sweet sleep from dark till dawn—
Play-time on the lawn—
Singing and swinging, the hillsides are ringing
With innocent laughter and fun
Till day is done.

Little beds bloom white,
In the sweet still night—
Little lips murmuring prayers:
"Our Father" and "our kind friends keep—"
Eyelids droop, and they go to sleep—
Mont-lawn's "Little Fresh-Airs."

Sweet sleep from dark till dawn—
Playtime on the lawn—
Swinging and singing, the hillsides are ringing
With innocent laughter and fun
Till day is done. M. L. A.

The Queen's Stocking-Maker.

THE Queen of England recently sent her autograph portrait to John Meakin, the aged weaver, who for years has made all Her Majesty's stockings. Mr. Meakin is eighty-four years old, but quite hale and hearty. He has worked for seventy years for Messrs. Morley, of Gisborne Street, Derby, and Her Majesty's stockings bear the stamp of this famous firm, and of Messrs. Shears & Wells, for whom they are manufactured by Messrs. Morley, and from whom the Queen buys them. The fact that this old weaver had made all her hose for so many years was recentiy brought to the notice of Her Majesty, and she made prompt and gracious acknowledgment. A visitor who called soon after the old man received the portrait, found him busily engaged in making an extra fine pair of hose for Her Majesty's summer wear. They were of the finest white lace silk, though as a rule they are said to be black, with white tops and feet. A coronet with the letters "V. R." and the initials of the manufacturers and sellers in smaller letters, are worked into the hose.

JOHN MEAKIN.

Hero Hobson's Mother.

Lieut. Richmond P. Hobson, the hero of Santiago, is a "mother's boy." A lady in New York City, who is a warm friend of the Hobson family, recently received a letter from Mrs. Hobson, in which occur many passages that show the loving tie that exists between mother and son. She writes:

It is but natural that my mother-pride should be pleased at the recognition of my boy by the nation and its rulers. Such recognition is very happy, but it has told us nothing new or that we did not know of his grand worth. A nobler son no mother ever had. He has been a mighty tower of strength to me for years. Never forgetting the many demands of a large household, it has always been his pleasure to share his salary with us. In every way he has been a help and a comfort. The three years he was studying abroad there never failed to come from him the most loving letters, and his resources were ever at our command. To us, nearest and dearest to him, it took no Santiago to proclaim him a hero. He has been to us for so long the truest hero—as noble son and idolized brother. The plaudits of the world are his, and while history will record the daring deed of his heroism the gentler, sweeter, nobler beauty of his nature can be known only to those to whom he is "first—best."

The Pilgrim Flowers.

The Mayflower, which brought the Pilgrim fathers across the broad Atlantic, was named after one of England's most modest little flowers, also called "meadow cress" and "bread and milk." It is as hardy as our trailing arbutus, and bears a pretty white blossom which comes with May. The Speedwell, whose ill-fortune discredited its name, was also called after a flower which defies the winter, the pearly-petaled veronica as botanists call it.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Our Brave Boys at the Front—Deeds of Daring—Anxiety for the Absent Ones—What Women can do for the Soldiers—The "War Testament" and the Soldier's Religion.

A FEW weeks ago, while riding in an electric car on the outskirts of a Southern city, I heard a mother ask with great interest of a soldierly-looking man sitting opposite her, whether he could tell her when the Third Regiment of Riflemen was going to the front. I turned and asked the lady whether she had any one in the regiment who was dear to her. "Oh, yes," she said, "my only son." There are a good many mothers who have sons in the army just now; a good many wives whose husbands are there, and many young women whose lips pray every night for the sweetheart who is exposed to the perils of war. Our hearts fondly cherish the dear boys in blue who count not their lives dear, who, in these torrid summer days, are ready, at any moment, to go forward where duty calls and glory leads.

* * *

As we walk along our streets everywhere the flag greets us, its rare colors flashing in the sunshine. Our first thought in the morning and our last at night is of our soldiers and sailors. Some of the grandest deeds ever recorded in history have been performed by young men, and the present war is no exception. The magnificent pluck and courage of Hobson and his men, for instance, is unsurpassed in literature. To have planned and successfully carried out so brave a deed as that of Lieutenant Hobson with the Merrimac is an achievement which stirs the blood, and makes us proud anew of our fearless young Americans. Not alone, however, should we give credit to the leaders in a time like this. There is no soldier boy or marine, faithfully doing his duty in the lowest rank, who does not deserve the thanks of the country quite as much as do the great commanders. As we go about our daily work, feeling the lonelier for the young men who have gone away from us, we are glad of their valor; proud of their courage, and we do not forget all the time to pray for them, and ask that God will keep them safe in His care until peace returns and the war is over. Surely this is God's country, and God is using it to spell out his latest message to the world.

* * *

A friend writes that in these days it is very hard to carry peaceful, thankful and contented hearts, and indeed she is right. When there is so much about which to be anxious, and there are so many dear ones whom we cannot help at all, except as we pray for them, it requires all our faith to keep our courage up; still, we must remember that God is with our boys on the tented field and in the battle's storm just as much as he is when they are at home, and as for safety, there are troubles and misfortunes which come to people who never stir a step away from their own doors. Often a man seems to bear in battle a charmed life. Day after day passes away, one engagement after another, but no bullet ever hits him and no sword thrust wounds. The same man may slip on the curbstone, or fall down a stairway, or be hurt in a harvest field at home. Wherever we are, if we are in the line of duty, we need not be afraid, for God will take care of us, and surely it is a good thing for the country that we should again, as in former days, prove that our country is our first love. Wherever our flag floats it means freedom of conscience; it means the breaking of shackles; it means the setting of an oppressed people in a place where they may have enlightenment, education and prosperity. For our enemies themselves, in the long run, the outcome of this war will be the entrance upon a larger and better life, since no one can truly prosper whose empire is founded on oppression and treachery. For the present, war is a dreadful necessity, but the years of God are long, and he knows what the outcome will be.

* * *

We women at home are doing what we can for the boys at the front. It is not so very much that we can do, but we can keep them in mind; we can add to their comforts. Women in New York have been making articles for the soldiers which may protect them from the glare of the sun. Among other things mentioned are those useful havelocks, which are simply capes to be attached to the soldier's hat, coming down and protecting his neck and shoulders from the sun. The small mosquito nets, to be fastened on rings and sent to the soldiers for their individual use, have moved some people to a good-natured smile, as if the soldiers could be bothered with such contrivances. Notwithstanding, if one is sitting in a tent trying to write a letter home, with five hundred mosquitoes buzzing around and settling on his face and hands, he may be very glad of some such shield. For so small a thing, a mosquito manages to make a great deal of trouble in proportion to his size. I remember once, when tarrying in a Southern city during the summer, to have been very glad to avail myself of a portable mosquito net, which I carried about with me, and arranged as a kind of a tent over my chair whenever I sat down to read. Unfortunately for themselves, the present war carries our men into a hot and insect-ridden tropical climate, and whatever can help them to bear the inevitable irritations of the place, may very properly be sent by affectionate women from home.

* * *

The Christian Herald is sending every man in the army a gift worth having, namely a little well-printed copy of the New Testament, with a selection of stirring martial hymns at the back, the whole a convenient size to slip into the breast pocket. Our boys in blue will find this book a comfort in loneliness, a reminder of home, and some of them may, through its blessed pages, learn the way of life.

It has been a matter of comment among thoughtful observers that soldiers and sailors turn to God more readily and with more childlike faith and confidence than any other class of men. Their habit of prompt and unquestioning obedience has something to do with this; and their necessary living from day to day, without long plans ahead, is also a helpful factor. When a soldier gives himself to the Lord, he usually yields his whole allegiance, and is heart and soul Christ's servant, ready to fight the good fight of faith. We should not fail to pray heartily for the dear boys who are bearing the brunt of the war. May they do their duty nobly. May they live as those who must render an account. In God's good time may they return to us, and the white flower of peace blossom where now the battle's dew is red.

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord.
He has loosed the fateful lightnings of his terrible sharp sword;
He has poured the crimson vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored,
His truth is marching on."

Margaret E. Sangster

WHEN you buy and use Royal Baking Powder you have the positive assurance that your food raised by it is not polluted by alum, lime, or any of the adulterants common to other powders. At the same time, the use of Royal will give you the finest food at the lowest cost.

BEATEN TO DEATH

By selling our ADVANCE WOVEN WIRE FENCE direct to the farmer & paying freight thereon We not only save him all of the middle man's profit but we have beaten the hand fence machine to death. Prices way down. It is a cheaper and better fence than can be made by any hand machine for the money. It's all interwoven; no loose ends to unravel; cross wires can not slip. REMEMBER IT'S SOLD ONLY DIRECT TO THE FARMER We know how to take care of our customers. Write for free circulars and extra special discount. Better write at once. ADVANCE FENCE CO., 37 Old St., Peoria Ill.

Good Blood Makes Healt

And Hood's Sarsaparilla makes good blo
That is why it cures so many diseases a makes so many people feel better than e before. If you don't feel well, are half s tired, worn out, you may be made well by tak

Hood's Sarsaparill

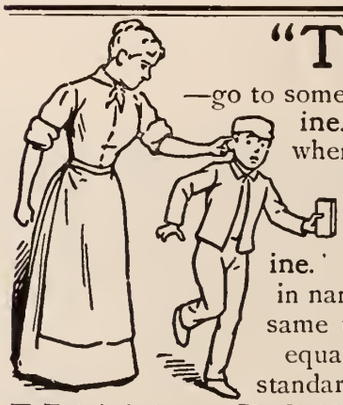
Is America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six fo
Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, M

Hood's Pills act easily, promptly effectively. 25 cents.

A GENEROUS OFFER:

This Hygienic Couch
FREE TO ANYONE
distributing $12.50 worth of our Soaps; Money Required. This comfortable full Couch has Spring Seat and Edges and is upholstered in any color of Corduroy or Plush Fringe to match. Liberal Cash Commission many other valuable premiums, including Grade Bicycles, Watches, Dinner Sets, etc preferred. Write at once for Large Premium alogue No. 23 and full particulars. Our plan easiest—our soaps and premiums the best.
THE MEDICATED CREAM SOAP CO
277 East Madison Street, Chicago.

"Take it back



—go to some grocer who will give you Pear ine." That's the only way to when they send you an imitatio The popularity of Pearline gets the habit of calling anythi that's washing-powder, "Pear ine." Those who notice the differer in name, think perhaps "it's about t same thing." It isn't. Nothing e equals Pearline, the original a standard washing compound. 578

Millions NOW USE Pearline

REMEMBER THE "MAINE"

We want agents everywhere to earn money, bicycles, rings, etc.,—selling our Sterling Silver Plated Historic Souvenir Spoons of the wrecked U. S. Battleship Maine, which are worth a dollar—but sell them for 10c each. No money required in advance. Send full name and address for order blank and premium list. Do it at once and be the first to show them in your town. Address SPOON DEPT. BICYCLE GUM CO., 50 Dearborn St., Chicago. P.S.—If you want a sample spoon, inclose 10c in stamps or silver when you send for particulars.

Have you a Home?

You can greatly improve its appearance and increase its value by fencing the lawn with this
HARTMAN STEEL PICKET FENCE.
Stronger than iron, cheaper than wood and handsomer than either.
Does not obstruct the view—steel post with ornamented top. Nice for cemetery lots, school and church grounds, court yards, etc. Don't buy until you get our FREE catalogue and circulars. HARTMAN M'F'G. CO., Ellwood City, Pa. or 277 Broadway, N. York.

A Low Wagon at a Low Price.

The money-making farmer of to-day wants a low built, easily loaded, easily unloaded, light draft, powerful short turn "Handy" farm wagon; a wagon that will save the farmer's own back, save his horses, save his hired labor and save his money.

This wagon is built by the Empire Manufacturing Co., Quincy, Ill. It is only 25 inches high with 4 inch tired wheels, and is sold for the low price of $19.95. This firm also manufactures Metal Wheels any size, any width of tire, hubs to fit any sized axle. Write for catalogue.

$5 LOWEST—$35 HIGHEST

price at which we are selling wheels. We always carry a stock of at least 2000 BICYCLES including over 100 different makes. Catalogue sent free. Wheels shipped C.O.D. subject to full examination and absolute satisfaction guaranteed. Buy your wheel from a responsible firm. We know how to take care of our customers. You can make big money acting as our agent. BROWN-LEWIS CYCLE CO., (Dept. F) CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEEL BUILT TO ORDER, $25.

Up-to-date, High Grade, Worth $50

We are the ers and jobb Grade Bic in the U.S. the largest To make a mand for our sell one co each town at sale price and build you a latest '98 model in 2 days, ju want it; over 60 options! You get a $50 no delay; send for full particulars. ROBT. H. IN & BRO. Dept. No 61 163 Washington St.,

BICYCLE BELL, 10c.

Our Great '98 Introduction Offer. A fine clear ri bell with our catalogue and other specialties, (postage 5c. extra), 3 for; ELECTRIC STROK rotary movement, bell metal go finest made, only 20c (postage 3 for 50c., $1.00 doz. ROBT. H. INGERSOL Dept. No. 61 67 Cortlandt Street, New $3 a Day Sure Send us and we absolute furnish the work and teach you free, the locality where you live. Send us your address explain the business fully, remember we guarantee of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138, DETR

THE PATIENT GOD.

Lessons from the Forbearance God Displays to his Children and the World Psalm 78: 38-41; Romans 2: 4.

How encouraging to poor, weak humanity is the fact that in revealing his character to the world, God has placed this quality of his patience so prominently. Looking back over our past lives, we remember so many things that we have done and so many things that we have neglected to do, that we might have feared that God would cast us off and leave us to go our own way to ruin, if we had not been assured of his infinite patience. In reading the history of the children of Israel we are amazed at their continually recurring lapses into idolatry and rebellion. It is a sad and sorrowful story, exciting our wonder at their perversity. But we are repeating the story in our own lives. Every one who is honest with himself is conscious of failing in thought, word and deed to the loyalty he owes to God. While we grieve over our shortcomings, we are fervently thankful for the assurance given in the Psalmist in the passage associated with the topic, that we have to do with a God who remembers that we are but flesh and who is full of compassion. But this compassion, as the Apostle reminds us, ought to have a definite effect. It "leadeth to repentance." We know how this is in our own lives. The story is told of two boys at school, of whom one urging the other to an act of disobedience, said: "You will be all right, your father is sure to forgive you." "Yes," was the answer, "but it is that that makes me hesitate. He is so good to me that I am ashamed to wrong him." The children of God do not always show like appreciation of the forbearance of their heavenly Father. Another lesson, too, is inculcated by the divine patience. It is the duty of imitating that quality. We are far too ready to cease our efforts for the redemption of the fallen, to lose hope of saving them from their sins. When the victim of evil habit breaks his promise to reform and turns again to the sins from which he believed he was delivered, we are too apt to leave him to his fate. God has not dealt with us. The patience that redeems us we are but flesh should have its counterpart in those who are God's representatives on earth. They who have learned by experience how patient God is with his children may well be patient and forbearing with their erring and backsliding brethren.

The Christian Herald in the Army

DURING the week, a number of contributions have been received for the purpose of supplying THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to our soldiers at the front. It will be sent to soldiers or sailors at the special rate of twenty-five cents for three months or $1 for a year. Much good work may thus be accomplished by those, who are not in a position to communicate with friends and relatives in the service in another way. The latest contributions for this work are acknowledged below:

Received $169.34
Arthur new, E F	25
Mrs J L ..	1 00
Baker, Eliza A...	1 00
Boat Emma & Car	1 00
Brown E	1 00
Clerk, ...	25
Cornish, S C.	1 00
Crapon, Mrs H B..	25
Cumming M	1 00
Dalamt Mrs M L...	1 50
Dearmy, John and	1 00
Dwight	1 00
Dunciss C	25
Arthur Mrs D ...	25
Elizabeth ...	1 00
Evans John....	1 00
Fraser Margaret M.	25
Frenchabbie	25
Furna Mrs F P	1 00
Gardn B B	1 00
Gilber rs T S ...	25
Grossl Samuel	5 00
Hubbm N	5 00
Ink, C	50
Jamm l. Mary	1 00
Joyne Mrs P W ...	50
Kaser M	25
Kochan, J G.. ...	1 00
Lassor A	1 00
Lobaa Mrs N J....	1 00
Makey I C.. ...	1 00
Offer, E	25
Omar Mrs M E....	1 00
Otterbrs L M	25
Owola Olive J	25
Patch E B.	1 00
Perkin V	25
Pilley Minnie. ..	1 25
Pingu Mrs. E A..	1 00
Sasso Mrs C B	26
Sindle Mrs Nettie..	25
Sucas, etta	25
F B, York, Pa	50
J A G, W Hebron, N Y	1 00
Mrs L H G, Milwaukee, Wis.....	25
L M T, Johnstown, N Y	1 00
L S, N Dakota	20 00
M E B, New London, Conn	25
M G, MacDougall, NY	1 00
M S B, Leominster, Mass.....	25
R W B, Knowlton, Ia.	2 00
S M C, Worcester, Mass.	1 00
——, Auburn, Okla....	25
Hope	25
I H N, Veteran	1 00
Reader of the C H...	25
Reader, Me	50
Snbscriber, Athens, Ga	25
A Subscriber, Chicago, Ill	1 00
A Friend, Belmar, N J	25
A Friend, Orwell, Vt.	1 00
Frieud, Soudan, Minn	3 00
Miller's S S Class, Mrs W C.....	75
W C T U, Sault Ste Marie, Mich..	1 00
A Mother, Larchmont, N Y	26
Cash, Philadelphia ..	5 00
A widow without hoys, So W. Me	1 00
Widow's Mite	25
One of the hoys in red, Canada..	25
Total $586.62

BOOKS RECEIVED.

The Christian Gentleman. By the Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D.D. A series of addresses to young men. Pp. 123; cloth; price 75c. Published by Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York and London.

Hints on Bible Study. Compiled by various well-known clergymen for the benefit of those who need help and information on the subject. Pp. 257; cloth and gilt; price, 75 cents. Published by John D. Wattles & Co., Philadelphia.

Seven Months a Prisoner. By J. V. Hadley. An episode of the War of Secession. A dainty little volume of the well-known "Ivory Series." Pp. 258. Price, 75 cents. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, Fifth Avenue, New York.

Object Lessons for Junior Work, with practical suggestions. By Ella N. Wood. Written from the point of view of a superintendent of a Junior Christian Endeavor Society. Pp. 113; cloth; price 50 cents. Published by Fleming H. Revell Co., New York.

The Hope of Immortality. By Rev. J. E. C. Welldon, Head Master of Harrow School, showing the history of the belief and the external and internal grounds for holding it. Pp. 350. Price, $1.50. Published by the Macmillan Company, 66 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Christianity and the Progress of Man. By Prof. W. Douglas Mackenzie. A study of the various means through which the Christian missionaries are affecting the life of the race. Pp. 250; cloth and gilt top; price, $1.25. Fleming H. Revell Co., New York, Chicago and Toronto, publishers.

The Clerical Life. This book embraces a series of twenty (20) letters, filled with advice to young ministers who find themselves discouraged in their work. These letters are written by eight well-known theologians. Pp. 257; cloth; price, $1.25. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., 151 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The Christian Pastor and the Working Church. By Washington Gladden, D.D., LL.D. The latest addition to the famous "International Theological Library." Includes chapters on The Call to the Pastorate, The Pastor in His Study, The Sunday School, Parish Evangelization, Social Life of the Church, Revivals and Revivalism, etc. Pp. 475. Price, $2.50. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, Fifth Avenue, New York.

Those who think that imported soaps must be the best, do not know that the materials for Ivory Soap are the finest to be found anywhere. The vegetable oil of which Ivory Soap is made is imported, almost in ship loads, from the other side of the world.

WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Copyright, 1897, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati.

RUBIFOAM

For the Teeth.

Deliciously Flavored..

THE most delightful, refreshing, agreeable, and beneficial dentifrice ever placed before the public. Absolutely free from all injurious substances.

Popular price, 25c. Send 2c. stamp for sample vial.
Address E. W. HOYT & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Saves Half

If you will add a gear case to so smooth running and carefully tested a bicycle as the Waverley you will insure greater pleasure than the yet unproved chainless can give—at less than half the cost.

Waverley Bicycles $50

Write for the Waverley Catalogue.

Indiana Bicycle Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

$30 a week made by selling our high-class publications. Agents wanted everywhere. Steady employment. World Pub Co., 114 5th Av, N.Y., R'm 23 in the quality and the amount of light produced by an old fashioned "tallow-dip" and an incandescent bulb is not more marked than is the difference in the amount of nutriment secured from a pound of Franklin Mills Fine Flour of the Entire Wheat, and a pound of ordinary white flour. The former is so rich in flavor, palatability and nourishment that only a few weeks regular use of it suffices to make all other bread taste flat, insipid and unsatisfying.

THE DIFFERENCE

If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied.

The genuine made only by the
FRANKLIN MILLS CO., LOCKPORT, N. Y.

QUICK ACTION

Clean printing, simplicity, permanent and accurate alignment and durability are a few features of the

Wellington Typewriter No. 2

Equal to any $100 machine on the market.

Sent to any responsible party on receipt of price, $60. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded after 10 day's trial.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free on application

The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburgh, N.Y.

$2-OUTFIT FREE TO AGENTS

In order to introdnce our new novelties in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. Write quick. J. P. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., CHICAGO.

"To save time is to lengthen life." Do you value life? Then use SAPOLIO

By Sankey, McGranahan and Stebbins.

SACRED SONGS No. 1.
450,000 sold in 18 months.

CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS

Clergymen and others declare the latter unequalled for the Congregation, Prayer Meeting and Sunday School. Price for either book, half bound, printed cover, $25 per 100; add 6 cents per copy, if ordered by mail.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N. Y.

Architects, Builders of Auditoriums

We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, ACOUSTICIAN. G. L. SCHICKER, PREST. WM. A. MICKLE, SEC'Y.

STUDY LAW AT HOME

Instruction by mail, adapted to every one. Methods approved by leading educators. Experienced and competent instructors. Takes spare time only. Three courses, preparatory, business, college. An opportunity to better your condition and prospects. Students and graduates everywhere. 8 years of success. Full particulars free. Sprague Correspondence School of Law, 283 Tel. Bldg., Detroit, Michigan.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT

AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.

Sent for 5c. postage.

Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C.V.R.R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

BATTLESHIP MAINE including photo Captain Sigsbee beautifully colored, ready for framing, also valuable catalogue FREE to anyone sending 10c. to pay postage, packing, &c. 10 Maines for 50c.; 25 for $1.00, postpaid. Tremendous sellers. Agents Wanted. Chidester & Co., 28 Bond St., N. Y.

OTHER RELIGIONS.

The Superiority of Christianity to all other Faiths. Acts 17: 22-31.

Although Christianity is the religion of only about one-third of the human race, its intrinsic merits, apart from any question of its divine origin place it far above any other faith. To us, who believe it to be a revelation from God, its infinite superiority to any other religion is settled by that fact alone. But applying to it the test of adaptation, which is the decisive test from a human standpoint, we reach the same conclusion. The purpose of all religions worthy of comparison with Christianity is to bring the creature into harmony with the Creator, and to make of human life the thing that Supreme Wisdom intended it to be. To this problem Christianity brings resources infinitely superior and infinitely better adapted to the purpose than those of any other faith. Each of the great religions has in it a measure of truth which has kept it in life and given it power, but each has its fatal defects. Confucianism is a system of ethics as high and pure as Christianity, but it gives us no God to worship. Buddhism inculcates the great virtues of charity, self-sacrifice, justice, and purity, but it offers nothing in the future but absorption into vacuity. Mohammedanism denounces the polytheism and idolatry of the Eastern world and demands of its believers sobriety, reverence, and complete submission to the Divine will, but it leads to fatalism, and has been productive of coarse sensuality and fierce and cruel intolerance. Only in Judaism do we find the elements which have made Christianity the chief of all faiths, and Judaism was the mother of Christianity. It was incomplete; it was rudimentary; it was a preparation for a fuller and better faith. There were things that the law could not do. Christianity came as the culmination of the long series of stages of truth, and the union of God and man in the person of Jesus Christ gave the world the personality which crowned the work of ages. All that was good in Confucianism, Brahmanism, Buddhism, Mohammedanism, and Judaism, can be found in Christianity, and with it all is the one supreme good that no other religion ever offered—the power of Omnipotence dwelling in man. The Holy Spirit imparted to weak humanity cleansing, purifying, and energizing human nature and making of depraved and enfeebled men sons of God. This is the glory of our holy religion which in the end will make it the one and only faith the world over.

EARNESTNESS.

The Christian's Usefulness Measured by His Disposition to Use His Opportunities.

The one secret of success in any undertaking is that a man put his whole soul into it. He who performs his duties in a careless, dilatory, perfunctory manner, makes life a burden to himself and all who have to do with him. Smiles tells the story of a professor in one of the technical schools in Paris who, hearing that a friend was thinking of buying an estate in a certain district in France, went to him and urged him not to settle there. "Do you know the district?" his friend asked. "No," replied the professor, "but I am sure the people there are a poor, miserable set. The boys who come to us from that section do not strike hard on the anvil." It is this striking hard on the anvil that makes all the difference between a happy, useful life and an ineffective one. The world owes all the progress it has made under God to earnest men. The man who takes a pleasure in his work, who tries to do it well, whether it be obscure or conspicuous, is the man who succeeds and who helps his fellow-men. There is a tendency, especially in religious work, to the feeling that only in certain offices can successful effort be made. "If I were a minister, or if I could go as a missionary, or could be an evangelist, I could do good service," is a remark often made. But the really earnest soul does the work nearest to his hand and uses the opportunities God has placed within his reach. He cannot be idle and he will not spend in reverie or in vain repining the time that he might use in Christ's service. And it is astonishing how many opportunities come to the man who is really looking out for them. The one question for every one is whether he is in earnest in his desire to work. If he is, his unconverted friends, his business associates, and the sick and poor people in his neighborhood will soon become aware that there is some one near them with the spirit of Christ in him, ready for service. Much of the depression of the spirit and the painful self-questioning, which depress many Christians, would disappear if they were really in earnest in this Christian activity. Earnestness is a cure for many ills which afflict the soul.

CONVENTION NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Reduced Rates via Pennsylvania Railroad.

For the National Educational Association Convention to be held at Washington, D. C., July 7 to 11, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from points on its line to Washington and return at rate of single fare for the round trip plus $2.00 membership fee. These tickets will be sold on and after July 5 to 7, and good to return leaving Washington July 8 to 12 when stamped by Joint Agent at Washington. By depositing ticket with Joint Agent on or before July 12 and on payment of 25 cents the return limit may be extended to August 31. Tickets for side trips from Washington to Gettysburg, Richmond, Old Point Comfort and Southern battlefields will be on sale at the ticket offices of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in Washington during the continuance of the Convention.

Weak Lungs.

Recent Progress of Medical Science

Extract from Dr. Robert Hunter's lectures on the lungs have been published from time to time in this paper for the purpose of informing the people of the real nature of lung diseases and the discovery of a successful treatment of the lungs by Antiseptic Medicated Air Inhalations. No truth of medical science has been more conclusively proven and established than that Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh of the Lungs have been and are being radically cured by this treatment, while even Consumption, the most dreaded of all lung complaints, is arrested and entirely eradicated by Dr. Hunter's most recently discovered germicides, which kill and expel from the lungs the bacilli of tuberculosis. From all parts of the Union come the grateful acknowledgments of patients whose lives have been saved by Dr. Hunter.

Mr. A. L. Peer, 179 Washington St., Newark, N. J., says: "My lungs were left in a weak condition from La Grippe, and rapidly grew worse. They became affected. I had twenty-seven hemorrhages, and my condition became very critical. Lost fifty pounds in weight and was confined to my bed. My physicians gave me up to die. Dr. Hunter was consulted, and I began to improve immediately. My breathing became freer, the hemorrhages ceased altogether, and I steadily gained in strength and flesh. I now weigh more than I ever did, and am positively cured. Dr. Hunter's treatment was the thing that saved my life."

Any subscriber of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD who is interested can obtain this book free by addressing Dr. Hunter at 117 West 45th St., New York.

Summer Suits and Skirts

at half Retailer's Prices.

Shown In Our Free Catalogue No. 17.

Ladies' Outing Suit of excellent linen crash, reverse and collar of jacket and flounce on skirt of silk striped crash $4.75

Ladies' Walking Skirt of heavy black brocaded grosgrain or taffeta silk, lined and interlined, full width. $4.75

Same style Skirt of figured brilliantine $1.75.

EDWARD B. GROSSMAN & CO.
170-172 STATE ST. CHICAGO.
THE GREAT MAIL-ORDER CLOAK-HOUSE.

GOLD DUST
THE BEST WASHING POWDER

Throwing Money away

is economy compared with buying any other than

"HOLDFAST" Aluminum Hairpins

...The only hairpins that stay where yo put them and neither fall ot, warp, split nor beak.

Dealers may offer you cheap imitations to make more profit. Do not be deceived, but demand the "Holdfast," and insist on getting them. They look like this Size 2¾ inches; polished or with black tops. Also 3¾ and 4½ inches, with heavy prongs, for braid or bonnet use.

SOLD BY FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.
If your dealer will not supply you, send 10 cents in stamps for sample of six small or one large

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO.,
Box 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.
Also makers of Stewart's Duplex Safety Pins.

If You Suffer

From Epilepsy, Epileptic Spells, Fits, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Falling Sickness, Vertigo, etc., have children or relatives that do so, or know people that are afflicted, My New Discovery, Epilepticide, will cure them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a Free Bottle, and try it. I am quite prepared to abide by the result. It has cured thousands where everything else has failed. Please give full name, AGE, and postoffice and express address

WM. H. MAY, M.D., May Laboratory,
94 Pine St., New York City.

NOTE.—All sufferers are advised to send for Gratuitous Expert Advice and a Free Bottle of this New Discovery, which is an Unfailing Cure for any and all of the frightful forms of Epilepsy and allied nervous diseases. When writing Dr. May, please mention The Christian Herald.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE
More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color great ly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.
NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING.
CLEANING. CRACKING.
THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

BUY YOUR WALL-PAPER
BY MAIL, from the manufacturers. Samples sent free. Prices 3c to $3 a roll.
KAYSER & ALLMAN, 1214-1216 Market St. Phila.

Tartarlithine i Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., w s:
"Your Tartarlithine has prov a wonderful weapon for rheumatis I have used a very great quantity i in the last three or four m hs and I have never seen anything li it I had one case who had tried all t he alkaline lithiates, and everything se He has had rheumatism all his fe and nothing completely stopped a he manifestations of the disease like ar tarlithine, which did completely u one bottle.

I have another old man, who t ke much on the road peddling, wh has been lame with rheumatism fo ive years, and one bottle cured all ne ness, and he says he has not l a well in five years as now. The ar only the two worst cases of any that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St. Y.
SOLE AGENTS FOR
The Tartarlithine Co

Mamma or Papa

can read "Mother's re Library" for baby. ne you'll know more a ou baby's troubles and m of the ways to re v them. Vol. VI sent fr e request.

Davidson Rubber Co., Boston Mass.
Enclose a 2c. stamp and we will send a e sample of "Davidson's Health Nipple."

The Natural Body Brace advertised l last week is a delightful, certain cure f peculiar to women and girls. It makes w work easy; gives good figure and light step. Natural Body Brace Co., Salina, Kansas Illustrated book.

LOOSE CUSTOMS IMPROVED PERFECTION TINS
AGENTS WA ED
We furnish samples free to ag Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, re Write for Catalog, new goo s Richardson Mfg. Co. 6th & Ba

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES; n needed; position permanent; PEASE MFG. CO., P. O. Box A, C

WOMEN Make $2 to $10 a Day se Intosh Dress Skirts, new etc. Cat. Free. Ladies' Supply Co., 3118 Forest

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory t Fam
The Larkin Plan fully exp ned beautiful free booklet. Fre
Soap If mention this magazin
The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., Larkin St., ffa

SOMEDAY.

ONE day, someday, perhaps to-day,
The thing I pray for shall be mine.
The clouds may lift,
And through the rift
The sunbeams drift.
Athwart the gloom a light may shine,
And brighten all my onward way,
Someday.

One day, someday, perhaps to-day,
This narrow, thorny path,
Where doubt and darkness meet,
Whose rocky way hath bruised my feet
May broaden into meadows sweet.
Dead love may triumph over wrath,
And truth may over wrong bear sway,
Someday.

One day, someday, perhaps to-day
Ere hearts have withered grown, and old,
Joy shall be born of dark despair,
Our buried dead shall tread the air
Transfigured spirits, glorious fair.
Our wondering eyes may yet behold
The dust of ages drift away,
Someday.

One day, someday, perhaps to-day,
God's truth shall shine from east to west;
Discord and hate shall flee away
And error crumble to decay.
While love shall light the upward way
And every burdened soul have rest
In God's millennial day.

Avot, Pa. MRS. D. C. WATERS.

The Prince of Montenegro.

England has recently been interested in the visit to that country of Nicholas, Prince of Montenegro. His authority in his little principality is more absolute than the Czar's in Russia, yet he is much in advance of his people, and is a most kindly despot. To his people he is a father, and to see him seated under the tree just outside his palace, dispensing justice to all who choose to come before him is to realize what personal and paternal government in primitive communities really is. His word is law, and no one is so bold as to call his judgment in question. He is six feet tall, a powerful and handsome figure in his gold-embroidered white coat, dark blue knickerbockers and patent leather top-boots. He is fifty-six years old, and his hair, mustache and whiskers are white. The prince has brought vast improvements in his little state, which he has tried to bring into line with Europe. He was received with royal honors by Queen Victoria.

Dee Cure for Kidneys and Bladder.

We advise our readers who suffer from Kidney and Bladder disorders, weak back or Rheumatism, to try the new Botanic Discovery, Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava shrub. Convincing proof of the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis is given by Rev. A. C. Darling, Constantia, N. Y.; Hon. R. Wood, Lowell, Ind.; Mrs. L. D. Fegely, Lansdale, Ills., and others cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, after many years' suffering. The Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 200 Fourth Avenue, New York, to prove its great value and for introduction, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. Alkavis is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

You can rely upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for every form of scrofula, salt rheum, boils, pimples and other diseases caused by impure blood. It has well won its name of the best blood purifier.

SALARY A YEAR. $75 MONTHLY. STRAIGHT OUT SALARY. $900.00 BONAFIDE SALARY. NO MORE, NO LESS SALARY

We want trustworthy gentlemen or ladies wanted in each state to manage our business in their own and adjoining counties. It is mainly office work conducted at home. Salary straight $900 a year and all expenses—definite, bonafide, no commission, easy to understand. Six years in business find us compelled to secure COMPETENT RELIABLE MANAGERS to handle our rapidly growing trade. References. Enclose self-addressed stamped envelope.

THE DOMINION COMPANY, Dept. N 26, - Chicago, Ill.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and in conspicuous places throughout town and country; steady employment or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

NAZO for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MFG. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

OLD GLORY SHOW YOUR COLORS. Finely Woven Silk Badge 5c. by mail; 3 for 10c.; 30c. doz.; 100 for $2. Great seller for holidays and fairs. L. H. Cushman, 34 Oliver St., Boston, Mass.

White Ostrich Feathers

"White ostrich feathers are easily cleaned by soaking five minutes in warm suds made from Fairy Soap. Draw them lightly through the hand, rinse in warm, clear water, and dry by shaking over the stove. Re-curl by drawing each little barb over the dull edge of a knife or scissors."—Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 17½x24 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

Throw Away Your Truss

if your wear one like this, with iron or steel band. An instrument of torture. Why will you suffer when we can relieve and cure you with our Improved Elastic Truss? It can be WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY, THEREBY EFFECTING A RADICAL AND PERMANENT CURE without neglect of your business. Call or write for free catalogue.
IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.,
785 BROADWAY, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 Years.

7000 BICYCLES carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of swell '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.
E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

1898 High Grade BICYCLES for Men, Women, Girls & Boys. Complete line. All brand new models.
$75 'Oakwood' for $32.50
$60 'Arlington' " $24.50
Others at $15, $17 and $20
Juveniles $7.00 to $12.50
No Money In Advance. WRITE TODAY for SPECIAL OFFER. Shipped anywhere C.O.D. with privilege to examine. Buy direct from manufacturers, save agents & dealers profits. Large Illus. Catalogue Free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. VanBuren Street, B. 15, Chicago, Ills.

$ 34.50 Acme Bicycles.

HIGH GRADE '98 MODELS Same grade as agents sell for $75. We have no agents but sell direct to the rider at manufacturers' prices. 8 elegant models. Best material, superb finish. Guaranteed against accidents as well as defects. We ship with privilege of examination, pay express charges both ways and refund money if not as represented. Write for Catalogue.
ACME CYCLE CO.,
125 Main St., ELKHART, IND.

1898 Bicycles Down to $5.00.

New 1898 Model Ladies' and Gent's Bicycles are now being sold on easy conditions as low as $5.00; others outright at $13.95, and high-grade at $19.05 and $22.50, to be paid for after received. If you will cut this out and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., Chicago, they will send you their 1898 Bicycle Catalogue and full particulars.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and feet on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No trash, no job lots. Send for cata. and special offer. F. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, ATLANTA, GA.

$18 per week and expenses to several good parties to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references.
R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

ENAMELINE

THE MODERN Quick Shine, Little Labor. STOVE POLISH No Dust. No Odor.

NO OTHER COMPARES WITH IT. IT'S THE BEST.
J. L. PRESCOTT & CO. NEW YORK.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

The Doctor Slocum System Has Proven Beyond Any Doubt Its Positive Power Over the Dread Disease.

EXTERMINATING THE CURSE OF AGES

By Special Arrangement with the Doctor, Three Free Bottles Will be Sent to All Readers of The Christian Herald.

The Doctor Slocum System, as the name implies, is a comprehensive and complete system of treatment, which attacks every vulnerable point of the disease and completely vanquishes it. It leaves no point unguarded; it leaves no phase of the trouble neglected; it cures, and cures forever, Weak Lungs, Coughs, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Consumption and all other throat and lung diseases by absolutely obliterating the cause.

FREE

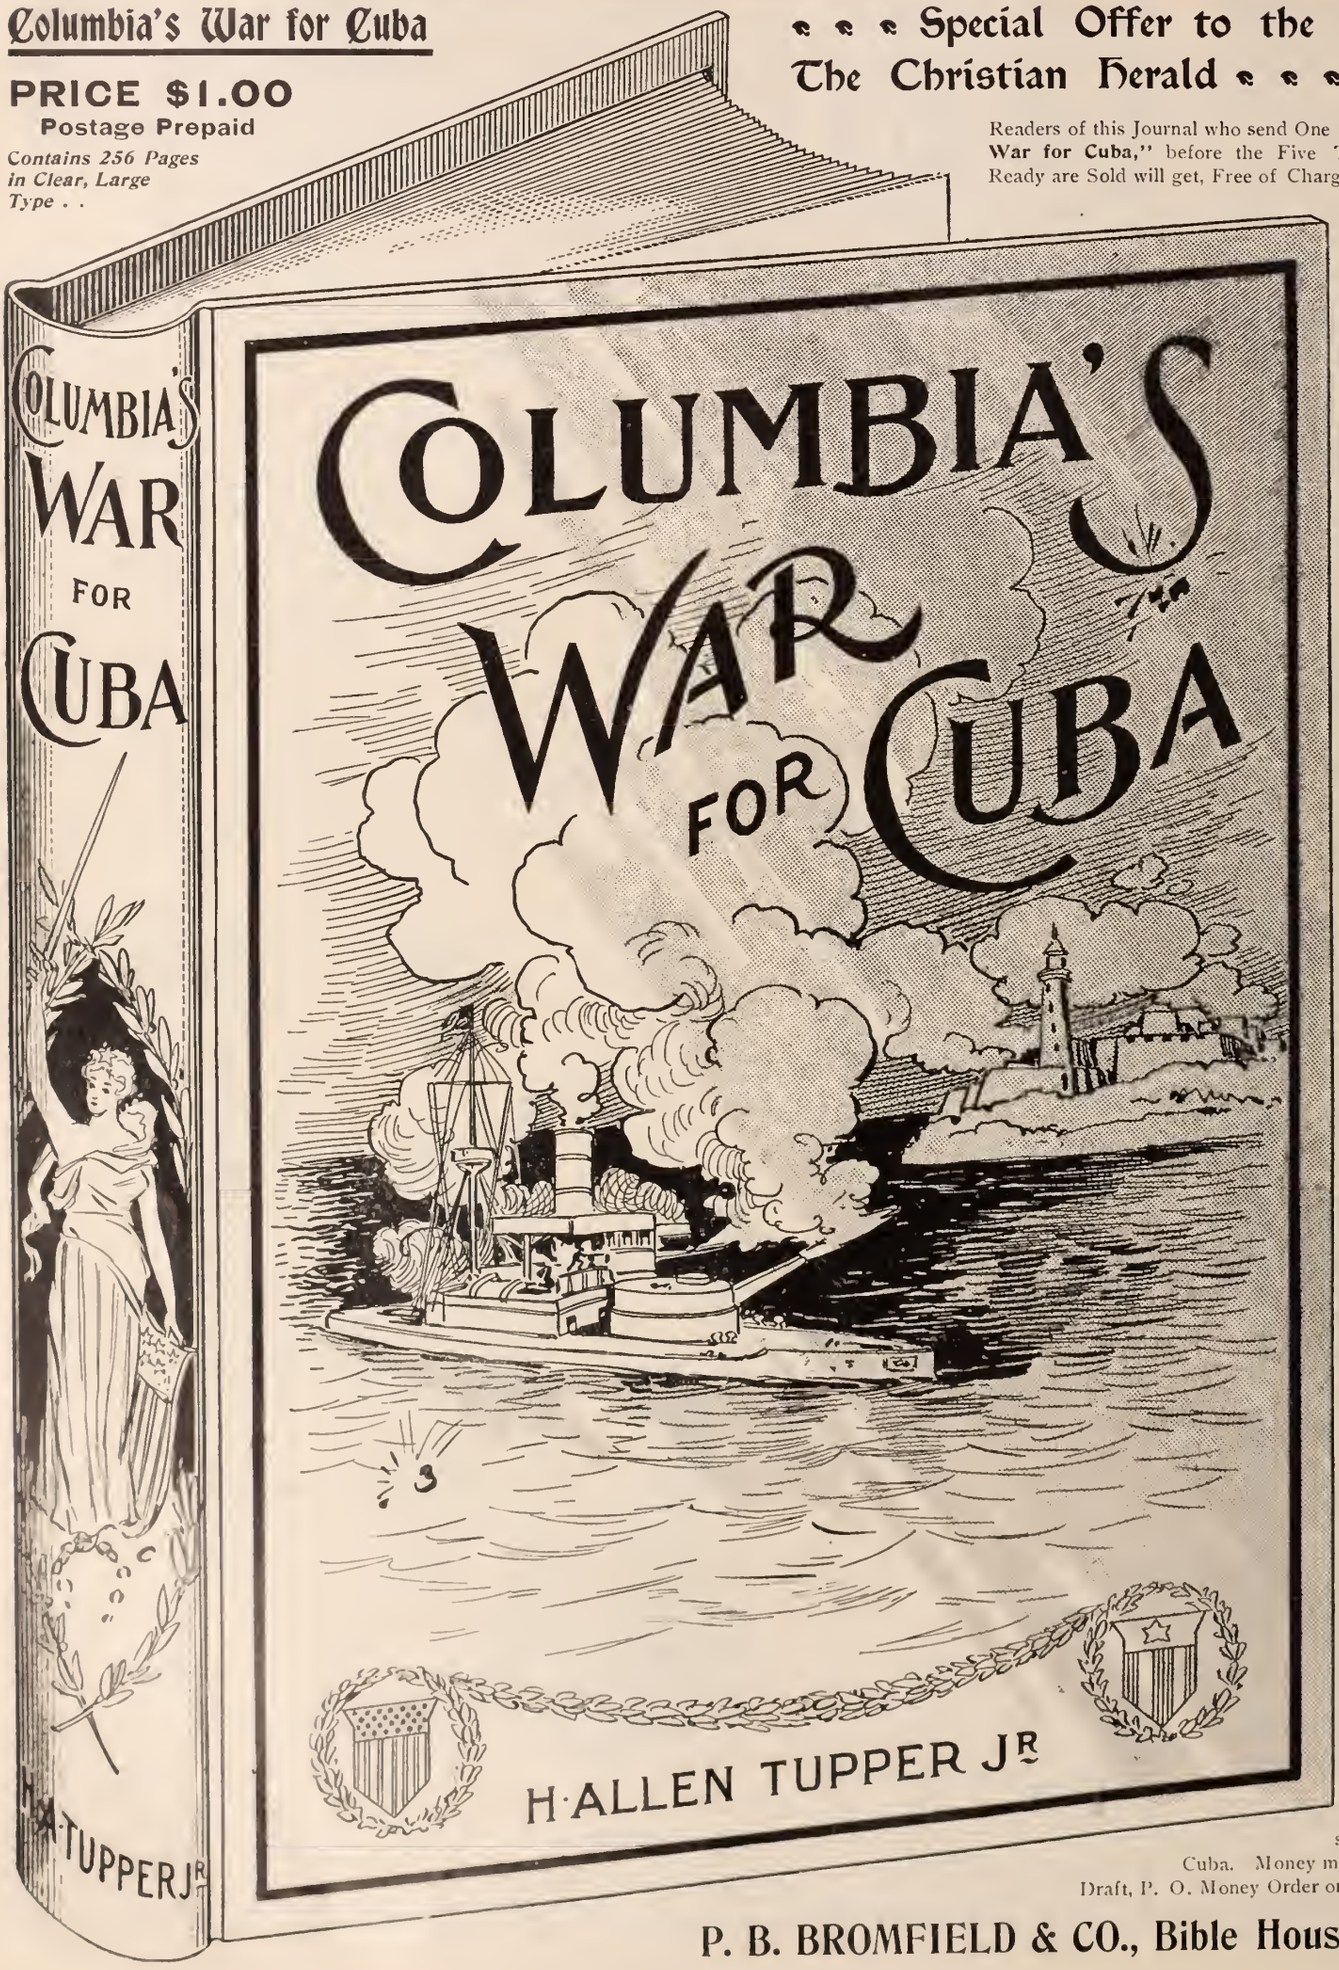
SPECIAL NOTE.—The Doctor Slocum System is medicine reduced to an exact science by the world's most famous physician. All readers of this paper anxious regarding the health of themselves, children, relatives or friends, may have three free bottles as represented in the above illustration, with complete directions, pamphlets, testimonials, advice, &c., by sending their full address to Dr. T. A. Slocum, The Slocum Building, New York City. This is a plain, honest, straightforward offer, and is made to introduce the merits of The New System of Treatment that Cures, and we advise all sufferers to accept this philanthropic offer at once. When writing the Doctor please mention THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. All letters receive immediate and careful attention.

GREATEST BOOK OF THE DAY

Columbia's War for Cuba

PRICE $1.00
Postage Prepaid

Contains 256 Pages in Clear, Large Type . .



Special Offer to the Readers of The Christian Herald

Readers of this Journal who send One Dollar for "Columbia's War for Cuba," before the Five Thousand Copies Now Ready are Sold will get, Free of Charge, a Beautiful Colored Folding Map of Cuba. We do this to introduce the book quickly. We know we have a good thing. It is only necessary to sell a copy in a neighborhood to induce dozens of additional sales.

Columbia's War for Cuba

Containing the Thrilling, Romantic Story of the Early Struggles of the Patriots and of all the Important Events that finally culminated in the Great war Now Being Waged. Full all about Cuba the Pearl of the Antilles and with any quantity of Beautiful Photographic Views which illustrates Havana, Matanzas, Morro Castle, and Scenes of Daily Life on the Golden Spot of the World, including full pictures of the Love, Courtship and Matrimonial Customs still in vogue there. This Superb Illustrated Volume Embellished by over 250 New and Original Pictures, furnishes what every American should know about

Columbia's Soldier and Sailor Book

Illustrated with over 250 Pictures. Printed on Extra Finish Paper of Excellent Quality. It is Richly Bound in Cloth, with Handsome Cover, and measures when open over Inches. Send One Dollar to-day for the Book, and thus make sure of one of the first copies of Cuba. Money may be remitted by Bank Draft, P. O. Money Order or Express Order to P. B. BROMFIELD & CO., Bible House, New York.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

...FFICE · BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 28.

...ev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

NEW YORK, JULY 13, 1898.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

"The Angels of the Tenements"

So...e Little Waifs Call the Good Missionaries who Come to Take Them to Mont-Lawn — Happy July Days at Our Children's Home.

A LTLE CARE-TAKER.

A WEE GUEST.

GATHERING IN SLUM CHILDREN FOR OUR FRESH-AIR WORK AT MONT-LAWN.

COULD our readers witness with their own eyes and ears the joys which are awakened in the crowded, sweltering tenements by the tidings of an outing to Mont-Lawn, they would feel amply rewarded for all the interest they have taken in this humanitarian work. Whenever the missionaries go into the tenements they engage a host of eager, ragged, dirty children, all clamoring, "Let me go! Take me!" Sometimes a child longing to go pushes another forward, crying: "Please take my little sister" (or sister, or perhaps a baby substitute—for these little creatures, suffering as they are often from unselfishness and neglect, have a way of unselfishly forgetting). A visitor one forenoon saw among the crowd of poor little children there was a boy who would not take no for an answer, but with an enthusiastic determination worthy of the best cause, kept at the heels of the Fresh-Air worker, begging to go to Mont-Lawn. Their children are taken by train to Nyack, journey up the Hudson, with its ever-changing panorama of merchant vessels, ferry boats, steamboats, its picturesque scenery, its cooling breezes, is in itself a wonder. The tenement child's whole area of activity has been a narrow, stifling, foul-smelling court, and the alley which leads to it. For such a child the journey is almost like the liberation of a little soul. After reaching Nyack and being taken on board the Home wagonette, wonders continue to unfold, and the youngsters want the driver to stop for them to gather every flower on the wayside and then their gratitude and anxiety to know how and why they come to be there, and who has provided such a beautiful country home, are expressed at every turn. The teachers tell them of the good friends who have co-operated with us and who have remembered them in prayers and gifts. The prayers of the Mont-Lawn waifs bear many a blessing into distant homes.

An outing at Mont-Lawn includes transportation both ways under caretakers, medical examination, food, shelter, clothing and all attendance while at the Home. Only three dollars covers the entire cost of a ten days' visit for each child. Surely this amount could hardly accomplish more good expended in any other way. The food at the home is simple and wholesome, and it is all real dainties to our children. At Mont-Lawn, too, they are taught mannerly ways and to thank our Heavenly Father for his gifts. They are provided with all the sweet, rich milk they can drink, oatmeal, rice, hominy, bread and butter for breakfast and supper; and for dinner good, strengthening meat-roast, baked or stewed with potatoes and other vegetables, and fresh fruit grown at Mont-Lawn—all plain, simple foods, but the best and most wholesome that can be prepared for hungry, growing children.

(Continued on page 571.)

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Miss M. G. L., Greenville, Tenn. 1. Where is the battleship Topeka? 2. Give the names of the battleships in the United States Navy?

1. We believe she is now being refitted and having her machinery overhauled. 2. Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Oregon, Texas, Kearsarge, Kentucky, Alabama, Illinois, Wisconsin.

S. B. L., Philadelphia. 1. I wish to know between what years were the so-called "Dark Ages"? 2. Where could I get a book treating on the subject?

1. The period embraced in the "Dark Ages," as generally understood by scholars and authors, was about 1,000 years, from the invasion of France by Clovis in 486 to that of Naples by Charles VIII. in 1495. 2. Read Hallam's View of the Middle Ages.

C. R., Aspen, Col. I have heard it contended that the Apostle Paul disapproved of marriage, but sanctioned relations in which there was promise to marry (see I. Cor. 7:36). Is that a true statement of his meaning?

By no means. He would have been horrified at such a construction being put on his words. He was writing to Christians in a very corrupt city, and in a time of persecution and distress, and he advised them not to marry, because of the uncertainty of their situation, and because it might be necessary to remove quickly and to be free from embarrassing ties. The passage you refer to is a qualification of his previous words. A father need not in every case insist on his daughter remaining unmarried. There were some girls who would gladly remain unmarried that they might the more freely serve Christ, but there were others who were unfitted for a single life. They might marry, there was no sin in it.

Miss Emma B. H., Willard, N. Y. If I should wish to send money or literature to the soldiers at any time would you give me the address, or you can also give me the address of some soldier whom you know to be needy?

Our soldiers are not "needy" in the sense of lacking clothing or food; but they need War Testaments and other Christian literature to help awaken their spiritual natures. Any money sent to us for this purpose will be applied in distributing War Testaments and other literature. The Testaments are issued by THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, and go into the vest pocket. We will supply them at ten for $1, or will send them to troops in camp at the same rate. Other literature is supplied by Mr Moody's colportage department.

Inquirer, Cattskill, N. Y. 1. What was the first book published in the New World? 2. The first wood engraving?

1. The first book published in America is said to be Juan de Estrada's Escala Espiritual para Llegar al Cielo (Spiritual Ladder for Reaching Heaven), and was printed in 1537, by Juan Pablos, first printer in this hemisphere, and foreman of the first American publishing house. 2. The title-page of Juan Gerson's Tripartito, published 1544. It was in Mexico that the industry of book publishing had its beginning in America.

L. S., Sterling, Mo., Oct. 7th. Can some of your readers give me the name of the minister who some twenty years ago wrote the poem, "A Voice from Heaven." The first stanza reads as follows:

I come to the light of God,
Its [illegible] on my brow,
Into the valley of death my feet have trod,
And I stand on the shore now.

Some reader may be able to send to this inquirer the information sought.

[illegible], Ind., Nov. 5, 1898. [illegible] where did the [illegible] 2. When [illegible] [illegible] 3. [illegible] [illegible] 4. How [illegible] [illegible] 5. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

BAPTISTS IN CONVENTION.

The Great Convention in Buffalo, N. Y., the Week of the Baptist Young People's Union.

THURSDAY, July 14, will be a memorable day among the Baptist young people throughout the country. It is the day fixed for the assem-of the Eighth International Convention of the Young People's Union at Buffalo, N. Y. Our readers will be glad to see on this page a picture of the city which is to do duty as a Convention hall, and portraits of the President, John H. Chapman, and the General Secretary, Rev. E. E. Chivers, D.D. Preparations have been made for the reception of an enormous number of delegates, and it looks as if even these will be ample to meet the demand.

DR. E. E. CHIVERS.
(Secretary of B. Y. P. U.)

The Committee in charge of the Convention has prepared a programme of very attractive features in which the educational department as characteristic of the Union is kept prominent. On Thursday the opening session will be devoted to addresses of welcome and the appointment of Committees. Two addresses will follow; One of these is to be by Dr. Gumbart, of Boston; and the other by Dr. Small, of Chicago. In the afternoon Dr. Burnham, of Hamilton, N. Y.; Prof. R. Rhees, of Newton Centre, Mass.; and Oliver Exegetical addresses, simultaneously in churches near at the disposal of the Convention. In the Convention Hall Chivers will read the annual report and Mr. Frank Moody, of Milwaukee will explain the financial situation of the Union. Other addresses are to be delivered dealing respectively with the past, present and future of the organization. There can be no denominational rallies in this Convention after the order of the Christian Endeavor Conventions, since all the delegates are Baptists, but there are to be Denominational Rallies which will be very interesting. At the evening session the banners for proficiency in the Christian Culture Course and the Sacred Literature Course will be awarded and the President will deliver his annual address.

On Friday the sessions begin at 6.30 A. M. with a Sunrise prayer-meeting in four churches, in each of which a well-known pastor will deliver an address. The regular morning session in the Convention Hall will be devoted to the consideration of Mission. Social Reform and Junior Work under the general classification of Workers in Council. The afternoon session will be a fellowship meeting with a roll call of the States. At the evening meeting the Educational Plan for the ensuing year will be unfolded and discussed.

Saturday's proceedings begin with the three early morning prayer meetings in three churches, led as before by well-known pastors. The morning convention in the armory is a novel one at these gatherings, being devoted to hymns and tunes. This will surely be an exceedingly interesting meeting. It will be conducted by Rev. F. S. Dobbins of Philadelphia. The afternoon is to be given up to an excursion to Niagara Falls. In the evening there will be Rallies on a larger basis. Each of the four sections into which the territorial work of the Union is divided will be represented by delegates from that section.

On Sunday the early morning prayer-meetings are to be held at 9 o'clock. The Convention sermon will be preached by Rev. B. D. Thomas, D.D., of Toronto. At the evening session in the Convention Hall addresses will be delivered by Dr. R. B. Hall of Brooklyn and Dr. H. W. W. Battle of Richmond, Va. The whole to conclude with a solemn consecration service.

An interesting addition to the Convention will be a two days assemblage on Monday and Tuesday of German-speaking members of the Union, who will meet in the rooms of the German Y. M. C. A. of Buffalo. The subjects of this Convention are of a practical character, and include Prayer Meetings; Methods of Bible Study; Literary Meetings; and Missionary Meetings. A series of papers on "Soul-Saving" will occupy one of the meetings. Each paper will be devoted to one special aspect of this momentous subject, such as "The Work of Christ," "The Work of the Holy Spirit," "The Influence of the Bible," and "The Work of Song in the Salvation of the Soul." Another series of papers is devoted to the "Object and Work of the Young People's Union." The German branch is evidently intensely in earnest, and has made a programme which will stimulate earnestness in all who attend the meetings.

The distinguishing feature of the German, as well as the English Baptist Young People's Union, is the continuity of its course of studies. The Christian En-

SEVENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT ARMORY, BUFFALO, N. Y.,
Where the B. Y. P. U. Convention will be Held.

deavor Society has for some time used subjects in many instances parallel with the International Sunday School Lessons, which may be a wise course for Sunday School teachers, who have little time to spare for study. Our Baptist friends appear to have assumed that every member of the Union will make an effort to get up a special study, and the Convention shows that the result has been satisfactory to the managers. They are to be congratulated.

"The Angels of the Tenements."

(Continued from first page.)

Although the June roses are gone, there are hundreds of other varieties of flowers adorning the meadows and hillsides, and parties of our little folks spend happy hours posy-gathering. The games on the lawn and the swings that go high up into the trees, keep the children gay and busy from morning till night. Then, there is the chapel where they gather to little song and prayer services, and to hear some good missionary who talks to children about Jesus, whose love has brought all these wonderful blessings, without money and without price, into their lives.

The hearts of our people and their prayers (as well as the gifts of their hands), are in this work, and we assure them that their words of sympathy and encouragement are of great value. We give below

MR. JOHN CHAPMAN.
(President B. Y. P. U.)

extracts from a few of the many, many kind and sustaining letters received:

Mrs. H. E., Angelica, N. Y. ($3). To give some poor little waif the pleasure of an outing in the country. Though a "shut-in" myself, I can look out on the green fields and see the glorious works of God in nature. This for the love of Jesus.

A. M., Nova Scotia ($1). Please accept this mite for the little ones to whom you are giving so much comfort.

Mrs. T. A. L. and Mrs. W. L., Wacousta, Mich. ($6). For sending two little waifs to Mont-Lawn.

E. W., Treas. Y. P. S. C. E., Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. ($7). Accept our sympathy and good wishes for the continuance of the help you are giving to helpless little children. We wish we had thousands to send. May Mont-Lawn be a happy playground this summer.

S. E. L., Oil City, Pa., sends $1 as a memorial gift and writes: "My mother, who is in her eightieth year, has been greatly interested in the Mont-Lawn movement, since its inception, and desired to contribute to its sustenance, but limited means prevented her doing so. Unexpectedly a ten dollar gold piece came into her possession, and she at once said, 'A tenth of it shall go to Mont-Lawn for the dear children.' Father was taken to his heavenly home last year. He, too, was interested in the dear children, and with mother used often to talk of what they would like to do for Mont-Lawn if they were able."

Children Hartford Co. Home. $1.68 contributed by the children of this home being interested in other unfortunate children.

A friend, Waynestown ($6). Hope it may give a good time to two dear little suffering children. God bless you in this work for suffering little ones is the prayer of one who sympathizes with them.

Anna and Mamma, State Mills, O. ($3), for the summer outing of some poor little child who needs the fresh air. I hope your fresh air fund may grow and grow till all the neglected little ones are cared for. Our hearts go out in sympathy and love to each one. Yours for the little ones.

J. C. and M. O., State Orphan's Home, Mont. ($2). Hope it may bless some little one's life, "In His Name."

A. T., Hartford, Ill. ($1). I wish I could send more.

R. J. K., Hermosillo, Sonora, Mex. ($10). The Lord's Tenth.

K. A., Greenwich, N. Y. ($10). From one that believes that in helping the child you begin at the foundation, and thereby help the whole community.

These contributions in aid of our Fresh Air Fund were received during the week:

Prev. ack'd	$807 25	Mrs Chas C Bennett	2 00
L E Tefft	2 00	M M B. Brookly	1 00
Cash, Paterson	20 00	C. Richford	2 00
L V M, Somerville	1 00	E. JS. Brooklyn	1 00
HN, New Haven	2 00	Mrs S Eston	1 00
W A Hines	2 00	Mrs John Tranb	1 00
S C S, Cresco	3 00	L A Frissel	2 00
J S Francis	1 00	Mrs David Brown	50 00
Mrs S A Lyon	3 00	Martha Christy	2 00
Mrs Wm Ide	3 00	Friend, Channcey	5 00
Miss A Thatcher	1 00	W L Moselly	1 00
Miss Ennice Cooley	5 00	Mrs C E Wilmarth	5 00
Jennie Cox	1 00	Mrs E A Drew	2 00
Mary Oliver	1 00	Eliabeth Davis	5 00
Emma Cockin	1 00	G G Mauzy	5 00
M S C, Mexia	1 00	Mrs C H Canldwell	3 00
Anna & Mama, Slate Mills	3 00	In the name of Harold
S G, Charleston	5 00	C Milford	2 00
Subr, Mrs H C, Saratoga Spgs	5 00	God's Tenth, New York	10 00
A M Larkin	3 00	Mrs H R Mosley	1 00
Friend, Waynesboro	6 00	Margt E Crittenden	5 00
Friend Brady Island	20 00	C Keates	2 00
One in the Master's Service, Brussels	2 00	M E Reed	1 00
F E N, Scranton	4 00	Friend, N Y City	1 00
Mrs Issie Bontwell	2 00	Mabel Cornin	50
Mrs E G S, Phila	10 00	A F Richmond	1 00
John B Wood	1 00	A L Mattson	1 00
I H N	1 00	Mrs C J Mattern	1 00
Newton, M S	6 00	May Flower	3 00
Heidenrich, Julius	50	L T C, Woodlake	3 00
Davis, Mrs F B	1 00	I H N, Hnstonville	3 00
Taylor, G	75	Unnamed, Monroe	6 00
Durfee Mrs H	1 00	Friend, Milford	3 00
T H Libbey	1 00	I H N, Woodlake	1 00
Florence, Flushing	3 00	J C Rehkopf	5 00
		Jos P Tanner	10
		Total	$861.10

All contributions should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York, and they will be acknowledged in these columns.

Clothing for Our Children's Home.

If the fathers and mothers of snugly and nicely-dressed little boys and girls could only look upon a group of our tenement children, many of whom are in rags and tatters, it would instantly occur to them that much good could be done by sending suitable clothing to Matron Collins at Mont-Lawn. Many garments are needed, for the Home takes pains to give each little lad and lass a decent outfit—a blessing for which poor tenement mothers are profoundly grateful. Thanks are returned to our readers for generous remembrance in past seasons; and also to those good friends whose timely contributions are acknowledged below, and who have already received a personal letter of thanks from Matron Collins. Donations of clothing should be sent prepaid to Matron of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y.; cash contributions to this paper. Since last week the following has been received:

Mrs. M. C. Rich, twenty-six dresses for the children; M. W. Aitherton, package of clothing; Juliet E. Watkins, package of clothing; Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, Middleboro, Mass., package of clothing; Mrs. Robert Cunningham, package of clothes; Miss Livonia Greene, package of clothing.

An Indian Pompeii.

ONE of the mysteries of India is a buried city, near the present city of Ujjain. A missionary of the Canadian Presbyterian Board writes concerning it, as follows.

"One day more than two thousand years ago, while the women were grinding at the mill and the men performing their daily labor, an earthquake suddenly overthrew this city, completely burying the houses and the unfortunate people. All was over in a few seconds. Nothing was to be seen of that great city except a mountain of earth. Those who escaped had no desire to molest the peaceful habitation of the dead. Having heard so many reports concerning this wonderful place, I visited the old city. I was struck with awe on first viewing the place, the thought of thousands of people being buried alive without an opportunity of preparation for death made me think of Sodom and Gomorrah. The petrified bones of human beings are distinctly visible in many parts, as are the walls of houses and drinking vessels of different designs. I removed many of these and loaded myself with relics. The continuous rains wash the earth from its concealed treasures, and the 'pickings,' as they are called, are sold annually to the highest bidder. Coins, nails, ivory and brassware are yearly revealed. Many valuable stones, including diamonds, are said to have been found. After this catastrophe a new city was founded which is known as the present city of Ujjain, situated about half a mile from their buried ancestors. It contains 30,000 people, and is one of the old sacred cities of India."

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

SELF-SLAUGHTER.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Acts 16: 28, ...

Do thyself no harm.

HERE is a would-be suicide arrested in his deadly attempt. He was a sheriff, and, according to the Roman law, a bailiff himself must suffer the punishment due an escaped prisoner: and if the prisoner breaking jail was sentenced to be endungeoned for three or four years, then the sheriff must be endungeoned for three or four years, and if the prisoner breaking jail was to have suffered capital punishment, then the sheriff must suffer capital punishment. The sheriff had received especial charge to keep a sharp lookout for Paul and Silas. The government had not much confidence in bolts and bars to keep safe these two clergymen, about whom there seemed to be something strange and supernatural. Sure enough, by miraculous power, they are free, and the sheriff, waking out of a sound sleep, and supposing these ministers have run away, and knowing that they were to die for preaching Christ, and realizing that he must therefore die, rather than go under the executioner's axe on the morrow and suffer public disgrace, resolves to precipitate his own decease. But before the sharp, keen, glittering dagger of the sheriff could strike his heart, one of the unloosened prisoners arrests the blade by the command, "Do thyself no harm."

In olden times, and where Christianity had not interfered with it, suicide was considered honorable and a sign of courage. Demosthenes poisoned himself when told that Alexander's ambassador had demanded the surrender of the Athenian orators. Isocrates killed himself rather than surrender to Philip of Macedon. Cato, rather than submit to Julius Caesar, took his own life, and three times after his wounds had been dressed, tore them open and perished. Mithridates killed himself rather than submit to Pompey, the conqueror. Hannibal destroyed his life by poison from his ring, considering life unbearable. Lycurgus a suicide, Brutus a suicide. After the disaster of Moscow, Napoleon always carried with him a preparation of poison, and one night his servant heard the ex-Emperor arise, put something in a glass and drink it, and soon after the groans aroused all the attendants, and it was only through utmost medical skill that he was resuscitated. Times have changed, and yet the American conscience needs to be toned up on the subject of suicide. Have you seen a paper in the last month that did not announce the passage out of life by one's own behest? Defaulters, alarmed at the idea of exposure, quit life precipitately. Men losing large fortunes go out of the world because they cannot endure earthly existence. Frustrated affection, domestic infelicity, dyspeptic impatience, anger, remorse, envy, jealousy, destitution, misanthropy, are considered sufficient causes for absconding from this life by paris green, by laudanum, by belladonna, by Othello's dagger, by water, by leap from the abutment of a bridge, by fire arms. More cases of felo de se in the last two years than any two years of the world's existence, and more in the last month than in any twelve months. The evil is more and more spreading.

A pulpit not long ago expressed some doubt as to whether there was really anything wrong about quitting this life when it becomes disagreeable, and there are found in respectable circles people apologetic for the crime which Paul in the text arrested. I shall show you before I get through that suicide is the worst of all crimes, and I shall lift a warning unmistakable. But in the early part of this sermon I wish to admit that some of the best Christians that have ever lived, have committed self-destruction, but always in dementia, and not responsible. I have no more doubt about their eternal felicity than I have of the Christian who dies in his bed in the delirium of typhoid fever. While the shock of the catastrophe is very great, I charge all those who have had Christian friends under cerebral aberration step off the boundaries of this life, to have no doubt about their happiness. The dear Lord took them right out of their dazed and frenzied state into perfect safety. How Christ feels towards the insane you may know from the way he treated the demoniac of Gadara and the child lunatic, and the potency with which he hushed tempests either of sea or brain.

Scotland, the land prolific of intellectual giants, had none grander than Hugh Miller. Great for science and great for God. He was an elder in St. John's Presbyterian Church. He came of the best Highland blood, and was a descendant of Donald Roy, a man eminent for piety and the rare gift of second sight. His attainments, climbing up as he did from the quarry and the wall of the stone-mason, drew forth the astonished admiration of Buckland and Murchison, the scientists, and Dr. Chalmers, the theologian, and held universities spellbound while he told them the story of what he had seen of God in The Old Red Sandstone. That man did more than any other being that ever lived to show that the God of the hills is the God of the Bible, and he struck his tuning-fork on the rocks of Cromarty until he brought geology and theology accordant in divine worship. His two books, entitled Footprints of the Creator and The Testimony of the Rocks, proclaimed the banns of an everlasting marriage between genuine science and revelation. On this latter book he toiled day and night, through love of nature and love of God, until he could not sleep and his brain gave way, and he was found dead with a revolver by his side, the cruel instrument having had two bullets—one for him and the other for the gunsmith, who at the coroner's inquest was examining it and fell dead. Have you any doubt of the beatification of Hugh Miller after his hot brain had ceased throbbing that winter night in his study at Portobello? Among the mightiest of earth, among the mightiest of heaven.

No one doubted the piety of William Cowper, the author of those three great hymns, "O, for a Closer Walk with God." "What Various Hindrances We Meet." "There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood" —William Cowper, who shares with Isaac Watts and Charles Wesley the chief honors of Christian hymnology. In hypochondria he resolved to take his own life, and rode to the river Thames, but found a man seated on some goods at that very point from which he expected to spring, and rode back to his home, and that night threw himself upon his own knife, but the blade broke; and then he hanged himself to the ceiling, but the rope broke. No wonder that when God mercifully delivered him from that awful dementia he sat down and wrote that other hymn just as memorable:

> "God moves in a mysterious way,
> His wonders to perform;
> He plants his footsteps in the sea,
> And rides upon the storm.
>
> "Blind unbelief is sure to err
> And scan his work in vain;
> God is his own interpreter,
> And He will make it plain."

While we make this merciful and righteous allowance in regard to those who were plunged into mental incoherence, I declare that the man who, in the use of his reason, by his own act, snaps the bond between his body and his soul, goes straight into perdition. Assassination of others is a mild crime compared with the assassination of yourself, because in the latter case it is treachery to an especial trust; it is the surrender of a castle you were especially appointed to keep; it is treason to a natural law, and it is treason to God added to ordinary murder.

To show how God in the Bible looked upon this crime, I point you to the rogues' picture gallery in some parts of the Bible, the pictures of the people who have committed this unnatural crime. Here is the headless trunk of Saul on the walls of Bethshan. Here is the man who chased little David—seven feet in stature chasing four. Here is the man who consulted a clairvoyant, Witch of Endor. Here is a man who, whipped in battle, instead of surrendering his sword with dignity, as many a man has done, asks his servant to slay him, and when that servant declined, then the giant plants the hilt of his sword in the earth, the sharp point sticking upward, and he throws his body on it and expires—the coward, the suicide! Here is Ahithophel, the Machiavelli of olden times, betraying his best friend, David, in order that he may become prime minister of Absalom, and joining that fellow in his attempt at parricide. Not getting what he wanted by change of politics, he takes a short cut out of a disgraceful life into the suicide's eternity. There he is, the ingrate!

Here is Abimelech, practically a suicide. He is with an army, bombarding a tower, when a woman in the tower takes a grindstone from its place and drops it upon his head, and with what life he has left in his cracked skull he commands his armor-bearer: "Draw thy sword and slay me, lest men say a woman slew me." There is his post-mortem photograph in the Book of Samuel.

But the hero of this group is Judas Iscariot. Dr. Donne says he was a martyr, and we have in our day apologists for him. And what wonder, in this day when we have a book revealing Aaron Burr as a pattern of virtue, and this day when we uncover a statue of George Sand as the benefactress of literature, and in this day when there are betrayals of Christ on the part of some of his pretended apostles—a betrayal so black it makes the infamy of Judas Iscariot white! Yet this man by his own hand hung up for the execration of all ages, Judas Iscariot.

All the good men and women of the Bible left to God the decision of their earthly terminus, and they could have said with Job, who had a right to commit suicide if any man ever had, what with his destroyed property and his body all aflame with insufferable carbuncles and everything gone from his home except the chief curse of it, a pestiferous wife and four garrulous people pelting him with comfortless talk while he sits on a heap of ashes scratching his scabs with a piece of broken pottery, yet crying out in triumph: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come."

Notwithstanding the Bible is against this evil, and the aversion which it creates by the loathsome and ghastly spectacle of those who have hurled themselves out of life, and notwithstanding Christianity is against it and the arguments and the useful lives and the illustrious deaths of its disciples, it is a fact alarmingly patent that suicide is on the increase. What is the cause? I charge upon infidelity and agnosticism this whole thing. If there be no hereafter, or if that hereafter be blissful without reference to how we live and how we die, why not move back, the folding doors between this world and the next? And when our existence here becomes troublesome why not pass right over into Elysium? Put this down among your most solemn reflections: There has never been a case of suicide where the operator was not either demented, and therefore irresponsible, or an infidel. I challenge all the ages and I challenge the universe. There never has been a case of self-destruction while in full appreciation of his immortality and of the fact that that immortality would be glorious or wretched according as he accepted Jesus Christ or rejected him.

You say it is a business trouble or you say it is electrical currents or it is this or it is that or it is the other thing. Why not go clear back, my friend, and acknowledge that in every case it is the abdication of reason or the teaching of infidelity, which practically says: "If you don't like this life get out of it, and you will land either in annihilation, where there are no notes to pay, no persecutions to suffer, no gout to torment, or you will land where there will be everything glorious and nothing to pay for it." Infidelity has always been apologetic for self-immolation. After Tom Paine's "Age of Reason" was published and widely read there was a marked increase of self-slaughter.

A man in London heard Mr. Owen deliver his infidel lecture on socialism, and went home, sat down, and wrote these words: "Jesus Christ is one of the weakest characters in history, and the Bible the greatest possible deception," and then shot himself. David Hume wrote the words: "It would be no crime for me to divert the Nile or the Danube from their natural bed. Where, then, can be the crime in my diverting a few drops of blood from their ordinary channel?" And having written the essay he loaned it to a friend, the friend read it, wrote a letter of thanks and admiration, and shot himself. Appendix to the same book.

Rousseau, Voltaire, Gibbon, Montaigne were apologetic for self-immolation. Infidelity puts up no bar to people rushing out from this world into the next. They tell us it does not make any difference how you live here or go out of this world; you will land either in an oblivious nowhere or a glorious somewhere. And infidelity holds the upper end of the rope for the suicide, and aims the pistol with which man blows his brains out, and mixes the strychnine for the last swallow. If infidelity could carry the day and persuade the majority of people in this country that it does not make any difference how you go out of this world you will land safely, the Potomac would be so full of corpses the boats would be impeded in their progress, and the crack of the suicide's pistol would be no more alarming than the tinkle of a street-car.

Would God that the coroners would be brave in rendering the right verdict. Now when in a case of irresponsibility they say: "While this man was demented he took his life;" in the other case, "Having read infidel books and attended infidel lectures, which obliterated from this man's mind all appreciation of future retribution, he committed self-slaughter."

Have nothing to do with an infidelity so cruel, so debasing. Come out of that unbelieving company into the company of those who believe the Bible. Benjamin Franklin wrote: "Of this Jesus of Nazareth I dare to say that the system of morals he taught and the religion he has given us are the best things the world has ever seen or is likely to see." Isaac Newton, the leading philosopher of his time—what did he say? "The sublimest philosophy on earth here philosophy of the Gospel." David Webster, at the pronunciation of whose name every scientist the world over bows his head; David Brewster, saying: "Oh, his religion has been a great light to me, a very great light all my days." President Thiers, the great French statesman, acknowledging that he prayed when he died. "I invoke the Lord God, in whom I am glad to believe." David Livingstone came to conquer the lion, able to conquer the panther, able to conquer the savage yet conquered by this heaven-sent religion, so when they find him dead they find him on his knees.

Salmon P. Chase, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States appointed by President Lincoln, will take the witness stand. "Chief Justice, will you please to state what you have to say about the book commonly called the Bible." The witness replies: "There came a time in my life when I doubted the divinity of the Scriptures, and I resolved as a lawyer and judge I would try the case as I would try anything in the court on taking evidence for and against. I was a long and serious and profound doubter, and using the same principles of evidence in this religious matter as I always do in secular matters, I have come to the conclusion that the Bible is a supernatural book, that it has come from God, and that the only safety for the human race is to obey its teachings." "Judge, that will do. Go back again to your pillow of dust on the banks of the Ohio." Next I put upon the witness stand a President of the United States—John Quincy Adams. "President Adams, what have you to say about the Bible and Christianity?" The President replies: "I have for many years made a practice to read through the Bible once a year. My custom is to read four or five chapters every morning immediately on rising from my bed. It employs about the hour of my time, and seems to me the most suitable manner of beginning the day. In what light soever we regard the Bible, whether with reference to revelation, to history or to morality, it is the most valuable and inexhaustible mine of knowledge and virtue." "Chancellor Kent, what do you think of the Bible?" Answer: "No other book ever addressed itself so authoritatively and so pathetically to the judgment and moral sense of mankind oung men of America, come out of the e of infidels — mostly made up of cks and imbeciles—into the company ntellectual giants, and turn your back n infidelity which destroys body and h! Infidelity, stand up and take thy eence! In the presence of God, anand men, stand up, thou monster!

lip blasted with blasphemy, thy k scarred with uncleanness, thy foul with the corruption of the Stand up, Satyr, filthy goat, buzzard e nations, leper of enturies! Stand up, monster. Infidel-
Part man, part her, part reptile, dragon, stand up
ake thy sentence!
hands red with the d in which thou washed, thy feet son with the hu-gore through thou hast waded.
up and take thy eence! Down with to the pit, and sup
e sobs and groans
se thou hast deed, and let thy mu-
e the everlasting rere of those whom hast damned! I d the forehead of delity with all the es of self-immolation for the last ery on the part of those who had reason.

y friends, if ever your life, through its sions and its molestations, should em to be unbearable, and you are tempt-to quit it by your own behest, do not sider yourself as worse than others.
ist himself was tempted to cast him-from the roof of the temple, but as he ted, so resist ye. Christ came to icine all wounds. In your trouble I scribe life instead of death. People have had it worse than you will ever it, have gone songfully on their way.
Remember that God keeps the chronology your life with as much precision as he s the chronology of nations, your e as well as your cradle. Why was it at midnight, just at midnight, the deying angel struck the blow that set the Israelites free from bondage? The four dred and thirty years were up at twelve o'clock that night. The four hundred and y years were not up at eleven, and one ock would have been tardy and too late.
four hundred and thirty years were up elve o'clock, and the destroying angel ck the blow, and Israel was free. And God knows just the hour when it is time to e you up from earthly bondage. By race, make not the worst of things, he best of them. If you must take pills do not chew them. Your ever-ng rewards will accord with your mity perturbations, just as Caius gave Agrippa a chain of gold as heavy had been a chain of iron. For the ng you may have the same grace that given the Italian martyr, Algerius, down in the darkest of dungeons.
d his letters from "the delectable ord of the Leonine prison." And reber that this brief life is surrounded rim, a very thin but very important and close up to that rim is a great ity, and you had better keep out of it
God breaks that rim and separates from that. To get rid of the sorrows rth, do not rush into greater sorrows.
et rid of a swarm of summer insects, not into a jungle of Bengal tigers.

here is a sorrowless world, and it is so ant that the noonday sun is only the st doorstep, and the aurora that lights ar northern heavens, confounding asmers as to what it can be, is the way t the banners of the procession come ke the conquerors home from church ant to church triumphant, and you al have ten thousand reasons for want-go there, but we will never get there r by self-immolation or impenitency.
ur sins slain by Christ who came to at thing, we want to go in at just the ivinely arranged, and from a couch ely spread, and then the clang of the ulchral gates behind us will be over-red by the clang of the opening of olid pearl before us. O God! What-others may choose, give me a Chris-
's life, a Christian's death, a Chris-
's burial, a Christian's immortality!

MANHEIM'S FEAST OF ROSES.

A Unique and Beautiful Memorial Service—The Payment of "One Red Rose" a Year as a Church Rental—Baron Stiegel's Generous Gift.

THE Feast of Roses, celebrated Sunday, June 12, 1898, at Zion Lutheran Church, Manheim, Pa., marks the recurrence of a most unique and interesting memorial service. Previous to 1770, the land on which the church stands was given to the Lutherans of Manheim by Baron Henry William Stiegel, "for the sum of five shillings, to make the deed lawful, and the annual rental of 'one red rose' in the month of June forever."

In fulfilment of this contract, the Feast of Roses is annually celebrated in Manheim on the second Sunday in June, when rental is paid, and the people bring to the church many roses as tribute to the dead Baron's memory.

MISS ANNIE L. BOYS.
GREAT GRAND-DAUGHTER OF BARON STEIGEL.

MRS. R. K. BOYS.
GREAT GRAND-DAUGHTER OF BARON STIEGEL.

MR. JOHN C. STIEGEL.
FOUNDER OF THE "FEAST OF ROSES."

DR. J. H. SERLING.
GREAT GRAND-SON OF BARON STIEGEL.

MRS. E. M. LUTHER.
THE OLDEST LIVING DESCENDANT.

The late celebration, beginning with Sunday School exercises, covered an entire day of rejoicing. The memorial sermon, by R. S. G. Hefelbower and followed by prayer led by Rev. S. C. Enck, preceded the historical addresses which came from Prof. M. D. Learned and members of the Lancaster Historical Society. A poem, "Baron Stiegel's Coming Home," was eloquently recited by Mrs. Binkley, wife of the author. The song service consisted of a noble organ voluntary, Prof. Her's anthem, "The Queen of Flowers," and many beautiful Gospel hymns rendered by choir and congregation. Then came the payment of the rose by the pastor, its acceptance by the heirs, benediction by Rev. T. S. Minker, and lastly contributions of roses by the congregation until the stand placed for their reception, and looking like a mighty rose-tree, was indeed a beautiful monument to the long-dead benefactor of Zion Church, the mysterious and eccentric German who had combined with his strange feudal ideas and practices so much Christian kindliness.

Henrich Wilhelm Stiegel, born, it is said, in Manheim, Germany, arrived in Philadelphia in 1750, young, highly educated, bearing the title of Baron, and bringing with him about $200,000 to invest in the wonderful New World. He married Elizabeth Huber, and purchased from his father-in-law one of the largest furnace properties in the United States, upon which he erected a nine new furnace which he called "Elizabeth," from which the township received its name. The first stove product of his factory were the curious jamb-stoves, without pipe or oven, and were walled into the kitchen fireplace, with the brick projecting into the adjoining room. Improvements followed, and excellent ten-plate wood-stoves resulted, and people came from far and near to see them. Stiegel was now one of the greatest iron-masters in Pennsylvania. The Elizabeth furnace supplied many people with work, and the Baron with much money. Seventy-five men were employed; twenty-five tenant houses stood near by; the furnace lands covered 900 acres. Near the site of the furnace stands a spacious sand-stone house which the Baron occupied during his monthly visits, and which is still called "The Mansion," a title which the simplicity of surrounding neighbors gave it when imposing houses were rare. A number of servants were kept at the mansion to minister to the wants of the Baron and his friends.

1. OLD CHURCH AT MANHEIM. 2. ROSE-COVERED ALTAR IN THE NEW CHURCH.

In 1760, he became owner of a half interest in Charming Forge, near Womelsdorf, Berks County. In 1762, he purchased the land upon which Manheim now stands, laid out the town, gave the present name to it, built himself a handsome mansion, and in 1768 erected a great glass factory on Steigel and Charlotte streets, brought skilled workmen from Europe, and produced, at this, the only glass factory then in America, a very superior quality of glass, many pieces of which are in existence, and are much sought after by relic hunters. In 1769, he built a tower, or castle, seventy-five feet high, on a hill five miles from Elizabeth Furnace, and when he visited the castle or Elizabeth, his coming was announced in thundering tones from the tower by a signal gun. The hill still bears the name "Thurmberg (Tower Hill). He entertained a strange fear that some one might seek his life, consequently never traveled without postillions and a pack of hounds running ahead of the coach-and-four in which he journeyed, and the tower was built not only as a place of entertainment for friends, but as a place of safety against supposed enemies. At Manheim, when his approach was heralded, workmen gathered in the cupola of the chateau and played sweet strains of music, the people flocked to the house, and Stiegel entered the town amid these, the shouts of the inhabitants and the barking of dogs. To factory hands, wood-choppers and charcoal burners, his coming meant payday; to all it meant a good time. He treated his men exceedingly well; for those who were musically inclined, he bought instruments and hired teachers. He took great interest in their spiritual welfare, gathering them and others into the chapel of his house and preaching to them whenever opportunity offered.

His first wife died in 1758, leaving him two little children, Barbara and Elizabeth, and he married another Elizabeth—Miss Holtz, of Philadelphia. Their only son, Jacob, settled in Virginia soon after his father's death, and his descendants now reside in Harrisonburg. His second wife died in 1782, having lived long enough to suffer many reverses with him, and in 1783 the gifted, generous, and eccentric Baron passed to his long rest in the midst of extreme poverty. The poor workmen for whom the Baron had provided musical instruments and instruction, remembered, when rich friends forgot him, and paid him to teach their children, and those who had listened to his preaching in the chapel at the Mansion, came to hear him now. In various ways he sought to eke out a living until the end came in 1783, when he died at Charming Forge. The church which he helped to found, lively and vigorous, pays to his memory its loving debt and tribute of "one red rose."

Christ's Messengers in the Camps.

Zealous Evangelists Continue the Good Work Among Our Departing Troops—Many Conversions at the Gospel Gatherings—An Appeal for Aid.

THE Christian Commission has now about forty Gospel tents in operation in the various camps, each one in charge of a competent worker. Over 30,000 of the Army Hymn Books have been given away to the troops. It is a very common sight at Chickamauga to see groups of men sitting about singing Moody and Sankey hymns.

Secretary Long has just given the Commission permission to begin a work in the navy similar to that which they have been doing in the army. The Commission has, therefore, rented a large building at Key West, and fitted it up with good books, papers, writing materials, etc., for the use of the sailors who may come to that port. Attached to this station is a small sloop to be used to go from vessel to vessel in the harbor with Testaments and other good reading matter for which there is a great demand.

The Commission has sent Rev. D. S. Toy of Staten Island to Chickamauga to preach. It is not new work to him, as he has spent two years preaching at one of the army posts.

Christian Work at Camp Alger.

The Young Men's Christian Association has ten tents erected at suitable locations through which the association is aggressively operating. The daily attendance approximates ten thousand. The total number of letters daily written reaches the four thousand mark. Some days the reported conversions reach more than half a hundred. The attendance at the various meetings is increasing every night. Those who left home as Christians, voluntarily come into the tents and make themselves known, proudly showing their colors. These men render valuable assistance in our work. Numbers of them who are not members of the Y. M. C. A. say they will join as soon as the war is over, and in the future will be among the Association's warmest supporters. One man remarked the other day that if Christianity will do such work for soldiers, it is worth thinking about. He has not yet accepted Jesus as his Lord, but continues to be under conviction, and is a regular attendant at the meetings.

Frank W. Smith of Andersonville prison fame, is here and will spend some weeks in camp conducting series of five or six meetings at each tent.

Major Whittle's Letter.

CAMP THOMAS, Chickamauga, Ga.

The interest among the soldiers has deepened since my last letter. In our fourteen meetings last Sunday at least 500 men asked for prayers and there were many decisions. Last night at Mr. Torrey's meeting with First Arkansas, there were forty or fifty professed conversions, and about the same number at Mr. Schivera's with Fifty second Iowa. Maxwell and I were at First South Carolina, and had, perhaps, the most fruitful meeting I have held. Probably 600 men of the regiment were present. I think over 100 of them said they wanted to be Christians and over fifty of them came into the circle around our box and knelt on the ground to be prayed with and pointed to Christ. You can have no idea of the tenderness among these to whom we preach and their sympathy with the messages we give them. The Spirit of God goes before us to every regiment, and we are all seeing the most delightful experience of our lives in preaching Christ. The camps of different regiments are far scattered, that we could tonight three regiments where we were last night, and tomorrow's [illegible] have to be made to reach the men. We could have twelve meetings a day.

There is every prospect that 50,000 men will be home in this camp through the winter, and by God's blessing we can have [illegible] converted.

We are [illegible] located to leave on a hike and will pitch another living tent this week which will give us accommodations for eight workers. D. W. WHITTLE.

Rev. R. A. Torrey in the Work.

CAMP THOMAS, Chickamauga, Ga.

I spoke four times yesterday, to Third Tennessee, First Vermont, in the theatre to men from many regiments, First Mississippi and Second Kentucky. At the theatre forty one men definitely professed to care for God as lost sinners and to take Christ as a Saviour and to begin to confess him openly as Lord and Master and live day by day so as to please him. There were many also at other meetings.

R. A. TORREY.

Rev. Dr. Wharton's Labors.

Rev. H. M. Wharton, the well-known evangelist, writes to us from Tampa, as follows:

It is not generally known that there is a definite plan of organized evangelistic work here, and that this organization is being perfected and expanded daily. The organization is known as the Army Christian Commission of the International Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations. There is an evangelistic branch of this work of which Mr. D. L. Moody is Chairman. The plan is to have a tent for every regiment, and in this tent men are provided with a reading-place, tables and stationery for letter-writing, good literature and a pocket Testament for each. Evangelistic services are held at these tents, but are not confined to them, open-air meetings being held all through the camps.

Since I have been here I have gone to the different camps and held meetings. It is perfectly easy to have a meeting anywhere, at any time, provided the men are not at drill or taking their meals. Just get a box for a platform and start to sing or talk and you will have a good and ever-increasing audience at once.

Mr. Frank Mahan, the efficient manager of the Army Commission work here, is peculiarly fitted for the important mission. He is a man of business experience and blessed with common sense and religion. He is popular, energetic, and industrious. The tents are always crowded with soldiers when they are off duty, and afford a pleasant and profitable resort to them.

The purpose is to follow the army. Two evangelists will go to the Philippines, and two with the next expedition to Cuba. A half dozen more good evangelists could be usefully employed here. Never have I seen men more eager to hear the truth or more willing to receive it. Besides, the opportunity for personal work is ever at hand. Letters are received from mothers or other friends about the boys; we go to the regiment and company and find them. They are ready and anxious to have you talk to them. Only yesterday, I was looking for a young fellow, and was told by his Colonel that he was in the guard tent "a prisoner" as they call them. Permission was given me to talk to him.

Here is an extract from a letter such as is often received: "I have a boy who enlisted; and, indeed, he is nothing but a boy, only seventeen years old. I allowed him to go, hoping I was doing what was for the best, but to-day I received a letter from one of the soldier boys, saying he was not keeping good company and was yielding to the temptation to drink. He has always been a good boy while at home, has never given me any trouble in his life. You can hardly imagine how I feel in receiving such news. I have been trying hard to submit to his being called away from me, but to have him go, and if he returns at all to have him come back with his life blighted by that terrible drink habit; I could better stand his death on the battlefield if I knew that he had fallen in battle as he lived at home, a pure boy. He has only written once, but it was a very pretty letter. Please look after my dear child."

The weather here is a little hot to be sure, but the nights are cool and there are no sunstrokes.

H. M. WHARTON.

Helping the "Gospel Fund."

All having the spiritual welfare of our soldiers at heart, and who desire to aid in this evangelistic works at the camps may do so by sending their contributions addressed to the Camp Gospel Fund, care of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York. Such contributions will be used exclusively in defraying the absolutely necessary expenses incident to this evangelistic work. The opportunity is one that should most warmly commend itself to Christian men and women throughout the Union. "A word in season" to the departing soldier, who is about to leave for the front to face danger, and possibly never to return, may mean something far more precious than pen can express. The following have been received during the week:

Hamilton, Mrs D	1 20
Hamilton, Mrs W	1 00
Hayward, Chas & wife	5 00
Kass, Mrs W.	1 00
Keck, Mrs J	1 00
Logan, Mrs D H	20
McClland, Dr W	50
Masters, Mr & Mrs W F	10 00
Menifee, J N	5 00
Michael, Mary C & J T	2 00
Moore, Mrs A E & Mrs L Curtice	1 00
Moores, Mrs J H & family	3 25
Mosley, Mrs H R.	3 00
Noble, E S	2 00
Overton, Mrs M D	25
Preston, Mrs G M	50
Preston, Ralph	50
Pritchard, H H	2 00
Putnam, I L	2 00
Rellim, A H	1 00
Randell, Millie	50
Sawyer, Mrs & L H	50
Stewart, Mrs Almira	50
Tams, N G	66
Taylor, G	75
Thomas, Mrs Jane	1 00
Thomas, Marie E	1 00
Vaughn, Mrs H B	1 00
White, Mrs S A	25
Wilson, Mrs W	10
B L H, Kennett Sq	1 00
F M P C, Oak Park	2 00
H. Putnam.	2 50
J H L G, Skaneateles	1 00
W F O, Rochester	1 00
W S H, N Y City	1 00
——, Waterville	50
Cash, Paterson	5 00
Friend, Grand Haven	1 00
Friend, Jamaica	1 00
Friend, Sonyea	2 40
Friend, Watertown	1 50
I N S, Hnstonville	2 50
I H N, New Haven	1 50
For Jesus' Sake, Bason Harbor	40
A Soldier's Sister Lowell	1500
Total	$1300.56

Pres. Sch'l	$1209.85
Baird D	25
Bowing Mrs E	1 00
Brokow, Mr S D	25
Christy M [illegible]	5 00
Colbert, Mrs C S	2 00
Corette C	25
Cottenden, Margt E	2 00
Flower, May	2 00
Force, Mrs Henry	1 00
Gracy W A	2 00
Grant Robt	1 00

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

Spain's Second Fleet Destroyed—A Crushing Blow off Santiago — Operation by Land and Sea—The Dead and Wounded.

SUNDAY, July 3, will ever remain memorable in American history as the day on which the second and finest of Spain's fleets was utterly routed and destroyed by the American squadron under Rear-Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley off Santiago. All was quiet on the American warships keeping watch at the entrance to the bay when suddenly, about 9 A. M., the Spanish ships appeared at the entrance. It was instantly realized that they were making a dash for the open sea with the hope of escaping by their superior speed. The Cristobal Colon, Cervera's flagship, was leading, and close behind were the Vizcaya, Almirante Oquendo, Infanta Maria Teresa and the two torpedo-boat destroyers Pluton and Furor. Our ships instantly weighed anchor and prepared to attack the Spaniards. Foremost in the great battle that followed were the Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Oregon, Indiana, Iowa and Texas, supported by the other vessels of the fleet. Soon the guns were booming and the noise of Morro's cannon was added to the general fusilade. The American guns were served with deadly accuracy but the Spanish shells fell wide and rarely came near our ships. First to meet disaster was the Maria Teresa, which was greeted with a shower of shells and was soon beached, burning and helpless, on the rocks near Morro. The other ships kept up a running fight and soon all were out of the range of the guns of the fort. Our little converted cruiser Gloucester (formerly the yacht Corsair) was in the thick of the fight and wrecked the two torpedo-boat destroyers.

ADMIRAL CERVERA,
Commander of the Defeated Spanish Fleet.

The Indiana and Iowa followed the Vizcaya, and soon the gallant warship was helpless, her stern torn away, and flames issuing from her sides. As she ran ashore the Spanish flag came down, and the white flag of surrender was raised. Almost simultaneously the white flag went up on the Oquendo, and she, too, went ashore, burning on the beach. Meanwhile the flagship, the Colon, had outstripped all the others, and was apparently making for the sea. But the great vessel had received a mortal wound. Red flames burst from her sides, and a huge pillar of black smoke almost at times hid her from view. Sixty miles she ran, but at last, losing all hope of escape, she, too, struck her colors and headed for the beach. Our vessels had ceased firing, and came up with the purpose of saving the survivors. The Spanish loss of life was heavy, but through the entire action only one American life was sacrificed, the victim being George H. Ellis, chief yeoman of the flagship, Brooklyn, who was struck by the splinter of a shell.

Admiral Cervera was captured and led as a prisoner on board the Gloucester, where Capt. Wainwright placed his cabin at the disposal of the Admiral and his officers. Tears coursed down Cervera's cheeks as he came on board, and his staff, too, were visibly affected. After the little our crews dressed the wounds of the Spanish sailors and fed them. Our sailors took 1,600 prisoners in all, and many of the latter appeared to be half starved. Explosions took place on nearly all of the Spanish warships after being beached.

For two days previous to the great naval fight, our land troops had been actively engaging the Spanish armies around Santiago. Gen. Shafter, though ill of fever, personally directed the operations. Several of the fortified heights of San Juan, and the town of Caney were successively taken, and early on Friday, July 1, our army began the attack on Santiago City, the Cubans, under Gen. Garcia, assisting. The Spanish troops, under Gen. Linares, made a strong defence. At the close of the first day's fighting our losses in dead, wounded and missing were estimated at 1,000. Our troops had driven the Spaniards back from their hillside defences into the city, and the deserted trenches were full of Spanish dead and dying. Many Spaniards were taken prisoners. The battle was resumed the following day and it soon became evident that the down fall of the city would only be a question of a few hours. Gen. Vara del Rey had fallen in the field. Gen. Lawton and Commander Romero were both desperately wounded, and it was apparent that the Spaniards were discouraged by the continued advance of the Americans who were now closing their lines, like a vast, military cordon on three sides of the doomed city, making it impossible for it to be besieged to escape.

Gen. Shafter had now succeeded in bringing up his big siege guns and prepared to bombard the city. He was visited by the foreign consuls, who urged that the bombardment be postponed to allow the 20,000 non-combatants in the city to leave. Our total losses in the two days' battle are estimated at less than 2,000; those of the Spanish being greatly in excess of that figure.

"War Testaments" in Demand.

From many quarters orders are coming in for our new vest-pocket War Testaments (Army and Navy Edition), which are designed specially for supplying the soldiers and sailors with the New Testament in novel and convenient form. These Testaments (each with twenty Gospel Hymns specially selected by Mr. Sankey, bound in), will be sent to any address at the rate of ten for $1. All moneys sent for this purpose are applied to sending War Testaments to the troops in camp and at the front. The following contributions have been received:

Baker John R	2 00
Beall, A E	2 00
Bell, Mrs E A	25
Biederwulf, M	5 00
Boggs, Selina	50
Booth, Mrs.	1 00
Boshart, Wm	10 00
Boyce, Mrs M M & Mrs A Eager	2 00
Boyd, Wm A	50
Bruce, Mrs C J	50
Mrs L A Bruce	5 00
Coleman, D	1 00
Cook, Mrs Caroline H	2 00
Durfee, Mrs H.	2 00
Faloon, Ella	1 00
Farquharson, Mrs Sarah M	1 00
Fox, Edna	20 00
Fox, O P	5 00
Graham, Mrs Robert	5 00
Grant, Robert	1 00
Gray, Mrs L W	50
Greene, Ellen M	5 00
Helmer, C	50
Hill, Ira	25
Hines, W A	1 00
Holt, Mrs L W	1 00
Hostlander, Mrs	2 00
Jones, Mrs C A	5 00
Keates, C	50
Kimball, J P	1 25
Lafferts, Mrs E R	30
Larsen, Lars	1 00
Lees, Mrs Robert S	2 00
McNeil J	1 50
Michael, Mary C and J F	2 00
Miller, Mrs A	25 00
Miller, Alexander	25 00
Milroy W	1 00
Moore, L A	1 00
Nobles, Mrs S	50
Norton, Miss Carrie	1 00
Peirce, Mrs J K	1 00
Petersen, August	10 00
Pierce, Lana	1 00
Pollock, Mrs Mary	1 00
Pollock, Robert	1 00
Rellim, A H	1 00
Roger, D A	1 00
Randell, Millie	1 00
Sallada, W H	50
Smith, Cynthia	3 00
Snead, Mrs T N	50
Soule, Mr & Mrs	2 50
Stewart, Mrs A	50
Stewart, Morse	2 00
Telfe Julia A	1 00
Tunnard, Mr & Mrs	1 00
Vaughn, Mrs H B	1
Mrs Vernon's Prim School
Waldren, Mrs L	4
Waldren, Martha
Wattles, Helen Z
Whited, Miss H
Willet, E L & M E	2
Woods, Mrs E D
Beverly, Mass
L E, Matt 28:20	2
Viola, G
Friend, Wallace, Pa
Friend, Jamaica
" So Framingh	2
"
" Chauncy	1
Friends, Rasston
I H N, Brooklyn
I H N, Milford	2
I H N, 1 P B, Bky	2
I H N, Hnstonville	2
I H N, Randall	1
I H N
Sympr, Randall
Widow's Mite, Wir
Hunn
C C S, Wilton	2
T A B, Natchez	2
A M D, Lancaster	5
F M E, Dixon
M B B, Petersburg	1
M P, Haydenville
W A J, Eminence
W F O, Rochester
——, Denver, Col	1
Linwood
For His Sake, Mt tie Highlands
A Christian, Stelt	1
An Old Lady, Calle
An Old Reader, S London
Sister in Christ, Pa
Soldier's Friend, well	2
C E Meeting in Lu eran Church, Le burg
First Cong. S Sch Guilford	2
First Cong. Y P E, Guilford
Welsh C E Dist. C vention, Lime Sp
West Cromwell S C E	1
Ada, L B, Humb
Total	**$

All contributions will be acknowledged in these columns.

Scenes from the Seat of War in Cuba and Porto Rico.

FROM PHOTOGRAPHS PROCURED SPECIALLY FOR "THE CHRISTIAN HERALD."

THE MORRO FORT, AT THE ENTRANCE TO SANTIAGO HARBOR.

THE CASINO ESPANOL, SANTIAGO.

LIEUT.-COL. ROOSEVELT AND TWO OF HIS "ROUGH RIDERS."

GEN. YOUNG. GEN. FITZHUGH LEE. Commanding 1st Army Corps. MAJOR YOUNG. of Texas Rough Riders.

GENERAL VIEW, MAYAGUEZ, PORTO RICO.

STREET IN MAYAGUEZ, PORTO RICO.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you are in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post office at New York, as Second class Matter

What Spain Has on Her Hands.

GOD is presenting the same chalice to the lips of Spain that she has been compelling poor, persecuted Cuba and the Philippine Islands to drink. She has outraged the holiest sentiments of our nature. As a result, she has on her hands this war with the United States; a war, not of vengeance, not of conquest, but of deliverance to Cuba. Yes, and to the Philippine Islands. She might have averted it. She had only to give Cuba fair treatment; some kind of wholesome autonomy. And, now, her own fate as a nation actually hangs in the balance. What will she be three months hence, nay, to-morrow? Will the sceptre of Alfonso be superseded by that of Don Carlos? Will she become a republic? Proud, arrogant, spiteful, revengeful, with her history full of intrigues and massacres, she stands before the judgment bar of the nations, the judgment bar of God.

What will the verdict be? Man has already pronounced against her. The sudden overwhelment at the Philippines seems like the lightning-judgment of God. She has been drinking the blood of the nations for many centuries. And now has come the day of vengeance. There are some epithets applied to God, which seem very strange and almost inconsistent. He is called a Man of War, the God of Battles. There is no pathway of God in history more manifest than that through seas of blood. Our recent civil war was not of the seeking of this nation. Its results have been almost universally accepted as a blessing. It was on the anvil of battle, neither section originally meaning it, or deserving credit for it, that the chains of slavery were stricken off. What if God should use this oppression of Cuba to strip Spain of all the colonial possessions, which she has misgoverned so long, to uproot the foundations of tyranny at Madrid, and give Spain a chance to be free to govern herself?

Shall We Love Our Enemies?

GOD has enemies and loves them. But, still he seeks their overthrow. This is the highest expression of his love: "While we were yet enemies Christ died for us." What the American soldiers and sailors do for Spain will be the expression of such love, as leads the missionary to go to foreign lands to preach the Gospel. The Gospel is a message of alternatives. "He that believeth shall be saved; he that believeth not shall be damned." Spain has only to surrender poor, persecuted Cuba from her cruel grasp, and the war will be over. This is what Commodore Dewey's guns said at Manila. We do not want new territory. But, we shall pluck the islands of the sea from the jaws of Spain, just as David plucked the lamb from the jaws of the lion. The Gospel of human rights is the Gospel we preach. We have the courage of our convictions. If freedom from tyranny works well in the United States, it will work well anywhere; in Cuba or the Philippine Islands. If on these islands Spain had been working toward larger civil enfranchisement, even though the progress had been slow, we should have said, "God speed." But all her schemes, all her methods, are mediæval. We do not love them. We can be angry with them and sin not.

As to kind treatment of Spaniards who fall into our hands as prisoners of war, we shall do our very best to give them Christian treatment. It is said that priests and nuns waited on Commodore Dewey to prevent his massacring the inmates of prisons and hospitals. The possibility of such cruelty was a Spanish conception; originated with the people, whose ancestors gave the world the enormities of the Inquisition. Americans do not fight the helpless. They fight for them. This is the very origin of the Hispano-American struggle. We not only will not be cruel, but we will not suffer Spain to be cruel on this continent. And we love her so well that we will prevent it, at the expenditure of millions of treasure; if need be, of thousands of lives. If we "Remember the Maine," it will not be in a spirit of revenge, but, as an index of the kind of civilization we are compelled to encounter, and with God's help to conquer.

God's Teaching in Suspense.

SUSPENSE is very painful. We are all the time waiting for war news, buying extras, talking of rumors. The Psalmist teaches us this sentiment, as from the lips of the Ruler of all the earth: "Be still and know that I am God." President McKinley, and Congress, and the Naval Board, and all our Commodores and Captains, our Generals and Colonels, can not do what we want done. If God is with us, we can do it. We are following our fleets from coaling station to coaling station, from this passage to that, we are often critical and impatient. "Be still." God's pathways are in the seas and his footprints in the great waters. Commodore Dewey's victory at Manila was a lesson from God's plan of campaigns. We did not lose a single life. No other such naval battle ever occurred in the history of the world.

We have not gone to battle at our own charges. The woe was upon us, if we neglected it. We were ashamed of ourselves to have such wholesale butchery of innocents so near our shores. Our hearts had cried out against the supineness of the great European powers, that allowed the unhallowed sword of Mohammed, unrebuked, to slay thousands upon thousands of innocent Armenians. We boasted to ourselves what we would do, if we had an opportunity. And the opportunity was here at our door. And just as eagerly as our ships of peace were ready with food for the starving, our men-of-war now bear our brave seamen to the deliverance of Cuba from Spanish oppression. Let us trust in God. Let us pray for his leadership. He is the same God as taught his ancient people how to break down the stone-walls and gates of brass, which lay between them and the land promised to their fathers. Yes, it is a humanitarian war, but it is also a war of which the great Captain is Jehovah-God. "Be still, and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the heathen. I will be exalted in the earth."

The Supernatural in the Bible.

"WOUNDED in the house of my friends." This is the piteous complaint the blessed Holy Book has to make of this generation. Infidels and haters of all kinds have hitherto tried to tear into fragments the Word of God, but the close of the nineteenth century has produced from among those who live by the altar, doubters and defamers of the Word of Life. Thus it is asserted in the famous "Essays and Reviews"—page 168—that "from nature, and in nature, by science and by reason, we neither have, nor can have, any evidence of a Deity working miracles." And the whole teaching of what is called the rational Christianity, is to refuse whatever is not credible to human sense, whatever, in short, is not possible or natural.

But the Bible is the law of a supernatural religion, and is in itself a supernatural Book. If we are only to believe the credible, then the whole Bible must go. There is no deluge and there is no rainbow of promise. There is no Elijah and no fire ever fell from heaven. No ravens ever fed the prophet, and no widow's cruise was miraculously filled. There was no still, small voice in Horeb; and no chariots of fire. Nay, there was no paradise and no fall of man. Yet if the fall be not a fact, how must we account for all the crime and misery we see around us? It is simply incredible that God created men to turn this lovely earth into huge battle-grounds and grave-yards.

Suppose that in the day of William the Conqueror, there had been predicted by various persons, the destiny and achievements of the English race; and that every prediction had been accurately fulfilled; should we not say that only divinity could have foretold eight hundred years in advance the facts of this year, and honor the Book which contained such prophecies as the very Word of God? Yet this is but a trifle to the fulfilled prophecies which are recorded in the Holy Scriptures. For instance, to Abraham was made a promise when he had no children nor any likelihood of children, that in his seed "all the nations of the earth should be blessed." But nearly two thousand years were to elapse before that promise was redeemed. How was it likely that the children of a simple Syrian Sikh could be recognized after that lapse of time? The children of Nimrod and Nebuchadnezzar, of Cyrus and Alexander were unknown—were lost; but God kept Abraham's children, and eight hundred years after Abraham, renewed the promise to the prophet-prince David, and then prophet after prophet repeated it until "the forerunner," declared by name, appeared. So well understood were these promises that all the Jewish world looked for a Messiah who should be the seed of Abraham, the house of David and the town of Bethlehem about the 490th year after Artaxerxes. If these things are not facts then all history is fable. Here was faith resting on a prediction beyond human powers and essentially divine, and this very foreknowledge of events God claims for himself as his peculiar attribute in Isaiah 41: 21-23. These prophecies regarding the coming of Christ rested on no oral tradition. They were written down; the books were carefully preserved; we have them now. What but the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God could have declared occurrences one thousand years before they took place?

The promises to the Jewish nation are even more palpable. Every Jew we see is a living miracle. Early as the days of Moses the consequences of their disobedience to God's laws and their rejection of his Christ was foretold to them in the awful words of Deuteronomy 28: 65-67. All the prophets testify to the sufferings they should endure. And is there any page of history so wet with tears and blood as the Jewish history for 1,500 years after Christ? Their dispersion and oppression is foretold in Leviticus thus: "I will scatter you among the heathen, and draw a sword after you," and Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Amos, etc., all bear the same burden.

Yet these prophecies contained an element equally remarkable—the promise that they should be wonderfully preserved. Now, is there any other nation that ever existed so weak, so separated, and yet so indestructable? When other nations have been driven from their own land and scattered, they have invariably perished. Where are the Phœnecians, the Carthaginians, the Medes, the Goths, the Huns, the Vandals? They are lost. But here right in our midst, "according to the Word of the Lord," eating, drinking, and doing business with us are the scattered Jews in their sixth Millennium!

Is not the Book that foretold these things thousands of years ago, then, a Divine Book? a supernatural Book? a Book which it is presumptious to measure, or to judge by human ideas of reason or credibility? The Bible is not a natural Book; its supernaturalism meets us in every chapter from the first of Genesis to the last of Revelations. And we admit joyfully that the supernaturalism of the Bible is not one of the difficulties of our faith, it is rather the very foundation of our faith.

Amelia E. Barr

BRIEF NOTES.

An official at the Vatican states that [illegible] the Pope heard of the death of Mr. Gladstone exclaimed in Latin, "Give him eternal re[illegible] Lord!"

At Welbeck, in Germany, a decree has [illegible] proclaimed that a license to marry will n[illegible] granted to any individual who is in the ha[illegible] getting drunk.

In the German Empire there are publ[illegible] 6,533 periodicals, being one for every 12,902 [illegible] population; but in Austria, there is only on[illegible] iodical for every 72,290 of the population.

A Scottish newspaper says that Mr. [illegible] stone's mother was the originator of Sa[illegible] Schools in the Highlands, the first Sabbath [illegible] in Dingwall having been conducted by her.

Dr. Louis Albert Banks, pastor of [illegible] Church, Cleveland, Ohio, is to participate [illegible] services of the Nova Scotia Methodist Camp[illegible] ing Association, which opens at Berwick, [illegible] Scotia, on Friday, August 5.

The thirtieth camp meeting of the [illegible] Island Camp Meeting Association will be [illegible] Merrick, L. I., commencing July 23, and c[illegible] August 1. The Rev. C. S. Wing, presiding [illegible] will be in charge of the meeting. Preache[illegible] people are cordially invited to participate [illegible] feast of tabernacles.

Christian people interested in the well[illegible] India will rejoice to hear that Lord Salisbu[illegible] appointed Mr. A. H. L. Fraser, C. S. I., [illegible] Secretary to the Government of India. [illegible] pronounced Christian, an earnest worker, [illegible] warm supporter of missions. In visiting Sc[illegible] recently he occupied several pulpits.

The Independent, of New York, one [illegible] ablest and most useful of all religious jour[illegible] the United States is to be congratulated [illegible] change of shape. It is now in handy sh[illegible] the style of the popular monthly magazin[illegible] retains its valuable features among which [illegible] scholarly articles on Biblical Research.

Dr. John Hall, replying to a letter [illegible] quiry from a friend as to Mr. Hermann W[illegible] wiak writes: "I am not in a condition to c[illegible] endorsement of his plans for pecuniary a[illegible] Dr. Hall was Mr. Warszawiak's enthusias[illegible] faithful friend through all his difficulties, [illegible] pression must be based on substantial reas[illegible]

The Pope in a recent interview wit[illegible] Edward Miller, a Protestant Episcopal cle[illegible] expressed the opinion that "the study of th[illegible] is most important," and said he would lik[illegible] it spread further than it had reached at [illegible] It may be hoped that his words will be hee[illegible] his bishops and priests who have in some[illegible] been antagonistic to the study of God's wo[illegible]

At a recent annual meeting of the S[illegible] Pastors' College, it was stated that nine[illegible] and sixty-eight men have been trained in [illegible] lege, of whom six hundred and sixty-eight [illegible] day engaged in some form of service as p[illegible] or missionaries, in addition to forty-fiv[illegible] though not holding the pastoral office, are [illegible] ly engaged in Christian service.

The Union Church of Honolulu, an [illegible] nominational church, including in its men[illegible] Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians, [illegible] vited Rev. Wm. Kincaid, of Minneapolis, [illegible] to become its pastor, and he has accepte[illegible] church building is new and cost $130,000, an[illegible] of debt. Last year, over and above its run[illegible] penses, the church raised $30,000 for charit[illegible] mission work.

A great international gathering of [illegible] ance workers is being held at Prohibitio[illegible] Staten Island, June 30 to July 6. On Ju[illegible] 30, conference of the Woman's Christian Tem[illegible] Union was held. On July 2, a reception w[illegible] ered by the Chamber of Commerce of [illegible] Island. Prominent speakers were prese[illegible] various phases of temperance work disc[illegible]

The Niagara Bible Conference an[illegible] that its twenty-second meeting for Bible st[illegible] be held July 20-26, at Point Chautauqu[illegible] Among the leaders who will conduct specia[illegible] are Prof. W. G. Morehead, Xenia, O.; Maj. [illegible] Whittle, Northfield, Mass.; Dr. L. W. [illegible] Philadelphia; C. I. Scofield, Northfield; [illegible] Elmore Harris, Toronto, and Rev. Albert [illegible] Morristown, N. J.

The Camp Meeting Association, [illegible] Neb., announces that an old-fashioned ca[illegible] ing is to be held in the shaded grounds [illegible] western entrance to the Exposition during [illegible] mer. Gospel meetings will be held every [illegible] until November 1, and on every Sunday a[illegible] Pastors intending to visit the Exposition [illegible] dially invited to participate. Address Re[illegible] Taylor, Des Moines, Ia.

Dr. Dillon gives remarkable info[illegible] about the increase of the Jewish comm[illegible] says that in Poland they are increasin[illegible] town and cities at twice the rate of thei[illegible] neighbors, while in the towns and cities [illegible] pean Russia outside of Poland they are i[illegible] at four times the rate. In the towns and [illegible] Roumania the Jewish element is actuall[illegible] ing seven times as rapidly as the Christia[illegible]

The Emperor and Empress of Germ[illegible] preparing for a visit to the Holy Land. T[illegible] suite will comprise about ninety perso[illegible] Sultan of Turkey will send a guard of a [illegible] soldiers to protect their majesties dur[illegible] stay. They expect to arrive at Jaffa abou[illegible] and to spend a week in visiting the va[illegible] places. During their stay the German C[illegible] the Redeemer in Jerusalem will be consec[illegible]

The regular season at Ocean Gro[illegible] was inaugurated on June 26. Evangelist [illegible] H. Yatman, who again has charge of th[illegible] People's Meeting, was welcomed by an [illegible] of fully two thousand enthusiastic you[illegible] Bishop FitzGerald, the President of t[illegible] Meeting Association, delivered a brief intr[illegible] address. Rev. George Hughes, editor of [illegible] to Holiness, had charge of the Holiness m[illegible] the Janes Memorial Temple. Bishop J. C[illegible] preached in the Auditorium. Dr. Rich[illegible] court, of the Philadelphia Conference, h[illegible] of the great Bible Class, and Mr. G[illegible] Evans, of the Primary Department. Bis[illegible] Gerald presided at the surf meeting, at w[illegible] five thousand were present.

Omaha's Great Exposition.

THE thrilling events now taking place in Cuba have monopolized public attention so completely, that the great Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha, Neb., has not received the notice it deserves. It is really a triumph of what the great West has a right to be proud of, and it is simply marvelous that in such times as these, so splendid an achievement could have been reached. The six representatives who formed the executive committee must have labored indefatigably, and must have received the most loyal service to have produced so surprising a result. The idea of an Exposition which should represent the products, industries and civilization of the States west of the Mississippi, took practical shape in the winter of 1895, and so enthusiastic was the response of the people in that section, that nearly half a million dollars was pledged within a few months. The corner stone was laid on April 22, 1897, and from that time until the opening on June 1, 1898 the work proceeded with such energy and skilful management as to astonish even people familiar with the rapidity of Western work. The buildings cover about two hundred acres and are located within a few minutes' ride of the centre of the city. The main buildings are picturesquely grouped around a great central court formed of broad esplanades, through which runs the Grand Canal, spanned by light, graceful bridges. Promenades flanked by columns, under roofs of trailing vines, giving a Pompeiian aspect to the scene, connect the various Halls. Beautiful arches mark the entrance to these avenues. One of these, which deserves to be permanent, is the Arch of States. Each of the twenty-four States and territories directly interested in the Exposition, contributed one cubic yard of stone from its own quarries for this arch, which thus becomes representative in a special sense. Landscape gardeners have turned the grounds into a scene of marvellous beauty, and have planted trees, shrubs and flowers of endless variety. Altogether, the result in its beauty and completeness passes the most sanguine expectation and will surely impress every visitor with the progress that has been made by the great West in the past half century. No parallel can be found in history for such magnificent progress. It may be hoped that in their prosperity, the people will always remember the words addressed to the chosen nation when they, too, were brought into a land of plenty:

Thou shalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth (Deut. 8:18).

GRAND COURT OF THE TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXPOSITION AT OMAHA, NEB.

Officers Liable.

A singular appeal on the part of the publishers of a New York newspaper has been rejected by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The newspaper published statements reflecting on the character of a well-known public man, whereupon he sued the publisher for libel. The jury brought in a verdict declaring the publication libellous and fixed the damages at $7,500. Against this verdict the newspaper appealed, basing its application on the fact that the judge who tried the case, had excluded evidence showing how many other newspapers had published the same story and were also being sued. The higher court has rejected the appeal, on the ground that the evidence, if admitted, would not have been a fair reason for mitigation of damages. Each case, the court holds, must stand on its own merits and no newspaper can justify its acts by pleading that other journals were equally guilty with itself. It would be well if people remembered that God acts on the same principle in judgment. No one can escape by pleading that many others committed the same sin.

Every one of us shall give account of himself to God (Rom. 14:12).

In the Hands of the Enemy.

One of the men who watched the departure of the troops from Chickamauga recently was an elderly man of martial bearing who took a deep interest in all the movements. To a reporter who asked him if he had ever seen service, he told a deeply interesting story of his younger days. He had been at Culpeper Court House, and had fought at South Mountain and Antietam and Fredericksburg. He was taken sick at Vicksburg with typhoid fever and sent to hospital. There he was nursed by two ladies from Charleston, S. C., who had been visiting in the North when the war broke out, and had been unable to reach their homes. He was unconscious for a long time but finally became convalescent. He was astonished that two Southern ladies should be nursing a Union soldier, but when he spoke of it, the younger of them said: "There is no war in a hospital. My brother is a Confederate captain and if he, like you was sick, I should be glad to know that he had a careful nurse and would not care whether she was a Northern or a Southern woman." The patient owed his life to the nursing of the two ladies and he gave them heartfelt thanks when he left them to rejoin his regiment. He was sent forward on a wagon train with other convalescents, and a party of recruits to Burnside at Knoxville. On the way the train was attacked and the whole of the force made prisoners. He was sent to Libby Prison and then to Belle Isle and finally to Andersonville. He was not fully recovered from the fever and was in no condition to stand the hardships of prison life, but a young Confederate doctor showed him great kindness and encouraged him with cheering words when he could not bring him food and medicine. One day the doctor brought a young captain with him who asked the sick man his name and regiment. He had scarcely strength enough to answer, but when he did, the Captain said: "It was my sister and my aunt who nursed you in hospital and they want me to look after you." From that time on, medicine and good food were in a mysterious way smuggled to his bedside and he recovered. In a short time an order came permitting his removal to Florence, S. C. He was able to walk to the prison gate, but could not walk another step and the station was a mile away. He sank to the ground in helpless disappointment, but two Confederate guards, who saw him, went to his assistance. Each took an arm and between them they half carried him to the station. Two months after reaching Florence he was exchanged. As long as he lives he will remember that when time and again he was brought near to death an enemy's hand saved him. He has reason to be thankful that the enemies into whose hands he fell had learned the lesson of our Lord which is yet to be the law of the whole world:

Love ye your enemies and do good and your reward shall be great, for ye shall be the children of the Highest (Luke 6:35).

Duties Justifying Protection.

General Aquilando, the insurgent leader in the Philippine Islands, issued a proclamation soon after the battle of Manila, the text of which has just been received. Its preamble is as follows: "Philippines: The great North American nation, the repository of true liberty, and therefore the friend of freedom for our nation, oppressed and subjugated by the tyranny and despotism of its rulers, has come to afford its inhabitants a protection as decisive as it is undoubtedly disinterested, regarding our unfortunate country as possessing sufficient civilization and aptitude for self-government; and in order to justify this high conception formed of us by the great American nation, we ought to reprobate all such acts as may derogate from that conception, such as pillage, robbery, and every class of outrage against persons and property." The general then goes on to caution his soldiers against injuring the persons or property of foreigners and of medical men, and warning them that any soldier disobeying the order will be promptly tried by court martial, and if convicted, will be executed without delay. It is a pity that people do not reason in the same way in dealing with God. Those who desire his help and protection should live according to his will.

Thou shalt keep his statutes . . . that it may go well with thee (Deut. 4:40).

Mines Fired by Lightning.

A Washington journal reports a singular occurrence resulting from a thunderstorm, which broke over the city a few days ago. A series of mines have been placed in the Potomac, which have been connected with a switchboard at Fort Washington. A citizen, who was returning home in his yacht after a trip to Colonial Beach, piloted his way through the mines and lay to about a mile away, waiting for a thunderstorm, which had just broken, to blow over. He saw several vivid flashes, one of which seemed to strike Fort Washington. Almost immediately he heard a sizzing sound under his boat, resembling the noise of a skyrocket just as it leaves the earth. Instantly, over in the mine fields the water rose in three large bubbles and shot up like geysers. Then over the water came three deep-toned booms, like the noise of a distant cannon of large calibre. It was afterwards learned that three of the mines had been touched off by the lightning, striking the wires close to the switchboard. Happily, no one was hurt, but if the explosion had occurred a few minutes earlier, many lives would have been sacrificed. When the mines were laid, it was doubtless supposed that no explosion could take place without the consent of the officer in charge of the switchboard, but the event proved otherwise. It is sometimes so in ordinary life, the mischief designed for an enemy recoils on the plotter.

He hath prepared for him the instruments of death . . . but he is fallen into the ditch which he made (Ps. 7:13-15).

New Atmospheric Elements.

Since the discovery in the atmosphere of the strange element, to which Prof. Ramsay gave the name of Argon, scientific interest has been directed anew to the study of the atmospheric elements. Certain peculiarities of Argon, notably its molecular weight, were so remarkable as to suggest the suspicion that it was either itself composed of more than one element, or that there were other elements in the air yet to be discovered. Prof. Ramsay now announces a discovery which resulted from an analysis of Argon, which shows that there are at least two elements in the new agent. One of them, which has much less density than Argon, Prof. Ramsay calls "Neon," and the other, which is almost as heavy as Argon, he calls "Metargon." The experiments are still being continued, and it is expected that they will prove that there are in the air several other elements, the presence of which had not been suspected. It is remarkable that with all our pride of knowledge we should not have known, nor even yet know positively, the component elements of the very air we breathe. The fact should teach humility to those who are rash in their assertions about the origin and destiny of man, and the ways of God which are so far above our comprehension.

Great men are not always wise; neither do the aged understand judgment (Job 32:9).

A News Famine.

One of the greatest surprises that can come to an American citizen befell the people of Chicago on July 2. To the amazement of every one, all the daily newspapers suspended publication for the day, with an intimation that several days might elapse before it was resumed. This unprecedented step was the outcome of a strike of stereotypers. A demand for more pay was presented and was rejected, whereupon all the stereotypers struck. They aver that their demand was for four dollars for a day of seven hours, which is a smaller rate than is paid in New York, and that it was not a hard and fast rate, but was subject to discussion and compromise. The publishers, however, refused to consider the question, and decided not to issue their respective papers. They announced that they would under no circumstances employ again the men who struck, and would not issue their papers until they could get a staff of non-union stereotypers from other cities. There was considerable grumbling on the part of the public, as it was known that a battle had taken place near Santiago, the details of which would have been interesting reading. Not a paper was issued and no news was attainable until out-of-town papers arrived, which found a ready sale at an enormous premium. Probably the citizens never realized so thoroughly before, how important a factor newspapers were in their daily life. To be shut out from all knowledge of the events going on in the world was a great deprivation. Yet doubtless many of the people who complained the most bitterly were those who might have had knowledge that concerned them far more closely and neglected it.

If thou hadst known even thou, in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thy eyes (Luke 19:42).

The Sunday School

ELIJAH'S FLIGHT.

S. S. Lesson for July 24. I. Kings. 19: 1-16. Golden Text, Ps. 37: 7.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

GOD had vindicated his judgment upon Israel, it had done its work, and he removed it, and now the rain was pouring in floods upon the parched earth. He had also vindicated his prophet. The representatives of Israel had left Mount Carmel, and found their way through the drenching rain to their homes with their own cry ringing in their ears, "The Lord he is the God, the Lord he is the God." Ahab returned to his palace in Jezreel, but while he was on his way, "the hand of the Lord was on Elijah, and he girded up his loins and ran before Ahab to the entrance of Jezreel." It was necessary that Elijah should precede Ahab. Before the king could reach his palace, he was again to see, if but for a moment, the man who stood in the presence of God. God in mercy would give him this check before he met with Jezebel, whose satanic influence held him under a spell which God alone could break. Had he then yielded to Jehovah, he might have been set free.

It was also necessary that Elijah, for his own sake, should measure swords with Jezebel. He was only too conscious that the cause of Jehovah depended on his faithfulness, but he must know the strength of the enemy, personified by Jezebel, as his instrument to controvert the cause of God. Ahab had undoubtedly been brought under the power of God's manifest response to his faithful prophet. When the cry had arisen, "The Lord, he is the God," Ahab had not lifted up his voice on behalf of Baal; the state religion, which was state idolatry, had been condemned by God, and then by public opinion; and Ahab's silence could only be understood as his assent. What must it have been for Elijah after those three years and a half of prayer for Israel, to see the nation bow as one man before his God! Surely he must have thought that now all was gained, Baal worship could not be revived.

But the wicked queen Jezebel lived still. She had not been present when the fire of the Lord had fallen. Ahab related to her all that Elijah had done, and how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. Oh, if Ahab had seized this moment to stand on the Lord's side, his own soul might have been saved, and he might have been a blessing to his country, but the weak king stood more in awe of his wicked queen than of the living God. Jezebel, no way awed by the relation of God's intervention, took up her position more strongly than ever, and sent a message to Elijah—Ahab in no way preventing it. "So let the gods do to me and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by [illegible] about this time. And when he got that, he arose and went for [illegible]."

Was Elijah afraid? Had he not stood unharmed before Ahab and his bodyguard, without a sign of fear? Although a price had been set upon his head, and one look from the king would have made those soldiers [illegible] his body? Had not God hidden him for three years, and preserved him during the famine? Why then should he flee now, at the time God had left him, and, taking things into his own hands, seek to save his own life? No doubt the prophet had thought that all was gained; that Carmel's mighty witness for his God was indisputable, and he had looked for Jezebel as well as Ahab to bow broken before it. He was unprepared for resistance just now; he missed his footing, got off divine ground, and, like Samson when his Nazarite locks were cut, he became weak and like another man. No longer standing before the Lord God of Israel, he stood in the presence of circumstances and now they touched him, and this man, invincible as long as he stood before God played the coward, and "requested for himself that he might die."

It was not astonishing; it is always so when a man who has long been dealing with God only, and with persons and circumstances only through him, turns to look at how things touch himself. Times of victory and success are always our times of danger. Because God has done such great things, we are easily tempted to expect greater on the same line, and when things do not turn out as we have anticipated, the enemy steps in with discouragement. Elijah came to Beersheba, and he left his servant there; he must be alone with his God; he must have the matter out with him where none other could intrude. Then he went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree, and his sad prayer was: "It is enough; now, O Lord, take away my life, for I am not better than my fathers." Here is the secret: he had expected something from himself, and he had come to see that even he could be found doubting God. He learned the bitter, needful lesson: "I am on a level with other men; I am not better than my fathers."

God never abandons his own in the moments of their weakness. He sent an angel who touched Elijah, and said, "Arise and eat." And he saw that the same God who had provided for him by the brook had made ready for him in the wilderness. God was unchanged. He ate, drank and lay down again to sleep. But a second time the angel came and the same thing was repeated. It was his last meal while he made his journey to Horeb, the mount of God, the Sinai range where the law had been given to Moses. There he lodged in a cave, still under the power of his deep discouragement. And the word of God came to him, "What doest thou here, Elijah?"

Till now God had been more present to him than himself. Now it was himself and the children of Israel. I have been very jealous for God, I the only faithful man in Israel, and after all the success of Carmel, it has come to this that they seek my life to take it away; God's answer on Carmel has come to nothing. Elijah, shut up in the narrowness of his own horizon, was in a cave spiritually as well as physically. "Come out," said his God, and a mighty wind, an earthquake, a fire passed before him, but God was not in these, and then "a still small voice," "a sound of gentle stillness" (R. V., margin). Elijah knew it, and he began to break. Wrapping his face in his mantle, he stood at the door of the cave, and in answer to God's repeated question, he gave the same answer as before.

RUINS OF A COLONNADE IN AHAB'S ANCIENT CAPITAL.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

PROBABLY Elijah expected that the decisive result of the day on Carmel would transform the nation. The message he received from the queen, however, speedily undeceived him. So far from accepting the decision of the people as binding, and abandoning her resolve to make the nation a Baal-worshipping people, she was bent on vengeance and was determined to take his life. Believing himself to be the only prophet of the Lord left in Israel, he realized that his death would be the way to perpetuate the hideous religion of the false god, and undo all that had been achieved. To save his life for God and the people, he fled to Beersheba, a town on the southern border of Judah, ninety-five miles from Jezreel, the city where Jezebel lived. Even there, he did not feel safe, or perhaps shrank from intercourse with people, and he went forward into the dreary wilderness of Paran, that he might be alone, to think out his future course. Doubtless he was physically exhausted. The agitating events on Carmel had been followed by that run of fifteen miles to Jezreel, and then, before he had time to rest, the hurried flight to Beersheba and the desert. Flinging himself down under the branches of a tree, he gave way to gloomy and despairing thoughts.

O Lord, take away my life. Times of dejection come to all great souls—periods when all that they have accomplished seems to have turned to failure and discomfiture. It is told of the great Francis of Assisi, who flourished in the thirteenth century, that he walked boldly into the Saracen camp under the walls of Damietta and confronted the Sultan, who had set a price on the head of every Christian. Being questioned, he declared that he had been sent of God to show the potentate the way of salvation. The Mohammedan Sultan pointed to the array of priests around him who were already doing that office. "Let a furnace be kindled," said Francis, "and I and your priests will enter it together and the result will show you whether truth is on my side or on theirs." The most prominent of the priests shuddered and withdrew, and the Sultan declared that there was not a priest in his dominions who would meet such an ordeal. So impressed was he with the heroism of Francis that he gave him a guard of honor and sent him back to the Christian camp. A short time afterward, returning home, he found that Elias, whom he had left in charge of his disciples, had been false to his trust, and the soul of the man who had dared the Mohammedan Sultan to the face, sank into dismay and consternation. In his absence his work had been undone. Broken hearted, he prayed to die. But that night he dreamed that he was ushered into God's presence and heard a voice saying: "Thinkest thou that I who rule the universe can deal with these things?"

Unto Horeb, the Mount of God. The precise locality is not certain. The name Horeb is sometimes applied to the whole Sinai, where the law was given, and sometimes to the range of which Sinai is the peak. We can imagine how such a man in that sad hour would expect to find fresh inspiration from a visit to the terrible mount. Seven hundred years before it had been the scene of the revelation of God to his people who had now forsaken him. He would go there and meditate on that thrilling scene, which to him alone of all Israel had a meaning now. The great leader whom Elijah resembled, had passed through a similar experience. The people whom he had led out of Egypt almost broke his heart by worshiping the golden calf, instead of the God who had delivered them and had spoken to them. Elijah would find [illegible] to strengthen him in the Mount of God. On one of the passes of the Alps, a party of tourists lost their way in a great storm. Of them, a young man of dissolute life was almost beside himself with terror. When all lost hope of descending the mountain alive, he vowed solemnly to God that if his life should be spared, he would consecrate it to God. They were saved in a way so remarkable, that the young man believed it was by the direct intervention of God. [illegible] the party when they reached the foot of the mountain, and visited the home of a Swiss Protestant pastor and besought him to point him to Christ. After many days he found peace and turned homeward, resolved to lead his former companions to the Saviour. But they jeered at him, hinted that he was crazy, and would not listen to his pleading. In the old scenes of revelry, he lost the impulse to [illegible] his return, would as he believed carry him to victory. He felt his feet slipping, and dreading to lapse into the old life, he [illegible] one morning suddenly from the mountains, that on the scene of his deliverance, he might renew his vow and gain new strength. He returned with new consecration with a resolve to work and preach whether men would hear or whether they would forbear.

A still, small voice. Dean Farrar interprets it as "voiceful silence." In the calm and hush succeeding the tempest Elijah felt himself in the presence of God. Here was the lesson he learned. [illegible] startling awe-inspiring movements of God manifest himself, but in the gentle, [illegible] beneficent influences of everyday life. [illegible] by such a spectacle as that on Carmel could the nation be transformed. [illegible] the quiet teaching of his ways. The question, "What doest thou here?" was not unnatural effect. He was in the desert [illegible] from men when he might have been [illegible] ing good among them. An old [illegible] represents a parish priest going up [illegible] spire of his church and spending [illegible] there in study where he might be [illegible] God in solitude, and on Sunday preach the sermons he had composed there [illegible] when the time came for him to [illegible] heard the voice summoning him [illegible] and asked "Where art thou, Lord?" the Lord replied, "Down here among people," Elijah recognizing God in the still, small voice, may have had a [illegible] which came still more clearly to the prophet of "One who should not [illegible] nor cry," nor would his voice be heard in the streets; a bruised reed he would not break nor quench the smoking flax, but he would bring forth judgment unto truth. He saw gentleness united with power,

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

The Country as a Kindergarten

The Close Walk with Nature of Country Lads and Lassies — Opportunities for Studying God's Ways in His World.

COUNTRY folks are accustomed to undervalue certain educational opportunities which they possess, which city people do not, and which not even great municipal wealth can bring within reach. It has been urged upon the New York Board of Education that the majority of city children are in utter ignorance of many of Mother Nature's simplest secrets—the look or the feel of an acorn or a chestnut, the shape of a bird's nest, the wonderful mysteries of sprouting seeds and bursting blossoms, of seed-time and harvest: and suggestion was made that fortunate people who could spend summer in the country or by the seaside, should bring collections of acorns, chestnuts, bird nests, seaweed and so on to be used in the schools as materials for object-lessons in nature for children who could not know by personal observation what such things are. The little maiden in our picture has gathered much more than the fruit which she carries in her basket. Birds have been singing and fluttering around her, and doubtless taking their common share of the treasures of the tree; and who knows as well as Mr. Mockingbird the difference between his bird's note and that—which a city scientist would attempt to discover. Yet, perhaps, her mamma thinks her little daughter learning first and from nature is at a disadvantage with the little city maid, who is dependent for her knowledge upon the twigs and branches, the birds and the butterflies which her good kindergarten teacher provides at the expense of much labor and care. A great picture, which had taken a medal hung on the walls of the Art Palace at the World's Fair. An old Illinois farmer passed by and said: "Ef I'd been one o' the judges, I'd never give that picture no medal. Thet plow harness ain't hung on them trees right; and it ain't the right kind of harness for: thet plow can't be pulled through thet sort o' ground with thet sort o' harness." The judge might have done well to have had his own on their committee of awards. The country more than the city has produced great artists, poets and scientists; and ours can learn wisdom there from communion with nature, God's hand-maid.

THE LITTLE FRUIT-GATHERER.

Little Japs and their Pets.

There is something which our own American folks may profitably study in the ways of little Japs. In Japan, birds show no fear of people, and butterflies alight familiarly on children's hands. It is painful to reflect that our little innocent winged friends, or our humble and useful creeping and crawling friends ever have occasion to fear us. The Japs are not free however, from the imputation of caging wild things. One of their most remarkable pets, is the large katydid, for which the children build tiny bamboo houses, in which they arrange beds of fresh flowers or leaves daily; sometimes bright-winged butterflies dwell in such cages. Most Japanese families keep an aquarium, stocked with gay, gold, silver, and crimson fish, some with spreading, gauze-like fins, others round like a ball. Japanese children have queer varieties of tiny dogs and rabbits, and curious tailless cats, and seem to be peculiarly gentle to animals.

A Hint for Mothers.

Professor James writes:

There is no more miserable human being than the one with whom the drinking of each cup, the time of rising and going to bed every day and the beginning of every bit of work are subjects of express volitional deliberation. Full half the time of such a man goes to the deciding or regretting of matters which ought to be so engraved in him as practically not to exist for his consciousness at all.

The mother, who trains her child patiently and systematically into neat, regular, orderly ways of performing every-day duties, is making room in his life for large enterprises. His manhood will not be taken up with learning things which he should have mastered as a child.

Thistles.

There are many varieties of this common and most interesting plant, the most important, of course, being the purple thistle, so dear to Scotland. It became the national flower hundreds of years ago when the Danes invaded Scotland, and creeping noiselessly through the dark to fall upon the sleeping Scots, some of them stepped with bare feet on stinging thistles and cried out, and the cry awoke the Scotch army; the Danes were driven back, Scotland was saved, and over the palace of Linlithgow, where Mary, Queen of Scots was born, in after years, the little common plant was engraved and under it the words: "Touch me who dares." There is the Caroline thistle, which the people have over their doors in France and Germany, consulting it as a barometer; open, it means sunshine: closing, it prophesies rain or storm. The "wind-wich" grows on the plains of Tartary, is very large, and it is said that the Tartars build their huts in its shade; in autumn, the ball dries, and goes flying off before the wind, "so fast that no one has ever caught it."

Homely Heroism.

The cutter Manning, dividing with the Marblehead the dangerous exploit of cable-cutting, was under a hot fire from the batteries of Cienfuegos, and shots were hitting the water all around, and whizzing over her.

A lieutenant passed the laundry, which occupied a small space in the deckhouse on the port side—the side exposed to fire. He glanced in and stopped short. There, heedless of the death-dealing missiles whistling around him, as calmly as though in a Mott street laundry, was the ship's Chinaman ironing shirts. Another instance of bravery, reflecting credit on John Chinaman's natural foe, the Japanese, is that of Capt. Ludlow's servant. While the Terror was alone in the fight at San Juan, when shells were raining all about her with such rapidity that it seemed to those who saw the battle a marvel that she was not hit, this little Jap, with a cup of coffee in one hand and a plate of crackers in the other, climbed to the bridge. He had thought of his captain in all the confusion.

The World's Oldest Rose-Bush.

Hildesheim, Germany, lays claim to the oldest rose-bush in all the world. It is said to have been planted over a thousand years ago by Charlemagne, the Great. This rose-bush, whether the story about it be true or not, may well stand as the reminder of the fact that Charlemagne's military accomplishments obscured the fame of his peaceful virtues. He endeavored to promote education and agriculture, as earnestly as he lent his influence to arts, manufactures and commerce. He attempted to make a grammar of his own language, and had a school in his palace for the sons of his servants. He required of his subjects the planting of certain varieties of fruits; and the superior cultivation of his own property, in which he took a lively interest, was an object-lesson to his subjects. So, if he took breathing-time from his battles, in which to plant a most excellent rose-tree that has outlived all others of its time, the act was characteristic.

The Pelican and the Kitten.

The following story is a good illustration of the old maxim, "Never take an insult or injury seriously."

A gentleman kept a pet Pelican in his back yard. A neighbor's kitten strolled in. You know how the Pelican eats fish, he catches the fish, tosses it into the air and swallows it as it comes down. Mr. Pelican tossed Kitty up and opened his mouth; but kitty turned over, landed right side up and scampered around Mr. Pelican's feet, seeming to think the matter great fun. The Pelican caught on to the humor of the thing, and when the master brought Mr. Pelican a nice fish for dinner, Kitty decided to share it, since which time they have had repeated lunches together, and are quite good friends.

THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

THE Lord, our Shepherd, leads
His sheep to pastures green,
The richest pasture feeds
Beside the living stream.
He gently leads us day by day,
And guards us safely all the way.

The lambs he'll gently take
And in his bosom lay;
The lame he'll ne'er forsake,
The lost bring in the way.
He gently leads us day by day,
And guards us safely all the way.

When earth no pasture yields,
And we must pass away;
He leads to fairer fields
In climes of endless day.
To living fountains there he'll lead,
Our souls with richer pastures feed.

Oakland, Kan. —J. S. MOHLER.

FIVE GENERATIONS.

FROM a reader of this journal we have received a letter and photograph which are sure to interest the members of THE HOME AND FAMILY CIRCLE. The writer says:

FIVE GENERATIONS OF CREE INDIANS.

OONIKUP, SASK., CANADA.

The Editor of The Christian Herald:—The enclosed group represents five generations in direct line, the youngest already about 11 years old, and the eldest still hearty and well, and able to walk miles at a time. They are Cree Indians, although all except the old lady have a certain amount of Scotch blood. Beginning with the old lady in the centre, their names are Jane Lathlin, her eldest daughter Maria Marles, her eldest daughter Maria Henderson, her eldest daughter Flora Umpherville and her eldest boy, Johnston Umpherville.

Your paper reaches us in this out-of-the way place once a month, and is a most welcome visitor. The premiums also are splendid.

Lesson of the Sky-Lark.

A pretty custom, which is said to exist in the royal family of England, is that of each child choosing some emblem for itself. Princess Alice, whose memory is so dear to English hearts, chose the sky-lark, because, as she said, "while it lives obscurely on the ground, it teaches us that in the performance of the plain, homely duties of life, we gain the strength and knowledge and inspiration to soar upward and fill the air with joyous and soul-stirring music." This bird, as we know, lives a lowly life in English fields and meadows, and sometimes its voice is heard in the grass or from a leafy tree, but its sweetest song is sung when it has soared so high that it is lost to sight: and one knows of its presence in the clouds only by hearing its beautiful notes falling from the sky. We may all learn a lesson from the sky-lark. If we perform our low'ly duties well, God will give us the glad heart and the happy song. Perhaps we may think of all our little words of kindness as sky-lark songs, for they make other hearts happy, and other lips songful.

A Little Boy's Long Journey.

A notable journey, says an Australian paper, has been accomplished by a twelve-year-old boy, named Launcelot Lewis, son of a well-known grazier of Kooringa, South Australia. The lad desired to visit an uncle residing at Warrnambool, Victoria, and for that purpose, and with his father's sanction, left home on January 10 last, mounted on a pony and leading another carrying a pack saddle. Striking in a southeasterly direction, he made the seaboard in about a week's time, and, passing through Mount Gambier and Beachport, crossed the border, and shortly afterward safely negotiated the Glenelg River by swimming his ponies across. Skirting the coast line, he shaped a course for Portland, and thence, by way of Port Fairy, to Warrnambool, which he reached, having traversed 570 miles, in twenty-one days, an average of about twenty-eight miles daily. Despite the long and wearisome journey, his ponies were in excellent condition on their arrival, while the appearance of the young overlander was that of a typical bushman, with the water bags slung over the neck of the pack carrier and the hobbles braced on to his own mount.

Friendship.

Friendship, like everything else, needs to be cultivated, in order to reach its highest perfection. In this day of hurry and bustle, the friends one esteems most dear and whose sympathy and counsel are the most precious, are the busiest ones: the ones who recognize obligations to their own kindred, to society, to the church, to the Sunday School. But all the more is regard between and for busy friends like these worth keeping, and every one should find time to cultivate friendship.

SERMONS WORTH READING

HELPFUL DISCOURSES for the PEOPLE

THE PROMISE OF PEACE.

By Rev. C. E. Jefferson preached at Broadway Tabernacle, New York, from the text Isaiah 2 : 4 : Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.

THIS, I think, is one of the sublimest sentences in the Bible. It is worthy, almost, to take its place by the side of that other sublime sentence: "God said, 'Let there be light,' and there was light." It is one of the most audacious hopes that ever sprang from the heart. It occurs, as you know, in the prophecies of Isaiah, and it occurs in substantially the same form in the prophecies of Micah; hints of it can also be found in the prophecies of Zechariah, and scattered through the Psalms. Who said it first we do not know. It is simply a voice like so many other messages of the Scripture—"A voice of one crying in the wilderness, 'Prepare ye the way of the Lord.'" It is impossible, therefore to pin the prophecy to any individual man. I like always to think of it, not simply as the utterance of one man, but as the outcry of an indestructible instinct of the human heart; the declaration of the immortal spirit of man. The time will come some day when nation shall not litt sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. So the human heart has ever dared to dream.

In order to understand the significance of the prophecy, it is necessary to understand the time in which Isaiah lived. He lived in the eighth century, before Christ. This was one of the greatest centuries in the history of Judah. In this century the Assyrian Empire reached the climax of its power. Down in the far southwest stood her surly antagonist, Egypt, with her chariots, her bowmen and her spearmen, where armies were continually marching and countermarching, and where wars and rumors of wars filled all the years. Between these two great warlike neighbors stood little Judah. Judah had also been imbibing the military spirit of the century. She, too, had a warlike king, Uzziah the Great. There were wars innumerable. Damascus made war. Samaria made war. The Philistines, on the West, and the Arabians, on the East, made war. The second-class nations made war on one another, and Assyria made war on them all.

This was the age in which Isaiah lived. Behold the man! There he stands, looking out into the great storm that is raging in the sky. The heavens are black as midnight, lighted up occasionally by flashes of savage and furious passion. Looking into the sky, he says: "It shall come to pass in the last days, that nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." When the world was shrouded in darkness, this saint of the Lord pulled back one corner of the cloud and allowed man to look through and out upon God's eternal blue.

And now the question comes, how did Isaiah get this assurance? How could he, in such a warlike age, dare to dream of the day when the world should enjoy universal peace? I think the explanation lies in the fact that Isaiah was a seer; he was a man who saw. We do not see very well, many of us. Most of us are near-sighted. We see only a little way into the distance. We are deceived by mirages. We are easily lost in cloud-banks, so that very often things of no moment loom up in the mist and frighten us, and those things which ought to be seen escape our vision altogether. We are not seers, and that is the reason we cannot prophesy. Isaiah was a seer who saw down into the deep heart of man. He saw the passion and the prejudice and the ignorance—those things we all can see, but they are not always the deepest things in man. He saw into man. He saw the humanities and the vanities and the wildnesses of the human heart; but he saw below all that. He saw that man is a reasoning creature. He is young, and because young, he is foolish. But he is a reasonable creature, and he learns to reason better as the ages go. By and by, when he is mature, when he has reached his growth, he will not make war any more.

He also saw into the deep heart of God. A man who sees into the heart of man, also sees into the heart of God, because he is made in God's image. He looked out upon the distracted world which lay at his feet, and he saw a plan—a purpose in it all. Since God is in human history, there must be something bright in the future. If God be really working, his plans will by and by work themselves into clearness and glory. Consequently, Isaiah dared to say the time would come when the boots of the warrior and the garments rolled in blood would all be consumed, because "Unto us a child is born, and unto us a Son is given," who shall have a manifold name; "His name shall be Wonderful, Counsellor, The Everlasting Father, The Mighty God," but the climax of them all will be "Prince of Peace, and of the increase of his government there shall be no end." Isaiah could speak the prophecy because he saw.

REV. C. E. JEFFERSON.
(Pastor Broadway Tabernacle, New York.)

We are living in days when we need to think, now and then, upon the brightest words spoken for our comfort. It is too bad, that often in the midst of our deepest tribulations, we throw away the very words we need the most. It is because we are living in troubled times that I want to bring to your attention the glorious prophecy of the Hebrew seer.

What a century, in which we are living! A century that began with the guns of Napoleon—a century that is going to die amid the roar of battle. From the first of the century to its close, what an awful record. Five millions of men in this single century have been sacrificed in war. Fifteen billions of dollars have been squandered in this one century in war. What an awful century 1800 years after Jesus died on the Cross! one of the six great battles of the century was fought beneath our flag, so that war statistics are not altogether meaningless to us. Thirty-three years have come and gone since the civil war closed. A third of a century lies between us and Appomattox Court House, but the old scar remains, and the ache that came in '61-'65 has continued through all the summers and all the winters, in many and many a heart. The wounds have indeed healed over, but ever and anon they break out and bleed afresh. We Americans know what war means.

What an awful century it has been and what a strange world it is in which we are living! The world for which Jesus, the Prince of Peace died, is to-day learning more furiously, it would seem, than ever, the arts of war. All Europe is a vast camp. Twenty-two millions of her citizens are taken out of productive pursuits, in order to keep up her armies and navies. The whole continent is staggering and fainting under a war debt of something like $25,000,000,000. And yet the navies keep on increasing, and the armies keep right on growing larger! Europe, beautiful Europe, with her magnificent mountains, her lovely lakes, her fertile soil, her old castles and her picturesque cities,—Europe that ought to be a Garden of Eden, full of music and hope, bends under the intolerable curse of militarism, and carries a load which sickens her heart and saps her life. What an awful century it is, in which we are living! And there are Americans who, not at all daunted by the hideous folly and madness of Europe, not at all frightened by the experience through which our brothers across the sea have gone, urge us to multiply our ships, and add to our guns and run up year by year, our expenditures for the implements of war. This is our condition at the close of the nineteenth century.

And what experiences these are through which we are just passing now. We, a peace-loving nation, are at war. Two professedly Christian nations are fighting. The ships of Spain and our Republic race one another over the sea, each commander eager to sink the vessels of his antagonist, and take the life of his men. And all this 1,800 years after the death of our Lord! Certainly these are days when we need to repeat often to ourselves the ancient prophecy—"It shall come to pass in the latter day that nation shall not lift sword against nation neither shall they learn war any more."

In the first place, let me remind you that things, bad as they are, are not altogether so hopeless as we sometimes imagine. Tremendous progress has been made toward the peace of which the prophet dreamed. Progress must be slow, but we are making it. The time once was when it was glorious for nations to fight. All the years were filled with wars. War was the only pastime of nations. The time was when the greatest glory men could achieve was military glory. It is not so now. There is a deepening horror, a deepening disgust at the whole trade of war. "It is horrible!" How often we hear it. Yes, it is horrible! Think of one of our battleships—just one—sent to the bottom of the sea, with 500 of our men! And that may happen any hour. The thought of it causes the blood to run cold. The heart is becoming kinder, and I suspect that there was never a war waged since war began, that has called up in the hearts of people, so much horror, as you will find in the hearts of our people to-day.

We must bear in mind that the champions of peace are growing more numerous. This has been a century of war, but in this century have been heard the strongest and sweetest pleas for peace. In Russia, right in the shadow of her vast military system, Tolstoi, like a prophet of the Lord, keeps on crying against the inhumanity and cruelty of war. Victor Hugo, for years in the shadow of the military system of France, dared to strike it blows from whi it will never recover. Bjornson, in No y has done for that country what V or Hugo did for France. In America, j. liam E. Channing and a host of c rs have taught us to love peace rather an war. The poets are with us. In the v ds of Josiah Bigelow,

"Ez fer war, I call it murder;
There you have it, plain and flat!"

That is the sentiment of the ts Lord Tennyson persisted in dream that splendid time when we shall h e Parliament of the Nations; a Fede of the World. Scientists are w Some of the greatest scientists tell u the expansion of the industrial spiri inevitably in time render war impo That is the dictum of the highest sc The progress must be slow, but th is coming, not to-morrow, but it i ing, when nations shall not learn w more. The ground of our hope r cisely that upon which Isaiah bu prophecy.

We must have more faith in the of man; the heart of man is not s the heart of man is improvable. English nation is the finest illustrat world affords of what vast improv the human soul is capable. It is a lo tance it is true, from the present co of warfare to that Supreme C which the nations shall try their s There are no fightings now in c tion, like those that stained the his all the early nations. We have tr that vast distance from the braw court room. In God's own goo and by his strength, we shall cro vast distance between the battlefie the Supreme Court of the worl surely as God is God, that court wi day be.

We can base our hope upon the and will of God. God has a pl these wars do not happen in vai have their purpose. We cannot s war in every case is unjustifiab man can take his stand on that p tion, unless he dares maintain tho that it is wrong in any and every c an individual man to use force, e defence of himself or in protec those he loves. Unless he takes t position, he cannot hold the firs be right under certain circumsta a man to strike another man—a m an insane man, a ruffian, a highw then it is right, under certain c stances, for one nation to strike nation. Our nation has struck m once. We struck more than one l years ago, and the result of our b our flag! Here, in the presence o could I say that we did wrong in s One hundred years later it was m to strike again, and the result of t was, that every star of the flag r in its place. I could not stan those stars and say we did w striking. Now to-day we are again, and the result of this th will be the vanishing from the ne of the power and cruelty of Spa will not say, when the war is o we have struck this time in va these wars are only incidents i ward progress of the race: this i end. God has an ideal for us. ideal world is a world of peace.

In the world which is sure t there will be no friction, no strife, but all men shall be sympathy, and mercy, and love. fore, as good Christians, we mu occasions, even in time of war, of peace. We must labor for must endeavor to hold all evil back. We do not want to stir u against Frenchmen, Germans, or even against Spaniards.

We will harbor no ill feeling anyone; we will pray for peace endeavor by our example and ou sation to keep down passions hateful, and to hasten the day the nations of the earth shall gether as members of one lovin

Let us pray and work as Chr hasten the day when the world joy a universal and perpetual pe

"Glad prophecy! To this at Shall all things come.
Forgotten be the bugle blast,
And battle music of the dru
A little while the world may
Its old mad way,
With needle-gun and ironclad
But truth at last shall reign.
The cradle song of Christ
Was never sung in vain."

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

pring House-Cleaning and how Two Model Housewives Do It — Disparity of Age in Marriage—Advice to an Ambitious School Girl.

SEVERAL of the group who are in the habit of meeting in this informal circle, notify me that I need not expect to hear from them either by letter or word of mouth until they shall have finished their spring house-cleaning. I am interested to know just how most of my friends go about this annual task. In the city, it is a necessity of health and cleanliness that the house shall have a thorough going over in the spring. Once a year it needs a greater renovation than is given weekly by broom and dust brush alone, and the painter, the whitewasher and paper-hanger must come to do their work. When the house has been renewed by these people, it takes a year good while a new lease of attractiveness and is the pride of one's heart; unfortunately for our pockets and our peace of mind, this sort of thorough ablution is not essential annually, and even by the most notable housekeepers, is called to at long intervals, or is taken part by part: one room this year, another next; the outside of the house thoroughly painted and restored at one time, the inside likewise freshened up at different times, a year or more apart, during ordinary house-cleaning, however, I do not ask you if you do not think we should make it too hard?

* * *

I have two friends who are both models of the perfect housewife. One of them says that as all her carpets up at once, and the whole house turned into wild confusion and chaos during her period of housecleaning. She seldom gets through the season without a subsequent spell of illness, and, as for the children, they are predestined to take cold while the house cyclone is going on. The other, an efficient and diligent house-mistress, makes her cleaning by installments. She does not begin too early; she waits purposely until the time has come when fires may be taken down and fires are no longer necessary anywhere in the house except in the kitchen. Then she cleans the top of the house, and takes room at a time. Her cleaning stretches over several weeks; but at the end of the year the house is a miracle of neatness and order, and nobody has been the worse for it. Even her husband has been heard to say that he does not know whether he has ever have house-cleaning under their roof or not. Of course, dear sisters, you have your opinions and your experience with them, and I do not set up mine against yours; but I do think that in life there is a better way of attacking hard work is almost always the better.

* * *

A good many of our friends appear to be interested in some aspect or other of the question. I find that there are few weeks when I do not touch upon it in some phase of its multiform interests. Now the question comes whether two people, everything else being suitable and probably congenial, have a good chance for a happy and successful marriage where the husband is some years older than the husband. It depends. I should say, upon the persons most intimately concerned. Speaking in a world large, it is best that married people should be on a nearly equal plane as to age, only a few years or so apart.

Where there is very great disparity, a matter, for instance, of twenty or thirty years on the one side or the other, the older of the two will probably have passed the period when social pleasures and gayety outside of home are attractive: he or she will prefer slippers and an easy chair beside the fire, to the most charming entertainment which can be provided. Also, the judgments and convictions of, we will say, fifty years, are apt to be more strongly held and more dogmatically expressed than those of twenty. The two when the difference is so great as that, practically belong to separate generations, and it hardly seems fitting that they should marry. The relation most appropriate to such people is rather the paternal or the brotherly or sisterly than the conjugal. If, however, the difference on either side be a matter of two or three, or even five or seven years, it makes very little difference in the long run.

* * *

A husband ten years older than a wife is usually practically on the same level with her. He meets her on entirely equal terms, engages in the same zest in all that pleases her, and is perhaps looked up to a little more by her on account of his superior age. A wife ten years older than her husband is not quite so happily adjusted to him in age. A woman of thirty is maturer, as a rule, than a man of thirty: besides, women grow old faster than men do, and not infrequently look older at a given age than their husbands. This rule is not without exceptions. In our greater knowledge of health and the laws which govern it, and in our greater ease of life, women in the last decade retain their youthful looks far longer than they formerly did. A woman of fifty in these days often does not look more than forty, and a woman of forty quite frequently has changed very little since she was twenty-eight.

* * *

A young man is very apt to fall in love in his earliest youth with a woman older than himself. If, however, she accepts him and they marry, the probability is that later in life, when he is in his prime, she will appear faded and middle-aged at his side. Though he may not mind this, it will be more or less a grief to her. Still, as I look over my friends, I must acknowledge that a large proportion of marriages which I personally recall, in which the wife was the older, sometimes by two years, which does not signify, sometimes by seven, in one instance by fourteen, in another by seventeen, and in still another by twenty years, the marriages turned out exceptionally well. Men like petting, consideration, and gentle thought. A man is always to the end of his life a big boy. He loves to be cared for; to have all his comforts seen to without fuss; he enjoys being constantly made much of, and the wife, when older than her husband, almost always seems to give him a measure of maternal as well as of wifely love and care.

* * *

And after all, there is this to be said, that marriage is not a mere partnership on the lower plane: it is a comradeship of soul; in its best estate, it is founded on congenial tastes and principles which have their root in beliefs and intellectual fitness and equipment. People are very different in their way of growing old. Some women are young and charming to their latest day. I have seen a woman beautiful at eighty. A bright, cheery temperament, a love of fun, a keen and clear mind, and a variety of interests will keep one woman young and fascinating when she has long since passed her fiftieth birthday; while another who simply lets herself go, who is melancholy and brooding and gloomy and perhaps ill-tempered, will pass her meridian of good looks and happiness before she is thirty. If my inquirers are themselves contemplating marriage, and truly love one another, and there is between them no barrier except that of a few years to the good on the one or the other side, I do not think that they need hesitate to go on and pledge their lives to one another before God's altar, and then be happy ever after.

* * *

A school girl, Kathleen V., writes to inquire whether she can obtain employment by which she can earn money out of school hours. In your last year in the high school, my dear, you probably have so much work to do in the line of your studies, that you cannot safely give up, as you propose, three hours of an afternoon after school to act as secretary and companion to an invalid. Your necessary work for school, should you do this, would be pushed into evening and probably extend to a very late hour at night, and you would bring to the work no freshness because your mind would be too tired by your all day routine, first in the schoolroom and afterward in the task you should undertake. It would be very much better, I think, for you to give all your time and strength to your studies now, preparing yourself at a later period to become a teacher, or to engage in some form of business life. Besides, very few women or young girls would wish your services at the fag end of the day. An invalid's best time is in the morning; and, naturally, if your services were required, they would be more in demand in the earlier part of the day than towards night. Be patient and prepare yourself for professional or business life by diligent study now. I need not remind you that you will put your mother to as little expense as possible by being contented with very plain dresses and trimming your own hats, and in every way sparing her expense. She, I am sure, does not wish you to work beyond your strength. Young men and young girls, in their impulsive energy, sometimes make mistakes and endeavor to do more than they should attempt. Nature often exacts a penalty for this in after life. I have no doubt that if you are able to complete your course at school, you will find work without much difficulty after your graduation. If it is absolutely necessary for you to earn money now, the only way of which I can think is that you should leave your school and studies and take a position in some shop as saleswoman. This is not to be advised in the circumstances, so again I repeat my former word and say, be patient and cheerful and expect some pleasant thing just ahead.

Margaret E. Sangster

GETTYSBURG BATTLEFIELD.

sorly-Conducted Tour via Pennsylvania Railroad

Saturday, July 16, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a special three-day tour to Gettysburg, the Mecca of American patriotism. Leaving New York 8.50 A. M., Trenton, 10.58 A. M., Philadelphia 12.20 P. M. Round-trip rate, including two days' hotel accommodations and carriage ride over the battlefield—all necessary expenses—from New York, $12.50 from Trenton, $10.00 from Philadelphia, and proportionate rates from other points. A tourist agent and chaperon will accompany the party, and Capt. James T. Long, a celebrated guide, will describe the battle at the high-water Mark, "Bloody Angle."

ROYAL
Baking Powder

is a pure cream of tartar baking powder, shown by U. S. Government tests the highest quality of baking powder made. In food it is false economy to use anything but the best.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT

AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.
$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.
Sent for 5c. postage.
Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

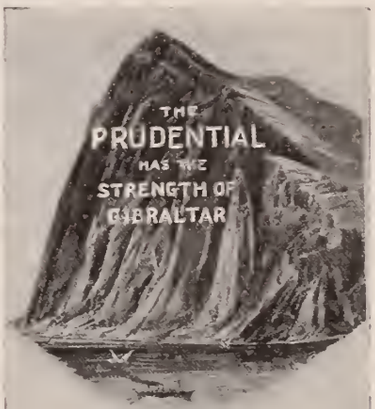
Warm Weather

Weakness is quickly overcome by the toning and blood enriching qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This great medicine cures that tired feeling almost as quickly as the sun dispels the morning mist. It also cures pimples, boils, salt rheum, scrofula, and all other troubles originating in bad, impure blood.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

America's Greatest Medicine. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, aid digestion 25c.



The Prudential
INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA

Offers THE BEST OF ALL that is good in Life Insurance.

Its profit sharing policies provide for the family in time of need.

HOME OFFICE, NEWARK, N. J.
JOHN F. DRYDEN, - PRESIDENT.

Better than Ever.

Oberlin College

The College, the Theological Seminary, the Conservatory of Music, the Academy. Sixty-sixth year begins Sept. 21. Full information from the treasurer.

JAMES R. SEVERANCE, Oberlin, Ohio.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N.Y.
Architects, Builders of Auditoriums
We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING
CLEANING CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

New England Conservatory of Music

Unequalled advantages in all departments of Music and Elocution. The Conservatory home for young women provides every comfort and safeguard.

George W. Chadwick, Musical Director.

Pupils received at any time. For prospectus address FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

CURE YOUR BOY OF THE CIGARETTE HABIT

Anti-Segarette—a harmless, vegetable remedy, will cure the habit in 10 days. Can be taken in coffee without discovery. Price 50c by mail. Phoenix Chemical Co., Quincy, Ill.

CRAZY WORK! 800 SILK REMNANTS, enough for a Quilt 4 sq. yds. 50c. IMPERIAL PACK. with floss & patterns, 10c, postpaid. Lemarie's Silk Mill, Little Ferry, N.J.

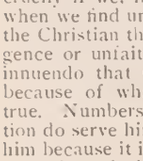
A HAPPY HOME.

A Fallacious Idea that God Promises Prosperity to His Children. Job 29: 1-20; Deut. 6: 6-9.

Few passages of the Bible are more pathetic than this, in which Job contrasts his former condition with that of his time of trouble. His friends cruelly and unjustly inferred that his troubles were punishments for wrong doing, and were so unusually severe because, as Job had apparently been so good a man, he must have added hypocrisy to his sin. There is still a tendency in some quarters to argue on the same lines, in spite of the emphatic repudiation of the theory furnished by this grand old book. An amusing illustration of the fact is the selection of this passage to associate with the topic, which was evidently made by some person who did not notice that in the next chapter Job shows how bitterly mistaken he had been. God's relations with man are not of the nature of a contract. He does not undertake to give prosperity and a happy home in return for certain conduct. Still, as in Job's time, the good man sometimes suffers adversity and we shall err cruelly if we, like Job's friends, assume when we find unhappiness in the home of the Christian that it is the result of negligence or unfaithfulness. Satan's cynical innuendo that God's children serve him because of what they gain by it, is not true. Numbers of them in every generation do serve him for naught. They serve him because it is right to do so and with no such crude idea as that it will insure them a happy home. When unhappiness comes, as it often does, in spite of righteousness and faithfulness, the best consolation a man can have, is that he did his duty and has nothing to reproach himself with. Then, like Job, he can answer his critics who assume in their self-sufficient pride to explain God's ways and he will in the end receive the vindication of God as Job did. The patriarch had no regret for his noble life, though it had not brought him happiness; he rejoiced in it, for it supported him in his adversity. Others have done so in modern times in like circumstances and have counted themselves happy in the fact that self-reproach is not added to the bitterness of their cup. God is something more than a distributor of rewards and punishments and we have no right to reproach him, if having done our duty the reward of a happy home does not seem to come.

THE PLAINT OF LOVE.

God's Affectionate Endeavor to Win Men to Himself. Hos. 11: 8; Luke 13: 34, 35; 19: 41-44.



Children often ask the question, why if God is omnipotent he does not rid the world of sin and make everyone good. That evidently is not God's way of dealing with men. It might produce holiness, but not the kind of holiness he desires to see in his children. We sometimes see in families the effect of that kind of government. A severe father makes himself dreaded by his children. He issues his commands, prohibits their doing this or that and holds them rigidly to the line of good conduct. When they disobey he punishes them relentlessly and compels good behavior by fear. If, unhappily, he is at no pains to explain the reasons for his government and does not try to make his children understand the evil of sin, their virtue is liable to be mechanical, a mere subservience to paternal authority. When they grow up and he no longer has the power to enforce his will, there are no young people so likely to become depraved as his, because their good conduct was not founded on an intelligent conviction of its blessedness. The wiser method is to lead the child to choose virtue of his own accord by convincing him of the folly and wickedness of vice. Then when the restraining hand of parental discipline is withdrawn, he is armed against temptation by his own principles. It is this method God pursues with his children. He compels no man to be good, but he pleads and warns with tender affection and seeks to woo him to the path of peace. This method deals with man on a higher plane than that in which force reigns. It treats him as a responsible being who is capable of understanding the consequences of his action and of appreciating the glory of righteousness. When that trust is not justified, God represents himself as grieving over man's perversity and lamenting his determination to ruin himself. He bears with the wrong-doer, and has long patience with him, but he will not force him to do right. Like a tender father, he longs to see him repent and voluntarily turn to him for light and life.

WORLDLY DISCONTENT.

The Incapacity of the World's Prizes to Afford Happiness. Luke 12: 16-21.

The plaint of Ecclesiastes that "all is vanity" has come down to our times. Men are still declaring that the objects for which they have striven do not satisfy, but rather stimulate the appetite they were expected to allay. It is told of the late A. T. Stewart, the dry-goods magnate of New York, that having taken a visitor through his stores and explained to him their many ramifications in this and other lands, he was amused at his visitor's wonderment. In reply to his admiring words and his expressed conviction that such a business must be very gratifying to its owner, A. T. Stewart asked him what compensation it would be fair to give a man who should undertake the management of so vast a concern. "Would his visitor be willing to do it for his board, lodging and clothes?" "Certainly not," said his visitor; I should expect a large salary for so responsible and arduous an office." Mr. Stewart said: "You do not think that board and clothes would be sufficient, yet it is all I get for doing the work." He did not think, with all his success, that he had made a good bargain for himself in his lot. Other men who have climbed to high places in the social and political world have made a similar confession. The world's prizes do not give content, even when gained. Neither riches, nor fame, place, nor power can satisfy the hunger of the soul. The rich and great may be content, but their contentment does not proceed from their worldly success. The only basis for content is that which is within reach of the poorest and the humblest—the performance of duty, combined with unwavering faith in God and submission to his will. The world has yet to learn the lesson Christ taught, that the abundance of a man's life consisteth not in the things he possesseth.

The Willard Memorial.

It is the purpose of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union to make the Temperance Temple in Chicago a memorial to their late beloved leader, Frances E. Willard, and to call it by her name. The Temple is one of the finest office buildings in Chicago, is headquarters for the N. W. C. T. U.; editorial and publication office of the Union Signal are in it, and from it many movements of temperance reform radiate. At the time of her death, Miss Willard was laboring earnestly to secure this building to the N. W. C. T. U. After her death, the association continued the work as a doubly sacred duty. The late Mrs. Mary T. Burt, President of the New York W. C. T. U., was particularly interested in this movement. Of the $300,000 which Miss Willard was endeavoring to raise to secure the Temple, the sum of $200,000 has already been subscribed.

The "Christian Herald" in Camp.

Hundreds of our soldier and sailor boys in camp and at the front are now regularly receiving THE CHRISTIAN HERALD as the gift of good friends who are donating the subscriptions for them at the special reduced rate of 25 cents for three months or $1 for a year. Addresses are changed as often as desired. These have been received during the week:

Prev ack'd	$586 62	Stewart, Mrs W I.	25
Barrick, Mrs N A ..	25	Stratton, Mrs Eva. .	25
Beers, M A	25	Tefft, Frank J.	25
Blake, S P .	1 00	Thompson, Benj E...	25
Bloom, Mrs M A	1 00	Thrasher, L .	25
Bonine, Mrs James E	1 00	Underwood J C	1 00
Brault, Lilla M	25	Vorse, Mrs Elizb M .	1 00
Bunker, Mrs E P .	25	Walker, E J . .	25
Caldwell, F E .	25	Walker, Miss F	1 00
Colvin, Mrs E M ...	26	Westgate, Mrs W J .	1 00
Corskie, J F	1 00	White, Edgar J. .	2 50
Davis, Mrs F B .	1 00	Wood, Mrs W L .	50
Dyer, Miss Eva .	25	Old lady 70 years old,
Elliot, Mrs J M	25	Calhoun, Menn	3 50
Fountain, Mrs .	24	The Lord's tenth,
Frost, Mrs L .	25	Hermosillo.	5 00
Grant, Robert ...	1 00	Cash, Paterson, N J.	3 00
Griffin, Mrs J .	1 00	A soldier's daughter
Heberling, Mrs J S	50	West Salem, Wis...	1 00
Heidenrich, Julius.	50	In the Name of Ar-
Holler, G H....	1 00	thur who has fallen
Holmes, Mrs A B .	2 00	asleep in Jesus. ..	1 00
Huntley, Miss Nellie B	25	Mrs E S C, West
Jones, R W .	1 00	Northfield ..	2 00
Keutes, C	50	E M J, Cuba, N Y	25
Kelly, Mrs Geo .	25	E Y P, Ashland, Mass	25
Kelly, Jennie	25	L V M, Somerv'e, Mass	1 00
Kemp, Mary E.	25	MBP, Mt Washington	1 00
Kershner, Mrs Mary.	25	S C S, Cresco, Iowa..	1 00
King, L W	1 00	W——, Gaithersburd,
Layer, Frederick ..	25	Md ..	1 00
Lewis, Mrs E P	1 00	—— ——	24
Lillie, Mrs . .	25	—— ——	25
Marson, Mrs Kate .	21	In His Name.....	1 00
Martin, Geo .	1 00	I H N, Essex Co.....	2 00
Mauley, W J .	25	Old Subscriber .	1 00
Merriman, Elizabeth	2 00	Friend, Eldorado, Ia	2 00
Moore, L A ...	1 00	Friend, Fruitland, Ia	1 00
Moore, Mrs W J	25	Friend, Gallipolis, O.	1 00
Mudge, Mrs C W . .	2 00	Grand Haven, Mich .	50
Nelson, J E	25	A Fd, New Hampton.	1 00
Nelson, Nellie	25	Friend, N Y City.....	1 00
Nelson, Rettie	25	A friend, Pendleton..	1 00
Newton, M S	1 00	A Herald Subr, But-
Noble, E S	1 00	ler, O	25
O'neil, Mrs W H ...	25	WCTU, Darnest'n, Md	50
Overton, Mrs M D ..	25	Considerate Circle of
Parsons, Mrs Jane...	25	the Kings Daugh-
Pike, Mrs Thornton .	25	ters, Palmer, Mass.	1 00
Pinkerton, Mrs M M	1 00	Junior C E Society
Pollock, Mrs Mary .	1 00	Everett, Wash .	50
Potter, H L .	1 00	SS, Madera, Calif ..	3 00
Reed, M E	1 00	YPSCE, 1st PresbyCh
Robinson, Mrs G B ..	25	Providence, R I	25
Sallada, W H	50	United Presby S S.
Scroggy, Mrs J C .	25	West Charlton, N Y.	14 00
Slater, Dora	25	Total ...	$682.07
Speedling, Mrs H C	1 00

All contributions will be acknowledged in these columns.

Northfield Y. W. C. A. Conference.

Extensive plans are now being arranged for the Young Women's Christian Association Conference, to be held at Northfield, Mass., from July 13 to 22. On the Seminary grounds, near the place of meetings, tents, with floors and convenient furnishings, are erected, where accommodations can be had at low rates. Evangelist D. L. Moody invites all young people's societies, Sunday Schools and other Christian organizations to elect and send one or more delegates to the Conference. Two meetings daily will be held in the Auditorium, which has a seating capacity of 2,500, and one on Round Top. An unusually large number of fine speakers has been engaged for this year.

Asthma and Hay-fever Cure Free.

Our readers who suffer from Asthma or Hay-fever will be glad to know that a positive cure has been found for these diseases in the Kola Plant, lately discovered in West Africa. The cures wrought by this new botanic agent are really marvellous. Wm. Potts, the editor of the Farmer's Magazine, of Washington, D. C., Mr. Alfred Lewis, postmaster, after many years' suffering, especially in hay-fever season, the Kola Plant completely cured him. He was so bad that he could not lie down, but only sit for fear of choking. After three years' suffering from the worst form of Asthma, Mrs. A. M. Dodd, of Victor, Iowa, writes that the Kola Plant cured her in two weeks. Rev. S. H. Gardner, Centre Hill, Pa.; Rev. John L. Mason, Mass.; Mr. Frank C. Newell, Maine; Rev. Benjamin Gilmore, and many others give similar testimony of their cure of Asthma and Hay-fever after long years of suffering, by the use of this remedy. If you are a sufferer we advise you to send to Kola Importing Company, No. 115 Pearl Street, New York City, who will forward, free, a package of the Kola Plant, with special directions for using. The Christian Herald has made it a large offer by which it is entirely free. Hay-fever sufferers should send at once, as it often is the effect before the season of the attacks. It costs you nothing, and you should surely send for it.

"What's in a name?"
Everything, when it comes to medicines.
Sarsaparilla by any other name can never equal Hood's. Insist upon Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Delicate Ginghams

"Wash delicate ginghams in tepid Fairy Soap suds, rinse well in tepid water, and dry in the shade."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address and one Fairy Soap wrapper to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of our booklet, "Fairy Tales," second series, larger and handsomer than the first and containing new stories and illustrations.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

You Can't Digest woody fibre (cellulose). Any food containing it is injurious.

WHEATLET

is made of the entire wheat berry—nature's best for man—denuded of the woody outer coat or husk. It is a food for digestion, nourishment, strength. Put it on your grocery list.

If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied.

The genuine made only by the
FRANKLIN MILLS CO.,
Lockport, N. Y.

JUST OUT ROYAL HYMNAL for the Sunday School
By REV. ROBERT LOWRY and IRA D. SANKEY
This new collection contains 232 pieces, the majority of which are new compositions of over 100 prominent hymn writers.
The best Sunday School song book offered.
$30 per 100 by express; 35c. each, if by mail.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

BATTLESHIP MAINE including photo Capt. Sigsbee beautifully colored for framing, also valuable catalogue FREE if you send 10c. to pay postage, packing, &c. Price for 50c.; 25 for $1.00, postpaid. Tremendous profits. Agents Wanted. Uhlfelder & Co., 28 Bond St., N. Y.

$18 per week and expenses to reliable men to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references.
R. B. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore, Md.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent.
McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

INTELLIGENT, refined ladies are offered a chance to earn big money in their leisure hours. Light work. 189 Rose Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY, Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN, Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS, Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK, Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN } St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO, Philadelphia.
MORLEY, Cleveland.
SALEM, Salem, Mass.
CORNELL, Buffalo.
KENTUCKY, Louisville.

BARYTES, Whiting, Silica, Zinc, etc., etc., are used to adulterate White Lead, because they are cheaper (cost less) than White Lead, and are branded and sold as "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," etc., because they cannot be sold as Barytes, Whiting, Silica and Zinc.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free. Also folder showing pictures of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

"Forbid a fool a thing and that he will do." Don't use SAPOLIO

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

A PIANOFORTE LESSON.*

ONE day a man came to tune the piano, and being alone in the house at the time, I had a talk with him while he was doing his work. I like to get people to speak about the things of their ns, which, of course, are the things ey know best; for in that way I n t valuable information and many esting thought which is of use to my own work. He told me how ry it is to take great care of f it is to remain in good order for gth of time. It should be closed t in use, so as to preserve it from t; and yet it should not be left oo long, lest the ivory of the keys ul turn yellow. It should never be where there is the least risk of or dampness is its most dangerous m causing the strings and other arts to rust, and the cloth and nconnected with the keys to swell, make them difficult to move. Con- dampness will also cause the dry old wood of the outside case to and thereby force the polish out of es; and thus the smooth shining which you can see your face re- as in a mirror, gets a rough, spot- earance, which spoils its beauty. ve cold or extreme heat is scarcely rious. The piano should never pled near a fire, or left open in a g of air. It should also be tuned competent person as often as possible. the tuner told me all these things, ht of a far more delicate instru- hich required to be looked after h greater anxiety. And yet very those who possess it do not value y ought, and do not take sufficient it. God has made each of you a musical instrument, capable of forth his praise. Each of you is of a thousand strings, on which the ried and beautiful music may be You are fearfully and wonder- de. Every part of your body is lfully constructed, and most ad- adapted to do its proper work. h tempered every organ so as to a most harmonious whole. But rument is exceedingly liable to go g. The least thing spoils it and unfits s work. And unless it is properly you cannot use it to glorify God, ke his statutes your song in the your pilgrimage.

word "temper" is a musical term. the musician means by tempering or a piano is just tuning it, har- g the notes. This he does, not by ach note its own pitch, but a little order to suit the other notes as- with it; and these tuned notes sant to hear just because they are d in this way. If each note were bring out its own exact complete egardless of the others, the result be a painful discord. Now God, ering or tuning the body, did not ach organ to have all its own way he ruling power in the body. He tuned each organ to suit the other organs, and gave to the parts that were thought least of the most important and honorable work to do. In this way the body works harmoniously together, and all the organs help each other to promote the general good.

And not only are you to temper the organs of the body in relation to each other, but you are also to temper the body itself in relation to your soul and spirit. You are not to give the body the highest place—to live as if meat and drink were more important than faith and truth, purity and love. Your chief thought is not to be of self-indulgence, but of moral and spiritual improvement. If you go in for cultivating your bodily powers only, then your intellectual powers will be dwarfed or repressed, and you will be a first-rate athlete, but a poor scholar. If you allow your intellectual powers to override your moral and spiritual powers, you will be a clever person, but you will have no conscience and no religion. On the other hand, you are not to make the body do double work—minister to its own simple natural wants, and at the same time be the slave of the soul's craving, and so seek to satisfy both itself and the soul too with its sensual pleasures. The body would be satisfied with the mere necessaries of life, which would allow it to grow and maintain its vigor and do its work; but the soul, by its unsatisfied hunger flies to the body for some keener sensation, compelling it to go to excess and dissipation, in order that it may get more out of life than is good for it. God hath tempered your body, soul and spirit together, and he wishes you to keep them tempered in the same way.

*_The Spring of the Day_, by Hugh Macmillan, D.D., LL.D. A delightful book, full of practical lessons drawn from every-day life. One of the best books that could be given to an intelligent boy or girl. Pp. 352. Price, $1.50. Published by Thos. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

SUMMER OUTINGS.

Personally-Conducted Tours via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces the following Personally-Conducted Tours for the Summer and early Autumn of 1898:—

To the North (including Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, Au Sable Chasm, Lakes Champlain and George, Saratoga, and a daylight ride through the Highlands of the Hudson), July 26 and August 16. Rate, $100 for the round trip from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, covering all expenses of a two-weeks' trip. Proportionate rates from other points.

To Yellowstone Park and the Trans-Mississippi Exposition on a special train of Pullman sleeping, compartment, observation, and dining cars, allowing eight days in "Wonderland" and two days at Omaha, September 1. Rate, $235 from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington; $230 from Pittsburg.

Two ten-day tours to Gettysburg, Luray Caverns, Natural Bridge, Virginia Hot Springs, Richmond and Washington, September 28 and October 19. Rate, $65 from New York, $53 from Philadelphia. Proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and further information apply to ticket agents, or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

Free Kidney and Bladder Cure.

Nature has provided a positive cure for diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism, in the New Botanic Discovery Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava Shrub. Convincing testimony of its wonderful curative powers is given by Rev. W. B. Moore, D.D., of Washington, D.C.; Mrs. James Young, of Kent, Ohio; Mr. Joseph Whitten, Wolfboro, N. H.; and many others who were cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder by Alkavis. To prove its great value, and for introduction, The Church Kidney Cure Co., No. 409 Fourth Avenue, New York, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. It is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

BABIES THRIVE ON IT. GAIL BORDEN EAGLE BRAND CONDENSED MILK.

OUR ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET ENTITLED "BABIES" SHOULD BE IN EVERY HOUSEHOLD. SENT ON APPLICATION.

NEW YORK CONDENSED MILK CO. NEW YORK.

Weak Lungs.

Recent Progress of Medical Science

Extract from Dr. Robert Hunter's lectures on the lungs have been published from time to time in this paper for the purpose of informing the people of the real nature of lung diseases and the discovery of a successful treatment of the lungs by Antiseptic Medicated Air Inhalations. No truth of medical science has been more conclusively proven and established than that Bronchitis, Asthma and Catarrh of the Lungs have been and are being radically cured by this treatment, while even Consumption, the most dreaded of all lung complaints, is arrested and entirely eradicated by Dr. Hunter's most recently discovered germicides, which kill and expel from the lungs the bacilli of tuberculosis. From all parts of the Union come the grateful acknowledgments of patients whose lives have been saved by Dr. Hunter.

Mrs. Milford Jones, of Dover, Morris Co., N. J., says: "I had been ill for nearly three years and was treated by seven doctors, all pronouncing my case very serious and some hopeless. I called Dr. Hunter as my last hope. He stated my case clearly, saying there was a cavity in my right lung. He said he could cure me if I had patience and would be faithful to the treatment, but it would take a long time. I am now able to do my housework and work in the store, and am a living witness to the power of Dr. Hunter's antiseptic air inhalation to cure the lungs even after all other means have failed."

Any subscriber of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD who is interested can obtain this book free by addressing Dr. Hunter at 117 West 45th St., New York.

"Sanitas" Book Free.

"How to Disinfect," an illustrated book giving practical instruction for disinfection in everyday life and during cases of infectious illness, sent free.

Every one having the care of a house or an institution should have it.

The American & Continental "Sanitas" Co. Ltd.
636 to 642 West 55th St., New York City.
Disinfectant and Embrocation Manufacturers.

HEALTH, LUXURY, BEAUTY

Obtained by use of our NEW IMPROVED VAPOR BATH CABINET (Patented). Excels all others in material and workmanship. All varieties of Dry and Vapor Baths enjoyed at home at a trifling cost. Its curative properties are invaluable. Renovates the system and beautifies the complexion, opening the pores of the skin and expelling all poisonous matter from the body. Our Cabinet is not a cloak or sack, but supported by a galvanized frame. Size, 39 in. by 1 in., folded; weight, 7 lbs. A child can adjust it. Descriptive pamphlet sent free. Price low. Agents wanted. O. MOLLENKOFF & McCREERY, Toledo, O.

PARKER'S GINGER TONIC

The best cure for Cough, Weak Lungs, Indigestion, Inward Pains and the ills of the Feeble and Aged. Combining the most active medicines with Ginger, it exerts a curative power over disease unknown to other remedies, and is in fact the most revitalizing, life-giving combination ever discovered. Weak Lungs, Rheumatism, Female Debility, and the distressing ills of the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are dragging many to the grave who would recover health by its timely use.

Lady Agents Make $18 a Week Easy. If you are in need of employment, send us your address, and we will show you how to make $18 a week easy and sure. If you are in need of employment, write to us at once. We guarantee that you can make $18 a week absolutely sure. You will be surprised at how easy it can be done. Send us your address anyway, it will be to your interest to investigate. Write today. You can positively make $18 a week easy. ROYAL MFG. CO., Box 207, Detroit, Mich.

CURED TO STAY CURED. HAY FEVER Dr. HAYES, Buffalo, N.Y.

WANTED NOW. AGENTS AT ONCE to sell Sash Locks and Door Holders. Sample Sash Lock free for 2-cent stamp. Immense; better than weights; burglar proof. $10.00 a day. Write quick. Address BROHARD & CO., Dept. 14, Philadelphia, Pa.

EPILEPTIC FITS Most remarkable cures by our great English Remedy, which has won for itself golden opinions in all parts of the world. Free particulars (with testimonials) sent free on application to L. A. Castle, Wyoming, Illinois

$9.50 BUYS A HIGH GRADE VICTOR SEWING MACHINE Adapted to Light and Heavy Work. Reliable and Finely Finished; Guaranteed for 10 Years. Write for 40 Page Catalogue. Attachments Free. 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL. Address Dept. 65. VICTOR MFG. CO., 30-98 Market St., Chicago.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES: no experience needed; position permanent; self sellee PEASE MFG. Co., P.O. Box A, Cincinnati, O

Costs You Nothing to Try It.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE

Cures Female Weakness, Restores Health and Vigor.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 1, 1897.

"I wouldn't be without my Brace for it has cured me of all female trouble. Had suffered twelve years with falling, laceration and ulceration of womb, with backache, headache, bearing down, constipation, painful menstruation, ovarian pains, etc. Have had Brace a year, and haven't been in bed an hour from any illness since. Mrs. Austin Berry.

Money Refunded if Brace is not Satisfactory. Send for full information and free illustrated book.

THE NATURAL BODY BRACE CO., Box 171 Salina, Kansas.

Every ailing woman should have this Brace.

IT IS NO JOKE

if you wear one like this, with iron or steel band. An instrument of torture. Why will you suffer when we can relieve and cure you with our Improved Elastic Truss. It can be WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY, THEREBY EFFECTING A RADICAL AND PERMANENT CURE, without neglect of your business. Call or write for free catalogue.

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 785 Broadway, New York.

Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 years.

AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE.

Agents who desire a profitable line of goods, which are extensively advertised, to canvas with are wanted at once for Dr Scott's Celebrated Electric Corsets, Brushes, Belts, Safety Razors and other goods. At the commissions we give you can make from $1,000 to $2,000 a year; send at once for our liberal terms; we give exclusive territory and free samples to every agent who works for us.

GEO. A. SCOTT, Room 7, 842 Broadway, New York.

NEW WAIST SET, 10c.

Our new '98 set of handsome design includes 1 pair rich link ball-end cuff buttons, 3 studs, 1 collar button, and the latest belt retainer. Extra heavy 14k Roman gold or sterling silver plate, worth 40c. at any store. We send complete set, with new catalogue of bargains, postpaid for ONLY 10c., 3 for 25c. Ingersoll & Bro., Dept. 61 67 Cortlandt St., N. Y.

DENT'S TOOTHACHE GUM

STOPS TOOTHACHE INSTANTLY.

The Only Perfect Remedy for Toothache.

This is Not a Chewing Gum.

Ask for DENT'S—Take no other. Sold by all Druggists, or by mail 15c.

(A SWELL AFFAIR) C. S. DENT & CO., Detroit, Mich.

HIGH ARM.

USE IT FREE

30 days in your own home before paying one cent in advance; shipped anywhere, to anyone, for 30 days' test trial. We risk you.

$60 White Star Machine, . .	$22.00
$50 Pearl Machine	18.00
Standard Singers, $9, $12.50,	16.00

Full set of attachments free; buy from factory and save $10 to $40; WE PAY FREIGHT; thousands in use; catalog, showing 20 other styles, free. Each machine guaranteed 10 years.

Warranted Ten Years.

Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co.
Address (in full) Dept 67 215 S. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill

Farmers Break the Buggy Monopoly.

It is claimed that for years buggy manufacturers have secured exorbitant prices for their goods, but recently, through the combined assistance of the farmers of Iowa, Illinois and other States, SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., of Chicago, have got the price of open buggies down to $16.50. Top Buggies, $22.75; Top Surries, $43.75 and upwards, and they are shipping them in immense numbers direct to farmers in every State. They send an immense Buggy Catalogue free, postpaid, to any one who asks for it. This certainly is a big victory for the farmer, but a severe blow to the carriage manufacturers and dealers.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH AND SUN PASTE

"FOR DURABILITY AND FOR ECONOMY THIS PREPARATION IS TRULY UNRIVALLED 3000 TONS SOLD YEARLY"

CAKES FOR GENERAL BLACKING APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A BRUSH"

Announcement Extraordinary

To CHRISTIAN HERALD Readers: . . . . We are just issuing a . . . . NEW EDITION of the well-known ALLEN REPRINT of the Encyclopedia Britannica for $25

And we have arranged to supply a limited number of sets to Christian Herald readers at a SPECIAL DISCOUNT.

1000 Sets will be supplied at $25 PER SET or with the supplement for $30

With a SPECIAL Discount to Christian Herald Readers ordering within 30 Days.

ENTIRE SET DELIVERED ON PAYMENT OF $2.00 Only

Balance Payable $2.00 Per Month.

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

is the standard of all English-speaking countries of the world.

CREATEST GENERAL HISTORY
CREATEST SCIENTIFIC WORK
CREATEST THEOLOGICAL WORK
CREATEST BIOGRAPHICAL WORK
CREATEST ART WORK
CREATEST GEOGRAPHICAL WORK

Every article upon these and every other subject is treated exhaustively by the greatest known specialists, hence every article is the best most reliable and satisfactory that the whole world can furnish.

ALL THIS IS YOURS FOR $2 PER MONTH

THIS NEW EDITION of the popular Allen Reprint of this famous work is supplied with a

New Complete Appendix Volume in addition to our exhaustive American Supplement. This Appendix volume takes every important title in the work and gives all the knowledge that is new or recent concerning it, bringing information

Down to April 1, 1898. It contains also 50 New Maps including the new Government Map of Klondike, Cuba and Hawaii. Thus, with our Supplemental Volumes, the Britannica becomes the latest as well as the greatest.

ORDER NOW and take advantage of this splendid chance to secure this unrivalled fund of universal knowledge.

Sign this application or write for fuller particulars.

HENRY G. ALLEN & CO., 150 Fifth Ave., N. Y.
Gentlemen:—I desire to take advantage of your special offer on the Encyclopædia Britannica to Christian Herald readers, and enclose $2.00 as initial payment. Send full particulars, and if found satisfactory, I will order the set, paying for it in monthly payments of $2.00; otherwise the money to be returned to me.

. . . . . .

. . . . . .

Absolutely Complete This edition contains every one of the 8,000 illustrations, 700 maps, and 25,000 articles found in the original, and while at less than one-third the price, it is essentially equal to the original.

No Risk The set may be returned to us any time within ten days, if not satisfactory, and the money will be returned.

To Canadian Readers This edition will not be affected by the Copyright Law, but can be legally sent into Canada.

HENRY G. ALLEN & CO., Publishers, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Drugs Destroy

the lining of the stomach, and cause untold trouble. Give your stomach a rest, stop taking medicine. try an Electropoise. It will do the rk of medicine, do it better, and leave ur stomach in normal condition.

The Electropoise isn't a belt or ba but simply an instrument which, applied, enables the body to take the oxygen needed for purificatio health.

Get well and keep well by usir he Electropoise.

Send for 112-page book, free.

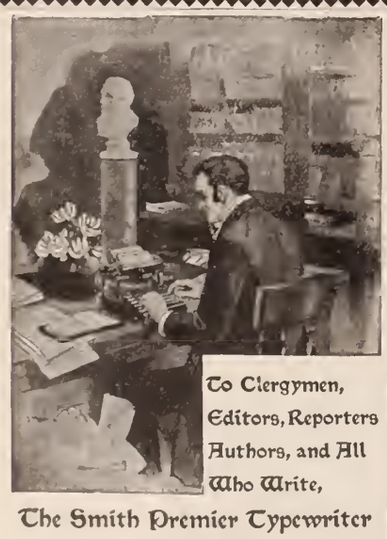
Electropoise Co., Room C, 1122 Broadway.

Miss Clara Barton's Letter.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 21.

Dear Sir: When in London the other da ceived two packets from the United State bassy, each containing an Electropoise; I received your kind letter. Please allow thank you heartily and gratefully for the s little machines. As you remember, I am entire stranger to the virtues of the Elect and I will take great pleasure in passing fering to afflicted humanity. Very sincerely

CLARA BARTON,
President Red Cross Armenian Relief Exp



To Clergymen, Editors, Reporters Authors, and All Who Write,

The Smith Premier Typewriter

Is an Invaluable Aid.

Easy and Rapid Composition.
Clean and Legible Manuscript. More Work ar Less Labor. New Art Catalogue free.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
Syracuse, N. Y., U. S. A.

Your Salary

depends on your value. Technical knowledge will greatly increase your value. Study at home. Success guaranteed. Best text books free.

STENOGRAPHY

Bridge Steam, Electrical or Civil Engineering; Mathematics; Chemistry; Mining; Architectural or Mechanical Drawing; Surveying; Plumbing; Architecture; Metal Pattern Drafting; Prospecting; Book-keeping; English Branches

TAUGHT BY MAIL

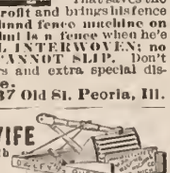
Circular free. State subject you wish to study. Estab. 1891. 45,000 students and graduates. The International Correspondence Schools, Box 801 Scranton, Pa.

$2.00 a Month

Advance Fence

IS SOLD DIRECT TO THE FARMER. WE PAY FREIGHT AND IS SOLD ONLY THAT WAY. That saves the farmer all the middleman's profit and brings his fence within a price that hents any hand fence machine on earth. Then he has a fence that is a fence when he's done with the job. IT'S ALL INTERWOVEN; no loose ends, THE WIRES CANNOT SLIP. Don't buy until you get our circulars and extra special discounts to farmers—Sent Free.
ADVANCE FENCE CO., 37 Old St. Peoria, Ill.

DO YOU LOVE YOUR WIFE



Then save her health and strength by buying her a

DILLEY'S QUEEN WASHING MACHINE

Washes cleaner, easier, and in one-third the time it can be done by hand. LIVE AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive territory to right parties. Get our circulars and prices, SENT FREE.
The Muir Washing Mach. Co. Den. C Muir, Mich.

$60 Sewing Machines for $18.

We sell every reliable sewing Machine made. We employ no agents, pay no commissions; buy for cash in large quantities which enables us to save you from $15 to $45 on any Sewing Machine you may select. All machines brand new, guaranteed latest improved, with all attachments, and warranted for 10 years. (Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.) Our illustrated catalogue gives full particulars, and will be mailed free. Don't think of buying a machine before investigating our catalogue. Address

J. N. HOOK & CO., A CINCINNATI, O.

EARN A BICYCLE!

By selling Baker's Teas among your neighbors a total of 30 lbs. for Bicycle; 12 lbs., Waltham Gold Watch; 25 lbs., Silver Watch; 10 lbs., Crescent Camera or Gold Ring; express prepaid. Write for Catalogue, Order Sheet, &c.

W. G. BAKER, Dept. 76 Springfield, Mass.

NAZO

for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh; no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

A Leather Lesson

Thick leather isn't always durable. Thin leather isn't always comfortable. Oily leather isn't always waterproof. Dear leather isn't always best. Low price leather isn't always cheap. Vici Kid is always reliable. This is the reason it is fast superseding all other leathers. Vici Kid is the only leather that repels the cold, yet absorbs no heat. It is the only leather free from oil, yet impervious to water. It is the only leather soft enough for comfort, strong enough for any kind of wear.

VICI KID

makes the most beautiful shoes for women, the most comfortable shoes for men, the most durable shoes for children (all colors). The genuine never varies in quality, no matter where you get it. Genuine Vici Kid is made only by R. H. Foerderer. To insure getting it and not an imitation, ask your dealer for Foerderer's Vici Kid. Vici Leather Dressing makes all shoes look better and wear better.

Ask your dealer for it. A book about buying, wearing and caring for shoes mailed free.

ROBERT H. FOERDERER, Philadelphia.

"THE DOCTOR" SAVES YOUR ICE AND REFRIGERATOR

Heavily Nickel Plated.

Breaks the ice any size you want it. Does not crumble or waste your ice. For sale by all hardware dealers. If your dealer does not have it, send 25 cents in stamps or coin and we will send it prepaid to any address. Agents wanted. Troy Nickel Works, Albany, N. Y.

Your Dinner can be cooked all at one time on one burner of any kind of stove if you use

THE IDEAL Steam Cooker

Prevents steam and odors. Will reduce fuel bills 50 per cent. A little blaze when cooker needs more water. Will hold 12 one quart glass jars in Canning Fruit. Agents Wanted.
Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16 Toledo, O

1898 BICYCLE $3.00

Yes, $3.00 takes our up-to-date, guaranteed bicycle on our great co-operative offer. You do a little work in your spare time. Write soon. COOK CYCLE CO., Office, 67 4th Ave.; Factory, 16-18 Franklin St., Chicago.

WANTED

RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and conspicuous places; steady employment; salary or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

Tartarlithine i Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., wr

"Your Tartarlithine has pro wonderful weapon for rheumatis have used a very great quantity in the last three or four m and I have never seen anything l I had one case who had tried all alkaline lithiates, and everything He has had rheumatism all hi and nothing completely stopped manifestations of the disease lik tarlithine, which did completely one bottle.

I have another old man, who much on the road peddling, wh been lame with rheumatism f years, and one bottle cured all ness, and he says he has not well in five years as now. The only the two worst cases of that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by

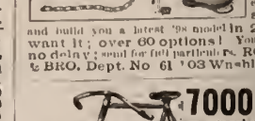
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St.

SOLE AGENTS FOR

The Tartarlithine Co

WHEEL BUILT TO ORDER, 25

Up-to-date, High Grade, Worth $50



We are th ers and job Grade Bic in the U.S. the larges To make mand for our sell one c each town a sale price and build you a latest '98 model in 2 days, ju want it; over 60 options! You get a $50 no delay; send for full particulars. ROBT. H. I & BRO. Dept. No 61 '03 Washington St.

7000 BICY.E

carried over from be sacrificed no High Grade, best equipment ered. $9.75 to Used wheels, la all makes, $3 Write for our bargain list and art for swell '98 models. BICYCLE season to advertise them. Send for one. Rid wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and ma

E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICA

TRY IT FREE

for 30 days in your own home and save $10 to $25. No money in advance.
$60 Kenwood Machine for . . $23.00
$50 Arlington Machine for . . $19.50
Singers (Made by us) $8, $11.50, $15 and 27 other styles. All attachments FREE. We pay freight. Buy from factory. Save agents large profits. Over 100,000 in use. Catalogue and testimonials free. Write at once.
Address (in full) CASH BUYERS' UNION
158-164 West Van Buren St., U. S. 18 Chicago, Ills.

$2-OUTFIT FREE TO AGENTS

In order to introduce our new novelties in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. Write quick.
J. F. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., CHICAGO

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to The Larkin Idea fully explained in our illustrated free booklet. Free Sample Soap If mention this magazine

The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

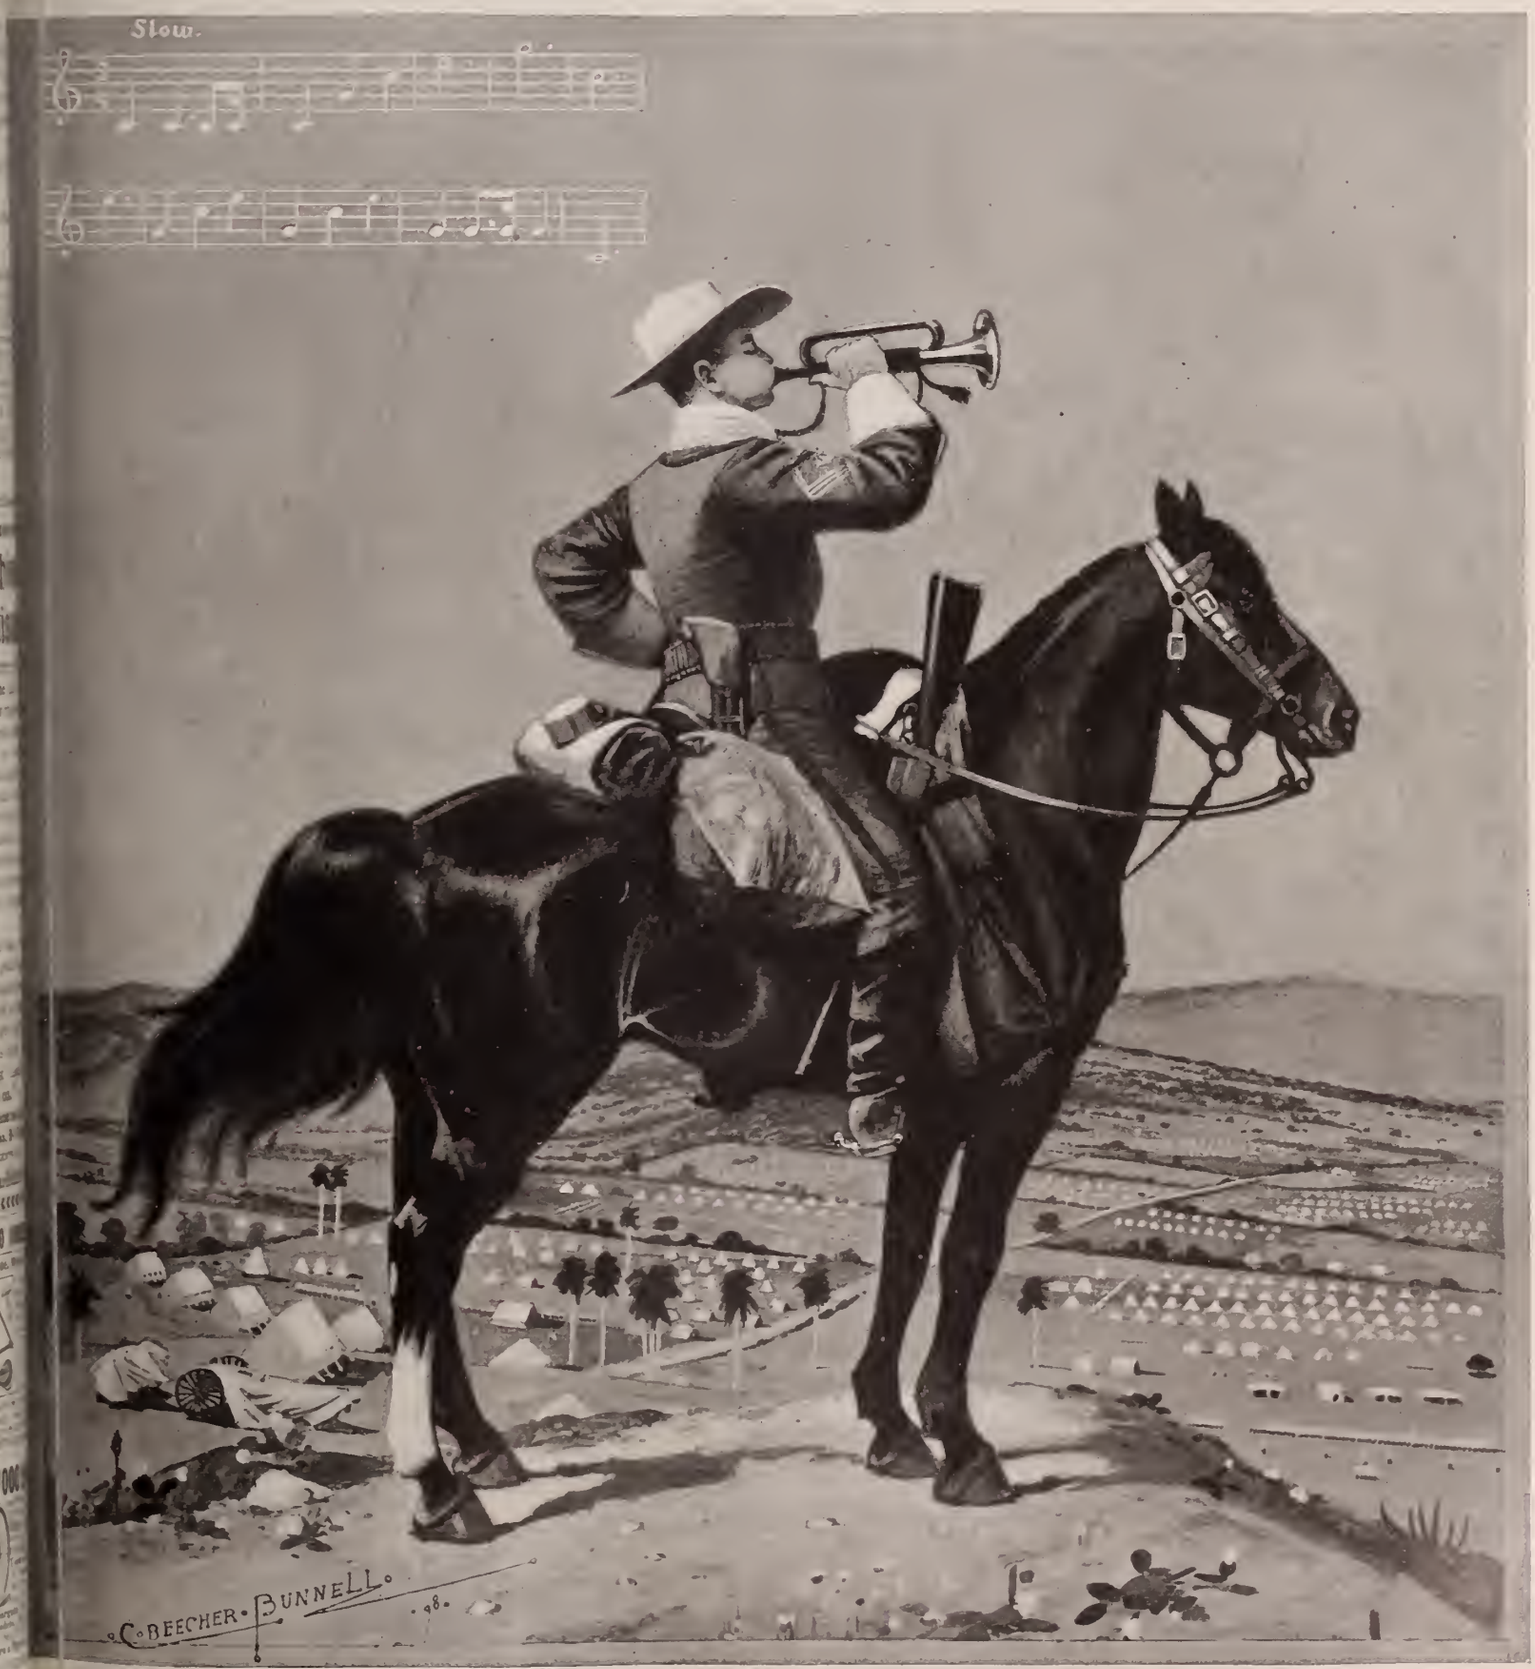
CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICE: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.
VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 29.

REV. T. DE WITT TALMAGE, D.D., Editor. NEW YORK, JULY 20, 1898. PRICE FIVE CENTS.



THE BUGLER SOUNDING "CHURCH" ON SUNDAY MORNING, IN AN AMERICAN MILITARY CAMP. (See Page 591).

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

P. E. C., Whittier, Cal. I read the following Spanish history: Carlos VII., son of Don Juan, the second son of the second pretender to the Spanish throne, was born in 1848. 1. Did Carlos VII. ever really become king? 2. Is Carlos VII. still living?

1 No. Carlos IV. was Spain's last recognized sovereign of that name. Ferdinand VII., who succeeded him, left a daughter, Isabella II., but no son. His brother, Don Carlos, Count de Molina, claimed, but never secured the crown. The Carlist party, which formed around him, called him, however, Carlos V. His son, Carlos, Count de Montemalin, in the same way, was known as Carlos VI. Don Carlos, Duke of Madrid, nephew of Montemolin, and grandson of Molina, born 1848, became Carlos VII. His father, Don Juan, was second son of the second pretender, as your history states. 2. Yes, in exile. Don Juan resigned the title in his favor.

Minnie, Sacramento, Calif. Who was the author of that old nursery rhyme, "The House that Jack Built?"

Its authorship is undetermined. The nursery rhyme of the old woman taking the pig to market is built on the same cumulative method of repeating every preceding statement after the introduction of a new one. There is an ancient Hebrew parable, beginning, "This is the kid my father bought for two zuzin," and ending, "This is the angel of death that slew the butcher that killed the ox that drank the water that quenched the fire that burnt the stick that beat the dog that bit the cat that eat the kid that my father bought for two zuzin." The kaffirs of Africa tell their children a similar story. The evident purpose of this sort of narrative is to teach the law of reaction, of cause and effect, and that all events are linked together as in a chain.

J. F. R., Athens, Ga. What is a "peri"?

A character in ancient Eastern mythology. The peri were represented as gentle beings, half angel and half human, who, with promises of award, directed the pure-minded to heaven.

A. D. B., Paradise, Tex. Why was God angry with Balaam for going with the messengers of Barak when he had told him to go? (Numbers 22. 20-22)?

You need to read the entire story to get a complete idea of the situation. Balaam, you will notice, was in the first instance forbidden to go. That answer should have been sufficient for Balaam, but when the princes came with alluring offers of gifts and office and honors, he bade them remain to see whether there might be any fresh instructions. He obviously hoped that permission would be given. He showed his ignorance of God's ways in supposing that Barak's gifts and promises could make any difference to God's decision. His answers to the men, also showed that he would like to consult if God would let him. Probably, too, God read in his mind an intention to pronounce the curse for which Barak was willing to pay. Hence the warning by the way, which would brace up his wavering resolution to utter the word of the Lord even if it was disagreeable to Barak.

A. B. W., Plainfield, N. J. What is the origin of the name "Jersey"?

The original form of the name as applied to one of the Channel Islands, is said to have been "Cæsar's ey," that is "Cæsar's ey," ey meaning island, and the name was doubtless given during the Roman occupation of Britain.

A. B. M., Valdosta, Ga. Will you please tell something concerning "Blind Tom"? I know he was a musical prodigy, and think he was idiotic.

In 1850 Mr Oliver, a Georgia planter, bought a negro woman, and because he would not have mother and child separated, her son was included in the purchase. Tom, an infant child, was blind and an idiot. Because of his helplessness he was allowed to play about Mr Oliver's house, and was much petted by the white family. When he was about seven years old his wonderful gift was discovered. Some one found him at the piano playing; when he would finish a piece he would kick and crow and clap his hands. A year later he played in public. Tom never showed any intelligence except in music; he could play almost anything after hearing it once. He is coal-black, a full-blood African.

Mrs. H. C. M., Nyack, N. Y. Who invented the trolley, as used on cars at the present time?

In 1882, Dr. J. R. Finney exhibited in Albany, Pa., the first model of a car supplied with electricity from an overhead conducting wire on which a small grooved trolley ran as on a track. The trolley was connected with the car by a flexible conducting cord. The contact wheel, now in use and the fishpole rod superseded the first device. The first trolley-line was run in 1884, as an experiment, over a half-mile track in the suburbs of Kansas City, Mo.; and its inventor, or projector, was Mr. J. C. Henry. The trolley-car as run to-day, represents, like all other inventions, the ideas and labors of many men, and the question of priority does not seem to be settled.

T. G. A., Peace Dale, R. I. Write to the Medical Journal, New York, for accurate information.

Jamie R., Memphis, Tenn. 1. Kindly inform me how the chain letter system is begun and carried out. 2. Are there any lady war correspondents? If so, where can one seeking such a position apply? 3. To whom should a young lady apply for the position as nurse in the army? 4. Where can the "War Testament" be procured, and what is the price of each?

1. We give no attention to chain system letters. 2. None that we know of, and we do not believe that the position of war correspondent would be suitable for a woman. 3. Write to 58 William Street, New York City. 4. They can be procured at THE CHRISTIAN HERALD at ten cents a-piece, ten for $1.

Reader, Wilkinsport, Pa. What was the population of the United states a century ago, and what its rate of increase.

In 1790, the total population was 3,929,214, and in each succeeding decade up to 1890, the figures were 5,308,483, 7,239,881, 9,623,822, 12,866,020, 17,069,453, 23,191,876, 31,443,321, 38,558,371, 50,155,783, 62,622,250. The present population, according to the same ratio, would be somewhere about 75,000,000.

Elkhart Subscriber. The Episcopal Church of England is under the control of the State, whereas the Protestant Episcopal Church is independent, being governed by a council of Bishops, elected by the clergy. In the English Episcopal Church the bishops are appointed by the State. The doctrine in both is identical, and there is a very slight difference in the service and liturgy. The Methodist Episcopal Church has no connection with either.

Mother, Trenton, N. J. I saw a paragraph in a local paper about an old lady in Virginia, who had sent all her male relatives to the war. Who was she? She must be a very brave woman. I could never have done such a thing, much as I love my country.

You probably refer to Mrs. Nancy Barger, of Bellefonte, who is now in her 107th year, and whose husband, two sons and a great-grandson have served the country. Her husband fell in the great naval battle under Perry on Lake Erie; her two eldest boys were killed in the battle of Antietam, and her great-grandson is now in a Pennsylvania regiment in Cuba.

Edmund G. Gifford, Dartmouth, Mass. Our C. E. Society desire to send papers to some of the camps, and I write for information as regards the best method of sending papers, and also where they would do the most good, that is where they would be most likely to be glad to get them.

If you will send papers to the care of any of the chaplains mentioned in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of April 20, 1898, they will be distributed gladly. Be sure that they are of a sort to be really serviceable—of fairly recent date and in good condition. Religious books, tracts, illustrated magazines, etc., are welcome. All such packages should be sent charges prepaid.

CONEY ISLAND BEACH IN THE MIDSUMMER BATHING SEASON.

Once a desert sandbar, lying to the east of Long Island, and lapped by the Atlantic Ocean, Coney Island is now a summer metropolis of hotels and cottages. It is a perennial source of pleasure and entertainment to the sightseer, and in the heated term is visited by multitudes daily.

Mr. A. W. Bell, San Francisco, writes:

I wish to thank you for your contribution of CHRISTIAN HERALDS for distribution among the soldiers in Camp Merritt and the Presidio Reservation. I divided the papers into smaller packages and sorted them so that there would be some of each issue in all the packages. They were sent to the various regiments and reading tents, and were very much appreciated. We shall have the soldiers with us for months to come.

Doubtless some of our readers would be pleased to send some fresh reading matter of a suitable character to these camps. Be sure to prepay all such packages.

J. A. W., Spanish Town, B. W. Indies. Will you enlighten me as to the right pronunciation and orthography of the word Manila, name of the capital of the Philippine Islands? Is it not spelled Manilla and pronounced Maniya, the double l being softened as it is in French and and Spanish, and I believe in Portugnese, also?

All English authorities sanction the spelling with one l, and the ordinary pronunciation, which sounds the letter as in English. If spelt with a double l, the pronunciation as a Spanish word would be Maneelya.

Reader, Sullivan, O. The increased circu on gives them a very much larger value as tising media, and enables them to get rates. We have no doubt that the war has l increased the revenues of some newspapers th from sales and advertising.

Mrs. R. W. S., Louisville, Ky. 1. Do you track of the soldier subscribers as they from place to place, or must you be notifi every change? 2. Kindly give descripti Admiral Dewey's flag, size, color, etc.

1. Letters to soldiers are forwarde special arrangement of the Post-Offic partment, provided the name, number of ment and last location be given. Add are changed as often as necessary. 2. to the Journal, New York City.

L. McA., Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Please t when these lines were written and who i author?

How happy is he born and taught
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armor is his honest thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill.

They were written by Sir Henry W Who was born in 1568 and died in 1638.

E. C. J., Laurel, N. C. Whence came the of releasing a prisoner at the feast as m ed (Matt. 27: 15.

There is no mention of the practice ilar history, but it is easy to see how have arisen. In a conquered country it the interest of the conquerors to con the people, and a governor wishing to himself popular would please them i a time of public festivity, he granted such a concession. Generally, the man release was asked for, would be some who had made himself obn to the government by esp the cause of the subject p The English government h eral times tried to win th port of Irish members of ment by releasing some pr who has been sent to pris sedition and has not serv his sentence.

J. S., Abbeville, Kan. Can receive justification and s cation at the same time?

Justification, as we have explained in these columns act of God by which he f the sinner and accepts him child. Sanctification is a l process by which the child ted to enter heaven. He i holy not by a miracle worke him but by the spirit over the evil in him, and dev the divine nature which planted in him at his justi and this process may be and painful one.

R. H., San Luis, Calif. Wh pect has a man in his d years of entering the kin he has never used the g which God endowed hi Lord's service because of ties which were always ar

The offer of salvation open to you. The labore toiled only one hour in t yard (Matt. 20: 1-17) receiv reward. You have mis joys that come to the C who begins to serve God early years, but if you go pleading for forgiveness Christ and throw yoursel mercy, you will be receive should make the most of t still left you, so that you enter heaven utterly f God's mercy in receiving y such long neglect shoul you to greater earnestness ing to serve him now, to sh how grateful you are.

S. Case, Warwick, N. Y. Write to Wille Springfield, Mass.

R. E. W., Nansen, Ia. We cannot info

M. E. H., Buffalo, Minn. Yes, the Mont arrived.

Subscriber, Dr. Talmage will be at Wis., July 23 and 24.

Brinton C. Searsville, N. Y. Write to S of the Navy, Washington, D.C.

Subscriber, Camden, N. J. Consult a The laws governing such cases vary in States.

C. M. H., Old Town, Va. They will be as soon as the present pressure on our spa lieved.

There is not sufficient data accessible to Write to Immigration Commissioner, W ton, D. C.

J. G. D., Poolville, N. S. 1. Write to N partment, Washington, D. C. 2. One is armor-plated, the other only partially.

Robt. Williams, Cape Town. There is eral States a law against blashemy and p which can be enforced at any time again ders.

Ed. R. C., Key West, Fla. As your citizenship seems doubtful, you should go proper Court and be naturalized. That w all disputes.

Miss E. M. C., East Boston, Mass. See ticulars regarding the Army Testament on page. They will be supplied at ten for $1 be forwarded to the camps at the same rate

Mr. John T. Pullen, for many years a to the North Carolina Penitentiary, would ate the gift of any copies of THE CH HERALD of this year for the prisoners to

OUR FRESH-AIR FAMILY GROWS.

Mont-Lawn Already Crowded with Happy Little Waifs—A Party of Wee Cuban Refugees—Escaping the City's Torrid Heat.

THE SWINGS AT MONT-LAWN—CITY WAIFS AT OUR CHILDREN'S HOME.

OUR readers who have contributed to the work at Mont-Lawn have occasion to be doubly glad of e share in that excellent charity. uch as they have been instrumental ving many little children from the quences of the terrific hot weather. July ushered in. New York has never suffered from hotter weather. e were many deaths and prostrations g people who did not live in tene s. and even horses dropped exhausted e streets. With the thermometer at in the shade. it is a wonder how chil- live at all under the wretched condi- of tenement life. in which. for the est, there is no reprieve from the dread- suffering entailed by heat. Choice between burning pavements and the icating atmosphere of miserable dwell- where. as is the common case. a large y occupies one small, ill-ventilated . where all the cooking. eating. sleep- washing and ironing goes on. By blessed work at Mont-Lawn. many t ones have been saved. who might perished. The crowded homes. which been relieved of drooping little nts. have afforded more breathing and g room to those left behind. and a worthy working-woman has had eart lightened. and her burden eased. ile the sweltering heat was so cruel e city. 131 children were playing on illsides at Mont-Lawn. getting the fit of cool breezes from the Hudson the Rockland Hills. and enjoying the athing-pool. which is at the service is in the morning. and of boys in the noon. At night they slept in big, ir dormitories. with breezes sweeping gh from many open windows. Be- are some extracts from postal cards en to parents at home. which give the ren's view of the matter:

MOTHER:—We hav' a good time. and s yous gettin' along and how is the baby. ve got a four o'clock boat and got here There was heaps of flowers and milk ookies. Charlie and Flora are getting d rosy cheeks. Your daughter. ANNA. P. Charlie's cheeks is getting red and he is g milk. (Charlie had been sick.)

GRANPA:—We had a little play and to bed and Miss Collins kissed us all night. EMMA. P. S. We are havin' a time and to eat and plenty of it. We you was here.

re is a letter from a washer-woman e tenements to her daughter at Mont-

JESSIE:—Mommer is glad you got all right. Tek gude care of Mollie. and het she gets all she can ete. Lizzie Mul- y cum and she lef a pressunt for you and Mollie. It wuz a slate pencil. Mommer would sen you some money. but I aint got a cent in the house popper starts to work Friday when he gets pade Satday night Mommer will send you some. YOUR LOVING MOMMER.

These contributions in aid of our Fresh Air Fund were received during the week:

Prev ackl'd	$861.10
Sarah M Biddle	1 00
D I Wagar	1 00
Mrs S Z Beam	1 00
IHN.A C H Fluvanna	5 00
H M. Laconia	3 00
Mrs A C Matthews	3 00
J A W, Pleasantville	4 00
P L A, Westport	6 00
Mettie E Stonghton	2 00
Henry G Meyer	1 00
Bertha Vogt	1 00
Fidler, Centr I Falls	2 00
Mrs N A Lewis	2 00
Mrs Horace Clark	1 00
—, Coram	1 00
Mrs F H Brewer	1 00
Friend, I H N, Ilwaco	1 00
Children of Mt Hope S S, Manchester	2 00
Evelin Ford	1 00
B W Cheney	10 00
Friend, Adams	5 00
The Sunbeams Malden	2 00
Mr & Mrs Seig	3 00
Widow's Mite, Phila.	2 00
Friend, New York City	25
Carson Creek S S, Clarksville	1 80
Benton Barton	75
Mabel Bence	1 50
Ella Dunlap	65
Jean Dunlap	50
Dora Oakley	2 30
May Woods	2 50
Mrs Jane Bradner	2 00
Rhny Wood	1 00
Golden Rule Circle of K D's, Mariner's Harbor	3 00
Miss AER, Dongherty	3 00
A Dongias	1 00
Mrs Rosa A Isbell	1 00
Mrs Taylor	1 50
Ella Rudy	9 00
Nellie M Hamin	3 00
Eric W & Elvin M Bragg	2 50
Dnnbarton Praying Band	50
Peter Smith	1 00
—, Cazenovia	1 00
Birthday Bank of Prim Class of Refd S S, Clinton	11 00
Children's Day, Harrington S S ch	6 00
Legionarion, Harr'g'n	15 00
Saml Clelland	5 00
J H Mound	2 00
Mrs F & Miss C A Loesch	6 00
Bertha E Davis	3 00
J F Weaver & son	5 00
In memory of little Johnnie, New Haven	2 00
Friend, Lanark	1 00
Mrs Anna De Witt	5 00
Reader, Cortland	25
—, Dawson	5 00
I F R, Leon	1 00
Helen Isabel	6 00
Mrs S Brobst	5 00
Reader, Fair Haven	1 00
In as much, Rochester	3 00
Mrs E A Conley	2 00
Mrs E C G, New Belfast	2 00
Paul Carter	1 00
Anon	1 00
Helen Ernestine Williams	1 25
Miss Mary Magill	1 00
Miss Jessie Alan	50
C O D, Mechanicsburg	3 00
Mrs Lizzie Harper	75
Mrs W A Graham	1 00
H S Gamblin	3 00
M A Himes	9 00
A W, New York	25
Henry J Shepherd	6 00
Friend, Jackson —, Bonners Spgs	1 00
Nellie, Carlisle	1 00
Friend, Amawalk	3 00
" Lancaster	3 00
G C B, W, Charlton	2 00
Jr E Soc 1st Cong Ch Sidney	3 00
J P K, Nashua	3 00
Bertha M Soper	1 00
Mrs E Gilman	1 00
Mrs H P Parson	2 00
Y P P, Bklyn	1 00
Miss L Dwelley	1 35
Elizabeth C. Harris g	1 00
H O Draper	5 00
M A M, Syracuse	3 00
E M Devereaux	3 00
Snbr, McKee	1 00
Miss S C Magnns and others	6 00
Sympathizers, N Y	1 00
2 Friends, Mt Joy	10 00
L E Sturges	10 00
Mrs C E Merrell	2 00
B G B, Waterbury	10 00
Presby Y P S C E, Charleston	3 00
L B T, Sinking Valley	1 00
Mrs A L Hollinger and Mrs A Chambers	4 00
Mrs C Cooley	3 00
Busy Bee So, Princeton Jct	2 00
G B W, Cranston	1 00
Little Harvey, Antigo	1 00
Mrs F Walch	5 00
Mrs M M Ward	1 00
M P Jones	1 00
Jennie A Rowley	1 00
Total	$1174.20

Among our guests are four little Cuban boys, Octavio, Francisco, Oscar and Mario Seglie. The family consists of the parents and twelve children, until recently residents of Sagua la Grande. During the work of our Relief Fund in Cuba before the blockade, many reconcentrados in Sagua had been aided by the generosity of our readers, and among them members of the Seglie family, who had been made homeless and penniless by the Spanish soldiers. When opportunity came to flee from Cuba, they were among the last to leave their native land. Mr. Seglie is an intelligent Cuban, and both he and his brother rendered good service in our relief work in its early stages. All are now refugees. The children speak but one or two English words, but little folks everywhere understand the universal language of the playground. Their little playmates are full of kindness and sympathy for the little exiles, who have come from so much sorrow and suffering to refuge in our land.

One has only to step into the hospitable doorway at Mont-Lawn to see who is the Ruler of the house. Over the mantel of one room which opens on the hall (the room in which matron and caretakers meet for prayer that God may direct and sustain this blessed work for children) one reads in large bright lettering the words: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Through another open doorway, and over a multitude of snowy cots, are the beautiful words: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Over a window is this:

Jesus is this household's King,
Ruling, guiding everything;
Keeping each beneath his wing.

We wish that all of our readers could drop in on Mont-Lawn at dinner time. Under the great tent on the lawn, which overlooks the beautiful Hudson, long white tables are set forth with many mugs and plates, with bread and potatoes, roast or stew. The gong on the front porch announces the magic hour and calls into line under the house-mother's eye an eager, hungry host. Our drummer boy, who is one of our little guests, begins a lively rat-tat-tat, and leads the way to the tent. Children file in, take their places, fold their hands, bow their heads, and sing:

God is great, God is good,
And we thank him for this food.
By his hand must all be fed,
Give us, Lord, our daily bread.

Many of the children will never forget that they have been fed and clothed for Christ's sake. The little, dirty, ragged garments will hardly hold on most of them when they come—although, perhaps it is a composite costume of the best that the family wardrobe could supply; a mixture of summer and winter attire. The good garments, in which the children are sent home, are great boons to poverty-stricken mothers, in whose behalf and the children, we thank the kind, thoughtful friends who helped them in this matter. We believe they will sometime hear the blessed words: "I was naked, and ye clothed me." A case of overalls for our boys was very acceptable. Hats, caps, shoes, trousers, blouses, dresses, any summer garments for children from five to twelve will be thankfully received by House-mother Collins, and should be addressed to her at THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y. Cash contributions should be addressed to this paper, and will be promptly acknowledged. Three dollars will send one little child a ten-days' outing, covering expense of transportation, back and forth, of medical and caretaker's attention, food, shelter, and clothing. Nine dollars will send three. Even $1 will help towards an outing, which may mean the saving of a child's life, and which, we are sure, often means the saving of a soul.

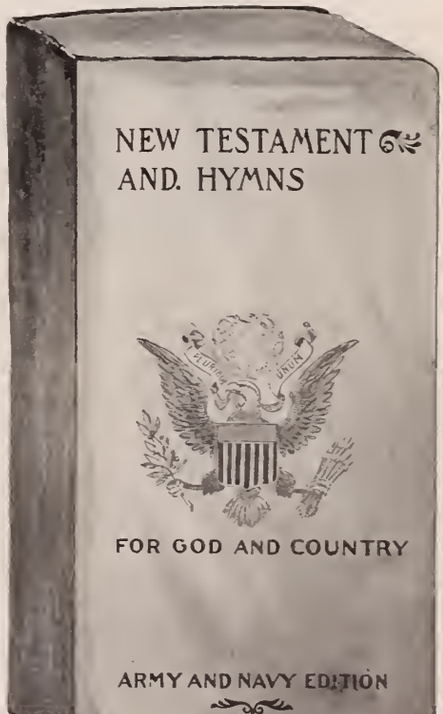
OUR WAR TESTAMENT.

A Compact Little Vest-Pocket Edition for Our Soldiers and Sailors.

HUNDREDS of letters have been received from different quarters making inquiry regarding our vest-pocket "War Testament." A photograph of the Testament is reproduced on this page. It is an altogether unique little book. Strongly and neatly bound, it contains the entire New Testament in clear letter-press, one column to the page. It is the Authorized Version, self-pronouncing, and identical with the International Bible Company's book, with the exception of the size of the page and the form of the book itself. Bound in with the New Testament are twenty Gospel Hymns, selected specially for this Army and Navy edition by Ira D. Sankey, the well-known Gospel singer and evangelist, so long associated with Mr. D. L. Moody.

This beautiful and compact little gem of a Testament fits snugly in the vest-pocket, or the narrow pocket of a military coat or tunic. It can be carried about with as little inconvenience as a watch, and is always at hand as a means of solace and spiritual refreshment for the weary soldier or sailor, whether in camp, at home, or in bivouac in a foreign land. Many of them have already been sent to Camps Thomas, Chickamauga, Alger, Tampa and Jacksonville, and many are doubtless being borne by their owners to the hills and valleys of war-swept Cuba. They will be perused by the fitful light of camp-fires, and will be used in many an impromptu Gospel service by our brave boys.

For $1 we can send ten of these War Testaments to as many American soldiers or sailors, or, if our readers prefer, we can send the Testaments to them, so that they themselves may be the forwarders. It is our object to place a Testament in the hands of every soldier in the army and every sailor in the navy who is not now the possessor of a Bible or Testament.



THE VEST-POCKET "WAR TESTAMENT."

We thank our readers for uniting with us in this effort to give the Gospel to the hundreds of our country's defenders. Thousands of them are beyond the reach of words from pastor or evangelist, even beyond the reach of loving letters from friends at home.

All who are interested in this movement and who desire to contribute to the same, should distinctly state in their letters that the gift is intended for the War Testament Distribution Fund, and such gifts will be acknowledged in THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Acknowledgements appear on another page.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

ONE LIFE ENOUGH.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Job 2: 4 „ . . . . . All that a man hath will he give for his life.

THAT is untrue. The Lord did not say it, but Satan said it to the Lord when the evil one wanted Job still more afflicted. The record is: "So went Satan forth from the presence of the Lord, and smote Job with sore boils." And Satan has been the author of all eruptive disease since then, and he hopes by poisoning the blood to poison the soul. But the result of the diabolical experiment which left Job victor proved the falsity of the Satanic remark: "All that a man hath will he give for his life." Many a captain who has stood on the bridge of the steamer till his passengers got off and he drowned; many an engineer who has kept his hand on the throttle valve or his grip on the brake, until the most of the train was saved, while he went down to death through the open draw-bridge; many a fireman who plunged into a blazing house to get a sleeping child out, the fireman sacrificing his life in the attempt, and the thousands of martyrs who submitted to fiery stake and knife of massacre and headman's axe and guillotine rather than surrender principle, proving that in many a case my text was not true when it says: "All that a man hath will he give for his life.

But Satan's falsehood was built on a truth. Life is very precious, and if we would not give up all, there are many things we would surrender rather than surrender it. We see how precious life is from the fact that we do everything to prolong it. Hence all sanitary regulations, all study of hygeine, all fear of draughts, all waterproofs, all doctors, all medicines, all struggle in crisis or accident. Life is precious. Yea, there are those who deem life so precious they would like to repeat it: they would like to try it over again. They would like to go back from seventy to sixty, from sixty to fifty, from fifty to forty, from forty to thirty, and from thirty to twenty. I propose for very practical and useful purposes, as will appear before I get through, to discuss the question we have all asked of others, and others have again and again asked of us, Would you like to live your life over again?

The fact is, that no intelligent and right-feeling man is satisfied with his past life. However successful your life may have been, you are not satisfied with it. What is success? Ask that question of a hundred different men, and they will give a hundred different answers. One man will say, "Success is a million dollars;" another will say, "Success is world-wide publicity;" another will say, "Success is gaining that which you started for." But as it is a free country I give my own definition, and say, "Success is fulfilling the particular mission upon which you were sent, whether to write a constitution, or invent a new style of wheelbarrow, or take care of a sick child." Do what God calls you to do, and you are a success, whether you leave a million dollars at death or are buried at public expense, whether it takes fifteen pages of an encyclopædia to tell the wonderful things you have done, or your name is never printed but once, and that in the death column. But whatever your success has been, you are not satisfied with your life.

We have all made so many mistakes, stumbled into so many blunders, said so many things that ought not to have been said, and done so many things that ought not to have been done, that we can suggest at least 95 per cent of improvement. Now, would it not be grand if the good Lord would say to you: "You can go back and try it over again. I will, by a word turn your hair to black, or brown, or gold en, and smooth all the wrinkles out of your temple or cheek, and take the bend out of your shoulders, and extirpate the stiffness from the joint, and the rheumatic twinge from the foot, and you shall be twenty-one years of age, and just what you were when you reached that point before. If the proposition were made I thing many thousands would accept it.

That feeling caused the ancient search for what was called the Fountain of Youth, the waters of which, taken, would turn the hair of the octogenarian into the curly locks of a boy, and however old a person who drank at that fountain, he would be young again. The Island was said to belong to the group of Bahamas, but lay far out in the ocean. The great Spanish explorer, Juan Ponce de Leon, fellow-voyager of Columbus, I have no doubt, felt that if he could discover that Fountain of Youth, he would do as much as his friend had done in discovering America. So he put out in 1512 from Porto Rico and cruised about among the Bahamas in search of that fountain. I am glad he did not find it. There is no such fountain. But if there were, and its waters were bottled up and sent abroad at a thousand dollars a bottle, the demand would be greater than the supply; and many a man who has come through a life of uselessness, and perhaps sin, to old age would be shaking up the potent liquid, and if he were directed to take only a teaspoonful after each meal, would be so anxious to make sure work he would take a tablespoonful, and if directed to take a tablespoonful, would take a glassful.

But some of you would have to go back further than to twenty-one years of age to make a fair start, for there are many who manage to get all wrong before that period. Yea, in order to get a fair start, some would have to go back to the father and mother and get them corrected; yea, to the grandfather and grandmother, and have their life corrected, for some of you are suffering from bad hereditary influences which started a hundred years ago. Well, if your grandfather lived his life over again, and your father lived his life over again, and you lived your life over again, what a cluttered-up place this world would be—a place filled with miserable attempts at repairs. I begin to think that it is better for each generation to have only one chance, and then for them to pass off and give another generation a chance. Besides that, if we were permitted to live life over again, it would be a stale and stupid experience. The zest and spur and enthusiasm of life come from the fact that we have never been along this road before, and everything is new, and we are alert for what may appear at the next turn of the road. Suppose you, a man of mid-life or old age, were, with your present feelings and large attainments, put back into the thirties, or the twenties, or in the teens, what a nuisance you would be to others, and what an unhappiness to yourself! Your contemporaries would not want you, and you would not want them. Things that in your previous journey of life stirred your healthful ambition, or gave you pleasurable surprise, or led you into happy interrogation, would only call forth from you a disgusted "Oh, pshaw!" You would be blase at thirty, and a misanthrope at forty, and unendurable at fifty. The most inane and stupid thing imaginable would be a second journey of life.

Besides that, if you took life over again you would have to take its deep sadnesses over again. Would you want to try again the griefs and the heartbreaks and the bereavements through which you have gone? What a mercy that we shall never be called to suffer them again! We may have others bad enough, but those old ones never again. Would you want to go through the process of losing your father again, or your mother again, or your companion in life again, or your child again?

Besides that, would you want to risk the temptations of life over again? From the fact that you are here I conclude that, though in many respects your life may have been unfortunate and unconsecrated, you have got on so far tolerably well, it nothing more than tolerable. As for myself, though my life has been far from being as consecrated to God as I would like to have had it, I would not want to try it over again, lest next time I would do worse.

Why, just look at the temptations we have all passed through, and just look at the multitudes who have gone completely under! Just call over the roll of your school-mates and college-mates, the clerks who were with you in the same store or bank, or the operatives in the same factory, with just as good prospects as you, who have come to complete mishap. Some young man that told you that he was going to be a millionaire, and own the fastest trotters on the turnpike, and retire by the time he was thirty-five years of age, you do not hear from for many years, and know nothing about him until some day he comes into your store and asks for five cents to get a mug of beer.

You, the good mother of a household, and all your children rising up to call you blessed, can remember when you were quite jealous of the belle of the village, who was so transcendently fair and popular. But while you have these two honorable and queenly names of wife and mother, she became a poor waif of the street, and went into the blackness of darkness forever. Live life over again? Why, if many of those who are respectable were permitted to experiment, the next journey would be demolition. You get through as Job says, by the skin of your teeth. Next time you might not get through at all. Better go forward than backward, even if we had the choice. The greatest disaster I can think of would be for you to return to boyhood in 1898. Oh, if life were a smooth Luzerne or Cayuga Lake, I would like to get into a yacht and sail over it, not once, but twice—yea, a thousand times. But life is an uncertain sea, and some of the ships crash on the icebergs of cold indifference, and some take fire of evil passions, and some lose their bearings and run into the Goodwin Sands, and some are never heard of. Surely on such a treacherous sea as that one voyage is enough.

Besides all this, do you know, if you could have your wish and live life over again, it would put you so much further from reunion with your friends in heaven? You are now, let us say, twenty years, or ten years, or one year off from celestial conjunction. Now, suppose you went back in your earthly life thirty years, or forty years, or fifty years, what an awful postponement of the time of reunion! It would be as though you were going to San Francisco to a great banquet, and you got to Oakland, four or five miles this side of it, and then came back all the way to Baltimore to get a better start. No; the wheel of time turns in the right direction, and it is well it turns so fast. Three hundred and sixty-five revolutions in a year and forward, rather than 365 revolutions in a year and backward.

But hear ye! hear ye! while I tell you how you may practically live your life over again and be all the better for it. You may put into the remaining years of your life all you have learned of wisdom in your past life. You may make the coming ten years, worth the preceding forty or fifty years. When a man says he would like to live his life over again because he would do so much better, and yet goes right on living as he has always lived, do you not see he stultifies himself? He proves that if he could go back he would do almost the same as he has done.

If a man eat green apples some Wednesday in cholera time and is thrown into fearful cramps, and says on Thursday: "I wish I had been more prudent in my diet; oh, if I could live Wednesday over again!" and then on Friday eats apples just as green, he proves that it would have been no advantage for him to live Wednesday over again. And if we, deploring our past life, and with the idea of improvement, long for an opportunity to try it over again, yet go on making the same mistakes and committing the same sins, we only demonstrate that the repetition of our existence would afford no improvement. It was green apples before, and it would be green apples over-again.

Besides that we have all these years been learning how to be useful, and in the next decade we ought to accomplish more for God and the Church and the world than in any previous four decades. The best way to atone for past indolence or past transgression is by future assidu Yet we often find Christian men who w not converted until they were forty fifty, as old age comes on, saying: "W my work is about done, and it is time me to rest." They gave forty years their life to Satan and the world, a li fragment of their life to God, and r they want rest. Whether that belong comedy or tragedy I say not.

My hearers, the mistakes of youth never be corrected. Time gone is g forever. An opportunity passed the th sandth part of a second has by one l reached the other side of a great etern In the autumn when the birds mig you look up and see the sky black w wings, and the flocks stretching out i many leagues of air, and so to-day I l up and see two large wings in full swe They are the wings of the flying y That is followed by a flock of three l dred and sixty-five, and they are the fl days. Each of the flying days is follo by twenty-four, and they are the fl hours, and each of these is followed sixty, and these are the flying minn Where did this great flock start fr Eternity past. Where are they bou Eternity to come. You might as wel a-gunning for the quails that whistled year in the meadows, or the robins last year caroled in the sky, as to t fetch down and bag one of the past portunities of your life. Do not say: will lounge now and make it up at ward." Young men and boys, you c make it up. My observation is that t who in youth sowed wild oats, to the of their short life sowed wild oats. that those who start sowing Gene wheat always sow Genesee wheat.

And then the reaping of the harves so different. There is grandfather r He has lived to old age because his ha have been good. His eyesight for world has got somewhat dim, but eyesight for heaven is radiant. His h ing is not so acute as it once was, and must bend clear over to hear what little grandchild says when she asks what he has brought for her. But easily catches the music rained from pernal spheres. Men passing in the str take off their hats in reverence, and w en say: "What a good old man he Seventy or eighty years, all for God for making this world happy. Splen Glorious! Magnificent!

Out yonder is a man very old at f years of age, at a time when he ough be buoyant as the morning. He got habits on him very early, and those ha have become worse. He is a man on on fire with alcoholism, on fire wit evil habits, out with the world and world out with him. Down, and fal deeper. His swollen hands in his thr bare pockets, and his eyes fixed on ground, he passes through the street. the quick step of an innocent child or strong step of a young man or the rol a prosperous carriage maddens him. he curses society and he curses God. en sick, with no resources, he is car to the almshouse. A loathsome spect he lies all day long waiting for dissolu or in the night rises on his cot and fig apparitions of what he might have and what he will be. He started life as good a prospect as any man on American continent, and there he bloated carcass, waiting for the shove public charity to put him five feet un He has only reaped what he sowed. In vest of wild oats! "There is a way seemeth right to a man, but the end t of is death."

To others life is a masquerade and as at such entertainments gentle and ladies put on the garb of kings queens or mountebanks, or clowns at the close put off the disguise, s great many pass their whole life i mask, taking off the mask at de While the masquerade ball of life on, they trip merrily over the fl gemmed hand is stretched to gem hand, gleaming brow bends to glean brow. On with the dance! Flush rustle and laughter of immeasur merry-making. But after awhile the gnor of death comes on the limbs blurs the eyesight. Lights lower. F hollow with sepulchral echo. Music dened into a wail. Lights lower. the maskers are only seen in the light. Now the fragrance of the flow is like the sickening odor that co from garlands that have lain long in vats of cemeteries. Lights lower, M s gather in the room. Glasses shake as though quaked by sudden thunder. Si caught in the curtain. Scarf drops fro the shoulder of beauty a shroud. Li ts lower. Over the slippery boards in nce of death glide jealousies. envies, re nges, lust, despair, and death. Stench of mp-wicks almost extinguished. Torn ga nds will not half cover the ulcerated fe Choking damps, chilliness. Feet sti Hands closed. Voices hushed. Eyes sh Lights out.

nvite you to quit all that and begin a ne life. Roland went into battle. Char- ler gne's army had been driven back by the hree armies of the Saracens, and Ro- lar almost in despair took up the trum- pe nd blew three blasts in one of the mo tain passes, and under the power of the three blasts the Saracens recoiled in led in terror. But history says that wh he had blown the third blast Ro- lar s trumpet broke. I take this trum- e of the gospel and I blow the first bla: "Whosoever will." I blow the sec nd blast: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found." I blow the third bla: "Now is the accepted time." But the trumpet does not break. It was ha ed down by our fathers, to us, and we ill hand it down to our children, that aft we are dead they may blow the trum- pe elling the world that we have a par- do ng God, a loving God. a sympathetic Go and that more to him than the throne on hich he sits is the joy of seeing a pr gal putting his thumb on the latch of s father's house. Turn ye, turn ye, for why will ye die, oh, house of Israel?"

Young man, as you cannot live life ov again, however you may long to do so, e sure to have your one life right. The is some young man who has gone aw from home, perhaps under some lit- tle ite or evil persuasion of another, and his arents know not where he is. My son go home! Do not go to sea! Don't go night where you may be tempted to go. Go home! You father will be glad to e you; and your mother—I need not tell ou how she feels. How I would like to ke your parents a present of their wa ard boy, repentant and in his right mi. I would like to write them a letter, and ou to carry the letter, saying: "By the lessing of God on my sermon I intro- uc to you one whom you have never see before, for he has become a new cre ure in Christ Jesus." My boy, go hom and put your tired head on the bo m that nursed you so tenderly in your chi hood years.

A young Scotchman was taken captive in ttle by a band of Indians. and he lea ed their language and adopted their hab- its. Years passed on, but the old Indian chieftain nev forgot that he d in his pos- ses on a young ma who did not be ng to him. Wel, one day this tribe of In- dia came in sig t of the Sco h regiments fro whom this you man had b en captured, and the old In- d n chieftain sai "I lost my son battle, and I k w how a fa- the feels at the loss f a son. Do you ink your fa- the s yet alive?" Th young man sai "I am the onl son of my fat : I hope he is stil live." Then said the Ind n chieftain, "Because of loss of my son this wo is a desert. You go fre Return to your coun- try n. Revisit your fath- er, at he may rejoice when he sees the sun rise the morning and the trees blossom in e spring." So I say to you, young ma captive of waywardness and sin: Yo father is waiting for you. Your mo er is waiting for you. Your sisters are aiting for you. God is waiting for you Go home! Go home!

A MILITARY OFFICIAL.

The Hermit Nation

Strange Customs of Dress and Social Duties in Korea where the Missionaries are Successfully Laboring.

By MRS. S. L. BALDWIN.

FROM Chemulpo we set out in Sedan chairs for our long journey of twenty-six miles to Seoul, the Capital of Korea. The atmosphere was superb, clear, crisp, and dry. We had plenty of rugs, and I had Korean wadded muslin shoes over my feet, and was in a covered chair sent from Seoul for me. We each had six bearers, two extra to rest the others.

KOREAN INDOOR COSTUME.

At intervals, we followed the bed of the new railroad nearly all the way. This is the first railroad in Korea, and it is to be completed next August. The road-bed is well advanced toward Seoul, aud we met Mr. Phillips, of Chattanooga, who was supervising this part of the work. He is said to be the tallest man in Korea, being six feet six, and gigantic he looked among his diminutive Korean workmen.

Some one has said that Korea is made up of mountain ranges with narrow valleys between, and so it seems. The hills and valleys are barren of vegetation at this season, save here and there a stunted growth of pine trees. Yet, the country is far from unattractive, and in the warmer months, when clothed in verdure, must be fine. Our strong, cheery bearers made good time to the half-way town, where we met Dr. W. B. Scranton, medical missionary at Seoul, and took our lunch at a Japanese inn, where we were served by a Japanese woman, with no embarrassment to herself, but as one gentlemen said, "with embarrassing boldness to us." Our lunch was hard boiled eggs, bread and butter and tea, and meat that the woman called chicken, but which we were sure had possessed four legs and two horns.

Four miles from Seoul we came to a vast sandy plain, a full mile across, bordering the Han River, and most difficult to travel. When the river is high, this whole plain is simply an extension of the stream, and busy with boat life. Three miles beyond is the city with its 250.000 people, and back of it stand the rugged lofty mountains clear against the sky. It was most interesting to see the troops of people—mostly men—so conspicuous in their white dress, and like small white-moving specks on the distant mountain sides. filing over the vast sand plain and narrow mountain paths. We arrived at the Han River at 5 P. M., and were carried in our chairs into the broad flat boats, and soon ferried across.

The three miles remaining to the capital were quickly passed. Seoul is a walled city, and we entered at the great Southern gate — the "Gate of Honor," and were soon welcomed at the cozy Korean home of Mrs. Scranton, the mother of the doctor, and the first representative of the M. E. Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in this land and the founder of its work for women. Greatly and deservedly is she loved by the people, and they give her the endearing title "Mother." The work she commenced and to which she still gives her labor, now requires many hands and hearts to care for. Dr. Scranton Mr. and Mrs. Appenzeller, and Mr. and Mrs. Bunker, "Mother Scranton," the Misses Rothweiler, Paine, Frey, Lewis and Pierce and Drs. Cutter, Hall and Harris. A royal company, but they have the most poorly outfitted places and means of work of any mission I have seen. At Won San, another centre about a hundred miles away, Dr. and Mrs. McGill are alone, while at Pyeng Yang, Dr. Follwell and Mr. Noble are trying in vain to meet the needs of the rapidly advancing work. The third new M. E. Church that we have found in the East has just been completed and dedicated here in Seoul. The General M. E. Missionary Society has contributed nothing toward this building. The Christians had so multiplied that there was absolutely no room to accommodate them, so they divided the men and boys worshipping in the small chapel of the Boys' Institute, while the women and girls crowded into the low native girls' school-room. This arrangement became intolerable, and they determined that somehow they must have a church. So the missionaries, including those of the Woman's Board, contributed according to their ability, and the native men and women gave of their extreme poverty and put up the church upon which there yet remained a debt of $1,250; but they are all very happy to have a place in which to meet and worship God, where they can breathe pure air instead of stifling as they had done in their crowded quarters. This church is to have seats, and the Coreans will learn to occupy them instead of the floor; and ere long I am sure that the separating curtain between the men and women will be only a memory of the past, as it is largely in the missions of China to-day. When floor people, like the Japanese and Coreans, adopt chairs and bedsteads, and the separating curtain disappears I feel that Christ's church is well established. In the Corean mission there are the usual outfits of boys' and girls' schools, medical and Bible work, and best of all the Gospel is faithfully preached by men and women. Six hundred members were added to the church between last May and November, and the extent of the work is only measured by the limit of workers.

A PALACE COURTIER.

We were greatly impressed by the earnestness and zeal of the people and their readiness to contribute to the support of the Gospel. In some of the country stations, the members, without a word to the missionary, have built little chapels for worship, and in one case a young man sold his rice fields to pay a balance due on such a chapel. Korea is wide open to the Gospel, and we have it in the United States. Can we withhold it from our brother-in-need without blood guiltiness? The Northern American and Australian Presbyterians, Southern Methodists and Episcopalians are also working here, while the Greek Church has a magnificent cathedral.

Seoul is in the main a well built and fine city for the East. We saw the immense old curfew bell suspended in its pavilion. It used to be the law that when this bell was struck at eight o'clock in the evening all the men in the city must go into their houses and the women were allowed to go out and stay as long as they pleased, or until the bell was again struck, which was between one and two in the morning. If any man was found in the streets during these hours he was severely punished. The explanation of this strange custom is that men are given to plots and evil deeds in the dark, but that there is no fear of anything of the kind from the women!

MAIN GATE OF THE PALACE, SEOUL, KOREA.

The peculiar hat of the men also has a history. It was a compulsory article of dress, and the brim had to be not less than twelve inches wide to prevent the men from putting their heads close together to whisper and plot. The brim is now only about four inches wide and I believe the hat is no longer compulsory, though universal: but the women wear no hats, save now and then a close-fitting cap, and their hair is dressed very neatly in a coil at the back of the head. Boys and girls alike wear their hair in a plaited braid down the back, tied with ribbon. When a boy is to be married he pins up his hair on top of his head, puts on the tall hat which has a hole in the top for his bunch of hair, and he is a man. If he should never marry—we heard of one such case—he still wears his hair in braid down his back, puts on no tall hat, and is forever a boy. The little girls' dress is just like the boy's until she is to be married, when she puts her hair up in the pretty coil, and she is a woman. In some parts of the country some of the women when they go out wear immense wicker hats that cover the entire body, and when they sit down they are in a tent.

HUMANITY IN THE WAR.

Our Officers and Men have Shown a Kindly and Generous Spirit to their Enemies—Many Instances of Gallant and Magnanimous Conduct—Brave Capt. Philip, the Christian Commander of the "Texas," and his Prayer after Battle.

AMID the horror and sorrow of war, and the harrowing spectacles that are always to be met on a battle-field, whether by land or sea, a bright gleam of relief is afforded wherever there is an instance of true magnanimity, and kindly consideration on the part of the victor for the fallen foe. War is always to be deplored as a calamity; but the bitterness and anguish of armed strife may be greatly mitigated by the exercise of humanity. In this respect the conduct of the American Army and Navy has been of a character to kindle the warmest admiration. Not only have our prisoners been humanely treated, and medical attention been given to the Spanish sick who have come within the lines of our camps, but refugees, both Spanish and Cuban, have been fed and clothed. Our hospital ships, the Solace and the Relief, have sheltered and nursed in their sick wards many of other nationalities as well as our own. Our camp before Santiago has been like a vast relief station, where twenty thousand destitute refugees from the city, thrown upon our charity by the Spanish commander, were fed and sustained, even while their countrymen were preparing to give us battle. This our soldiers did even while they were on short rations, their supplies not having come foward. Such generosity must have afforded Spain a new revelation of the character of the nation whose sons have not hesitated to face danger and death, that an oppressed and dying people might have life and liberty.

During the whole war up to the present time, the conduct of the American troops has been characterized by forbearance and humanity. Never has an American soldier displayed cruelty on the battle-field but, on the contrary, there have been many instances of noble magnanimity. After the battle at Quasinas, where a detachment of our troops was ambushed and when the Spanish had been repulsed and driven from their block-house, leaving their dead and wounded on the field, our "boys in blue" cared for many as tenderly as though they had been brothers instead of foes. It had been currently reported among the Spaniards that the Americans were merciless and took no prisoners, consequently when, after the battle of El Caney, an American company was escorting a number of Spanish prisoners to the rear, the latter, exhausted and despairing and covered with dust and wounds, pleaded with the Americans to shoot them at once and spare them the fatigue of a journey at the end of which they looked for nothing but death. Great was their surprise when they were informed that they were prisoners of war and would be honorably guarded and kindly dealt with.

In Santiago City, where the Americans had been reported by both combatants and pacificos as sure to slay all prisoners, the intelligence of the kindness of our troops to the captives produced unexpected results. There were hundreds of desertions from the Spanish ranks, groups of lean and haggard Spaniards, weak from enforced privation in the besieged city, stole out and gave themselves up within the American lines. It was a touching sight to witness the change on their faces, from fear to gratification, when they found that they were not to be executed, but to be humanely treated and fed by our army. Indeed, so numerous did these desertions become, that they embarrassed General Shafter's commissariat. It is a new and strange experience in warfare for these Spaniards to encounter an enemy at once so brave and so considerate—a foe who does not bare the spirit of revenge and destruction into battle, but who shows a brotherly sympathy for those who are sick, wounded or hungry, and turn to him for succor. The wounded received from us the same humane attention as our own, and our field hospitals and ships contain many convalescent Spaniards on whom the best skill of physicians and surgeons has been expended. Even their dead were respected, and after the battle of El Caney, General Vara del Rey, and many others, whose bodies were left behind on the field by their associates were decently interred by American hands.

This same chivalrous spirit characterized our troops even during the heat of an engagement. In the great naval fight off Santiago, when the Spanish sailors, half crazed with liquor, which their commanders had ordered to be given to keep up their courage, shot wildly at the American ships, and when it was seen that their vessels were helpless, our fire was withheld, although our great guns might have still further decimated their crews. Even before the white flag of surrender had been run up on the Vizcaya, our cannon had ceased firing. And it was the same with all the other ships, which had been deliberately headed for the rocks by their commanders' orders. When it became evident that self-destruction was intended by the Spaniards, the American ships immediately lowered boats and, in the face of the Spanish guns, which were still belching forth their deadly deadly missiles, they rowed to the rescue and succeeded in saving over 1,500 men, almost all of whom might otherwise have perished. Never before in the history of warfare, did foe act so generously, and supplied with dry clothing, and made to feel that they were in the hands of men who had hearts big enough to deal kindly with a fallen foe. The dead were buried with military honors by our own gallant tars, who performed this last office for their Spanish foes. Many of the Spanish officers were moved to tears. It is safe to say that the opportunity to show kindness under these circumstances afforded our commanders and their crews a deep and lasting satisfaction, greater perhaps than that afforded by the victory itself.

It is a cause of sincere gratification to the American people that our Navy should have displayed this noble magnanimity on such an occasion. Usually in battle the passions of men are so roused that all else but the desire for slaughter is forgotten; yet here, in the midst of a tremendous victory, they showed a generous sympathy and a deep reverence. Captain Philip of the Texas gave expression to the sentiments of the entire fleet

COMMODORE W. S. SCHLEY.
Victor of the Naval Battle of Santiago.

CAPT. PHILIP CALLING HIS MEN TO PRAYER ON THE "TEXAS."

the Spanish officers, from Admiral Cervera down to the humblest in the fleet, were struck with amazement at the kindness with which they were treated. Our decks were covered with dripping men, many of whom had been rescued from the waves in a half-conscious condition, and hundreds of whom were, to all appearances, doomed to destruction. Scores were taken from the burning decks of the Vizcaya, Reina Mercedes and the sinking Colon, while others were rescued at the peril of life and limb to the rescuers, from the blazing hulk of the Almirante Oquendo. Even the Cubans on shore who were planning to aid in the battle, were prevented from injuring the survivors who had struggled to the beach. All who lived were taken safely on board, refreshed, fed, when, in the moment of supreme triumph, he called his officers on the quarter-deck and, baring his head, he lifted his weather-beaten face toward the sky, and said:

I want to make public acknowledgment here that I believe in God the Father Almighty. I want all you officers and men to lift your hats and from your hearts offer silent thanks to the Almighty.

Such a scene and such a prayer were worthy of a Christian people, by whom war is at all times regarded as a calamity. The stories told of Sir Philip Sidney, Sir Henry Havelock and other eminent soldiers in the field, can be well understood in the light of that incident on the deck of the Texas off Santiago harbor, while the smoke still hung over the scene of the greatest of modern sea-fights.

THE SANTIAGO CAMPAIGN.

Our military campaign before Santiago has been conducted on conservative lines, and with a view to avoiding needless sacrifice of life. Gen. Shafter, in the first, has encouraged all reconnoissance movements, preferring to have his heavy siege guns in place and all preparations complete before making the final attack on the city. Foot by foot our advance was pushed forward as the Spaniards receded. After the engagement at El Caney and the fortified hill of San Juan in the suburbs, there was a period of delay to allow of further preparation, during this interval Cervera's fleet made the famous sortie in which it was completely destroyed. Those events have already been described in these columns. Admiral Sampson and Gen. Shafter had agreed upon a plan of joint attack by the navy to aid the army in the capture of the Morro fort at the harbor entrance, and both forces then to simultaneously attack Santiago.

Meanwhile, Gen. Toral, the actual Spanish commander, desired a truce for the purpose of cabling to Madrid for instructions, presumably with a view to surrender. Gen. Shafter courteously placed him telegraph operators for that purpose. Shortly afterward, Gen. Linares made a proposition of surrender under the condition that he be allowed to withdraw his entire force from Santiago. Gen. Shafter replied that unconditional surrender only would be accepted. Failing this, the attack would be made upon the city at noon the following day (July 9). The Spanish General thereupon requested that the truce be extended one day longer, which was granted.

Fighting was resumed on July 1 by the army and navy uniting in the attack. Our land forces numbered about 15,000 men, the Spaniards being estimated at 23,000. During the truce, the Spanish troops had looted the city and committed many outrages.

It was believed that the Spanish troops would be compelled to evacuate the city under our furious cannonade, and its capture was almost hourly expected. One of Admiral Sampson's ships was injured by a shell during the bombardment.

NOTES OF THE WAR.

ALL our wounded, except the slightest cases, have been taken to Tampa.

AGUINALDO has proclaimed himself president of the Philippine Republic.

IT is definitely announced that Gen. Miles will command the Porto Rico expedition.

The Manser rifle, used by the Spanish troops, has a quicker fire and a longer range than our own, but the wound it inflicts is more readily healed.

OUR blockade of Cuba is to be tightened, and now that Cervera's squadron has been destroyed, a much larger force of warships can be employed for that purpose.

The new tariff adopted for Manila will be extended to the Ladrones, our other new possession in the Pacific. The Philippine ports will be declared open to commerce.

There have been comparatively few cases of Cuban fever in the army thus far. The mortality from that cause is small. The fever is light and runs its course in four or five days.

It is now believed that the wrecks of the Vizcaya, Maria Teresa, and Cristobal Colon may be saved, and wrecking vessels have been sent to Cuban waters for the purpose of raising the sunken warships.

ADMIRAL CAMARA'S fleet—the third of Spain's naval squadrons—has been recalled after having started ostensibly for the Philippines. It has been demonstrated that the Pelayo and Carlos V., the two principal ships of the squadron, are unseaworthy.

SPANISH officers pitilessly shot down their own gunners who shrank from the fire of the American ships. Such was the inhumanity of Spanish discipline. On an American ship, in the heat of the conflict, a gunner was preparing to fire when an officer laid his hand on his arm and said: "Don't fire! Don't you see they're dying?"

Prayer and Praise in the Military Camps.

The Church Bugle Call—Gospel Work Among Our Soldiers Continues with Increasing Zeal—Progress at Chickamauga, Camp Thomas, Tampa and Elsewhere—Letters from Evangelists—Many Conversions Reported.

ONE of the most solemn and thrilling of the bugle calls of an army in the field, is the call known as "Church," which summons the soldiers to the various places appointed for divine service. The bugler, going to the top of a knoll, where the camp is spread out before him like a vast city of tents, sends the call reverberating over hill and plain. Near at hand it is repeated by the buglers of the regiments grouped at the foot, who repeat the call, and it is then taken up farther afield and thus communicated by one bugler to another, until every soldier, to the farthest limit of the camp, has heard the summons. He learns then that the duty of the morning is not an attack on the enemy's lines, nor any of the various duties of an army at the front, but a solemn act of worship.

CAPT. HARDING.

There is abundant need for such a call. The soldier stands very near the border of the unseen world, and has no more need than ordinary men of the reminder of his position before God. He may be buried without a mother's notice into the presence of the Judge of all the earth and returned to give account of the deeds done in the body. There is literally but a step between him and death. He knows the fact, but it too often produces merely recklessness. The call of "Church" speaks to him, if he will listen, of a God ever ready to forgive, a God of love and tender compassion. If the soldier could realize this in the words into which, according to military habits, he translates the notes of the bugle, might appropriately be: "Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money; come ye, buy and eat; yea come, buy wine and milk without money and without price." This is the true meaning of "Church," whether in the field or in the city; and every one is he, be he soldier or civilian, who accepts the invitation.

Many Conversions at Camp Thomas.

A camp of nearly 50,000 troops, with about fifty regiments affords ample opportunity for the work of the Christian Commission. Including those who arrived last week, there are about sixty men on duty at the various tents. The tents number about twenty-five. Fifty thousand sheets of paper and 50,000 envelopes are given out every week. Meetings are conducted at many of the tents every night and arrangements are being made to hold services in the theatres at the camp during the week days. At present there are five services held in the two theatres every Sunday.

The men in the camp are an exceedingly rough set of men, including the Rough-Riders and the Grigsby cowboys from the West. Perfect quiet is maintained by the men at the religious meetings, and when any disturbance is made it is quickly put down by other soldiers.

Last Sunday Dr. Torrey, of the Chicago Bible Institute, held fifteen meetings, and reported five hundred professed conversions, many of which were positive. As a result of one of the meetings held every evening, a soldier in the Third Wisconsin Regiment awoke his chaplain about two o'clock next morning and said that he wanted to become a Christian. He insisted that the chaplain baptize him immediately, which he did. This man has since become a valuable assistant to the work.

The men who take a positive stand for Christ are made to fill out cards, give their names, their company and regiment. These cards are duplicated by the secretaries, who hand one set of the cards to the chaplain in the regiment to which the men who sign them belong. The chaplains in general co-operate very heartily with the Y. M. C. A.

An effort was made by a chaplain to petition General Brooke for the prohibition of the sale of liquor in camp, but thus far it has been of no avail, as only about half of the chaplains support the movement. The workers have found many men, who have left their homes ignorant of the drink habit, but who have contracted it since their coming to this camp. The Y. M. C. A. is doing everything to remedy this sad state of affairs. Some of the roughest men have been quick to see the evil in it, and have broken down completely when they have listened to some of the evangelists speak. There are a number of cases of this kind.

W. C. HOWLAND.

1,200 Accept Christ.

There are to-day 1,200 more Christians in Camp Thomas than there were a week ago. Many a home has been made happy by the news that either father, husband, brother or son has accepted of Christ at the daily meetings held by the Y. M. C. A. There have been scores of cases where such news has been received. While this is true, on the other hand vice in its various and multiplied form is growing and many a pure boy has been dragged under. Last week one boy who left a position in a bank to enlist came to this camp. He had a good home. He was caught in an offence and was court-martialed, and his sentence was to serve six months at Fort Leavenworth, forfeit his pay and then be dishonorably discharged.

Secretary Pearsall, who is in charge of the work at camp, received the following communication from the office of the chief surgeon in Camp Thomas:

"On my frequent inspections of the camps of this command I have been greatly interested in seeing everywhere—in all parts of the large camp ground and in nearly all of the regimental camps—the large comfortable tents of the Y. M. C. A. I often look into the tents, and would always do so if I had time, for I always found them crowded with men—stationery, pens, ink and paper, reading matters, etc., arranged on numerous tables, plenty of chairs, and all the conditions to bring the better class of soldiers together, and to win all classes to those localities where vice in any form is not tolerated.

"The Y. M. C. A. is clearly doing a noble work here and its good influences are manifest throughout this army—numbering now about 53,000. A. HARTSUFF."

In a recent interview with the Deputy Surgeon-General U. S. Army, the other day, he said that the work was doing the greatest amount of good and that he did not see how in future the American army could do without it. He said that the work was indispensable, and offered all the assistance in his power to advance it in every possible direction. He had visited every regiment in camp, and the first thing he noticed in each was the crowded tents. He said that the order in them was perfect, and that the policing was better than one could conceive, considering the conditions existing in the army.

The Y. M. C. A. is already doing away with the canteen in its quiet and diplomatic way. Yesterday Col. Pew of the Eighth Massachusetts, made a proposition that if any one would furnish his regiment with distilled water, he would order the canteen closed. This challenge was taken up by Secretary W. J. B. Oliver of Boston, who is in charge of the tent in that regiment. The canteen was closed the same day.

The work is being appreciated by those at home who have relatives in the front. Several letters have been received by various secretaries in charge of the tents from folks saying that they are so glad that Christian friends are at the front to look after their boys. They say that they "feel relieved when they know that their boys are being looked after." The Y. M. C. A., is doing a splendid work.

UNITED STATES HOSPITAL SHIP, "RELIEF."
(Now at the Front with our Fleet in Cuban Waters.)

Many Conversions Weekly.

An average of 700 men are being led to Christ every week. Nearly all of these are positive conversions and a large number of those who were converted in the early part of the war have become valiant Christians who are working for their comrades. At the Third Wisconsin regiment last week after one of the meetings a boy got up crying like a child. He said that his father was a preacher, and that he had one of the finest Christians homes one could possibly have. He came here and began to yield to the various temptations until he got to the lowest degree. But now he said that he wanted to be a Christian. He wrote home to his Christian parents the next morning giving them the glad news.

Another man testified in one of Maj. Whittle's meetings that he was president of the Christian Endeavor Society at home, a teacher in the Sunday School, but he had fallen by getting drunk. He took a stand for Christ and has now become an efficient Christian worker.

Dying Messages to Loved Ones.

At Letter Hospital, which in time will receive the wounded from Cuba, there are several men on duty every day. Mr. Fairfield, who has given his experience as a trained nurse to the work of the Commission, spends the entire day in the hospital waiting on the sick. The others spend the time reading to the men and writing letters for those who are unable. Last week our men were at the bedside of five who died, and took their last messages to their dear ones. The entire hospital, as well as all the others in camp, are furnished with reading matter and illustrated periodicals, which are greatly appreciated. There are, in all, six hundred men on the sick list.

An interesting fact was discovered last week by Maj. Whittle. In the meetings held in Northern regiments he found that half of the men were sons of Union soldiers. In the Southern regiments he found that over four-fifths of the men were sons of Confederate soldiers. In three days our secretaries sent nearly $15,000 of the soldiers' money to their homes. In one regiment the men who got a month's salary of $25 sent $24 to their folks at home. The men are encouraged to do this by the secretaries, who offer every facility, often burdening themselves with the responsibility of handling the money.

Captain Philip's Christian Faith.

Concerning Captain Philip of the Texas, Chaplain H. W. Jones, U. S. N., in a letter to the New York Herald gives some interesting incidents, showing the deep spiritual nature of the man. Chaplain Jones has been the Chaplain of the Texas since October 19, 1896. He writes:

"During our first conversation Captain Philip said, 'I am a firm believer in prayer, and I think it is a duty we owe God to have prayers on board ship every evening.' The men would be marched aft, and I offered a humble petition for each one, our loved ones, our country, our President, and always closed with an earnest prayer for peace.

"Often during the weary days on the blockade, the Captain would say something to me about prayer, and his unflinching faith in God. He would say:—'I wrote to Mrs. Phillip and said, "I am just as safe here as I would be walking up Broadway with you, because God is with us and he is listening to our prayer."'

"On another occasion he was called on board the flagship for a council of war, and went on board at half-past nine that Sunday morning. The decision was reached to bombard the forts at two o'clock that afternoon, when Captain Philip spoke up and said: 'Admiral, this is Sunday. I do not think we should fight to-day. We may be sorry if we do.' Whereupon the Admiral admitted he had entirely lost track of the days, so the battle was deferred until the next morning.

"I love Captain Philip for his manly stand for the Gospel of Jesus. After his recent utterance when he called his men to prayer after the last great naval battle, I went in the cabin and said: 'Captain, I congratulate you, not alone for your victory, but for the stand you took after the action.' His countenance brightened up as he replied: 'Why, chaplain, I was sure of it when I went on the bridge, for surely God has been with us, and it has been all on account of prayer.'"

Such is the character and such the sturdy faith of one of the heroes of the American Navy.

The Camp Gospel Fund.

The following contributions for carrying on Christian work in the Camps, under Mr. Moody's auspices, have been received during the week:

Prev Ack	$1,300.56	H C N, Brooklyn	1 00
Barnhart, Miss R A	1 00	M, Lancaster	4 25
Boss, C A	10	M A M, Syracuse	1 00
Bragg, Eric W and Elvin M	2 50	M Z, Phila	1 00
Costello, Mrs N J	1 00	S, Sidney	1 00
Crone, R and Mrs	1 00	S J P, New Hartford	2 00
Deveraux, E M	2 00	T T, Phila	1 0
DeWitt, Miss Anna	5 00	—, New London	1 50
Evans, H D	1 35	Friend, Austin	50
Forster, Mr & Mrs A A	5 00	Friend, Otsego	1 00
Hines, M A	5 00	Friend in Jesus, Raymilton	1 00
Hughes, S E	1 00	Friend LAW S Framingham	1 00
Kirby, J W	50	I H N, Bean	1 00
Landis, Martha K	2 00	Luther League Washingtonville	10 30
Lowry, Edith	2 00	White Oak Union S S Chemung	1 70
McAlpine, Jos B	2 00	SS Buffalo Park	6 86
Peters, Mrs A H	50	Dunbarton Praying B	5 00
Randall, Mrs R N	5 00	Golden Rule M C [illegible]
Smith, Edna L	25	[illegible] Gallitzin	1 00
Wilkinson, Mary J	10 00
Waterbury, A M	5 00
Lena Elta Manchester	5 00
F S Brooklyn	5 00	Total	$1,411.96

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers. We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter.

What Shall We Read?

AMID the avalanche of books at this time coming down upon our country everybody asks the above question. How much depends on the right answer cannot be estimated. Better stand off from all those books which were made, not because the author had anything to say, but because the publisher and the author wanted to make a commercial success. Such books are generally of large type, profuse illustration and showy binding.

They must have so many words, so many pages, so many pictures. You are aware from the appearance of the book that it is merely made to sell. We believe, however, that a book will be of little practical service to you, unless the author was compelled by an inward consciousness of duty to print it. The book into which an honest and earnest author throws his whole soul is the one that will magnetize, lift and vivify you. Avoid that book which has the appearance of literary jobbing.

We also advise you to take only small doses of love story. The majority of novels are made to set forth desperate love scrapes. It is well enough for a man to read sufficient of this literature to keep him from being awkward when he himself becomes a party to some affair of the heart. But much reading of love stories makes one soft, insipid, absent-minded and useless. The probability is that when your affections are captured, they will not be captured according to cheap novels. The lady will not burst into tears, nor faint; nor will the parent oppose you so that you will have to place a long ladder to the third story window at midnight. Excessive reading of love stories will make you a fool to love you know it.

We further advise you not to read a book merely because someone else likes it. Do not waste your time on Tennyson, if you have no taste for poetry, merely because so many like him; nor pass a long time with Sir William Hamilton when metaphysics are repulsive to you, though your literary friends are in rapture with the great-headed Scotchman.

Be independent in your literary tastes. Make up your mind what is best for you to read and read it. Master a few good books. Life is short and books are many. Instead of having your mind a garret crowded with rubbish, make it a parlor with rich furniture beautifully arranged, in which you would not be ashamed to have the whole world enter.

As to newspapers, they have become a necessity. Have them we must. Which of them shall we have. Letter carriers tell me that I get four times as many of them as any other man outside the editorial rooms, and so I feel competent to express an opinion. Select those newspapers for household reading that you can safely leave on your family table and which because of their contents you do not have to slyly put out of the way, leaving the young folks all day asking, "where is to-day's newspaper." There are so many good newspapers, you have no excuse for choosing bad ones.

Publishing the Banns.

HAS not the time come when the two great English-speaking nations of the world should take their bearings and inquire why it will not be for their interest and for the interest of the world's civilization to enter into some kind of an understanding? We are of the same blood, of the same industrial, political and moral tendencies. God has given us a similar errand in the world. To-day Great Britain exercises a negative control of the great European powers, who would gladly, for their own reasons, put an end to the struggle for equal rights in Cuba. We have not, indeed, agreed to settle our own differences before a permanent Court of Arbitration. But we must feel that arbitration and not war must hereafter be our method. England did not rise up to the occasion and put an end to the massacre of the Armenians and the onslaught upon Greece. Germany and Russia would have confronted her. But if there had been an Anglo-American alliance, and that step had been taken by England and America combined, the Russian bear might have gone growling back to his den, and the eccentric William have consented. Up to this time we have pursued a policy of isolation; we have contented ourselves with our own growth and prosperity. Have we any right to do this?

Here we have two great countries, Africa and China, the first already partitioned out, and the last about to be, to a few great nations, and we say not a word. And when we politely request Spain to give her downtrodden colony, Cuba, a chance, she blows up our visiting warship in her harbor, and arrays herself in al war's terrors against us. Suppose an Anglo-American Alliance had urged this request upon Spain, would it have been the same? Perhaps so. "For whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad." But is it not time for England and America, who are the same, and stand for the same civilization, to publish banns of friendly union, not formal alliance, but a brotherly understanding?

Acquaintance with God.

It would be verily a great shame if, after all the opportunities we have had of usefulness in this world, and all the opportunities we have had of becoming acquainted with God, and becoming intelligent and high-minded Christians, we should be surprised into the eternal world with the robes of Christian grace hanging around us slovenly. How do you suppose we will feel if, on entering heaven, we shall confront the apostle Paul, and it shall be found we are ignorant of his epistles? or if we shall confront Moses and know but very little about the deliverance that God wrought out in behalf of his ancient people? or if we confront Christ and are ignorant of the parables he spoke and the miracles he performed?

The prayers of the readers of this journal are requested for the blessing of God upon its proprietor, and also upon those whose sermons, articles, or labor for Christ, are printed in it; and that its circulation may be used by the Holy Spirit for the conversion of sinners and the quickening of God's people.

TREATMENT OF MINISTERS

NO. I.

WE had read at our Ministers' semi-monthly meeting in Washington lately an able presentation of the wrongs practiced on ministers. We believed every word of it, but there is another side. There are many brilliant young men, having earnest hearts, now entering upon life; but for the most part they float past the ministry into the counting-room, the law office and the medical chair. So much has been written and said about the hardships of the ministry that our young men are afraid to run the gauntlet of abuse and starvation. I have to say that the majority of the books written on this subject are exaggerations of the sorrows of the minister's life, and for the most part give only one side of that life. I have to tell you that I believe the office of the minister of Christ has fewer trials, larger spiritual emoluments and rewards, brighter inducements, higher developments, grander joys than any other occupation in all the earth.

Admitting, so plainly that no man shall misinterpret what I write, that there are now many ministers undergoing persecutions and hardships, and outrages that amount to positive martyrdom, I contend that these are the exceptions; and that, gathering an audience of a thousand ministers of Christ, nine hundred of them have many advantages—good books, refined associations, sons and daughters well fed, well clad, well educated, opportunities innumerable—while all around there is the evidence that their services are being appreciated. Gather a thousand merchants together, and I will show you that nine hundred of them have had harder knocks, greater privations, have come more frequently to the study of severe economy, have had harder work to pay their rent, and many have been subject to annoyances which a minister of Christ never experiences. We are to remember the fact that a vast majority of men in worldly occupations do not succeed; that it is an authentic statistic that out of a hundred merchants, all fail, except two; that there are tens of thousands of clerks living on insufficient salaries; that it is a rare thing when a mechanic earns anything more than a plain livelihood. We are to take, I say, these things into consideration, and remember that if the ministry sometimes has its hardships, commerce and mechanism have their hardships.

We are to remember that the minister of the Gospel, so far as worldly support is concerned, has the advantage over the doctor, the lawyer, and almost every other profession at the start; for although a man in these professions may after a while come to affluence, we all know that his first ten years are a hard struggle, and a livelihood is not won; while a minister of the Gospel steps right out of the theological school into a settlement, where from the first day he is supported. Show me one minister of Christ who has fared hard, and I will show you ten merchants and mechanics.

But you say, see how old ministers are neglected, and their families after them. I admit it. Shame on the Christian Church that it is so! But remember, also, that there are thousands of old merchants who, with their families, have come down to abjectest poverty, and that every day there are mechanics moving out of their plain houses because they cannot pay the rent. What company of men is it that sends a music teacher to Europe because he has bronchitis? What company of well-to-do men meet together and pass resolutions of sympathy when a carpenter is sick? I admit that that in the ministry we have our annoyances, but I wish it understood, at the same time, they are no more (I think they are less) than in other occupations.

I want to say to young men that if you enter the holy office with the right spirit, loving God and desiring usefulness, you will find this Christian work of the ministry always a satisfaction, often a joy, and sometimes a rapture! Of course, I exclude from these consolations those men who enter the ministry with half a heart, and who at the first opportunity escape through Wall Street, or through the fortune of a rich wife. I also exclude from these consolations those ministers who smoke themselves to death, as hundreds of them do. I exclude also from these consolations those who pass their lives in complaining about the sins of the world, instead of putting both hands forth to make that world better. This joy of which I speak comes to those who feel called to the work of the Christian ministry, and are glad of it.

T. D. T.

BRIEF NOTES.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, Sout its recent Conference in Baltimore appropr $500,000 for the establishment of a printing hou Shanghai, China.

According to Chancellor Lias, there a constant exodus of priests in France from the man Church. He says: "In France the exod priests from the Roman Church continues crease. At first there was nothing particulari markable about it. But now it proceeds met cally and without interruption."

"The American Baptist Year-book" for gives the total contributions of the B. churches in the United States for 1897 as fol For local expenses, $9,444,159; to missions, $ 850; and to education, $1,525,299; making a to $12,036,315. The averages of this total are per member, and $277.35 per church.

In accordance with President McKi proclamation, Sunday, July 10, was generall served in the churches as a day of special th giving for victories by land and sea, of praye continuance of Divine support, for the well our sailors and soldiers, for the sick and wou for the comfort of afflicted homes, and fe speedy restoration of peace.

The new President of the Primitive thodist Church in England began life as a laborer. He is now a cultured and refined m with a great record as a missionary and a pr It is a curious fact that the present Archbish Canterbury, the head of the Established Chu England, followed the plough in his youth boasts that he could plough as straight a f and thresh wheat as well as any man in the co

Mr. John Willis Baer, in his annual r of the Christian Endeavor Society, says the re now within the borders of the United States, societies. Pennsylvania with 3,679 societies; York with 3,117; Ohio with 2,450; Illinois with Indiana with 1,414; Iowa with 1,358, and Mic with 1,072, are the States at the head of the p sion, and in the order named. These figures include the Junior, Intermediate and other soc

The Rev. D. F. Wilberforce, the native sionary who with his wife and four children re reported to have been killed in the massa at Sierre Leone, are safe at Bonthe. Mr. Wilbe apparently owes his life to the fact that h considered by the tribes as an exceptiona portant man. They, accordingly, instead of ing him and his family, held him for ransom the missionary society it is said, has paid $5 or them.

The spiritual needs of the great m camp in San Francisco, Cal., are being supp the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which, alte sulting the regimental chaplains, has arran supply each regiment with a post-office or tent, to be used for letter writing on week da services on Sundays. Each chapel tent wi banner with the cross upon it when used for services, these being supplied by the Daugh the King.

Pastor Thomas Spurgeon, writing new Tabernacle, which is to replace the burn which his father's preaching made famo world over, says: "The Tabernacle is to be free of debt. The old blackened stones wou out against us if we dreamed of acting in an fashion. The basement of the old building roofed over with the fireproof floor of th building, and services will be held there ever day while the walls of the new Tabernac rising around it."

An instructive table of statistics of g foreign mission work has been prepared b Churchman. It divides the aggregate mone by each denomination by the number of co cants, showing what is the average gift fo member for last year. According to its c tions, the Congregationalists make the best ing with an average of $1.03 per member, next come the Presbyterians at 94 cents per m Next the Baptists, 80 cents; Protestant Epi 43 cents, and Methodists, 34 cents.

Russia is said to be the only country world without a Christian Endeavor Society land has 4,647; Canada, 3,456; Australia, Scotland, 535; India, 433; Wales, 331; Irela China, 130; Africa, 110. The total enrolme without the United States is 11,775 societies increase in South Africa, India, China, G and throughout Great Britain has been large aggregate membership for all lands is mo three and a quarter millions. The constitut been translated into thirty-seven languages use of foreign societies.

Swami Vivekananda, the Hindu Lectu at the Chicago World's Fair, who placed Hi in so attractive a light as to deceive many tian scholars, in spite of the warnings against his teachings by persons who kno Hinduism really is, is now telling in India stories of the United States. In a recent he said that when in the United States "s could I go to a meeting or a society but three-quarters of the women present had out their husbands and children." His a here will scarcely relish this statement.

Mr. D. L. Moody has issued an inv for the Sixteenth General Bible Conference held at Northfield from July 29 to August and urges the attendance of "all who love th Jesus Christ and desire to hasten his coming speakers and teachers expected include Re H. Macgregor and Rev. G. Campbell Morg don, England; Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., lyn; Rev. H. C. Mabie, Boston; Rev. R rev, Chicago; Mr. Charles Dudley Smith, England; Prof. W. W. White, India; Rev Dixon, Brooklyn, and Dr. C. I. Scofield, Nor Messrs. Ira D. Sankey and George C. Stebb have charge of the singing.

Mr. Satori Kato, the Japanese scholar, visit to this country four years ago made him friends in all sections, is here again for stay. He proposes to lecture on the instit literature and religions of Japan, which a jects he thoroughly understands. The cha the country consequent on the war with Ch so important that Mr. Kato's story will be and deeply interesting. Mr. Fukutomi, a Ja artist, assists in the lectures and draws pict the presence of the audience. Churches, schools and Young People's Societies wou an evening with Mr. Kato intensely inte His address is the Japanese Consulate, Ne

A TRAGEDY OF THE SEA.

THE whole civilized world was shocked by the terrible catastrophe which occurred on July 4, off Sable Island, in which 560 persons perished. The French Line steamship Bourgogne having 725 persons, including passengers, officers and crew, sailed from New York on July for France, and reached the Banks of Newfoundland safely. There was a dense fog there as usual, but the steamer's speed does not appear to have been materially reduced. Suddenly out of the fog came the warning sound of a fog-horn and soon afterwards the British ship Cromartyshire was seen approaching. It was too late then to avoid a collision and the two vessels came together with a crash. The officers of the Bourgogne knew that the smaller vessel would sink, and ordered the boats to be made ready to go to their assistance. They appear to have had no fears for their own magnificent floating palace until a list to one side showed them that a great accident must have been made in her hull. Then a scene of confusion ensued of the most awful description. There were not enough of boats on board the big steamer, but in the confusion few were lowered. In about half an hour the great steamer plunged to the bottom, carrying with her all but 5 persons of those on board. Some of these were floating in the water, some were in boats that had been lowered, and others were on rafts and floating wreckage. Happily, the fog lifted after the catastrophe, and the crew of the Cromartyshire set gallantly to the work of rescue. Though her own bows were stove in by the collision, and she was herself in danger of sinking, she waited until every soul from the sunken steamer that could be seen, was safe on board. Then she appealed to a passing steamer for help and was towed into Halifax. The most painful feature of the wreck was the inhumanity displayed by the crew and steerage passengers, among whom were many Italians. The survivors say that these strong men took possession of the boats and rafts and drove away the women and children who pleaded for a chance of life. They drew their knives and stabbed right and left, killing many men and women and after the steamer had gone down, and men and women who were floating in the water tried to get on the rafts, they were beaten over the head with oars and struck off with boat-hooks, even when there was room for them. Some women managed to get hold of a rope trailing from one of the rafts, but the Frenchmen cut the rope and the women sank. Only one woman of all those on board was saved and she owed her life to the vigor with which she fought a French sailor who, after she got on the raft, carried her in his arms and tried to throw her into the sea. The brutal men seem to have followed the example of the French "nobles and gentlemen" in the case of the Paris bazaar on May 4, 1897, who, their struggles to save themselves from burning, beat the ladies back with their canes from the only exit, threw them down and trampled upon them and finally left them to burn to death. To the honor of the captain and officers of the Bourgogne it should be said that they took no part in the brutalities but stayed on the steamer to the last and went down with her. Their conduct was in strong contrast to that of the sailors and steerage passengers, who are charged not only with deserting the women and children, but with actually committing murder in trying to save themselves. It is well for the credit of the French nation that there were a few self-sacrificing men on board who valued their honor more than their lives, to whom Satan's cynical taunt did not apply.

THE WRECKED STEAMER, "BOURGOGNE," AND HER CAPTAIN, DELONCLE.

Skin for skin: yea all that a man hath will he give for his life. (Job 2:4.)

An Undertaker's Discovery.

An undertsker in Connecticut relates a singular incident which occurred four or five years ago in his business. He was called to bury an eccentric old man who was well known in the neighborhood, who had died the previous day. He was apparently quite well in the morning and went about his work as usual, but about mid-day he left his work and went to the old house, where he had lived alone for nearly forty years, sat down in his chair and died almost instantly. A neighbor, looking in a few minutes after he entered the house, saw him sitting there dead. He had been an industrious man, working steadily in the quarries along the coast, always paying his way and living quietly, but spending little. His extreme carefulness in making his little purchases and his reluctance to buy new clothes, even when his old ones were worn and patched until they were scarcely decent, led the neighbors to believe that he was very poor. None of them expected when they heard that he was dead, that he had left enough money to pay for funeral expenses. The man, however, had to be buried, even if at the public cost, and an undertaker was sommoned. There was some talk of burying him, dressed as he was, but finally his old, shiny, patched garments were removed, and then a discovery was made. Tied with soft, strong cords around his body next to his skin were seven savings-bank books, showing that the old man had deposits in each aggregating $30,000. If it had been known how much money the old man had, he would have been treated with more consideration and have had more friends. But no one suspected how large a fortune was under those old clothes. There are many men who are treated unceremoniously now because of their apparent poverty, who are more truly rich than the millionaires, but there is no fear of their treasure being carried to the grave with them.

To an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you. (1. Pet. 1:4.)

Asleep Among the Dead.

An exciting scene in a cemetery at Cleveland, O., is described by the correspondent of a New York journal, who had the story from the watchman at the cemetery. One winter's night he was proceeding on his rounds according to his usual custom after midnight, when as he passed a vault in the side of a hill he heard a muffled cry. He was too terrified to ascertain the cause, but he hurried to the office and looked up the books to see who owned the vault. He found, too, that there had been an interment there on the previous day. He lost no time in finding out the name of the undertaker who had conducted the funeral and calling him up on the telephone, told him that the corpse he had put in the vault had come to life and wanted to get out. The undertaker was almost as agitated as the watchman. He hurried to the cemetery and as he approached the vault he heard piercing shrieks. The door was opened and out came a lady fully attired, but in a hysterical condition. She had attended a funeral early in the day, and, being very tired and overcome with grief, she sat down in a dark corner of the vault and fell asleep. She did not wake when her friends went away. The door of the vault was shut and locked, but she slept on. At last she awoke feeling dreadfully cold and numbed and unable to realize where she was. When she did find out she was horrified and tried to get out, but the door was locked. She shouted, but there was no response. She heard the clock strike midnight and feared she would be kept there until morning. Happily for her, the watchman heard her cries and with the undertaker's aid effected her release before she had lost her reason. The memory of that night's experience will probably keep her from ever voluntarily entering a vault again and will certainly keep her from yielding to somnolence if she should do so, before she is carried there for her last sleep. It may be hoped that she will so live that when that event occurs, her awakening on the resurrection day will be one of joy and not of terror.

Verily I say unto you, the hour is coming when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God and they that hear shall live . . . and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life (John 5:25).

A Novel Well.

An ingenious method of obtaining water in an emergency is described by a member of a surveying expedition which was at work in Oklahoma during the first weeks of settlement. The party had been for some time without water, and at last the search for it became the chief object of concern, as all were suffering from the want of it. One of the party was an old trapper, whose experience of the territory had several times proved valuable to the others. He was particularly eager in his search for water, and finally he paused at a place and examined the soil. He announced that there was water near the surface which could be secured by digging a well. That however could not be done. But the trapper wanted water too badly to be defeated. He searched around till he found a reed. He wrapped some moss around the end, and digging a hole, he inserted the reed and filled up the hole and stamped the soil hard. In a few minutes he applied his lips to the reed and declared the water very good. Other members of the party in turn followed his example, and were rewarded with a delicious drink of water. "How is it, it is so clear?" the trapper was asked. He explained that the moss acted as a filter, and the soil being full of water, readily yielded it. He said that more than once he had been saved from much suffering by the same simple device. It was well for the party that the trapper was among them, otherwise, though with water so near them, they would have continued to suffer with thirst. It is so with those who are thirsting for salvation and know not that it is within their reach.

Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye buy and eat (Isa. 55:1).

Nests Out of Reach.

At the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Ornithological Association, Dr. Haggard called attention to a remarkable instance of the intelligence of American song-birds. He said that about seventeen years ago the Allegheny Park Commissioners imported a number of English sparrows. These multiplied fast, but their pugnacity resulted in driving the song-birds from their old haunts. Orioles, bluebirds, robins and other birds esteemed for their plumage or song, fled precipitately to save their lives from the foreign savage aggressor. Soon there was not a bird's nest left in the park, and the sparrow reigned undisturbed. Recently, however, the professor noticed a number of the song-birds in the park, and they were followed by others. He feared they would soon be driven away, but they have remained and built nests. The peculiarity of their proceeding is that whereas they usually build near the ground, these birds have built in the loftiest perches of the trees. It is supposed that they made the discovery that their enemies never made high flights and made practical use of it by building their nests above their reach. However it may be, they have changed their habit and are holding their own. So will the Christian survive who is beset by enemies, and trials and temptations from the great enemy of souls, if he makes his refuge in the Most High and lives above the clamor and strife of the world.

Because thou hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the Most High thy habitation, there shall no evil befall thee (Ps. 91:9).

Found a Treasure

A gentlemen who has been spending a few weeks in Indiana tells a strange incident which he heard from a farmer living near Bedford. His farm is in a hilly neighborhood and as the soil seemed poor, most of the 200 acres of which it consists was used for pasturage. One of the farmer's sons, however, persuaded him to let him cultivate a small portion which seemed of better quality than the rest. On the first day of his ploughing he struck a snag. Before turning the plough aside he tried to work out the snag. By dint of considerable hard work he succeeded in dragging out a log which had covered a hole. Groping in the hole he found a quantity of gold, silver and copper coins. Among them were rare old French coins, a number of Mexican dollars and some American dollars of the Revolutionary period. Their face value was about $500, but as many of the pieces are very old and scarce, their market value will be many times that amount. It is supposed that they originally belonged to some settler who, dreading an attack by Indians, secreted his savings in the field, and was killed in some raid without having an opportunity of revealing the hiding-place. The farmer would not have been so reluctant as he was to have that field ploughed, if he had suspected that a treasure might be found there. It is so sometimes with the Church. Many a treasure which God will have in the day that he makes up his jewels has been found in a sphere that was not thought worth cultivating.

When Jesus heard it he marvelled and said unto them that followed, verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. (Matt 8:10.)

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

Entertaining the Baby.

How to Amuse and Educate Baby—The Distaff and Spindle—Implements of the Orient—An Ancient Domestic Art.

WHILE Grandma plies her own busy task, she has, with that marvellous intelligence, so common to grandmamas, found a way of entertaining baby at the same time that she does her own. This is a very practical sort of wisdom, even though baby is not so helpful as he thinks he is and as he desires to be. Baby always desires to help, often with most mischievous results. We troubled mothers, who give up time from imperative duties to amuse baby, may take a hint from this. With a little tact, we can interest him in almost any work we do, and if we carefully direct his tendency to meddle, we may presently convert him into our sympathetic and intelligent helper. Whatever else you fail to teach baby, be sure to give him the beautiful education of serving and co-operating with mama and papa, brothers and sisters, friends and acquaintances.

Grandma in our picture lived before Froebel, and yet in her humble home and with her primitive wheel, she is unconsciously applying the great principles which he enunciated, which thousands of kindergarteners are applying today, and which any dear untaught mother may make use of. The hank of yarn, which grandma is unwinding, was doubtless spun on a spinning-jenny. Before the spinning-jenny (1770), we had the distaff and spindle, on which all the thread for the "purple and fine linen" of the Orient was spun, and on which to-day the cotton yarns are spun, which compose the wonderful muslins of India, whose texture endows them with such names as "woven hair" and "evening dew." In ancient times spinning was the favorite occupation of queens and ladies of high degree, as well as of the humble house-mother of the common people. Spindles were often made of precious metals, set with jewels. In the Odyssey, one queen is described as giving a golden distaff to another; then this, which follows, gives us an idea of the receptacles, in which the unspun mass was kept:

"And that rich vase with living sculpture wrought,
Which heaped with wool the beauteous Philo brought,
The silken fleece empurpled for the loom,
Rivalled the hyacinth in vernal bloom."

We remember that the virtuous wife, described by Solomon, "layeth her hands to the spindle, and her hands hold the distaff."

BABY'S COMRADE AND TEACHER.

Summer Musicians.

There said a great writer, who loved to listen to nature's music, on the very topmost twig that rises and falls with willowy motion, sits that ridiculous but sweet-singing bobolink, singing as a Roman candle fizzes, showers of sparkling notes. If you stand at noon under the tree, you are in a very beehive. The tree is musical. The flowers, for a wonder, seem to have a voice.

English Flower Missions.

A discussion has been going on in English religious papers regarding the origin of summer flower services, as they are now conducted in churches and chapels. Some one says that the first flower service held in London was a church on Leaden hall Street, and Canon Shore claims to have originated the idea at Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair, where, it is said, these children's services are greatly missed by people living in that part of London. The Princess of Wales has much approved of children's flower missions, and she herself set the example of distributing flowers and fruit in the hospitals. Flower and fruit mission work in our own country has brightened many sad lives and trained many little children in loving service.

People of Sulu.

Since public attention has been drawn to the Sulu Islands, a group lying south of the Philippines, it may be interesting to know something of their inhabitants, who are chiefly Malay Mohammedans. They are excellent sailors, and till 1851, were notable for piracy. The chief ruler was a Sultan, who attempted to govern the datos, or feudal lords, who in their turn ruled large clans of vassals. According to their present law, slavery exists for an insolvent debtor, and his whole family become the creditor's property. Sometimes he can purchase the freedom of his family by vowing his own life to the destruction of Christians. When he accepts these conditions, he is known in Malay as a Sabil, in Spanish as juramentado, "one who is sworn." The men are polygamous, and though Mohammedans, are much given to intoxicants.

Color of Mexican Flowers.

A visitor to Mexican highlands writes that the first peculiarity one notices is the enormous preponderance of yellow flowers, and the abundance of purple ones. Red is very rare. Out of twenty common flowers gathered at one time, fifteen were yellow, four were purple, and only one red, and that was a species of honeysuckle. The Mexican relative of our "daisy" is yellow all over, and so is the flower of Nopal, the commonest of cacti here, and represented on the Mexican dollar.

Summer Reading.

It need not be heavy; it may be as light as the doublets, as pretty as the flowers, as merry as the birds and brooklets, but it should be morally clean and religiously sweet. We are very careful of the seed we sow in our gardens, but not always of that we sow in our minds. If our young men and maidens want to read stories of modern or ancient life, of history, travel, or adventure, there are many such, combining high moral tone, information and entertainment, and it is the part of true enjoyment, as of true wisdom and profit, to choose the best. Accept for your mental food nothing less than the best. Whatever you read, read your Bible first, and your choice of all else will be better.

The Little Comforter.

Little Maisie was tired and fretful; she had been playing too hard. Mama took her up and held her close and lovingly, and presently Maisie was rested. Mama herself was weary; a great trouble had come upon her—the earth was fresh above the dear mother who had held her when she was a little girl, and to whom she had gone in later life with all her cares and troubles. She sighed above the golden head, and Maisie asked: "Mamma, don't you want to be holded?" In spite of herself, the tears came, and the little one, patting her cheek, and seeking words with which to comfort, whispered at last, "Mamma, Dod will hold you, won't he?" And the mother, who had told her child how the good shepherd carried troubled ones in his arms, was rebuked and comforted.

How Children Educate Us.

"We speak of educating our children," writes Martha B. Mosher, in Child Culture in the Home, "do not our children educate us? Does not woman attain her best development, a finer moral discernment, a truer judgment, in the management and education of her children than by any other experience that comes to her. A philosopher said long ago: 'The best way of training the young is to train yourself at the same time; not to admonish them, but to be always carrying out your own principles and practice.' It is certain that whatever we wish the child to be, we must be that to the child: as a single precept I know of no other that contains so much of efficiency.

God's Impress.

Wherever we see a daisy nod,
Let us think, "There bloometh a thought of God;"
Wherever we hear the brooklet's fall,
"The water of life flows free to all."
In the summer's rose, in the winter's snows,
Wherever a sparkle of beauty glows,
We may see all over the wonderful land,
The loving touch of our Father's hand.

—M. L. A.

A CHILD'S HAND.

PERHAPS there are tenderer, sweeter things
Somewhere in this sun-bright land;
But I thank the Lord for his blessings,
And the clasp of a little hand.

A little hand that softly stole
Into my own one day,
When I needed the touch that I loved so well
To strengthen me on the way.

Softer it seemed than the softest down
On the breast of the gentlest dove;
But its timid press and its faint caress
Were strong in the strength of love.

Frank L. Stanton in Songs of the Soil. Published by D. Appleton & Co.

Our Dumb Friends in the F[ield]

OUR readers will be interested in the following letter on a subject concerning which they all feel doubtless as the writer, who carries the welfare of our dumb friends so close to her heart. The letter is dated Andover, Mass., June 10, and is from Mrs. M. C. Jordan, Honorary Corresponding Secretary of English and American Humane Societies:

I write to beg a favor of your splendid journal, which has done, and can do, such a great deal of good in every kind of Christian and educational reform. Will you kindly call the attention of the public, and of your readers, to the neglect and cruelty which our dumb animals suffer in war times? It was a national disgrace when in our civil war thousands of wounded horses were left to suffer and perish by the lingering, torturing agonies of slow starvation. It is not the glory of Christian civilization to allow these senseless and dumb allies to thus suffer and die. Much of their suffering is needless. Without these beautiful and lovable mute co-workers, no campaign could be carried on. Many industries would fail. If the public and the military authorities will give more attention to their care, these wrongs will not be cannot endure. A loud, strong and indignant protest should come concentrically from the public at large.

No journal has such weight and influence in the religious line as yours, therefore we implore you to take up this vitally important matter. We call attention to the need of gently caring for these helpless animals in the burning south through the war period. Ask soldiers and officers alike to do all in their power to prevent unnecessary suffering—above all, see that their beasts are often watered as horses and mules suffer much from thirst, and their owners do not always appreciate the importance of watering them often and regularly. Ask the soldiers to protect their horses' backs from the terrible southern sun which tortures the beasts fully as much as it does the soldiers. Comfortable ear protectors, shaped like a little saucer or plate, are, as you know, used to protect horses' brains and eyes in summer. These should be used on army horses. It is but a common duty to do this, and all else in our power for the animals which are such faithful servants and often martyrs too often. You can do much to aid this truly worthy, Christian reform if you will. We take your journal, and in it hope to soon see this letter, or its future. By printing it you will give pleasure to, and have the hearty gratitude of thousands of your human readers. Note that armies can easily take along veterinary surgeons to doctor sick animals, and once and mercifully kill those badly wounded on battle-fields. In Germany veterinary surgeons are commissioned to follow the army for this purpose.

The Fourth in Alaska.

The Fourth of July was celebrated by many native Eskimo of Alaska. Civilization means more and better things to the simple people of the Northwest coast. The missionaries have opportunity to give them the Gospel. A teacher writes:

On historic anniversaries and national days we float the stars and stripes, and at sunrise salute. It is an impressive sight when eighty or more boys are grouped on the grounds, gazing upward at "Old Glory," and pledging themselves to preserve its honor.

A teacher in Sitka says that the natives visiting the capital, beach their canoes, and then kneel beneath the flag, not in worship, but in grateful acknowledgment of all that it means to them of liberty, Christian education and protection. On the national holiday, the hall at the Industrial School was decorated with yellow cedar boughs, flags, patriotic pictures and Chilkat toes. Over the portrait of Dr. Sheldon Jackson, Alaska's great missionary, was a flag and the motto: "Alaska for Christ."

The Sunday School

NABOTH'S VINEYARD.

S. S. Lesson for July 31. I. Kings. 21 : 4-16.
Golden Text, Ex. 20 : 17.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

"Thou shalt not covet" is the last commandment in the decalogue. "The covetous man who is an idolater" can have no inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God" (Eph. 5 : 5). Covetousness is in direct contrary to the life and spirit of Christ. It consists in doing the best for oneself, and getting the best for oneself, without any regard to how it may affect others. Christ pleased not himself and "charity seeketh not her own (I. Cor. 13 : 5) but condemns the ruling passion of the world is self-pleasing; and "all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's," (Phil. 2 : 21). The greater part of the human race are at this very hour, in all parts of the world, among the so-called Christian, as well as among the great heathen peoples, intent on getting the better of others for their own self-interest. This is covetousness which is idolatry.

When Elijah, the prophet, had become discouraged, the still, small voice of his God heard on Sinai recalled him; with Ahab it was otherwise. The one man lived for his God, the other man for himself. Ahab was in no mood to be crossed. Before he had got rid of his vexation, casting his eyes on the vineyard of his neighbor, Naboth, he demanded of him this property which he was willing to pay for, which he wanted for himself—a vegetable garden, because it was conveniently near his house. Naboth looked upon his land as possessed as a trust from the Lord. "The land shall not be sold forever, for the land is mine" (Lev. 25 : 23), was God's command. Naboth stood true to his God and said, "The Lord forbid it me that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee." Ahab's weakness only increased by this disappointment. He knew enough of Naboth to know that evil awaited him if he was put out that the temptation distraction of a new piece of ground should be denied him.

Oh! How unmanly is a man without God! How small is a man who cannot stand with equanimity when in a trifling disappointment in regard which is absolutely unnecessary! The enemy of souls had his chosen instrument at hand. Jezebel was ready to appeal to him on selfish grounds, and she found ready response. Beginning with sympathy, she said: "Why is thy spirit sad that thou eatest no bread?" "Because I spoke to Naboth, the Jezreelite, and said unto him, 'Give me thy vineyard . . And he answered, 'I will not give thee my vineyard.'" "Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel?" The queen in her proud scorntulness, "Arise and eat bread, and let thy heart be merry: I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite." And the king, the new Jezebel only too well, never knew now. In his recent victories he knew what God had been with him; he was sure, perhaps, a thorough yielding of himself to God: but now he succumbed completely to the evil influences of Jezebel, and became her helpless tool. No enormity of wickedness was too great for her. In the name of her husband and under his seal, she succeeded by perfidy procuring the condemnation and execution of the righteous Naboth, and then triumphantly came to her husband and said: "Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth, the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead."

"For the iniquity of his covetousness was he wroth." It was no peaceable mood for Ahab when he went down to take possession. While he was busy making his survey and noting the special advantages of his newly and unrighteously acquired property, a voice which he could not mistake accosted him.

"Hast thou killed and also taken possession? Thus saith the Lord. In the place where the dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine." "Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" was the king's rejoinder. "I have found thee because thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord." And the prophet told out how evil should come upon him and upon his posterity, even as it had been in the house of Jeroboam which made Israel to sin.

And what was Ahab's sin? The very sin which is the spirit of competition today in all parts of the world; the sin which is at the root of all unrighteous transactions; it is the sin of the sweater, the sin of the gambler, the sin of one who adulterates his goods. It is the sin which is honeycombing the confidence in one another which is the basis of true commerce. It is the grasping after everything for itself, which makes the drunkard, the gambler and the profligate, ruin their homes, their character and themselves, the elements of corruption are in it, it is the foe of that unity to which the members of Christ are called; it utterly ignores that we are bound to love our neighbor as ourselves and in lowliness of mind each to esteem the other better than ourselves.

Whether or not men go to the same lengths of wickedness as Ahab did, yet if the principle of their life is self-pleasing, it is equally abhorrent to God. Christ "died for all that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves but unto him which died for them and rose again (II. Cor. 5 : 15). Thank God, it is possible to live a life in which the motive for every action is God-pleasing and not self-pleasing. The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. Christ in us is all-powerful against self in us, as we reckon ourselves what the Bible tells us we are, crucified with Christ. If by faith we take and retain our place as dead with him, then the life we live in the flesh will be by the faith of the Lord God. We shall expect of him his own divine life and he will answer our expectations.

There was, for a moment, something like a break in Ahab, the miserable man was tossed to and fro, one time being strongly under impression through the prophets of the Lord, and then again succumbing to Jezebel, the prophetess of Baal. When he heard these words he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his flesh, and went softly. And God acknowledged this, after all his sin! Oh, what we see of the heart of God in his joy that there was even this move in this very wicked man! God told his prophet Elijah, "Seest thou how Ahab humbleth himself? Because he humbleth himself before me, I will not bring the evil in his days, but in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house. And yet, after all this, Ahab did not turn to God!

TRADITIONAL SITE OF NABOTH'S VINEYARD.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

DURING the six or seven years after the great day on Mount Carmel, Elijah appears to have lived in retirement. Whether Jezebel was unable to find him, or whether she deemed it safer to leave him unmolested, we are not told, but evidently she did not keep the vow to kill him that she had registered. Later events seem to indicate that Elijah was educating young men, called sons of the prophets, in some inconspicuous places, possibly in caves near Carmel. The words used in II. Kings 2 : 5, indicate that a number of these young men were well acquainted both with him and Elisha. The events of this week's lesson appear to be placed out of their order in our Bibles. In the Septuagint and in Josephus they precede the events recorded in the twentieth chapter and they are more natural in that connection. After his conflict with the King of Syria began, Ahab would have little time or inclination to give to his private property. It required all his attention to keep his crown.

Naboth the Jezreelite. It was a bad thing for this man that he was neighbor to the king. He had a vineyard near the site of King Ahab's new ivory palace, which Ahab wanted, to round out his property. Ahab seemed to have acted fairly at the outset, proposing either sale or exchange, but Naboth clung to his property. Whether he knew that there was a law prohibiting the sale, does not appear, but he refused to part with it even to the king. It was a dangerous act of independence, as the event proved. In the end he lost his life as well as his vineyard. This was possible under a despotism, but in constitutional countries a man might make such a stand. Carlyle tells a story of Frederick II the famous king of Prussia which shows how a constitution safeguards the liberties of the people. When Frederick was building his retreat of Sans Souci he wanted to buy a mill near the palace which was an eyesore to him. The miller refused to sell, when the king took possession by force and pulled down the mill. The miller, however, went to law with the king and proved his case. Whereupon the courts gave judgment that the king must rebuild the mill and restore it to its rightful owner. This Frederick, great and powerful king as he was, had to do, and it is grinding away on its knoll to this day.

I will give thee the vineyard. Jezebel was not troubled by any compunction of conscience. She probably despised the weak spirit of her lord. She would show him how such things should be done by an absolute king. When a woman does give herself to wickedness she is generally worse than a man. The great English dramatist draws a picture of just such a woman in "Lady Macbeth." Her scornful words to her trembling husband: "Infirm of purpose! Give me the daggers. The sleeping and the dead are but as pictures," have passed into a proverb. When her husband quailed at the task that had been decided upon, and could not find it in his heart to murder the good old king, who, as his kinsman and guest, had a double claim on his protection, it was "Lady Macbeth" who strengthened his resolution and held him to his purpose. We have seen recently in New York how a woman could not only plan a brutal murder of one who had done her no wrong, but could entice the victim to his doom and assist after the crime in the cutting up and the disposal of the body.

To take possession of it. Ahab appears to have lost no time in taking advantage of the fruits of his wife's wickedness. Whether he made inquiries as to the cause of Naboth's death, the history does not say, but as he was willing to profit by it, his guilt was undoubted. He had the thing he had coveted, but it brought him no pleasure. Elijah met him in the vineyard and denounced him, and after that, the king had no heart to proceed. He put on the symbols of mourning and went softly, that is, showed his humility and fear. A famous preacher relates that when visiting a certain navy-yard as a boy, he was moved by a strong desire to possess one of the small cannon balls he saw lying around. He did not know what use it would be to him, and did not pause to think, but when he had the opportunity he stole it. To escape detection he hid it in his hat, and as he walked out of the yard and past the sentry, he trod carefully, lest the ball should push his hat off his head and he should be discovered. When he reached home he hid the heavy thing away. His head ached badly with the weight of the ball and he was miserable. He was afraid to play with the ball, afraid to show it to any of his play-fellows, and afraid lest any one should see it and tell and have him arrested. The thing was a weight on his conscience as heavy as it had been on his head. The next day he carried it back to the yard and left it there, glad to be rid of it. It was the first and last thing he ever stole, and his suffering over it was a lesson he never forgot.

The elders and the nobles. The compliance of these officials shows how society is influenced by wickedness in high places. They were to proclaim a fast, give Naboth a place of honor and hire two perjurers to bring a false charge against him; they were to see that he was promptly convicted and executed. The queen seemed to know that she could count on their co-operation and the result justified her confidence. But what kind of men must they have been to comply with such a request? History furnishes many instances of such men who have done evil to oblige their monarchs, but generally they lived to repent it. The favor they gained by becoming the instruments of evil, was usually shortlived. There is nothing more pathetic in history than Wolsey's words: "If I had served my God as faithfully as I have served my king, he would not have cast me off in my old age."

Naboth was dead. It was a foul murder. But there was a terrible retribution. Murderers have told again and again how fearful was the suffering they endured when they saw their victims lying helpless before them. A famous novelist tells the story of a fight between two young men. Arthur had done Adam a cruel wrong, and Adam insisted on fighting him there and then. They fought and one of Adam's blows stretched Arthur at full length on the grass. As Adam bent over his prostrate foe, he realized how utterly the punishment he had administered had failed to right the wrong. He tried to revive his enemy, and he was glad when he saw him open his eyes.

MISSIONARIES IN CONFERENCE.

The Annual Re-union at Clifton Springs, N. Y., of Missionaries on Furlough from Many Lands and Retired Veterans of the Mission Field for Counsel.

OUR readers will be glad to see the photograph on this page of the group of missionaries who attended the annual conference this year at Clifton Springs, N. Y. It is interesting to compare it with the photograph of the assemblage published in this journal last year. Our readers will rejoice with us in the fact that the differences in the two groups are chiefly in the younger members. Nearly all the aged missionaries conspicuous in last year's group may be seen in the picture again this year. Many of the younger missionaries and those in middle life, whose faces were recognizable in last year's group, have returned to their fields of labor, and their places in the picture are this year filled by brethren and sisters who have come home for rest and recuperation.

It is a kindly act on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Foster to throw open their house once a year to these honored workers in Christ's cause, and to give them an opportunity to make the personal acquaintance of each other and of the veterans whose name and fame are an inspiration to their successors. In all the religious gatherings of the year there is none so deeply interesting as this annual meeting of the men and women from the front.

At the convention this year eighteen different missionary boards were represented by missionaries from Africa, Arabia, Austria, Brazil, Burma, Ceylon, China, Egypt, India, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Micronesia, North America, Persia, Siam, Syria, Turkey, etc. Among the topics discussed were Opportunities and Demands for Workers, Obstacles, Evangelistic and Educational Work, Self-Support, The Future Problem of Money from the Home Churches, Its Use and Abuse; Bible Translation and Distribution, Re-enforcement, Important Features of a Forward Movement, Humanitarian Efforts, Famine Relief, Medical Work, Hospitals, Leper Work, Increase of Intelligence on Missions, The Living Link or Support of Individual Missionaries by Churches.

In the Bible studies brought from many lands no note of discouragement was heard, although persecution and bloodshed were among the experiences reported. From Africa, Armenia, and China, the blood of the slain cries unto God. Mrs. Cole, for thirty-eight years in Turkey, after giving a thrilling description of experiences in the massacre at Bitlis, said she was returning with her husband and children to the scene of those never-to-be-forgotten terrors, joyful in the prospect; and Dr. S. I. Baldwin said he stood a few months ago beside Mrs. Lamsden whose daughters were killed in the massacre near Kucheng, China, and a Chinese man said to him, "in that gray-haired woman who comes back to teach the murderers of her children, I see the wounded side of Christ." Her courage and consecrated spirit are indeed wonderful.

One of the most interesting sessions was that in which the story of Bible translation was told. In 1890 the whole Bible in Chinese was first issued from the press in Foo Chow, after forty years of diligent work in which three missions united. In 1896 seven hundred and fifty thousand copies of the Bible in the Mandarin were circulated in North China. Just ten years ago the whole Bible was completed in the Japanese language; tiny copies of the Gospel were distributed among Japanese soldiers in the late war with China. The years of labor, patient research, overcoming of stupendous difficulties in giving the Word of God to the World in nearly three hundred different languages is a thrilling story of superhuman courage, heroic faith, and constraining love. The scholarship which pulls to pieces the enlightened Christian's Bible seems little worth while in the presence of this patient work of putting together the Book which has wrought such transformations among heathen people. A very interesting fact was related by Miss Hepburn, the first woman missionary to Japan. She had a few boys in her own house for instruction, all of whom became Christian men except one, who is now minister plenipotentiary to the court of Russia, and for whom she asked prayers.

One report, which has special interest for Americans in these times, was that of a missionary who has labored for several years in the islands of the Pacific. He gave a description of the destruction of the American Board's property in the Caroline Islands in 1892, out of which grew a dispute with Spain. Our State Department was so fully convinced that the Spanish Governor and officials connived at the outrage, that it instructed our Minister at Madrid to demand an indemnity from the Spanish Government, and eventually $17,000 was secured.

But the haughty Spanish Governor at Ponape evidently felt sore about the award, for he notified the American Board that its vessel, the Morning Star, must not come to Ponape again. The natives expressed regret at the Governor's decision as it caused them inconvenience. They had few means of communication with the outside world, such as the Morning Star had supplied, and were sorry to miss it. The Governor did not care, as he had the advantage of a gunboat, by which he sent his dispatches and received supplies. Now, however, that Admiral Dewey has captured the gunboat, he is as completely shut off from the world as the common people.

If the people of Ponape know anything of the war, they are doubtless rejoicing in the prospect that it opens up to them. Long ago, when Spain and Germany were disputing for the possession of the Caroline Islands, the natives themselves suggested that both nations should withdraw their claims and the islands should be offered to the United States. They said that all the good that had ever come to them had come from the American missionaries, and they would like closer relations; but such reasons do not weigh much in international disputes. It would be a most delightful thing for the missionaries if the islands in which they have toiled for more than forty years were in the Providence of God to pass under American control.

In the discussion on the "Evolution of Nations," it was announced that the son of the Corean king was in this country for education under the care of Rev. Dr. Eilinwood of the Presbyterian Mission Board, also that Li Hung Chang employs a Christian woman teacher in his household; and many similar evidences of the advance of Christianity were spoken of such as would been thought beyond the possible a very few years ago.

There were many veterans in this concourse whose names are famous. Dr. and Mrs. Hepburn now past eighty, who have spent forty-nine years in China and Japan; Dr. Woodford, many years in Constantinople; Dr. Blodgett, the first Protestant missionary in North China over forty years ago, the translator of over two hundred hymns. Mrs. Wilder, fifty-two years in India, returning with her daughter to a Christian church in Kolipur, where she with her husband first carried the Gospel; Mrs. Wheeler, forty-one years in Turkey, where in the massacres she has suffered the loss of all things, except a brave heart and cheerful faith. Ten women represented have 348 years of pioneer work. Here, also, was Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, 86 years old, whose graphic recital of the founding of Robert College in Constantinople is a deeply interesting story.

There were also scores of younger, but not less brave and devoted men and women from many lands having seen service from ten to twenty-five years, and fresh young spirits full of eagerness to re-enforce the ranks at the front in India, China, and Arabia.

One can but be impressed with the similarity of the problems in all mission fields and the earnest desire of the workers to find their solution. A vast amount of condensed information has been gathered from the addresses and an inspiring view of the whole world—political, social, religious. It cannot be said history is repeating itself now; the chapters being written are wholly new and original, and full of suggestion and bright encouragement for thoughtful men and women.

THE INTERNATIONAL MISSIONARY UNION OF 1898, AT CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y.

A Great Triennial Council

Congregationalists Meet at Portland, e... in their National Council for Con... tation and Aggressive Work.

REV. A. J. LYMAN, D.D.

AN important counc... has just concluded its ses... sions in Portland, e... which has at... ed eminent p... ers from al... tions of the ... try. It is ... National C... of the Con... tional chur... which asse... every three ... In the Con... tional den... tion there ... governing ... each indi... church bein... public ma... its own aff... making it... choice of mi... practically it... creed and r... its own syst... church g... ment. But t... vantages of ... effort and ... ration are too obvious to be neg... and therefore there is a periodical ... for conference without judicial or l... tive functions. It has held its m... in St. Louis, Minneapolis and othe... cities, but this year its rendezv... farther West than in any previous ... r.

Among the prominent delegate... have crossed the Continent to at... Dr. A. J. Lyman, the beloved pa... South Congregational Church, Br... N. Y., who preached the Council s... Dr. Lyman has a personal interest ... city to which he went as an honored ... His uncle, Dr. Horace Lyman, wen... in 1840, commissioned by the Co... tional Home Missionary Society t... in what was then a far away and s... settled district. The fine church ... known as the First Congregation; w... a large membership and vigorous s... life, is an object lesson of the d... and success of his labors. It is th... church that the Council held its m... Another prominent member of the ... was Dr. C. M. Lamson, the Presid... the American Board, the oldest an... successful of all the foreign mis... societies of our land. Among th... well-known names on the program w... Dr. William Hayes Ward, the eru... tor of The Independent; Rev. Amor... ford, of Montclair, N. J.; Dr. H. A. ... and Dr. Mackennal, the delegat... the English Congregational Churc...

The selection of a city so far ... Portland, may have prevented ma... nent men attending the Council, wh... been prominent in former counci... in the East, but as the Congre... Church is strong in these Wester... their people were entitled to co... tion and they were evidently delig... be the hosts of the Council. The ...

REV. C. M. LAMSON, D.D.

of the proceedings has not yet rea... but we have no doubt that the p... with which the Council had to d... handled with prudence, kindn... Christian good-will.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

The Weekly Washing—Exasperated Husbands—Vacations for Mothers, Etc.

IT is difficult to give categorical answers to questions of right and wrong, yet as we sit down in this weekly symposium a great many such are presented to us. Hetrig, for example, is troubled over the question of putting the weekly wash on the Sabbath, asking whether it is right to spend a half hour thus in order to save time on Monday's washing. I never myself understood why Monday was set apart by common consent as washing day. Tuesday would do just as well, and if housekeepers could but bring their minds to the washing on Tuesday, instead of on Monday, they would find themselves just as well off at the end of the week, and would not be disturbed by the necessity of gathering and sorting clothes for the wash on Sunday. I infer that my correspondent is a man. May I point out to you, dear sir, that you probably do not have the washing to do; that duty, as a rule, too, as a general thing, falls to the women of the house, so if your wife deems absolutely necessary to put her clothes to soak on Sunday, that is a matter for her own conscience to decide and not for yours. I think you are quite outside the matter and should take your Bible or CHRISTIAN HERALD and sit down in peace and tranquility on the Sabbath while she does this work and not fash yourself about the last about a matter which is outside your province. Mrs. Hetrig probably thinks that the clothes are more easily and speedily washed on Monday, for having been divided and put into clean water to soak the night before, and I cannot find it my heart to blame her if this is her opinion. She calls it a work of necessity, no doubt.

Speaking about washing, if any good housekeeper can give me an infallible rule for washing flannels so that they will not shrink, he will make me her friend for life, and will be a Friend in Council whom I will greatly appreciate. I have always supposed that if flannels were washed in soft suds and not rubbed with soap, and if they were rinsed in water of the same temperature and ironed while damp, with great pains taken with every step of the process, they would not shrink; but, alas, experience shows me that nothing in the world is quite so uncertain as the laundering of flannels. Among the many able matrons who read this department surely there is some one who will come to my relief. Also will some clever housekeeper tell a city woman how she makes bread with compressed yeast, exactly what is meant by salt rising. One of my correspondents asks, and I cannot explain

* * *

SO many friends inquire how they should obtain summer boarders; what they should do to find positions, and other practical questions of this kind. Please bear in mind when I say that the most direct and best ways that of advertising, either in the newspaper or in your own religious paper. In this way you bring what you have to offer to the notice of those who want it. It is impossible to give practical advice as to the obtaining of employment to women with whose equipment I am not familiar. I may say, however, in a general way, that in order to be a good stenographer and typewriter, a young lady should have a good common school education, must know how to spell correctly, must be familiar with ordinary colloquial English. If she desires a secretaryship or the place of companion, she must be prepared to yield her own wishes to those of her employer; perhaps to work for a small salary. A place of this kind is obtained either through the offices of personal friends or through advertising. When you advertise you must be prepared to give references, and should also invariably require them.

* * *

I AM exceedingly sorry, dear friend, for the trouble in which you find yourself through the peculiarities of your husband. It is all the harder, dear lady, because you had a long engagement and married in opposition to the wishes of your friends. All that you can now do, I think, is to be patient. I advise you to refrain as much as possible from tears and hysterics. A man soon grows tired of these, and is not very much impressed by them. Try and look on the bright side. Things are bad enough, but then they might be worse. I imagine that your husband's faults are largely those of temperament, and partly due to his upbringing. Pray to God to make him better, and in the meantime try to live as patiently and sweetly and lovingly as possible. And, oh! mothers, please remember that you are moulding the husbands of the future.

* * *

ANOTHER perplexed wife is much disturbed because her husband utterly refuses to go with her to church. This is a great pity. However, if he will not go, simply go yourself, my friend, and let him remain at home. Do not reproach him, and, above all things, do not give up your own habit of church attendance because your good man is unfortunately blind to the privilege which might be his. Certainly the example of a Christian wife, who lives consistently, must win the respect of any man not utterly lost to nobleness.

* * *

YOUR plan, my dear Nellie, of giving your mother a vacation seems to me really a beautiful thought, and I wish more daughters would remember that their mothers get tired of routine and are the better for being freshened up by a little occasional glimpse of outside life. It is too bad that you cannot persuade the dear mother to be a little more indulgent to herself, but remember that she likes and enjoys her old-fashioned ways, and do not urge her against her will to adopt a style of dress which after all would probably not be becoming to her; which would not be comfortable either; I have often thought it would be a good plan if all elderly women should adopt a certain style of dress and adhere to it. If you have read "Margaret Ogilvie," you will remember how prettily that dear old lady dressed in a white cap, called by the Scotch a mutch, and in a gray or black dress, with a soft shawl crossed over her bosom. My own dear mother dressed in that way for many years and always looked like a picture. After people begin to grow old, a cap sets off and softens faces which no longer have the soft coloring of youth, and gives an air of distinction and dignity which no other article of dress can confer. You young people, however, are too autocratic in your treatment of the older ones. You want them to wear what pleases you, and, in short, to lay aside a good many of their own wishes. Let your mother dress as she likes, but do not give up your point of getting her and your father off for a visit to some of the absent sons and daughters. Some years ago two old friends of mine who had celebrated their golden wedding, set off on a pilgrimage and traveled many hundreds of miles, visiting all their children and grandchildren in half a dozen different States. It was really a great undertaking for them, but they got along finely, and came home with their youth renewed.

* * *

DISHEARTENED ONE. I am sure that no question ever makes as much real trouble in the family as that of domestic finance. Why husbands and fathers are so obtuse as not to see that women can not be treated all their lives like children without great unhappiness is beyond the power of the average observer to determine. No wife should be obliged to beg for needed money. A wife is supposed to have her husband's true interests at heart. If this is the case, she will not be extravagant, nor will she spend money in a foolish way. Why not sit down some day when your husband is in a reasonable mood, and talk the thing over with him fairly and squarely. In the end the money is spent for yourself and the children. You are obliged to eat, you must have clothes. Why not sit down with pencil and paper, figure out the cost of running the home; decide what proportion the husband should spend; what proportion should be devoted to the wife; what amount is necessary for taxes and groceries and fuel—in short, arrive at a businesslike conclusion about the whole matter. I sometimes think that young women would do well before answering the all-important question of the proposal to come to an understanding on this matter of money. Certainly a great deal of unhappiness would be saved if the course were decided upon before marriage. It is not a trouble confined to poor people, rich men's wives are often practically in the position of mendicants. I have personally known the wife of a well-to-do man, having apparently all that heart could wish, to be unable to buy herself a pair of shoes and obliged for weeks together to remain at home, to refuse all invitations, and in short, to live the life of a veiled nun, simply because she was unprepared to encounter wet and cold pavements. This sounds like a fairy tale, but it is true. Let the positions be reversed, and the husband obliged to go to his wife every time he wished to spend ten cents and ask her for it, and how many husbands would bear the situation patiently? If the wife is not directly the bread-winner, she is still the home-maker, and she has her rights in the case, which a chivalrous man will always consider.

Margaret E. Sangster

ROYAL Baking Powder is a safeguard against the alum and other injurious adulterations found in so many baking powders. It is made from cream of tartar and is pure and healthful.

There is a real danger to our food from the numerous cheap and low-grade baking powders now in the market, and constant care and watchfulness should be exercised by every housekeeper to keep them from her kitchen.

Nervous People

Are great sufferers and they deserve sympathy rather than censure. Their blood is poor and thin, and their nerves are consequently weak. Such people find relief and cure in Hood's Sarsaparilla because it purifies and enriches the blood and gives it power to feed, strengthen and sustain the nerves. If you are nervous and cannot sleep, take Hood's Sarsaparilla and realize its nerve strengthening power,

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Get only Hood's.

Hood's Pills cure indigestion. 25 cents.

STEWART'S DUPLEX SAFETY PINS.

IN ALL SIZES.

The Guard

Must be on Inside of Spring

DUPLEX PINS have the only effective Guard to prevent catching or tearing. It is on the arm of pin that passes through the cloth. Patented and cannot be used on any other pin.

DUPLEX PINS work as easily in the dark as in the light; fasten from either side, but cannot slip through, as all others do. Dealers may offer other pins with so-called guards. Demand the genuine "STEWART'S DUPLEX." Take no others. If dealers cannot supply you, send 3 two-cent stamps for samples of 12 assorted sizes.

Made in Nickel-Plate and Jet Black.

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO., BOX 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

Makers of Holdfast Aluminum Hair pins.

By Sankey, McGranahan and Stebbins.

SACRED SONGS No. 1.

450,000 sold in 18 months.

CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS

Clergymen and others declare the latter unequalled for the Congregation. Prayer Meeting and Sunday School. Price for either book, half bound, printed cover, $25 per 100; add 6 cents per copy, if ordered by mail.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

HARTSHORN
SHADE ROLLERS
are perfect in action. Over 40 years' experience guides the manufacture. Get the improved. No tacks required. To avoid imitations, notice script name of Stewart Hartshorn on label.

NAZO for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

Speaks for itself

—Pearline. That accounts for its quick and large success. A five cent package of Pearline (follow the directions) shows you the ease, comfort and quickness of washing with little or no rubbing. You won't see all the wear and tear that it saves, perhaps. But you will later when you find that the clothes last longer. 571

Millions NOW USE Pearline

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN. $4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book. Sent for 5c. postage. Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country; steady employment; commission or salary; $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

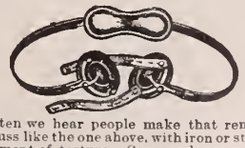
OLD GLORY SHOW YOUR COLORS. Finely Woven Silk Badge 5c. by mail; 3 for 10c.; 30c. doz.; 100 for $2. Greatseller for holidays and fairs. L. N. Cushman, 34 Oliver St., Boston, Mass.

WOMEN Make $2 to $10 a Day selling our Mackintosh Dress Skirts, new dress shields, etc. Cat. Free. Ladies' Supply Co., 3118 Forest Ave., Chicago

Almost Murdered Me.



How often we hear people make that remark who wear a truss like the one above, with iron or steel band, an instrument of torture. Come and see us and get relief with our IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS. IT CAN BE WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY, THEREBY EFFECTING A PERMANENT AND RADICAL CURE without regard to the age of the patient. Holds ruptnre under the hardest exercise. Call or write for free catalogue.

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.,
785 Broadway, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 years.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

Honolulu and Waikiki.*

STREET scenes in Honolulu are varied, beautiful and picturesque. The streets are narrow, and when it rains, muddy and disagreeable. In some places of the city it may rain every day for weeks at a time, while not two hundred yards away not a drop falls. Nuuanu Valley is noted for its continued showers. A rain-cloud can nearly always be seen hovering at the head of the valley against the mountain side. Nuuanu Avenue is often visited by showers, though the remainder of the city may be bathed in sunshine. The constant rain in this valley has given rise to a joke. It is said that a gentleman living in the upper end of the avenue, which takes its name from the valley, trying to direct a stranger to his house, said:

"Go up Nuuanu Avenue to the second shower, turn to the right, and the third house is mine."

Simultaneous rain and sunshine have given the Sandwich Islands the name of the "Land of Rainbows," certainly very appropriate, for there was scarcely a day when I was on the Islands that I did not see a rainbow, while the beautiful phenomenon of lunar rainbows is also common.

Honolulu has that air of quiet and repose after dark common to tropical towns. The traveler from northern latitudes is struck at the shortness of twilight in the tropics. When the sun sets in Honolulu it is dark; there is no after-glow; business houses are closed and a peaceful quiet pervades the place. The Sabbaths are observed with Puritanical strictness, appropriate to the land of missionaries.

There are no professional beggars in the city; at least I never saw or heard of any; the blind boy of Hilo, a familiar object, comes nearest to being one of any person I saw, yet he would scorn to be called a beggar. He carries a bag about his shoulders in which there are a number of bamboo whistles of various sizes, and it is said that he can imitate the whistle of any steamer that comes to the harbor. For the amusement he affords on the street corners, he expects the bystanders to contribute a nickel or a dime.

As structures, the residences of Honolulu are not usually imposing or grand, but the tropical trees, shrubs, and plants with which they are surrounded, give to them a charm that more than makes up for their lack of architectural beauty. The most beautiful tree that grows is the royal palm, which in the Sandwich Islands reaches its highest perfection. There are few lawns in the city in which the palm does not grow. The Hawaiian, especially of American ancestry, devotes particular care to his lawns and gardens.

The tall cactus often reaching the height of twenty or more feet, and the broad-leaved banana and flowers of every hue make the lawns look like fairy-land. Oranges, dates and figs grow in the gardens. The banyan, the tree-fern and a hundred other varieties are found in profusion. As a rule the American has adopted the Southern fashion of building houses. Instead of having one grand imposing structure, his home is a cluster of cottages. The great family parlor is one house. Next in order is the guest house, the cook house and spare cottages, all tasty and neat, snuggled like a hamlet in green bowers and blooming plants. After all, it is not the houses that attract the attention of the visitor, but the rubber-trees, the banyan, the bamboo, the litchee, the avocado, the mango, the brilliant and gaudy bougainvillea, the prolific plumeria, the night blooming cereus and bright and attractive crotons and oleanders. During the heat of the day the houses have a deserted look, for there are so many shady nooks and cool, inviting retreats in the garden that one does not care to stay indoors.

The most popular resort of the people of Oahu is the famous Waikiki (Wy-kee-kee), the accent being on the last syllable. Waikiki is the seaside and pleasure resort of the island. It is the Long Branch of Honolulu or Trouville. There are a number of private residences, picturesque-looking bungalows and cottages, but all airy, comfortable and close to the murmuring sea. A beautiful grove of towering cocoanut trees adds to the tropical charm of the place. The Southern portion of this grove used to be a favorite abode of the kings of Oahu before the conquest of the island, and after that event it belonged to the family of Kamehameha, the conqueror. Bath-houses that equal those in Long Branch are found here, and sea-bathing in January is as pleasant as in July. There is no clearer water, no finer beach, no smoother bottom in any of the many watering-places than are found at Waikiki. The sharks, sometimes dangerous in the South, are seldom or never seen within the reefs at this place. Everybody who goes to Honolulu must see Waikiki.

* Hawaii, Our New Possessions. An account of travels and adventure, with sketches of the scenery, customs and manners, mythology and history of Hawaii to the present, and an appendix containing the Treaty of Annexation to the United States. By John R. Musick. Illustrated. Pp. 524; Publishers, Funk & Wagnalls, New York.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Child Culture in the Home. A book for mothers. By Martha B. Mosher. Pp. 240; cloth; price, $1.00. Published by Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

Hawaii, Our New Possessions. An account of travels and adventures, with sketches of the scenery, customs and manners, mythology and history of Hawaii to the present, and an appendix containing the treaty of annexation to the United States. By John R. Musick. Illustrated. Pp. 524; publishers, Funk & Wagnalls, New York.

SUMMER OUTINGS.

Personally-Conducted Tours via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company announces the following Personally-Conducted Tours for the Summer and early Autumn of 1898:—

To the North (including Watkins Glen, Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, Au Sable Chasm, Lakes Champlain and George, Saratoga, and a daylight ride through the Highlands of the Hudson). July 26 and August 16. Rate, $100 for the round trip from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington, covering all expenses of a two-weeks' trip. Proportionate rates from other points.

To Yellowstone Park and the Trans-Mississippi Exposition on a special train of Pullman sleeping, compartment, observation, and dining cars, allowing eight days in "Wonderland" and two days at Omaha, September 1. Rate, $235 from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington; $230 from Pittsburg.

Two ten-day tours to Gettysburg, Luray Caverns, Natural Bridge, Virginia Hot Springs, Richmond and Washington, September 28 and October 19. Rate, $65 from New York, $63 from Philadelphia. Proportionate rates from other points.

For itineraries and further information apply to ticket agents, or address Geo. W. Boyd, Assistant General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

When the children's best clothes come fro the wash with the colors faded and streaked, an with worn spots showing in places where the should be no wear, then you may know that yo laundress is using something besides Ivory Soap.

You can save trouble and expense by furnish ing her with Ivory Soap, and insisting that she us it and nothing else. The price of one ruined garme will buy Ivory Soap sufficient for months.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Copyright, 1898, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati.

RUBIFOAM
For the Teeth.

RUBIFOAM
is deliciously flavored.

RUBIFOAM
cleanses quickly.

RUBIFOAM
can be imitated, but never equalled.

Popular price, 25c. Send 2c stamp for sample vial. Address E. W. Hoyt & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Baby's Mother

will be interested in our "Mother's Free Library," Vol. VI sent free on request. Some common-sense advice to baby's mamma.

Davidson Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.

Enclose n 2c. stamp and we will send n free sam[p]le of "Davidson's Health Nipple." 31-1

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Price to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color great ly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING CLEANING. CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO., 70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

If You Sufer

From Epilepsy, Epileptic Spel Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Falli ness, Vertigo, etc., have children tives that do so, or know peo are afflicted, My New D Epilepticide, will cure them, you are asked to do is to se Free Bottle, and try it. I a prepared to abide by the re has cured thousands where thing else has failed. Plea full name, AGE, and postoffice press address

WM. H. MAY, M.D., May Labo
94 Pine St., New York C

NOTE.—All sufferers are advised to send Gratuitous Expert Advice and a Fre this New Discovery, which is an Unfail any and all of the frightful forms of E allied nervous diseases. When writin please mention The Christian Herald.

BICYCLE BELL, '9

Our Great '98 Introduction Offer. A fine clear bell with our catalogue and other specialties (postage 6c. extra). 5 fo

ELECTRIC STRO rotary movement, bell metal Finest made, only 25c (postp 9 for 60c., $1.00 doz. ROBT. H. INGERSO Dept. No. C 67 Cortlandt Street, Ne

The Natural Body Brace advertised last week is a delightful, certain cure peculiar to women and girls. It makes work easy; gives good figure and light step Natural Body Brace Co., Salina, Kansas illustrated book.

STAMMERING Cured at LEAST thorough, educative Cure guaranteed. Address, RURAL HOME SCHOOL

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N.Y.

Architects, Builders of Auditoriums

We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y.

"Thoughtless folks have the hardest work, but quick witted people use SAPOLIO

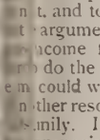
COVETOUSNESS.

An Evil Spirit Inciting to Selfishness and Cruelty. Ex. 20:17; Luke 12:13-21.

The old story of the pond, familiar to every school-boy, is a parable of life as we see it in all our cities. The man who had a crazy idea of some day wanting water and not being able to get it, Brooding upon it until all his energies were absorbed in the one endeavor to conduct every stream of water in his neighborhood to his own pond, which he widened and deepened that it might hold more and more, is a type of the lives of many. With more money than they can use, and with more than their children can inherit with benefit to themselves, men will toil and scheme to get more. The mischief of such a life might be confined to themselves and their families if it ended there; but, unhappily, this insatiable appetite is liable to develop into blindness, and then others suffer. The picture of a man making a small living in a kindred business, will suggest to the capitalist the idea of absorbing it. And he knows that in doing so, he is dooming the man to ruin. Even among Christian men the same spirit is often seen. Cases are common in which men have come to an employer and offered their services for remuneration lower than he is paying in the hope that he will discharge employees already in his service to make room for them. One particularly flagrant case occurred recently, and is worth quoting because it shows how the conscience of even a Christian may be warped, when the spirit of covetousness enters into him. A well-known clergyman, who poses as a friend of the working man, is said to have applied to a publisher for literary employment, and to have used as an inducement the argument that as he was receiving no income from his church, he could afford to do the work at a lower rate than one else could who was then doing it, who had no other resource for the maintenance of his family. It was nothing to him that he was proposing to deprive another of the means of subsistence. He coveted the employment and was careless of the results. Physicians and physicians have abandoned the idea that any one now suffers from possession of the devil, but it is difficult to imagine any course of conduct more like the principles we are accustomed to associate with Satan than the life of the covetous man. But so thoroughly has the spirit of competition permeated our social life in this day that every one has need to watch himself closely, lest this or that superlative selfishness gain insidious hold of him.

LIVING TEMPLES.

The Holy Sanctified by the Presence of Christ in the Soul. 1. Cor. 3:16-23.



Purity of the body is a prominent requirement, which appears in all the Apostle's epistles, with various arguments to prove that it is essential to the Christian life. There was need for the admonition in those days when even the prevailing religions of the heathen world were corrupt and sensual. Christianity did not come into the world as a mere theory or doctrine, but as a principle of life. It entered into the heart it would affect the whole outward conduct. It was singularly free from laws and formalities; it was emphatically liberty, but liberty was only possible to the true person, when the inner principle dominated is entire being. Then, and then only, it was safe to give him liberty. Paul's dread of sin was consistent, and as he knew, effectual. He conceived of Christ actually dwelling in the Christian, giving him strength to live a holy life, so that what he did was the act of Christ. He imagined the Christian, conscious of the weakness of the flesh, aware that even when the better principle within him resisted an edict, the physical nature might rebel and the man do the things that he would not.—despairing utterly of a higher and better life, receiving new power by contact with God through Christ. He saw him yielding to the divine influence that had come into his being until his nature was transformed and Christ living in him used his powers as instruments of righteousness. And the thing was proved to be true. There were men weak and faulty, who shook off their sins and abandoning their vices developed a spiritual strength that they had never shown before. It was easy to believe when people looked at their changed lives that they must have had help from above. On this fact Paul bases his argument for purity. The body becomes a sacred thing when Christ dwells in it. It is a living temple. How grievous then, must be the sins that defiled the temple. How could a man, in whom Christ dwelt, yield to the indulgence of the body by pampering its appetites or yielding to its cravings? It must be kept pure as befitted the dwelling-place of Christ. The thought ought to be sufficient now to keep a man from the sins of the flesh.

TRUE REPENTANCE.

The Terms on which God will Pardon the Sinner. Isa. 1:11-17.

How shall a sinner retrieve the past? On what terms will God consent to forgive the wrongdoer? No more important question can ever concern the human race? Politics, science, commerce are all insignificant compared with this, because the condition of men throughout all eternity is involved in it. In the early ages of the world, the idea of sacrifice was the solution propounded. We find traces of it to this day among savage peoples. In the most ancient books of the Bible, we see how the idea was systematized into minute and specified regulations. Every sin was graded, and could be atoned for by a specific offering; but even in those days there were far-seeing men who perceived as did Isaiah, Micah and others, that sacrifices could never of themselves cleanse the soul of sin. They were accepted as an evidence of contrition and an acknowledgment of guilt, but gradually they came to be regarded much as we regard the fines paid in our courts, and it was necessary for the prophets to continually remind the people that repentance was essential. They declared that to the repentant man forgiveness would be extended, though his sins were conspicuous as scarlet. But they were careful to indicate the nature of repentance and their definition applies to it in the New Testament times. It was not to be mere idle tears, empty lamentation, or penance. It must be the resolute putting away of sin. We act on the same principle in our social relations. If a man who has done us a wrong, comes to us deploring what he has done and professing his sorrow for his conduct, we doubt his sincerity if in a short time he repeats the act. We expect that if the regret is sincere it will lead to reformation. God makes the same requirement. The repentance that pleads for forgiveness while the sin for which forgiveness is sought is cherished in the heart, is no true repentance. True, there may be subsequent failure, for even when the spirit is willing, the flesh is weak, but there must be the honest intention to abandon the sin, the sincere purpose to resist temptation and the honest endeavor to avoid a repetition of the offence. When this exists, there is hope, because strength come from God to aid his struggling child and the Omnipotent hand is extended to help him.

An Almighty Father.

It is related of Countess Schimmelmann (who is shortly to visit this country) that, speaking recently at a meeting of the Seamen's Friend's Society, she stirred every heart as she spoke of work among seamen, referring to herself as "the sailors' mother." Seamen like to talk of their voyages, so she would tell them that since last year she had had two shipwrecks—but no lives lost. Her smallest vessel, wholly devoted to God's work, went to the bottom. Talking next day to some workers—in the presence of two sceptical men—she made bold to say that it was a hard blow, but God could raise it again. The sceptics laughed, so she added: "Well, I have a God who is Almighty. If he will it, he will have it up from the bottom of the sea—if he does not, I don't want it." Within a week the vessel was up, and she was on board again, finding nothing spoiled—drinking the coffee, eating the butter and herrings which had been at the bottom. From this new instance of God's tender care the Countess drew wonderful lessons for the comfort of Christian workers.

A Missionary's Lantern Slides.

In a letter from Asuncion, Paraguay, Rev. S. P. Craver, a mission worker of the Methodist Episcopal Board, writes:

"We encounter one difficulty here in tract distribution—the prevalent ignorance of the people, the vast majority of the adult population being unable to read. In view of this situation, I have recently begun to make frequent use of a sciopticon, presenting a series of views on the "Life of Christ." "Through the eye to the heart" is certainly a valuable suggestion for this work. The people listen with attention and interest. Almost every view affords an opportunity, in connection with the explanation, to preach a little sermon, make an exhortation, correct an error, or make an application of truth to the conscience. My conviction is that no part of my work in this country, outside of the capital, has had a better influence than the series of illustrated lectures that I have given on the life of our Redeemer. One of the problems in mission work in Roman Catholic countries is to get the ear of the people. Here, at least, the lantern slide is a valuable adjunct to the pulpit."

War Testaments for the Army.

Contributions for supplying vest-pocket War Testaments to the troops in camp and at the front have been received as follows:

Prev. acknowl'd .	$251 10	Munk, Mrs J A	50
Aborn, Arthur	50	Phetteplace, M R	1 00
Aborn, Hattie E	50	Rhodes, Wm	1 00
Baker, Mrs Annie	20	Russell, Mrs L	25
Barstow, A F	1 00	Stafford, L	1 00
Beazell, Mrs E W	50	Stillman, Mr & Mrs C	2 00
Briggs, Mary	50	Switzer, Almira E	1 00
Brown, L A	1 00	Warner, M & Mrs C	5 00
Carlton, A	2 00	Lillian, Pittston	2 00
Clark, Mrs J C	3 00	M. Metuchen	1 00
Covert, C W	1 00	Mrs I A C, E Norwalk	25
Gaddis, Mary	1 00	Friend CSF, Ann Arbor	2 00
Gilbert, Rose L	50	Friend, Lanark	3 00
Hart, Eda I	2 00	Friend, Ipswich	1 00
Holmes, Mrs M V B.	2 00	Friend, Kinzua	3 00
Hughes, Mrs Ellen	1 00	I H N, Bean	1 00
Ireland, Lucie & Berrie	1 00	I J N, Newport	1 00
Keil, Henry	1 65	Suhr, Santa Barbara	1 00
Kieffer, Stephen E	10 00	Suhr, Xenia	25
Magill, Mrs Mary	1 00	Dunbarton Praying B	1 50
Mayer, Lulu	2 00	In Memoriam I H N Middleboro	1 00
Millhiser, Mother	1 00	C E Soc 2d, Presby Ch Carlisle	2 00
Miller, A Van H	1 00	Total	$319.95
Miller, Mrs Lottie	75
Milnor, Mrs	2 00

All contributions for this purpose will be acknowledged in these columns.

Free Cure for Kidneys and Bladder.

We advise our readers who suffer from Kidney and Bladder disorders, weak back or Rheumatism, to try the new Botanic Discovery, Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava shrub. Convincing proof of the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis is given by Rev. A. C. Darling, Constantia, N. Y.; Hon. R. C. Wood, Lowell, Ind.; Mrs. L. D. Fegely, Lancaster, Ills., and others cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, after many years' suffering. The Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 409 Fourth Avenue, New York, to prove its great value, and for introduction, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. Alkavis is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

Dyspepsia. Cause and effect:
"Eat in haste and suffer at leisure."
Dyspepsia. Caution and cure: Take care of your diet and take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Fruit Stains Cleaned

"Fruit stains vanish from linen if the stained spot is spread over a bowl and through it is poured a cup of boiling water made milky with Fairy Soap."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 15x22 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

The Franklin Mills..... Fine Flour of the Entire Wheat.

Superior to Graham Flour or Wheat Meal.

It does not contain the outer husk of the wheat kernel, or coarse flakes of bran.

The Franklin Mills Fine Flour of the Entire Wheat is EASY of DIGESTION.

S. N. Brayton, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I have found Franklin Mills Entire Wheat Flour superior to Graham, and much better adapted to the wants of the system. The bread is light and sweet, and I can recommend it as superior to any flour we have ever used."

If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name and your order—we will see that you are supplied.
See that the Flour delivered bears our label; avoid substitutes. Send for Booklet.
The genuine made only by the
Franklin Mills Co., Lockport, N. Y.

A Woman's Wish

for dishes that can be thrown away after every meal, to avoid the tiresome task of dish-washing, cannot be granted. Would she have the next best thing? Let her wash the dishes—so easily it's almost a pleasure—with

GOLD DUST Washing Powder.

It cuts the grease, and a good rinsing will leave the dishes delightfully clean.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia.

BLINDNESS PREVENTED CATARACTS ABSORBED

AVOID AN OPERATION SANITARIUM
ST. CLAIR.
496 La Salle Ave.
CHICAGO ILL.
SEND FOR PAMPHLET

$18 per week and expenses to several good parties to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references.
R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

LOOSE BOTTOMS IMPROVED PERFECTION TINS

AGENTS WANTED!
We furnish samples free to agents. F. S. Fross Lubec, Me., sold $132.79, retail in 6 days. Write for Catalog new goods, rapid sellers.
Richardson Mfg. Co. 9th St., Bath, N. Y.

ENAMELINE

THE MODERN STOVE POLISH

Quick Shine
Little Labor
No Dust
No Odor

NO OTHER COMPARES WITH IT. IT'S THE BEST.

Tartarlithine in Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., writes: "Your Tartarlithine has proved a wonderful weapon for rheumatism. I have used a very great quantity of it in the last three or four months and I have never seen anything like it. I had one case who had tried all of the alkaline lithiates, and everything else. He has had rheumatism all his life, and nothing completely stopped all the manifestations of the disease like Tartarlithine, which did completely, with one bottle.

I have another old man, who travels much on the road peddling, who has been lame with rheumatism for five years, and one bottle cured all lameness, and he says he has not felt as well in five years as now. These are only the two worst cases of many that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St., N. Y.,
SOLE AGENTS FOR
The Tartarlithine Co.

WHEEL BUILT TO ORDER, $25.

Up-to-date, High Grade, Worth $50

We are the largest makers and jobbers of High Grade Bicycle Parts in the U.S. We supply the largest factories. To make a universal demand for our parts we will sell one complete set in each town at our wholesale prices to factories and build you a latest '98 model in 2 days, just as you want it; over 60 options! You get a $50 wheel for $25; no delay; send for full particulars. ROBT. H. INGERSOLL & BRO. Dept. No. 61 163 Washington St., N.Y. City.

7000 BICYCLES

carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval with-out a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of all '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money. E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

1898 High Grade BICYCLES

for Men, Women, Girls & Boys. Complete line. All brand new models.
$75 'Oakwood' for $32.50
$60 'Arlington' " $21.50
No Money In Advance. Others at $15, $17 and $20
WRITE TODAY for SPECIAL OFFER. Juveniles $7.00 to $12.50
Ship anywhere C.O.D. with privilege to examine. Buy direct from manufacturers, save agents & dealers profits. Large Illus. Catalogue Free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. VanBuren Street, B. 15, Chicago, Ills.

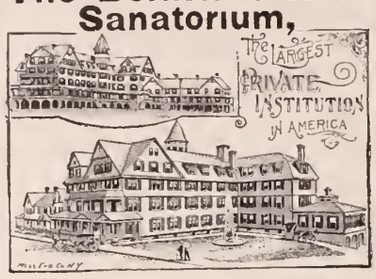
1898 Bicycles Down to $5.00.

New Ivy Model Ladies' and Gent's Bicycles are now being sold on easy conditions as low as $5.00; others outright at $9.95 an I high-grade at $19.95 and $22.50 to be paid for after received. If you will cut this out and send to SEARS, ROEBUCK & Co., Chicago, they will send you their 1898 Bicycle Catalogue and full particulars.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and free on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No "rush," no job lots. Send for cats. and special offer. E. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES no experience needed; goods on permanent self seller. PRAIRIE MFG. CO. P.O. Box V Cincinnati O.

The Berkshire Hills Sanatorium,



An Institution for the Scientific Treatment of Cancer

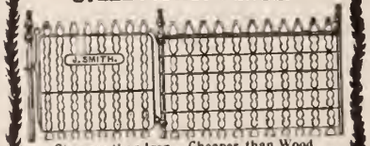
Tumors, and all forms of Malignant Growths
WITHOUT THE USE OF THE KNIFE

We have never failed to effect a permanent cure where we have had a reasonable opportunity.
Books and circulars giving description of Sanatorium, Treatment, Terms, and References, free.
DRS. W. E. BROWN & SON, North Adams, Mass.

A Special Offer

Send $60 and we will deliver, carriage paid, a
Wellington Typewriter No. 2
If it does not prove satisfactory after ten days' trial, we will refund the money. The WELLINGTON is guaranteed equal to any $100 typewriter. It possesses all the advantages of the high-priced instruments, and none of their defects.
Our Catalogue tells all about it. Send for it.
The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburg, N. Y.

HARTMAN STEEL PICKET FENCE.



Stronger than Iron. Cheaper than Wood.
Made of best steel wire and woven into a handsome fence, which when constructed with our ornamental steel posts adds greatly to the beauty of the lawn or cemetery lot.
THE IDEAL FENCE
for enclosing Public Grounds, Church Yards, Court Yards, School Grounds, etc. Catalogue and circulars sent FREE.
HARTMAN MFG. CO., Elwood City, Pa. or 277 Broadway, New York.

The Middle Man's Money

Is yours when you buy from us. We sell only direct to the farmer and pay the Freight. That saves you all the middle man's profit, that makes the Advance Fence CHEAPER THAN ANY HAND MADE FENCE IN EXISTENCE. Beats the hand machine to death. Then it is a hundred times a better fence. Unties way down. Any height you want up to 57 inches. Nothing skimped—everything the best. Write for circulars and extra special discount.
ADVANCE FENCE CO., 37 Old St., Peoria, Ill.

A Good Wagon

begins with good wheels. Unless the wheels are good the wagon is a failure. IF YOU BUY THE ELECTRIC STEEL WHEEL
made to fit any wagon—your wagon will always have good wheels. Can't dry out or rot. No loose tires. Any height, any width tire. Catalog free.
ELECTRIC WHEEL CO.
Box 186 QUINCY, ILL.

$3 a Day Sure

Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure. We furnish the work and teach you free, you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully; remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once.
ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138 DETROIT, MICH.

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to Family. The Larkin idea fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free sample Soap if mention this magazine.
The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

An Exceptional Opportunity

To Secure a Beautiful and Useful Book at a Bargain.

The CHURCH ...at HOME

By... Bishop John H. Vincent, D.D., LL.D.,

Is the title of a magnificent manual for family worship and home worship, and a book that should be in every Christian home in the land. Those who are fortunate enough to secure a copy of this book will find it a delightful companion. It contains 480 pages,

210 ILLUSTRATIONS,

TWO BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES, THE LORD'S PRAYER and THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

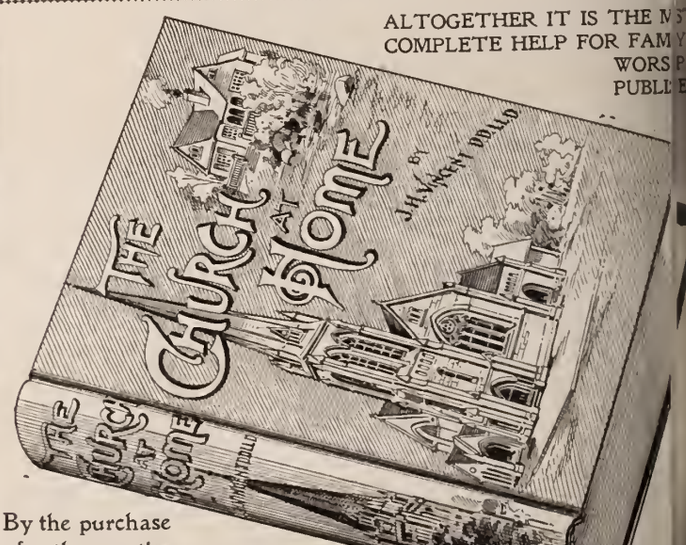
LESSON, HYMN and PRAYER FOR EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, constituting a complete family worship for the whole year.

READINGS and MEDITATIONS for SPECIAL OCCASIONS NEW YEAR'S DAY, GOOD FRIDAY, EASTER, WHIT SUNDAY, INDEPENDENCE DAY, THANKSGIVING DAY, CHRISTMAS DAY, AND DAYS OF AFFLICTION.

Memory Texts for Every Day in the Year,
The Church Steps,
Home Lessons,
Special Collects,
Bible Biography.

Picture Lessons for Children,
Old and New Tunes,
Wisdom in Proverbs,
Blank Pages for Records and Autographs.

ALTOGETHER IT IS THE MOST COMPLETE HELP FOR FAMILY WORSHIP PUBLISHED.



By the purchase of the entire stock from the original publishers, we are enabled to offer the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" ONLY a remarkable bargain, provided stock is not exhausted when your order is received, as follows:

Cloth, Illuminated Cover, former price $4.00. Special Price, $1.50

ONLY CLOTH BINDING LEFT ALL OTHER STYLES SOLD OUT.

Remember this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 4 pounds, size when closed 8½ x 10½ inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we have only sufficient stock to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving your nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIED & CO., Bible House, New York City

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

FO: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 30.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

NEW YORK, JULY 27, 1898.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

The Gospel in the Navy

The Corps of Naval Chaplains and their Faithful Labors on our American Warships—The Spiritual Side of Naval Life.

NO department of Christian effort is, perhaps, so little known and appreciated as that a chaplain fills on board a man-of-war. For our public armed vessels, and for our different naval stations the law provides that there shall be twenty-four chaplains. A chaplain of the navy must not be less than twenty-one nor more than thirty-five years of age at the time of his appointment. He must be a regularly ordained minister of good standing, and must come with documentary declarations from his educators and from authorities of his church, attesting his fitness for the office of chaplain. Like all other officers of the navy, he is appointed and commissioned by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. As in the case of all other staff officers, he holds relative rank with the line, in due time rising to that of captain: the highest relative rank he can hold.

His pay is unaffected by his rank. His salary is variable like all naval salaries. On waiting orders, the first five years, it is $1,600, after that $1,900: on other duty, or shore pay it is $2,000, the first five years.

(Continued on page 1005).

REV. ALTER G. ISAACS, CHAPLAIN U. S. NAVY.

CHAPLAIN McALLISTER HOLDING SERVICE ON THE CRUISER "BROOKLYN."

REV. W. O. HOLWAY, D.D., SENIOR CHAPLAIN OF THE NAVY.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Lewis S. M., Canton Centre, Conn. 1. How many soldiers (Union soldiers) were buried during the Civil War in what are now called National Cemeteries? 2. Where did Washington take leave of his army?

1. The total burials in the National Cemeteries are 322,831, of whom 9,438 are Confederates. 2. At Fraunce's Tavern, on Broad Street, New York, near Whitehall Ferry.

T. H., Madison, Wis. 1. Is not a man excluded from heaven who has defrauded another, unless he has paid principal and interest? 2. Is the marriage of a deceased wife's sister forbidden in the Bible? 3. Is it wrong for people now to eat the flesh of swine and other animals which in the Old Testament are called unclean.

1. It is the duty of a man who has defrauded another to pay him principal and interest. It may be, however, that although he may be sincerely desirous of doing so, he cannot. We do not suppose that in such a case he would be excluded from heaven. The question is one of duty and it is not for us to discuss the penalty. God in his mercy will do justly and the matter should be left to him. 2. We know of no passage forbidding such marriage. There is one applying to polygamous society forbidding a man to marry his wife's sister while his wife is alive. He might marry another woman but not her sister (see Levit. 18:18.) 3. No. The Apostles at their council in Jerusalem (Acts 15:19, 20) decided that there was no need for Gentile Christians to observe the Jewish laws.

L. M. C. I forward to your care one hundred and fifty flannel bands for our soldiers. May God bless and guide you in all your labors of love for Him. Surely the "Inasmuch" from the dear Master's lips will be yours.

These have been sent to Jacksonville, Fla., for distribution among the soldiers going to the front. It is a thoughtful gift and will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Alma P. N., Bucaramanga, Colombia, S. A., writes:

If I am rightly informed, there has been comparatively little done to give the Gospel, in its purity to the Cubans. And Spain has had few evangelical missionaries. The Cubans are said to be indifferent to even their own faith, but I know that the Spaniards are not. A dear friend of mine was converted while living in Spain, through the labors of English missionaries, and from her I have learned of the glorious results following the labors of a few humble workers in the Lord's vineyard in that country. Your readers have responded nobly to your every appeal in favor of suffering, starving humanity, and they are not neglecting to aid in giving the bread of life to the heathen, but let them work with the same enthusiasm and haste to satisfy starving souls, as they have in relieving starving bodies, and the time will soon come when war shall cease on the whole face of the earth. Cuba freed from Spain will not mean Cuba freed from sin, and there will be a gigantic work to do for her salvation from the powers of the evil one. Let the good work go on.

J. R., Goatham, Va. What is the origin of the sculriguet Jack Ketch?

The manor of Tyburn, the famous English place of execution, once belonged to a man named Richard Jacquett. From this fact, hangmen somehow came to be called Jacquett, and then Jack Ketch, the application of the term to any "bogey-boo" followed in nursery usage.

R., Jacksonville, Fla. Was Wordsworth not the poet who called "The Child of Nature"?

We believe the name was bestowed on Oliver Goldsmith by Dr. Sharp, and that it was never applied to Wordsworth, who is, however, considered by many a true poet of nature.

Thomas T., Denver, Colo. What and where is the Spanish Main?

It is the coral bank of islands forming the northern and eastern boundaries of the Caribbean Sea, beginning at Mosquito, near the isthmus, and including Jamaica, Santo Domingo, the Leeward and Windward Islands, to the coast of Venezuela. But not the sea, as many suppose, but the bank of islands, which is the Main, the word being derived from the Spanish manco (Buckle.)

J. O., Claremont, Mo. Will you tell me of what kind of thorns the crown was made that our Saviour wore?

Many treatises have been written by learned men on the subject, and opinions differ. We believe, however, that the larger number of authorities agree that the thorn used was the Arabian nubk, of which Hasselquist says in his Travels: "It was suitable for the purpose, as it has many small sharp spines adapted to give pain, and its flexible pliant branches might easily be plaited in the form of a crown. It also resembles the rich dark green of the ivy-wreath, which would give additional pungency to its ironical purpose."

R. L. D., Waterbury, Conn. Who invented the electric railway?

Thomas Davenport, a Green mountain village blacksmith. Between 1835-41, he built over one hundred operative electic motors, hardly any two alike, and many of which were for printing press work. December, 1833, he exhibited in Boston, the model of an electric locomotive and circular railway. Some of his motors, built in 1837-38, were excellent, and in essential features were abreast with those of to-day. Davenport took his invention across the Atlantic and showed it to Faraday, by putting a broom in front of the fly-wheel, stopped its motion, and thereupon declared the invention, in which he had exhibited much interest, to be valueless, and declined to have anything to do with it. Davenport, who had been offered a good price for his invention before this, had to return to America at his own cost. He reaped little profit, in money or fame, for his labor and genius. Stephen D. Field, who followed him, did not fare much better.

Inquirer, Covington, Ky. How did the phrase "Davy Jones Locker" originate among sailors, as applied to the bottom of the sea?

One explanation given by students of such matters is that the phrase has reference to Jonah, the prophet, who was thrown into the sea. "Duffy" is sailor-talk for ghost or spirit and "locker" is a seaman's term for any place of safe-keeping; hence the phrase "Gone to Davy (or Duffy) Jones' locker," simply means that the man is dead.

W. V. B., Ardmore, I. T. 1. Is the summer climate of Cuba intensely hot? 2. Do the sea breezes temper the heat sufficiently to make it healthy for Americans and a desirable place for residence the year round? 3. In your opinion, when the war is ended, what will be the leading prosperous industries of the island. 4. Are the U. S. cereals grown in Cuba? 5. What minerals do the mountains yield? 6. Is it volcanic?

1. Usually over 100 on the lowlands along the coast. The average temperature of Havana during July and August is 82°; of Santiago 85.4°. On the uplands of the interior the climate is cooler. 2. Many Americans who have lived in Cuba and many writers say yes. The cool coast breezes beginning about noonday do much to temper the heat of the coast cities. 3. Sugar, tobacco, coffee, cotton and fruit. 4. Rice is easily cultivated and maize is native to the soil. 5. Gold, silver, copper, iron, asphaltum, petroleum, gypsum, slate, jasper, marble. The Sierra Cobre (copper mountains) are very rich in this metal, and Santiago is the centre of a once flourishing mining and smelting industry. 6. It is remarkably free from volcanic disturbances, and earthquakes are comparatively slight.

Archibald, Baltimore, Md. How did England come to be called "Merrie England?" The adjective hardly seems to fit British stolidity.

Anciently the word was "mere," probably from an Anglo Saxon adjective meaning excellent, famous, renowned. Through poetical usage, it came to mean agreeable, as well as excellent, and then by natural gradation, it bore the interpretation, gay.

Jesse O'D., Troy, N. Y. How did the harp come to be chosen as the arms of Ireland? I have searched for the story of this selection in the histories, but failed to find it.

The story is not historical, and is only preserved by tradition, which declares that one of the early kings of Ireland, who was named David, took for his royal arms the harp of Israel's sweet singer. Henry VIII was the first British ruler to recognize the harp positive as the Irish device.

Miss Emma B. S., Germantown, Pa. I contribute as far as I can to the supply of War Testaments and Hymnals and other needs of our troops. We are thankful for General Toral's peaceful surrender of Santiago de Cuba. It is a marvel in warfare. With this humanitarian success, how magnificent it would be for America to withdraw her vessels and army, and Spain to do likewise. . . . Let us send Blanco's army back to Spain, and we rid ourselves of a great burden and avoid contagious diseases. As Christians it would be magnanimous and worthy of the new century—"Peace on earth and good-will among men." We can afford to be considerate and make concessions.

Maisie and Robb, Boston, Mass. We have a number of old copies and of bound volumes of first-class children's magazines, also several standard story book, which we would like to give to some institution for children. Will you kindly mention one that would appreciate the gift?

Housemother Collins and her assistants at our Children's Home have to entertain about 130 children every day, and we are sure any gift of good literature for children will be appreciated if sent prepaid to her at THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y.

A. B. C., Warren, Pa. Is the correct official name of the Scandinavian Peninsula "Norway and Sweden" or "Sweden and Norway"? Why?

Sweden and Norway, in 1814, by the peace of Kiel, Norway was transferred from Denmark to Sweden, and in the same year accepted Charles XIII the Swedish monarch, as king. Norway has, however, its own flag, language and legislative body; the power of the king is not so great as in Sweden, and in most respects, it is practically a separate government.

J. B. McN., Reading, Pa. 1. The War Testaments will be supplied at the rate of ten for $1. We can send to you direct or we could forward them to the care of any chaplain, evangelist, Y. M. C. A. worker, or local pastor you may name, who will undertake to give them to the troops who have been ordered to the front. We are now sending forward large consignments for distribution among departing soldiers, the cost of this work being defrayed by contributions sent to us by friends in different States who are interested in the spiritual welfare of the troops. For a full description of the War Testament see last week's CHRISTIAN HERALD. It contains over 500 pages in clear type with a fine Hymn supplement and is of a size to fit easily into the pocket of a soldier's tunic. Where churches and religious societies can be supplied direct from this office, at the rate of $1 for $1, which is simply the cost of production and expressage.

S. E. White, Sand Rock, Ala. Let me say to friends who wrote for pictures of our first Sunday School and Mission Band, that we are now prepared to send the pictures. We have pictures of our day school, representing plenty of our little pupils. This school was in the skeleton of a building on the very top of the mountain range, and badly careened by the wind. We got it propped up and nailed some boards across a loft. Here we have taught for two years, have had over two hundred in school. We have taught some 125 to read and write, have distributed two thousand, or more, CHRISTIAN HERALD over one thousand other papers, all back numbers but new to us and our scholars.

Some of our readers may wish to help this struggling mountain Sunday school.

Mother, Plainfield, N. J. Yes. We have by no means forgotten the needs of the little ones in the Lee Orphanage in Havana, which was established by the gifts of CHRISTIAN HERALD readers, your own included. During the past month we have twice endeavored to send money or further supplies, but it has not been possible. No banker in New York would undertake to forward money to the Orphanage in the present condition of affairs in Havana. It could not be gotten through, they declared. We sent last week in sending a remittance to the Director of the photograph age.

Richard M., Catskill, N. Y. Please tell me how three gilt balls came to be used as a pawnbroker's sign?

Three gold balls were emblem of the Lombard family, first great money-lenders of Britain, and hence come the pawn-broker's device.

Friend, Ashtabula, O. Received January 1, 1901.

Mrs. Sue H. J., Pueblo, O. I never saw the verses you enclose.

Hattie M., Williamsburg. Write to Librarian, Astor, New York.

Subscriber, Oak, Neb. Pronounce Ser-vay-rah, Ka-mah-rah, Ka-mah-rays.

R. E. B., Wye Mills, Md. Write to Rev. Mr. De Cova, Talbot, for full information.

Reader, Springfield, Mo. 1. Negro, French, Spanish and West Indian. 2. No, it is on the rocky coast.

L. V. Z. To explain this would require too much space. Write to the National Tribune, Washington, D. C.

Charles O., North Adams. Mr. Sampson is really only acting Rear-Admiral at present time, and has been so since the formation of the Atlantic fleet.

Andrew A. A., Niagara Falls, N. Y. There are many trade schools in New York and the information is probably reliable. Why not send their printed circular for full information.

W. Z., Cicero, O. What you ask would involve an expenditure of time and labor which is unnecessary. You will find all the information in a book, entitled, Columbia's War for Liberty, an illustrated work on the present and former war with Spain, published by Bromfield & Co., Broadway, New York, price, $1.

Subscriber, Sweetsburg, Que., Can. The wax cylinders are carefully handled, the graphophone would probably be the best, as you could use your own records. The other one uses metal cylinders, but hard rubber discs, which are practically indestructible, but can make no impression. A letter addressed to either company, New York, will find them.

Myrtle L. S., Brookline, N. H. Enclosed find money order for $1.70 to be devoted to Christian work in the Army and Navy. It is given by a Sunday School class of girls, aged eleven years. As their early training in benevolence has been sadly neglected, I am anxious to help them love to give for all good purposes, as every one loved to give their mites for this noble cause. I hope you will give some acknowledgment of this through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of the receipt of their small offering for the soldiers.

G. B., New York City. I saw your answer to question asked by Jas. A. M., Coffeeville, Miss. "When and where was the first Methodist Episcopal Church established in America." You quoted one organized 1784 in Baltimore. There was one much older than that. Old St. George's, Philadelphia, Pa., is situated on Fourth street below Vine. On the 18th November to the present we celebrated the church's one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary, and in the coming November will celebrate the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary. This church was Dutch prior to the Revolutionary War. After the few Methodist Episcopal people began worshipping there, and have done so ever since.

VENICE AND ITS PALACES.

The photograph affords a view of several of the noble palaces, for which Venice is famed. Many of these belong to a period of architecture which has afforded some of the finest models the world has ever known. The canal Della Dogana (shown in the illustration) is lined with splendid edifices, the former homes of the princes and doges of the imperial "City of the Sea."

OUR HAPPY WAIFS AT MONT-LAWN.

The ...yful Journey—"Welcome Home"—Sad Lives Brightened—Singing by the Way—Some Odd Child Characters.

WE would be glad if all the friends of our tenement children could take the journey with them up the Hudson and the wagonette ride to Mont-Lawn, and hear all their quaint sayings and expressions of delight. A journey to Europe no...o much to a well-to-do adult. Some th...children are almost dumb with joy ...d ...azement, while others are very vo...le. "My!" said one little girl after ...di... at Nyack, "but that was a long ...te." Her knowledge of what a river w...evidently limited to the definition ...he geography, and she did not connect ...t th the real thing.

W... their little bags, containing all ...ir ...ossessions—often not worth the ...arry...g—they sit close to the railing of ...e ...mer and look out with wondering ...es ...the beautiful new world of green ...s ...d trees unfolding before them, and ...eir ...O-ohs!" and "A-ahs!" and quaint ...se...tions are very funny indeed—and ...me...es very pathetic, as showing their ...orice of nature's every-day marvels. ...lo... along in the wagonette, at a cer...n ...rt of the road you will be sure to ...r storm of "Ohs!" and "Ahs!" and ...l puzzled to know what is the mat...: ...t the caretaker understands; she ...ks...ack laughing and says: "Oh, it's the ...asi... and the black-eyed Susans, is it?" ...pu...o are used to daisies and black-eyed ...sa had never thought they could bring ...u such rapture as that. A barn-door ...op... a cow is looking out, and one ...tle ...d exclaims, "O-oh! what a grate ... cat!" "It's no cat," says his sis...r, ...ignant at this betrayal of ignorance ...he ...nt to Mont-Lawn last summer), ...s ...ow."

Dur...g the ride, when not "Oh-ing!" ...h-ing!" the children—so happy, ...at ...ey can't contain themselves ...re...nging. Perhaps they start ...th ...reet-ballads. The caretaker ...oes ...t reprove, but she begins to ...um America," or a pretty Gos...el h...n until she strikes something ...at ...veral of the children know; ...d ...haps the wagonette rolls up ...th Home while the hillsides are ...ho...g the words:

I ...so glad that Jesus loves me!
Jes...loves me, Jesus loves me!
I ...so glad that Jesus loves me!
Jes...loves even me!

So... of the children who have ...en the Home for the past sev...l ...mmers, have with the assist...ce ...f their teachers composed a ...rt... little class song, which goes ...s ...y:

...ail up the bonnie blue Hudson,
As ...ppy as happy could be;
...ail up the bonnie blue Hudson,
An...hought of the good times for me

...re...heers for the Home on the Hud...on!
Th... cheers for the House on the ...ill!
...are...heers for the friends who have ...nt us;
We...ve with a hearty good-will!

CHORUS.

...ng...ack, bring back, bring back those ...od times to me, to me,
...ng...ack, bring back, bring back those ...od times to me.

Ar... a call like this:

Here we are, here we are,
C. H., C. H., ha! ha! ha!

Th... reach the Home about sup-...r-t...e, and the multitude of little ...ks...tting at the long tables under ...nt, ring to their feet, clap their hands ...d ...out a welcome, some of them tak...g ...the call, "Here we are," etc., until ...e ...sides ring with happy echoes. It ...ho... to them, a home in which cruel ...ow and harsh words are things un...now for the Good Shepherd who car...ed ...e lambs in his arms, who said, "Suf...r ...tle children to come unto me," and ...ho ...essed them, is Ruler and King. ...he ...me which make the caretakers' ...ear...ache, is when the ten days are up, ...nd ...me little children, whose homes are ...ery ...ark, indeed, cry and beg to stay. ...et ...e...takers have comfort in knowing ...at any go with new principles im...lan...in their lives, and that the lessons ...ey ...ve learned of love and gentleness, ...he ...e songs they have been trained to sing, until Gospel music bubbles from their lips, the Golden Texts they have said over and over, until precious Bible words are engraved on their hearts and minds, may redeem the very atmosphere of the tenement houses into which our children return often, as unconscious but effective missionaries.

Among the the children now at Mont-Lawn, is Jennie P——, a nine-year-old girl, whose father is in the hospital and whose mother is a drunkard. This is her first season there. She has never in all her life before spent one day in a pure and loving home. Of course, she does not want to leave Mont-Lawn; and such cases as this make us wish the Home was a permanent institution. Jennie has received since her arrival, the first letter of her life. It is from her Sunday School teacher, the good missionary who brought her to us; and who is carrying Jennie before the Lord in arms of prayer. Many cases like Jennie's come to Mont-Lawn; many little children, crippled and humpbacked through neglect and cruelty, have found blessed shelter and friendship there.

In the centre of our picture is "Rockie," who came to the Home on one of our hottest days, attired in a gorgeous red flannel blouse, twice too big for him, a large red flannel cap, and his big brother's trousers. Fortunately a kind friend had sent us a little suit, which just fitted "Rockie," and, in which, as our readers will see, he is quite a pretty little boy. On "Rockie's" right stands Piesmo Devalli, a poor little Italian hunchback, with beautiful dark eyes, which turn to you in smiling thankfulness for every look or word. He is a hunchback, because he fell downstairs when a baby. To Devalli's right is Jimmie Tassi, a little crippled lad, whose mother has six children beside Jimmie, the oldest only twelve. Jimmie's foot got burned when he was a baby, and when he walks he drags a useless leg along. Yet Jimmie is always smiling, and in the dormitory made himself useful to his caretaker by his gentle influence and winning ways. The blessing of this outing to these maimed lads is beyond computation. We know our readers will take pleasure in the neat and orderly appearance of this group of tenement children, whom their kindness has helped to clothe, feed, shelter and surround with Christian influences. The children are very grateful for their good clothes and other blessings, and they are taught to remember their benefactors in their prayers.

A gift of little undergarments, made of flour-sacks, were quite as useful as if fashioned of "store cloth." Jean overalls for boys are acceptable. Any summer garments which children have outgrown will be appreciated, if sent to Housemother Collins, CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y. Three dollars gives one child a ten days' outing; $9 gives this to three; $12 makes four happy; only $1 helps some child to an outing.

"PLEASE, MAY I GO?"

CARE-TAKERS AND CHILDREN UNDER THE TREES AT MONT-LAWN.

The following contributions in aid of our work at Mont-Lawn have been received:

Prev. ack'd	$1174 20
Jennie P Smith	3 00
Friend, Meyerhoeffer's store	1 00
S, Scranton	5 00
Mrs A Wood	50
B Bradford	3 00
M H Stine	1 50
In the Master's name, Rahway	2 00
Mrs S D Dwyer	9 00
H A Simpson	6 00
Friend, Terherne	2 00
Bertha Schmutz	18 00
Lizzie Stewart	4 00
M Clute	1 00
Emma Miller	1 00
John McNab	1 00
One who is interested, Rockland	3 00
G R K & E W K, Lisbon	2 00
J Chapman	5 00
Jas K Reisch	3 00
E Anderson	5 00
Subr, Harrisville	3 00
N P Christensen	2 00
M W Lloyd	6 00
Two Friends, Grizzley Bluffs	10 00
Friend, Middleboro	2 00
Mr & Mrs W A Gillespie	3 40
F A Summers	3 00
N M Pomeroy	3 00
R J Quale	3 00
Saml Middleton	3 00
L M, Montrose	1 00
Mrs J A Hulskauper	5 00
L	3 00
Alice M Pollitt	6 00
I H N, San Antonio	6 00
Mrs M Williams	1 00
E W P, Newark	3 00
Friend, Bath	2 00
I H N, Yonkers	3 00
Mrs J B S, Sharon	3 00
Eliza O.t	1 00
Mrs R Ribbans	25
Willis Nodine	8 75
Florence Fisher	1 00
W R B, Norway	50
——, Marengo	45
Mrs S Gale	4 00
T R Elehor	50
N E Austin	1 00
Wm Woodside	3 00
Mrs Woodside	3 00
Mrs M J Pease	3 00
D A R, N Y	1 00
——, Alewive	7 00
H E Tifft	6 00
Mrs S Haning	5 00
Miss F P Jones	1 00
H C, La Porte	1 00
Mrs Cynthia I Smith	3 00
Old Subr	1 00
B B, Bklyn	3 00
Rev H Graves	3 00
R E Millman	3 00
Mrs E C Curtis	1 00
Ladie' Aid Soc	2 00
Miss B M	3 00
For Christ, Mass	5 00
Mrs G B Robinson	50
G F Brown	3 10
——, Lodi	4 70
Ruth M Hermon	6 00
A C Postlethwaite	3 00
C P Andrews	5 00
P T N, Pittsburg	5 00
C J & mother, Leivasy	50
J W J & wife, Leivasy	50
Mrs M Platt	6 00
Kate H Clark	1 00
Annie McAllister	1 00
I H N from C A S, Phila	10 00
H F Clark	3 00
I H N, Schenectady	10 00
J E Chadwick	2 00
Mrs L E Anthony	3 00
Miss Grace Kelly	94
Union S S, Parnall	3 00
Clara E Hahn, Eliott City	1 00
E E Andrews	1 00
Mrs Annie Stephenson	3 00
Henrietta E Weir	3 00
Mrs L M Potts	3 00
Mrs J D B	1 00
A R G Edwards	1 00
Mrs H F Date-man	1 00
Mrs E M Fonda	1 00
Miss A Preston	3 00
Mrs B A Hegeman	15 00
Mrs G D Blewett	9 00
Abbion Potts	3 00
C H B, Kenesaw	3 00
Miss H E Hunt	3 00
——, Sweetsburg	5 00
Mr & Mrs C Warner	3 00
I H N, Westfield	2 00
In-as-much, Madison	3 00
Lord's Tenth, J H A, E Rochester	3 00
D Gladstone	6 00
Mrs E K S, Frenchi'n	1 00
Mrs B F Linnell	3 00
Mr & Mrs P B Peyton	1 00
Mrs R F Fletcher	1 00
Mrs Geo E Camm	3 00
Harrietta W Truckerman	5 00
Mrs M Dunn	1 00
Geo, Hattie, Ralph & Frank Tidmarsh	50
Mrs Belle Upton	10 00
Mrs L H Johnson	3 00
I H N, Mariner's Harbr	3 00
Mrs I O U, ——	15 00
F W Felter	3 00
L L B, Whitesboro	1 00
L M Nims	3 00
John P Kile	5 00
One who loves children, Hemlock	3 00
Hakuai Circle of K's D's, E Orange	5 00
Bertha E Lobb	1 00
Mrs Warren Graves	50
Clark Pierce	2 00
Mrs J A Watt	3 50
S E Liscom	1 00
Jane M Watters	3 00
E Jackson	3 00
C E, From the Lord's Tenth, Phila	2 00
Polly De Forest	5 00
Reader, Lanesville	1 00
C L W, Haverhill	3 00
E, Waterford	3 00
Dr & Mrs G L Gifford	5 00
M C W, Eden	1 00
J M Hanley	2 00
Miss H J Cooper	10 00
Mrs W H Wilson	1 00
Florence G Taylor	1 00
L M T, Kenvil	1 00
Total	$1647.79

All contributions should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, 92 Bible House, New York, and they will be acknowledged in these columns.

A Deserving Home Mission.

Our readers will be interested in the following account of the work of the Union Mission Association of Columbus, Ohio. The Association is non-sectarian; Rev. James Haig, the superintendent, is assisted by co-laborers gathered from many churches.

The Mission Lodging House at No. 274 North Third Street offers the privilege of reading-room, bath and a clean bed for a dime, and during its first year, ending April 1st last, 32,158 lodgings there were sold. The medical department is in the same building where six physicians give one hour each, six days in the week, to freely administering to the ailments of the poor, while eleven other physicians visit the sick in their homes. During the first ten months of its existence 997 patients were healed. The industrial relief work, having its headquarters at No. 468 So. Seventh Street, gives needy men and women, residents of the city, and able and willing to work, the opportunity of earning 50 cents a day, and makes it possible for the wandering non-resident to secure lodging and meals in exchange for work, while the necessities of life are distributed in a judicious manner to the poor who are unable to labor. The record of 1897 shows that during that year, help was extended in some form to more than 3,600 persons; the religious department maintains four mission halls, conducts services in the City Prison, County Jail and open air, sends missionaries into the homes of the poor and degraded, carries on four Sunday Schools, two Industrial Schools, Loyal Legions, boys' and girls' clubs, cooperates with the two free kindergartens, and accomplishes great good in reforming the inebriate and in rescuing the fallen. Wm. R. Walker is President of the Board of Officers and Trustees; A. S. Hammond, Vice-President; P. J. Magly, Secretary, and H. J. Maynard, Treasurer. There is a corps of devoted missionary workers.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

SECTARIANISM.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: Judges 12: 6:

Then said they unto him, Say now Shibboleth, and he said Sibboleth: for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan.

Do you notice the difference of pronunciation between shibboleth and sibboleth? A very small and unimportant difference, you say. And yet, that difference was the difference between life and death for a great many people. The Lord's people, Gilead and Ephraim, got into a great fight, and Ephraim was worsted, and on the retreat came to the fords of the river Jordan to cross. Order was given that all Ephraimites coming there be slain. But how could it be found out who were Ephraimites? They were detected by their pronunciation. Shibboleth was a word that stood for river. The Ephraimites had a brogue of their own, and when they tried to say "shibboleth" always left out the sound of the "h." When it was asked that they say shibboleth they said sibboleth, and were slain. "Then said they unto him, say now shibboleth: and he said sibboleth, for he could not frame to pronounce it right. Then they took him and slew him at the passages of Jordan." A very small difference, you say, between Gilead and Ephraim, and yet how much intolerance about that small difference! The Lord's tribes in our time—by which I mean the different denominations of Christians—sometimes magnify a very small difference, and the only difference between scores of denominations to-day is the difference between shibboleth and sibboleth.

The Church of God is divided into a great number of denominations. Time would fail me to tell of the Calvinists, and and the Arminians, and the Sabbatarians, and the Baxterians, and the Dunkers, and the Shakers, and the Quakers, and the Methodists and the Baptists, and the Episcopalians, and the Lutherans, and the Congregationalists, and the Presbyterians, and the Spiritualists, and a score of other denominations of religionists, some of them founded by very good men, some of them founded by very egotistic men, some of them founded by very bad men. But as I demand for myself liberty of conscience, I must give that same liberty to every other man, remembering that he no more differs from me than I differ from him. I advocate the largest liberty in all religious belief and form of worship. In art, in politics, in morals, and in religion, let there be no gag-law, no moving of the previous question, no persecution, no intolerance.

You know that the air and the water keep pure by constant circulation, and I think there is a tendency in religious discussion to purification and moral health. Between the fourth and the sixteenth centuries the church proposed to make people think aright by prohibiting discussion, and by strong censorship of the press, and rack, and gibbet, and hot lead down the throat, tried to make people orthodox; but it was discovered that you cannot change a man's belief by twisting off his head, nor make a man see differently by putting an axe through his eyes. There is something in a man's conscience which will hurl off the mountain that you threw upon it, and, unsinged of the fire, out of the flame will make red wings on which the martyr will mount to glory.

In that time of which I speak, between the fourth and sixteenth centuries, people went from the house of God into the most appalling impurity, and right along by consecrated altars were the vices of drunkenness and licentiousness such as the world never heard of, and the very sewers of perdition broke loose and flooded the church. After awhile the printing-press was freed, and it broke the shackles of the human mind. Then there came a large number of bad books, and where there was one man hostile to the Christian religion, there were twenty men ready to advocate it; so I have not any nervousness in regard to this battle going on between Truth and Error. The Truth will conquer just as certainly as that God is stronger than the devil. Let Error run if you only let Truth run along with it. Urged on by sceptic's shout and transcendentalist's spur, let it run. God's angels of wrath are in hot pursuit, and quicker than eagle's beak clutches out a hawk's heart, God's vengeance will tear it to pieces.

I propose to speak to you of sectarianism—its origin, its evils, and its cures. There are those who would make us think that this monster, with horns and hoofs, is religion. I shall chase it to its hiding-place, and drag it out of the caverns of darkness, and rip off its hide. But I want to make a distinction between bigotry and the lawful fondness for peculiar religious beliefs and forms of worship. I have no admiration for a nothingarian.

In a world of such tremendous vicissitude and temptation, and with a soul that must after awhile stand before a throne of insufferable brightness, in a day when the rocking of the mountains and the flaming of the heavens and the upheaval of the seas shall be among the least of the excitements, to give account for every thought, word, action, preference, and dislike—that man is mad who has no religious preference. But our early education, our physical temperament, our mental constitution, will very much decide our form of worship.

A style of psalmody that may please me may displease you. Some would like to have a minister in gown and bands and surplice, and others prefer to have a minister in plain citizen's apparel. Some are most impressed when a little child is presented at the altar and sprinkled of the waters of a holy benediction "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," and others are more impressed when the penitent comes up out of the river, his garments dripping with the waters of a baptism which signifies the washing away of sin. Let either have his own way. One man likes no noise in prayer, not a word, not a whisper. Another man, just as good, prefers by gesticulation and exclamation to express his devotional aspirations. One is just as good as the other. "Every man fully persuaded in his own mind."

In tracing out the religion of sectarianism, or bigotry, I find that a great deal of it comes from wrong education in the home circle. There are parents who do not think it wrong to caricature and jeer the peculiar forms of religion in the world, and denounce other sects and other denominations. It is very often the case that that kind of education acts just opposite to what was expected, and the children grow up, and, after awhile, go and see for themselves; and, looking in those churches, and finding that the people are good there, and they love God and keep his commandments, by natural reaction they go and join those very churches. I could mention the names of prominent ministers of the Gospel who spent their whole lives bombarding other denominations and who lived to see their children preach the Gospel in those very denominations. But it is often the case that bigotry starts in a household, and that the subject of it never recovers. There are tens of thousands of bigots ten years old.

I think sectarianism and bigotry also rise from too great prominence of any one denomination in a community. All the other denominations are wrong, and his denomination is right because his denomination is the most wealthy, or the most popular, or the most influential, and it is "our" church, and "our" religious organization, and "our" choir, and "our" minister, and the man tosses his head, and wants other denominations to know their places. It is a great deal better in any community when the great denominations of Christians are about equal in power, marching side by side for the world's conquest. Mere outside prosperity, mere worldly power, is no evidence that the church is acceptable to God. Better a barn with Christ in the manger than a cathedral with magnificent harmonies rolling through the long-drawn aisle, and an angel from heaven in the pulpit, if there be no Christ in the chancel, and no Christ in the robes.

Bigotry is often the child of ignorance. You seldom find a man with large intellect who is a bigot. It is the man who thinks he knows a great deal, but does not. That man is almost always a bigot. The whole tendency of education and civilization is to bring a man out of that kind of state of mind and heart. There was in the far East a great obelisk, and one side of the obelisk was white, another side of the obelisk was green, another side of the obelisk was blue, and travelers went and looked at that obelisk, but they did not walk around it. One man looked at one side, another at another side, and they came home each one looking at only one side; and they happened to meet, the story says, and they got into a rank quarrel about the color of that obelisk. One man said it was white, another man said it was green, another man said it was blue, and when they were in the very heat of the controversy, a more intelligent traveler came, and said, "Gentlemen, I have seen that obelisk and you are all right, and you are all wrong. Why didn't you all walk around the obelisk?"

Look out for the man who sees only one side of a religious truth. Look out for the man who never walks around about these great theories of God and eternity and the dead. He will be a bigot inevitably—the man who only sees one side. There is no man more to be pitied than he who has in his head just one idea—no more, no less. More light, less sectarianism. There is nothing that will so soon kill bigotry as sunshine—God's sunshine.

So I have set before you what I consider to be the causes of bigotry. I have set before you the origin of this great evil. What are some of the baleful effects? First of all, it cripples investigation. You are wrong, and I am right, and that ends it. No taste for exploration, no spirit of investigation. From the glorious realm of God's truth, over which an archangel might fly from eternity to eternity and not reach the limit, the man shuts himself out and dies, a blind mole under a corn-shock. It absolutely stops all investigation.

While each denomination of Christians is to present all the truths of the Bible, it seems to me that God has given to each denomination an especial mission to give particular emphasis to some one doctrine; and so the Calvinistic churches must present the sovereignty of God, and the Arminian churches must present man's free agency, and the Episcopal churches must present the importance of order and solemn ceremony, and the Baptist churches must present the necessity of ordinances, and the Congregational church must present the responsibility of the individual member, and the Methodist church must show what holy enthusiasm, hearty congregational singing can accomplish. While each denomination of Christians must set forth all the doctrines of the Bible, I feel it is especially incumbent upon each denomination to put particular emphasis on some one doctrine.

Another great damage done by the sectarianism and bigotry of the church is that it disgusts people with the Christian religion. Now, my friends, the Church of God was never intended for a war barrack. People are afraid of a riot. You go down the street and you see an excitement and missiles flying through the air, and you hear the shock of fire-arms. Do you, the peaceful and industrious citizen, go through that street. Oh, no! you will say, "I'll go around the block." Now, men come and look upon this narrow path to heaven, and sometimes see the ecclesiastical brickbats flying every whither, and they say, "Well, I guess I'll take the broad road; there is so much sharpshooting on the narrow road, I guess I'll try the broad road!"

Francis I. so hated the Lutherans that he said that if he thought there was one drop of Lutheran blood in his veins he would puncture them and let that drop out. Just as long as there is so much hostility between denomination and denomination, or between one professed Christian and another, or between one church and another, so long men will be disgusted with the Christian religion, and say that is religion, I want none of it."

Again, bigotry and sectarianism do great damage in the fact that they hinder the triumph of the Gospel. Oh, how much wasted ammunition! How many splendid intellect have given their life to controversial disputes when, if they had given their life to something else, they might have been vastly more! Suppose, while I speak, there were a common enemy coming up the bay, and the forts around the harbor began to fire into each other—you would cry out, "Fratricidal suicide! Why don't those forts blaze away in one direction, and that against the common enemy?" And yet I sometimes see in the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ a strange thing going on—church against church, minister against minister, denomination against denomination, firing away into their own territory, the fort which ought to be on the other side, instead of concentrating the energy and giving one mighty and overwhelming volley against the navies of darkness riding up through the bay!

I am told that in Astor Library, New York, kept as curiosities there are one hundred and seven books and pamphlets against Methodism. Did intolerance succeed in that church? No; it is either first or second amid the denominations of Christendom, her missionary stations in all parts of the world, her men not only important in religious trusts, but in secular trusts. Church multiplies on and the more intolerance against it the faster it marched.

What did intolerance accomplish against the Baptist Church? If the scorn and tirade could have destroyed a church it would not have to-day a single left. The Baptists were hurled out of Boston in olden times. Those who sympathized with them were imprisoned, and when a petition was offered asking leniency in their behalf, all the names signed it were indicted. Has intolerance stopped the Baptist church? The statistics in regard to it showed over four thousand churches and four hundred communicants. Intolerance never put down anything.

In England a law was made against the Jew. England thrust back the Jew, thrust down the Jew, and declared that no Jew should hold official station. What came of it? Were the Jews destroyed? Was their religion overthrown? No. Who became Prime Minister of England? Who was next to the throne? Who was higher than the throne? Why, he was counsellor and adviser Disraeli, a Jew. What were we celebrating in all our churches as well as synagogues only a few years ago? The centennial hundredth birthday of Montefiore, the great Jewish philanthropist. Intolerance never yet put down anything.

But now, my friends, having shown you the origin of bigotry or sectarianism, having shown you the damage it does, I want briefly to show you how we are to war against this terrible evil, and that we ought to begin our war by realizing our own weakness and our imperfections. If we make so many mistakes in the minor affairs of life, is it not possible that we may make mistakes in regard to religious affairs? Shall we take a man by the throat or by the collar because he does not see religious truths just as we do? In the light of eternity it will be found, I think, there was something wrong in our creeds, and something right in our creeds, but since we may make mistakes in regard to things of the world not let us be so egotistic and so positive as to have an idea that we cannot make any mistake in regard to religious creeds. And then I think we will do a great deal to overthrow the sectarianism in the heart, and the sectarianism in the world, by chiefly enlarging in those things in which we agree, rather than in those which we differ.

Now, here is a great Gospel platform. A man comes up on this side of the platform and says: "I don't believe in sprinkling." Shall I shove him off? No. There is a man coming up on this side of the platform, and he says: "I don't believe in the perseverance of the saints." Shall I shove him off? No. I will say: Do you believe in the Lord Jesus as your Saviour? Do you trust him for time and for eternity?" He says: "Yes." Do you trust Christ for time and for eternity?" Yes.

The Gospel in the Navy.

(Continued from first page.)

after that $2,300: on sea duty, it is $2,500 the first five years, with a ration, after that $2,800, with a ration. The ration is commuted, and amounts to $109 annually. The pay of chaplains is never increased after these first five years. It then stands for life, a little more than the pay of a lieutenant, and a little less than the pay of a lieutenant commander.

It may be said, parenthetically, that the old grog ration is, so to say, soaked up into the above $109. When it was abolished, in the sixties, five cents a day was allowed everybody in its place. This brought the regular navy ration up from twenty-five to thirty cents a day. How the chaplains reconciled themselves to this commutation of spirits is not recorded: but what the old chaplains got in spirits, the present ones get in nickels.

The chaplains' dress is not properly a uniform. It is the dress common to clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and not infrequently worn by other ministers. In military service, however, there should be insignia indicative of a chaplain's relation to it. Formerly the chaplains of the navy wore the regular uniform, their corps device being a silver cross worked upon shoulder-straps and epaulets. The cocked hat, sword and epaulets seemed to over-apparel and garnish the chaplains. The uniform board evidently thought so, for it made a clean sweep of them. The board forgot that bishops once wore rapiers, and that an apostle smote off an ear. But why the chaplain's sword should have been taken away and a revolver furnished him in its stead is a mystery of the Bureau of Ordnance. Think of the new element of danger introduced into our ships of war by this short-sighted act! In place of the sword, the chaplain keeps a revolver in his stateroom.

The leading denominations of the country are represented in the corps of chaplains. Appointments to the corps are so frequent, that the numerical order in which they stand in the matter of church precedence is quite often shifted. At present there happen to be eight or nine Methodists, five Episcopalians, two or three Presbyterians, one Disciple of Christ, two Baptists, and three Roman Catholics. These men are doing the religious work of the navy, as it falls to them, afloat and ashore. Many of them have smelled powder in the battles of the present war. One of them has been conspicuous before the country as the chaplain of the ill-fated Maine. Two were in the battle at Manila. A half dozen or more are with Sampson and Schley. All are ready to do their part: to take their share of the hardships and perils of actual warfare.

The chaplains are awake to the responsibilities of their position. They are very fortunate in the senior member of the corps, a Harvard man, of the time when Lowell was doing his best classroom work there, a man who represents to the chaplains a high professional and scholarly type, one who from long connection with the service, has the deepest love for it and the largest plans and ideals for the chaplaincy. Standing next him on the list is one, who, if the phrase may be allowed, has for many years set the pace for the workers of the corps, who follows sailors into the forecastle with divine service if for any reason he cannot get them to come aft, a man very much alive in his whole nature and bent on doing things. The younger men of the corps are showing a devotion and adaptability that are creating a new atmosphere for it: imparting a tone and quality to it that promise well for the moral and religious health of the navy.

Religious service on board our warships is provided for by the Articles of War. The commanding officer of a ship to which a chaplain is attached is to cause divine service to be performed on Sunday whenever the weather and other circumstances allow it to be done, and it is earnestly recommended to all officers, seamen and others in the naval service dilligently to attend at every performance of the worship of Almighty God. In addition to this, there are usually prayers every evening at hammocks. The chaplain can also deliver lectures and hold services on week nights if he wishes to do so. He has the advantage of being able to go the rounds of his parish any number of times a day. A frequent turn about it does good. It is in the interest of friendship; and of a circumspect and well meditated vocabulary. Certain flowers of rhetoric on board ship never even bud if the chaplain happens to be around. If the chaplain does not go among the men he misses much of his best opportunity. He realizes it when Sunday comes. Attendance at church is non-compulsory, and a chaplain who is indifferent to the men gets his reward. A ship does not change human nature.

The men of the service are worthy of the best the chaplains can do for them: and the best the country can do. The slurs cast upon them abroad are of a kind with those cast upon the country itself. However, they amount to nothing. They are not armor piercing, carry no warheads, fight no battles. The men of our service are not undisciplined, not largely alien. The truth is that the men of no other navy are so intelligently and enthusiastically patriotic as those of our own. And in no other navy is the treatment of men so white. Our men are, therefore, self-respecting and carry true independence of character into all they have to do. They are subordinate, but never abject. Physical and mental drowsiness is never characteristic of them. They are better educated and better trained than the men of other navies, because they are Americans. For all around efficiency, our ship's crews cannot be matched the world over. In friendly contests between navies they are nearly always expected to win. A foreign naval officer of high rank, a prince withal, said to an American naval officer: "With your men and our ships I would fear nothing." In the natures of such men there is no little readiness of moral and religious response. It is an honor to serve such ones, as moral and religious teachers and guides.

Of the officers of our navy not much need be said. Their equipment for their profession is thorough. The four years drill at Annapolis, and the subsequent two years afloat as cadets, give them a completeness of preparation unknown to any other navy. Besides, they are great travelers: and travel is another kind of university. Very many of them are excellent linguists. During the last winter Hobson spent considerable time in perfecting his knowledge of Spanish. No doubt Cervera duly noted and was charmed to acknowledge this accomplishment in his brilliant young prisoner. In every sense of the word the officers of the navy are selected men. The new navy adds an intellectual element to their life that the old navy could not supply. The change is apparent in more studious habits and a more serious cast of character. The naval officer of to-day has no time for nonsense and folly. A change has taken place. In the old navy the idea prevailed to no little extent that to be a good officer one needed to be "a little tough." Nobody thinks so now. The men who are distinguishing themselves in this war are remarkable for their moral punctiliousness. The moral tone of our officers is very high. We hear very little of drinking and gambling among them. The chief reason is the standards of personal character in the navy were never so elevated as to-day. A wise chaplain knows how to turn this to account.

CHAPLAIN JONES CONDUCTING DIVINE SERVICE ON THE BATTLESHIP "TEXAS."

The Naval Academy affords the corps of chaplains the best opportunity of the naval service. Indeed there can be no more important places among the educational institutions of the country for religious work than the Military and Naval Academies. The cadets at the Naval Academy enter at the most formative and impressionable period of their lives. The work of the chaplain who happens to be on duty at the Academy is at the same time the privilege and the burden of his life. He has a great advantage in this: As many as two-thirds of every entering class at Annapolis have been baptized; and fully one-half are members of different Christian Churches.

A new era has come to the corps of chaplains. They have such ships as the navy never had before: they have officers and men who are in closer sympathy with them than has ever before been known; they have a Navy Department that treats them with utmost respect and consideration: they sail under a flag that is providing larger opportunity for them to make themselves felt throughout the whole world.

What is needed in them? They need to keep step intellectually with the officers of the navy: their idea of their mission should expand with our expanding civilization: their one purpose as ministers should be to serve the Churches and the Government with the largest intelligence and the finest Christian spirit and character possible to them.

CHAPLAIN H. H. CLARK.
U. S. Academy, Annapolis, Md.

The prayers of the readers of this journal are requested for the blessing of God upon its proprietor, and also upon those whose sermons, articles, or labors for Christ, are printed in it; and that its circulation may be used by the Holy Spirit for the conversion of sinners and the quickening of God's people.

The Sunday School

ELIJAH'S SPIRIT ON ELISHA.

S. S. Lesson for Aug. 7. II. Kings. 4: 6-15. Golden Text, Luke 11: 13.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

WHEN in Mount Horeb God had given Elijah the commission to anoint Hazael over Syria, Jehu over Israel, and Elisha, the son of Shaphat of Abel-Meholah to be prophet in his room, it was the third and last part of the commission which laid strong hold on the prophet's heart. He had seen in the light of God the failure of his own jealousy for the Lord God of Israel, and that wind and fire and earth make all which seems mighty to men, counted nothing with his God. It was not the storm of indignation against sin which could conquer it, all man's power was powerless: the still small voice of the Almighty God was more potent in its working than all the zeal which formed in him.

Thus, immediately on leaving Horeb, Elijah went to find Elisha. The prophet-elect, all unsuspecting the solemn call which awaited him, was occupied with the work of his farm, ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen, and he with the twelfth, when Elijah passed by him and cast his mantle upon him. Elijah, no longer the recluse by the brook Cherith, had become known throughout the land by his testimony on Mt. Carmel; Elisha understood the action, left the oxen and ran after Elijah. It was an instantaneous response to an instantaneous call which he had recognized to be of God. God had not mistaken his man. One only condition did he make: "Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee." "Go back again, for what have I done to thee" was Elijah's rejoinder. It was only a farewell, most decided in its nature, which should cut off his retreat and establish before relations and friends his vocation; and thus Elisha became a prophet of the Lord.

"And it came to pass when the Lord would take up Elijah into heaven by a whirlwind." The words read as though some intimation of what awaited him had already been communicated to the prophet. Was it with him as with Enoch who by faith . . . was translated that he should not see death? If so, no wonder he wanted to be alone, and when Elisha faithfully and persistently followed him, said to him when leaving Gilgal: "Tarry here, I pray thee, for the Lord hath sent me to Bethel." But Elisha had had his calling as well as Elijah; and just as truly as the older prophet was called to be ready for his ascension, so surely was the younger prophet called to follow him to the end and to step into his place. It was no easy thing for Elisha to disobey what might have been the last commands or the last wishes of his master, but Elisha himself was already definitely dealing with God, and assured of his will, he would obey God rather than man, whatever it cost him, and whatever it might cost Elijah.

"As the Lord liveth and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee." There were sons of the prophets, perhaps a kind of school of religious teachers, at Bethel. Things had greatly changed since that wondrous day on Carmel. Were these some of those "seven thousand" of whom Elijah had been ignorant but whom God had marked "who had not bowed the knee to Baal" nor kissed him? They too had an intimation from God about the ascension of Elijah, and to them it was a thing more of doctrine than reality. Something in Elijah forbad them to speak to them, they sought out Elisha to talk over the matter. "Knowest thou," they said, "that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head to-day?" "Yea, I know it," was the curt yet courteous reply, "hold ye your peace." To Elisha this was no matter for discussion that idle curiosity or speculation might be gratified. His master was not going the way of all flesh; he was going to do an exceptional thing, and he was as little inclined for talk as his master was for company.

But one such test was not enough for the incipient prophet. Again at Bethel, and yet again at Jericho, Elijah made the same entreaty, met by Elisha in the same words. And at each of these places the sons of the prophets asked the same question of Elisha, always to be answered in the same way. Elijah, in this journey, could see in these colleges or schools or theological seminaries his departure from this obedience had followed him up to this very hour. He was about to leave his follower. What should be his parting gift?

"Ask what I shall do for thee before I am taken away from thee." "I pray thee let a double portion of thy spirit rest upon me." "Thou hast asked a hard thing; nevertheless if thou see me when I am taken away from thee, it shall be so unto thee; but if not, it shall not be so." In Elisha's steady persevering obedience, there was a true preparation for the spirit of Elijah to rest upon him.

THE JORDAN NEAR JERICHO WHERE THE RAPTURE IS SAID TO HAVE TAKEN PLACE.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

SOME confusion as to the sequence of events appears here, which may have been caused by the dovetailing of separate narratives, in these books of the Kings. From the chapter following the one from which the lesson is taken, it would appear that Elijah's career closed during the reign of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah; but as we see from I. Kings 22: 50, Jehoshaphat was dead and Jehoram, his son, had succeeded Ahaziah, and Jehoram was king of Israel. Elijah's translation must have occurred in the first year of Jehoram's reign, and Elisha's ministry must have been a long one, for he lived to see the reigns of Jehu, Jehoahaz, Jehoash, and Jeroboam II. Elisha's ministry was a long one, and his character and work were very different from those of Elijah. Elijah was a man of the wilderness, Elisha a man of the world. Elijah was a man of solitude, Elisha a man of society. Elijah was a man of the few, Elisha a man of the many. Elijah was a man of the past, Elisha a man of the present. Elijah was a man of the future, Elisha a man of the present. Elijah was a man of the spirit, Elisha a man of the flesh. Elijah was a man of the heavens, Elisha a man of the earth. Elijah was a man of the desert, Elisha a man of the city. Elijah was a man of the mountain, Elisha a man of the valley. Elijah was a man of the sea, Elisha a man of the land. Elijah was a man of the air, Elisha a man of the earth. Elijah was a man of the fire, Elisha a man of the water. Elijah was a man of the wind, Elisha a man of the rain. Elijah was a man of the thunder, Elisha a man of the lightning. Elijah was a man of the storm, Elisha a man of the calm. Elijah was a man of the whirlwind, Elisha a man of the still small voice. Elijah was a man of the chariot of fire, Elisha a man of the chariot of earth. Elijah was a man of the horses of fire, Elisha a man of the horses of earth. Elijah was a man of the mantle of fire, Elisha a man of the mantle of earth. Elijah was a man of the sword of fire, Elisha a man of the sword of earth. Elijah was a man of the spear of fire, Elisha a man of the spear of earth. Elijah was a man of the bow of fire, Elisha a man of the bow of earth. Elijah was a man of the arrow of fire, Elisha a man of the arrow of earth. Elijah was a man of the shield of fire, Elisha a man of the shield of earth. Elijah was a man of the helmet of fire, Elisha a man of the helmet of earth. Elijah was a man of the breastplate of fire, Elisha a man of the breastplate of earth. Elijah was a man of the greaves of fire, Elisha a man of the greaves of earth. Elijah was a man of the gauntlets of fire, Elisha a man of the gauntlets of earth. Elijah was a man of the sandals of fire, Elisha a man of the sandals of earth. Elijah was a man of the girdle of fire, Elisha a man of the girdle of earth. Elijah was a man of the crown of fire, Elisha a man of the crown of earth. Elijah was a man of the throne of fire, Elisha a man of the throne of earth. Elijah was a man of the kingdom of fire, Elisha a man of the kingdom of earth. Elijah was a man of the power of fire, Elisha a man of the power of earth. Elijah was a man of the glory of fire, Elisha a man of the glory of earth. Elijah was a man of the majesty of fire, Elisha a man of the majesty of earth. Elijah was a man of the dominion of fire, Elisha a man of the dominion of earth. Elijah was a man of the authority of fire, Elisha a man of the authority of earth. Elijah was a man of the judgment of fire, Elisha a man of the judgment of earth. Elijah was a man of the righteousness of fire, Elisha a man of the righteousness of earth. Elijah was a man of the holiness of fire, Elisha a man of the holiness of earth. Elijah was a man of the purity of fire, Elisha a man of the purity of earth. Elijah was a man of the love of fire, Elisha a man of the love of earth. Elijah was a man of the mercy of fire, Elisha a man of the mercy of earth. Elijah was a man of the grace of fire, Elisha a man of the grace of earth. Elijah was a man of the peace of fire, Elisha a man of the peace of earth. Elijah was a man of the joy of fire, Elisha a man of the joy of earth. Elijah was a man of the hope of fire, Elisha a man of the hope of earth. Elijah was a man of the faith of fire, Elisha a man of the faith of earth. Elijah was a man of the prayer of fire, Elisha a man of the prayer of earth. Elijah was a man of the praise of fire, Elisha a man of the praise of earth. Elijah was a man of the worship of fire, Elisha a man of the worship of earth. Elijah was a man of the service of fire, Elisha a man of the service of earth. Elijah was a man of the obedience of fire, Elisha a man of the obedience of earth. Elijah was a man of the humility of fire, Elisha a man of the humility of earth. Elijah was a man of the meekness of fire, Elisha a man of the meekness of earth. Elijah was a man of the patience of fire, Elisha a man of the patience of earth. Elijah was a man of the long-suffering of fire, Elisha a man of the long-suffering of earth. Elijah was a man of the gentleness of fire, Elisha a man of the gentleness of earth. Elijah was a man of the goodness of fire, Elisha a man of the goodness of earth. Elijah was a man of the faithfulness of fire, Elisha a man of the faithfulness of earth. Elijah was a man of the temperance of fire, Elisha a man of the temperance of earth. Elijah was a man of the self-control of fire, Elisha a man of the self-control of earth. Elijah was a man of the virtue of fire, Elisha a man of the virtue of earth. Elijah was a man of the knowledge of fire, Elisha a man of the knowledge of earth. Elijah was a man of the wisdom of fire, Elisha a man of the wisdom of earth. Elijah was a man of the understanding of fire, Elisha a man of the understanding of earth. Elijah was a man of the counsel of fire, Elisha a man of the counsel of earth. Elijah was a man of the might of fire, Elisha a man of the might

HOPES OF AN EARLY PEACE.

Spa Now Anxious to End the War—Santiago's Surrender—Our Generous Treatment of the Spanish Troops—Gospel Work at the Camps.

WITH the capitulation of Santiago, and the bloodless disarmament of over 20.000 Spanish troops, an important step has been taken n t direction of a pacific adjustment of ur oubles with Spain. There is a grow- g pression, both in Washington and laid, that the end of hostilities has a re y been reached, and that before Co modore Watson's squadron sights a Spash port, the orders to bombard the e 's cities may have been revoked. It s e n probable that the American squad- n hich conveys our army of invasion l to Rico may find its work anticipated d at a peaceful capitulation may have e rranged beforehand. Santiago's sur- eng has apparently convinced not only e r faction in the Spanish ministry, t e Queen Regent and the army, that r r resistance is futile. Captain-Gen- al Blanco, till now the strongest ad- oc of persistent hostilities. has mod- ed is attitude and announces that "the r r army will submit to the desires of e adrid government" which is equival- nt the abandonment of his defensive pro ramme for Havana. Toral's hopeless fgh following the annihilation of Cer- er ships has proved the strongest argu- en n favor of an early peace.

Fmal negotiations looking to the sur- nd of Santiago, upon the basis, sug- est by our government, of returning he panish troops to Spain at our ex- ben began on July 14. On that day troops be allowed to retain their arms and light artillery, he being willing only to relinquish the heavy guns in the Santiago defenses. Gen. Shafter, however, had been instructed to make no concessions. The Spanish commander declared that surrender under such conditions was impossible, and that his troops would rather die at their posts than return to Spain humiliated. This was the situation of affairs on the morning of July 15, but on the afternoon of that day Gen. Toral accepted the terms for unconditional surrender, and an agreement, setting forth the basis of capitulation, was signed in duplicate, being approved by Gen. Miles, Captain-General Blanco and Gen. Toral, subject, however, to the formal approval of the Madrid government. Under this agreement, the Spanish troops were to march out of Santiago (leaving the guns and forts in good condition), and surrender their arms at some point near the place of their embarkation for Spain, officers retaining their side-arms only. On Sunday, July 17, the Stars and Stripes floated over the conquered city, which will be fully occupied by our troops as soon as arrangements can be made for transporting Gen. Toral's army to Spain.

In his letter announcing his readiness to capitulate, the Spanish commander expresses his gratitude for "the courtesy and noble deportment" of the American officers with whom he had negotiated, and also for "the generous and noble impulse" which prompted the offer to send his soldiers back to Spain. A great fleet of transports will shortly be ready for this undertaking, and thus the campaign in Eastern Cuba, which threatened to cost thousands of lives, closes with an act of mercy, which may prove the forerunner of a lasting peace.

Since the war opened, there have been Sundays of carnage and slaughter. but the Sunday on which Santiago laid down its arms shone upon a peaceful scene, notwithstanding the presence of the two armies. Amid the flourish of trumpets, the chiming of the old Cathedral bells, and the salute of cannon, the transfer of authority was accomplished. and Spain ceased to be masters of a territory which she had ruled for centuries. Over 7,000 Mauser rifles and 600,000 cartridges were surrendered. Our troops found the city partially looted by Toral's soldiers, and many dwellings wrecked by Sampson's bombardment. There was hardly any food to be found, and everywhere were evidences of great suffering before the final surrender.

COMMODORE WATSON, U. S. N.,
Commander of the Fleet to Attack Spanish Ports.

Religious work at all the military camps continues with unflagging zeal, and excellent results are noted. Chaplains cooperate heartily with the workers of the Christian Commission, and the local preachers of nearby churches are also lending active assistance in the great spiritual crusade now in progress. Many conversions are reported at all the camps, and Mr. Moody and his co-workers are greatly encouraged by the blessing that has attended their labors thus far. They invite the cordial co-operation of Christian people everywhere. All contributions in aid of the Army Gospel Fund forwarded to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will be acknowledged in these columns and duly applied to defraying the expenses incident to the transportation of evangelists and Gospel literature to the camps. Religious work. under the auspices of the Christian Commission, will shortly begin among our troops in Cuba, at Santiago and other points. Steps have already been taken for beginnning operations in the Philippines. The Young Men's Christian Associations have over fifty tents, with from one to two trained secretaries in charge of each 'n the various camps. There are twenty-one at Chickamauga, thirteen at Washington, eight at Tampa, four at Jacksonville, etc., etc., and additions are being made constantly. The Associations are sending large quantities of reading matter to these different stations. Very many of the soldiers are either Christians or from Christian homes, and appreciate the perusal of a good religious paper. The weekly issues reach the camps on Saturday, where they are placed on file and cared for. At the request of the Associations, a number of copies of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD are sent to each of the tents weekly. Any reader who may wish to send good literature to the camps may forward the same, (postage prepaid) to the following addresses:

Y. M. C. A. Army Tents.

Chickamauga (21 tents). Address: F. W. Pearsall, Headquarter's Tent, Y. M. C. A., Lytle, Ga.

Washington (13 tents). Address: W. N. Multer, Y. M. C. A. Tent No. 1, Camp Alger, Falls Church, Virginia.

Jacksonville (4 tents). Address: Frank L. Smith, Army Secretary Y. M. C. A., Jacksonville, Fla.

Tampa (8 tents). Address: Frank Mahan, 705 Franklin street, Tampa, Fla.

Fort McPherson (1 tent). Address: E. W. Sheffield, Y. M. C. A. Tent, Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.

Fort Macon, N. C. (1 tent, colored troops). Address: N. C. Bruce, Secretary Army, Y. M. C. A., Fort Macon, N. C.

Fredericksburg, Va. Address: Secretary Y. M. C. A. Tent, Camp of Immunes, Fredericksburg, Va.

San Francisco, Cal. (2 tents). Address: H. J. McCoy, Y. M. C. A., San Francisco, Cal.

(One tent sent to Philippines. Mark package "For Philippines)."

Cuba. Address: Frank Mahan, 705 Franklin street, Tampa, Fla.

(One tent sent to Cuba. Mark packages, "For Charles F. Barrett, Y. M. C. A., with expedition to Cuba)."

Notes of the War.

Miss Helen Gould's Hospital at Chickamauga, is in need of nurses.

One of the most welcome men in Camp Cuba Libre is Dr. Kent, agent for the National Relief Committee. He is now building an ice-house for each regiment.

Blanco's voice is still for war, although he admits that the Madrid government has practically opened peace negotiations. Many prominent residents of Havana have left the island.

Spain's latest terms for peace, as reported in Paris are: 1. Cuban independence; 2. The cession of Porto Rico to the United States; 3. The Philippines to be restored to Spain, which pledges itself to inaugurate needed reforms and to cede one or more coaling stations to the United States; 4. No indemnity. Porto Rico to be accepted in lieu and as an exchange tor the Philippines. It is hardly necessary to say that these terms are without any authorization.

1. THE CITY OF CADIZ, SPAIN, SOON TO BE VISITED BY OUR FLEET. 2. CITY AND HARBOR OF SANTIAGO, CUBA.

Gen Shafter nd en. To- al et and lis ssed he rms of ap lation, wh h in- ud all of Eas rn Cu- a. om As- ier ro on he uth to a a on le orth. Co mis- sio s were ap ted by bo ides to a ge defi- nite terms anc repare the ecessa- ry gree me Over 20 Span- ish oldiers wer involv- ed he sur- ren r. Pend- ing e completion of the agreement, hostili ies would cease, but our troops would occ y their present position. As the dre ed yellow fever had already appeared am g our troops, it was planned to send the ck to the mountain districts of San- tia which are cool and salubrious.

en the Commissioners met, a diffi- cul arose. Gen. Toral insisted that his

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.
T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.
B. J. FERNIE [illegible] SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald [illegible] every Wednesday. [illegible] is $1.50 a year in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances [illegible] Postoffice or Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our risk.

Register [illegible] letters [illegible] in any case.

Foreign Postage. [illegible] to countries in the Postal Union [illegible] Mexico, [illegible] Europe [illegible] Africa [illegible] Australia [illegible] Japan [illegible] Hawaii [illegible] Cuba [illegible] Porto Rico [illegible] Canada [illegible] Bermuda [illegible] Newfoundland [illegible] Labrador [illegible] Miquelon [illegible] Panama [illegible] Colombia [illegible] Ecuador [illegible] Peru [illegible] Chili [illegible] Bolivia [illegible] Argentine Republic [illegible] Uruguay [illegible] Paraguay [illegible] Brazil [illegible] Venezuela [illegible] Dutch Guiana [illegible] Dutch West Indies [illegible] Danish West Indies [illegible] Haiti [illegible] Dominican Republic [illegible] Leeward Islands [illegible] Windward Islands [illegible] Barbados [illegible] Trinidad [illegible] Tobago [illegible] Jamaica [illegible] Turks Islands [illegible] Bahamas [illegible] Honduras [illegible] Salvador [illegible] Guatemala [illegible] Nicaragua [illegible] Costa Rica [illegible] Mexico

Another Polar Expedition.

A SECOND Norwegian Polar expedition sailed from Christiana, June 24, in the Fram, under the command of Captain Otto Sverdrup, who was with Nansen in Greenland in 1888, and also commanded the Fram on her last voyage, when Peter Henriksen, now mate of the present expedition, was harpooner. Five members of the expedition include executive officers, and four scientists: Otto Sverdrup, master mariner; Hans A. V. Baumann, Lieutenant R. N., second in command; Oluf Olsen, first mate; Peter Henriksen, second mate; Karl B. Olsen, chief engineer; Gunerius T. Tsachsen, cavalry lieutenant, astronomer and surveyor; Johannes Lindstad, surgeon and meteorologist; Harald Bay, zoologist; Hermann Simon, botanist; Per Schei, geologist and geologist. The crew, six in number, are all strong men, ready to contribute enthusiasm and energy to this quest for the North Pole—that will-o'-the-wisp of Arctic expeditions. The professed destination of the Fram is Smith's Sound and Kane Channel, and its ostensible purpose exploration of northern Greenland, study of its geology, of Arctic ice, tides and temperatures. But the character of the members of the expedition and of the outfit provided, point to a yet more hazardous and ambitious undertaking. The Fram was built with particular reference to searching Polar seas, in which Nansen found her trustworthy, when about twelve years ago he had occasion to test her values for eighteen months in Arctic ice. Her hull is constructed so as to be uncrushable: when passing between masses of ice, instead of being caught in them, it is lifted by them; and in the present expedition, it remained for some time upon an icy foundation to which it had been raised in this manner. For the present voyage, considerable deck improvements have been made, and the outfit—skis, sledges, canoes, snow-shoes, etc., is very complete, while the commissary department is well provided. The complement of dogs is very large. While we consider that these men go cheerfully into severe danger, hardship and privation for the simple purpose of exploring, in the interest of science and for the enlightenment of the human race, a tract of territory probably barren and worthless, we regret that, happily, there is no need of such efforts to discover and reach that country to which all hope to go, but which no man has seen. Hundreds of brave men have perished in the Polar regions and in all save a few instances, the sacrifice has been profitless. It is not so with the Christian who, in his search after the higher wisdom, is always assured of a most glorious reward.

In my father's house are many mansions. I go to prepare a place for you. (John 14: 2.)

Rules of Travel.

An American traveler, who has recently returned from a business tour in Europe, says that, thanks to a device of his own, he made his way about the continent without misadventure, although he speaks no language besides English. In France, Switzerland, Hungary, and some parts of Italy he frequently found himself among people who could not speak English, and yet he might easily have taken the wrong train. His plan was to have his trunk properly checked, or registered, as it is called there, and to see that the correct checks were put upon it before beginning his journey. Then he would take his seat in a car from which he could see the baggage car. Whenever he saw his trunk being hauled out, he left the train and waited on the platform until he saw it put on another train, when he followed it. We may hope that in the journey of life he has adopted a different system. It is quite as intricate as a journey among people whose language he does not know, but that his property cannot be lost or stolen.

guide. The day must come when he must leave it behind, but he will reach his destination safely if he has committed his life to the keeping of him who has said:

My sheep hear my voice and they follow me, and I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish. (John 10: 27).

A Tramping Heir.

A lawyer in Chicago lately succeeded in discovering an heir to a fortune. He found him in a California poor-house. More than forty years ago, he had some acquaintance with the man, but he has not seen him since until now. Ten years ago, the lawyer heard that inquiries were being made for his old friend under the stereotyped formula, that if would come forward, he would hear of something to his advantage. He tried to find the man, but could not. Recently he saw a notice that an estate in England was about to be divided among the heirs, of whom his friend was one, and a warning that if he did not present himself at a certain date, he would be excluded from participation. The lawyer then made another and more energetic effort to find him and has succeeded. He traced him to California, and finally found him in a poor-house in Los Angeles county. For twenty years past, the old man has been in dire poverty, and for more than ten years has been living the life of a tramp. He came to this country from England fifty years ago. He was a young man then, and made a good income, but he lost his savings in speculation, and afterwards he lost heart and energy. The share of the estate that now falls to him is valued at $75 000. He might have received it ten years ago, if he had known that he was entitled to it. Now that he does know, there will be no delay in his claiming it. He will not act as too many people do who hear from the pulpit of the heavenly inheritance that has been purchased for them, but who never make any effort to gain possession of it.

The word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it. (Heb. 4: 2).

An Immigrant's Aversion.

A remarkable old lady who lives in the northern part of Minnesota, has a record for immobility which local journals declare is without parallel. She has lived since the year 1833—a period of sixty-five years—in the same town, and has never been outside the county in which it is situated in all that time. Yet she is not lame, nor has she any physical defects. She is of a quiet, contented disposition, and has simply no desire to travel. She was ten years old when she arrived in the town with her parents. The family came from Perth in Scotland, traveling through Canada, and entering the United States by Hudson's Bay and Fort Garry, where Winnipeg now stands. They had to wait three weeks in the Straits on account of the ice. The old lady remembers walking as a child, over the ice, for two or three miles to another ship, also ice-bound, to attend a children's party. Arrived at last at their destination they settled down and some years later the girl married. She was urged to take a trip to New York, or at least Chicago, but could never be induced to travel any more. She has never seen cities so near as St Paul or Minneapolis, and has no desire to see them. She has a very retentive memory. Visitors to foreign lands have often been surprised to find that the old lady knew more about the cities they had visited than they had learned by personal observation. It may be hoped that she has learned from her studies, something of the City of God, especially the conditions of entrance. Averse as she is to traveling, the time must come when she will have to quit her present sphere and will be glad to enter the Eternal City, where there is the permanence of residence she loves.

Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out (Rev. 3: 12).

A Pardon Refused.

Among the reminiscences of prison life recently given by the warden of a famous prison to the reporter of a Philadelphia journal, is one of a prisoner who might have been pardoned, but refused the boon. He came of a good family, and had served with distinction in the war, but afterwards fell into dissipated ways, consorted with criminals, and soon became a criminal himself. He was arrested for burglary, and was tried and convicted. After he had served two years of his sentence he was told that influential friends had interceded with the Governor on his behalf, and that a pardon would be issued if he would write a letter expressing contrition and promising to reform. The man took a day to think of it, and then refused to write the letter. He said it was too late to reform. For many years he had associated with criminals, and was sure that he would not now be happy in respectable society. It would be useless to make good resolutions: he was sure to break them. Having become a criminal, he would remain a criminal, and preferred to finish his sentence and return to the society to which he had become accustomed. The man's frankness was a surprise, but he doubtless told the truth. He knew his own nature better than those people do who hope after a life of sin to repent in their last hours and be received into heaven. There is reason to believe that such changes are very rare. Of men who live in sin, as of men who live for God, it may generally be said, when this life ends, as it was said in olden times, of the Apostles:

LIEUT. VICTOR BAUMANN. SECOND EXECUTIVE OFFICER. CAPT. OTTO SVERDRUP. PETER HENRIKSEN. SECOND MATE

Being let go, they went to their own company. (Acts 4: 23).

Rags Becoming Paper.

An article in a scientific journal describing the process of paper-making, contains an interesting account of the methods employed to cleanse the rags out of which the best paper is made. There is more difficulty in washing a pile of rags than in washing the garments in a whole condition. It is necessary to use chemicals to rid them of the dirt, and these chemicals not only affect the quality of the paper when the rags have been transformed into that material, but they affect the ink when the paper is written upon. It often happens that of two letters written with the same ink, the writing of one loses its color quicker than the other, because the paper in that case was made of rags which had been heavily soaked with acids. Thus, although dirty rags can be made into snow-white paper, they will not make paper so good as that which is made of clean rags. As the transformation of rags into paper is often used to illustrate the change that conversion makes in a man, it is well to remember that the degree of foulness is a factor in the illustration. The grace of God saves the converted man from the guilt and punishment of his sin, but it does not make of him so good, or so useful a man as he would have been, if he had not committed it. He suffers loss. The father of the prodigal forgave him, but he said to the brother, "All that I have is thine."

Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Not one (Job 14: 4).

Trees that Escape Lightning.

A collection of statistics as to the trees that are struck by lightning has been made by Dr. D. Jonesco, the results of which he sends to a scientific journal. He finds that certain kinds of trees are more liable than others to suffer from an electrical discharge. In a dense forest where trees of various kinds grow near together, the lightning will strike a particular one and leave the others unscathed. Among the sufferers the most frequent is the oak, while the tree most seldom struck is the laurel. The professor has arrived at the conclusion from his study, that the more oil a tree contains the more it is protected from lightning. The laurel contains much oil while the oak has scarcely any, the rule holds, the professor says, in every case he has investigated. In every group of trees in which one has been blasted, he has found that the injured tree contained less oil than any other member of the group. It is not explained why the electric fluid avoids trees impregnated with oil, but doubtless a scientific reason will be found. A spiritual counterpart of the phenomenon, however, is easily understood. When Satan's shafts are hurled against the Church in the shape of false doctrine, worldliness, or temptation in any form, those who fall are always they who have least of the oil of the Holy Spirit in their hearts.

But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you . . . and ye shall abide in him. (1 John 2: 27.)

THE "FRAM," WHICH CARRIES THE LATEST POLAR EXPEDITION.

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

Kindness to Dumb Creatures.

Training Children in Ways of Gentleness—How to Help the Home Education.

THE strongest ally of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and of the anti-vivisection associations is, perhaps, the "science work" done in the kindergartens, where children, at their most impressionable age, are familiarized with the life of many little flying, swimming, creeping and crawling creatures, and become sympathetic and comprehensive friends of the lower animals. Cruelty—and cruelty leads to crime—is largely the result of ignorance. Three-year-old Tom breaks his toy open to see what rattles inside; and the same spirit of investigation, and not a desire to hurt, prompts his exploring finger when it digs at baby's eye. Wise teachers train this spirit of investigation into one of gentle watchfulness: Tommy becomes so interested in the nest Mr. and Mrs. Wren are building with such care, that he wouldn't for the world injure that excellent abode; he has equal interest in Mr. and Mrs. Stickleback and all the little Sticklebacks who live in the aquarium; and as for the Busy-Bee family, and that wonderful folk, the Ants, Tommy learns from them lessons of great profit.

Although Sunday Schools meet but once a week, and their opportunity is not so great of course as that of kindergartens, which hold every day, they are doing much specific work towards teaching little folks the law of intelligent kindness towards the humble creatures God has made. The churches of Colorado have a "Kindness to Animals Sunday" in their Sunday Schools; so have many churches in Utah, and also many churches in England. There is but a step from inconsiderateness and cruelty to the cat, the dog, and our excellent friends, the horse and the cow, to inconsiderateness and cruelty to a human being that happens to be in our power; and our race will be the gainer from impressing upon our children the law of kindness towards the brute creation as a principle, and as a matter of rational observance. Extremes, where the comfort and happiness of a household are sacrificed to a mistaken notion of Pussy's or Fido's claims, are of course to be deplored; these cases are not those of rational observance, and are happily exceptions.

The Anti-Vivisection Society propose to have at their forthcoming Fair, walls on one side of the hall covered with pictures of [illegible] undergoing the tortures of vivisection, on the other a collection of such heart-rending scenes as that in our picture, showing how [illegible] our wheel and four-footed friends have done for art, for domestic use, and for the general welfare of the race. We [illegible] our little brothers and [illegible] to each other, as they are [illegible] to their long-eared play-fellows who live in the barn, that we can produce more. Boys who [illegible] our pets and [illegible] who are practising the law of kindness! Children who learn to feel and care for their pets are building up character.

Mary's Little Lamb.

We all know about Mary's lamb—how
It followed her to school one day
Which was against the rule—
It made the children laugh and play
To see a lamb at school.

Mary was a real person, her full name being Mary E. Sawyer. When quite a little girl she found a half-dead, motherless lamb, and nursed it back to life. It became her constant companion and plaything, and one day she took it to school, which she purposely reached before the rest of the scholars, and stowed the lamb away under her seat, where it lay contentedly until it was Mary's turn to recite, when it ran after her down the aisle, to the uproarious delight of the children and the confusion of the teacher who had "lambie" put outside, where he waited and followed his mistress home. A visitor, John Roulston, composed the poem, and gave a copy to Mary. The first time lambie was sheared, Mary's mother knit her two pairs of the stockings of the wool, and these Mrs. Tyler treasured to her eightieth birthday. When the "Old South Church," of Boston, was raising money she unraveled a pair of the stockings and wound the yarn on small cards, upon which she wrote her autograph, and these cards were sold for upward of $100. Mrs. Tyler died in December, 1889 at a ripe old age.

GOOD FRIENDS AND GOOD COMPANY.

"Being Good."

"I want to be a good girl and mind you, mamma—not a naughty girl like Flossie Gilbert; she don't mind her mamma," said little Mary in a very self-righteous moment. "Dear," said mamma, "I don't want you to try to be good just because somebody else is naughty." Then mamma told her little daughter the story of the Pharisee, who thanked God that he was not as other men. "I want you to be good, dear," she finished, "for goodness' sake—just because you love to be good. I want you to mind me, just because you love me, and not because some other little girl doesn't mind her mamma. Indeed, I want you to be so busy being good, that you won't have time to see that any one else is naughty. Above all, I want you to love God, not because somebody else doesn't love him, but because you can't help loving him."

Furnishing the Doll-House.

Furnishing the doll-house can be made a most entertaining business for little folks, when rainy days keep them in-doors. The doll-house may be a paper-box, or a series of paper-boxes, connected by doors which Jack and Rosy may contrive for themselves. The catalogue books, distributed by merchants supply the furniture. A store may be set up and stocked from these, and "shopping" is great fun. A pair of small, sharp-pointed scissors and a glue-pot are essentials; while paint-boxes and colored crayons are useful if the little house-makers want to stain floors and paint windows. Stoves, hardware, tables, china, etc., for kitchen, pantry, and dining-room; portierres for doors; cabinets, easy chairs, divans, lamps, and vases for parlor; books and book-cases for library; plants for conservatory; even pictures to hang on the wall, and bolts of damask for the linen-closet can be had just by cutting them out of the catalogues—or buying them with make-believe money at the catalogue store. Meanwhile, Jack and Rosy are learning something of the art of home-making.

The Kachins of China.

The little known Kachins living in inaccessible regions of the mountains of Yunanese China, have been visited by three enterprising tourists on wheels, who describing them in Travel, say:

The Kachins care as little for the British rule on one side the mountains as for the Chinese on the other. They are as fond of rocks as goats, and no Kachin will walk along a valley if he can by any possibility climb over a range of crags. The Kachin has no written language. When the nats, say they, gave the nations the knowledge of writing, the directions to the Kachins were inscribed on a hide. But some foolish Kachin got hungry and ate the hide, and so the race does not bother about spelling or grammar. One afternoon there was a rainbow, and on asking a Kachin where it came from, he said it stuck out of the mouth of a big crab that lives in the ocean under the earth. Earthquakes, we were interested to learn, were caused, they thought, by huge crocodiles wriggling under the ground.

Fishing in Norway.

The early fishing season in Norway—June and July—are about over, the late season, August and September, not begun, and interesting letters come from tourists there, who have been angling for salmon and trout. Of course, fishing is a Norwegian industry all the year round, but it is particularly good during the above-mentioned period. On Saturday mornings a great fish market is held at Bergen, and "the fisher folk for miles up and down the coast come with their creels and barrows and bargain with the Bergen ladies." The tourist has to pay the Government or land owner for the privilege of fishing.

In the interior he has ample opportunities of studying the simple peasants of the "Land of the Midnight Sun," and of living on salmon, fresh, smoked, salt, dried, grilled, boiled and otherwise. But milk is abundant, rich and sweet, and butter and cheese are good. The hardships and dangers of northern fjords and seas are different in kind from those of Galilee, yet the fisherman's life anywhere makes brave and daring souls—such souls as Christ loves to call now as twenty centuries ago "to be fishers of men."

LITTLE MAN.

SO you're six years old at last,
Little man!
And you mean to grow as fast
As you can.
Tall as daddy soon you'll grow,
And to business daily go,
And a lot of lessons know,
Little man!

To be clever you intend,
Little man!
You'll have money, too, to spend,
Happy plan!
In a carriage you will ride,
With your sweetheart by your side
And see all the world so wide,
Little man!

Wish to be contented first,
Little man!
Then the world may do the worst
That it can.
Pray, my boy, you may be then
Loved by all your fellow-men,
Honored, loved and trusted when You're a man!

With the blessings of the poor
And the old,
That is better far, be sure,
Than much gold.
Then your manhood will be blest
With the happiness that's best:
You can leave to heaven the rest
Little man, little man!

A Book Social.

THE children of a Mission Sabbath School in Canton, Ohio, were made happy recently by the gift of a library of 150 volumes for their own. It is called the Derby Library, after the enterprising missionary through whom the gift came. Many additions have been made since May, when the library was installed, an interesting occasion. Miss Derby describes:

"One evening a Book Social was held at the church, and the [illegible] people came and covered the [illegible]. They made a cheerful picture, chatting and laughing merrily as needles flew back and forth, while piles of [illegible] covered books grew higher and higher. When we left for home, one bright little fellow of ten years took with him the Life of Grant. Instead of [illegible] with his mother, he ran on ahead to the electric light, beneath which he sat on the curb and read until [illegible] passed him. In a few moments [illegible] again passed us, stopping under the next electric light. This he did until he reached his home, so delighted with the book. We thank THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for the two volumes it has donated."

The pastor, Rev. J. I. Fr[illegible] and wife, have been assisted in their labors by this gift, and the library book social idea is one well worth adoption by young people in search of opportunity for doing good.

"For Conscience Sake."

It was Saturday in Philadelphia many years ago; Girard, the millionaire, was ordering [illegible] employees to return next day to load a ship. One young fellow said, "I cannot, Mr. Girard." "Why?" "We cannot work on Sundays." "You know our rules." "Yes, sir, and I have a [illegible] to support, but it is against my conscience to obey your order." "Step up to the desk and the cashier will settle with you. We men must obey the rules." But two days after, Mr. Girard recommended the young man to a friend for the position of cashier in a bank. "But you dismissed him," said the banker." "Because he would not work on Sundays, and the man who will lose his place for conscience sake would make a trustworthy cashier."

Everyday Heroism.

The commonplace duties of [illegible] mand and exemplify it. Perhaps [illegible] the dear God sees and knows of [illegible] tle fought with self and of the [illegible] over foes that attack the soul, but [illegible] roism is heroism all the same. [illegible] crown of conquest is as truly glorious if all the world beheld its shining. [illegible] ly little tasks done, humbly, faithfully, [illegible] love and duty's sake, and not for [illegible] reward; truth spoken because it [illegible] when the speaking is hard; the [illegible] swer that turneth away wrath; the [illegible] that covers one's own heartache [illegible] soothes another's—all in the [illegible] spirit which does not seek or exact [illegible] the recognition of praise or gratitude [illegible] these are the signs by which we, with [illegible] eyes to see, may know the hero or [illegible] of every-day home-life.

SANESSA'S LIST

A Story of Humble Life and Well-doing.

WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

BY FLORENCE CUNNINGHAM.

THE two Hull sisters, their arms full of bundles, walked hastily up their narrow, primly flower-bordered path, and mounted the six precipitous front steps. They were returning from the first nsuperintended shopping expedition their lives, although Sanessa, the ounger, had lived nearly fifty years of a ife, hose quietude and retirement gave her look of youthful middle age. Ra- elaved one arm and its bundle threatening at a couple of promenading chick- s she walked across the little porch, a window, and raised a tiny crack. No much use lockin' a door when the A ncy's open right beside it," she said with gentle sarcasm. "I'd like to know what Eben would a'said to that."

"Well, it's a good thing he ain't here to see ny of our goin's on to-day," returned her sister. "Though it's well enough we wouldn't be doin' 'em if he was. Here, I'll hold your bundles while you t the key—it's in your pocket, don' ? Well, you don't say, there s the lock! Of all things, Rachel you must have been flustered to forget to take it out!"

They proceeded cautiously into the barely furnished front room and deposited their parcels on the floor. Then they sat down and looked deprecatingly at each other.

"What would Eben say to that," Rachel exclaimed, picking up a box which she uncovered, disclosing a shining set of bone-handled knives. "Mellers said black-handled ones was good enough for anybody. I know we could a bear 'em, and we've used nothin' but' em for fifty years. We're goin to uses these every day, Sanssa, but don't you fergit. and put the handles in hot water. Eben used to say you'd crack every dish in the house washin' 'em in boilin' water.'

"Yes, an' I won't never uphold Eben in his talkin' that a-way. They can be done decent in warm water. That's all about it. I ain't never told you about Ann Bolton hearin' him a lecturin' me one morning—you's down cellar churning—he was on the back step, and I hear him tell me my water was boilin' erlastin' hot, and she called me to see she wanted me for somethin and then she said real low and fierce 'Don't you stand it, Sanessa ful that's a goin' a little too far, for Eben Merrill's meddlin' and Yankeeness an' sticken' his nose into women's affairs. Just you make him wash the dishes if he knows how so well all he's a-botherin' about your wastin' the soap.' An' she went on a whole lot—it was kind a funny—Ann so terrible excitable. You and me don't hold anything real strong agin him do we? Course we weren't ever done of him, jest a step-mother's son, and so much older than we was, and so terribly like, though land knows we got use enough to him—some ways we never got to be real fond of him—wasn't it true Rachel? Well, there, I hope I don't said anything I ought to be ashamed of—what's the use in bein' free to do as you please anyway, if it's goin' to be Eben this an' Eben that all the time." To which challenging burst Rachel made no response—a fact which seemed to afford her sister sufficient satisfaction—for they both sat quietly for some moments.

"What all did you get in the far end of the store, Sanessa?" inquired Rachel at last. "You undo your bundles and then I'll do mine. It's gettin' late."

Sanessa untied the various parcels she had brought in, and exhibited with pride several articles of household use and adornment, chiefly the latter. As she finally picked up a small, round, paper-wrapped object, a flush overspread her rather delicate countenance. Her expression was singularly changeful and typical of her varying moods to a degree according oddly with the positive commonplaceness of her ordinary little figure and stubby work-room hands.

She held the tiny object—a pill box to all appearances—in her palm and glanced hesitatingly at her sister.

"What's that?" Rachel asked curiously.

"Well 'taint anything much to look at," Sanessa answered, still not removing the wrapping. "It's just some of that corn-salve that Mis' Appleby told me about a long spell back," she added defiantly. "Eben he said he didn't have any faith in salves, and I just made up my mind I'd try some, some time."

"Well, how on earth 'd you remember so long?" queried her mystified sister. It must a been high on twenty years ago that Mis' Appleby told you that. It's a wonder they had it in stock."

"It was at the top of my list," Sanessa answered, and then stopped in consternation.

"Your list!" repeated her sister. "Sanessa Hull, you didn't make a list of things you wanted when Eben would be here no longer?" she demanded, leaning forward eagerly.

"Well, what if I did? What do you want to know so bad for?" Sanessa retorted with asperity.

"'Cause I did, too," answered Rachel unexpectedly, and they both laughed a little nervously.

"I'll just tell you Rachel how I came to," said Sanessa. "I ust to lie awake nights thinking over all the things I hankered after and couldn't have, and by'n by there were so many I couldn't remember 'em all, so I wrote 'em down—those t'I was sure I'd forget. Often an' often I've got out of bed in the night to write 'em. I started with this corn salve an' I hope it'll be as good 's it 'peared like it would when I ust to lie awake thinkin' of it," and she carefully removed the paper, and stared meditatively at the label pasted on the box cover. "I couldn't somehow bring myself to write 'em out in black and white," said Rachel slowly, "an' Eben allers so well and hearty, exceptin' his rheumatics. I wanted him to live 's long as he could. The mornin' after he died though seemed like I couldn't wait no longer." Here it was Rachel's turn to blush—a painful, smarting blush that brought the tears to her eyes. "I guess I was all wound up," she concluded, smiling feebly into her sister's sympathetic face—while the tears dropped slowly down her patience-lined cheeks and fell on her loosened bonnet strings. "I hev allers hated to be one of them that cries," she said at last taking out her handkerchief and wiping her eyes, "an' I haven't ever been able to hold back t' mount to anything." This was a moment of rare weakness for Rachel, and Sanessa scarceiy knew how to meet it. "I never saw you cry but twice, Rachel," she denied with ready championship.

But Rachel had arisen and was laying aside her wraps. "Let's get these things out of the way before any one comes in," she said, picking up the scattered bundles and piling them in one arm. "Saturday we can get some more of the things on our lists. 'Twon't do to go down to the store too often. Like enough we'll have to take the train to Bridgeport 'fore we're through, or we'll have the whole town knowin' every single thing we've got. Then they'll say, 'them Hull girls are just runnin' through their money, now Eben's out the way'—for all they ust to pity us for his closeness with us." Setting her chin grimly above a small mountain of parcels, she moved carefully across the room toward the closet door. After spending some minutes in arranging her purchases neatly on the closet shelf, she betook herself to the kitchen whence she appeared immediately to announce to her yet quiet sister, "Do you know we've set here pretty near an hour? I declare these days ain't a bit like other days. Land knows they're all queer enough without Eben around! Come Sanessa, let's get dinner, if it is nearer supper-time, and then we'll work till bed-time puttin' the things where they're goin' to stay."

And the hours till bed-time were well filled, arranging and rearranging the new table-covers, and picture-scarfs, though there were few pictures to need such adorning and all the tidies, throws and mantle decorations, which Sanessa's list had contained. For Rachel's less decorative mind found its expression in soberer and more useful furnishings. She had even gone so far, in the first ardor of her extravagance, as to order, with inward trepidation, a dining-table from Bridgeport, whose transportation from that town to the Hull doorstep began to trouble her, as she assisted Sanessa in relaying the front room table cover for the fourth time before locking up and going to bed. "Folks'll see it driving up to the door, and it's goin' to be terrible handsome," she said. "I told Mr. Appleton to have 'em send one all brown and shiny with big feet like claws. You remember the time when Eben took us to Bridgeport when we's girls, 'cause he was afeared to leave us in the house alone. I saw one in a furniture store that I shant never forget. Eben said it was a great big piece of nonsense, and wouldn't hardly let me stop to see it, though I wish't I could get one like it now. That was thirty years—no, just twenty-eight years ago this autumn. You mind it well, don't you Sanessa?" She smiled at her sister with dreamy tenderness as she put one hand gently down on the soft gray chenille of the finally adjusted table-cover and stood lost in wistful meditation. Sanessa's uneventful and seemingly wasted youth secretly disturbed Rachel once in awhile. It was not quite clear to her always whether the care of Providence or Eben's stringency had regulated the course of events which occasioned it. "Well I reckon I do, Rachel," Sanessa said humorously, "Seein' it was the only time I ever changed words with a man I hadn't known all my life. Don't make any difference if he was only a brick-layer that dropped mortar on my best bonnet—he was terrible polite, now, wasn't he?" They both laughed at Sanessa's time-worn little joke. Rachel with an indulgence revealing lingering pride in the once pretty sister, whose comeliness had received its most openly flattering recognition from the stalwart young hod-carrier of that one day's experience in Bridgeport.

"You could a'had word with plenty of 'em," replied Rachel, dimly conscious of a return of her troubled sense of the frustrations of fate. "Many's the chances you could 'ahad if you'd a'been let—you was that pretty, Sanessa."

"Oh, no I wasn't, Rachel," her sister protested, much embarrassed; "I was just young, and couldn't help bein' happy, times." She moved away hastily as a signal for the heading off of further comments on herself. Sanessa was like many persons given to habits of harsh and cursory self-analysis, in that she sought to avoid what might lead to another's opinion or criticism of her.

However, the table arrived safely and the neighbors contrived to keep their curiosity within bounds until reasonable space of time should elapse in accordance with their rules of etiquette, and wherein they might concoct good and sufficient excuses for "runnin' over to see the Hull's new fixin's," as they put it among themselves.

Time passed with occasional expeditions to the village store, and now most of the procurable artlcles which the list demanded were erased forever from the long line of treasures craved so many hopeless years.

"O, don't it all seem like a dream, Rachel," gasped Sanessa, looking around on the heap of purchases the evening after their final journey to the store. "Now I lie awake afeard to breathe almost, it seems so sort of like it was goin' to fade away, and Eben be sittin' here in this room all bare like it used to be."

"I dunno, Sanessa." Rachel answered slowly as though striving to express a latent idea, "Now that we've got nearly all that we reely want, I'm beginnin' to be glad to stop buyin'—just for ourselves, you know. It's gettin' kind a sickenin.'"

"O but Rachel think how long we went without things that we hankered after more'n some people hanker after their meals," her sister said reproachfully. "Yes, I know, you don't need to tell me that Sanse." Rachel said with gentle dignity using the childish name as she did when Sanessa specially merited it. "But I don't find any great satisfaction in doin' things to pleasure myself—cause I don't exactly call fillin' out these lists, pleasurin'—you see the house needs 'em—mostly all anyway" she conceded passing over certain of Sanessa's extravagances with sisterly magnanimity. "But after that we'd best stop right short, for our own peace of mind if nothin' else—or I don't reckon but what we'll be worse than those old Roman fellers in the boarder's book after their extravagances. Some ways I feel reckless like already."

(To be Continued.)

"THEIR ARMS WERE FULL OF BUNDLES."

CHILDREN OF THE FALLEN.

A Quiet Home in the Virginia Hills Where they are Sheltered and Educated—Rev. Dr. Wharton's Whosoever Home and Schools

THE WHOSOEVER FARM (ON EITHER SIDE OF THE ROAD) AT LURAY, VA.

THE far-famed vale of Chamouny is not more lovely and picturesque than the charming little Page Valley which lies between the Blue Ridge Mountains and the Massanutton, and forms a part of the great Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. In the heart of this beautiful region lies Luray, a village of three thousand inhabitants. Two miles to the westward flows the bright sparkling river which the Indians named Shenandoah, the "Daughter of the Stars." Between the two are the famous Luray Caverns, the most magnificent subterranean wonders yet discovered. A mile to the east is another wonder of peace and contentment, where the hands and hearts of benevolent men and women have provided a home and school for helpless children. It is known as the "Whosoever Home and Schools."

About ten years ago three children, two boys and a girl, whose father had been killed, and whose mother was in the penitentiary, fell into the hands of Rev. H. M. Wharton, D. D., the well-known Pastor-Evangelist of Baltimore. With these three children and five dollars, the work began. Securing the service of a widow lady and her niece, and renting their home, the door was opened for destitute children, without regard to creed or denomination, preference being given to the children of the fallen and outcast. It was unique in its character and at once arrested the attention of the public. Applications came from societies for protection of children, and from mothers whose husbands were criminals or drunkards, and from poor lost creatures who desired that their daughters at least might be saved. The needs were so pressing and widespread that Dr. Wharton saw there must be an enlargement of his work. Not having the means at hand to purchase larger premises, he moved them to his old home at Luray, Virginia, and located them on a farm which he purchased within a mile of the town. The railroad and turnpike run through the farm, the scenery is grand, and the location for health and charming scenery made it peculiarly fitted for the enterprise. It is about six hours from Baltimore and five from Washington. He obtained a charter from the Legislature with trustees and official boards, and all necessity provisions for its lawful and successful management. Instead of one large building he adopted the Home idea—many cottages with a matron or "Mother" for each, and a general meeting-place for meals, school and worship. Boys and girls are taken between the ages of two and ten as a rule, but the rule is often relaxed.

For several years there has been an average of a new cottage a year until there are now eight in all. There are always enough applications on hand to fill a new cottage. The farm and cottages (the farm contains 230 acres), are under the control of a superintendent and his wife, and are managed with care and judgment. It is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Bands of young women are formed to send regular contributions or to clothe and care for one or more of the little ones. Money is needed all the time and it comes. The little ones have never gone without a meal nor lacked clothing.

A GROUP OF CHILDREN AT THE WHOSOEVER HOME.

The object of the Whosoever Home and Schools is to take destitute children, and preferably children of outcasts away from their pernicious associations, and give them pure air, fresh food, clean clothes and moral surroundings. A strict regard is paid to religious influences, and without having it forced upon them, they are surrounded by an atmosphere of right living and right teaching, in which they may with God's help grow to be his children by the word and spirit of his grace. A good English education is given them, and they are thus prepared for their life work.

LITTLE FOLKS AND THEIR PET

As this work becomes known it grows in popularity. The children are taught self-respect and hope and usefulness. Recently Dr. Wharton and the management have opened the doors to children of soldiers who may be killed or disabled in the present war, or indeed any child of a soldier who is in the army serving his country and who needs help. The tender of these homes was very kindly received by the government. In view of this fact it becomes necessary to greatly enlarge the facilities at the Farm. If friends respond with their usual patriotism and enthusiasm this amount will be contributed in a very short time.

A short time ago, a boy eight years old went all the way from Flushing, Long Island, to Luray, Va., alone. He had only a little tag on his jacket which read: "Friends will please help this little fellow to Dr. Wharton's Whosoever Farm at Luray, Va." He was kindly treated by every one and came all right.

Last October Dr. Wharton was holding a series of meetings in Macon, Ga. He heard of the death of a fallen woman who had left a child only eight years old. He sought to get possession of her, and found a beautiful, bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked girl. She was in the possession of an aged grandmother, who said: "There is nothing for her but a life like her poor mother. I'll soon be gone; then no one will care for her." The child is now at the Farm, and two others like her from the same city.

A few days ago a poor widow of Norfolk, Va., applied for admission for her little boy. Her son, on whom she depended for a living, is on the gunboat Nashville, now off the coast of Cuba. The child will be taken, and the mother, too, if necessary.

Dr. Wharton has received a letter from General Fitzhugh Lee asking him to include the children of Cuban soldiers in his homes and he has consented to do so. This will add greatly to the work and needs of the Farm, but is a fine opportunity for the little Cubans.

The Whosoever Home and Farm is a cheerful, happy place. Every summer, Gospel meetings and assemblies are held in the beautiful grove near by, and people come from far and near to enjoy the meetings.

Any who may be interested in this blessed work and who desire to obtain information, may address Rev. H. M. Wharton, D.D., Baltimore, Md., who will answer all inquiries.

A Japanese Woman Editor.

Masa Jakahashi, business manager of the Hawaii Shinpo, is a Japanese woman, wife of the proprietor. The publication, the oldest Japanese paper in Hawaii, has, of course, a larger circulation in the Japanese colony there than any other paper, and is advertised as being much read in Japan and by Japanese throughout the world. Masa Jakahashi is a bright, busy, nervous little woman, speaks several languages, and is said to be very successful in her avocation.

NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE

THE appearance of the first numb of Northfield Echoes for 1898 minds us very forcibly that summ has again come round, bringing with the Conferences, to which so many lo forward from year to year. The seas opens with the World's Student Conf ence, at which the speakers were the R Edward Judson, D.D., son of Adonir Judson, the missionary; Mr. Robert Speer, of New York; Revs. J. Bell Jol son (England), R. P. Mackay (Toron Prof. Bosworth, President A. H. Stro Chancellor McDowell, Dr. C. I. Scofie Mr. D. L. Moody and others. This c ference has been most successful. h dreds of young men have gone away fr Northfield with a new joy and place their hearts and a firm resolve to be and out for Christ. The meeting held the last Sunday afternoon for those w as Mr. Moody termed it, were "dissatisf with the low level of their Christian l and anxious to attain a higher one. perhaps the one which will live longes the memory of those present.

It was from these Young Men's C ferences the first of which was held in that all the Student Volunteer moveme sprang. Next in order was the Y. W. C Conference which is now going on. M of the above speakers are again pres beside several others, among whom be mentioned Mrs. M. E. Sangster Dr. Julia Morton Plummer. Then c mencing on Friday, July 29th, and tinuing until Thursday, Aug. comes the oldest Northfield g ering, the "General Confer for Christian Workers," w this year celebrates its eighte birthday. The meetings are in the Auditorium, which 2,500 persons. Among the sp ers will be the Rev. Georg P. McGregor and the Rev Campbell Morgan from Lo England; Rev. R. G. Torre the Bible Institute, Chicago; C. I. Scofield, D. L. Moody others. The Rev. George McGregor was born in 18 Scotland. He was educat the University of Edinburg for six years was pastor church in Aberdeen.

About four years ago h came pastor of Trinity Pr terian Church, Notting Hil it is during his summer vac that we in America have the lege of hearing from him which he has received fro Lord. The Rev. G. Cam Morgan was born in 1863, in cestershire, England. He be a master in the Jewish Coll School, Birmingham. He teaching and became an ev list in the town of Hull. he accepted a call to the Congregational Church, a 1893 became pastor of a c at Birchfield, Birmingham. In 18 first visited Northfield.

The Camp Gospel Fund.

The following contributions for ca on Christian work in the Camps, Mr. Moody's auspices, have been re during the week:

Prev ack'd	$1,411.96
Andrews, D & C.	5 00
Boiler, Mrs J P.	2 00
Bechtel, Miss Sue	25
Brailford, B	2 00
Bratton, Mrs S H	1 00
Brown, A	1 00
Dumas, Miss N J	1 00
Frank, J Seward	3 00
Frost, A R	2 00
Goode, Mrs Sarah	3 00
Gilliugh, Mrs S C	25
Grubs, Joanna	1 00
Grassel, Mrs	1 00
Grove, Mrs G C	15
Hanley Mrs S L	35
Hawes, Mrs M J	1 00
Hegeman, Mrs B A	25 00
Hitchcock, Miss C A	2 00
Hulskauper, Mrs J A E.	5 00
Jackson, Rev B F	1 00
Lawrence, Mrs A R	5 00
Lightner, A	10
Lightner, Mrs Adam	50
Lanuger, Miss B	10
Maye, L A	10 00
Middleton, Samt P	3 00
Peightle, Miss Bertha	10
Quale, R J	2 00
Richards, Wm.	1 00
Rickerd, Mrs	05
Shaw, Mrs H N	50
Stine, M H	1 50
Thomas, D	2 00
Zann, Wm	1 00
Texan, Navasota	1 00
W F, Ft Mcginnis
Mrs T E Holman
M R, Menominee
Friend, G—
Friend N, Newark
Friend, Manistee
HIN from CAS, Pl
Reader, Canaan
Sympathizer, Mari
—, Balto
For Christ's Sake, land
Trin Cong Ch, Cas
Jr C E, New Lon
Y L Mission of C
Ch, Belvidere
Clinton M E Ch
1st Pres Ch, Mars
Cong Ch Carlisle
Owen, Miss A W
copies of New T
SS class of Boys,
wick, 1 doz, 6 c
of New Testam
Roe, Rev S W 66
ies of St Johns
An American Gi
copy New Testa
Mercy and Help of Epw League, nience, 30 copie
Psalms
Do Do 25 copie
St Johns Gosp
Total	$1,519.71

All contributions will be acknowl in these columns.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Boys and Colts—Lovers' Puzzles—Mothers' Boys—Sunday School in the Wilderness. A Discouraged Orphan—Domestic Hints, Etc.

PARENTS of boys in their teens must learn to be very patient, because at that age many young men are very impatient of control and very fond of taking their own way. Sometimes the best ing that can happen to them is to l tlm have their own way and find out e erience that it is not the best. A h pirited boy is something like an n ned colt and needs very gentle treatn est his spirit shall be broken, or he nform bad habits, which will handicap n rough life. There comes a time in t e of almost every youth when he we ts of school, and to some extent r be against home restraints, and thinks t thing in the world would be quite so dightful as to go into business or s t ut in a strange place all by himself. t tl parents in this case love their boy bette than themselves, they will desire t d what will be best for him in the en . They will not desire merely to carry th ir w n point. The thing most important at the moment is the boy's present, an l nging on that the boy's future. If a lad as a fine mind, is fond of books and st d and expresses himself naturally in w t y, then it is a great pity to have his sch l life interrupted too early; and by pers sion, even by a little pressure, he sho be induced to remain where his int l tual development will go on successfully. On the other hand, many bright, v cl vitted and very clever boys have no s cial aptitude for books. Their field is rat r that of action; they need to know men. It is as well for them to go into b sin s early, because, all things consider , the better start and the earlier start man has in the crowded business worl the more satisfactory will be his pro s.

* * *

It ems a pity that so many of us must earn nly by experience, and that a boy who as a loving father, and other kind relat s about him should wish to go to a d tance and start into life among strar rs; yet that may be after all just the c cipline our Father in heaven sees s be for him, and if this is the case pare s must be willing to trust God and to b eve that their boys will come out all rit in the end. I say this to encourage some who are in perplexity on this point.

* * *

O young friend—a boy, shall I call m away from home, and yet he has pass boyhood and has fairly entered upon anly life, having been for several year teacher, finds himself in a dilemma! He in love with one of his pupils, and he i still so young that he cannot honorably ake the matter known to her. He think of going to a distant State and waiti several years before revealing to the ung lady the state of his affections. This trikes me very favorably, as it is quite robable that in another place he may eet another young lady as attractive him as the one whom he at present admires, and in the meantime she will be quite free to choose among suitors nearer home. Should the very improbable contingency arise that the young lady remains free, and the young man remains loyal in several years from now, he may very properly begin the task of courting her. Certainly in his present position it would be most improper for him to make any advances.

I really must ask friends not to consult me so often about love affairs, as the responsibility of giving advice is quite wearing, while I am always aware that advice in matters of this kind will not be taken unless it happens to suit the fancy of the inquirer. And I am just at my wits' end over these troublesome questions.

* * *

A MOTHER, who lives so far away that it took her letter twenty days to cross the continent to reach this office, writes to me most touchingly about her dear little girl of twenty-one months, whom God took from her to heaven six years ago. A mother whose little one is with the angels has a treasure in heaven, and no mother, whatever else she may lose, can ever be robbed of the honor which is put upon her when God takes her little one to himself. This mother has a little boy in her home, whom she loves most tenderly, but about whom she is anxious. She says: "The dear little fellow is so obstinate and hard to control. I often get out of patience with him, and then I am so worried when he is out of my sight, that I have not a moment's peace. The nearest church is eighteen miles from our house, so that we very seldom have an opportunity to hear preaching, and in this community the Sabbath is very much the same as a week day. Do not infer from this that we are heathens. Most of the people are intelligent and kind, but are rather worldly-minded. There seems to be no one who has any talent for running a Sunday School. My greatest desire is to train my little boy in the right way. We have with us on our ranch an orphan boy twelve years old, who is at times a great trial. It is very hard to impress him, and I get very much discouraged. I wish I knew just what to do. We have no relatives near us, and our life is a lonely one."

* * *

WHY DO YOU not begin a Sunday School yourself? You have your own child and the orphan boy, and probably the neighbors would be glad to let their children come, too. You might begin each week by a little simple prayer, just talking to your heavenly Father in the same simple way in which you have made known the circumstances of your life to me. The children might recite the Lord's Prayer in concert. You might have singing, which they would enjoy. If you have no hymn-books or library books, if you will give me full directions about sending them to you, I think I can get you enough to begin with. It is very hard to keep up one's Christian life away from church privileges and with no prayer meeting or Sunday school. Among your friends there must, however, be some one who, like yourself, turns longingly backward in thought to the days of early life, when they had the opportunity to hear God's word and to worship him in his home. By putting yourself into connection with the Home Missionary Society of whatever denomination you prefer, you can take the initial step towards getting a church and pastor; but if you cannot yet have the church, you can have the Sunday school, and that in itself will be a great step toward the object in view.

* * *

TRY not to worry about the little boy when he is out of your sight. Nothing frets a small boy like having his mother constantly nagging and worrying over trifles. Give him a little longer tether than you have done. For instance, when he goes out, say to him, "I shall expect you to come home about such a time," or "I do not wish you to go more than such a distance away," and leave a little margin so that he will not be disobedient if he is not back at the exact moment you set. Both your own child and the little motherless boy in your care should have set duties and responsibilities every day; certain things which they must punctually do. It is not a bad thing for a little fellow growing up to have certain chores which he must always attend to. If you have chickens or cows or horses or any live stock, the children can help with them. I do not know just what work there is about your place, but I am very sure that in a country home there is plenty which a boy might do. In the meantime, trust in God; be bright and cheerful, and all will come out right.

* * *

INDEED, dear troubled friend, you may be sure that I will remember you when I pray. "Are not two prayers a perfect strength," and has not God said that "Where two or three shall ask anything in my name, it shall be given?" Your request that the sufferings of your dear sister may be mitigated, seems to me a very proper one to carry to the throne of grace, and I am sure the dear Lord will hear you and grant you his blessing.

* * *

A LONG LETTER came to me the other day from a friend in a distant State. She outlines a condition of domestic affairs which is exceedingly difficult to deal with, also exceedingly delicate for an outsider to step into and interfere. Let me say to you, my friend, that there are times in life when compromise is weakness; there are times when compromise is strength. You, as a sensible Christian woman in possession of all the facts, must know better than anyone else whether in your case compromise is the first or the second of these. In all probability your family will be happier; your children better brought up; your husband and yourself will live in more agreeable relationship, if as a family you live by yourselves. It is always a dangerous thing to bring into the household as a permanent element a person not equally congenial to both husband and wife; when, as in the instance of which you speak, the person is apparently always the cause of dissension, of coolness and of discord in the household, it is certainly much better that she should not make her home with you. Homes are intended primarily for parents and children; other persons entering them for a longer or shorter period, do not form an integral part of the home; they are simply there on a friendly footing and the element of permanence does not enter into the condition, nor is it well that it should.

* * *

BEFORE closing this number of "Friends in Council," I wish to give another excellent remedy for burns sent by one of our friends. Boil one egg hard until the yolk will crumble; then mix the yolk with clean, fresh lard into a soft salve and apply. This sometimes cures a burn when linseed oil and lime water have failed.

Margaret E. Sangster

Ive You Asthma or Hay-fever?

Medical Science at last reports a positive cure for Asthma and Hay-fever in the West African Kola Plant, about which so much has lately been said in the medical journals. Its cures are really marvelous. Rev. J. L. Combs, of Martinsburg, West Va., writes it cured him of Asthma of thirty years standing, and Mrs. E. Johnson, of No. 417 Second St., Washington, D. C., testifies that for years she had to sleep propped up a in chair in Hay-fever season, being unable to lie down night or day. The Kola Plant cured her at once. Mr. Alfred C. Lewis, editor of the Farmer's Magazine, of Washington, D. C., was also cured when he could not do so for fear of choking, being always worst in Hay-fever season. Others of our readers give similar testimony, proving it truly a wonderful remedy. As the Kola Plant is a specific constitutional cure for the disease, Hay-fever sufferers should use it before the season of the attacks when practical, so as to give it time to act on the system. If you suffer from Asthma or Hay-fever we advise you to send your address to the Kola Importing Co., 1164 Broadway, New York, who, to prove its power, will send a Large Case by mail free to every reader of The Christian Herald who needs it. In return they only request that when cured yourself you will tell your neighbors about it. It costs you nothing, and you should surely send for it.

ROYAL
Baking Powder

Made from pure cream of tartar.

Safeguards the food against alum.

Alum baking powders are the greatest menacers to health of the present day.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Eat In Haste

And suffer at leisure. When your abused stomach can no longer cheerfully and properly perform its duties, a few doses of Hood's Sarsaparilla are like fresh water to a withered plant. This medicine tones the stomach, restores digestive strength, creates an appetite and with a little care in diet, the patient is soon again in perfect health. Try it and you'll believe in it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is America's Greatest Medicine.

Hood's Pills cure constipation. 25 cents.

EDUCATION BY MAIL

Thousands have been helped to better pay & positions through our system of instruction

Buildings erected expressly for this purpose at a cost of $225,000

Courses of Steam, Electrical, Mechanical or Civil Engineering; Chemistry; Mining; Mechanical and Architectural Drawing; Surveying; Plumbing; Architecture; Metal Pattern Drafting; Prospecting; Bookkeeping; Shorthand; English Branches.

$2 A MONTH pays for a College Education at Home. 40,000 Students and Graduates.

Circular FREE. State subject you wish to study.

THE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS
Box 861, Scranton, Pa., U. S. A.

North, South, East, West
—all are represented at the

New England CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

Send for our illustrated Catalogue and learn the advantages to be obtained at the MUSICAL CENTER of the musical city of the New World.

GEORGE W. CHADWICK, Musical Director.

All particulars and Catalogue will be sent by FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

Better than Ever.

Oberlin College

The College, the Theological Seminary, the Conservatory of Music, the Academy.

Sixty-sixth year begins Sept. 21. Full information from the treasurer.

JAMES R. SEVERANCE, Oberlin, Ohio.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N. Y.

Architects, Builders of Auditoriums

We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y

THE LARGEST MANUFACTURERS IN THE WORLD OF CHURCH FURNISHINGS
OPERA AND ASSEMBLY CHAIRS.
SCHOOL FURNITURE COMPANY
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

SUMMER HOMES IN VERMONT

AND ON LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

$4.00 to $10.00 per week. Described in illustrated Book.

Sent for 5c. postage.

Address A. W. ECCLESTONE, S. P. A., C. V. R. R., 353 Broadway, N. Y.

JUST OUT ROYAL HYMNAL for the Sunday School

By REV. ROBERT LOWRY and IRA D. SANKY.

This new collection contains 232 pieces, the productions of over 100 prominent hymn writers.

The best Sunday School song book offered.

$30 per 100 by express: 35c. each, if by mail.

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS.

UNLIKE OTHER BELLS SWEETER, MORE DURABLE, LOWER PRICE. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS WHY.

Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

$18 per week and expenses to several good parties to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references

R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES: no experience needed; position permanent; self seller

PEASE MFG. CO., P. O. Box A, Cincinnati, O

The Closing Dispensation.

What Prophecy Discloses about the Final Events of the World's History.

BY REV. T. R. BIRKS, D.D.

BY what steps is the Christian Church to be conducted from her present state into the good land of promise which lies before her? What are the events in immediate prospect, and how will the present system of worldly power be exchanged for the eternal triumph of Messiah's kingdom?

To this inquiry an answer is supplied by the vision of the prophetic image in the second chapter of Daniel, representing the history of the four world-wide empires of Babylon, Medo-Persia, Greece and Rome. The close of that vision reveals to us a sudden and mighty change, in which the image shall be broken and swept away, and a new and holier kingdom be established which shall last forever. These important elements of the prophecy are full of the most thrilling interest; for they involve the immediate destinies both of the world at large, and of the whole church of God.

And, first of all, the vision sets before us a stone, cut out without hands, which smites the image on its feet and destroys it. The exact meaning of this emblem has now to be ascertained.

The stone has been expounded, by a very general consent, to be our Lord himself. And indeed his own words, in the parable seem clearly to fix its application, when he says to the Pharisees, "Whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." A difference, however, has prevailed, as to the event designed by the stone smiting the image. This was referred by some early writers to the triumphs of the Gospel after Christ's first advent.

But Theodoret and many others, with more justice, have referred it to the second coming of Christ. They saw that the stone was to smite the image on the toes of iron and clay; and that the event must therefore follow the division of the Roman Empire into ten kingdoms. The opinion has, for the same reason, been received by the best expositors of modern times.

The stone is to smite the image upon its feet of iron and clay, and the judgment is to come upon the ten kings of the divided Roman Empire. This disproves at once the interpretation which refers the prophecy to the first triumphs of the Gospel. For these were silent and gradual, not sudden and abrupt like a stone falling upon a metallic image, and they began long before the division of the empire was complete.

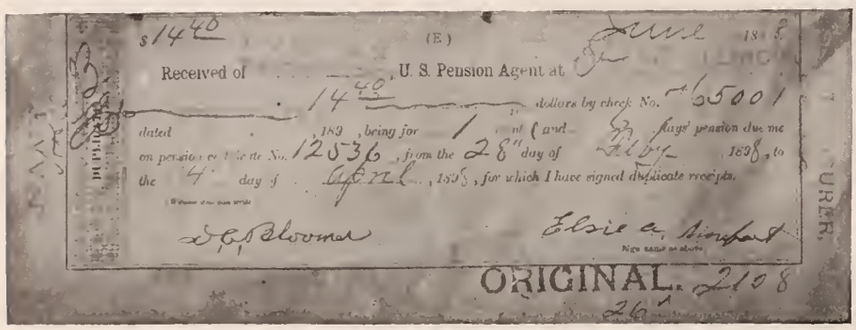
The effect of this solemn judgment will be the total destruction of the great image. "Then was the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, were broken in pieces together, and became as the chaff of the summer threshing floors." Other prophecies throw light on this mysterious emblem. The great confederacy of the Ten Kingdoms gathered in Palestine, we are taught (Isaiah 66), will be almost entirely destroyed; and the few who escape will be messengers to announce the terrible judgments of Messiah even to the ends of the world. The nations that survive shall be put under a new dispensation of righteousness.

The kingdoms of the world shall be the kingdoms of God and of his Christ. The receiving of Israel shall be as life from the dead. "The Lord will build up Zion, and he will appear in his glory." "All the ends of the earth shall turn unto the Lord, and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before him." "The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom." Glorious in the beauty of the resurrection, the "meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

Then, after a thousand years of prevailing righteousness (Rev. 20), for a short season the scattered elements of evil will unite in one last assault on the beloved land of Israel and the city of God. Afterwards will ensue the judgment of the unbelieving dead, and the final extinction of all the powers of evil. Death, the last enemy, shall be destroyed. The new heavens and the new earth shall then be manifested in their eternal beauty. The Church of the first-born shall reign forever over a redeemed world; and the nations of the saved shall walk in the light of the heavenly city.

From age to age, throughout the thousand generations of the world to come, the promise of Abraham may then be fulfilled; and new heirs of glory may be training on earth to share in the fuller blessedness of the redeemed above. Perhaps even from our planet, honored by the Incarnation of the Son of God, the streams of grace may then flow forth to distant regions of the universe; and distant worlds be awaiting their destined possessors from the race of Adam, now fallen, but then for ever redeemed.

And thus, through perpetual ages, the glory of God and of the Lamb will be more and more fully revealed. The hosts of saints and angels will themselves be lost in wonder and adoration at the stupendous vision of Divine goodness. They will adore for ever the riches of God's love; and the virtue of that one sacrifice, which could turn even the depths of ruin and misery into such a weight of glory, far surpassing in its greatness all that the heart of man or angel could ever conceive.



FIRST PENSION OF THE SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

This is a historic memento, inasmuch as it is the first pension issued by our Government during the present war. Its beneficiary is the widow of a Maine victim.

"War Testaments" for the Army.

Letters continue to arrive in constantly increasing numbers, inquiring about the "War Testament." We are now sending quantities of these unique Vest Pocket Testaments for distribution among the soldiers who have been ordered to the front, and chaplains and evangelists unite in pronouncing the volume the neatest and best adapted for the purpose that could have been devised. We will send them in packages of ten for $1, to any of our readers, or to any address they may give, or we will apply the money as a contribution to the Fund for sending these Testaments to the troops, as our readers may prefer.

Contributions for supplying the War Testament to the troops ordered to the front have been received as follows:

Previously ackd	$319 95	Gardiner Y.M.A. & Mu-
Allen, Jonas	2 85	tual Aid	2 00
Bailey, A	1 00	Goule, Mrs S	3 00
Bailey, Mrs B W	75	Hammer, Miss M	1 00
Blair, A	00	Henderson, C S	1 00
Blewett, Mrs G D	60	Heckmer, Lizzie C	1 00
Byles, Edmund T	00	Hopkins, Mrs L A	25
Cameron, Mrs	1 00	Hutchins, Chester	1 00
Crabtree, Mrs A B	50	Jordan, Miss Ora	1 00
Curtiss, Miss M	10 00	Lambdin, Edwin	50
Duggan, Mrs A	1 00	Lemming, A & B	50
Duvall, Mrs M B	1 00	Lee, Mrs J T & family	1 00
Ellis, S M	2 00	Lorenzen, C & wife	2 00
Evans, Mrs J M	1 00	McElwee, Mrs W B	5 00
Farr, Mrs P H	50	Magill, Mrs M	50
Money, Mrs I F	1 00	Mrs H M W & F W, North-
Murphy, Miss	1 00	ampton	1 00
Orr, Carrie	1 00	L——	1 00
Paxson, Alex T	1 00	L M, Montrose	1 00
Pomeroy, N M	1 00	S, Scranton	20 00
Potts, Abbian	2 00	S C S, Cresco	1 00
Price, Isabella F	1 00	W F, Ft Maginnis	2 50
Pulsifer, Mrs M V	1 00	Mrs S B, Knoxville	2 00
Richardson, A L	2 10	——, Milton	1 00
Rushmore, Mrs R	1 00	——, Madison	1 00
Stone, Louise	25	Anon, Duncan	2 00
Stone, Luther	25	Friend, F R	1 00
Trowbridge, Mrs M L	4 75	2 friends, Plainfield	1 00
Valentine, Mary S	1 00	Subr, St Louis	5 00
Van Benschoten, M A	2 75	IHN, E Hampton	1 00
Van Vranken, H H	2 50	" E Jackson	1 00
Waltman, Joseph	1 00	Y P S C E of Flatlands
Warner, Mrs S H	1 00	Ref Ch	5 00
Watkins, Mrs L	2 10	C E of R P Ch of South-
Wood, Mrs A	50	field	5 00
Yoe, Mrs C	1 00	Welsh C E Soc, Bristol	2 34
A B, Knoxville	1 00	Bapt Ch, Middletown	4 40
C D, Rantoul	50	Moth, dau & grand-
D S, Paterson	1 00	daughter, Milford	1 00
H M & H A H, Allendale	1 00	Total	$459.65
L A S, Cincinnati	1 00

All contributions for this purpose will be acknowledged in these columns.

A Royal African Convert.

In a letter from Rev. E. H. Richards, missionary at Inhambane, South Africa, an interesting experience is related concerning a converted African princess who is now engaged in Christianizing her countrywomen. Mr. Richards writes:

"Eight miles from here is an inland station, with none but native workers. I must tell you of one of these faithful ones, Fazenda by name. She is a devoted Christian, and is about thirty years old. She is a widow: indeed, I think you would hardy find in this land an unmarried woman of any such age as that. She is the daughter of a friendly chief, Mangezi. This man, although not a Christian himself is proud of his Christian daughter, holding her as the favorite among all his children. Fazenda, although of royal blood, is cramped by poverty. She has a house on the Mission Station. Here she has gathered, one by one, a little band of girls from the darkness of heathen homes, and has formed a school. This she has done unaided. In the planting season, Fazenda takes her girls with her into the garden where they sow the seed for their coming store. Who can doubt but that the other "good seed" which this consecrated woman drops, day by day, into the fresh young hearts of these girls, may "bring forth its fruit in good season." Fazenda manages as best she can for the support of this little family of hers; and yet she is unable to clothe them all.

A Perfect Infant Food

Gail Borden Eagle Brand Condensed Milk

A PERFECT SUBSTITUTE FOR MOTHERS MILK. FOR 40 YEARS THE LEADING BRAND.

"INFANT HEALTH" SENT FREE.

N.Y. CONDENSED MILK CO. NEW YORK

Inquire About It. See that your food is nutritious and easily digested. Well informed people use

WHEATLET

The Cereal Food Par-excellence.

Made of the entire wheat berry—denuded of the woody, innutritious outer covering only—it contains all the proteids and carbo-hydrate food elements essential to life. If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name and your order and we will see that you are supplied.

The genuine made only by the FRANKLIN MILLS CO., LOCKPORT, N.Y.

Your Dinner all at one time on one burner any kind of stove if you use

THE IDEAL Steam Cooker

Prevents steam and odors. Will reduce fuel bills 50 per cent. Whistles when cooker needs more water. Will hold 12 one quart cans. In Canning Fruit. Agents wanted. Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16 Toledo, O.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards conspicuously up on trees, fences, bridges throughout town and country; steady employment; commission or salary; $65 00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

Bright's Disease

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

A Veritable Antidote.

Dr. Wm. H. Drummond, Professor of Medical Jurisprudence, Bishop's University, Montreal, Canada:

"In the Acute and Chronic Nephritis (Bright's Disease of the Kidneys) of Gouty and Rheumatic origin, as well as in Albuminuria and other conditions; BUFFALO LITHIA WATER to act as a very I have found table antidote and I know of no other natural agent possessing this important quality."

George Halsted Boyland, A.M., M.D., of Paris, Doctor of Medicine of the Faculty of Paris, in the New York Medical Journal Aug. 22, '96, says:

"There is no remedy so absolutely specific in all forms of Albuminuria and Bright's Disease, whether acute or chronic, as BUFFALO LITHIA WATER Spring No. 2, accompanied by a milk diet."

For sale by Druggists and Grocers. Book of testimonials sent free on application.

PROPRIETOR, BUFFALO LITHIA SPRINGS, VA.

Springs open for guests from June 15th to October 1st.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

The King Discrowned.*

PRINCE KALONEY regarded the King for some seconds in silence, and then pointed with his free hand at the crown of Messina, which rested on the table at the king's e

"Colonel Gordon," he said, in a tone of sud authority, "I give the crown of esia into your keeping. You will con- v with all proper regard for its dig- ty afely on board the yacht and then n t at once to me."

G lon crossed the room and picked up crown from the table, lifting it both hands, the King and Barrat tg him in silence as he did so. He si ed and held it for a moment, re- rd g it with much the same expression a and amusement that a man shows e he is permitted to hold a strange bn his arms. Turning he saw the ir eyes of the King and Barrat fast- ed pon him, and he smiled awkward- a in some embarrassment, turned e own about in his hands, so the jew- it its circle gleamed dully in the dim nt f the room. Gordon raised the w and balanced it on his finger-tips, a ng it severely and shaking his head. "Here are very few of these left in the rl how, your Majesty," he said cheer- y and the number is getting smaller er ear. We have none at all in my uns; and I should think—and seeing y re so few—that those who have en ould take better care of them, and t eep them untarnished, and brushed al clean."

urned his head and looked inquir- ly t the king; but Louis made no sign t heard him.

on placed the crown carefully un- r arm, and then removed it quickly, h guilty look of dismay at its former ne and let it swing from his hand; s fashion of carrying it seemed o cking in respect: so he held it up ith both hands, and glanced at the g some perplexity.

"T re ought to be a sofa-cushion to go h is, or something to carry it on," he d a grieved tone. "You see, I'm e this sort of thing. Perhaps your lajesty would kindly give me some ex- tformation. How do you generally y ?"

The King's eyes snapped open and shut ain

"O my head," he said grimly.

-on laughed in great relief.

N , do you know, I like that?" he ed. "That shows spirit. I'm glad to e y take it so cheerfully. Well I st e going, sir," he added, nodding, n ng toward the door. "Don't be c ged. As someone says, 'It's al- ys orning somewhere,' and in my nt there are just as good men out ff as there are in it. Good night!"

One of God's Fools.†

JO came into the regiment, no one ew exactly how or where. He was t quite a "natural," but well along ard it. From a friend, who came to k f him, it was learned that he had y an injury to his head when quite ng School was of little use to him, d h ardly got beyond his letters and w ng of his name. He was always k n as "Poor Joe."

t tietam, when our regiment was n back, it was found that one of s t-mates had been wounded and e een the lines. When Joe heard t, was beside himself with grief. e th y down his gun and ran straight to th re in front, shouting: "Give me em! ive me Lem! Don't you touch e or I'll tell Mr. Lincoln! Give me m!"

Unscathed, he reached the Confederate lines. There he found Lem, picked him up and started back. A confederate soldier assayed to detain him, but the officer in command—noble fellow—shouted: "No! No! Let no one lay hands on that man and dare to call himself a soldier. Go, my brave fellow, and God preserve you." And Joe regained his regiment without a scratch, bearing his comrade in his arms.

At Gettysburg our command was supporting a battery, and Joe, exhausted from long duty, had crawled under one of the guns of the battery and gone to sleep. A shell struck near, scattering showers of earth all about. Joe awoke with eyes and ears full, got up, shook himself, brushed the dirt away as well as he could, faced the "Rebs," and, in that fearful din, shouted: "Say Johnnie, don't you do that agin, or I'll come over there and lick ye." Then he lay down under the gun again and went to sleep. One of God's fools!

*From The King's Jackal, by Richard Harding Davis, a thrilling story of political intrigue and international complication. Illustrated; 175 pp.; cloth covers; price $1.00. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, publishers.

†From Tales from McClure's War. Pp. 193, cloth covers. Illustrated. Price, 25 cts. Published by Doubleday & McClure Co., New York.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Cuba Shall Be Free. Song. Music and words by J. C. Griggs. Price 25 cents. Publisher, J. C. Griggs, Beverley, O.

Commentary on the New Testament. Vol. III; Eph.-Phil. By Rev. W. B. Godberg, A.M., author of Commentary Vols. I and II, Spiritual Gifts and Graces, Holy Land, Victory, Holiness or Hell, Christian Perfection, Sanctification, Baptism and Woman's Preacher. The author's long and successful experience as pastor, college president, evangelist, author, and translator, has enabled him to furnish a commentary of great value. For years he has read the Bible only in the original, making long use of the Sinaitic version, the best Greek text extant. Pp. 356; cloth, $1. Publishers, M. W. Knapp, Revivalist office, Cincinnati, O.

New York State, the Wampum-Keeper.

A pathetic reminder that the history of the American Indian is written "in running water" occurred some time ago, when the Onondaga chiefs, to whom the appointment of Wampum-keeper belongs, gave that office in perpetuity to the University of the State of New York, so that their remaining belts might be saved from mutilation and loss. There were not many left of the twenty or thirty which used to be kept at Onondaga, and these have gradually been despoiled in some way of many beads. In the Hiawatha belt there are but four squares left of the six which represented the six nations, and which were joined "by a line of white wampum and united to a heart in the centre, implying the union of hand and heart as one." The belts used to be kept in an elm-bark bag, and were used in council, and were also in much request at the annual white dog feast. The Indian had no written literature. History was written in scalp-locks, in the arrangement of beads on wampum belts, in rude coverings, and in traditions handed down from sire to son, from tribe to tribe.

How a Thief Was Detected.

One day, a mile from his preaching place, Lorenzo Dow came down upon a man cursing furiously, says a writer in Godey's. Asked the cause, he said, with much profanity, that some thieving loafer, come hither to hear that fool preacher, who ought to be tarred and feathered and run out of the country, had stolen his ax—his brand-new ax; and more, that by the theft he would lose a fine job cutting cord-wood.

"Come along to the preaching. I will find the thief for you." Dow said imperatively. The swearer came along, though with a face of doubt. At the meeting-house door he saw Lorenzo pick up a stone. It went with him to the pulpit, where he at once recounted the theft and ended by saying: "The thief is here. I know it. I shall hit him with this stone. When I throw it, it will not go near an honest man." Then he raised his arm above his head and made a feint at throwing the pebble. A man sitting midway the aisle involuntarily ducked his head, and stood self-confessed an evil-doer. He was let off upon his returning the stolen ax and promising to get religion before Lorenzo came again to preach, a promise which was faithfully kept.

Free Kidney and Bladder Cure.

Nature has provided a positive cure for diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism, in the New Botanic Discovery Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava Shrub. Convincing testimony of its wonderful curative powers is given by Rev. W. B. Moore, D.D., of Washington, D.C.; Mrs. James Young, of Kent, Ohio; Mr. Joseph Whitten, Wolfboro, N. H.; and many others who were cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder by Alkavis. To prove its great value, and for introduction, The Church Kidney Cure Co., No. 409 Fourth Avenue, New York, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. It is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

If you want a first class summer medicine, take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is good for the stomach, cooling to the blood, strengthening to the nerves, helpful to the whole body.

The Christian Herald in the Army

During the week the following have been received to aid in sending THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to troops in Camp and at the front:

Prev. ack	$682 07
Allan, Mrs Mary	26
Bell, Mrs Eliz A	25
Biddle, Sarah M	25
Bieber, Mrs E	50
Bond, B J	50
Borum, Mrs Andrew	25
Bowley, Jennie A	1 00
Bridgewater, Mrs	25
Buell, Emily A	1 00
Cunting, S A	1 00
Clark, Mrs J C	2 00
Clark, S K	1 00
Clark, Miss S M	50
Coats, A B	27
Cogan, J A & W W	50
Dox, Miss C J	25
Fuvall, L H	25
Gletcher, Miss A	25
Graham, Mrs W A	1 00
Hrant, Mrs S P	1 00
Hampton, Jno M	25
Harpen, Mrs Lizzie	25
Harvey, Mrs F P	26
Koopes, G Annie	1 00
Kayler, M C	25
Leeler, Mrs C H	1 00
Pawhow, Mrs C	25
McEwen, Mrs G A	1 00
Magill, Mrs. Mary	1 00
Marion, J K	50
Norris, Mrs Tillie	25
Noyes, M T	25
Pickett, Mrs Sarah	2 00
Poole, Albert	2 00
Andrews, C P	1 00
Blair, Mrs	1 00
Boal, Wm	1 00
Borland, E B	10 00
Brockway, Mrs C R	1 00
Brownell, Mrs J H	1 00
Bunstead, S J	26
Burgess, A M	50
Burk, J S	25
Caldwell, F E	25
Campbell, W F	2 00
Carpenter, Mrs L A	25
Chappell, Mrs E	25
Cooper, Katherine	1 00
Cristy, Martha	1 50
Darby, A D, Rogers, Mrs L M	50
Davis, D L	25
Davis, Mrs S M	1 00
Dennip, Mrs A M	25
Dodge, Mary	15 00
Earhart, Mrs D S	25
Fenn, Mrs E B	25
Frary, Mrs T F	25
Freeman, Mrs Geo S	50
Frost, R	1 00
Funniston, Mrs R T	50
Garrett, Zilla	25
Griswold, Mrs Ceo	1 00
Gunderson, Mrs M	1 00
Henderson, L	25
Henry, Jane M	25
Hernion, Ruth M	1 00
Hof, Jemina	25
Horrell, Sallie Ford	25
Jackson, Frank G	25
Johnson, Alice E	25
Krock, Mrs T B	1 00
Ladd, Mrs C H	25
McIntire, Chas F	25
Macomber, Mrs P C	1 00
Porter, Miss Z M	2 00
Rhodes, Wm	1 00
Robinson, Mrs S C, Otis, Mrs J B, Van Wagner, Mrs C A	75
Russell, Lucy P	25
Sammet, A H	25
Sammis, G Frank	25
Smith, J H	25
Snellings, Mrs W F	1 00
Spickler, Emily	25
White, Mrs Chas J	25
Whitman, Mrs A F	25
Yale, J W	1 00
Friend of the Soldier	25
" Edwards	26
" Lanark	1 00
Suhr, W	25
Old Subr, North Auburn	1 00
For the sake of Jesus, Manchester	25
Dunbarton Praying Band	1 50
A L M, Arcade	1 00
C M R, Baltimore	1 00
H B, Cortland	3 00
M & I, Zeeland	50
——	25
——, Iowa	25
——, Centreville	1 00
——, New London	1 50
Michael, Mary C J F	50
Myers, Mrs A	1 00
Perham, J B	25
Pomeroy, N M	1 00
Price, Isabella F	1 00
Rice, Mrs Eliza	1 00
Roach, W H	25
Ross, Miss K	1 00
Shimer, W R	25
Smith, Jennie P	3 00
Sprague, Jane H	1 35
Stewart, Mrs W T	1 00
Summers, F A	1 00
Summers, P	1 00
Tufts, Amanda	2 00
Whisname, Mrs A	1 00
Wilcox, K E	25
Wright, Mrs M C	25
Mrs H, Philadelphia	25
M A M, Syracuse	1 00
M J C, S Albany, Vt.	1 00
O H E, Gallipolis	25
——, Belle Plaine	75
——, Pa.	1 00
Anon.	25
Anon.	25
Friend, Acton	1 00
do Meyerhoeffin Store, Va	1 00
Friend, New York City	25
Friend, New York City	1 00
Friend, Rothsville	50
Friends in Hazard	1 25
I H N, S Gardiner	1 00
I H N, Lafayette, Ind	25
Reader, Sprague	1 00
Sub'r, Chicago	1 00
C E Soc 1st Ref Ch Marion, O	1 50
Mother, Kanesholm	1 00
Veteran Co G 2d N J	25
One of your readers, Black Gap	25
Total	$806 73

Delicate Silks

"White and light delicate silks can be successfully washed in warm suds made from Fairy Soap. Rinse in clear, warm water, and iron on wrong side when half dry."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and one Fairy Soap wrapper to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of our booklet, "Fairy Tales," second series, larger and handsomer than the first, and containing new stories and illustrations.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE.

Agents who desire a profitable line of goods, which are extensively advertised, to canvas with are wanted at once for Dr Scott's Celebrated Electric Corsets, Brushes, Belts, Safety Razors and other goods. At the commissions we give you can make from $1,000 to $2,000 a year; send at once for our liberal terms; we give exclusive territory and free samples to every agent who works for us.
GEO. A. SCOTT, Room 7, 842 Broadway, New York.

NEW WAIST SET, 10c.

Our new '98 set of handsome design includes 1 pair rigid-link ball-end cuff buttons, 3 studs, 1 collar button, and the latest belt retainer. Extra heavy 14k Roman gold or sterling silver plate, worth 40c. at any store. We send complete set, with new catalogue of bargains, postpaid for ONLY 10c., 3 for 25c.
Ingersoll & Bro., Dept. 61 67 Cortlandt St., N. Y.

HIGH ARM.

USE IT FREE

30 days in your own home before paying one cent in advance; shipped anywhere, to anyone, for 30 days' test trial. We risk you.
$60 White Star Machine, . . $22.00
$50 Pearl Machine 18.00
Standard Singers, $9, $12.50, 16.00
Full set of attachments free; buy from factory and save $10 to $40; WE PAY FREIGHT; thousands in use; catalog, showing 20 other styles, free. Each machine guaranteed 10 years.
Warranted Ten Years.
Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co.
Address (in full) Dept. 67 215 S. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.

WANTED NOW. AGENTS AT ONCE to sell Sash Locks and Door Holders. Sample Sash Lock free for 2-cent stamp. Immense; better than weights; burglar proof. $10.00 a day. Write quick. Address BROHARD & CO., Dept. 14, Philadelphia, Pa.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY Pittsburgh.
BEYMER-BAUMAN Pittsburgh.
DAVIS-CHAMBERS Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN — Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION — New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN — Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN — St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO Philadelphia.
MORLEY Cleveland.
SALEM Salem, Mass.
CORNELL Buffalo.
KENTUCKY Louisville.

WE MANUFACTURE White Lead by the "old Dutch process," for the reason that it has stood the test of centuries; and notwithstanding the numerous attempts to make White Lead by some of the many quick or patent processes—although repeatedly tried—they have shown that the "old Dutch" is still the best, and is the "up-to-date" process for manufacturing White Lead.

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors free; also folder showing picture of house painted in different designs or various styles or combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

"Use the means and heaven will give you the Blessing." Never neglect a useful article like SAPOLIO

MONUMENTS IMPROVEMENTS EXTRAORDINARY

New and Elegant Designs for All Classes of Customers.

A Monument that is Strictly Everlasting.

Ages will not decay
nor Time destroy them.

HIGH GRADE WORK AT ALL PRICES.
Artistic and Beautiful.

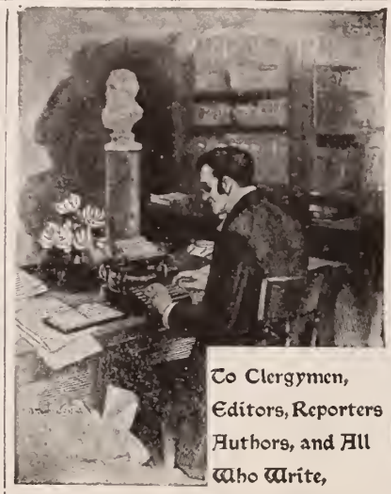
We can please all. We deal direct and deliver work everywhere.
Please give us your address and we will send you information that will be valuable to those purchasing monuments.

The Monumental Bronze Co.,
70-90 Howard Ave. BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Prudential
INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA

Life Insurance for Both Sexes.
All Ages, from 1 to 70.

HOME OFFICE, NEWARK, N. J.
JOHN F. DRYDEN, PREST.



To Clergymen, Editors, Reporters Authors, and All Who Write,

The Smith Premier Typewriter
Is an Invaluable Aid.
Easy and Rapid Composition.
Clean and Legible Manuscript. More Work and Less Labor. New Art Catalogue Free.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
Syracuse, N. Y., U. S. A.

7000 BICYCLES carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now.—New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used bicycles, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. Bicycles on approval without a cent payment. Write for our bargain list and art catalogue and learn all about the models. BIG COLD FREE for sending address them. Send for our Rider agents want. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money. E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

WHEEL BUILT TO ORDER, $25.
Up-to-date, High Grade, Worth $50

We are the largest makers of High Grade Bicycle Parts in the world. We supply the largest factories. [illegible] in 2 days, just as you want it; over 60 options. You [illegible] $25; no delay; [illegible] ROYAL HIGH GRADE CYCLE & BRO. Dept. No. 61 163 Washington St., N. Y. City.

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to Family. The Larkin Idea fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free sample soap if mention this magazine.
The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

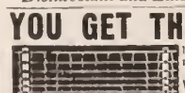
The Unsuspected Germ.

The child is down with an infectious disease before the presence of the germ in the household is suspected. Germs cannot harm the home that is properly disinfected.

How to have thoroughly sanitary surroundings is told in a pamphlet by Kingzett, the eminent English chemist. Price 10 cents. Every household should contain this little help to comfortable living. It will be sent FREE to subscribers of this paper. Write

THE SANITAS CO. (Ltd.),
636 to 642 West 55th Street, New York City.
Disinfectant and Embrocation Manufacturers.

YOU GET THE DIFFERENCE



between the wholesale price and the retail price when you buy woven wire fence from us.
WE SELL ONLY DIRECT TO THE FARMER AT WHOLESALE PRICE AND WE PAY THE FREIGHT.
That saves you the middle man's profit. The fence is as good as the best made. It will turn anything that any other fence will turn and injure nothing. Tie wires don't slip. Prices way down. Write at once for circulars and extra special discount.
ADVANCE FENCE CO. 37 Old St. Peoria, Ill.

"THE DOCTOR"
SAVES YOUR ICE
AND REFRIGERATOR

Heavily Nickel Plated.
Breaks the ice any size you want it. Does not crumble or waste your ice. For sale by all hardware dealers. If your dealer does not have it, send 25 cents in stamps or coin and we will send it prepaid to any address. Agents wanted. Troy Nickel Works, Albany, N.Y.

1898 BICYCLE $3.00
Yes, $3.00 takes our up-to-date, guaranteed bicycle on our great no-operation offer. You do a little work in your spare time. Write soon. COOK CYCLE CO., Office, 67 4th Ave. Factory, 16-18 Franklin St., Chicago.

$9.50 BUYS A HIGH ARM VICTOR SEWING MACHINE
Adapted to Light and Heavy Work. Reliable and Finely Finished. Guaranteed for 10 Years. Write for 40 Page Catalogue. Attachments Free. 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL. Address Dept. 65, VICTOR MFG. CO., 99-98 Market St., Chicago.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH AND SUN PASTE

"IN CAKES FOR GENERAL BLACKING APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A BRUSH"

SUN PASTE "FOR A QUICK AFTER-DINNER SHINE APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A CLOTH"

Morse Bros. Props. Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

A Leather Lesson

Thick leather isn't always durable. Thin leather isn't always comfortable. Oily leather isn't always waterproof. Dear leather isn't always best. Low price leather isn't always cheap. Vici Kid is always reliable. This is the reason it is fast superseding all other leathers. Vici Kid is the only leather that repels the cold, yet absorbs no heat. It is the only leather free from oil, yet impervious to water. It is the only leather soft enough for comfort, strong enough for any kind of wear.

VICI KID

makes the most beautiful shoes for women, the most comfortable shoes for men, the most durable shoes for children (all colors). The genuine never varies in quality, no matter where you get it. Genuine Vici Kid is made only by R. H. Foerderer. To insure getting it and not an imitation, ask your dealer for Foerderer's Vici Kid. Vici Leather Dressing makes all shoes look better and wear better.

Ask your dealer for it. A book about buying, wearing and caring for shoes mailed free.

ROBERT H. FOERDERER,
Philadelphia.

Tartarlithine i Rheumatism.

DR. M. L. SMAIL, OLCOTT, VT., w

"Your Tartarlithine has prov wonderful weapon for rheumatis have used a very great quantity in the last three or four m and I have never seen anything li I had one case who had tried all alkaline lithiates, and everything He has had rheumatism all his and nothing completely stopped a manifestations of the disease like tarlithine, which did completely, one bottle.

I have another old man, who t much on the road peddling, wh been lame with rheumatism fo years, and one bottle cured all ness, and he says he has not f well in five years as now. Thes only the two worst cases of that I have tried it on."

Pamphlet on Tartarlithine sent free by
McKESSON & ROBBINS, 91 Fulton St.,
SOLE AGENTS FOR
The Tartarlithine Co.

DO YOU LOVE YOUR WIFE
Then save her health and strength by buying her a
DILLEY'S QUEEN WASHING MACHINE
Washes cleaner, easier, and in one-third the time it can be done by hand. LIVE AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive territory to right parties. Get our circulars and prices, SENT FREE.
The Muir Washing Mach. Co. Dep. 7 Muir, Mich.

$60 Sewing Machines for $18.
We sell every reliable sewing Machine made. We employ no agents, pay no commission, buy for cash in large quantities, which enables us to save you from $25 to $42 on any Sewing Machine you may select. All machines brand new, guaranteed latest improved, with all attachments, and warranted for 10 years. (Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.) Our illustrated catalogue gives full particulars, and will be mailed free. Don't think of buying a machine before investigating our catalogue. Address:
We pay the freight.
J. N. HOOK & CO., A CINCINNATI, O.

High Arm Guaranteed Ten Years.

TRY IT FREE
for 30 days in your own home and save $10 to $25. No money in advance.
$60 Kenwood Machine for $23.00
$50 Arlington Machine for $19.50
Singers (Made by us) $8, $11.50, $15 and 27 other styles. All attachments FREE. We pay freight. Buy from factory. Save agents large profits. Over 100,000 in use. Catalogue and testimonials Free. Write at once. Address (in full) CASH BUYERS' UNION
163-164 West Van Buren St., 11-18 Chicago, Ills.

NAZO
for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

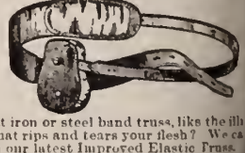
PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Cleanses and beautifies the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures scalp diseases & hair falling. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists

$2-OUTFIT FREE TO AGENTS
in order to introduce our new novelties in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. Write quick. J. F. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., CHICAGO.

CURE YOUR BOY OF THE CIGARETTE HABIT
Anti-Cigarette—a harmless, vegetable remedy, will cure the habit in 10 days. Can be taken in coffee without discovery. Price 50c by mail. Phoenix Chemical Co., Quincy, Ill.

Ladies Wanted We pay 10c an hour until competent. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WHY SUFFER.



with that iron or steel band truss, like the ill above, that rips and tears your flesh? We ca you with our latest Improved Elastic Truss. WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY. BY EFFECTING A PERFECT CURE witho to ages of patient. Holds the rupture under t est exercise. Send or call for free Catalogue IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO 785 Broadway, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examinati Established in New York 16 years.

DENT'S TOOTHACHE

STOPS TOOTHACH INSTANTLY.
The Only Perfect Remedy for T
This is Not a Chewing
Ask for DENT'S—Take Sold by all Druggists, or by (A SWELL AFFAIR) C. S. DENT & CO., Detro

HEALTH, LUXURY, BE Obtained by use of our NEW I VAPOR BATH CABINET (Patented all others in material and workma varieties of Dry and Vapor Baths home at a trifling cost. Its curat ties are invaluable. Removes i and beautifies the complexion, o pores of the skin and expelling al matter from the body. Our Cabin cloak or sack, but supported by a frame. Size, 39 in. by 1 in., folded lbs. A child can adjust it. Descriptive pamphlet sent f low. Agents wanted. O. HOLLENKOPF & McCHERT, Lady Agents Make $18 a Week Easy.

and we will show you how to make $18 a week easy s you are in need of employment, write to us at once that you can make $18 a week absolutely sure. You will at how easy it can be done. Send us your address and be to your interest to investigate. Write today. You can make $18 a week easy. ROYAL MFG. CO., Box 207, De

CURED TO STAY CURED. HAY FEVER Dr. HAYES, Buffalo, N.Y.

CRAZY WORK 800 SILK REMNANTS, Quilt 4 sq. yds 50c Immense floss & patterns, 10c, postpaid. Lemarie Silk Mill, Little

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

Rev. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

COPYRIGHT 1898 BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

NEW YORK, AUGUST 3, 1898.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 31.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

REFUGEES FROM SANTIAGO SEEKING FOOD AND SHELTER IN THE AMERICAN CAMP. (See page 623).

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A Constant Reader, Jacksonville, Ill. I would like to know, 1. What States beside Arizona are included in what is called the American Desert? 2. Where can I find the expression, "The mills of God grind slowly but they grind exceeding small."

1. Modern geographies and encyclopedias made no mention and define no limits of such a place. Parts of the country, once considered unfruitful, have proven very productive under the influence of irrigation. 2. In Oracula Sibyllina, in the original Greek. The translation which you give is from Longfellow.

Subscriber, Bornesville, Ga. What were the real facts about the Virginius? Why did not America go to war then, if our men had been shot without cause?

During the Cuban revolution, 1868-78, the Virginius, a chartered American vessel flying an American flag, and thought to be carrying ammunition to the insurgents, was captured near Jamaica and carried to Santiago. On the next day fifty-three of her passengers were slaughtered, and the remaining 130 would have been, but that the Niobe, a British war ship, sailed suddenly into the harbor, and her commander put a stop to the massacre. Our vice consul at Santiago had been treated with great discourtesy and denied all privilege of inquiry. We demanded explanation of Spain, war was imminent, and only averted by her surrender to us of the Virginius and her surviving crew. They were Spaniards, Englishmen, and probably other nationalities, and the Virginius had obtained her charter and her right to fly our flag under false pretences; otherwise, the trouble between the two governments would have been more difficult of settlement. According to international law, the right to punish the Virginius was that of the government whose charter she carried, and under whose flag she was sailing.

M. C., Brooklyn, N. Y. Who wrote: "He is not lost but gone before," and what is the whole passage?

Seneca. Ad Polybium de Consolatione, IX. 9. "The path is one which we must all tread; why, then, mourn his death? He is not lost but gone before."

Scribe, Beverly, O. Where was the first newspaper published and what was its name?

In Germany, at Frankfort-on-the-Main, a weekly publication called the Frankfurter Journal was started in 1615, and was in existence as late as 1883. Much earlier than this news pamphlets in English, French, German and Italian were issued at irregular intervals by enterprising stationers, and hawked about the streets. As early as 1614, a sarcastic English writer said of the public: "If they read at my time, 'tis a play-book or some pamphlet of news."

Young America, Bristol, Tenn. 1. Where are the flags for the U. S. Navy made? 2. What is the size of the largest flag?

1. In the Brooklyn Navy Yard. 2. 34.86 feet long, 1.12 breadth; it is known as No. 1 and is rarely used; No. 2, which is much smaller, being the one generally used by warships.

M. G., Brooklyn, N. Y. Why are the stars on our flag five-pointed, and those on our coins six-pointed?

The stars on our coins followed English heraldry, in which the star has six points, while the five-pointed star of our flag is said to be modeled on French heraldry, in which the star has five points. It also has five points in those used in Holland and Germany.

Lewis B. Vandiver, Miss. The Christian Commission was organized by Mr. D. L. Moody, Gen. O. O. Howard, Major Whittle, and other well-known Gospel workers for the express purpose of advancing the Gospel to the soldiers. At their request THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has carried on a system of regular contributions for the purpose of defraying the expenses of sending evangelists to the different camps. A large number of pastors and evangelists are working under the Commission, giving their labor without fee, but the Commission has to pay transportation and other incidental expenses. Probably a hundred such workers have already been at the camps for a week or two, others for longer periods. Any contributions sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD for the Moody Gospel Fund will be duly appropriated to this work.

R. J. H., Charlotte, N. C. Where can I find the story of a Bible being used as a betrothal pledge between a king and [illegible] he afterwards married?

None that we know of. The only instance on record in which a Bible was used as a betrothal pledge is, we believe, that of Burns and Highland Mary. The monument to Mary in Greenock Churchyard, Scotland, has a bas-relief on one side of Burns and Mary exchanging their Bibles across a stream. In the Campbell family, of which Mary was a member, there is preserved a Bible (in two volumes) given by Burns to Mary, and on the fly-leaf, in his handwriting, the words: "Thou shalt not swear by my name falsely," and "Thou shalt not forswear thyself but perform unto the Lord thy vows." Mary, who had spent much time in the home of her kinsman, Rev. David Campbell, was of a dutiful and pious character, and doubtless sought through the Holy Book to influence the gifted but erring poet for good.

F. L. N., Lemod Grove, Calif. Do you think a Christian can conscientiously play cards? If not, why not?

A Christian cannot conscientiously play cards, because even looking at the matter simply for his own sake, cards are the common instruments of gambling; because by its very nature card-playing excites the gambling propensity, and is therefore most dangerous to morality. For the sake of others to whom his example may give scandal, and who might be led by that example to their ruin, a Christian should avoid cards, for by their use even innocently, he might become responsible for a brother's destruction. Card-playing has been the first step to ruin of countless multitudes.

One Deeply Interested, Camden, N. J. Has New York State a compulsory educational law? If so, what effect is manifest in its criminal statistics?

The Legislature of New York enacted in 1874 a law requiring all children between eight and fourteen years of age to attend a public or private school at least fourteen weeks in each year. The law has since been strengthened by the appointment of special officers to enforce it. Crimes of a serious order are decreasing in this State, but how far this fact can be traced to compulsory education is a problem. Lombroso, a great authority on the subject of human character, says that "in general the moral anomalies, which, in adults, would constitute a criminal, are much larger in proportion in children, and disappear through education." The Elmira Reformatory shows that the large majority of those committed there are but little above the level of absolute illiteracy. On the other hand, the Superintendent of State Prisons, in his report for 1897, says that six-sevenths of the prisoners had some education from a common school to collegiate, and the number included 97 college graduates. The evidence of statistics in this State, however, is that education tends to a diminution of crime, and this is especially the case where secular education is accompanied by a careful religious training. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," is as true to-day as when the wise man uttered those sacred words.

C. W., St. Paul, Minn. Do you think it improper to visit an art gallery on Sunday (if other religious duties are not discarded for that purpose)? I, myself, can see no more harm in it than the reading of good literature, if not indulged in to excess.

Sunday is set apart as the Lord's day and should not be devoted to purposes of business or amusement—to which latter class your suggestion properly applies. The day should be devoted to absolute rest from all unnecessary labor, and to the enjoyment of those religious privileges that lie within your reach, attendance at worship included. The reading of religious literature is, of course, not a violation of the day, but rather to be encouraged, as there is nothing more undesirable than a dull Sunday afternoon or evening, when one sits with folded hands without any idea of passing the hours to spiritual advantage.

C. L., Mountain Grove, Ont. 1. Give the displacement of the largest battleship and of the largest cruiser in the Japanese navy, also their names. 2. Also the displacement of the British warships, Immortalite; Narcissus; Grafton; Amphion; and Trafalgar.

1. The largest battleship in the Japanese navy is, or will be the Shikishima, when completed, its tonnage being 14,850. The largest Japanese battleships now in service are two, Yoshima and the Fuji, both of 12,446 tons. The largest cruisers are, or will be the Kasagi and the Chitose, both of 4,700 tons. 2. The Trafalgar, battleship, 11,940 tons; Narcissus, 5,600; Immortalite, 5,600; Grafton, 7,350; Amphion, 4,300; all cruisers.

A MONJOLA, OR CORN-CRUSHING MILL, USED IN BRAZIL.

The running water moves the trough up and down and the corn or farina is pounded by a wooden pestle in a mortar within the enclosure.

C. C., Muscatine, Ia. Who was Hyperion?

A character in Greek mythology, the sungód, or incarnation of light and beauty; identified sometimes with Apollo.

Old Subscriber, Zanesville, O. Who were the parents of Betsy Ross, the America flag maker?

Samuel and Rebecca Griscom. They were Quakers of Philadelphia. Samuel Griscom, as a builder, helped in the construction of Independence Hall. For fuller information about the Ross family wite to some historical society.

Mother, Los Angeles, Cal. My little daughter, ten and a-half years old, wants to join the church. She is not more advanced intellectually than other children, is full of play, but has always been fond of reading the Bible, going to church and Sunday School, and saying her prayers. Some of my friends urge that she is too young to understand the meaning of such a step or to appreciate its importance, and that I should have her wait until she is older. I am much perplexed. Can you give me any light?

If the church is regarded as Christ's representative on earth, we think the question you put was answered conclusively by the highest of all authorities, when Jesus said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not;" and also, when on being asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven?" he set a little child in the midst and said: "Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." It would seem, of all hearts, the believing heart of childhood can most readily accept the simple religion of Christ, which lays down as that "upon which hang all the law and the prophets." The first command, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind," and "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." This can be explained to any child, and the discussion of points of dogma and doctrine be left to later years.

Maiden, Oxford, N. C. 1. Should marriage be entered into without prayer? 2. If one will pray over it and the other will not, should the latter decline to enter into the compact?

1. Of all relations, that of marriage is the most serious, and the choice of companion for life should be prayerfully considered by both parties to the contract. 2. We cannot assume the responsibility of advising, but refer you first to II Cor. 6:14, and then II Cor. 7:12-16. In seeking light for your guidance in the interpretation of these, we would advise you to seek to be guided by a higher power. God also means that we should use our own common sense and discretion in such matters. Many assume the solemn obligations of marriage with less thought than they enter into ordinary business relations, selecting and accepting for life-partners people with whom they would not consider for a moment as eligible to such relationship in a temporary mercantile enterprise; and inharmony of disaccord, and sometimes divorce, follow as natural consequences.

F. A. L., Springfield, Mass. 1. Is exchanging prisoners of war a comparatively new, or an old practice? 2. Why were 15 Spaniards given in exchange for Lieut. Hobson and his seven men? Why not man for man? 3. Where has become of ex-Minister Woodford? 4. Where is the ex-Spanish naval officer, Capt. Mestre? Is he still able, given a commission in our navy? 5. Where is our beloved President standing the terrible great strain upon his mental and physical powers? I trust he is conscious that the prayers and loyal people are much in prayer for him.

1. The giving of hostages and the exchanging of prisoners in war times are both ancient practices as old as history. 2. Because Hobson and his heroes were accounted as men of greater importance than the Spaniards for whom they were exchanged. 3. In this case, we believe, probably awaiting the opportunity to return to Spain after peace is declared. 4. We have no information on the matter. 5. He is reported as in excellent mental and physical condition, and as greatly comforted by the knowledge that the hearts, the love and the prayers of the whole people are with him in this exciting time.

E. L. C., Alameda, Cal. I see in the last issue of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD a communication from Robert Williams, of Cape Town, on profane swearing. I also had a number of cards printed some years ago, with the same subject and on the other side some Scripture texts, for distribution among swearing people. I think something may be done among Christians to check the wicked and growing practice of profane swearing, which has grown to such an extent that many of the world's people seem to think it a very proper thing to bring in an oath in common conversation.

We are glad to note that several instances of arrest and fine for profanity have recently occurred in New York and neighborhood. A few such wholesome examples in other communities where swearers abound would greatly sweeten the moral atmosphere and impress a needed lesson.

Mrs. M. Richard. We would advise you to leave the matter in the hands of a regular collection agent, who may be able to set it right.

I. B., Toledo, O. 1. It has been done repeatedly. 2. It would promote dessication or drying up the juices of vegetable matter, and if air were absolutely excluded, no decay would follow.

Reader, San Jose, Cal. The poem beginning "The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold," is entitled "The Destruction of Sennacherib," and was written by Lord Byron.

S. D. W., Springfield, O. 1. A variation of the liberty cap. 2. It is explained that Captain Hopkinson was the only officer available at the time in the squadron to which he was appointed.

E. B. H., Waterbury, Conn. The addresses requested are as follows: Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Harvard College, Cambridge, Mass.; Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.; Bryn Mawr, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Mrs. H. I. P., Bowdoin, Me. The regular rate at Mont-Lawn is ten days, and $3 covers all expenses for one child's medical examination, transportation by street-car and steamboat, board, food and clothing.

J. A. McKinsey, Chilhowie, Va., is conducting home missionary work in the mountain section of the State, and can use to great advantage large numbers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD containing good religious literature.

Louise P. W., Gerard, Kan. All donations for the work of the Army Gospel Fund should be addressed to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, Bible House, New York, the accompanying note stating that the contribution is intended for that fund.

Mrs. J. B. L., Marinot, Or. 1. Presuming that such a calling is not inconsistent with Christian character and conduct, Sunday work should be avoided, or where impossible to wholly avoid, it should be reduced to a minimum.

G. A. W., New Virginia, Ia. Matrimonial publications are usually regarded as undesirable, certainly unreliable. We would advise you to have nothing to do with people who advertise in this way. Write to Chas. Scribners' Sons or Harper & Bros., New York City.

A NOBLE GIFT TO THE EAST SIDE.

A New Institutional Church in New York City—The Gift of Miss Rhinelander—Endowed by St. James Parish—The Church of the Holy Trinity—A Great Work.

ONE of the grandest institutional churches in the United States will soon stand complete on East Seventy-eighth Street, between Second

REV. JAS. B. CHALMERS, VICAR.

Third avenues, New York City. The church buildings, together with the Rhinelander Industrial School of the Children's Aid Society (a separate institution which has been in operation some time), will cover the larger portion of a block of the church plot itself measuring 175 by 275 feet. This group of the buildings, representing a half million dollars, are the gifts of a generous and pious lady, Miss Serena Rhinelander, a member of one of New York's most ancient and honored families. Her nephew and executor, Mr. Rhinelander Stewart, (by whose many benefactions performed philanthropic work New York has profited largely), and other members of the Rhinelander family, are taking an active interest in the beautiful monument which will forever keep green the memory of the Rhinelanders in the heart of the New World's metropolis; and the church will stand as a noble object lesson to other men and women of wealth, proving how much better it is to bestow one's money in the building of a living church than to be buried in the pagan splendors of costly mausoleums.

There is poetic grace in the fact that the stately temple of service, in this good lady's bounty stands on the old Rhinelander homestead. In the seventy-five acres, reaching from Third avenue to East River, came into the family, by right of William Rhinelander's purchase, years for generations the Rhinelander country residence. By degrees the rolling stretches of green were covered with closely built blocks, and in 1898, a daughter of the Rhinelanders devotes the last of the family acres to sacred service, and a great, new institutional church, full of evangelical and practical work running like golden threads through all the streets and alleys of a populous territory, will lift stately towers heavenward where an earthly home once covered sacred altars.

In the Protestant Episcopal sense of the word, the new church is really a "chapel" or mission of St. James' P. E. Church. Seventy-first street and Madison avenue, and is under the direction of its rector, Rev. E. Walpole Warren, one of New York's most able, earnest and progressive clergymen. When the Church of the Holy Trinity and St. James' church were consolidated, the combined parishes set aside $200,000 for the establishment of an East side chapel. Miss Rhinelander's proposition to donate church and buildings, provided this $200,000 should be applied as endowment, fund was made and accepted; and thus by her wise discretion two parishes became interested in the church which her benefaction created. It is, of course, easy to divine that Miss Rhinelander contemplates enlarging her generosity until the endowment fund matches the half-million plant, which it must, of necessity, be insufficient to sustain.

In memory of the church whose identity was merged in that of St. James, the new church is called the Church of the Holy Trinity. The entire plant will consist of three distinct buildings with cloistered connections: the St. Christopher House, now complete and in use for social and religious work; the church edifice to be completed in twelve months; and the clergy-house which will be ready for occupation in September. The vicar in charge, Rev. James B. Chalmers, whose labors in connection with Grace Church Settlement are well known in New York, comes more directly from Lonsdale, R. I., where as rector of a parish he directed much institutional church work. Mr. Gwilym, his assistant, an earnest and spiritual preacher, who was in full charge of the mission work last year, exercises a wide influence on the men and women of the congregation, which his labors have done so much to create and to enlarge.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY, NEW YORK CITY — DR. E. WALPOLE WARREN, RECTOR.

Until the church is completed, religious services are conducted in the large assembly hall at St. Christopher's, in which the Sunday School also is held. The growth of the latter has been phenomenal, and is another of the many evidences which THE CHRISTIAN HERALD calls to its readers' attention, of the fact that little East Side children are eager to hear the story of that Saviour who was once a little child. A number of attendants are Hebrews of the neighborhood who come with the full knowledge and consent of parents—without which no child is ever accepted as a member. The rector wishes it emphasized in this article, as elsewhere, that while his ambition for the new church is that its usefulness shall extend to all people in the neighborhood not now reached by church influences, and be so great as to inspire other churches with the same spirit of Christian enterprise and activity, it shall in no wise interfere with other churches.

On the floor above the assembly hall is the library, with a capacity for 4,000 volumes; and on either side attractive club-rooms—one suite for men and boys, the other for women and girls. The top floor is devoted to one of the best equipped gymnasiums in the city, which, for a nominal fee, is at the service, on alternate days, of the different sexes, and is under charge of skilled instructors. The shower and needle baths in connection with the "gym" are in themselves a hygienic blessing to the neighborhood. A large proportion of "gym" frequenters are Catholics. Our readers will remember that we called attention to a similar fact in connection with other settlements, where there are also a number of Hebrews in attendance. It has been conclusively proven that religious features do not always and necessarily drive Catholics and Hebrews away from the regenerating social influences of a church settlement. In the basement is a large swimming-pool, which is used in summer, by men and boys, and again by girls and women, on alternate days. Clubs of a social, religious, philanthropic and educational nature for both sexes and all ages are among the functions of an active church, which while it makes a marked feature of industrial training, is not above providing playrooms for little folks, whose wants can never be neglected at St. Christopher's House. The Assembly Hall is lent one night in each week to the Layfayette Post, G. A. R. for a children's "Elementary Class in Civics," supported by that post. The Children's Sewing Class, whose existence began in the old St. James Mission, which meets every Saturday in the St. Christopher House club-rooms, has several times outgrown its quarters, and applications are now of necessity being refused, until the completion of the church permits the use of the Assembly Hall for this purpose. Health talks, talks on Christian ethics, and talks of travel, illustrated by stereopticon views are provided for the instruction and entertainment of young and old.

MISS L. LOUISE SHELTON.

The ladies who constitute the body of "church workers," and the house in which they live, are agencies of marked interest and usefulness in the new church. This house, the home of the old St. James Mission on East Eighty-third st., has been renovated for residential purposes. Dr. Warren's intention being the establishment there of a large corps of ladies, who have been trained in the Hull House, Chicago, in London, and other places thus constituting a great regenerative social and religious centre for an extensive East Side territory. While some of this work is being done at present, lectures being attended by the ladies, meetings being held at the hall of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor, and various social enterprises prosecuted, the exigencies of the situation have, for the past year, employed the ladies more on parochial than social lines; but it is hoped that as soon as the parish of the Church of the Holy Trinity is well organized, the original idea can be fully carried out. At the head of this branch of activity are the lady residents Miss Compton, Miss Shelton, and Miss Hamilton. The parish profits greatly by the wisdom, experience and devotion of these ladies, who, without money and without price, are giving their lives to this work for love of the Master and love of those for whom he died. "It will be the mission of our workers," says Dr. Warren, "to teach the people happy home-making—how to keep the house clean, how to make it pretty, peaceful, and inviting, how to cultivate flowers and attractive ways, how to care for the babies and how to raise them up into useful, happy members of society."

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

WRITING IN DUST.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: John 8: 6, ... } Jesus stooped down and with his finger wrote on the ground.

YOU must take your shoes off and put on the especial slippers provided at the door if you would enter the Mohammedan mosque, which stands now where once stood Herod's temple, the scene of my text. Solomon's temple had stood there, but Nebuchadnezzar had thundered it down. Zerubbabel's temple had stood there, but that had been prostrated. Now we take our places in a temple that Herod built, because he was fond of great architecture, and he wanted the preceding temples to seem insignificant. Put eight or ten modern cathedrals together, and they would not equal that structure. It covered nineteen acres. There were marble pillars supporting roofs of cedar, and silver tables, on which stood golden cups, and there were carvings exquisite, and inscriptions resplendent, glittering balustrades and ornamented gateways. The building of this temple kept 10,000 workmen busy forty-six years.

In that stupendous pile of pomp and magnificence sat Christ, and a listening throng stood about him when a wild disturbance took place. A group of men are pulling and pushing along a woman, who had committed a crime against society. When they have brought her in front of Christ, they ask that he sentence her to death by stoning. They are a critical, merciless, disingenuous crowd. They want to get Christ into controversy and public reprehension. If he say "Let her die," they will charge him with cruelty. If he let her go, they will charge him with being in complicity with wickedness. Whichever way he does, they would howl at him.

Then occurs a scene which has not been sufficiently regarded. He leaves the lounge or bench on which he was sitting, and goes down on one knee, or both knees, and with the forefinger of his right hand he begins to write in the dust of the floor, word after word. But they were not to be diverted or hindered. They kept on demanding that he settle this case of transgression, until he looked up and told them they might themselves begin the woman's assassination, if the complainant who had never done anything wrong himself would open the fire. "Go ahead, but be sure that the man who flings the first missile is immaculate." Then he resumed writing with his finger in the dust of the floor, word after word. Instead of looking over his shoulder to see what he had written, the scoundrels skulked away. Finally, the whole place is clear of pursuers, antagonists and plaintiffs, and when Christ has finished this strange chirography in the dust he looks up and finds the woman all alone.

The prisoner is the only one of the court-room left, the judges, the police, the prosecuting attorney having cleared out. Christ is victor, and he says to the woman, "Where are the prosecutors in this case? Are they all gone? Then I discharge you: go and sin no more." I have wondered what Christ wrote on the ground. For do you realize that is the only time that he ever wrote at all? I know that Eusebius says that Christ once wrote a letter to Abgarus, the King of Edessa, but there is no good evidence of such a correspondence. The wisest being the world ever saw, and the one who had more to say than any one who ever lived, never writing a book or a chapter or a paragraph or a word on parchment. Nothing but the literature of the dust, and one sweep of a brush or one breath of a wind obliterated it forever.

Among all the rolls of the volumes of the first library founded at Thebes there was not one scroll of Christ. Among the 700,000 books of the Alexandrian Library, which, by the infamous decree of Caliph Omar, were used as fuel to heat the 4,000 baths of the city, not one sentence had Christ penned. Among all the multitude of volumes now standing in the libraries of Edinburgh, the British Museum, or Berlin, or Vienna, or the learned repositories of all nations, not one word written directly by the finger of Christ. All that he ever wrote he wrote in dust, uncertain, shifting dust.

My text says he stooped down and wrote on the ground. Standing straight up a man might write on the ground with a staff, but if with his fingers he would write in the dust he must bend clear over. Aye, he must get at least on one knee, or he cannot write on the ground. Be not surprised that he stooped down; his whole life was a stooping down. Stooping down from castle to barn. Stooping down from celestial homage to monocratic jeer. From residence above the stars to where a star had to fall to designate his landing-place. From heaven's front door to the world's back gate. From writing in round and silvered letters of constellation and galaxy on the blue scroll of heaven to writing on the ground in the dust which the feet of the crowd had left in Herod's temple.

Whether the words he was writing were in Greek or Latin or Hebrew, I cannot say, for he knew all those languages. But he is still stooping down, and with his finger writing on the ground; in the winter in letters of crystals, in the spring in letters of flowers, in summer in golden letters of harvest, in autumn in letters of fire on fallen leaves. How it would sweeten up and enrich and emblazon this world, could we see Christ's caligraphy all over it.

This world was not flung out into space thousands of years ago, and then left to look out for itself. It is still under the divine care. Christ never for a half second takes his hand off it, or it would soon be a shipwrecked world, a defunct world, an obsolete world, an abandoned world, a dead world. "Let there be light," was said at the beginning. And Christ stands under the wintry skies and says, let there be snowflakes to enrich the earth; and under the clouds of spring and says, come ye blossoms and make redolent the orchards; and in September, dips the branches in the vat of beautiful colors, and swings them into the hazy air. No whim of mine is this. "Without him was not anything made that was made." Christ writing on the ground.

Let us wake from our stupidity and take the whole world as a parable. Then, if with gun and pack of hounds we start off before dawn, and see the morning coming down off the hills to meet us, we would cry out with the evangelist, "The day-spring from on high hath visited us;" or, caught in a snow-storm, while struggling home, eyebrows and beard and apparel all covered with the whirling flakes, we would cry out with David, "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." In a picture gallery of Europe there is on the ceiling an exquisite fresco, but the people having to look straight up, it wearied and dizzied them and bent their necks almost beyond endurance; so a great looking-glass was put near the floor, and now visitors only need to look easily down into this mirror, and they see the fresco at their feet. And so, much of the high heaven of God's truth is reflected in this world as in a mirror, and things that are above are copied by things around us.

What right have we to throw away one of God's Bibles—aye, the first Bible he ever gave the race? We talk about the Old Testament and the New Testament, but the oldest Testament contains the lessons of the natural world. Some people like the New Testament so well they discard the Old Testament. Shall we like the New Testament and the Old Testament so well as to depreciate the oldest; namely, that which was written before Moses was put afloat on the boat of leaves which was calked with asphaltum; or reject the Genesis that was written centuries before Adam lost a rib and gained a wife? No, no! When Deity stoops down and writes on the ground, let us read it.

I would have no less appreciation of the Bible on paper that comes out of the paper mill, but I would urge appreciation of the Bible in the grass, the Bible in the sand hill, the Bible in the geranium, the Bible in the asphodel, the Bible in the dust.

Some one asked an ancient king whether he had seen the eclipse of the sun. "No," said he. "I have so much to study on earth I have no time to look at heaven." And if our faculties were all awake in the study of God we would not have time to go much further than the first grass blade. I have no fear that natural religion will ever contradict what we call revealed religion. I have no sympathy with the followers of Aristotle, who, after the telescope was invented, would not look through it lest it contradict some of the theories of their great master. I shall be glad to put against one lid of the Bible the microscope and against the other lid of the Bible the telescope.

But what did Christ write on the ground? The Bible does not state. Yet as Christ never wrote anything except that once, you cannot blame us for wanting to know what he really did write. But I am certain he wrote nothing trivial or nothing unimportant. And will you allow me to say that I think I know what he wrote on the ground? I judge from the circumstances. He might have written other things, but kneeling there in the temple, surrounded by a pack of hypocrites who were a self-appointed consabulary, and having in his presence a persecuted woman, who evidently was very penitent for her sins, I am sure he wrote two words, both of them graphic and tremendous and reverberating. And the one word was "hypocrisy" and the other word was "forgiveness."

From the way these Pharisees and scribes vacated the premises and got out into the fresh air, as Christ, with just one ironical sentence unmasked them, I know they were first-class hypocrites. It was then as it is now. The more faults and inconsistencies people have of their own, the more severe and censorious are they about the faults of others. Here they are—twenty stout men arresting and arraigning one weak woman! Magnificent business to be engaged in! They wanted the fun of seeing her faint away under a heavy judicial sentence from Christ, and then, after she had been taken outside of the city and fastened at the foot of the precipice, the Scribes and Pharisees wanted the satisfaction of each coming and dropping a big stone on her head, for that was the style of capital punishment that they asked for. Some people have taken the responsibility of saying that Christ never laughed. But I think as he saw those men drop everything, chagrined, mortified, exposed, and go out quicker than they came in, he must have laughed. At any rate it makes me laugh to read of it. All of those libertines, dramatizing indignation against impurity! Blind bats lecturing on optics! A flock of crows on their way up from a carcass, denouncing carrion!

Yes, I think that one word written on the ground that day by the finger of Christ was the awful word hypocrisy. What pretensions to sanctity are the part of those hypocritical Pharisees! When the fox begins to pray, look out for your chickens. One of the cruel magnates of olden times was going to excommunicate one of the martyrs, and he began in the usual form—"In the name of God, Amen." "Stop!" says the martyr, "don't say 'in the name of God!'" Yet how many outrages are practiced under the garb of religion and sanctity! When in synods and conferences, ministers of the Gospel are about to say something unbrotherly and unkind about a member, they almost always begin by being ostentatiously pious, the venom of their assault corresponding to the heavenly flavor of the prelude. About to devour a reputation they piously say grace before meal.

But I am sure there was another word in that dust. From her entire manner I am sure that arraigned woman was repentant. She made no apology, and Christ in no wise belittled her sin. But her supplicatory behavior and her tears moved him, and when he stooped down to write on the ground he wrote that mighty, that imperial word, forgiveness.

When on Sinai God wrote the law, wrote it with finger of lightning tables of stone, each word cut as by chisel into the hard granite surface. I when he writes the offense of this wom he writes it in dust so that it can be eas rubbed out, and when she repents of oh, he was a merciful Christ! I was re ing of a legend that is told in the far e about him. He was walking through t streets of a city and he saw a cro around a dead dog. And one man sa "What a loathsome object is that dog "Yes," said another, "his ears are maul and bleeding." "Yes," said another, "ev his hide would not be of any use to t tanner." "Yes," said another, "the od of his carcass is dreadful." Then Chr standing there, said: "But pearls can equal the whiteness of his teeth." Th the people, moved by the idea that a one could find anything pleasant conce ing the dead dog, said: "Why this m be Jesus of Nazareth!" Reproved a convicted, they went away.

Surely this legend of Christ is go enough to be true. Kindness in all words and ways and habits. Forgivene Word of eleven letters, and some of th thrones, and some of them palm bran es. Better have Christ write close to names that one word, though he write in dust, than to have our name cut i monumental granite with the letters t the storms of a thousand years cannot literate. Bishop Babington had a bo of only three leaves. The first leaf w black, the second leaf red, the third l white. The black leaf suggested sin; red leaf atonement; the white leaf pu cation. That is the whole story. C will abundantly pardon.

I must not forget to say that as Chr stooping down, with his finger wrote the ground, it is evident that his sym thies are with this penitent woman, a that he has no sympathy with her hy critical pursuers. Just opposite to tha the world's habit. Why didn't these clean Pharisees bring one of their c number to Christ for excoriation and c ital punishment? No, no. They overl that in a man which they damnate i woman. And so the world has had offending woman scourges and objur tion, and for just one offense she becor an outcast, while for men whose lives h been sodomic for twenty years the wo swings open its doors of brilliant welco and they may sit in high places. Un the Christ of my text, the world write man's misdemeanor in dust, but chisel woman's offense with great capitals u ineffaceable marble.

But while I speak of Christ of the t his stooping down writing in the dust. not think I underrate the literature of dust. It is the most tremendous of all erature. It is the greatest of all librar When Layard exhumed Nineveh he only opening the door of its mighty d The excavations of Pompeii have been the unclasping of the lids of a ume of a nation's dust. When Adm Farragut and his friends visited that re rected city, the house of Balbo, who l been one of its chief citizens in its p perous days, was opened, and a table spread in that house which 1,810 ye had been buried by volcanic eruption. Farragut and his guests walked over exquisite mosaics and under the beaut fresco, and it almost seemed like being tertained by those who eighteen centu ago had turned to dust.

Oh! this mighty literature of the d Where are the remains of Sennache and Attila and Epaminondas and Tam lane and Trajan and Philip of Mace and Julius Cæsar? Dust! Where the heroes who fought on both sides Charonea, at Hastings, at Marathon Cressy, of the 110,000 men who fough Agincourt, of the 250,000 men who l death at Jena, of the 400,000 whose ar glittered in the sun at Wagram, of 1,000,000 men under Darius at Arbela the 2,641,000 men under Xerxes at Th mopylae? Dust! Where are the gue who danced the floors of the Alhambr the Persian palaces of Ahasuerus? Du Where are the musicians who played the orators who spoke, and the sculpt who chiseled, and the architects who bu in all the centuries except our own? D Where are the most of the books t once entranced the world? Dust! Pl wrote twenty books of history; all lost. most of Menander's writings lost. Of hundred and thirty comedies of Plau a gone but twenty. Euripides wrote a h dred dramas, all gone but nineteen. Ehylus wrote a hun red dramas, all e but seven. Varro wrote the labor- biographies of 700 Romans, not a frment left. Quintilian wrote his favor- book on the corruption of eloquence, a lost. Thirty books of Tacitus lost. I n Cassius wrote eighty books, only ty remain. Berosius' history all lost. Were there is one living book there are a ousand dead books. The greatest ry in the world, that which has the st shelves and longest aisles and the t multitudinous volumes and the vast- s wealth is the underground library. It s e royal library, the continental library, h hemispheric library, the planetary ry, the library of the dust. And all e li rary cases will be opened, and all e scrolls unrolled, and all these volumes n sped, and as easily as in your library r ine we take up a book, blow the dust f it, and turn over its pages, so easily he Lord of the Resurrection pick out is library of dust every volume of n life and open it and read it and ay it. And the volume will be re- d, to be set in the royal library of the Ki 's palace, or in the prison library of ael-destroyed.

! this mighty literature of the dust, t not so wonderful, after all, that Christ e, instead of an inkstand, the impres- le sand on the floor of an ancient le, and, instead of a hard pen, put r his forefinger, with the same kind of e: and muscle and bone and flesh as which makes up our own forefinger, e wrote the awful doom of hypocrisy, d ll and complete forgiveness for re- ent sinners, even the worst. We talk t the ocean of Christ's mercy. Put four sai upon that ocean and let them sail in site directions a thousand years, and e they can find the shore of the ocean t Divine mercy.

em sail to the r and the south the east and est, and then the thousand e of voyage em come back they will re- "No shore, no to the ocean of s mercy!"

I now I can be- v that which I a how that a r kept burn- candle in the w every night n years, and ight, very late, r wait of the e entered. The woman said to r sit down by the e and the strang- d. "Why do u eep that light e window?" ged woman "That is to my wayward ter when she s. Since she en way, ten years o my hair has white. Folks me for worry- out her, but ee I am her r, and some- half a dozen a night, I open r and look out e darkness and cry, 'Lizzie!' 'Lizzie!' must not tell you any more about uble, for I guess, from the way you u have trouble enough of your own. how cold and sick you seem! Oh, an it be? Yes, you are Lizzie, my st child! Thank God that you are again!" And what a time of re- there was in that house that night. hrist again stooped down, and in es of that hearth, now lighted up, re by the great blazing logs than by of a reunited household, wrote the liberating words that had been more than eighteen hundred years the dust of the Jerusalem temple, eness! A word broad enough and ough to let pass through it all the rm of heaven, a million abreast, on horses, nostril to nostril, flank to ank

ONE DAY'S DOINGS AT MONT-LAWN.

How Our Little Army of Tenement Children Spend the Hours from Breakfast to Bedtime—Golden Texts—Little Lambs Folded.

THE day's routine at Mont-Lawn begins with the early morning, when the children, waking after a refreshing night's sleep, are hungry for breakfast and eager for play. The dormitories are live bee-hives; little folks are busy getting into clothes as quickly as possible; caretakers and older children are helping. At last, with buttons secure, faces washed, heads combed and brushed, they assemble on the lawn in front of the porch. In the door their House-mother stands with her hand on the gong. At the first stroke, they fall in line: at the second, march off to the tent. Long white tables under the tent are set forth with many bowls of oatmeal or rice and mugs of rich creamy milk, and with many slices of buttered bread. Each little girl and boy takes his seat: little heads are bowed, little hands folded, and the children sing their pretty grace, beginning:

God is great, God is good,
And we thank him for this food.

Such appetites they have—poor, half-famished little ones. Some who came, pinched and pale, and too weak and sick even to care for food, are hungry enough now, and march and play sturdily. "Teachers" (this is what they elect to call their caretakers), go from table to table, replenishing plates and mugs and serving out numberless slices of white and brown bread. It was only a moment ago when Miss Drane filled Tommy's mug and gave him his fourth or fifth slice of bread, and there is his lifted hand—one of a multitude behaving in the same way—and he is trying to enlist Miss Jones or Miss Trowbridge or Miss Thomas or Miss Parsons in his behalf, and is piping: "Teacher! can I have more bread—can I have more milk?" And you wonder if Tommy swallows bread whole and takes a mug of milk down in one gulp! Breakfast over, to the rat-a-tat tat of the drum they march under review again, and the House-Mother standing on the steps, asks:

"Children, what is the Golden Text?"

They answer, giving as they were taught at Sunday School in the chapel the Golden Text for the week: the first week it was: "A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous speech stirreth up anger." Every day they say the text and are bidden to remember it in their play, until the passing week brings a new Golden Text to be graven into their memories and lives.

After the text they run off to the swings, the pool, to pluck flowers from the hillsides, to gather berries, to weave daisy-chains and oak-wreathes, to listen to stories told by wise and loving caretakers, to sing many a happy song, play many a merry game until dinner time, and again until evening, when supper comes; and the little chapel service follows, when the children hear short, loving talks from matron and caretakers about their "Child-King," Jesus, who put it into the hearts of kind friends to send them here; they sing little hymns of praise and thanksgiving and pray God to make and keep them good and to bless the dear, kind friends who sent them to this beautiful Home, whose loving kindness feeds and clothes them, and who are moved to do this through love of Jesus for poor little children whom they have never seen.

TOTS RESTING AFTER PLAY.

Cool dormitories fill with sleepy little folk; teachers and big children help the smaller ones to undress; all say "Our Father," and the little lambs are folded for the night; restless limbs are still; black heads and brown heads lie quiet on white pillows; through open windows sweet winds from the Rockland Hills on one side and the Hudson on the other sweep through and through the great dormitories; moon and stars shine down like a benediction on placid river and solemn hills. Silence falls on Mont-Lawn; even the busy caretakers, whose work has seemingly no end, may rest; 130 children are asleep—sleeping so sweetly and soundly after their healthy happy day, that, unless you peep into the dormitories it is difficult to realize that so many children are under the roof. May be, a cry breaks the stillness of the night; perhaps a child is dreaming or athirst; or has not yet recovered from the feverish fretfulness which the heat of the city had brought upon him. A caretaker, with loving words and soft touches, is instantly at hand; wants are attended to, and the little one is asleep again. If it is so fretful that she fears it may wake the others, she bears it to her own bed.

Harsh words are not in order at Mont-Lawn. The children are too busy and too happy to quarrel or "scrap." The atmosphere of the place tends to eradicate such tendencies. They are taught to do missionary work for each other, and to seek opportunities for doing little kindnesses. Another reason that they are so good, grateful and loving, is, that poverty and suffering have prepared them to be appreciative of the unusual blessings they enjoy at the Home. Of course, all is not invariably smooth sailing; and sometimes a small man or woman comes, perplexed, indignant or weeping, to lay a problem or a grievance before matron or teacher—only to go away with a smiling face and a lesson learned. They are truly "mothered" by consecrated Christian women. Can any of our generous readers who have made this blessed work of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD'S their own, doubt that they are laying up treasures in heaven, and that this bread which they cast upon the waters, will return to them after many days?

A GROUP OF OUR WEE GUESTS AWAITING THE ARRIVAL OF THE NEW-COMERS.

The following contributions for our Fresh-Air Fund have been received during the week:

Prev ackl'd	$1,617.79
Mrs Carrie Hartman	1 50
Friend, M A W, Dexter	2 00
Mrs C W Stewart	3 00
Snbr, Woodstock	1 00
Mary E Fish	2 00
Mrs ElizaMcGaughey	1 00
L I, Pawtuaket	2 00
Inasmnch, Gardnevi'e	3 00
Mrs B N Prondut	10 00
M W Smith	3 00
Friend, Heislerville	2 00
Stella Hansen	3 00
Mrs L, Somerville	3 00
M L, Somerville	2 00
L H P, Avondale	1 00
Viola Frear	1 00
Friend, Irwin	3 00
F E Greenpoint	3 00
Sam'l J Trepess	6 00
B G Brown	6 00
Mrs Alfred Nearing	3 00
Miss S E Fox	5 00
Mrs Rob Allen	3 00
Friend, Lyn	1 00
L, No Wobnrn	3 00
Golden Gate	2 00
No Manchester Union	6 00
—, Monument, Colo	6 00
Contents of Birthday Box in Union S S, Ft Calhoun	11 00
Pansy Jackson	3 00
Mary L McKay	3 00
Dan Will, Lillian and DeWitt Patterson	5 00
Mrs Geo Rank	3 00
Mrs A H Beaty	1 00
Lester C Farris	25
Marie W S	75
InHisName, Deshoro	15
Ursnla L Forqner	15
—, Windsor	1 00
Joseph Taylor	1 00
Friend, Belmar	10 00
Mrs E M, Bklyn	1 00
Mrs M W, Denver	3 00
I H N, Park River	1 00
J I Wood	5 00
Mrs E Carpenter	2 00
—, Newark	3 00
Miss Frances Steele	3 00
Anon, —	3 00
Mrs M J Biddle	1 00
Miss Lissa Biddle	1 00
In Christ's Name, Sabine Pass	10 00
Samuel's Mite, M L H New York City	1 00
Mrs T C Bacon	2 00
Mrs C C Higgins	9 00
F. Ashnry Park	2 00
Nellie A Du Bois	1 00
I I. Benson	6 00
Mrs E L E. Bklyn	6 00
M M	3 00
Cong. Jr End Soc. Terryville	3 00
Friend, New Boston	2 00
One who loves the children, Derry Depot	3 00
Mrs Hannah Smith	5 00
L. M. Alleman	10 00
Reader, Enreka	12 00
Ann F Otis	3 00
Mrs J A Keeler	1 00
Mrs Mary G Jennings	1 00
Mrs Ruth A. Tibbals	10 00
Mrs Lulu Button	2 00
Fair given by Jessie Nevin, Susan Gregory, Henry Biedeback and Mason M Clark	3 75
In His Name, Rolla	1 00
Friend, Broad Brook	50
Mr and Mrs Y, Chicago	6 00
Mrs C. Phillips	3 00
Friend, Fitchburg	75
Mrs H. Kastner	5 00
Mrs N J Goodrich	9 00
Jeptha Munyon	3 00
Friend, Westbrook	1 00
H M Peterson	6 00
One in the Master's service, Jordan	1 00
Friend, Morse	1 00
Mrs M C S, Clymer	1 00
E H A, Uxbridge	1 00
E A R, Thorndike	3 00
M J I G, Brooklyn	7 00
S O M, Watsontown	5 00
H M Hillard	1 00
H C Snyder	3 00
A M B, Kenosho	3 00
M E M, Bedford	3 00
Hannah M Tefft	1 00
S E Newman	1 00
A tarnished Silver Cross	3 00
M A H, Auburn	1 00
Friend, Bay City	1 00
Mrs J W Sturgis	1 00
A B C, Springfield	50
—, Andover	3 00
A Lovett	5 00
M A H, Putnam	1 00
C A H, Putnam	3 00
The Lord's Tenth, Genoa	1 00
A B H, Thamesford, Ont Can	3 00
Hudson Union S S Oakes	1 00
M V H, Los Angeles	6 00
Mrs G Clarkson	5 00
Jr Epworth League, Green Village	3 00
Allen L Gillespie	6 00
Mrs C A Custon and Mrs G J Ohmers	6 00
Mrs C B Randall	6 00
Mr and Mrs A W H Whitcomb	3 00
Mrs S L Flower	3 00
Mrs I M Groves	2 00
Anna Honseholder	3 00
Two classes of little girls, 1st, Cong'l hu, Methuen	3 00
L R P, Derry Depot	3 00
M. Oxford	1 00
May Peck	1 00
In His Name, S C	3 00
Friend, Winston	1 00
Anne, Pittsburg	3 60
Mrs Maggie Keeton	1 00
Mrs E Tourtellotte	2 00
Mr and Mrs Norris	3 00
Mrs Mary Leckie	3 00
Mk & J A C Hallesthe A King's Daughter, Rowley	9 00
R J Richards	1 00
Sunbeams, LaFayette	50
Catherine Brecheisen	3 00
M R P, Vass	1 00
L McCormick	3 00
Annie M a d Ellen S Wrestling	6 00
Friend, Bucksport	50
E R Craven	1 00
Friend, New London	3 00
J M Abrams	10 00
J H Abrams	5 00
Mrs J Lorimer	2 00
Mrs J P. Perry	1 00
School Children, Oklahoma	3 25
Mrs L P Knowlton	5 00
Total	2,105.34

The Sunday School

THE SHUNAMMITE'S SON.

S. S. Lesson for Aug. 14. II. Kings. 4: 25-37. Golden Text, Ps. 55: 22.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

THE mantle of Elijah had been cast upon Elisha and the double portion of his spirit rested upon him; but Elisha was not to be a second Elijah; the two prophets had each of them his separate, his individual vocation. Let us never make the mistake of conforming our lives to some especially spiritual man or woman of God: let us seek after and obtain from God a like spirit, but leave to him whether our vocation is that of eyes, ears, hands, feet or whatever other ministry in the "one body" to him, for his service in the world. Elijah, and his New Testament representative, John the Baptist, were men apart, men who were used of God to do a preparatory work for what should follow. Elisha was no man of the desert, although he was by no means a man of the world. He was in the world, living amongst ordinary people, kind, approachable, bringing the power and love of God into ordinary life. The ministry of Elisha needed that of Elijah to introduce it; the ministry of Elijah needed the Elisha ministry to follow it. Let no Elijah spirit despise the Elishas.

The men of Jericho found in Elisha a friend and helper who knew God, and who could bring a "Thus saith the Lord" to bear upon the malarious waters of the city and heal it (II. Kings 2: 19-22). The kings of Israel and Judah in their great dilemma, when, banded together against Moab without taking counsel of the Lord, he stopped their water supply (II. Kings 3); found no help until they sought Elisha. A widow, in pecuniary trouble was just as welcome, and the prophet's head was not more turned than Elijah's was by being God's messenger to royalty.

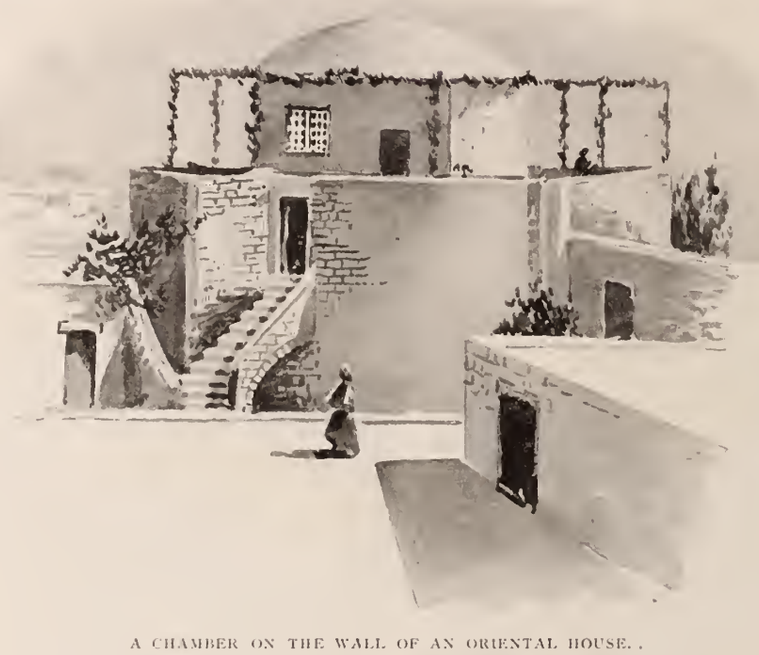
It is evident that Elisha was frequently journeying, and on one of his journeys he came to Shunem, where a woman of property invited him to dine, and it became one of his usual stopping places when he passed that way. There are some children of God whose call it is to make easy the work of those whose time is occupied in more direct spiritual work for the Lord. The body of Christ has hands and feet as well as tongue, eyes and ears. It is a sad ignorance of the true teaching of God's Word where the Spirit of God untolds the precious truth of the "body," when one member depreciates the work of another, quite as necessary as his own, and thus shows himself to be the superior.

This woman understood her vocation. With a woman's quick intuition, and led, no doubt, by the Spirit of God, she perceived the need which Elisha had to be alone with his God. So she said to her husband, "Behold, now I perceive that this is a holy man of God, which passeth by us continually." Elisha had probably never told her much of his inward experiences; but she knew enough of God to recognize in him one who was deeply acquainted with God. Thus she continued to her husband: "Let us make, I pray thee, a little chamber on the wall, and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick; and it shall be when he cometh to us that he shall turn in thither." There was a delicacy of feeling about this woman; she was one of God's gentlewomen, thinking in no way of her own enjoyment in the company of Elisha, but how she could help his work in facilitating things for him.

The prophet was deeply touched. One day when he was enjoying the solitude and quiet of this precious refuge, he said to Gehazi, his servant, "Call this Shunammite." When the woman, all unsuspecting responded to the call, he said, "Behold, thou hast been careful for us with all this care, what is to be done for thee?" It was so unexpected: she had never dreamed, never looked for any return for her gladly given hospitality; but God never leaves himself in debt, and more than repays all which is done purely out of love to him. And yet this woman could hardly grasp the fact that the desire, the prayer of years which perhaps had now ceased to be a prayer, should be answered. But so it was; and at the very time which the prophet predicted, this woman become a mother.

But every prophet and every willing minister for the Lord's sake must be put to the test. "The child grew," and O how this gift from God must have rejoiced the heart of the parents, and how, when Elisha came to the house and laid his hand in blessing upon the lad's head, his heart would rise up in adoration to God! Nothing could be farther from the minds of either the prophet or the parents than that the life thus miraculously given should be recalled. And yet no other test could be such a test either to Elisha or to the parents. It was harvest-time; just the time of delight to children, and the hot sun smote him. "My head, my head," he cried; and instantly his father gave orders that he should be carried to his mother. It was not long: only from the early morning till noon, and the desire of her eyes lay a corpse upon her knees. What should she do? Should she seek sympathy from husband or from friends? No; she was not only a minister to the Lord in ministering to others in his name: it would be proved now that she could trust the Lord in the deepest of trials. A great thought came into her heart. She told no man, but carried the little corpse to the prophet's chambers, and sent to her husband to procure an ass that she might go to the man of God and come again. Deep in her heart the death of her child was not conclusive.

With all possible haste she went the thirty miles ride, for she knew where to find Elisha. He had gone to Carmel, perhaps to steep his soul in the remembrances which that locality would awake of God's power, and to get face to face with the almightiness of his God. While she was still some distance off, Elisha saw her, and sent Gehazi to quiet her with the salutation: "Is it well with thee? Is it well with thy husband? Is it well with the child?" By faith in a God whom she could not doubt, she could say with a breaking heart, "It is well." But she had a distinctive repugnance to open her heart to Gehazi. Her spirit felt what Elisha had not yet discovered, that Gehazi was not thorough, and she remained with her burden hidden until she reached Elisha. Then she came near and fell at his feet. Gehazi officiously approached; hurt, perhaps that she had not opened her heart to him.



A CHAMBER ON THE WALL OF AN ORIENTAL HOUSE.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

ALTHOUGH there is little similarity between the characters of Elijah and Elisha, there is a remarkable parallelism in the miracles in the two records. Each of them divided Jordan and with the same instrument; Elisha delivered a widow from financial embarrassment, as Elijah did, and by the same means—the miraculous increase of oil; and now, in this week's lesson, Elisha recalls to life the only son of a benefactress, as Elijah had done. The duplication was perhaps due to the conception Elisha had of himself as the heir of Elijah's spirit, and to a feeling, he may have had, that the more closely he trod in the steps of his master, the better. But he worked more miracles than Elijah did, or, perhaps the historians of his time were more careful than those of the earlier time to record them. They were not all of the highest order. His revealing to the king the plans of the enemy, his purifying the waters and his making the iron axe-head swim, were instances of the use of the miracle-working power for purposes more trival than is usual with the Bible miracles. They indicate that Elisha had not the exalted idea of the prophets office that Elijah had. There was always a danger of this degeneration among the Hebrews. Christ himself complained of them that they were more eager to see a sign, than to learn the lesson the sign was intended to teach. It is noteworthy, as Farrar points out, that Christ did not regard miracles as proofs of greatness. John the Baptist, who did no miracle, Christ placed highest of all on the roll of the prophets.

Came unto the Man of God. A wise thing to do in trouble and anxiety. A few years ago, a mother thought she had lost her daughter. A letter was brought to her from the girl, who, she supposed, had gone to business as usual, in which the girl intimated that her parents would never see her again. Whether she was going to commit suicide, or to do some other wicked thing, the mother could not tell from the incoherent letter. Happily she knew a man of God, and sent to him to tell him of her trouble. He is a city-missionary, who has unfaltering faith God as a Hearer of Prayer. On reach the house of anxiety, the first thing did was to commit the case to God ask his help. The father was too anx to remain inactive. He went from p to place inquiring for the missing and the mother wept and mourned thro the long morning hours. Meantime man of God remained in the house pecting an answer to his prayer. It c in the most unexpected way. A C tian lady, a stranger to her, had found on the brink of ruin, had spoken to won her confidence and brought her h There was joy in that home that n as over the dead restored to life.

Gehazi came near to thrust her a Unhappily there have been in all servants in the church who have trie keep people from coming near to Even the disciples tried to keep mothers from bringing their childre Christ." Phillips Brooks tells the st the great mogul emperor, Jahangir, he had a chain hung from the citad which he lived, the other end of w touched the ground. Any of his sub unable to obtain justice through proper officers, might lay hold of chain and pull it, and immediately a ter of golden bells in the emperor's ber was set ringing. The courtiers very indignant at first, because they not wish the people to come into con ication with the emperor, except th them. But the emperor pers and the meanest, humblest ma the kingdom was sure of ju because if the courtiers negl him or wanted higher fees tha could pay, he had only to appl hand to the chain and he coul the emperor's ear. If people go to priests and prelates for and absolution would only us means God provides, they w not be disappointed in getting p

The child is not awake needed contact to bring back life. Elisha sending his servan not sufficient: the staff laid o child was not sufficient: the m God must go himself. Lowell t beautiful legend of the knigh Launfal that he set out as a y man to search through the wor the holy grail—the cup Christ at the institution of the Lord's per. As he rode forth he noti leper sitting at the castle gate ging. Sir Launfal shuddered i gust, but threw the man a pie gold. Many years he tra through the world, vainly seekin holy grail. At last disappointe weary, but with a humbled spi returned. At the castle gate, re sat the leper. Sir Launfal mounted, and going to the man him food and drink with his hands. Compassion, not disgust filled his heart, and as he gav poor creature the food and dri told him it was in the name of Christ. leper's rags fell from him, and he up glorified, for it was Christ to who ministered, and the cup in which he him drink was turned to the holy for which he had been searching. sonal kindness had done what gold the world-wide search had failed to

Took up her son. He would be to her than ever, receiving him thus the dead. The missionaries in tell a wonderful story of a romantic dent in the history of the island. was away on a journey, and on h return learned that a daughter had born during his absence. The p around his wife had buried it alive morning in accordance with heathe toms. But during his journey he ha ceived a horror of such murders, an went to the grave and hastily remove leaves with which it was filled. neath was a board, below which w child still alive. He dared not keep he took it to the Isle of Elmeo wh paid a woman to take care of it. He regularly until his death some ten afterward. Then he told the mother the child's name and f When Christianity reached Tahiti the first converts was the child's m who lamented among other thing death of her infant. In a few day foster-mother came to the house le the child by the hand. The mother the story with wonder and thankf and blessed God.

SOLDIERS WELCOME THE GOSPEL.

Another Week of Active Spiritual Work in the Camps—Many Confess Christ—The Christian Commission's Efforts at Home and Abroad.

ENCOURAGED by the unmistakable signs of divine blessing that have attended their labors during the last month, the consecrated workers of the Christian Commission are striving with doubled energies to meet the great need of a reached Gospel in all of the military camps and hospitals throughout the country. Mr. D. L. Moody and his associates in the conduct of this great soul-saving crusade, have secured, through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD and other papers, the active support and sympathy of all Christian people of America, and are mightily waging the battle against the evil, peculiar to military camps, and bringing home the truth to thousands of men.

Letters have come to us from a number of the evangelists now in the field, and as a result afford some idea of the nature of the work now going on. we we give extracts from several below:

M. E. Sheffield writes from Fort McPherson, Ga.:

"This fort is a rendezvous for the regular army. Recruits are sent here, uniformed, equipped and sent on to join their regiments. Troops are coming and going weekly. Our Y. M. C. A. work fills a great need. Tents were full day and evening. In 22 days we have given out 27,700 envelopes and 37,000 sheets of paper. Have distributed 100 testaments, 300 magazines and 250 books, and received for distribution the contents of Mr. Moody's colportage library. The religious services are under the charge of the Post Chaplain, in the Nave. We have an average attendance nightly of fully one hundred and seventy men, coming to become Christians or have their names entered to unite with churches. Many have been baptized, 400 signed the total abstinence pledge, and 200 the pledge against gambling.

At Chickamauga.

"From Chickamauga many encouraging notes are received, showing how the Spirit is working among the troops.

"In the Indiana quarters, the chaplain of the regiment had become a humble child of God. He had never heard the Gospel understandingly until he became a soldier. He was a neglected boy in a western town—a drunkard. His conversion has been thorough and his influence now is decided for Christ.

"The Secretary near Fourth Pennsylvania reports the appearance of an efficient helper in one of the privates of that regiment, who was confessing for Christ among his comrades and bringing them out to the meetings.

"'Why do you look so downcast?" said a delegate he came at the close of a meeting.to a soldier leaning against a tree. "Well," said the soldier, "I am not a Christian, and I want to be. What mother said to me when I left home has come back to me to-night. She said, 'My boy, I would be willing to give you up if you were a Christian, and I could meet you in heaven.'" Christ was held up to him, and before the delegate left the ground the man had decided for his Lord.

"An eighth Massachusetts convert came to the secretary of the tent with a letter from his pastor, written in response to his letter telling of his conversion. The wife is an earnest Christian and had been praying for him. She wrote full of joy that her prayers had been answered and said: "I am willing now to bear the separation and to give you up, for I know we shall meet in heaven."

"At the first meeting with the Third Tennessee Regiment a soldier came and gave a dollar for the Christian Commission. He said that he was not a Christian, but that it was a good work, and he wanted to help it. The same night afterward the man came forward with forty or fifty other comrades seeking salvation. The Secretary said: "I never saw such a scene. The men seemed to forget everything except their sins and their need of Christ. We could not get them off their knees until they found deliverance. The last man to come was a sergeant who has been most wonderfully transformed and taken a bold stand for Christ. The soldier who gave the dollar was also converted."

Rough Riders Converted.

"Among the new converts there are quite a number of Bigsby's Rough Riders. One of these is giving his testimony at a meeting after payday, says: "I sent home to-day a postal order for twenty-five dollars. That is one of the results of this work, and of my having become a Christian."

Many officers are being persuaded to confess Christ. A lieutenant-colonel said to one of our delegates on a railway-car, "I have been a professing Christian at home, but it has not meant much. This work you are doing here has got hold of me, and I am determined to live for Christ in the army, and do what I can for his cause."

General Howard's visit to Chickamauga has given a fresh impetus to the work. Three immense meetings were held at which Gospel addresses were given by the General. In the morning, at ten o'clock, it was a beautiful sight to see the twelve hundred men of the Fourth Pennsylvania, led by their Colonel, marching into Camp Thomas Theatre. The First Illinois Cavalry, led by Chaplain Bullock, were also present in large numbers. The President's proclamation, calling for thanksgiving and prayer, was read by Mr. Pearsall, General Secretary of the Commission, and appropriate prayer offered by Chaplain Zeller of the Fourth Pennsylvania. General Howard gave a most interesting and effective address upon the love of God, and scores of his audience were melted to tears. In the evening the largest meeting of all was held, with General Sanger's division, near division headquarters. Perhaps three thousand men were present, drawn up in three sides of a hollow square.

General Sanger and General Wiley were on the platform with General Howard. The singing, conducted by Mr. Maxwell was something notable. The words of General Howard, telling of what Christ could do for a soldier, will bear fruit in many lives, and be made a blessing to hundreds of hearts.

PLAZA DE MANZANILLO, SANTIAGO DE CUBA.

Coming Out for Christ.

In a letter from Chickamauga Park, Lytle, Ga., to Mr. Moody, Maj. Whittle writes:

The Colportage books came to hand early last week. The 2,000 Way to God have all been given out and I have telegraphed for 1,000 more. We are giving out Way to God only to young converts who sign our cards; the other books we are using in our hospital work and giving freely to men who ask for, and seem to value getting them. We have organized our force for systematic visitation of the sick; there are four division hospitals in the camp and some five hundred patients occupying them.

In a camp of eleven battery companies, where there are about 2,000 men of the best class of our soldiers, they have no chaplains, and very little has been done to reach them. My own meeting with them a week ago Sunday, was the first time that we have been enabled to get into their camp. Sunday night Mr. Smith had 500 of them at his meeting and 73 professed to accept Christ and signed cards. Last night 42 out of the 73 were present and testified for Christ, and nearly 50 more professed to decide. A young man came to him and asked him for a Testament with his name written in it. He told Smith: "I was three years at Amherst College and expected to go into the Presbyterian ministry; but I was led into sin, the sin that you spoke of last night when you hit me. I have gone on in evil and am now a prodigal. My family do not know where I am. The last time I was with my mother, she begged me to take from her a Testament, but I got angry and threw it at her head." His voice trembled as he said: "I wish now that I had never done it." The man is under deep conviction.

"Strike while the Iron is Hot."

Rev. Dr. Wharton, who has just returned from the camps, writes:

DR. L. W. MUNHALL.

"That is a saying as true as it is old, and as applied to the opportunity now offered in Cuba for Gospel work, is eminently appropriate.

"It is hardly necessary to remark upon the superstition and ignorance which have been the blight of Spain and all her possessions. The religion of that people has been worse than none at all. At this juncture in the history of Cuba the people will go over to infidelity unless something is done at once to arrest that tendency. I know Cuba; a more fertile land does not lie beneath the sun. Our people will be only too eager to make that island blossom as the rose in its material interests—but what will the people of God do for her spiritual affairs? The way is open—let us go and we shall find that the heart of that little nation may turn from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God. It is not the missionary and teacher and pastor we need. Just now there must be quicker work. We need evangelists—men who will stand up in the streets or the highways as they did at Jerusalem and preach Jesus. The field is white unto the harvest. Let the reapers go first and the binders and gatherers follow on.

"We can learn the language which we preach to our own soldiers, who are now more ready than ever to listen to the word.

"It seems to me that the Army Christian Commission will find there some of its best and most blessed work.

Baltimore. REV. H. M. WHARTON."

The Horrors of War.

A letter from Santiago describe heart-rending scenes among the fugitives who crowded by hundreds and thousands into the American camp during the recent fighting and both before and after the fall of the city. Among the fugitives were many women and children, whose pinched faces and eager, imploring looks, gave evidence of the suffering they had undergone. Our troops fed the hungry ones and gave what comfort they could, but the condition of mothers and babies in such circumstances, can better be imagined than described. Our artist has shown in the illustration on the first page of this issue, a glimpse of some of those moving scenes, and the generous relief work so willingly done by our troops for the success of these helpless ones.

Two experienced workers of the Christian Commission, E. R. Hyde and C. F. Rodgers, accompanied Gen. Miles' expedition to Porto Rico. They were specially selected by the Y. M. C. A. for this duty, and carry with them a complete outfit. Two other workers, Messrs. Barrett and Britain, are already busy among the troops at Santiago, and have made their headquarters on the high ground above El Caney. Altogether, the Commission has now at the various camps at home and abroad and with the fleet, over 140 faithful and earnest workers, many of them unsalaried. Sixty-five tents are in use, but more are needed, and contributions are invited to help defray the actual expenses of the work. All of the leading members of the Commission give their services free, but transportation expenses and material, including wagons, books, tracts, stationery, etc., make such an appeal necessary.

NOTES OF THE WAR.

THERE are 150 cases of yellow fever at Santiago, all of a mild form.

OUR generous treatment of the prisoners has elicited warm approval in Spain.

THE total number of prisoners who have surrendered to Gen. Shafter exceeds 24,000.

OUR fleet has captured the port of Nipe in Northern Cuba, and will use it as a naval base.

THOUSANDS of destitute are now being fed at free kitchens, which have been opened in Havana, by Captain-General Blanco's order.

EUROPE is still anxiously discussing the prospect of a visit from Admiral Watson's fleet, and the Mediterranean promises to be a scene of great naval activity, as every naval power will probably be represented there for the purpose of observing the doings of the American squadron.

GEN. MILES has reached Porto Rico with the first of three military expeditions, and the others will shortly follow. It is expected that operations in that island will not be protracted, as the Porto Ricans are strongly opposed to Spain, and will welcome the Americans. The first expedition landed at Guanica, the second will disembark at Fajaydo, near San Juan, and the third at some desirable port on the northern side of the island.

ALTHOUGH our military and naval plans are still being carried out vigorously, there is now little doubt that actual negotiations for peace have been begun by Spain, and that any day may witness the cessation of hostilities. It is understood that the first steps on these negotiations have been taken by the English and French Ambassadors at Madrid. No formal notice of Spain's wishes has yet reached Washington, although such notice is fully expected soon. The Madrid government has decided to sue for peace.

PRESIDENT McKinley bears up admirably under the strain of directing the extensive military and naval operations of the past three months, added to the regular burdens of his august office. He is of the true type of Christian soldier and statesman, and has been as regular in attending to his religious duties as to his Cabinet meetings. It is stated that he resorts to no stimulants even in the gravest stress. His recent proclamation shows his unswerving reliance on the providence of God.

The Moody Gospel Fund.

Contributions for the Moody Gospel Fund are received by and acknowledged through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. The following have been received during the week:

Prev. ack'd	$1639 71	AMP, Northampton	1 00
Abrams, J M.....	2 00	O T B, St Louis	1 00
Baldwin, M A....	1 00	R S S, Mexia	5 00
Bikle, Chas G....	1 00	W J C, St Clairsville	1 00
Brown, W J.....	2 00	Mr& Mrs Y, Chicago	1 00
Carlson, A O.....	1 00	——, Goshen.....	1 00
Carpenter, Mrs E..	1 00	——, Gresham.....	3 00
Clarkson, Mrs L D	35	——, Madison.....	1 00
Cookinham, Mr. Mrs and Miss M...	2 00	Friend, Albany....	50
Davenport, J	1 00	" Bridgeport	2 00
Davis, D T.....	2 00	" Bucksport.....	50
Gress, R L.....	2 00	" Rothsville.....	50
Hartman Mrs C....	1 50	Friends, Colesville..	50
Keyes, E J.....	1 00	I H S Anderson....	25
Nelson, Mr & Mrs P A	5 00	I H S, S D.....	5 00
Perry, E R.....	1 00	C E Cong Ch, Pewaukee	3 00
Robbins, Mrs M G....	1 00	Cong Ch & Soc, E Charlemont.....	5 60
Sloane, A C.....	5 00	One who is praying.
Stewart, Miss C W..	4 00	De Funiak.....	50
Swanson, Mrs C F...	1 00	Small S S, Grainfield	1 00
Thatcher, Mrs M....	3 00	Sterrett S S, Texas..	1 25
Walker, Mrs L A....	5 00	S S C I, St Clairsville	3 00
Wiestling, Annie M & Ellen S.....	2 00	Total	$1722.76

All contributions will be acknowledged in these columns.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper, to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post office at New York, as Second-class Matter

What Next After the War?

WE shall have Cuba, the Philippines, and perhaps, other islands to civilize, yes, and Christianize. And we shall do it. And the first step in that direction will have been taken when the war is over. This great American Republic—this nation with a role among the nations like that of the Jews among the nations of that early period — will have made her civilization emphatic all over the earth. It is a civilization that recognizes the Golden Rule: a civilization that conceives of the bondmen of the earth as bound with them. And, henceforth the Stars and Stripes will carry this lesson of humanitarianism wherever it flies. And, if any other nation of the earth should inquire the secret of our success and glory, it is here; in the fact, that we burn to vindicate and deliver those that are oppressed.

Spain represents the civilization of the Middle Ages. We represent the civilization of His kingdom, who, though he said: "I come not to send peace on the earth, but a sword," was foretold as the Leader and Commander, under whom the nations should learn war no more; should beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks. And we can afford to follow where He leads.

Household Worries.

YOU think, O man of the world, that you have all the anxieties. If the cares and the anxieties of the household should come upon you for one week you would be a fit candidate for the insane asylum. The half-rested housekeeper arises in the morning. She must have the morning repast prepared at an irreasonable hour. What if the fire will not light? what if the marketing did not come? what if the clock has stopped? No matter; she must have the morning repast at an unreasonable hour. Then the children must be got off to school. What if their lessons are long? What if they do not know their lessons? What if they have lost a hat or cloak? They must be ready. Then you have all the diet of the day, and perhaps of several days, to plan. But what if the butcher has sent meat ill-masticable, or the grocer has sent articles of food adulterated? and what if some piece of silver be gone or some favorite chalice be cracked, or the roof leak, or the plumbing fail, or any one of a thousand things occur? You must be ready. Spring weather comes and there must be a revolution in the family wardrobe; or autumn comes, and you must shut out the northern blast. But what if the moth has preceded you to the chest? what if, during the year, the children have outgrown the apparel of last year? what if the fashions have changed? Your house must be an apothecary's shop; it must be a dispensary; there must be medicines for all sorts of ailments —something to loosen the croup, something to cool the burn, something to poultice the inflammation, something to silence the jumping tooth, something to soothe the ear-ache. You must be in half a dozen places at the same time, or you must attempt to be. If, under all this wear and tear of life, your "better half" makes an impatient rush upon the library or drawing room, be patient, be lenient. O woman, though I may fail to stir up an appreciation in the souls of others in regard to your household toils, let me assure you, from the kindliness with which Jesus Christ met Martha, that he appreciates all your work. He is the especial friend and confidant of a whole world of troubled womanhood.

The Christian as a Taxpayer.

THE Master of us all was a taxpayer. He sent one of his disciples to catch the fish, that had in its mouth the denarius, with the image and superscription of Cæsar upon it. He believed in government, even though it were Roman, and his own country a conquered province.

Our war taxes are to support a measure demanded, as we believe, by humanity, yes, and now, since war is declared, by Christianity; for Christianity makes tax-paying obligatory upon the good citizen. Tax-paying is only the support of the soldiers that fight our battles for us. As St. Paul says of the support of civil government: "For they are God's ministers, attending continually upon this very thing."

The enactment of the revenue measure of Congress has required some acts of compromise. But it has been fairly done. And there has been patriotism in it. Let there be patriotism displayed now in coming up promptly in the payment of the taxes. Our boys have gone to the field, are making themselves heroes on ship-deck, are making a great future for the nation, are blessing the world, as we believe. Let there be no evasion in tax-paying. Let us go and catch the fish that has in its mouth the denarius. "Honor to whom honor is due, and tribute to whom tribute is due."

Good Samaritan Among Nations.

IT is asked, "Well, are we going to set ourselves up as ready to right all the wrongs existing among the different nations of the earth?" No, we do not mean this. The man that we knew as the Good Samaritan, perhaps righted not another like wrong in all his life. But he set an example that will live forever. If we right one single wrong, walking as we do earth's high places, occupying an outpost as we do, in civilization, other nations will take the cue from us.

Cuba is our neighbor, less than ninety miles from our coast. If we ask, "And who is my neighbor?" the answer must be, "The nation that we can save and deliver and set upon the highway of progress in civilization." The Good Samaritan gave all humanity an object lesson. One lesson was enough. Who knows whether it may not be so in this case? We are binding the wounds of Cuba. We are being wounded for her sake.

Let Spain revile us and say it is all pretence. There is a divine principle in it. And if there is, God will see that we are justified in the eyes of the world.

The prayers of the readers of this journal are requested for the blessing of God upon its proprietor, and also upon those whose sermons, articles, or labors for Christ, are printed in it, and that its circulation may be used by the Holy Spirit for the conversion of sinners and the quickening of God's people.

The Ring Upon the Finger.

RINGS were probably the first ornaments ever worn, though in the earliest ages they had a meaning far beyond mere adornment. The stories of Judah and Tamar, of Pharaoh and Joseph, of Ahasuerus and Haman, show that as pledges of good faith, as marks of favor, and as tokens of authority, they were the recognized symbols. The fashion was an Eastern one, for the Jews were familiar with it, before their sojourn in Egypt; indeed, it may have been one of those primeval customs, which Shem, Ham and Japhet saved from the wreck of an earlier world. Certainly the people of Syria, and the lords of Palestine and Tyre, used rings in the earliest times and it is remarkable that they bore the same emblem which ancient Mexican rings bear—the constellation of Pisces. As an ornament, however, the ring is least important; it is an emblem. The charmed circle has potency and romance.

The Jews first used it in marriage. For this purpose they required it to have a certain value, and to be finally and fully purchased. If it was bought on credit, or taken as a gift, its power was destroyed. The Christian Church early adopted the custom of the marriage ring. It was placed first on the thumb, in the name of the "Father;" then removed to the first finger, in the name of the "Son;" to the third with the name of the "Holy Ghost," and the "Amen" fixed its place on the fourth.

Rings were also the emblem of spiritual marriage and dignity as early as the third century. In the Romish Church the Episcopal ring is of gold set with a rich gem. The Pope has two rings, one bearing the likeness of St. Peter, used for ordinary business; the other bearing a cross, and the heads of both Peter and Paul, and the reigning Pope's name and arms. It is used only for Bulls; and is broken at the death of the Pontiff, and a new one given by the city of Rome to his successor. These rings of spiritual office were frequently worn on the thumb, and when the tomb of Bede was opened in May 1831, a large thumb-ring was found where the right hand had fallen to dust.

The ring has been used not only for carnal and spiritual weddings, but also for commercial ones. For six hundred years, the Doges of Venice married, with a gold ring, the Adriatic and its rich commerce to their city on the sea. As an emblem of delegated or transmitted power, the ring has also played a remarkable part in human affairs. Pharaoh and Ahasuerus in Biblical records are examples. Alexander transferred his kingdom to Perdicas with his ring. When Cæsar received the head of Pompey, he also received his ring, and when Richard the Second resigned his crown to Henry of Lancaster, he did so by giving him his ring. The Coronation ring of England is of gold, in which is set a large violet ruby, carved with the Cross of St. George. The custom of engraving sacred emblems upon rings, for common wear, was angrily reproved by so early a sage as Pythagoras; and this heathen's delicacy about sacred things is commended to the notice of those women of our own day, who toss the holy symbol of our faith around the toilet tables, and wear it in very unconsecrated places.

Great faith in all ages has been placed in charmed rings. Greeks and Romans possessed them, and the Scandinavian nations had a superstitious faith in such amulets; indeed, as chronicles declare, it is hard to compute how much William was indebted for his victory over Harold to the influence of the ring he wore, which had been blessed and hallowed. As curative agencies, rings have also played a curious part. Until the Georgian era, rings blessed by the King or Queen on Good Friday were thought to control epilepsy and other complaints, and something of this secret power is still acknowledged by the superstitious, who wear around their necks rings or coins that have been blessed. Rings have also been agencies for death, as well as for life. In all ages they have been receptacles for subtle poisons, and thus Hannibal and Demosthenes armed themselves against an extremity of evil fortune.

In the life of the English queen Elizabeth, rings had an extraordinary importance. She was notified of her ascension to the throne by the presentation of Mary's ring. The withholding of the ring sent by Essex caused her to die in a passion of remorse and re-awakened affection, and no sooner was the great struggle over, than her ring was taken from her scarcely cold finger and flung out of the window to Sir John Harrington, who hastened over the Border with it to the Scottish James.

There are some curious traditions regarding the stones usually set in rings. The ruby of carbuncle was thought to guard against [illegible]. The sapphire was the favorite of chur[illegible] and was thought to inspire pure [illegible]. Epiphanes says the first tables of th[illegible] were written on sapphires. The emer[illegible] stowed cheerfulness and increased [illegible]. The opal was said to make a man in[illegible] the jacinth to procure sleep, and the tu[illegible] to appease quarrels between man an[illegible]. Things are much changed, however in[illegible] heathen sages and Rosicrucian alchem[illegible] fined the qualities and powers of gem[illegible]. We have commercial "rings" now, which [illegible] emerald ones to scorn, as means of pr[illegible] wealth. If the opal could make a r[illegible] visible, it might be popular on the fi[illegible] of month, but we have better narcotics th[illegible] jacinth, while the elaborateness of our w[illegible] toilets gives husbands manifold oppor[illegible] of peace-making, quite as successful [illegible] turquoise.

However, I have said enough to pr[illegible] the ring upon our finger is a link bet[illegible] and the centuries beyond the flood. [illegible] not escape this tremendous solidarity [illegible] human race. We are part of all that h[illegible] and the generations that follow us w[illegible] back to us and say. "They were our [illegible] and we are their heirs, and lo, we are a [illegible]

Amelia E. Bar[illegible]

BRIEF NOTES.

Lieutenant Hobson, who sank the [illegible] mac at the entrance of Santiago Harbor[illegible] active member of the Young Men's Chris[illegible] sociation in the U. S. Naval Academy at [illegible] his while a student there, and served as [illegible] during the year 1888.

The Organizing Committee of the [illegible] American League, 115 Broadway, New Y[illegible] has issued a circular addressed to "the fr[illegible] Cuban freedom," urging a movement lo[illegible] emigration, under American auspices, t[illegible] Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines.

Dwight L. Moody is reported to h[illegible] ceived a gift of $100,000 in stocks and bond[illegible] school work in Northfield. The funds a[illegible] divided; the Normal Seminary and Mount [illegible] School are each to receive one-half. The [illegible] the donor has not been given to the publi[illegible]

The Waldensian Church in Italy [illegible] time ago celebr. ted the fiftieth anniversa[illegible] edict of King Charles Albert which grant[illegible] ious freedom and toleration to the W[illegible] King Humbert gave a special audience to [illegible] chet, pastor of the Waldensian Church in [illegible]

A few Free Scholarships will be [illegible] Luray College, Virginia, this year to worth[illegible] ladies, who are endeavoring to get an e[illegible] and who have to provide for themselves. [illegible] ence is given to orphans, other things bei[illegible] Rev. H. M. Wharton, Baltimore, Md., wi[illegible] all inquiries.

A boy of eighteen has been sente[illegible] fifty days imprisonment at Doylestown, [illegible] destroying birds' nests. It seems like [illegible] sentence, but the destruction of birds a[illegible] nests is cruel sport, and if parents will [illegible] their children from it, the law should give t[illegible] culprits a lesson.

An English newspaper states that w[illegible] permission of the Bishop of Norwich, Mr [illegible] vicar of Kessingland, declined to bury a no[illegible] impenitent sinner against the cardinal law[illegible] Christian community, after every effort h[illegible] made, and made in vain, by the parish [illegible] deduce a confession of sorrow.

A Norwegian paper reports that Ic[illegible] divided into 140 parishes, with 1,600 chur[illegible] bers, not reckoning the capital city of R[illegible] The population has been faithful to the L[illegible] Confession since its general acceptanc[illegible] island in 1551. The church of the island[illegible] own theological seminary, founded in 18[illegible]

Both Spain and the United States a[illegible] represented, notwithstanding the present [illegible] the Paris Exhibition of 1900, and both com[illegible] likely to have more extensive exhibits tha[illegible] previous occasion of the kind in a foreign [illegible] America will, it is to be hoped, excel [illegible] spicuously in the variety of industry a[illegible] field of war.

The mission to Madrid of Miss [illegible] Schley, of Milwaukee, a distant relative [illegible] modore Schley, has attracted attention t[illegible] forts made by the friends of peace to bring[illegible] cessation of hostilities between the Unit[illegible] and Spain. Miss Schley comes from revo[illegible] stock, and is a thorough American. She [illegible] ber of the Peace Society, and anxious t[illegible] end of war, its horrors and its hardships. [illegible] tives command respect, even although he [illegible] may prove to be without result.

The old mission property on Madel[illegible] land, Lake Superior, has been purchase[illegible] paired through the liberality of the Rev[illegible] Salmon, of Beloit, Wisconsin. Mr. Salmo[illegible] to make this a retreat for Congregationalis[illegible] the summer months. Early in August appr[illegible] exercises are to be held in reopening [illegible] Mission House. Leading representatives [illegible] Northwest will be present and give addr[illegible] home missionary conference will be held [illegible] nection with these exercises.

The adoption by New York's M[illegible] Council of an ordinance against the use of [illegible] language in public places calls attention [illegible] fact that laws prohibiting profane sweari[illegible] for many years been on the statute books [illegible] York and other States. Recently these la[illegible] been enforced in several instances, and t[illegible] signs of a growing popular desire to see [illegible] graceful and degrading habit of swearing [illegible] suppressed. The clergy, as shown by t[illegible] mons on recent Sundays, are, as they ought [illegible] on the side of the authorities in this new an[illegible] some departure.

MISSIONARIES IN DANGER.

AGAIN the devoted men and women who are doing the work of the Lord in China, are in danger from the fanaticism of that dangerous class known as the literati, who ought to be only of their title, but whose learning is only an exaggerated form of ignorance. Like the ulemas in Turkey, the literati of China look with hatred and prejudice upon the foreigner, and especially upon the missionary. As the silversmiths of Ephesus guarded the teachings of Paul as a menace to their own occupation, so the literati regard the Gospel of Christ as a challenge to the stilted follies that have grown like barnacles, about the ancient doctrines of Confucius, smothering and concealing from view what was real good in that philosopher's teachings. This latest uprising is a formidable one, and it is already wide spread in the great southern provinces of Kwang-Tung, and Kwang-Si, and the China Inland Mission station at Chang-Shu in the latter province has been destroyed, the missionaries narrowly escaping massacre. The last time that a considerable number of missionaries fell martyrs for Christ in China was at the little native village of Hwasang, on a hill near the city of Kucheng, in July, 1895. Missionary Stewart, his wife and family and several friends of the Zenana Mission, had tired to a cottage in Hwasang to rest for a few days during the torrid heat of midsummer, when they were suddenly attacked by a band of fanatics, and all of them killed with the exception of Miss Codrington, who was left for dead, but survived notwithstanding terrible wounds. It is to be hoped that the awful scenes at Whasang will not be repeated; but whatever the event, there can be no doubt that the American and other missionaries in Southern China will continue to show themselves worthy of the past history of mission work in that difficult and perilous field, remembering the words of Paul:

But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God (Acts 20:24).

The Power of Human Sympathy.

Every now and then crops up some incident showing the depth of sympathy in the human heart, and how that depth can be touched by an appeal in behalf of the suffering and deserving. The columns of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD have given repeated evidence of the readiness of our readers to respond to the cause of humanity. In another instance, less in importance but still interesting and significant, the feeling of human brotherhood is the experience of Miss Natalie Schenck, of New York State, with her endeavor to carry out a certain scheme to raise a fund to provide comforts for the soldiers. Miss Schenck sent out four letters to four friends asking each of them to enclose ten cents for the purpose of the ice-fund, and each to send four more letters with a similar request to four persons known to the sender. The various lists thus started had astonishing results. Miss Schenck received four letters, and every day the letters kept doubling and redoubling in number, until delivered at her house in wagon-loads, and the postmaster had to engage additional assistants. Over ten thousand dollars have been received, mostly in ten-cent pieces, and it is certain that the money, properly expended for ice, will alleviate much suffering among our troops in Cuba. The hearts of the people have evidently been moved by the accounts of the heroism and hardships of our soldiers, and Miss Natalie touched a chord, the strength of which she could hardly have appreciated. Like the pressure of the finger on an electric button, which sets vast machinery in motion, her simple appeal swayed a vast concord of human sentiment, and proved that charity for our fellowmen is as universal as it is Christlike.

Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these . . . a cup of cold water only, in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you he shall in no wise lose his reward (Matt. 10:42).

A Bigamist's Plea.

A man who is manager of an undertaking establishment in Paterson, N. J., and who stands accused of bigamy, has put forward the strange defence that at the time of the bigamous marriage both he and the woman were insane. The one palliation in this defence is, that the offender does not, as criminals in similar cases commonly do, throw the responsibility on the woman. "The woman tempted me, and I did eat" is an excuse as old as the race. The man says he was insane, which is probably true to a certain extent, for it is hard to imagine that any person, permitting himself to so far forget wife and children and home as to commit bigamy, is in his right mind. It is a defence of which the law can hardly take cognizance in such cases, otherwise nearly all offenders would escape on a similar plea of "providential affliction," and society would be wrecked by the impunity extended to those who assail its laws and regulations. It is only by leaning on Divine aid and appealing to the power of prayer that any can hope to overcome the innate wickedness of the human heart and the natural propensity to evil.

Let no man say when he is tempted, "I am tempted of God," for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man (James 1:13).

Arctic Whalers Rescued.

More than fifteen hundred miles across Arctic waters, W. T. Lopp, a missionary from Cape Prince of Wales, drove a herd of four hundred reindeer with goods for the relief of ice-bound whalers at Point Barrow. Over glaciers and deserts where the snow never melts, over frozen bays and ice-bound rivers the devoted teacher of the Gospel hurried on his mission of mercy and rescue. Fortunately, he found that the hardy adventurers whom he sought to relieve, were not suffering for the necessaries of life, and the supplies which he brought secured them against any danger of want until the arrival of the revenue cutter, which is expected to reach Point Barrow in August, and carry them back to civilization. But the missionary's enterprise was not less heroic because those whom he believed to be perishing from starvation had not reached that stage of want. He risked his own life to save others—the highest, because the most Christian form of self-sacrifice. He might have perished on the way, as scores, yes hundreds, who have ventured into that region of desolation have perished in the past, and his fate would perhaps have remained a mystery to all but the Omniscient. But he went safely through all the perils of his journey, trusting in him who is the Guide of all who throw themselves on his ever-watchful care.

I am continually with thee; thou hast holden me by my right hand (Psalm 73:23).

Treasures from the Klondike.

Millions of dollars in gold continue to be brought from the Klondike, the steamer St. Paul having reached San Francisco a few days ago with 176 passengers, mostly returning miners, and three millions in treasure. How much of hardship, risk and suffering these large sums of gold represent, can be known only to those who have faced Klondike perils to obtain the precious metal hidden in the frozen soil, and carried in the beds of the Arctic streams. For one who has succeeded in winning riches in the Klondike region, it is said that a score or more fail, and have all their efforts for nothing, and many perish on the dangerous trails, or are lost while prospecting. And all they can gain at the best is a few thousand dollars to keep them in some comfort during the remainder of a life that has perhaps been wrecked in fortune-making. To secure this, men will encounter all sorts of dangers. Only a few months ago a number of Klondike pilgrims were crushed to death by a descending avalanche, and the way to Dawson City is land-marked by the remains of victims who have perished in striving to get there. There is gold in the Klondike, and gold will pay for the needs and indulgences of this world; but only a small percentage of those who go to the Klondike succeed in procuring what they want. The treasure of heaven, on the other hand, is within reach of all. There is no disappointment for him who seeks that treasure through Jesus. There is no treacherous ice or bottomless crevasse. That is a Klondike worth seeking, a treasure that cannot be lost.

Provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens that faileth not (Luke 12:33).

An Ancient Roman Pavement.

An interesting discovery has been made at Leicester, England, of some Roman tesselated pavements in one of the most ancient quarters of the borough. The pavements were laid bare at a depth of about eight feet. One measures thirteen by ten feet, and the other twelve by seven, and both are in a remarkable state of preservation. They are of beautiful design, and in the larger portion there is a reproduction of a peacock, with spread tail. It is known that the old Roman forum stood in that vicinity, and it is believed that the pavements originally belonged to the Governor's residence, or to the heathen Temple of Janus, which was in that neighborhood. Since those pavements were laid, what mighty changes have swept over that Britain, which the Romans doubtless thought they would hold as a province forever! Roman rule passed away, to be succeeded by the Saxon, Danish and Norman invasions, and at length by the present British empire. Leicester itself has witnessed stirring scenes, while the drift of ages gradually accumulated over the pavements so carefully laid ages ago. Such is the fate of all the work of human hands, whether it pass away in a day or survive for a thousand years. Far different is it with the things of eternal life, which ought to be the chief, because the only lasting concern of all.

Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away (Matt. 24:35).

Emigration to Cuba.

One interesting result of American conquests in Cuba has been to start an emigration from the United States to that island. It is expected that the emigration will grow, as affairs in Cuba become more settled, and that within a few years a vast number of Americans will go there, carrying with them the civilization which has been developed here under more fortunate auspices. This movement should be of great advantage to Cuba. Americans will bring to that island the force, the vigor, the intellect, which have made the American Union what it is. They will also bring there the educational and religious influences, which have built up America. They will restore the waste places and make Cuba in fact, as well as in poetic nomenclature, the gem of the Antilles. The scars of war will be effaced, and peace and plenty will reign.

The wilderness and the solitary place will be glad for them; and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose (Isaiah 35:1).

Village Banks for India.

From India comes the news that the continued exertions of Sir William Wedderburn to bring about the establishment of savings-banks in the country villages are having an effect. Two Jhat committees in a district of the Punjab have taken steps in that direction, and the Indian Government is considering what action may be necessary and advisable to enable the rayats, as the cultivators of the soil are called, to become more provident than they have been in the past. Of the three hundred millions of people in India, two hundred and forty millions live in native villages, and depend on the soil for subsistence. These are the millions whose awful misery in the time of famine drew forth that great tribute to charity and humanity from the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, "The India Famine Fund." In plentiful seasons they have enough to eat; when scarcity comes they starve, and they are without means provided against the day of want; and they are also the victims of extortionate money-lenders. The village bank, receiving the deposits of the thrifty, and loaning money at reasonable interest to those able to give security, would be a safeguard against the two curses of Indian village life—improvidence and usury—and the government would be saved the large expense which it is compelled to incur in time of famine. We all know what the savings-bank system has done for America and other English-speaking countries, and there is no reason why it should not be successful in India; for the Indian peasant is naturally both honest and thrifty, and would undoubtedly take advantage of the opportunities which the system should offer for bettering his condition. And this would have a tendency also to open his ears and heart to the Gospel, which so strongly inculcates the duty of providing for one's household.

But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an infidel (1 Tim. 5:8).

GRAVES OF THE MISSIONARIES MURDERED AT HWASANG, CHINA.

Korea Her Own Ruler

Russia Retires and the "Hermit Nation" Asserts the Right of Self-Government—Signs of Growing Civilization—Missionary Notes.

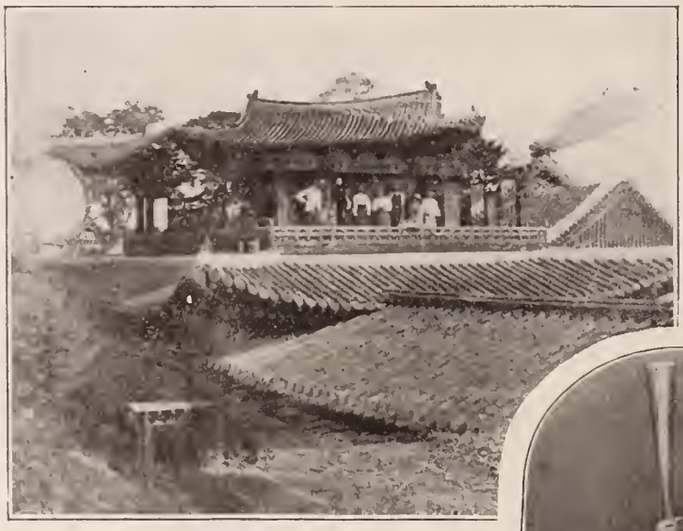
From Our Special Correspondent.

NOTHING in this world is enduring. Sometime ago, as your readers may remember, Mr. Alexieff, of Russia, came into control of Korea's finances. Later, the Russo-Korean Bank was established with special Government privileges, and there was every indication that Russia had come to stay. But the bank closed in one month, and for the last few days our streets have presented a lively appearance from the removal of the effects of Mr. Alexieff and other Russian officials, and suddenly, for the time being at any rate, Korea is left to her own resources.

Russia claimed a debatable site for her coal go-downs on Deer Island in Fusan harbor, and before the question was settled, she demanded a much larger share of the foreign concessions at the two new open ports, Mokpo and Chinnampo, than was fair to the other countries concerned. During the discussion, the Council of State resigned in a body.

The Emperor did not accept their resignation.

The Independence Club next took the matter up and addressed a letter to the minister of Foreign Affairs demanding an explanation of the situation. The minister then sent in his resignation, which was accepted, but after a few days he was reappointed. Then the Council of State resigned again. Kim Hong-Yuk, the interpreter for the Russians was appointed Governor of Seoul: and thus matters stood upon March 7th, when the Russian Minister unexpectedly startled everybody with a new question. In a dispatch to the Korean foreign office he said:



THE KING'S LIBRARY, SEOUL, KOREA.

"Recently I have been informed that there exists a deplorable condition of affairs in Seoul, many idlers among your people claiming to be gifted politicians, create disturbance by opposing Russian interests. This state of affairs naturally causes great surprise to my Imperial Sovereign, the Emperor of Russia ... The present attitude of your government is so plain that Russia cannot endure this condition much longer. Therefore, my Emperor has graciously ordered me to report fully to your Emperor, and to inquire of your government definitely whether Korea still desires to be benefited by Russia's help or not, and if the military instructors and finance adviser are not considered necessary by your Emperor and your government, my government will make some other necessary arrangements, according to circumstances, but your government must maintain your independence in the future according to its ability."

A reply was demanded within twenty-four hours, but the Council of State, to whom the matter was at once referred, asked for more time in which to formulate an answer. While the matter was pending, the Independence Club addressed a communication to the Minister of Finance, asking why government deposits had been withdrawn from the Korean banks and placed into the Russo-Korean Bank, and also about rumors that a large sum from the treasury-vaults had been transferred to the same bank, and that the bank had been authorized to collect and disburse all the government revenues. They said, "If these rumors are true we must consider that the Russo-Korean Bank is practically our treasury, and your department has become a figurehead." March 10th a mass-meeting was held near the great bell, and a committee was formed which sent a communication to the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Min Chongmeuk, to the effect that it was the desire of the people that the government should relieve the Russian finance advisor and military instructor from their engagements for the sake of maintaining independent sovereign rights.

March 14th the Korean Government issued its reply to the Russian Minister. In it, grateful recognition is made for the friendly protection proffered His Imperial Majesty while domiciled at the Russian legation. Then is added gracefully that the government has decided to continue to manage their affairs according to the methods so kindly introduced by the Russians, but they had decided to put the controlling power of all departments into the hands of their own countrymen, and that it would be convenient for the Korean Government to relieve the Russian officials from further service.

This withdrawal of her forces from Korea has given rise to very favorable comment for Russia. It is rumored, however, that certain diplomacy between Japan and Russia has had more to do with this sudden change of affairs than was at first suspected—Japan having agreed that if Russia would withdraw from Korea, Japan would not interfere with Russia's role in China.

Negotiations are being made with the French minister to engage a postal expert to manage the Korean postal service, that it may be put on a more efficient basis before 1899, when Korea has the privilege of joining the International Postal Union.

There is some talk of Dr. Philip Jaisohn returning to America. Should he do so, it will be a great loss to Korea. The Seoul-Chemulpo Railroad is being pushed on toward completion, work has already begun upon the new railroad bridge across the Han, the line from the river to the city is completed, and upon the other side of the river it is nearly so. A contract has been given to construct an electric street railway in Seoul, running from the railroad station just outside the south gate, passing the Great Bell to the east gate, and thence to the tomb of the late Empress. It will be six miles in length. So Dai Han will soon have her first railroad and first street cars.

The final grand sacrifice in token of the ending of the mourning for the late Empress Min was offered last night at the palace, and beginning with to-day the officials and the people are allowed to wear gorgeous colored garments again. The country does not go into mourning for the Emperor's mother who died Jan. 8th, aged eighty years, or for his father, the Tai Won Kun, who died Feb. 22d, aged eighty-eight years. Their funeral ceremonies will occur together, but have not yet taken place. Some $30,000 have already been appropriated for the same.

During the winter here in Seoul, I have treated over 600 patients at the Woman's Dispensary, relieving Dr. Cutler, while she has been quite hard enough worked with the in patients and out-calls. Dr. Cutler will now take up the entire work again for her sixth year, and let me go up to Pyong Tang, to continue the work there that I began four years ago. The long looked for appropriations have not yet arrived, but in the meantime the six dollars received from THE CHRISTIAN HERALD will help me to defray the extra expenses, and our Superintendent thinks it best for me to be off not later than the 1st of May, so no doubt before you read these lines, myself and children will be in the ancient city of Pyong Tang, founded 2122 B.C., and long called the most wicked city in the Hermit Nation. But, praise God! Pyong Tang is now being won for Christ. Dr. Hall spent there his last year, but one, on earth. He baptized four converts and received others upon probation, and it was the harbinger of victory. Will not the readers of THE CHRISTIAN HERALD remember us often with prayer?

Thanks for the sympathies that ye have shown
Thanks for each kindly word each silent ...

THE PALACE WALL AND WATCH-TOWER AT SEOUL, KOREA.

POUNDING THE RICE.

A PALACE SUMMER HOUSE, SEOUL.

That teaches me when seeming most alone
Friends are around us though no word be ...

Seoul, Korea. ROSETTA SHERWOOD ...

"War Testaments" for Our Sol...

Many churches and mission w... are giving evidence of their belie... the Word of God will be a blessing ... soldiers, and many orders are com... weekly for our Vest-Pocket Test... Ten will be sent to any address f... or, if preferred, the money can be ... us as a contribution to the Fund f... tributing the Testaments amor... troops. The following contributi... sending the War Testament to our ... have been received during the week

Prev ack	459 64	A D W, Brooklyn
Mrs J B Alford	1 00	Miss B L F, Pasad
Allbee, Mrs David W	10 00	D and A, Mt. Ver
Anderson, Kathrine	10	Mrs E M, Brookl
Anderson, Mary E	10	Mrs E W E, Mars
Anderson, Ruth H	10	H B M, Kennett S
Beers, Mr and Mrs S H	1 00	J F, Philadelphia
Brown, Carrie	10	L F C, Newark
Brown, Mrs E S	1 00	L H P, Avondale
Brown, Mrs L R	1 00	M D C, New Hav
Brown, W J	1 00	M K and J A, Cl...
Chase, H G	90	cothe
Craven, E R	1 00	M S, Allenhurst
Davenport, J	1 00	Mrs M W, Denver
Dickenson, A W	1 00	Q, Newtonville
Fagg, Katie M	1 00	R M O, Houston
Foyquer, Christian	15	Mr and Mrs Y ...
E Frances	30	ago
Gerkin, C E	40	—, Newark, N J
Gress, R L	1 00	—, New London
Havens, Mrs A	4 00	Friend, Albany
Latham, Geo W	1 00	Friend, Broad Br...
Lauck, Mrs S J	50	Friend, Litchbur...
Locker, Alfred	1 00	Friend M A W, I...
McCormick, E	1 00	ter
Mann, Maggie	1 00	Friend of the Boy ...
Mansfield, F H	90	Blue, Hinesbur...
Moufort, C R	1 00	Soldier's Friend, ...
Moore, Emma E	1 00	Dresden
Morton, Mrs S	1 00	In His Name, I...
Mullineaux, F H	40	River
Myer, Mrs Edgar	10	Reader, Cross Cr...
Platt, Mr and Mrs G S	2 00	A Sister in Christ
Robbins, Mrs O P	35	Gardiner
Seiling, J H	75	Church and Mis...
Smith, M M	1 00	S S, Round La...
Swiggett, Mrs E T	2 00	Cong S S, Essex ...
Tallman, Mrs H B	1 00	East Trenton P...
Teeple, Mrs Edw'd J	1 00	Chapel
Thatcher, Mrs M	2 00	King's Daughter...
Thayer, Miss Sarah H	2 00	rville odd, Margaret R	1 00	Young People's ...
Townsend, Ch'lotte M	1 00	ance, E Rainy ...
Whitney, L H	3 50	Y P S C E Thorp ...
Wiestling, Annie M and Ellen S	2 00	Anonymously, P...
Wood, J I	1 00	Amboy
Mrs A C, Newark	2 00	Total

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

CUBAN HOMES.

Typical Havana Residence—Cuban Beggars—Missionary Opportunities.

PUBLIC attention has been so centered on Cuba of late, that many questions, often difficult to answer, come to us concerning its resources, customs, manners, etc. The following description of the Cuban home will answer many of these questions, and will doubtless be of interest to all our readers:

The typical house is one story high, with a projecting in front about ten or twelve feet, forming a veranda supported by pillars of stone. Underneath is a platform of stone where the members of the family promenade or rest in their rocking-chairs, and rock to and fro and chat and rock for hours at a time. These rockers are great institutions in Cuba. The windows and doors have iron bars grated across; they form, of course, no protection night and day, but inside shutters may, or may not be, left open—a great advantage in a hot climate. Usually these houses run back from a wide patio, or hall we might call it. Either at the side or by some extension or through the middle of it, in this patio or hall, are the doors of all the rooms on either side.

A description, given by a Cuban woman, after a visit to Americans' residence on the island, appears in the closing chapter of that most popular and interesting illustrated history of the work, Columbia's War Book, written by Dr. Tupper and published by P. B. Peterfield & Co., Bible House, New York.

The illustration, a picture taken of late since Frances Linzee Gordon's visit, shows a street scene in one of the worst portions of Havana. A group of professional beggars are selling food which they have obtained by begging in other parts of the city. The food does not look very tempting, yet in a land where starvation exists, it will doubtless command good prices. We hope to see such a change in the city of Havana redeemed from sin that Cuba is opened up to the influences of American civilization, and that the progressive and purifying influences of Protestant missionaries. Good men and women the world over are praying for the time to come when the Prince of Peace shall rule the nations and "there shall be no more wars nor rumors of wars." In the meanwhile, let us be thankful that God can make even the wrath of man to praise him," and that out of the bitter bring forth sweet. The kind treatment of Spanish prisoners by our officers and soldiers has already shown that even in warfare, we know how to overcome evil by a high and noble law and love our enemies. And when Cuban doors are open, our missionaries will be ready to prove in Cuba, as they have proved everywhere, that our Christianity is a living truth.

A STREET SCENE IN HAVANA, CUBA.

Aged Postmistress.

The world's oldest postmaster is a Caledonian, and we believe that the postmistress is likewise a native of Great Britain. Mrs. Brown, of Leslie, Scotland, is ninety-two. Her husband was school-master of Aucmithie when she was appointed, soon after the introduction of the penny post, first postmistress of the town, a position which she still holds. "I widna like tae want it as long as I'm able to toddle aboot," she says. She is very active, industrious and careful, reads without glasses, and discharges the duties of her office satisfactorily. She has a kind, cheerful face, and doubtless her regular, temperate living and amiable disposition have been effectual in prolonging her life and usefulness.

Family Prayers.

What has become of family prayers? What has become of the old-fashioned home where they all gathered about a common centre,

When evening's calm pleasures are nigh,
When the candles are lit in the parlor,
And the stars are in the calm azure sky?

when the big Bible was brought out and the family were called together, children and servants as well, and the gray-haired father read to them, and all knelt and prayed, and rose up and sang together? How many homes do we find now with altars in them? How many fathers and mothers kneeling in prayer with their children around them? Young Men's and Young Women's Christian Associations should begin at home. After the day's work is done, men and women, bound by ties of blood or relationship, should pause for a moment and take counsel and rest together and the refreshment of loving companionship and the stimulus of mutual sympathy. Each will be wiser, stronger, more unselfish, more successful by reason of it.

What Robin Did.

Here's a thing about Robin Redbreast our children will find it hard to believe. Robin has always borne such a good character. You all remember about the "Babes in the Wood," how

Robin Redbreast carefully did cover them with leaves, and you couldn't think of Robin as a highway robber, could you? Yet here is what Robin has been doing recently in Huntington, L. I. A lady laid some fine old lace—so valuable that she laundered it herself—out on the lawn to dry. When she went to find it, it was gone. The establishment turned out to look for it; the cook said a robin had flown past the window with something white in his mouth. The lady's husband got a ladder and searched the trees. In a snug corner he came upon a fine nest Robin was making of bits of straw, twigs, hair and priceless lace. So shameless was Robin that he got into a terrible temper, screeched, flew into the gentleman's face and tried to drive him away. Robin's little friends will urge in his excuse, we know, that he didn't know he was stealing and was only trying to make a fine home for his family.

Flower Harvests.

One of the least known parts of Great Britain, the Scilly Islands, is particularly interesting from the fact that the islands owe whatever prosperity they possess to the flower industry. Spring flowers bloom two months earlier than elsewhere in Great Britain. Flower harvest, beginning in mid-Winter, continues till May. The farms are radiant with iris, jonquils, violets, narcissus, daffodils, wall-flowers, lilies and daisies, and the air is freighted with fragrance. Sir Walter Besant likens these islands to botanical gardens, and says: "Here everything grows and flourishes that will grow anywhere." During the flower harvest, great numbers of women and children are busy picking and packing flowers for shipment to London. Industrially, the Scilly Archipelago, now none too rich, was dead, until the last Governor but one, discovered and began to develop the flower industry. Just like these rocky little islets, there are many hard and barren characters only awaiting intelligent and kindly cultivation to "blossom as the rose . . . and rejoice even with joy and singing."

The Farmer's Home.

A farmer's wife answers the question, "Does it pay to make attractive homes?" by saying:

It pays a thousandfold in happiness and contentment for your wives and families. There is more or less monotony and tedious routine in life on the farm. Attractive surroundings tends to lessen corroding care and anxieties and to encourage body and soul. Encourage wife and children in their recreations as in their labors. Have a croquet ground in the shade on the nice lawn and "all hands and the cook" play there together. You can't think how it will tickle the youngsters to beat you. Of course you will have books and papers galore of the best, purest, cleanest kind. Try this and see if it does not pay principal and large interest on your investment by having your children steady, thoughtful, and intelligent, and thinking there is no place on earth so sweet and attractive as home. By having your homes a concentrated bit of loveliness, remember the living example of thoughtful kindness, thrift and go-aheadativeness you are to your children. The influence of such a home and surroundings are inestimable and in no place is it more needed than on the farm.

LITTLE BOY BLUE.

I'M looking at little boy blue to-night
In his calico wrapper of pink and red,
And his chubby arms and sturdy legs,
With the little new cap on his sunny head;
And I'm young again and laugh in glee
While little boy blue laughs back at me.

I'm thinking of little boy blue to-day
And the years dissolve, and I hear once more
His merry voice as he shouts commands:
To his make-b'lieve soldiers that stand on the floor,
And little boy blue and I they say,
Are boon companions again to-day.

I'm praying to-night for little boy blue,
He's a stalwart man, and at duty's call
He shouldered his musket and marched away
To do and to dare, to stand or to fall;
To the mercies of God I commit anew
On bended knee our little boy blue.

I'm weeping to-night for little boy blue,
As his mother and I kneel side by side
The cables are cut and there's nothing new,
And our consorts are sailing over the tide.
"Thy will be done," we try to say,
As we pray for little boy blue to-day.

There's news from the army, huzza! huzza!
Fling Old Glory anew to the passing breeze,
Our soldiers have conquered in fields afar,
And our navy triumphantly sailed the seas;"
But—I drop the paper with bitter pain—
For little boy blue's among the slain!

—H. T. ECKERT.

A Happy Chinese Wedding.

REV. J. H. WORLEY, of Foochow, China, writes: "The literati in China, are the most difficult class to reach with the Gospel, and, perhaps, no missionary has been more successful than the late Rev. Dr. Sites in this line of work. Especially was this true of the last two or three years of his eventful life in the Mingchaing District. Wong Eng Nang, one of his converts, is the only Christian in his village. His parents and relatives were greatly enraged because he became a Christian, and drove him from home. After two years he was to be married, and so asked the privilege of being married at his father's house. After considerable hesitancy the request was granted, with the understanding that the usual heathen rites be performed and the Christian ceremony scrupulously excluded. This he refused to comply with. He commented upon his marriage afterwards in a testimony meeting and said: 'If I had been a heathen where would the marriage ceremony have been performed? Though at my parent's house, yet it would have been in the presence of those filthy old idols and decayed ancestral tablets. Being a Christian, what was my privilege? To be married in the temple of the Most High God [the Christian Church at Luk-du]. Had I been a heathen, who would have pronounced a blessing upon us? An old Chinese woman would have repeated some vulgar phrases, to which the gaping crowd would have responded, 'that is good.' [It is customary for the bride's attendant to pronounce such blessing upon the union, to which the bystanders respond.] What was our privilege being Christians? To be married by the servant of the living God, who prayed heaven's blessing upon us. Had I been a heathen who would have been the bride's attendant? An ignorant, vulgar, ragged field woman. As it was, who attended her? A Christian woman, the wife of the presiding elder. Had I been a heathen, who would have congratulated us? Every rough in the country would have come into the bride's room, stared at her, commented upon her appearance, and tried to make her smile by the use of vulgar jests. But, who came to congratulate us? Dr. Carlton, Miss Peters, Miss Todd, Miss Linair, and many Chinese Christians. When these ladies came to the bride's room, they took her by the hand and invoked God's blessing upon her. Were I a heathen now, what would my wife be doing? On the hills gathering grass and faggots to cook the rice. Where is she? In the woman's school preparing for a life of Christian service by my side.'"

SANESSA'S LIST

WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE CHRISTIAN HERALD.

BY FLORENCE CUNNINGHAM.

(Concluded from last week)

"ANN BOLTON told me this afternoon that a family's moved into that old tumble down shanty out by the trestle," she said. "There's a child that's looney, a little girl."

"You don't say," exclaimed Rachel with interest. "I 'spect they're terrible poor if they're goin' to live in that rickety old place. Mebbe we can help 'em if they're any way deservin' when we get through our lists, Sanessa," Sanessa started.

"Yes," she said eagerly. Then stopped with abruptness.

It was very late that night when Sanessa went to sleep. Just before morning she arose and produced from an old-fashioned china vase on the shelf, a much folded slip of paper and a lead-pencil, hurriedly adding three or four words to a long column.

When she went down-stairs, Rachel was laying the cloth. "It's a beautiful morning," she announced cheerily. "I've just been a thinkin' we might well get ready an' go to Bridgeport on the noon train. There ain't anything to hinder. What'd you think?" She looked anxiously at her sister for signs of approbation. "Why, what ails you, Sanessa: you 'pear kind a peaked?"

"I've sorter got a headache," said Sanessa as her sister hurried to the kitchen, remarking, "Sure as anything you're comin' down with spring fever. I'll set some yarb-tea right on to steep." "Lie number one," muttered Sanessa, "not but what I ought to have a headache, too, along with the heartache." "Well, now, mebbe you won't feel like goin' to-day?" questioned Rachel commiseratingly—coming in with the breakfast.

"We might's well go, I sh'd say," Sanessa returned falteringly. Her sister looked at her curiously over the edge of her coffee cup. "You seem downright befuddled, Sanessa. It's just well you're goin' to get a little excitement and change: you need wakenin' up. Go right out and sprinkle the flower-beds and get a breath of fresh mornin' air and I'll do up the work inside. You want to feel real chipper by time to start."

The sisters spent their first hours in Bridgeport "looking round" in all of the different shops before purchasing. At last Sanessa ventured to ask if it were not about time to begin buying things.

"There's a few things I've got to get, Rachel."

"Well, I declare," exclaimed Rachel. "I clear forgot about your list. Come along and get 'em, for we'd best be at the depot in 'bout an hour'n a half."

Sanessa made her purchases with feverish haste. They necessitated journeys to a jeweler's, a bird fancier's, and an embroidery and notion shop, at each of which places she asked questions and issued orders that filled her sister with bewilderment.

"Gracious me, Sanessa!" she whispered, as Sanessa purchased a mighty parrot.

"We've been waiting it a'ready long, Sanessa. It 'pears like it'll come in right after the corn [illegible]." She glanced good [illegible] at Sanessa.

"I'll not mind after it," Sanessa answered. Rachel gave no further reply with a smile of gentle raillery. Finally, the [illegible] bundles, and Sanessa, encumbered by the parrot, [illegible] toward the station waiting-room. "Well, we've done a day and a half full of errants," sighed Rachel resting, sinking into a seat. "I'm real glad my list's off my mind, for good'n all. How many more's there on yours?"

"I dunno," Sanessa replied wearily. "Here, I'll put my cape under your head. You're clean beat out. I dunno when I've seen you so queer actin'. Hope you ain't going to have a fever."

"How many was it I told altogether?" she asked herself after they got home. "So many I lost track of 'em. They say one sin leads to another. I wonder where I'll land at, goin' like this."

"How'd you come to think of gettin' a parrot?" Ann Bolton inquired.

"I was readin' in a paper 'bout what' pets folks make of 'em and how cute they was when they got to know you."

"Well, you don't say! I remember seein' a column about that somewheres. Oh yes! 'twas in the Needlework Companion over a month ago—wasn't it?"

"It's a been some longer'n that ago," said Rachel laughing. "Sanessa's been wantin' a parrot, an' a few other things, a good spell back," she smiled knowingly.

"O what an imp of darkness I'm growin'," groaned Sanessa within herself. "I most a wish it'd come out now."

In the depth of her own self-contempt, Sanessa clung to no hope or expectation of repentance or forgiveness. A relentless force within, that rebelled against penitence and confession drove her on, until she was no longer capable of any but one fevered idea, and that was that Rachel must not know her secret.

Meanwhile Rachel's troubled apprehension grew, as her sister's unusual conduct continued without change. To escape her watchful eye, Sanessa began staying in her room under plea of resting, and daily took upon herself a new burden of falsehood, gladly working upon Rachel's tendency to presuppose the slow approach of spring fever, and bravely swallowing pints of the bitter herb-tea without so much as screwing up her face.

"How are you feeling now?" anxiously inquired Rachel, bringing her the dreaded dose one night.

"I'm most tired to death, Rachel," Sanessa whispered piteously, looking up with hopeless eyes. Rachel's tenderness, coupled with her guilt was very hard to bear.

"Well, poor girl!" murmured Rachel, laying a trembling hand on her sister's shoulder as she gave her the cup containing her dose. Then she hastened down-stairs and out to the kitchen step.

"'Pears like she's gettin' thinner'n thinner every day," she said sadly as she wiped her eyes with a corner of her white apron.

"What are you a-sayin' to yourself, Rachel?" spoke a voice from the dusk, and Ann Bolton's spare form loomed out of the shadows. "How's Sanessa?"

"She ain't much better, Ann; the tea doesn't seem to build her up any," replied Rachel wistfully.

"Humph!" grunted Ann. "Tea ain't what she needs. "Land knows she'd abeen cured awhile back if 'twas. Get her to take walks Rachel—good long walks. It did my niece a power o' good."

"I don't b'lieve she can stand to walk anyways."

"Well, get her to try. You see, yourself, yarb-tea ain't doin' any good," with which Ann took her departure.

Rachel lost no time in laying Ann Bolton's proposition before her sister.

"I'd be real pleased, Rachel," said Sanessa, the prospect of relief from Rachel's hovering presence, dawning upon her. In the night, Sanessa was awakened by the patter of raindrops on the roof.

"I hope 'twill stop before mornin'," she murmured. "Seems like it 'll feel real good to go out to the woods. I guess I'll go across the trestle an' see if I can get some winte-green leaves. I haven't been across the trestle for a good spell."

Suddenly she broke into a wild sob. "Oh, oh," she moaned between each anguished choking, "ain't I wicked, ain't I lost!—shut out of heaven, and Rachel—if He was a wantin' to take me to-night where'd I go—O, Lord! could you forgive? There! was I tryin' to get in with the Lord before I confessed my sins before men? O, Rachel! I can't! I can't! You never told a lie, you could'nt believe it of me. I can't tell you."

Sanessa rose early, dressed and set her room in order. Then she sat on the floor before an open drawer in her bureau.

"If I could only get rid of these things, so 's I'd never see 'em again," she said, "Mebbe I'd forget after awhile. But I daren't touch the parrot or the jewelry. Rachel 'd want to know what I'd done with 'em.

"There's this anyway that she'd never think about, so many new things around the house," and she unfolded from its wrappings of tissue paper in the drawer, a long yellow silk scarf, its ends already stamped for embroidering.

"I saw a picture of one of these fixed on a mantle in the same number of the Needlework Companion that told about the parrot. Ann Bolton 'd know it sure, if she saw it. O, Rachel, you trust me too well to use your eyes and brains on me." Sanessa buried her face in her hands. When she stopped it was to look up with determined eyes. "I've got to get rid of it," she muttered. "I'll take it with me this mornin' and mebbe bury it or hide it under the leaves in the woods."

"I'd like well enough to go with you," Rachel said, coming over to Sanessa's side, and putting into straight folds the thin black cashmere of the cape Sanessa had flung on after breakfast without regard to much but the covering of a package, which she carried underneath. "But you'll likely enjoy it more to yourself," she smiled a little wistfully. "There, go along now and walk and get strong ai

Suddenly, the tears gathering eyes, she leaned forward awkwar kissed her sister on the cheek. by the rare caress. Sanessa s dazed silence for a moment, th blindly down the side steps, out little gate, and toward the spo the trestle spanned a broad, deep through which a small creek flow

She was all unconscious that o bright end of the scarf had becon and was floating out behind her neath the cape. She scarcely n rickety shanty, nor the strange meagrely-clad child in the turfl before it, who stared at her with d fascination between the broken of the dilapidated fence, except when it called discordantly, pritty! see the pritty!"

"That's the looney young o enough," she told herself bitte think anything 'bout me's pretty."

With the speed and surefooted reckless fearlessness, she passed yond the middle of the trestle, w hollow underneath deepened and

"Tain't time for any train," s She clutched her skirt with one h gathered it around in front of he amongst its scant black folds wa one corner of the floating yellow

"W'will," she exclaimed, starin surprise, "I wonder how long th danglin'? I have the paper tigh under my arm yet. Guess I won with it now." Suddenly a shril rent the air, and for a mo senses seemed to whirl rhythm of the faint hun rails so near her feet.

"One of them wild-c gasped.

What was that she saw over the ties half way fro posite side? Could it b skipping so fearlessly alo dizzy height, tossing its ar fully, its skimpy garme elfish locks streaming breeze.

She started toward the a ing figure with limbs th refused to uphold her. to do it," she muttered forcing on her tense m their work with terrible There's time before it g bend if I can keep a-goin' a sudden thought she silken scarf on her trembl high above her head, s fluttered airily, a brilliant color, over her head as sh

"Mebbe it'll wait think bringin' it the pritty," straining her eyes.

On and on she went, looking to see where sh feet, so intent was she o ure growing nearer. So ped and screamed piercin pritty! bring me pritty," up and down madly, th elled hair falling over pinched face and glittering eyes Sanessa drew near enough to g ing the silk enticingly, as the li witted child danced to meet h low the pritty, it's goin' over th she pointed on ahead as sh quickly, avoiding the clutchi The idea at first seemed to plea child followed docilely and d enough for quite a distance, unt turning her head, saw that it ha Just then another whistle shrille the air, appallingly near, and present rumble deepened to roar. There was the engine an caboose winding swiftly around Advancing desperately upon who seemed not to have he whistle, Sanessa said, "Here y pritty," and as she held out seized the bony little form tigh arms and staggered on.

A tremor of the framework her proclaimed the fact that was gaining on her. "They' go a little slower now," she "Only a little piece more," Sanessa struggling on. But he was failing her, and that the gaining she knew by the increas which seemed to envelop her. something appeared to burst in letting out a great flood of light.

"God Almighty, forgive me," sh

"THE ENGINE WAS GAINING UPON HER."

The engine was close upon her though she heard the spot where the ground was but a few feet below the trestle. She put all her strength into one violent spasm, which landed her burden uninjured on a grassy knoll, and dropped fainting beside it.

When she regained her senses not many moments had elapsed, for a sharp pain in her arm aroused her. She had fallen on it, and it was broken. No one was near, and the only persons in sight, except the child, were two men working in a field some distance away.

"I must go up that field and tell those men to come over you back here," commanded the child. "Do you understand?" The child looked intently at her.

"But what'll I do?" groaned Sanessa. "They won't pay heed to a looney anyway. I've got to get home to Rachel somehow." Obeying an impulse, she pulled off her bonnet with her sound arm and held it out to the child. "Take this, and show it to those men and bring 'em back with you. Hurry up, be sure and bring 'em back with you." The child took the bonnet with a solemn air, nodding and gurgling, "Bring 'em back with you, bring 'em with you," in endless repetition, and trotted briskly away.

Sanessa lay exhausted. "I'm a ninny to think any one'll follow that young one. She'll never gets there at all. My head's likely sailin' in the creek 'bout now, and there ain't another livin' soul in sight for me." She dragged herself up a little nearer and fastened her eyes on the distance, as it went on a little more than the creek, hopped over the creek, and began to ascend the hill, upon the top of the men were at work, till, at last, a head almost in front of the man who was holding out the bonnet.

"Rachel! I can only get home to Rachel!" she moaned. "I'm goin' to begin all over again. I'm goin' to get some clothes for the little thing, and mebbe we could get a school [illegible] [illegible] our promise to me, but I'm so worried 'bout my part of it: Lord—though — there ain't any use to tell you what's best," and she closed her eyes tightly again in another paroxysm.

Presently the two men who had been called the child drew near. Sanessa was well-nigh exhausted. Pointing to the child, she said, in jerky sentences, "It's all right—we've got to get home quick — to Rachel. Bill's—I ain't heavy."

They carried away toward the shanty on the other side of the trestle, the child following and returned with a shutter.

Sanessa's sister, Rachel opened the front door. The terrifying spectacle of her sister borne upon a litter being borne through the gate by a couple of strange men. When she saw Sanessa's hand outstretched and heard her voice call "Rachel."

"I've got to tell you somethin' Rachel, I don't know if you'll forgive me or not," Sanessa swallowed desperately at a lump in her throat. "I tacked all those names on my list the night 'fore we left Edgeport, Rachel, an' I've been sorry ever since. I think now, if you've forgiven me, you will."

Then a feeling sense of despair made her sister's hand and close her eyes for a moment. When she opened them Rachel looked into Rachel's face above her. It was radiant with love. "I think now, Rachel, we'll stop worryin,' and we'll take care of the children and do some good."

[THE END.]

Soul Winning in Arctic Fields.

MISSIONARY work in the far away Arctic region is so seldom heard of that one is led to believe nothing is being done to spread the light of Divine truth in that region of darkness. In 1890 the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church sent a worker to Point Barrow, Alaska (Lat. 76°-16 N.) to establish a school and mission among the native Eskimos. Mr. Stevenson landed at Point Barrow, Alaska, July 28th, 1890, having with him school supplies of various kinds, as well as coal, coal oil, and provisions, and the work of the cause was begun. For two years he labored steadily under very adverse circumstances, being without a house of his own for the work, and doing all the teaching and instructing in the United States Refuge Station located at that place. Spiritual progress was slow compared with the progress in education. At the end of the second year, the teacher was transferred from the school work to the charge of the Refuge Station, and a young man, a physician, was put in the school. By this arrangement the school work was still continued in the Refuge Station, the school-room being only fifteen by eighteen feet—too small for comfort or convenience, but the best that could be had. In 1893, another worker was sent to take charge of the Refuge Station and the school was transferred to another building nearby, the first teacher returning to civilization.

After many delays, the lumber for the mission and school buildings arrived in 1893. In 1894, the Board arranged with the pioneer worker to return to the field of work, and on July 24th he was again at Point Barrow. The house was ready for occupancy Sept. 12th, 1894. The first services were held on Sunday, Sept. 2d, with the house crowded with native Eskimos. School was opened in the new quarters in November, 1894, and soon the attendance ran up to forty, with an enrolment of fifty.

MR. STEVENSON.
Missionary at Point Barrow, Alaska.

THE SCHOOL-HOUSE AT POINT BARROW.

"The Christian Herald" in Camp.

Letters continue to come to us from many quarters, showing a lively interest in the work of supplying the sick and wounded soldiers in camp with THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. Chaplains and evangelists write that it is read with intense interest and great spiritual benefit by the men under their care. During the week the following sums have been received to be applied to the work of sending THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to the soldiers and sailors:

Prev. ack't	$806 73	Pepper, Mrs Emma	25
Baxter, Miss Mamie	50	Phillips, Mrs C	1 00
Bliss, Ella E	25	Pierson, L H	25
Brecheisen, Catherine	3 00	Reid, Mrs N G	1 00
Browne, C M D	50	Rhodes, C B	25
Buck, Mrs Orville	25	Ripley, Mrs Belle	50
Carpenter, Mrs T W	1 00	Spangler, H	1 25
Croft, Martha	50	Tefft, L E	1 00
Crnbagh, Mrs A B	60	Trowbridge, Mrs M L	25
Davey, Mrs E C	25	Vinton, Mrs H	3 00
Dean, Mrs R C	1 00	Wilson, Mrs J H	50
Donaldson, E	25	Wilson, O R	1 00
Dnmas, Miss N J	1 00	D & A Mt Vernon	2 00
Grassel, Mrs C	50	Mrs E T	50
Kelly, R	25	S J C, Liberal	50
Liscom, S E	1 00	Mr & Mrs Y, Chicago	1 00
Ludington, Civilla	50	—, Barnes	25
Mct.inre, Jennie R	25	—, Brooklyn	25
McKeen, Mrs S M	50	—, Kalamazoo	25
McWilliams, Mrs D W	25	—, West Tisbury	26
Malcolm, Llewella	1 00	Friend, Fitchbnrg	25
Marie, W S	25	Friend, Romeo	1 00
Metz, Mrs Alice	1 00	Snbr	25
Moreman, A	25	Fair View S S, Prairie Center	1 60
Morris, Mrs Andrew	1 00	King's Dau, Rowley	1 00
Parker, Deliah	25	Total	$843.44
Peak, Rev Giles M	25
Peck, Mrs S T E	1 00

When Hot

Don't sweat and fret, but keep cool and take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This is good advice as you will find if you follow it. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a first-class summer medicine, because it is so good for the stomach, so cooling to the blood, so helpful to the whole body. Make no mistake, but get only

Hood's Sarsaparilla

America's Greatest Medicine.

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills; easy to take, easy to operate.

If You Suffer

From Epilepsy, Epileptic Spells, Fits, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Falling Sickness, Vertigo, etc., have children or relatives that do so, or know people that are afflicted, My New Discovery, Epilepticide, will cure them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a Free Bottle, and try it. I am quite prepared to abide by the result. It has cured thousands where everything else has failed. Please give full name, AGE, and postoffice and express address

WM. H. MAY, M.D., May Laboratory,
94 Pine St., New York City.

NOTE.—All sufferers are advised to send for Gratuitous Expert Advice and a Free Bottle of this New Discovery, which is an Unfailing Cure for any and all of the frightful forms of Epilepsy and allied nervous diseases. When writing Dr. May, please mention The Christian Herald.

Grimy finger marks seem to grow on the woodwork about the house. They come easily and they stick, too—unless you get rid of them with

GOLD DUST Washing Powder

It makes all cleaning easy.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York.
Boston. Philadelphia.

Color is a Sentiment.....

and of no food value. We neither eat nor digest with our eyes. Bread made from Franklin Mills....

Fine Flour OF THE Entire Wheat

is, when baked, a beautiful golden brown. It is highly recommended and enthusiastically endorsed by the medical profession everywhere as containing a larger percentage of the life-giving element than any other flour manufactured. If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name with your order—we will see that you are supplied. The genuine is made only by the FRANKLIN MILLS CO., LOCKPORT, N. Y.
See that the Flour Delivered to you Bears Our Label.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.
ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N.Y.
Architects, Builders of Auditoriums
We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.
We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.
E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y.

STUDY LAW AT HOME
Instruction by mail, adapted to every one. Methods approved by leading educators. Experienced and competent instructors. Takes spare time only. Three courses, preparatory, business, college. An opportunity to better your condition and prospects. Students and graduates everywhere. 8 years of success. Full particulars free. Sprague Correspondence School of Law, 283 Tel. Bldg., Detroit, Michigan.

By Sankey, McGranahan and Stebbins.
SACRED SONGS No. 1.
450,000 sold in 18 months.
CHURCH HYMNS AND GOSPEL SONGS
Clergymen and others declare the latter unequalled for the Congregation, Prayer Meeting and Sunday School. Price for either book, half bound, printed cover, $25 per 100; add 6 cents per copy, if ordered by mail.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

BUY YOUR WALL-PAPER
BY MAIL, from the manufacturers. Samples sent free. Prices 3c to $3 a roll.
KAYSER & ALLMAN, 1214-1216 Market St., Phila.

$18 per week and expenses to several good parties to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references.
R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

BLINDNESS PREVENTED CATARACTS ABSORBED
AVOID AN OPERATION
SANITARIUM ST. CLAIR
496 LA SALLE AVE. CHICAGO ILL.
SEND FOR PAMPHLET

NOTE.—Safety from alumned food lies in buying only the Royal Baking Powder, which is the best cream of tartar baking powder that can be had.

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Mistress Betsey and Miss Betty—"The Minister's Wife"—At a Hero's Grave.

ABOUT overworking? Well it's easy to give advice, a heap easier than it is to take it. Folk are ready enough to talk. But I noticed that in most houses. There's somebody has to work pretty steadily to keep things going, and that one now and then gets all beat out.

My old friend stopped in her task of newly papering her pantry shelves, drew her Boston rocker to the window, and began to fan herself vigorously. She never did anything by halves, Mrs. Betsey Redfield; she was alive and in earnest from the top of her gray head to the tips of her toes. As she ceased speaking, her granddaughter, Betty Pawlings, a slender pale graceful girl, drifted into the room, like a leaf blown by the wind, a book in her hand, and an air of great fatigue in every line of her face and figure.

"I think I'll spend the morning in the hammock, grandmother," she said. "I'm so tired. It seems as if I can never get rested enough!"

"Land sakes honey!" answered Mrs. Betsey, "don't take a book with you! If you weren't so fond of your book; if you could bring yourself to stirrin' round, you'd not be so tuckered out. But there," she said to me, "Betty's a genius. She is overworked. It's her brain! Always reading and studying! I don't see the use of it, she's as white as a lily, and as weak as a kitten. I wish she had my strength!"

"Why don't you let her help you about the house?" I said rather unsympathetically. Novel-reading does not impress me as hard work, either for brain or body:—as rather waste of time in most cases, especially when combined with swinging in a hammock, and lunching on sponge cake and iced lemonade, a good supply of which dainties was sent to the young woman by her kind grandmother.

But I knew I couldn't influence Mrs. Betsey Redfield, who, dear old soul, was and is overworking, like many another self-denying gentlewoman of her age and bringing-up. For, when she was a girl, it was the fashion for daughters to help mothers do the work, and for young people to show reverence to old people, and things were evened up better.

Still, I'm not blaming Betty. She, and girls like her, who are sweet and amiable and yes, let me add it, deplorably selfish, have partly been made so, by the silly indulgence of mothers and grandmothers, aunts and other relations, who combine to let them do as they please. We cannot help loving the beauty and bloom of the generation first ahead of us, and when we see beauty and fragility it goes to our heart like the stroke of a sharp knife.

Betty, for all her whiteness and languor, has a good appetite, and should Mrs. Betsey be laid aside by rheumatism or paralysis, which I humbly pray may never be case, I think the spirit of her sturdy race will awake in her, and she will prove herself as efficient as she is now self indulgent.

The Minister's wife came over with her sewing to sit with me this morning, and she laughed at my indignation over Betty.

"Lots of girls are like that, my dear," she said; "lots of them. They float about like bits of thistle-down or painted butterflies; they are just pretty and sweet and petted. Then, somebody asks the little idle brier-rose of a girl to marry him, and she says yes. She settles down into domesticity. She has her first baby. She is completely changed; grass not to be, a good housekeeper, a pattern wife, a loving mother, and in turn spoils her children as she was spoiled."

"To hear you," I said, "one would fancy us all like the players in a merry-go-round, riding on our hobby horses and coming around at last to the point from which we started."

"Now, you are unfair," said the lady. "Look at me. As a girl, I embroidered, I practiced, I went into society, I had a good time. I married Herbert Homily, not that I have ever regretted it for a minute, and here I am, making jelly for sick people in the congregation, presiding at the Ladies' Aid Society, visiting the strangers, teaching Bertie his alphabet, and putting a new seat into Harry's trousers. Its wonderful how interesting a mother can find mending a little lad's trousers, setting patches into the knees, and contriving new ones right out of his father's old ones, when they were so shabby for that father to wear any longer."

As we were chatting, in came Doctor Jenkins. She was crying. Could I believe it? The Doctor has her nerves well under control much of the time, but there were tears in her eyes, and her voice choked when she said good-morning.

"I have a letter from an old friend," and the Doctor drew it from her pocket. "I brought it to read to you. Now Mrs. Homily must hear it, too. I may tell you that my correspondent lives in the South, at Raleigh, N. C. Listen to this:

"'When Ensign Worth Bagley, the first martyr of the war, and the first real Southerner to fall in the uniform of the United States since the Mexican War, was brought back to his home and his widowed mother (his father was a Confederate officer), the family and all Raleigh were fairly melted by the expressions of interest and sympathy which poured in from all sections of the North.

"'We have a large National Cemetery here, but until this year there have been only a little handful of Northerners to honor the dead. This year, a goodly number of Southerners, including the Governor and the Mayor united with us most heartily, and a large detachment of the Second Regiment here in camp, young men, whose fathers wore the gray, came to honor the Union dead with a salute.

"'A little later we stood around the grave of the young hero, Bagley, and planted the Stars and Stripes at its head, a significant scene, enacted so near the grave of his Confederate father, and the ranks of the Confederate dead but a stone's throw away. The mound was hidden completely by magnificent floral tributes sent from the North for this occasion. One of them was a great wreath of immortelles, crossed by a rusty old sword which had been captured on the field of Gettysburg, and now returned to the South by a G. A. R. Post of Philadelphia as a tribute—to the bravery of this young Southern hero. We sang "America," and my father offered prayer, and then the Governor and the Mayor placed this wreath at the head of the grave, and while this was being done a beautiful rainbow appeared in the Eastern sky, like an omen of peace and good will shining for the comrades reunited by a common interest and sorrow.'"

I don't wonder the doctor cried when she read this, I know that I did. This war, with all its sadness, is a wonderful thing for our dear country. And don't we love our flag?

"Flag of the fearless-hearted,
Flag of the broken chain,
Flag in a day-dawn started
Never to pale or wane.
Dearly we prize its colors,
With the heaven-light breaking through
The clustered stars and the steadfast bars,
The red, the white and the blue."

* * *

ANNIE MACKAY. I am glad you are making the little comfort bags for the soldiers. You might slip in a few postage stamps, or postal cards, to advantage, and don't forget the little message from God's Word for the homesick boy.

Margaret E. Sangster

"There is rest for the weary."
And there is a positive cure for that tired feeling.
You'll find it in Hood's Sarsaparilla.
N. B. Be sure to get Hood's.

To get the best results you must use the best materials.

You need expect only poor laundering with poor soap, but you will find dainty articles that have been washed with Ivory Soap restored to their original freshness with unchanged colors.

Nothing that will stand the application of plain water will be injured by Ivory Soap.

Copyright, 1898, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati.

Defend the Teeth from Decay

RUBIFOAM

being antiseptic absolutely arrests and prevents decay. It is a delightful and most satisfactory liquid dentifrice.

Rubifoam has many Imitators but NO EQUAL.

Popular price, 25c. Send 2c. stamp for sample vial. Address E.W. Hoyt & Co., Lowell, Mass.

"It Cannot Bre... at the W...

CRESCO

Disconnecte... at Waist I... with Hip Li...

which combined m... any figure perfectly w... comfort and render t... breaking at the w... and hip impossible

There is nothing in ... dom to compare ...

Ask your dealer for a Cresco or ... send a long, short or medium wa... sired in white or drab, on receipt ... $1, postpaid.

MICHIGAN CORSET CO., Jackso...

Everyone knows the expense and annoyance of lamp-chimneys breaking.

Macbeth's don't break; and they make more light.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

PEERLESS ST... COO...

Is the best. 800,000 in use. Highest award at World's Fair. Improved '98. Beware of infringement. Our Peerless Coffee Cooker will cook your coffee entirely by steam and prevent over-boiling and Indigestion. Saves aroma and strength of coffee. Fits any stove. Big success. 25c by mail. Our new Peerless Egg Boiler cooks your eggs just right. Mistakes impossible. 30 cts. by mail. Catalogue free. Agents Wanted.

PEERLESS COOKER CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at th... We pay 10c. an hour until c... McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av. Brook...

STAMMERING Cured at LEAST ... thorough, ... Cure guaranteed. Address, IO HAL HOME SCHOOL...

Do you know that there is science in neatness? Be wise and use SAPOLIO

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

Kindness to Animals.*

"I THINK," said Laura, "that the greater cruelty exists among the uneducated classes. But the fine tails of horses and dogs, the necks, and cut ears, prove that it exists to a great extent among the cultured element. With them, however, cruelty is mainly in the carrying out of fad or fashion, Among the uneducated it is more in the form of kicks, blows, and neglect. I have seen truckmen unmercifully beat their horses for actually slipping on the stone pavement drawing with all their strength a load. Teamsters in our large cities often in the police courts charged with cruelty to their horses. Wife-beating, horse-whipping are not very far apart among such a class. They do not realize that they owe their living to the horses they abuse with such apparent delight. Business men owning horses should take more interest in them and make it a story with their drivers to treat them well. If they fail to do so immediate dismissal should be the penalty.

"I have seen horses driven until they would drop dead to drop with thirst, and the drivers would never think to give them water, though they themselves would step into the corner saloon and get their drink. I have seen horses standing in the hot sun when they could just as well have been tied under shade-trees that were near. I have seen them in winter time blanketed, with steam rising from their bodies like clouds, caused by hard driving, and afterwards learned they had been neglected. I have seen drivers yank at the bits until the horses foamed at the mouth and their lips were lacerated. I have seen them with the skin worn bare by the swarms of flies gnawing into the raw flesh. I have seen dogs chained out in the sun without a drop of water near them, and if they barked or whined for food, they received a kick or a whip instead. I have seen fowls imprisoned where there was no sign of green grass or shade, oftentimes no water, and never a bit of food. In summer they nearly roasted, in winter they were nearly frozen. Their food was unsuited to the cold, the water was frozen in their dishes; and yet the owners blamed the hens for not laying any eggs. I have seen fowls brought to market packed like sardines, almost dead, no food, no drink, and the sun shining unmercifully upon them. It would require hours to enumerate the different forms of cruelty that exist, and it is sad indeed that kindness does not exist in extremes instead."

"Yes," said Miss Burton," you put the matter very seriously to heart, evidently are a great observer."

"One of the first things a child should learn is to avoid cruelty; to look upon it as unnecessary, vulgar, and unmanly. I think that our Boards of Education should insist that teachers promulgate the doctrine of kindness among their pupils, and a liberal supply of lessons on the subjects should be in every schoolroom, with this end in view. Clergymen should preach it from their pulpits, realizing their vast influence accomplish better results. I have listened to many theological discourse, poetic and brilliant, but not a word was uttered regarding our impressions, and the essential duty of instilling in children ideas of kindness to God's lower animals. What opportunities they fail to take advantage of! What a world of good our brilliant and renowned clergymen could do occasionally referring to this subject and urging its importance upon their hearers! Our rising generation does not increase in kindness: if it is not taught at home, at school, in Sunday School or Church what are we to expect from our future men and women, or from their children or grand-children?"

*Some of New York's 400: a prize story of absorbing interest, written for the American Humane Education Society, and dealing with the follies of fashion and the barbarous treatment of dumb animals. This little volume, of about 100 pages, serves to rank in interest and purpose with the famous story, Black Beauty, which is known everywhere. Some of New York's 400 is published by the American Humane Education Society, 19 Milk street, Boston, and copies in paper covers are supplied at 10c., postage paid.

GOOD CAUSES HELPED.

THE following sums have been contributed by the readers of this journal for the support of the various worthy causes mentioned below:

The Bethesda Home.

Prev. ack	$116 85
A friend of C H office	25 00
Y L C, Orrington	1 00
Total	$142 85

Philafrican Liberators' League.

Prev ack'd	$51 20
J P, Brooklyn	3 00
Total	$54 20

Door of Hope.

Prev. ack	$11 50
S A Wing	1 00
Total	$12 50

Foreign Missions.

Prev. ack	$55 71
A H Rellim	3 00
Esteila Headley	50
——, Hoag Corners	30 00
S A Wing	1 70
Total	$90 91

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop.

Prev. ack	$61 75
Mrs N McVicar	5 00
Total	$66 75

Any Good Cause.

Prev. ack	$153 98
Wm Underhill	5 00
John Jones	2 00
H C Kreider	1 00
Miss Edna F Wright	1 00
Mr H Licten	50
Mr Levey	50
Mrs Carter	25
Mrs Casady	25
Mrs J B Coleman	25
B A Barns	2 00
Elizabetn Williams	2 00
G M Powell	50
Mrs M A Cooper	50
Miss I D Blizzard	20
Total	$169 93

Mayesville Institute.

Prev. ack	$283 46
Farther Lights Soc. First Bapt Ch, Springfield	5 00
Mrs Hobart	5 00
Chas Stewart	5 00
Total	$298 46

Christian Herald S. S. Missionary.

Prev. ack	$50 75
——, Wimer, Oreg	2 00
Miss Mary A Allison	50
S A Wing	1 00
Total	$54 25

School for Syrian Girls

Prev ack	$16 20
G Haub	6 00
Total	$22 20

Orphan Relief in India.

Prev ack	$45 50
Ladies of Meth So Ch, Allensville	15 00
Total	$60 50

Clinton St. Settlement.

Prev ack	$4 50
Cash, Paterson	2 00
A H Rellim	1 00
H F Crapon	1 00
Total	$8 50

Miss Mary Sharp.

Jos H Tibbitts	5 00
In Jesus' Name, Phila	1 00
Total	$6 00

Dr. Salman's Hospital in Mexico.

H R Wilkes	$ 15
A H Rellim	1 00
Total	$1 15

Black Mohair

"Black mohair is made like new by a gentle washing in luke-warm suds made from Fairy Soap. Rinse in clear, warm water, and iron on wrong side when half dry."

Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 17x24 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country: steady employment; commission or salary: $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day: money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

DROPSY TREATED FREE Positively CURED with Vegetable Remedies. Have cured many thousand cases called hopeless. From first dose symptoms rapidly disappear, and in ten days at least two-thirds of all symptoms are removed. BOOK of testimonials of miraculous cures sent FREE. 10 DAYS TREATMENT FREE by mail. Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, Specialists, ATLANTA, GA.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure, we furnish the work and teach you free, you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138, DETROIT, MICH.

"If you see a thing too often, you no longer see it; if you hear a thing too often, you no longer hear it." Perhaps you've seen and heard so much of "Pearline" that it makes no impression upon you. Then it's time to wake up and look about and see what Pearline is doing for other women. Pearline gives the easiest, quickest, most economical washing and cleaning. 572

MILLIONS NOW USE Pearline

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

The Doctor Slocum System Has Proven Beyond Any Doubt Its Positive Power Over the Dread Disease.

EXTERMINATING THE CURSE OF AGES

By Special Arrangement with the Doctor, Three Free Bottles Will be Sent to All Readers of The Christian Herald.

The Doctor Slocum System, as the name implies, is a comprehensive and complete system of treatment, which attacks every vulnerable point of the disease and completely vanquishes it. It leaves no point unguarded: it leaves no phase of the trouble neglected: it cures, and cures forever, Weak Lungs, Coughs, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Consumption and all other throat and lung diseases by absolutely obliterating the cause.

SPECIAL NOTE.—The Doctor Slocum System is medicine reduced to an exact science by the world's most famous physician. All readers of this paper anxious regarding the health of themselves, children, relatives or friends, may have three free bottles as represented in the above illustration, with complete directions, pamphlets, testimonials, advice, &c., by sending their full address to Dr. T. A. Slocum, The Slocum Building, New York City. This is a plain, honest, straightforward offer, and is made to introduce the merits of The New System of Treatment that Cures, and we advise all sufferers to accept this philanthropic offer at once. When writing the Doctor please mention THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. All letters receive immediate and careful attention.

Throwing Money away

is economy compared with buying any other than

"HOLDFAST" Aluminum Hairpins

...The only hairpins that stay where yo put them and neither fall ot, warp, split nor beak.

Dealers may offer you cheap imitations to make more profit. Do not be deceived but demand the "Holdfast" and insist on getting them. They look like this Size 2⅜ inches; polished or with black tops. Also 3¾ and 4½ inches, with heavy prongs, for braid or bonnet use.

SOLD BY FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

If your dealer will not supply you, send 10 cents in stamps for sample of six small or one large

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO.,

Box 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

Also makers of Stewart's Duplex Safety Pins.

Rheumatism Cured.....

Mr. J. F. Brookfield writes from Salisbury, N.C.: "While in Knoxville, Tenn., last December, I met an elderly gentlemen, a professor of music, who has been troubled for several years with rheumatism. I told him I would send down before I left town a bottle of Tartarlithine, which I believed would help him if it didn't entirely cure him. While in Montgomery, this trip, his son told me it did his father so much benefit that they had written to you to send their father half a dozen bottles. The benefit given to the old gentleman is very remarkable, after exhausting all the physician's skill, and the legion of remedies advertised for his complaint had been used.

Pamphlet on the treatment of Rheumatism by Tartarlithine sent free by

McKESSON & ROBBINS,

93 FULTON ST., NEW YORK,

Sole Agents for

The Tartarlithine Co.

1898 High Grade BICYCLES

for Men, Women, Girls & Boys. Complete line. All brand new models. $75 'Oakwood' for $32.50 $60 'Arlington' " $21.50

No Money In Advance. Others at $15, $17 and $20 WRITE TODAY for SPECIAL OFFER. Juveniles $7.00 to $12.50 Shipped anywhere C.O.D. with privilege to examine. Buy direct from manufacturers, save agents & dealers profits. Large Illus. Catalogue Free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 162 W. VanBuren Street, B. 18, Chicago, Ills.

7000 BICYCLES

carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.00. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of new as well as models. BICYCLE FREE for ... to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money. E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES; no experience needed; position permanent; self seller. PEASE MFG. CO., P.O. Box A, Cincinnati, O.

Have you a Home?

You can greatly improve its appearance and increase its value by fencing the lawn with this

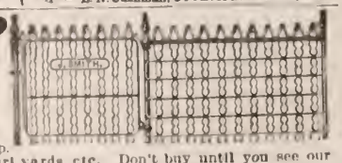
HARTMAN STEEL PICKET FENCE.

Stronger than Iron, cheaper than wood and handsomer than either.



Does not obstruct the view—steel post with ornamented top. Nice for cemetery lots, school and church grounds, court yards, etc. Don't buy until you see our FREE catalogue and circulars. HARTMAN M'F'G. CO., Ellwood City, Pa. or 277 Broadway, New York.

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to Family. The Larkin Idea fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free sample Soap if mention this magazine. The Larkin Soap Mfg. Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

QUICK ACTION

Clean printing, simplicity, permanent and accurate alignment and durability are a few features of the

Wellington Typewriter No. 2

Equal to any $100 machine on the market.

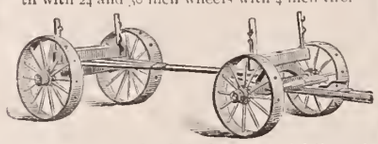
Sent to any responsible party on receipt of price, $60. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded after 10 day's trial.

Illustrated Catalogue sent free on application

The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburgh, N.Y.

Farm Wagon for only $19.95.

In order to introduce their Low Metal Wheels with Wide Tires, the Empire Manufacturing Company, Quincy, Ill., have placed upon the market a Farmer's Handy Wagon, sold at the low price of $19.95. The wagon is only 25 inches high, fitted with 24 and 30 inch wheels with 4 inch tire.



This wagon is made of the best material throughout, and really cost but a trifle more than a set of new wheels and fully guaranteed for one year. Catalogue giving a full description will be mailed upon application by the Empire Manufacturing Co., Quincy, Ill., who also will furnish metal wheels at low prices made any size and width of tire to fit any axle.

An Instrument of Torture is a truss made on the plan of the above, with a hard iron band. Why will you suffer, when you can be cured with our latest Improved Elastic Truss? Worn with ease night and day; holds the rupture under the hardest strain. Those interested in the subject call or write and get a catalogue to the

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.,
785 Broadway, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 years.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Prices to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. CLEANING. NO CRUMBLING CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.,
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

GOOD WHEELS

MAKE A GOOD WAGON

Unless a wagon has good wheels it is useless. STEEL ELECTRIC WHEELS are good wheels and they make a wagon last indefinitely. They are made high or low, any width of tire, to fit any skein. They can't get loose, rot or break down. They last always. Catalog free.

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136, Quincy, Ills.

NAZO for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N.J.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and feet on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No rush, no job lots. Send for cata. and special offer. F. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

$5 to $35 OVER 60 MAKES Largest assortment in America. Write for confidential offer. You can earn a wheel acting as our agent. Brown-Lewis Cycle Co. W. Chicago, U.S.A.

OLD GLORY SHOW YOUR COLORS. Finely Woven Silk Badge 6c. by mail; 3 for 10c.; 30c. doz.; 100 for $2. Great seller for holidays and fairs. L. N. Cushman, 34 Oliver St. Boston, Mass.

An Exceptional Opportunity

To Secure a Beautiful and Useful Book at a Bargain.

The CHURCH ...at HOME

By... Bishop John H. Vincent, D.D., LL.D.,

Is the title of a magnificent manual for family worship and home teaching, and a book that should be in every Christian home in the land and those who are fortunate enough to secure a copy of this book will find a delightful companion. It contains 480 pages,

210 ILLUSTRATIONS,

TWO BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES, THE LORD'S PRAYER and THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

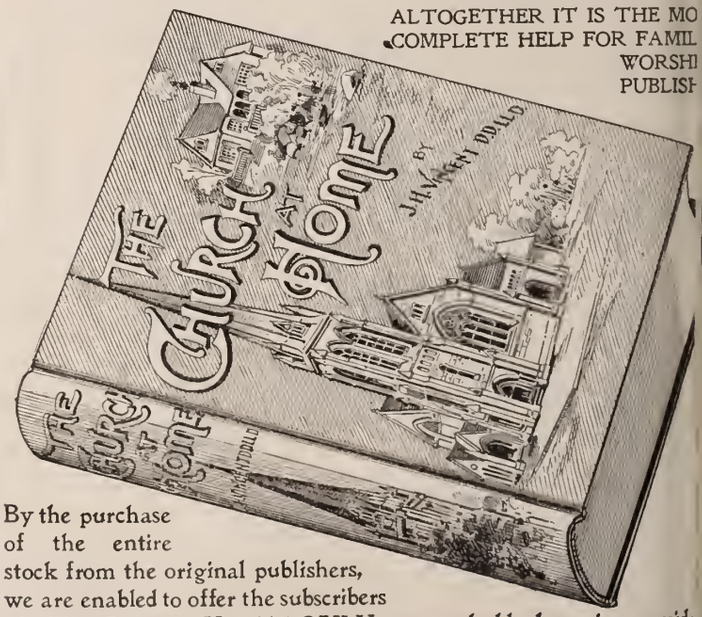
LESSON, HYMN and PRAYER FOR EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, constituting a complete family worship for the whole year.

READINGS and MEDITATIONS for SPECIAL OCCASIONS NEW YEAR'S DAY, GOOD FRIDAY, EASTER, WHIT SUNDAY, INDEPENDENCE DAY, THANKSGIVING DAY, CHRISTMAS DAY, AND DAYS OF AFFLICTION.

Memory Texts for Every Day in the Year,
The Church Steps,
Home Lessons,
Special Collects,
Bible Biography.

Picture Lessons for Children,
Old and New Tunes,
Wisdom in Proverbs,
Blank Pages for Records and Autographs.

ALTOGETHER IT IS THE MOST COMPLETE HELP FOR FAMILY WORSHIP PUBLISHED.



By the purchase of the entire stock from the original publishers, we are enabled to offer the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" ONLY a remarkable bargain, provided the stock is not exhausted when your order is received, as follows:

Cloth, Illuminated Cover, former price $4.00. Special Price, $1.50.

ONLY CLOTH BINDING LEFT
ALL OTHER STYLES SOLD OUT.

Remember this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 4 lbs. 4 ounces, size when closed 8½ x 10½ inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we have only sufficient copies to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving your nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIED & CO., Bible House, New York City.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICE: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.
VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 32.

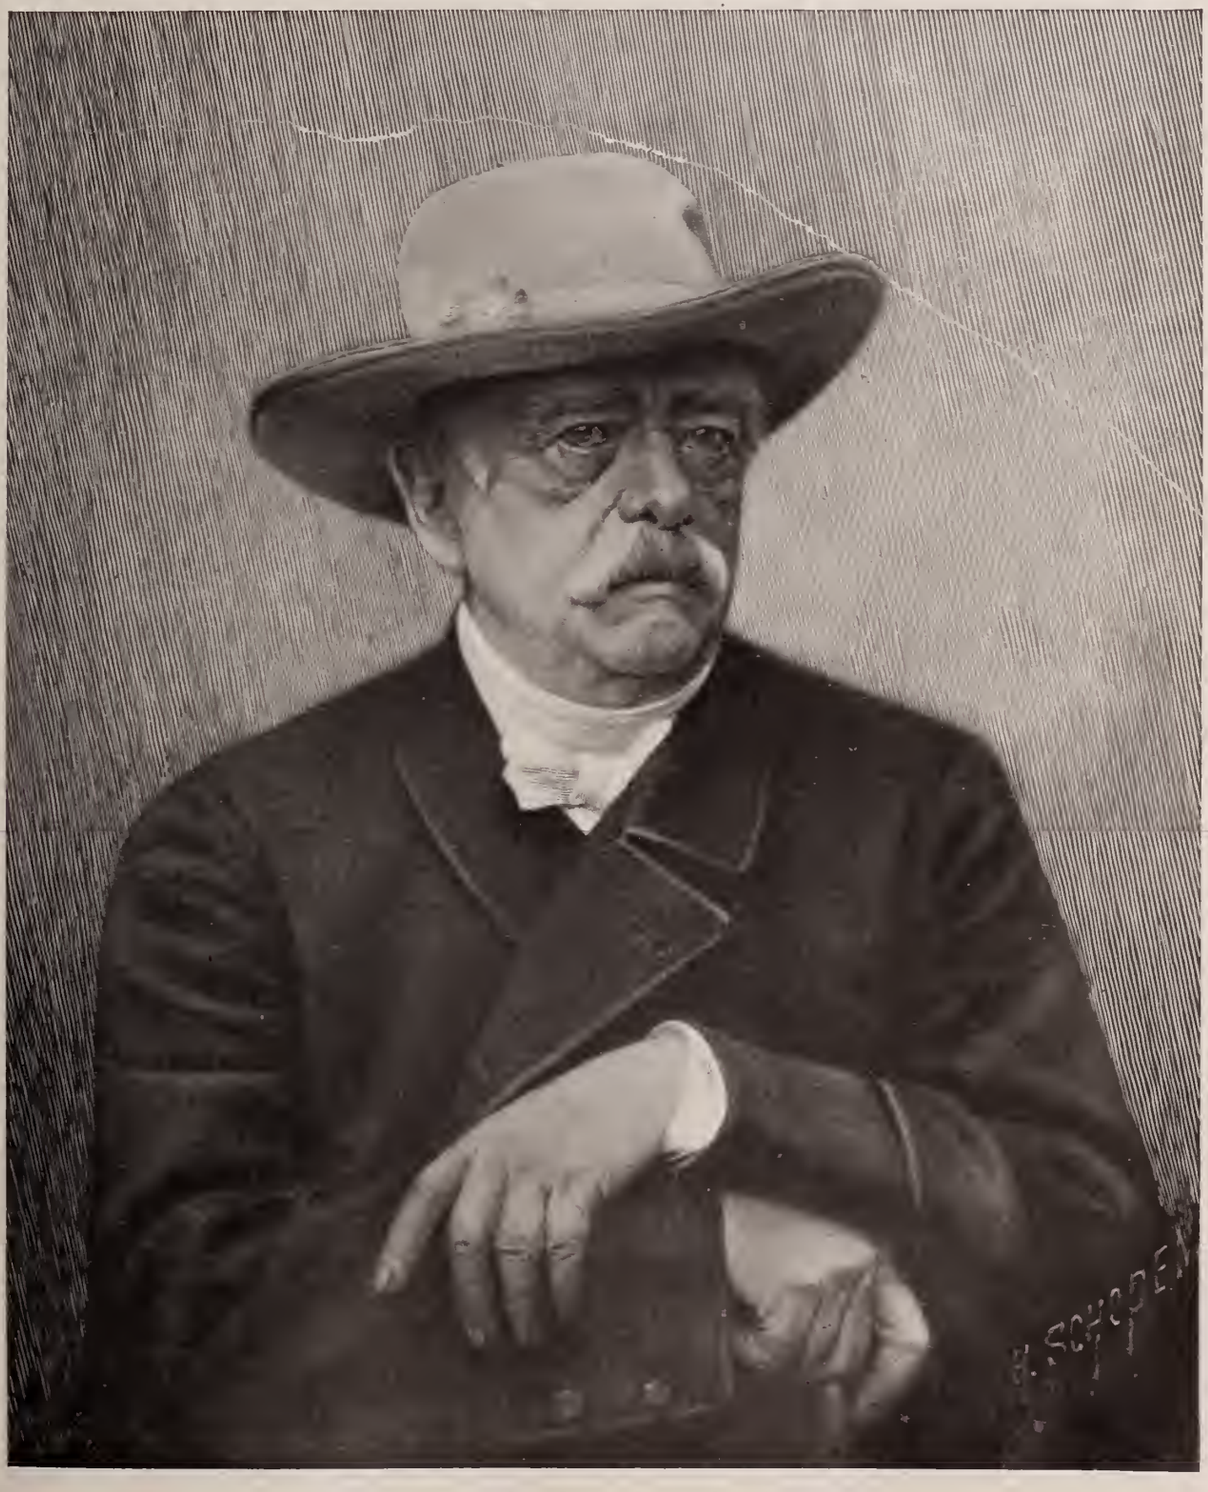
Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor. NEW YORK, AUGUST 10, 1898. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

The Man who Made an Empire

Closing Scenes in the Career of Prince Otto von Bismarck, Soldier, Patriot, Statesman—His Faith in God and a Future Life.

...ust not ...the world, ...ourselves ...at home in ...I believed ...to the end of ...would not ...the dress- ...undress-

THESE words were written by Otto von Bismarck, one of the greatest men whom the 19th century now numbers among its dead. Not at whole world a world-point, it destion Napo- Bismarck, Gladstone e greatness on Of the, Gladstone is by far He was of deep trustful Christ Word, of revo- peace- they were cent, a with- ard. Na- pre- a mili- commander shud- inflecting millions sacri- his am- and his Bis- ok the which left— ed, still ght, still into s, and itioned egree alien gnties. er ag- e pur- ushed to the arm kin of nation- crush- ark, he Aus- ive up erial nd to ll title n pow- He rought many, he tool and ally of the Hapsburgs, into the family of German States, and time came to strike a blow at France, for the first time in history all the ngth of a united people wielded with irresistible force the sword of Sedan and Gravelotte. And then came the German Empire, with William the First as emperor. And with it came Germany—a Germany not only of princes and officers and soldiers; of cannon and crowns and fortresses, but of the German people, from the emperor to the agricultural laborer; from the duke to the artisan, and all represented in a German Parliament, which the "mailed hand" is learning to regard as a greater power than itself.



THE LATE PRINCE OTTO EDOUARD VON BISMARCK. From a Recent Photograph.

People are too prone to think of Bismarck as "a man of blood and iron." The truth is that his greatest achievement, the mighty monument of his fame, the instrument which, humanly speaking, will fashion and complete his work of German unity, is the Reichstag, the Congress, the Parliament of the German people, where the baron and the farmer rub elbows; where State lines are obliterated; where representatives speak as German freemen, and not as Prussians, or Hessians or Bavarians; where the aspirations of the masses find utterance, and where even the emperor has to plead for the means to maintain his camps and his navy. Bismarck's motive in creating this great instrument of popular power and guardian of the people's rights—the German Parliament—may not have been that of a Washington or of a Gladstone, in their work of nation-building, but Bismarck knew that without some great central authority representing and reflecting the will of the great German people, his work would

(Continued on page 635.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Reader, Binghamton, N. Y. If a single man marries a woman who had secured a divorce from her husband who was proved guilty of adultery, is she not his wife in the sight of God? Some people say she is not.

She is his wife in the sight of God. Christ explicitly recognized adultery as a valid cause of divorce (Matt. 5: 32; 19: 9). It is true that Mark and Luke do not give the exception, but as it is obvious that Matthew's is the most complete account, the omission is not important. It would be an outrage for a woman to be bound to a man who was guilty of that offence, and it would be equally unjust for her to be condemned to celibacy because of another's crime. Being free, she was at liberty to marry again, and was justified in doing so.

L. H. M., Greenwood, Va. Would not a man who had married more than once be embarrassed if he met his wives in heaven? Which of them would be recognized as his wife there?

A similar question was put to Christ (Matt. 22: 23-30). You will see how he answered it. We know very little of the conditions of life in the spirit. We cannot easily conceive of life apart from the body, yet it is obvious that there is such life. Christ's answer to his questioners appears to imply that the relationships of life are left behind, and that while we shall recognize one another, there will be such a purification and elevation of being that all idea of marriage will be lost in ye the sublimity of spiritual life. se

E. S. P., Elwood, Mississippi. 1. What became of the Spa vessel Alfonso XIII.? 2. Of what State is Capt. Phillips, of the Texas, a native? 3. Who is be called the first [illegible]. What is to present war? 4. What is the battle of the name of the [illegible]. What is the chief of the Army, the commander-in- What is the Spanish Army? 5. What is the "spoils system"? What is the "franking privilege"? 7. Of what practical benefit would the Philippines be to the United States?

1. In the harbor of Havana, but useless on account of the condition of her boilers. 2. Born in New York, August 26, 1840. 3. The battle of Manila Bay. 4. Gen. Correa is the Minister of War and official head of the army. There is a Council of War and of Marine, of which Lieutenant-General E. Gamir is President, while Lieutenant-General Polavieja is at the head of the Superior Consultative Committee of War. 5. The "spoils system" is the practical application of the maxim that to the political victors belong the official spoils, i.e., to the party that carries an election all the offices being, regardless of the ability and deserts of the men that party may appoint. 6. The "franking privilege," is the privilege granted to members of Congress and others who may be designated by law, to "frank" letters and other packages through the public mails, that is, send them free of postage. 7 Opinions differ widely as to the Philippines. It is possible that the United States may conclude not to retain them permanently, but to hold them for a time as security for an indemnity.

I. B. Stone, Miss. Please give the origin and application of the saying "Survival of the fittest."

The principle of the "Survival of the fittest," was first taught by Darwin in his celebrated work entitled "Origin of the Species," published in 1859. Darwin argued and sought to demonstrate that in the struggle for existence which has been going on from the beginning among animated beings those survive who are best fitted to survive, the weak intellectually and physically perishing or being pushed out of the way. The theory or principle does not appear to take into account the Divine Providence which has often shown itself in a remarkable manner on the side of the weak and down-trodden, and which, according to Christ himself, forgets not even the sparrow.

B. R. C., Providence, R. I. If this war should result in depriving Spain of all her colonies, what would be the effect upon that country? Some say she would be ruined. I contend it would be for her good.

No country has had such grand colonial opportunities as Spain, and no country has so abused her opportunities. Spain was beginning to be a great nation at the time of the discovery of America, and there is no doubt that the vast wealth which poured into Spain from this hemisphere tended to enervate and weaken the Spanish character. And the evil influence of colonial misgovernment upon the Spanish nation has continued from age to age, limited only by the extent of Spain's colonial possessions. We agree with Sylvester Baxter in his statement in the Review of Reviews, that "probably the greatest blessing that can befall Spain will be the loss of all her colonies." Of course whether it is right or not for the United States to take all the colonies is another question.

C. F., Lancaster, Pa. What are the Ladrone Islands which the United States has taken from Spain?

The Ladrone Islands are about twenty in number, and about thirteen hundred square miles in extent. They have a population of about 8,000, the natives being very like those of the Philippines. The islands are healthy and productive. They are 3,500 miles from Honolulu, and about 1,500 miles from Manila.

PICNICKING ON THE SANDS AT CONEY ISLAND.

A familiar sight during the heated term, when New York's sweltering population flees to the seashore or the mountains. Thousands of mothers and children pass the day on the sands, returning home at night, invigorated and refreshed.

Reader, Stratford, Ont., Can. I am a boy sixteen years of age and very fond of reading but I cannot bring myself to read books which we boys call "dry," such as religious books histories of our times, biographies, books on science or natural history, or anything really "solid." The books I care for are such as Henty or Ballantyne writes — very entertaining but not worth anything to a lad who is an orphan, and has to earn his own living. What would you advise me to do?

Your literary taste seems to turn in the direction of travel and adventure. The books you read (and which you have mentioned) are fair representatives of a class of fiction which cannot be profitable to you. We would advise you to get the best histories — those of Greece and Rome — and the best books of travel, and to take up some special study that will be of service to you hereafter.

Anxious Reader. — Tenn. 1. If a person, through cowardice, did not do something that he felt God wished him to do, is it likely that God would take the Holy Spirit from him? 2. If he is now anxious to do the thing he did not do before, would that be accepted now? 3. Is the feeling that the day of grace is past an evidence that it is or is it a suggestion of the evil one? 4. What would be the condition of a person whose day of grace was past?

1. It is not likely that God would take away the Holy Spirit for any such reason. God is represented to us as a Father full of love and patience. 2. Yes. 3. Pay no heed to any feeling of the kind. The offer of salvation is open to you. Accept it by all means and ask God for grace to live the Christ life. 4. We doubt whether the day of grace is past for any one. There are people who are familiar with the Gospel and so indifferent to it that they do not trouble whether they are saved or not. The Holy Spirit seems to have ceased to strive with them and they are cold and lifeless as to spiritual things. It is very unlikely that such persons will ever seek salvation, but even they would find if they did sincerely seek, that the day of grace was not past.

J. R. L., Newburg, N. Y. Would not the conclusion of the war with Spain give to our government a glorious opportunity for inaugurating a peace movement that should include the leading nations of the world, naval and military? Why cannot THE CHRISTIAN HERALD, which has taken the lead in so many worthy causes, inaugurate such a movement? It would find an echo of approval from many millions of Christian men and women throughout the nation.

The time is ripe for such a movement among the nations. The hope of a Christian civilization is that in these enlightened days, the civilized peoples may be brought to see the wisdom of banding together for the preservation of peace by land and sea. We can conceive of a plan for the creation of an international ocean patrol, in which all the leading navies of the globe should be represented proportionately to their strength and the magnitude of their interests: England, France, Germany, Russia, United States, Italy, Japan, China, and possibly others. Such a fleet, distributed throughout the ocean highways of the world, and acting under a common understanding, would be a sufficient police for all maritime purposes and would protect the united interests of all concerned. In the event of any questions arising that could not be determined by the naval authorities, they could be referred for final adjudication to a permanent National Board of Arbitration, with equal jurisdiction on land and sea. This is the ultimate hope and aim of the International Peace Society. Its contention is that nothing is settled by war, and that no question can arise, within the scope of human interests, which cannot be equitably and satisfactorily adjusted by arbitration. It could only be effective, however, when a true Christian spirit dominates the policies of kings and cabinets. It would be a long step in the direction of the millennium.

This is a sample of many similar letters we are now receiving, showing the popular interest in the disposition of our newly-acquired colonies:

There is a passage of Scripture that reads: "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." I have much confidence in your influence for good, so I think you can publish something that may influence our leading men of this nation in regard to treating with Spain. We boast of being a Christian nation. Let Spain and the world see that we are, and do not treat her as she would us. J. A. S.

This, we believe, is what our Administration purposes doing. There are many difficult problems in connection with the settlen peace terms, but we have every conf that when all is over, it will be shown th United States has acted with the wisdo magnanimity that should characterize enlightened Christian nation, seeking n own aggrandizement, but the moral an terial elevation of mankind.

Subscriber, Brink Haven, Pa. Will not D mage state explicitly what his views tism are? Is immersion the right way

Dr. Talmage's custom is to administ rite according to the wish of the can If the candidate wishes to be baptized mersion, he will baptize him in that wa follows the example of the Apostle Pa said that God sent him not to bapt to preach the Gospel (see 1 Cor. 1: 1 baptizes infants by sprinkling when th ents wish to so dedicate their children. a believer has been led to believe that sion is the proper method, Dr. Talma baptize him in that way.

Constant Reader, Laceyville, Pa. Would y in your paper where there is a suitable of some kind (Protestant) to which a man, seventeen years of age, could be correct certain faults—going stoop-sho and walking in an indifferent, careless Otherwise he is quite correct; does tobacco or stimulants in any form; seem rugged, healthy and of good weight The object of sending him away is to straightened up and to take better care self. He is a fair scholar, does not d manual labor, and goes to school eight each year.

This youth should join the nearest of the Young Men's Christian Asso which has a gymnasium attached to it— all of them have a gymnasium. He ou take the exercises regularly and thor and in time no doubt overcome the faults wh present cause anxiety family. Besides he will h opportunity as well to his mind with excellent and inteligent discussion jects of genuine interest cannot fail to have a favor fluence upon his physical Delilah P., Ostelic, N. Y. close of the war, can the cans dispose of the Ph Islands as they wish?

This question is now debated both here and It is doubtful whether o ernment wishes to ret Philippines permanently may be held as security payment of an indemni Spain.

Reader, Kalamazoo, Mic you please state in y paper how much one War Testaments would

We can supply the ves War Testaments at ten

A. R., Long Island Cit What will be done guns captured at the fortress that have com possession? I underst are principally old- pieces?

They will probably be to this country and di as trophies at the diffe itary stations. It is cu after a victorious camp send a number of guns entoes to the leading ci it is doubtful whether tom will be followed in ent case.

W. C. T. U. Sister. W give the information desired.

Mrs. E. L. C. For all information wr Medical Record.

J. T. H., Erie, N. Y. Write to Ameri Society, New York.

Subscriber, Alexandria, Va. Send full address, repeat question, and we will ans Subscriber, Madison, N. C. Write Main, publishers, Ninth Street, New Yo

M. A., Evansville, Ind. 1. The value i as that of any other half-dollar. 2. We

N. I. T. Address to the name of t intended, battleship Texas, Navy Ya lyn, N. Y.

Mrs. E. D. S., Gilmanton, Iron Wo We believe the leader of the band refer been dead for some time.

J. B. W., San Diego, Cal. It is quite it is very wealthy, its possessions repre aggregate of $100,000,000.

Reader, Pensacola, Fla. We believe is now under consideration, and that it corporated in the new flags to be made

Miss Alice A. C., Lakeport, N. Y. Daily Globe. 2. Don't understand th 3. The study of polite literature or w erary art.

E. C., McArthur, O. The publishers get permission to use the music which ac the words of hymn mentioned, and there the words only.

Constant Reader, Denver, Col. A depilatories are advertised, many of wh jurious, and it would be safest to ta advice before using any.

Mother, Baltimore, Md. No. Admi is not a Catholic. He is a member and cant of the Protestant Episcopal Ch know nothing about his politics.

TE MAN WHO MADE AN EMPIRE.

(Continued from first page.)

gc or naught and the noble fabric of m n would crumble into a ruin of jeal- ou princes and divided States. He saw, s ashington saw, that there would be c rue and lasting union that did not re upon a popular foundation; that did n have the nation for its cornerstone. Bi arck was himself never a man of the pe le, in the sense of believing, as Ai icans believe, in political equality; bu e took the only course which seemed to im certain to accomplish and per- pe ate his work of making Germany a n m in fact as well as in name. In ct, therefore, if not in intent, Bis- m k was a liberator as well as a builder.

d who was this mighty man that pa d away on July 30? From what ra did he rise to the place of power wh he occupied, and how did he ca through his task? His father, K Wilhelm Frederick, was a Prussian ju er(squire) and was possessed of a small st at Schoenhausen in the province of randenburg, at the time of Otto's bir He was a country gentleman, fond of it-door sports, and over-indulgent to his ons. He was inclined to train them to be mighty hunters, but being also ob tain in the Royal Body-Guard of Pr sia, he took an interest in their mili- ta education. For centuries the Bis- ma k family had been known for its un- sw ing loyalty to the Crown. Frau Lo sa Wilhelmina von Bismarck was a da hter of Cabinet Councilor Menken, fr om her, as a diplomat, Otto in- he ited some of his gifts.

On April 1st, 1815, at Schoenhausen, Otto was born. At the age of six, he was sent to school in Berlin. At twelve he was transferred to a public classical school. From there he went to the University at Gottingen and from Gottingen to Berlin, where he passed his State examination in law and was sworn in as royal auscultator; but which office the masterful spirit which had characterized his school-life followed him. We next hear of him as a district inspector, of his appointment to work in the crown office at Potsdam, of his being a sharp-shooter of the Guard, and again in the local magistracy of Grefswold, where he began to distinguish himself as a farmer, a man of affairs and a go-y-getter, and as a junker of the hospitality, which occasionally took uncomfortable forms, as when he turned a lot of tame foxes loose in the drawing-room among some sedate lady cousins who were his guests.

In 1839 Bismarck lost his mother. In 1845 his father died. After the death of his parents he took life more seriously; he went back to old home at Schoenhausen, and there met Johanna Puttkamer, a deeply religious young woman the daughter of pious parents, and won for himself the wife whose influence for good over his life, the ex-Chancellor has lovingly acknowledged.

At the age of thirty-two Bismarck started political life through accident—the illness of the member in whose stead he went to Berlin, who he is described as one of the Parliament's most striking figures: Tall six feet two inches, stalwart and erect, with blond hair and beard and the keenest of blue eyes," and where he attracted King Frederick William's attention, in a way that brought him before the monarch in a conference regarding the manner the Crown was about to grant to the people, a measure which Bismarck disapproved, but to which, in loyalty to the throne he pledged support. Thenceforth he was the open champion of the Crown.

In 1851, Bismarck's diplomatic career began as Secretary of Legation, and afterwards as Ambassador to the Germania Diet at Frankfort, where he instituted that struggle for Prussian supremacy which ended in the battle of Sadowa. During the Crimean War, he took advantage of Austria's embarrassments to strengthen Prussia's commercial influence in Germania and France. His opposition to Austria was so intemperate that he was transferred to the Russian court, where he won the friendship of the Czar, and prepared the way for Russian neutrality, in the conflicts in which Prussia afterward engaged.

In 1861, William I. ascended the throne; in 1862, Bismarck, recalled from St. Petersburg, became Prussian Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, and set about inaugurating an inflexible government; riding rough-shod over all opposition, and dissolving Parliament when its course did not please him. There was perfect harmony between him and his king; he believed in the divine right of his king and his king believed in him. Western Europe condemned him unsparingly when he helped Russia to suppress the Warsaw insurrection, but according to his creed, he was right, for war with Austria was at hand, and Prussia needed Russia's friendship. Through Napoleon III., he secured French neutrality for the same reason. At this juncture came the Danish war, and Bismarck saw to it that Austria and Prussia should leave off quarreling long enough to combine forces, defeat Denmark and secure new territory for Prussia. This done, he turned his attention to bringing about the breach with Austria, which occurred in 1866. Within a week, the armies of Austria and her allies, Saxony, Hanover and Hesse-Cassel, were met and conquered by the Prussians; Sadowa was fought, and the first great stride was taken towards making "Prussia the first power in Germany, and Germany the first power in Europe."

At Sadowa, Bismarck's king, the beloved Wilhelm I., was in danger. He sat unmoved, with shells bursting around him, his staff afraid to remonstrate, when Bismarck approached, and urged him to retire, as his life was precious to Prussia.

Bismarck did not make war for war's sake, but for Prussia's. Prussia's cause had been served; he wanted peace, Austrian friendship, and German unification. When the army returned triumphant to Berlin, Bismarck, riding at William's side, carried the treaty of Prague in his pocket. Among those who greeted him was a little maid who lifted a laurel-wreath to his saddle-bow. "You must not give this to me. I did none of the fighting; I declared war, and before he could collect his troops, a German army was in France, William and Bismarck, von Moltke and the Crown Prince Frederick, leading like so many Richmonds in the field. French reverses multiplied fast; there was Gravelotte and then Sedan.

AFTER SEDAN — NAPOLEON AND BISMARCK AT THE COTTAGE AT DONCHERY.

When people crowded around Bismarck with congratulations, he said: "Let Moltke and the army have the credit. I know nothing of the strategy and service of war. The presence of the South Germans here, fighting with and not against you, that is my work." The triumphal entry into Paris followed Sedan, and on January 18, 1871, in the palace of Versailles, Bismarck's king was proclaimed Emperor of United Germany.

While Prussia has been at peace since the Franco-German war, it cannot be said that Bismarck knew rest. Socialism and ultramontanism presented problems which he had to solve. He had also to deal, and deal thoroughly with the assumptions of papal authority, as opposed to the civil power of the Prussian crown.

With March, 1888, came the death of his beloved king. With that death the Iron Chancellor's sun went down. William II. believed too intensely in the divine right of kings, and in his own in particular, to keep so masterful a councillor at his side. On March 18, 1890, he accepted Bismarck's resignation. The latter went into retirement at Fredericksruhe, and the admiration of the world, if not its unqualified approval, went with him. With him also went the hearts of the German people.

The general public have had, through the press charming glimpses into the home-life of Fredericksruhe, where Bismarck, followed around by his great dogs, looked after farming and gardening matters, and the timber of his fine forests, and planted trees and took an interest in the birds.

Attentive to the welfare of his tenants, a strict though kindly master to his servants, lavishly hospitable, and according the same hearty, though dignified, welcome to prince and private person, he there led the simple, busy life of a country squire. His good wife, Johanna, was an excellent hausfrau, and her husband's constant companion in his well-ordered home. "She it is who made of me what I am," he has said. Through all his brilliant public life, his love for his wife never waned. He wrote tender letters to her from camp and court; sent her jasmine from Peterhof, and edelweiss from Gastein, calling her "My dear heart, my best beloved." They had three children, Counts Herbert and William and Mary, Countess Rantzau, who, with her husband, lives at Friedrichsruhe. The countess has been her father's special pet, his private secretary and a beloved companion.

MEETING OF BISMARCK AND NAPOLEON AFTER THE FALL AT SEDAN.

If I did not believe in the divine government of the world, I would not serve my king another hour. If I did not obey my God and put my trust in him, my respect for earthly rulers would be but small. Titles and decorations have no charm for me. Take my faith from me, and you take my country, too . . . I reproach myself often with recollections of all the complainings and vain longings in which I have indulged in life, forgetting how many blessings God gives us and how many dangers surround without touching us. We must not cling to the world or make ourselves too much at home in it. If I believed this to be the end of it all, it would not be worth the dressing and undressing.

So wrote the Iron Chancellor. How soon would the reign of Christ be established on earth if every Christian worked for it in his own field, however great or humble, with the courage and splendid devotion that Bismarck brought to the establishment of the throne of William I.?

The last words of Bismarck were "Ich danke dir, mein kind" (I thank you, my child), addressed to his beloved daughter, the Countess von Rantzau, when she wiped the perspiration from his forehead. His end was peaceful, and there is no reason to doubt that his faith in the Christian religion, to which his late beloved wife was so deeply devoted, consoled and strengthened him in the closing scene. He wrote his own epitaph. It is simple and brief. "Here lies Prince Bismarck, a faithful servant of Germany and Emperor William I." William II. was deeply moved on hearing of the death of him to whom he owed the imperial crown, and he expressed a wish that Bismarck should rest in the Cathedral at Berlin, side by side with William I. The Prince, however, will be buried at Friedrichsruhe, according to his wish, on a spot opposite the Schloss, selected by himself. To this quiet resting-place, the body of his beloved wife will be brought from Varzin, and these two who loved so well while living, in death will not be divided.

serve none of the rewards," he said to her. "Didn't you begin it?" asked she, and laughing, he took the offering.

Sadowa led to Sedan. Napoleon III. and Bismarck had met and chatted politics in an informal way in social life at Biarritz and Paris before there was the faintest promise of Bismarck's greatness, and before official relations commenced between them. "A funny fellow, Bismarck, but by no means to be taken seriously," Napoleon whispered once to Prosper Merimee—"a remark," said Bismarck, "which I did not think polite to recall to him in the weaver's hut at Sedan."

Napoleon, his hands tied by Bismarck's diplomacy, watched Prussian victories and Prussian projects for German unity with jealous eyes, until the accession of a Hohenzollern to the Roumanian throne, and the proposal of a Hohenzollern prince for the Spanish throne, suggested to him that it was time to act. He rashly de-

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

Honesty Eulogized.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: I. Timothy 6: 9:

They that will be rich fall into a temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition.

HAT is the Niagara Falls over which rush a multitude of souls, namely the determination to have the money anyhow, right or wrong. Tell me how a man gets his money and what he does with it, and I will tell you his character, and what will be his destiny in this world and the next. I propose to speak to-day about the ruinous modes of getting money.

In all our city, state and national elections large sums of money are used in bribery. Politics, from being the science of good government, has often been bedraggled into the synonym for truculency and turpitude. A monster sin, plausible, potent, pestiferous, has gone forth to do its dreadful work in all ages. Its two hands are rotten with leprosy. It keeps its right hand hidden in a deep pocket. The left hand is clenched, and with its ichorous knuckle it taps at the door of the court-room, the legislative hall, the congress, and the parliament. The door swings open and the monster enters, and glides through the aisle of the council chamber as softly as a slippered page, and then it takes its right hand from its deep pocket, and offers it in salutation to judge or legislator. If that hand be taken, and the palm of the intruder cross the palm of the official, the leprosy crosses from palm to palm in a round blotch, round as a gold eagle, and the virus spreads, and the doom is fixed, and the victim perishes. Let bribery, accursed of God and man, stand up for trial.

The Bible arraigns it again and again. Samuel says of his two sons, who became judges, "They took bribes and perverted judgment." David says of some of his pursuers, "Their right hand is full of bribes." Amos says of some men in his day, "They take a bribe, and turn aside the poor in the gate." Eliphaz foretells the crushing blows of God's indignation, declaring, "Fire shall consume the tabernacles of bribery."

It is no light temptation. The mightiest have fallen under it. Lord Bacon, Lord Chancellor of England, founder of our modern science, author of "Novum Organum," and a whole library of books, the leading thinker of his century, so precocious that when a little child he was asked by Queen Elizabeth, "How old are you?" he responded, "I am two years younger than your Majesty's happy reign;" of whose oratory Ben Jonson wrote, "The fear of every man that heard him was lest he should make an end;" having an income which you would suppose would have put him beyond the temptation of bribery — thirty-six thousand dollars a year, and Twickenham Court, a gift, and princely estates in Hertfordshire — yet under this temptation to bribery, falling flat into ruin, and on his confession of taking bribes, giving as excuse that all his predecessors took them, he was fined two hundred thousand dollars—or what corresponds with our two hundred thousand dollars — and imprisoned in London Tower.

The black chapter in English, Irish, French, and American politics is the chapter of bribery. Some of you remember the Pacific Mail subsidies. Most of you remember the awful tragedy of the Credit Mobilier. Under the temptation to bribery Benedict Arnold sold the fort in the Highlands for $31,575. For this sin Gorgey betrayed Hungary, Ahithophel forsook David, and Judas kissed Christ. When I see so many of the illustrious going down under this temptation it makes me think of the red dragon spoken of in Revelation, with seven heads and ten horns and seven crowns, drawing a third part of the stars of heaven down after him.

The lobbies of the Legislatures of this country control the country. The land is drunk with bribery! "Oh," says some one, "there's no need of talking against bribery by promise or by dollars, because every man has his price." I do not believe it. Even heathenism and the Dark Ages have furnished specimens of incorruptibility. A cadi of Smyrna had a case brought before him on trial. A man gave him five hundred ducats in bribery. The case came on. The briber had many witnesses. The poor man on the other side had no witnesses. At the close of the case the cadi said: "This poor man has no witnesses, he thinks: I shall produce in his behalf five hundred witnesses against the other side." Then pulling out the bag of ducats from under the ottoman, he dashed it down at the feet of the briber, saying, "I give my decision against you." Epaminondas offered a bribe, said, "I will do this thing if it be right, and if it be wrong, all your goods cannot persuade me."

The President of the American Congress during the American Revolution, General Reed, was offered ten thousand guineas by foreign commissioners if he would betray this country. He replied: Gentlemen, I am a very poor man, but tell your King he is not rich enough to buy me." But why go so far, when you and I, if we move in honorable society, know men and women who by all the forces of earth and hell could not be bribed. They would no more be bribed than you would think of tempting an angel of light to exchange heaven for the pit. To offer a bribe is villainy, but it is a very poor compliment to the man to whom it is offered.

I have not much faith in those people who go about bragging how much they could get if they would only sell out. Those women who complain that they are very often insulted, need to understand that there is something in their carriage to invite insult. There are men at Albany, and at Harrisburg, and at Washington, who would no more be approached by a bribe than a pirate boat with a few cutlasses would dare to attack a British man-of-war with two banks of guns on each side loaded to the touch-hole. They are incorruptible men, and they are the few men who are to save the city and save the land.

Meanwhile, my advice is, keep out of politics unless you are invulnerable to this style of temptation. Indeed, if even you are naturally strong, you need religious buttressing. Nothing but the grace of God can sustain our public men, and make them what we wish. I wish that there might come an old-fashioned revival of religion, that it might break out in congress and the legislatures, and bring many of the leading Republicans and Democrats down on the anxious seat of repentance. That day will come, or something better, for the Bible declares that kings and queens shall become nursing fathers and mothers to the church, and if the greater in authority, then certainly the less.

My charge also to parents is, remember that this evil of bribery often begins in the home circle, and in the nursery. Do not bribe your children. Teach them to do that which is right, and not because of the ten cents or the orange which you will give them. There is a great difference between rewarding virtue and making the profits thereof the impelling motive. That man who is honest merely because "honesty is the best policy" is already a moral bankrupt.

My charge is to you, in all departments of life, steer clear of bribery all of you. Every man and woman at some time will be tempted to do wrong for compensation. The bribe may not be offered in money. It may be offered in social position. Let us remember that there is a day coming when the most secret transaction of private life, and of public life, will come up for public reprehension.

We cannot bribe death, we cannot bribe sickness, we cannot bribe the grave, we cannot bribe the judgments of that God who thunders against this sin. "Fie!" said Cardinal Beaufort, "he? Can't death be bribed? Is money nothing? Must I die, and so rich? If the owning of the whole realm would save me, I could get it by policy or by purchase—by money." No, death would not be bribed then; he will not be bribed now. Men of the world often regret that they have to leave their money here when they go away from the world. You can tell from what they say in their last hours that one of their chief sorrows is that they have to leave their money. I break that delusion. I tell that bribe-taker that he will take his money with him. God will wrap it up in your shroud, or put it in the palm of your hand in resurrection, and there it will lie, not the cool, bright, shining gold as it was on the day when you sold your vote and your moral principle, but there it will lie, a hot metal, burning and consuming your hand forever. Or, if there be enough of it for a chain, then it will fall over the wrist, clanking the fetters of an eternal captivity. The bribe is an everlasting possession. You take it for time, you take it for eternity.

Another wrong use of money is seen in the abuse of trust funds. Nearly every man during the course of his life, on a larger or smaller scale, has the property of others committed to his keeping. He is, so far, a safety deposit, he is an administrator, and holds in his hand the interest of the family of a deceased friend. Or he is an attorney, and through his custody goes the payment from debtor to creditor, or he is the collector for a business house, which compensates him for the responsibility; or he is treasurer for a charitable institution, and he holds alms contributed for the suffering; or he is an official of the city or the state or the nation, and taxes and subsidies and salaries and supplies are in his keeping.

It is as solemn a trust as God can make it. It is concentered and multiplied confidences. On that man depends the support of a bereft household, or the morals of dependents, or the right movement of a thousand wheels of social mechanism. A man may do what he will with his own, but he who abuses trust funds, in that one act commits theft, falsehood, perjury, and becomes, in all the intensity of the word, a miscreant. How many widows and orphans there are with nothing between them and starvation but a sewing-machine, or held up out of the vortex of destruction simply by the thread of a needle, red with their own heart's blood, who a little while ago had, by father and husband, left them a competency! What is the matter? The administrators or the executors have sacrificed it — running risks with it that they would not have dared to encounter in their own private affairs.

How often it is that a man will earn a livelihood by the sweat of his brow, and then die, and within a few months all the estate goes into the stock-gambling rapids of Wall Street! How often it is that you have known the man to whom trust funds were committed taking them out of the savings bank and from trust companies and administrators, turning old homesteads into hard cash, and then putting the entire estate into the vortex of speculation. Embezzlement is an easy word to pronounce, but it has ten thousand ramifications. There is not a city that has not suffered from the abuse of trust funds. Where is the court-house, or the city hall, or the gaol, or the post-office, or the hospital, that in the building of it has not had a political job? Long before the new court-house in New York City was completed, it cost over $12,000,000. Five million six hundred and sixty three thousand dollars for furniture! For plastering and repairs, $2,370,000. For plumbing and gas works, $1,231,817. For awnings, $23,553. The bills for three months coming to the nice little sum of $13,151,198.39. There was not an honest brick, or stone, or lath, or nail, or foot of plumbing, or inch of plastering, or ink-stand, or door-knob in the whole establishment.

That bad example was followed in many of the cities, which did not steal quite so much because there was not so much to steal. There ought to be a closer inspection, and there ought to be less opportunity for embezzlement. Lest a man shall take a five-cent piece that does not belong to him, the conductor on the city horse-car must sound his bell at every payment; and we are very cautious about small offences, but give plenty of opportunities for sinners on a large scale to escape. For a boy who steals a loaf of bread from a corner grocer to kee is mother from starving to death, a pr n but for defrauders who abscond with lf a million of dollars, a castle on the R le, or, waiting until the offence is forge n, a castle on the Hudson!

Another remark needs to be made d that is that people ought not to go to places, into business, or into posi ns where the temptation is mightier an their character. If there be large ns of money to be handled, and the m not sure of his own integrity, you ha right to run an unseaworthy craft hurricane. A man can tell by the se of weakness or strength in the pre e of a bad opportunity whether he is safe place. How many parents mal a awful mistake when they put their y in banking houses and stores and s and factories and places of solemn is without once discussing whether the endure the temptation! You give boy plenty of money, and have no ac of it, and make the way down be very easy, and you may put upon pressure that he cannot stand. are men who go into positions f temptation, considering only that are lucrative positions.

An abbot wanted to buy a pie o ground, and the owner would not s but the owner finally consented to to him until he could raise one cro the abbot sowed acorns—a crop o hundred years! And I tell you, man, that the dishonesties which plant in your heart and life will se be very insignificant, but they will up until they will overshadow you horrible darkness, overshadow all and all eternity. It will not be a cr two hundred years, but a crop for e lasting ages.

I address many who have trust It is a compliment to you that you been so entrusted, but I charge y the presence of God and the wor careful; be as careful of the prope others as you are careful of your Above all, keep your own private ac at the bank separate from your ac as trustee of an estate, or trustee institution. That is the point at thousands of people make shipw They get the property of others mix with their own property, they put i investment, and away it all goes, and cannot return that which they bor Then comes the explosion, and the r market is shaken, and the press deno and the Church thunders expulsion.

You have no right to use the prop others except for their advantage, no out consent, unless they are minors. I their consent you invest their prope well as you can, and it is all lost, y not to blame: you did the best you but do not come into the delusion has ruined so many men, of thinki cause a thing is in their possession, fore it is theirs. You have a solem that God has given you.

A blustering young man arrive hotel in the West, and he saw a m the sidewalk whom he supposed to laborer, and in a rough way, as n has a right to address a laborer, s him, "Carry this trunk upstairs." man carried the trunk upstairs and down, and then the young man gav a quarter of a dollar which was cl and instead of being twenty-five c was worth only twenty cents. The young man gave his card to the l and said, "You take this up to Go Grimes; I want to see him." "Ah, the laborer, "I am Governor Gri "Oh," said the young man, "you excuse me." Then the Governor "I was much impressed by the lett wrote me asking for a certain office gift, and I had made up my min should have it: but a young man w cheat a laborer out of five cents swindle the Government of the St he got his hands on it. I don't wan Good morning, sir."

Oh! is it not high time that we the morals of the Gospel right besi faith of the Gospel? Mr. Froud celebrated English historian, has w of his own country these rema words: "From the great house in t of London to the village grocer, the mercial life of England has been rated with fraud. So deep has it that a strictly honest tradesman hardly hold his ground against co tion. You can no longer trust th ar le you buy is the thing which it pre te s to be. We have false weights, false m sures, cheating, and shoddy every- wh e. And yet the clergy have seen all th grow up in absolute indifference. M y hundreds of sermons have I heard in ngland on the divine mission of the cl y, on bishops, and on justification, an the theory of good works, and verbal ins ration, and the efficacy of the sacra m s; but, during all these thir'y won de l years, never one that I can recol le on common honesty."

ow, that may be an exaggerated state m of things in England, but I am very ce in that in all parts of the earth we ne to preach the moralities right along e le the faith of the Gospel.

hearer, what are you doing with h fraudulent document in your pocket? Ty ther hearer, how are you getting al g with that wicked scheme you have o on foot? Is that a "pool ticket" you a in your pocket? Why, O young man, we you last night practising in copying employer's signature? Where were o ast night? Are your habits as good as h you left your fath- r's ouse? You had a h tian ancestry, per- ap and you have had oo any prayers spent n u to go overboard. Dr ivingstone, the fa- o explorer, was de sce ed from the High- la rs, and he said that one f his ancestors, one f t Highlanders, one day called his family aro d him. The High- la er was dying; he wa is children around his ath-bed. He said: "N , my lads, I have ol all through our st y as far back as I can nd it, and I have ne found a dishonest man all the line, and I wi you to understand you herit good blood. Yo ave no excuse for li in wrong. My lads, be hest."

I m glad some one s et to music that en in August, 1881, a e a young girl saved fr death a whole rail rai of passengers. Yo son, of you remember th out West in that se on a stormy night h ricane blew down part a railroad bridge. A fight train came on and it crashed into the ruin, and the ngineer and conductor perished. The was a girl living in her father's cab near the disaster, and she heard the ash of the freight train, and she kne that in a few moments an express wa due. She lighted a lantern and clam- bered up on the one beam of the wrecked brid on to the main bridge, which was trestle work, and started to cross. The nsistep and it would have been fatal. Amid all that horror the lantern went out. Crawling sometimes, and some- times walking over the slippery rails, and over the trestle work, she came to the other side of the river. The train was due a few minutes. She was one mile off om the telegraph station, but fortu- nately the train was late. With cut and bruised feet she flew like the wind. Com- ing to the telegraph station, panting with almost deadly exhaustion, she had only strength to shout. "The bridge is down!" when she dropped unconscious. She could hardly be resuscitated. The message was sent from that station to the next station, and the train halted, and that night that brave girl saved the lives of hundreds of passengers, and saved many homes from desolation. But every street is a track, and every style of busi- ness a track, and every day is a track, and every night is a track, and multitudes under the power of temptation come sweeping on and sweeping down toward perdition, raging and terrific. God help us to go on and stop the train! The bridge is down, the chasm is deep, and the lightnings of God set all the night of sin on fire with this warning: "He that, being often re- proved, hardeneth his neck, shall sud- denly be destroyed, and that without remedy."

MINERS STIRRED BY THE GOSPEL.

An Eastern Pastor's Evangelistic Trip in the Sierra Nevada and Its Results.

BY REV. W. J. PECK, M. A.

ONE of the aggravations of travel in the Sierra Nevada is being compelled to hasten through in a few days where you long to take months. The noble sloping mountains seem bound to hold you a willing captive. The streams lure you with their songs. The ærial shelves tempt you to a prolonged climb from the high pass to the highest crest. As we hurry on, invisible fingers of nature's artists are pulling us back as much as to say in reprimand of haste: "Is this the way you look at what it took ages to build?"

Most tourists visiting California just miss the best of it all by not making a detour from the railroad into the very heart of the Nevadas, giving a visit to Job and Lake Tahoe, and realms where miners and lumbermen roam. This pass, a mile and a half from the level of the Pacific shows other craggy shelves to be conquered; and he finds that—

VERNAL FALLS.

The mighty pyramids of stone,
That wedge-like cleave the desert airs,
When nearer seen and better known,
Are but gigantic flights of stairs.

More impressive than these lofty peaks was a bit of the old miner's trail of 1849. It runs through a profound forest and over rugged and dangerous mountain slopes. I procured a saddle-horse and rode over it for many miles. I found some of the way almost impassable, and had to dismount and lead the horse along the edge of a deep ravine where some boulders had fallen into the path. Trees of good size are growing in that trail where nearly fifty years ago the first emigrants went seeking new homes in the California valleys. Over that way the miners went for gold. Now the target of the Indian, now dying of exposure to the bitter weather, they pushed their ways over treacherous ravines and craggy walls where they had to take the wagon wheels off and let them down by ropes.

Looking off to the East, we saw a trench, or chasm, extending for forty miles, forming the granite basin of a high-water lake. It is Lake Tahoe, as the Indians called it; meaning "high water." Its shimmering waters are 6,200 feet above the sea, and if a plummet were dropped from the highest spire of the snowy range that surrounds it, it would fall three thousand feet; and two thousand feet more into these clear waters. Clear as crystal they greet the sunrise and reflect the gorgeous sunset.

Here, where God has done his noblest work, he is forgotten. My guide said they had no Sunday, and had not heard the Gospel for two years. A dance house was the only public building in the village. The proprietor was busy branding his cattle on a Sunday, but said I could hold service in the hall. The service was announced on placards in the saloons. At the appointed time, miners, roughly-dressed log-men, guides, women and children were seated on rough boards and on the platform. A miner's voice in rich bass helped to sing "Coronation," and broke down in the last verse. "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Nearer My God to Thee" were sung with a right good will. How the miners can sing! Their work in the deep grades may add to the timbre and sweetness of their voices. I never heard anything heartier! The story of "The Prodigal Son" called out comments, as did the sermon, proving that following Jesus broadened, lengthened, deepened, and made life high and holy. After the benediction an old miner from Lowell, in the old Bay State, said he was the "Prodigal Son." He had been mining away from God, and was in the lowest grade where he was lost. With tears streaming down his furrowed face, pathetically he said:

"Parson, I have been mining from God in low grades of sin. I am in the dark. I am a lots soul. Do you think Jesus will ever find me? Is there hope for a feller like me?"

"EL CAPITAN," YOSEMITE.

I found that all the saloons had been closed, and the saloon-keepers were at the service. While singing the hymns many of the miners were visibly affected, as the service carried them back to boyhood days.

The big trees and the fine falls of the Yosemite have made the Nevadas a tourist's paradise; but for sunsets, come to Tahoe! After service with the miners we saw one never to fade from memory. The sky was clear where the sun was setting, and large patches of cloud looked like wild animals hurrying along.

Down in these low grades, two and three thousand feet below the sunlight, it is so hot that cooling rooms are provided for the workmen. They are small rooms, but ample for ten or twenty men to cool off and rest. Cold air, as at Virginia City, is forced down into these rooms. Indeed the granite rooms are very refreshing after traversing, as I did for a mile, the hot, lateral tunnel. These miners are royal good fellows, mostly Americans. I never received a rebuff from one of them in speaking to them of Jesus. They always were glad to hear of him, and would ask me to come again, and often wanted me to mess with them. The minister of a mining camp is amply repaid, and if worthy wins deep affection and respect. What wider field of usefulness could a consecrated soul wish than this? A pulpit in a cooling room of a mine on the three thousand foot grade is as near heaven as any in the land.

Begging for War Testaments.

Thousands of Them Sent to the Camps and Many of Them Forwarded to Our New Colonies.

DEMANDS for our vest-pocket War Testament for the troops in camp and at the front, and also for the Navy, are steadily increasing. During the week THE CHRISTIAN HERALD has sent through the Christian Commission 1,000 of these beautiful Testaments for our troops and sailors in the Philippines, 1,000 to Santiago de Cuba, and 1,000 to Porto Rico. They will be distributed in those colonies through the Christian Commission workers and the field representatives of the Y. M. C. A., all of whom are laboring zealously and harmoniously under the direction of the Christian Commission, of which Evangelist D. L. Moody, is the head.

We have also sent many hundreds to Army chaplains and evangelists in the camps at Chickamauga, Tampa and Key West, and to Camp Cuba Libre at Jacksonville, where they have been distributed by faithful agents to the "boys in blue," who were about to leave for the front. Among those who have acted as distributors are Rev. H. Allen Tupper, Jr., of Montclair, N. J.; Rev. H. M. Wharton, of Baltimore, Md.; Ira D. Sankey, the well-known Gospel singer; Rev Dr. L. W. Munhall, evangelist; Rev. C. G. Wright, Secretary E. W. Sheffield, Y. M. C. A., and a number of army and navy chaplains.

All contributions to the War Testament Fund are applied by us to sending these Testaments to the troops and sailors. One dollar will supply ten Testaments.

The following contributions to the Fund have been received during the week:

Prev ack'd	$584.84
Ackerman, A W	1 00
Agnew, Mrs H J	1 00
Albright, Mrs & daul	00
Anderson, Mrs E M	1 00
Armstrong, Mrs R A	1 00
Ballantyne, Nina	1 00
Barrett, Mrs A I	1 00
Bartlett, Mrs H L	1 00
Battishill, H B	1 00
Benham, Miss M E	1 00
Bickford, Mrs C N	1 00
Boshart, Wm	10 00
Brennan, Virginia	1 85
Bristol, J E	1 00
Brown, Eva	35
Butcher, Sarah	1 00
Campbell, Mr& Mrs G	80
Clement, F A	1 35
Clements, John R	90
Cooley, C L	1 00
Cram, Mrs A A	50
Damon, L M	2 00
Davis, Mrs H M	1 25
Dawson, Jr, Wm	1 00
Ellis, Mrs J	1 00
Ellis, Mrs N H	3 00
Ferry, Mrs C S	1 00
Freezo, Mrs M A	90
Grubb, E M F	1 00
Harvey, Miss H R	3 00
Higgins, Herbert & Ines	1 70
Himes, A F	85
Holman, Mary E	1 00
Hope, Jane	20 00
Hopkins, Mrs H H	1 00
Hudson, C D	1 00
Hunt, Mrs J H	1 00
Jacobson, J A & C & Oscar Dahlgren	1 85
Jordan, Nora	25
Joy A M	2 00
Kepner, Miss S E	1 00
Kerr, Robt	80
King, Chas	25
Leonard, Mrs A C	1 00
Lenk, H	2 00
Lockhart, Samuel	1 00
McAlister S S Cl	5 60
McMillan Mr& Mrs J F	2 00
Martin, Mrs A	1 00
Morgan, Joe	1 00
Moses, Mrs Jas	1 00
Murry, Mrs T A	1 00
Nichols, E H	1 00
Nichels, Mrs Jas H	30
Ogden, Mrs C	50
Probasco, J B	50
Ralston, Mrs M J	1 00
Rear, Edwin	1 00
Roper, Miss Carrie E	85
Rowles, W Y	1 00
Rundall, M E	50
Ruthrauff, J W	1 00
Sargent, Mrs O R	50
Seymour, Miss E	1 00
Shearman, Jessie A	1 00
Seoenherr, Mrs Anna E	1 00
Smith, Ada	1 00
Smith, Enguene	1 00
Smith, Mrs H P	1 00
Soper, Mrs Martha	5 00
Stewart, R A	1 00
Stillman, Mrs Gertrude	1 00
Stratton, A E	85
Swift, Mrs Martha	2 70
Taylor, Mrs J E	30
Tribout, Mrs C A	50
Van Buren, Mrs	1 00
Vandewater, I R	1 00
Vixtrum, Mrs J A	3 50
Wakelee, Mrs Dr	1 00
Warner, T N	2 00
Waugh, Mrs E J B	1 00
Way, Collins M	2 85
Wiley, Mrs Jennie	50
Wilkins, N J	2 00
Wood, John J	1 00
Wright, Mrs A	1 00
Paynter, Lawsonham	5 00
Ethel and Gertrude, Brookline	1 00
A C, Brooklyn	2 00
H L C, New York	1 00
H S, Bethlehem	25
I T W, Pittsfield	1 00
J A R, Summit	1 00
L M T, Johnstown	1 00
M E H, Philadelphia	2 40
M E P, New Haven	15 00
M L M, Haddonfield	50
M T A, Atlantic Highlands	2 00
Mrs S E G Ware	1 00
W, Epsom	1 00
Mrs Z C R, Washington	1 00
——, Rhinebeck	1 00
Winnipeg	1 00
I H N, Sidney	1 00
In His Name, Basin Harbor	2 00
In His Dear Name, Asheville	1 00
I H N, Mother and Daughter, Byfield	3 00
I H N, Plainfield	1 00
In His Name	2 00
I H N, Jackson	60
Friend, Sparta	1 00
Friend, New Berlin	1 00
Friend, Haverhill	1 00
Friend, Rose City	1 00
Friend, Clarksville	1 00
Suhr	5 00
Loomis Y P S C E	5 54
Union Meeting, Uniontown	4 90
St Louis Gravois Mission Jr Soc	50
Y P S C E, East End Chapel, Washington C H	1 30
Two Sisters, I H N, New Market	3 00
Pinelawn, Layton	10
Child of a King, Fort Montgomery	1 00
People of Hampden	2 65
Endeavor, Maynard	1 00
Charleston Depot, A Lover of Jesus	6 00
Total	$803.13

Mrs G E Van Diosen, 18 New Testaments.

The Misses Edgar, Proverbs, Psalms and Gospel of St John.

SOLDIERS COMING TO CHRIST.

Many Confess the Saviour at the Camp Review Gatherings—Cheering News from Christian Commission Workers at Many Points.

AT no time since the opening of the evangelistic crusade in our military camps by the workers of the Christian Commission has there been such a deep, genuine, and abiding spiritual influence at work as during the week just closed. Letters from many of the workers show this. "Christ in the Camps," is the burden of their letters. We give space to some of them below, believing that our readers are in cordial sympathy with this soul-winning movement. Rev. H. Allen Tupper, of Montclair, N. J., writes from Jacksonville, Fla., as follows:

A Providential Opportunity.

In the Providence of God, this war presents an opportunity for Christian service unequalled during the last thirty-five years. The most encouraging news comes from the different encampments of the army. My work has been confined so far to the Camp Cuba Libre, at Jacksonville. On my arrival here I found that Camp Secretary Frank L. Smith, assisted by a small but consecrated body of men, had everything well in hand; and from the first meeting, each night a great crowd of attentive men has listened, with eagerness, to the wonderful story of redeeming love. It is impossible to estimate the wide spread influence of such meetings; but during the last ten days, more than 400 have publicly given assurance of their acceptance of Christ as their personal Saviour. These men have, in most instances given their names for the Y. M. C. A. workers to put on record and hand to the chaplains; and Bible classes have been formed for the instruction of these new converts. At the close of my last sermon in the Y. M. C. A. tent of the First Brigade, I requested the men who desired the chaplain or myself to write the good news of their conversion to the loved ones at home to hand me their names; and the list given me includes the names of over one hundred.

The following are some of the sentences these brave fellows put under their signature: "Write mother! that her boy has taken Christ as his Saviour." "Tell my brother I have found Christ." "I give also the address of my mother. Drop her a line." "Wherever you are, pray for me by name." "I want to be a good soldier of Christ, as well as of my country." "To-day is the happiest of my life." "In camp or on the field, I am Christ's forever." "I know that he can save and keep me."

Christ is in the camp; and his Spirit has wrought wonderfully among these Soldiers. Hundreds and it may be thousands of them who were Christless a few months ago, are now volunteers under the banner of the Prince of Peace. It is hard to estimate the good that has been accomplished by the Army and Navy Christian Commission. Eight Y. M. C. A. secretaries direct the work of the tents; and I can testify from personal association that they are noble laborers for the Master.

Through your widely circulated journal I would appeal for this great work in the camps. Although the visiting pastors are giving their services gratuitously, the necessary expenses are very heavy. Brethren, Christ should seize this magnificent opportunity for the salvation of our brave boys and for the glory of God.

H. ALLEN TUPPER, JR.

Doings at Camp Merritt, Calif.

Mrs. Lucy Greene, of San Francisco, writing from Camp Merritt says:

We thought we were so far away from the seat of war that we would not be brought into material contact with armies and camps, and would only read of these things when printed across the wires. But ever since the President called for 125,000 volunteers, we have been in the closest material contact with soldiers and preparations for strife. There is scarcely not a State in the Union where there is not much excitement, and as much done for the soldiers as right here in San Francisco. Troops have been arriving for more than two months every day, and are met at the ferry from early dawn until midnight by ladies with coffee and hot lunches, fruit and flowers. Whatever hour the train is due, the ladies are on hand. The Christian Endeavor Societies of Golden Gate Union established headquarters in a warehouse at the camp, the use of which was given by a gentleman who had been offered $1,500 rent for it for a saloon. A reading and writing room is attached, with stationery, literature and daily papers free, where the boys—for many of them are but boys—find a haven of rest and protection from the winds and fog that sometimes prevail, and a quiet place to write and read. In another room the ladies meet and sew for them, mending, darning, sewing on chevrons and stripes. In another department is a range, where soups, broths and other delicacies are prepared for the sick. The large hall contains a piano, chairs and benches, and is decorated with flags and C. E. emblems, where religious services are held, and a social given by each of the churches once a week, to the regiment under the care of a church individually, where coffee, doughnuts and sandwiches are served to the grateful boys. Reading and writing tents are in every regiment under the care of the churches, each church having in charge one regiment. Stationery, literature and daily papers free, and stamps when required. Many of the soldiers are Christian Endeavorers.

The Christian Commission and the C. E. Societies have now united, and both are working under the C. C. flag. The C. C. have large tents in the camp. A Spanish class is taught at C. C. headquarters, a lady giving her services, and is largely attended, the men preparing for the Philippines. Transports for Manila have been fitted out with everything necessary for their comfort by the Red Cross Society, which is doing good work in more ways than one. 'Tis a grand sight to see three or four big ships heavily laden with the boys in blue, steaming through the Golden Gate, but it will be a far more pleasant sight to see them return.

Mr. Moody on the Work.

In a letter, written recently, relative to the evangelistic work in the camps, Mr. D. L. Moody says:

From the beginning of the war it seemed to me that the great military camps were going to present a field for Gospel effort such as the Church in America had not seen in this generation, and perhaps might never see again. In some of them as many as fifty thousand men, the majority of them under twenty-five years of age, were to be accessible to Gospel effort if men could be found who could command their attention and interest. Such men were found, among them General Howard, Major Whittle, Dr. Dixon, Dr. Wharton and Dr. Torrey, and sent to the camps to preach. The result has been that several thousand of our soldiers have been brought to Christ. We have the names of over two thousand at Camp Thomas alone.

These men are taking a clear, bold, out and out stand for Christ among their comrades. One of the workers at Chickamauga, writing to me on Sunday, July 17, says: "When I gave the invitation the first man to come forward to confess Christ was a captain in full uniform. With one hand he held his sword and with the other he took mine and promised to live henceforth for Christ. I wish you could have seen the crowd of men that followed him." Another writes of a service the same day: "When the invitation was given, all classes, men with the gold on their shoulders and stripes on their arms, and those with the common blue shirt, all came forward together and fell on their knees to pray."

REV. H. A. TUPPER, JR.

We tried not only to lead the men to Christ, but also to give them all the help we can in living Christian lives in the midst of the temptations of the camps. Nearly all the regulars now before Santiago were given Testaments before they left Tampa. One poor fellow was found lying dead on that bloody battle-field, who could only be identified by his name on the fly-leaf of one of these Testaments. We are also using books calculated to help different classes of men, such as those recently converted, those who are inquiring the way to salvation, those who are skeptical, and those who will read nothing but an interesting story. The men are exceedingly anxious for these books, and over 40,000 have been given to them. They have been thoughtfully read, in many cases passed from man to man until several have read them, and I believe will do very great good.

The expenses of the Commission work are necessarily heavy, but I believe that a work which accomplishes so much for the men and upon which the power of God so manifestly rests will not lack for support from the Christian people of this country.

MEMBERS OF COMPANY F, HOOD'S IMMUNE REGIMENT, NOW IN CUBA.

End of the War at Hand.

Peace Negotiations Progressing — Porto Rican Towns Surrender and Joyfully Welcome the Americans.

THROUGH M. Cambon, the French Ambassador at Washington, the government of Spain last week opened formal peace negotiations with our government. M. Cambon submitted a note, in behalf of Spain, inquiring whether this government would consider proposals for ending the war and arranging terms of peace. To this, a reply was made stating, substantially, that before any peace terms could be entertained by the United States, Spain must evacuate Cuba, cede Porto Rico, and also the city of Manila, and a part of Luzon Island and the Ladrone Islands to this government. Although it was considered probable that the Madrid Cabinet might attempt a resort to diplomatic discussion, it was believed that the pressure of public opinion in Spain would force the government to early acceptance. Such a course would not only assure a speedy termination of the war, and the abandonment of our projected expedition against the Spanish coast cities, but it would re[quire] Spain from habnity for indemnity, w[hich] would certainly be claimed should the [war] be prolonged in co[n]sequence of her reje[ction] of our preliminary [de]mands. All details [as] to the terms of [the] permanent peace, [the] form of govern[ment] to be establish[ed] in Cuba, the ulti[mate] disposition of [the] Philippines an[d the] Carolines, are [not] settled only a[s] Spain evacuate[s] West Indies. T[hese] together with [other] matters, are t[o be] left to a Spa[nish]-American Co[mmis]sion, it being [understood] while under[stood] that the Un[ited] States waive[s] claim to any o[f the] conquered ter[ritory]. With surp[rising] promptness, M. Ca[mbon] accepted the terms o[f the] preliminary demands [and] ject to ratification b[y the] Madrid Cabinet. W[ith] that ratification is given and communi[cated] to Washington, the war will be, to all i[ntents] and purposes, at an end. Weeks [or] months may be consumed in the [final] negotiations, however, and our squa[drons] and armies will doubtless be maint[ained] at their full effective strength in the [con]quered territories, until the last d[etail] for a permanent peace are conclu[ded].

It will be welcome new[s], indeed, to the whole co[untry] that peace is now practi[cally] assured. Although the [war] has lasted only a little [over] three months, it has al[ready] given birth to many s[erious] problems which could n[ot be] foreseen when our trouble[s with] Spain began. Among [them] are the question of a U[nited] States protectorate or [full] pendence for Cuba; the [annexa]tion of the whole or a p[art of] the Philippines, and the [govern]ing of extensive administ[rative] and educational reform[s in] these islands, with full civ[il and] religious liberty; and the [future] of Porto Rico, whose p[eople] seem to rejoice over the [prospe]ct of enfranchisement [from] oppressive Spanish rule.

Among the results o[f the] war, one that peculiarl[y ap]peals to Christian Amer[icans] the opportunity afford[ed for] sending the Gospel of Je[sus] lands till now held non[e] by the Roman Churc[h], which are, to a very gre[at] tent, in heathen darkness. [This] is especially the case i[n the] Philippines, the Caroline[s], the Ladrones, and to a less extent i[n] even of Cuba itself. Several of o[ur] nominational missionary boards ha[ve] ready taken action with a view to s[end] spiritual workers to those needy fie[lds] soon as the way is opened.

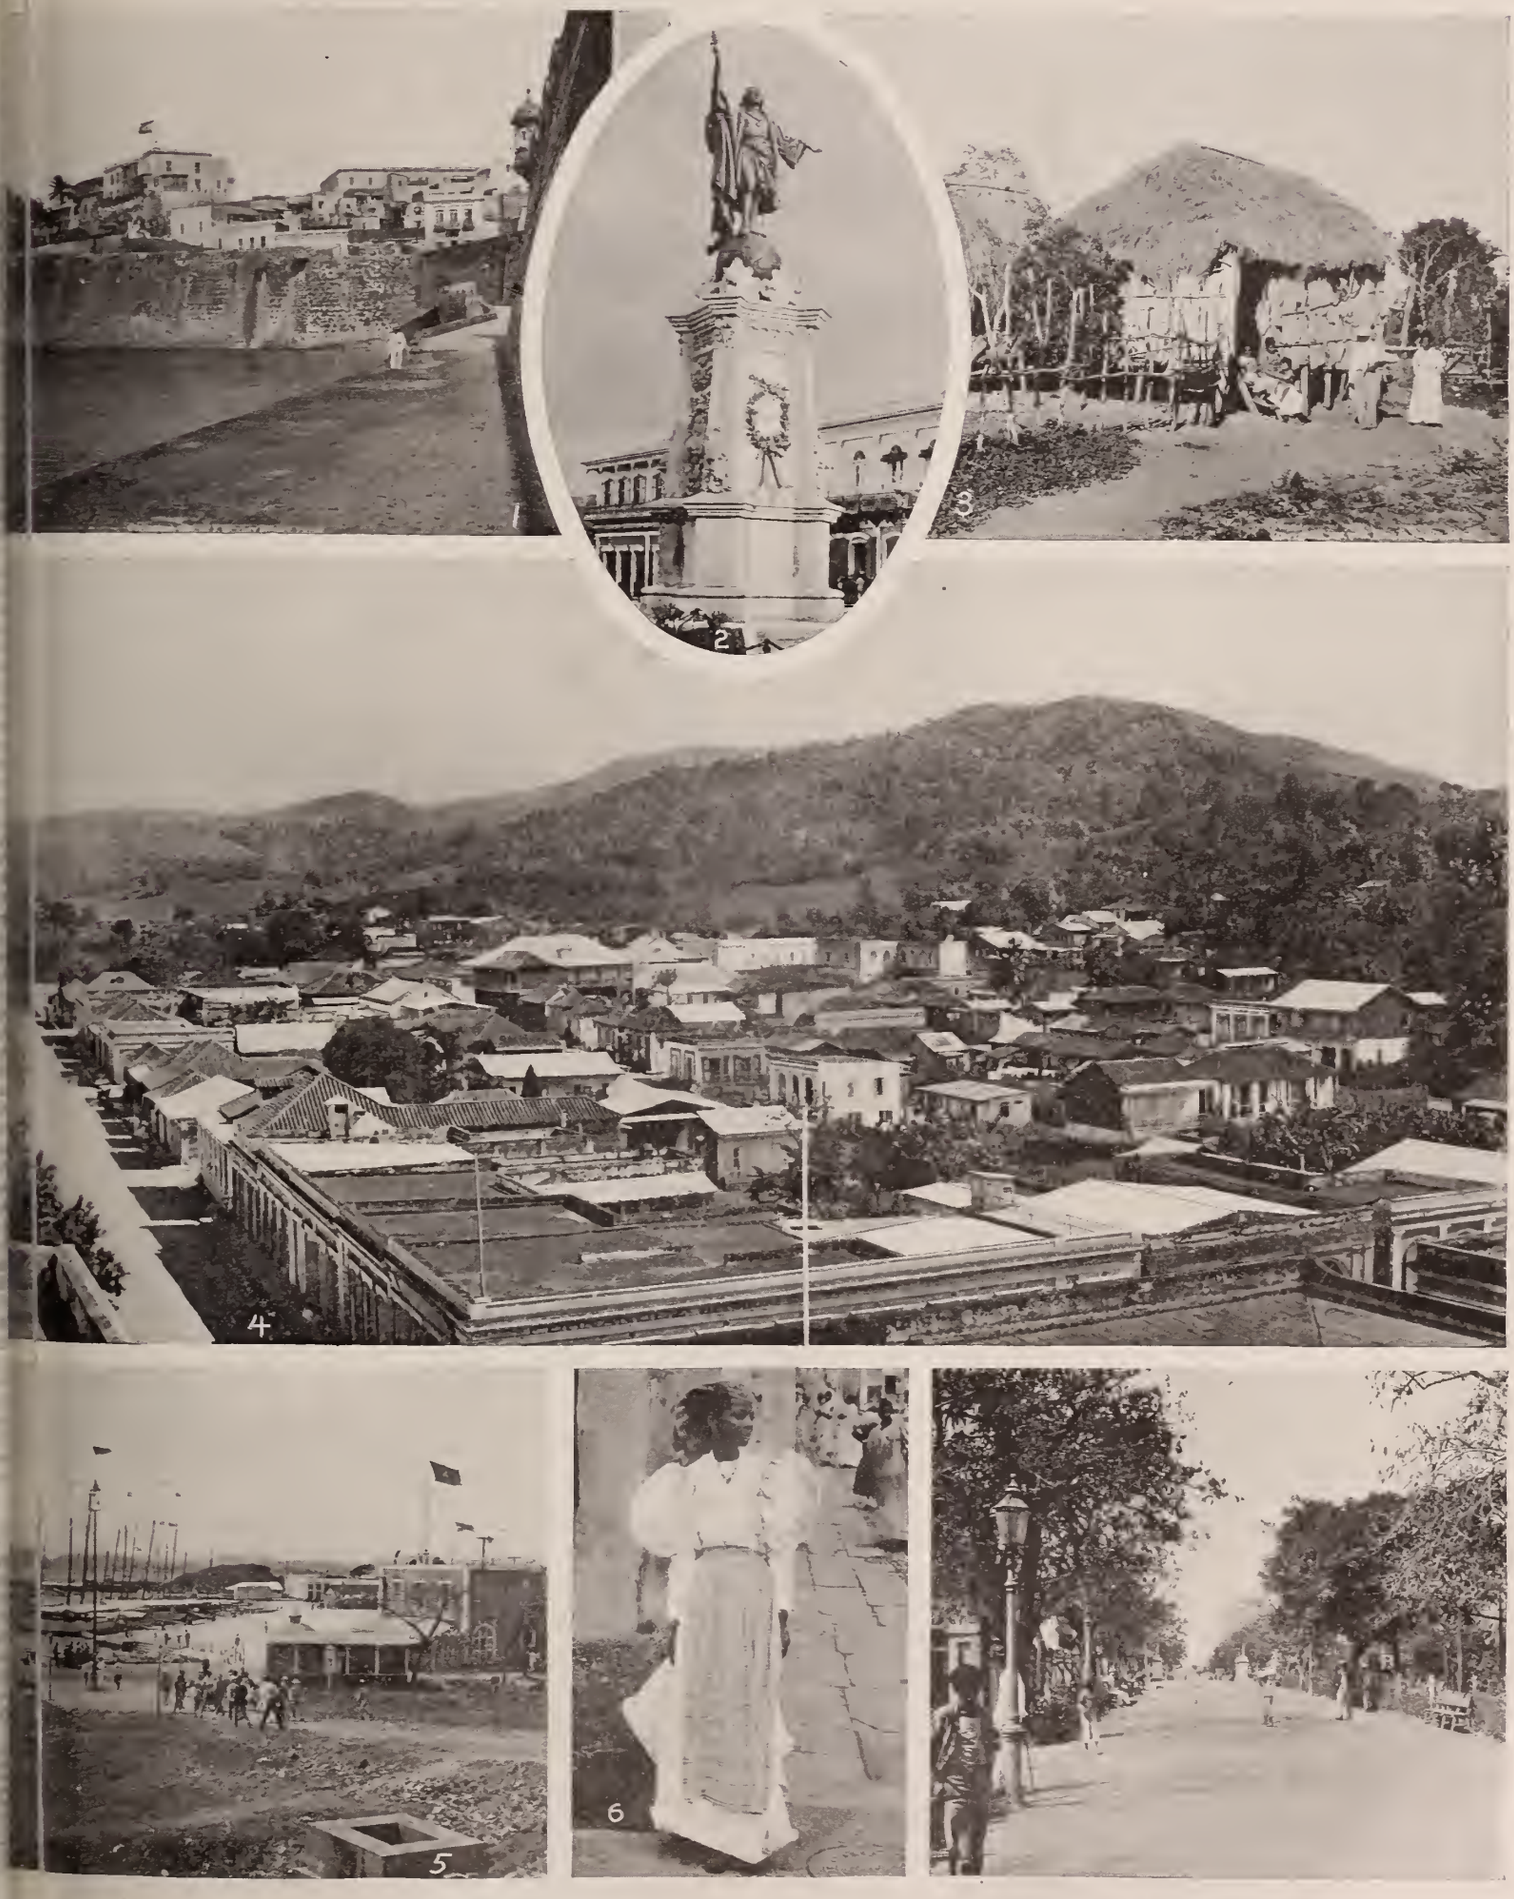
The Moody Gospel Fund

Contributions for the Moody [Gospel] Fund are received by and acknowl[edged] through THE CHRISTIAN HERALD. [All] gifts are applied through Mr. M[oody's] Christian Commission Committee, t[o the] payment of the expenses incident [to the] work: transportation, printing, ten[ts, etc.] None of the workers are salaried. [The] following have been received durin[g the] week:

Prev. ack'd	$1722.76	Tobias, L C
Albright, Mrs E H & dau	1 00	VanNatter, Gerrit
Benedict, C M	2 00	C E D, Westfield	2
Busby, Mrs J	50	B S H, Summit Pt
Dixon, Mrs P D	2 00	M V S W, Thompson
Dixon, Nathaniel	1 00	T A H Johnson, V
Gorham, Mrs B	50	X Y Z, St Joseph
Berry, Mrs C S	1 00	E H, Greene
McCartney, Chas E	25	Friend, Westover	1
Michael, C P	1 00	Chester Co Friend	2
Packer, Mrs L E	1 00	Readers, Port Pen	1
Plimpton, Lilian	2 00	I H S
Rear, Edwin	1 00	Y P S C E, Pleasa[nt]	2
Robinson, Rev Jas	50	Prairie
Smith, Mrs C	1 00	Belgrade Cong S[S]	1
Stauffer, Mrs E H	75	Total	$1741

All contributions will be acknowl[edged] in these columns.

Scenes in Our New Colony of Porto Rico.



PORTO RICO AND ITS PEOPLE—PHOTOGRAPHED FOR "THE CHRISTIAN HERALD."

1. Fortified Sea Wall of San Juan.—2. Columbus Statue. Mayaguez.—3. Native Huts near SanJuan.—4. General View of Mayaguez.—5. Quay and Custom House, San Juan.—6. A Porto Rican Girl.—7. "Princess Promenade," San Juan.

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. De Witt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE. G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office of New York, as Second-class Matter

The Surrender of Santiago.

A SURRENDER is a confession of inability longer to contest. It takes moral courage to make a surrender. The bravest act a lost soul ever does is to say, "Here Lord, I give myself away." He lays down his arms and submits to what is just and mighty. It has cost the Spaniard more to surrender Santiago than to resist the bombardment of our great guns. The scheme of taking these captives of war back to Spain is admirable. Instead of a prison-house or a prison stockade, the sight of their dear ones and their own native soil! We get them home again on their honor as soldiers, not to take up arms again in this war. Somehow, their honor as soldiers seems to mean more than their honor as Spaniards.

The great Admiral Cervera, we have been taught, we can trust. And we delight to honor him. He knows how to appreciate American heroism and American tenderness and charity. This treatment of the common soldier conquered, may yet reveal to the Spanish nation, if they can get at the truth, how great and noble a nation we are, and what was the spirit which actuated us, when we determined to make Cuba free. God helping us, we will make Spain free, also.

Restless Thoughts.

NOTHING bothers the Christian more than the imperfection of his prayers. His getting down on his knees seems to be the signal for his thoughts to fly every whither. While praying about one thing he is thinking about another. Could you keep your mind ten minutes on one supplication? I never could. While you are praying, your store comes in, your kitchen comes, your losses and gains come in. The minister spreads his hands for prayer, and you put your head on the back of the pew in front, and travel round the world within five minutes.

A brother rises in prayer-meeting to lead in supplication. After he has begun the door slams, and you peep through your fingers to see who is coming in. You say to yourself, "What a finely expressed prayer," or "What a blundering specimen! But how long he keeps on! Wish he would stop! He prays for the world's conversion. I wonder how much he gives for it? There! I don't think I turned the gas down in the parlor. Wonder if Bridget has gone home yet? Wonder if they have thought to take the cake out of the oven?" or "What a fool I was to put my name on the back of that note! Ought to have sold those goods for cash, and not on credit!" And so you go on, thinking over one thing after another until the gentleman says "Amen!" and you lift up your head saying, "There! I haven't prayed a bit. I am not a Christian." Yes, you are, if you have resisted the tendency. Christ knows how much you have resisted, and how thoroughly we are diseased of sin, and he will pick out the one earnest petition from the rubbish and answer it. To the very depth of his nature, he sympathizes with the infirmities of our prayers.

The Yellow Fever Immunes.

ONE of the perils of undertaking for Cuba was the pestilence that walketh in darkness. At Jersey City, on the train, we saw twenty boys in blue on their way to Santiago to nurse our sick heroes. This pestilence had done its worst on them in Memphis, and now they were ready for the ranks in that new battle at the front, on the island of Cuba.

We greeted them as they stood around eating their breakfast, as though they were angels of mercy. How many a life hangs upon their tender and faithful ministrations. A few years ago the government was ministering help to the South against this very scourge, and now the boys of the South clad in the country's blue, report for duty, as a suitable return. God bless the brave sons of the South as they tread the corridors of the hospital at Santiago!

Midsummer Weariness.

THERE are two ways of taking warm days. We can fret and fume and complain of the heat, look at the thermometer twenty times a day and gaze in despair from the blistering pavement to the burning sky. We can be as miserable as we please, and all the palm-leaf fans in the world will fail to cool our unhappy tempers. On the other hand we can accept the situation. We can avail ourselves of all the comfort there may be about us, and we can quietly go through our business, giving no thought, and certainly no aggrieved thought, to the oppressive heat.

It would be very pleasant, of course, to spend midsummer days rocking in a boat, with the cool salt spray blowing in our faces, or swinging in a hammock, lulled by the cradling murmur of the wind among the oaks. But we must follow our duty-path, and if it keeps us in a close office, or in a closer kitchen, or stitching at a machine, we shall make matters worse rather than better by continual self-moaning.

It is a glorious thing to have got where we can stand on the Apostle's platform, and say from the heart, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." In the end, a child of God is sure to conquer circumstances, and it is a shame that any one, with infinite possibilities, should let himself be conquered by any infelicities of passing life.

These warm days are so affluent, so abounding in vitality—though they drain us a little of our vital force, it is only to give it back by and by in larger measure. They are so rich in beauty. How many summer-dressed hill-sides, just now, are like roseate walls, carved in the coralline clusters of the laurel, from top to bottom, over all their dimpling slopes. How many lovely lakes laugh in the morning, under the white and golden glory of the lilies. How green and graceful are the ferns that grow in shadowy places. How sweet the songs of birds, poured out through the soft expectancy of the dawn. In the city parks, how velvety are lawns and swards, close-clipped and resting the eye with their verdure. And the dear little city gardens, so tenderly loved and cared for, how burdened they are with fuchsias, and heliotropes, and delicate mignonnette, and lavish petunia, to say nothing of the growing corn, and the ripening fruit, and buckwheat, and the rye, what, on the score of the beautiful alone, should we do without the long warm days?

If Havana Falls Without a Shot.

GOD is fighting our battles for us. And one of his methods is to array the weak against the mighty; and give to the weak the victory; to set the forces of nature and the progress of events against armaments of war, and thus show that he is the God of battles. What can Blanco do against Dewey at Manila, or Shafter at Santiago? But, these are our advance movements toward Havana. The analogy is not perfect. But, we believe, it may yet appear, that when Havana falls, it will be as Jericho fell, without bloodshed. One after another of Spain's reliances have failed. The bluster of her fleets of war is silenced forever. She has tested the strength and skill of her navy against America's resources and valor, and has been found wanting. If we are patient and follow the leading of flame which is before us, we believe the consummation will be consistent with the opening of the drama.

Hamlet and His Father's Ghost.

HAMLET was called upon to vindicate his dead father. The task was on him because he was Hamlet. If he failed, it was not because he did not see his duty. The duty was too hard for him; and he broke down under it. This is what he meant in the lines:—

"The time is out of joint, O cursed spite,
That ever I was born to set it right."

But this nation is not in such a plight. These are latter-day things. How do we know it will not be possible to make Christian all the islands of the seas before the Twentieth Century is one quarter gone? If we can show that our Christianity is genuine, as is our civilization; is not one of bull-fights and assassins and blood; if we can take our commerce and our civil institutions along with a genuine Christianity to these islands, and then lift up the cross among the nations, with all the promises of God in our favor, with all the powers of the world to come in alliance with us, why should we not succeed?

We have done wonderful things. Why should we not expect to do greater things in the times to come? If God be for us, who can be against us?

WAR SOUVENIR SPOONS

For the Wives of Pastors.

TO every pastor's wife who will send the names of twenty-five adult members of her husband's church—no two being members of the same family—with full post office addresses, legibly written on one side of the paper only, and ten cents in cash we will send, postage prepaid, two beautiful, full-size, coin-silver plate, war souvenir spoons, guaranteed A1.

For fifty names and 20c. in cash, we will send four spoons, and for seventy-five names and 25c. in cash, we will send the entire set of six spoons.

These are not toys, but genuine, serviceable full-size teaspoons, nearly six inches in length. Each spoon has in relief on the handle a bust picture and in the bowl a design appropriate to the portrait as follows:

Spoon 1—Pres. McKinley and the American Flag.
Spoon 2—Mrs. McKinley and the White House.
Spoon 3—Admiral Dewey and the "Olympia."
Spoon 4—Gen. Miles and Chickamauga Camp.
Spoon 5—Captain Sigsbee and the "Maine."
Spoon 6—General Lee and Morro Castle.

When less than the whole six are taken the selection must be left to us to insure a uniform demand for the above designs. Do not send any other communication in the same envelope, and write in the left-hand corner of the envelope the words "For the Million Edition."

Our readers are requested to kindly direct the attention of their pastor's wife to this extraordinary proposition and thus aid us in our efforts to introduce THE CHRISTIAN HERALD into a million new homes.

BRIEF NOTES.

Evangelist Henry J. Pierson, 38 K[illegible]ney Street, Newark, N. J., will be pleased to [illegible] mail from a few Gospel singers (Christian [illegible] men), relative to co-operating in evangelist [illegible]

It would be well for Americans intending [illegible] emigrate to the Philippines to acquaint themselves [illegible] with the industrial conditions before [illegible] Wages of farm laborers are about five cents [illegible] and they board themselves.

This year the autumnal missionary [illegible] of the English Baptists will be held in Nottingham [illegible] where in May, 1792, William Carey delivered [illegible] mighty sermon, which led to the formation [illegible] English Baptist Missionary Society.

Bishop Thoburn is anxious to get [illegible] in Manila. Now is the time, he says, to [illegible] strong and permanent foothold there. According [illegible] to the boundaries established by the General [illegible] ference, the Philippines are included in [illegible] Thoburn's diocese.

Boston has established a municipal [illegible] camp for boys on an island in the harbor. [illegible] ments have been made for accommodating [illegible] each week until the public schools open. [illegible] boy will have a full seven days of camp life [illegible] its freedom and its sports.

The Free Churches of Bohemia, with [illegible] single American missionary on the ground [illegible] received annually not less than one hundred [illegible] to membership, and are sending also the[illegible] bers to aid in the evangelization of their [illegible] men who have emigrated to America.

Notwithstanding the war, the work of [illegible] pastors, evangelists and teachers goes on [illegible] as before, and although the principal school [illegible] American Board has been transferred from [illegible] Sebastian across the border into France, [illegible] and scholars have consented to the transfer.

Much excitement has been caused [illegible] hore, India, by the conversion to Christianity [illegible] Mohammedan girl, member of a prominent [illegible] As she was of age her people could not [illegible] to retract, but for some time there was dan[illegible] an outbreak against the Christians.

The Rev. W. Holman Bentley, of the [illegible] glish Baptist Mission on the Congo, has been [illegible] created by the King of the Belgians a Chevalier [illegible] the Royal Order of the Lion, in recognition [illegible] successful literary labors in connection with [illegible] languages used by the tribes of the Congo Free [illegible] State.

The Federation of Churches and Christian [illegible] Workers in New York City now has four agents [illegible] officered and organized for the work in the [illegible] The Federation is making a house-to-house [illegible] vestigation with a view to ascertain church [illegible] ance and other facts of value relating to the [illegible] ous habits of the population.

The Seventh Council of the Presbyterian [illegible] and Reformed Alliance is to meet at Washington [illegible] in September or October of next year. Nine [illegible] ferent churches, national or denominational, [illegible] pose its constituency, which includes two [illegible] million people scattered over five continents [illegible] millions of these are in the United States, [illegible] whom 1,862,505 are communicants.

Two hundred and eighteen Testaments [illegible] were presented to as many children on June [illegible] 13, who had professed conversion at the [illegible] listic services of Rev. E. P. Hammond, at Har[illegible] lem Presbyterian Church, 116th street, New [illegible] City, Rev. Dr. Patterson, pastor. Mr. [illegible] Hopkins read a letter to the children from [illegible] Hammond, urging them to always "Cling to [illegible]

Chestnut Hill Church, Philadelphia, has [illegible] printed a sketch of its sixty-three years of [illegible] able history, Pastor R. M. Hunsicker the [illegible] author. The church is the oldest in [illegible] town, antedating the First Church of [illegible] town by twenty years. There were then only [illegible] teen Baptist churches in the city and county. The [illegible] church has had twelve pastors, the first [illegible] Robert T. Young, serving for twenty-five years.

The fourteenth international conference of [illegible] the Young Men's Christian Association will [illegible] at Basle, Switzerland, in July. The city will [illegible] visitors from all parts of the world a splendid [illegible] come. The proceedings were interpreted in [illegible] English, French and German language. The [illegible] United States sent twenty-three representatives [illegible] Special work on behalf of the soldiers will [illegible] the subjects discussed. The next conference will [illegible] be held at Christiania, Norway.

M. Le Lacheur, a missionary of the Christian [illegible] tian Alliance, is the possessor of a unique [illegible] sued by the chief ruler of Thibet. The [illegible] mits Mr. Le Lacheur to visit any part of [illegible] with the exception of the sacred city of [illegible] and commends him to the hospitality and [illegible] of the officials whom he may meet. It closes [illegible] the peculiarly Oriental statement: "This [illegible] tains one drop of gold." The meaning of [illegible] words is a mystery, though they probably [illegible] the importance of the document, and the [illegible] with which it should be regarded.

The New York State Young Men's Christian [illegible] tian Association is to begin in September [illegible] important advance in Bible study methods [illegible] view to a comprehensive grasp of the Scriptures [illegible] the development of Christian character, in [illegible] personal work and the winning of unconverted [illegible] It is the intention to have uniform lessons, [illegible] methods pursued in all associations of the [illegible] and to employ, as far as practical, experienced [illegible] instructors to supervise the work. The [illegible] day in September has been fixed upon. [illegible] rally day. Two terms per year have been [illegible] for, beginning in October and ending [illegible] with a holiday recess.

According to Roman Catholic authorities [illegible] that church does not appear to be holding [illegible] in Great Britain. The Propaganda has just [illegible] its "Annuary of Catholic Missions," in which [illegible] stated that the Romanists of Great Britain [illegible] which is meant, apparently, the United Kingdom [illegible] have increased during the past two years to the [illegible] tent of 17,203, bringing the total number [illegible] 959. It is stated in the Westminster Gazette [illegible] in 1841, the Romanists of the United Kingdom [illegible] numbered 7,000,000, or 26 per cent. of the [illegible] population. In 1891, they had dropped to 4,500,000 [illegible] or 16 per cent. The figures for the present [illegible] as given by the "Annuary," show a still [illegible] decline. Emigration from Ireland may partly [illegible] explain these figures.

King Menelik's Messengers.

THE distinguished reception accorded by President Faure to the envoys sent by the Negus Menelik of Abyssinia shows that the great powers of Europe have a wholesome respect for the only African empire which has successfully repulsed European invaders. Abyssinia is the only country in Africa that enjoys absolute independence—for that of Morocco is more nominal than real. It is a highly interesting country for other reasons. Its people claim to be of Jewish ancestry, and the reigning sovereign professes to be a descendant of the Queen of Sheba, whose visit to King Solomon is related in the Bible. These claims are in some degree substantiated by the fact that the Abyssinians observe some mosaic laws to a certain extent. Their religion is different, both as to doctrine and practise, from the Roman and Greek churches, and missionaries have labored among them for many years. The chief obstacles to reform are the low grade of morality prevalent among the people, and the strong hold which a corrupt and corrupting ecclesiastical system has obtained upon them, during over thirteen hundred years since their partial conversion to the Christian faith. The Abyssinians have amply proved, however, that they possess valuable qualities of heart and mind, and it is worthy of note that, low and corrupt as their form of Christianity may be, it has tended to make and keep them superior to other African races.

The ambassadors from Menelik are three in number, all important chiefs, and are followed by a numerous train of followers. Prince Woldie is described as a fine old, with a very majestic presence. His colleagues are younger, and their white pantaloons, their vests of black cloth of gold, and their gemmed turbans deeries bewilder the beholders. The present Faure's words of welcome were kindly but formal, but the very presence of these ambassadors from Ethiopia in one of the leading courts of Europe may mean the beginning of triumph for the gospel and civilization in that land of mystery beyond the southern bounds of Egypt. Abyssinia has heretofore been a very unproductive field for missionary effort. Menelik is said to be a monarch of great intelligence, and he cannot fail to see that Protestant Christianity goes hand in hand with progress in the civilized nations of the world. It would be a signal victory indeed to win Ethiopia to Christ.

Princes shall come out of Egypt; Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands unto God (Ps. 68:31).

The Velocity of Thought.

"What is the speed of thought?" is the question which Professor Kichet has been asking himself and has endeavored to answer by experiment. He has concluded that it takes about one-eleventh of a second to think out each note of a musical scale. The reason, then, people bend their heads, he says, to catch each minute sounds that the smallest intervals of time can be much better distinguished with the ear than with both. The separations of two clicks of a revolving cogwheel were noted by one observer when they did not exceed sixty to the second, but when using both ears he could distinguish them when they occurred more than fifteen times a second. The sharp sound of the electric spark from an induction coil was distinguished with one ear when the rate was as high as three hundred to the second. We also hear more rapidly than we can count. If a clock ticking movement runs quicker than that the second, we can count four ticks while with twenty to the second we can count only two of them. It would seem, however, that the keenness of hearing, however perfect, is slight as compared with the power of thought to travel thousands of miles in a second, and within a few moments of time to bring before the mind a complex panorama of imaginary events, which would have involved years of transaction. The lightning itself does not equal the swiftness of human thought, which, whatever our surroundings, can bring us anywhere we want, even to heaven itself. Science is straining to penetrate these mysteries of mind and matter; and the more it discovers, the more it illustrates the wonders of the Divine handiwork in man.

For, lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, the Lord, the God of Hosts, is his name (Amos 4:13).

Submarine Mines Kill Fish.

All danger of warships entering Long Island Sound having passed away with the destruction of Cervera's fleet at Santiago, the mines which had been laid to protect the Sound, were not only unnecessary, but a menace to our own craft. It was therefore decided to explode them. A few days ago Sergeant Carroll, on a tug boat bearing a red flag, cruised around Willets Point, where seven mines were laid, and warned all craft away. A raft laden with oil casks was then anchored over the mines. When all was in readiness, Sergeant Schuyler, who was in charge of the battery, the wires from which connected with the mines, touched the button. About ten seconds elapsed, and then the water seemed to quiver. A column shot up two hundred feet into the air, and the raft was shattered to atoms. The force of the explosion was terrific, showing what would have happened had one of the enemy's ships been over the place when it occurred. As it was, the only sufferers were the fishes that were in the vicinity, which were killed in large numbers. The police in the patrol launch and some young people in boats appeared to have anticipated this result, for they had equipped themselves with cap nets, with which they hauled in the fish that had been killed. The explosion must have provided good fish-suppers for many parties that evening. It is gratifying to think that the mines, which might have caused the destruction of so many lives, even though they would have been the lives of enemies, had no other result than to provide food for peaceable people. It was like the riddle that Samson set for the Philistines:

Out of the eater came forth meat, and out of the strong came forth sweetness (Judges 14:14).

Glad to Join Us.

The mails from Honolulu, just received, report a wonderful manifestation of enthusiasm over the news that the Hawaiian Islands have become part of the United States. On July 13, the steamship Coptic reached Honolulu bearing the tidings that our Congress had ratified the annexation. Long before the Coptic reached her dock the people learned the tidings she was bringing, as she signalled her news to the Mohican which was lying in Hawaiian waters. The steamer was welcomed by the whistles of mills, foundries and vessels in the harbor; fireworks were sent up and a salute of a hundred guns was fired from the Executive grounds. A silver cup was presented to Capt. Sealby of the Coptic by the citizens of Honolulu. It bore an inscription stating that it was given to him as the bearer of the good news to Honolulu. It may be hoped that our government of this new possession will be so pure and righteous that the people will continue to rejoice in the new order and be attracted to the religion which we profess. So the people may not only glory in their connection with us but rejoice in a common membership with us in the kingdom of Christ.

THE AMBASSADORS FROM ABYSSINIA TO FRANCE.

He shall not fail nor be discouraged till he have set judgment in the earth; and the isles shall wait for his law (Isa 42:4).

Ten Days Lost.

An interesting personal reminiscence of the late Mr. Gladstone is related by Mr. George W. Smalley in the current number of Harper's Magazine. Mr. Smalley met the statesman at the house of a friend and questioned him about an accident that had happened to him. He had missed his footing in descending a flight of stone stairs and had fallen striking his head on the edge of a step with some violence. It made an ugly wound which his physician Sir Andrew Clark had to sew up. Mr. Gladstone had quite recovered when Mr. Smalley met him. He said: "The cut was nothing but I suppose Clark was afraid there might be a slight concussion of the brain. He kept me in bed ten days. That I could endure; but he forbade me to read, he forbade me to talk, he forbade me to think; I was to be a mere animal till he gave me leave to be myself. They are the worst ten days of my life. Never before was I asked to force my brain to be torpid while I was awake. I have not forgiven Sir Andrew. There are ten days gone out of my life—and the number of my days is counted." The remark was the pathetic expression of a man nearing the close of his life, but it is true of all of us. Pity it is that so few realize it and make the best use of them.

So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom (Ps. 90:12).

An Antidote to Snake Venom.

A paper read recently by Dr G. Langmann at the New York Academy of Medicine, has aroused widespread interest. It described the experiments he has been making for several months past with poisonous snakes which have been sent to him from all parts of the United States in response to advertisements. Diamond-back snakes from Florida, banded rattlesnakes from Connecticut, copperheads from New Jersey and many other deadly kinds have been sent to the doctor's laboratory. He and his assistants have succeeded in extracting venom from all of them. The method was to lay a snake on the operating table and secure its neck firmly so that it could not turn its head. A funnel was then fixed over its mouth communicating with a bottle. In a few moments the snake finding its movements restricted becomes angry and emits a quantity of its poison from its fangs. This is caught by the funnel and carried to the bottle. The snake is restored to its case and the doctor analyzes the poison at his leisure. Proceeding on the same principle as that adopted by Dr. Calmette of Paris to secure antitoxine for diphtheria, Dr. Langmann has produced an antidote to snake poison, which, when he has fully developed it, he believes will prove infallible. If his confidence is justified, there will be many in our own land and a much greater multitude in India and other lands who will be saved from death from snake-bite by his means and he will be counted a benefactor of mankind. Every one who has the misfortune to be bitten by a deadly snake will resort to it and none will act as do those who being poisoned by the deadly venom of sin, neglect the one infallible remedy which God has provided.

As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life (John 3:14).

Saved the Child.

A little girl was saved from a terrible death in Williamsburg, N. Y., last week by the presence of mind of a bystander. The child was running ahead of her mother and turning around every few yards to wait for her. When she came to the corner of the street where she lived, she ran to the middle of the roadway and stood there waiting for her mother. A trolley car turned the corner at that moment and the gripman caught sight of the child and tried to stop his car. But the momentum was too great and the car was within a foot of her, when a man who was waiting for the car to pass, saw her and reaching over, caught her up and threw her into the big fender in front of the car. But in doing so, he lost his balance and fell in front of the car. He was dragged nearly six yards before the car was stopped and when they pushed the car back and released him, he was covered with blood from cuts and was so badly bruised that he was sent to a hospital. He was unconscious, but soon came to himself in the hospital. His first words were an inquiry whether the child was safe. He was told that it was unhurt and when he learned that fact, he cheerfully submitted to have his own injuries dressed. He knew he had not suffered in vain and to a noble self-sacrificing soul that is a consolation. The prophet intimated that even Christ would be satisfied when he saw souls saved through his suffering and death.

He shall see of the travail of his soul and shall be satisfied (Isa 53:11).

The Sunday School

NAAMAN HEALED.

S. S. Lesson for Aug. 21. II. Kings 5: 1-14. Golden Text, Jer. 17: 14.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

AS in the days of Eli, the great Jehovah found a child more capable of understanding him than even the high-priest Eli, so now he must use another child to reveal the greatness of Israel's God in the land of Syria, which his own people had not learned to understand. When the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together . . . A little child shall lead them (Isa. 11: 6). God can do much through a little child (Matt. 18: 1-4). His little children are the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. How little the Israelitish maiden thought, when in her simplicity she told Naaman's wife about Israel's prophets and Israel's God, that her simple words were to put the courts of two kings in motion, and that through them Jehovah would instruct his own people, and that in the ages to come she would become in God's hand a witness to him, through the Scripture, to all the nations of the world!

But while God used the little maid and Naaman also, he had also thoughts of mercy for the instruments he used; the great man must be brought down, the humble child must be exalted. And Israel must learn, and the church in all time must learn that "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble" (I. Peter 5: 5). Naaman must be brought down, and Jehoram, king of Israel, must be humbled, and Elisha and the little maid must be lifted up. Naaman was "a great man with his master," but he must become a nobody, quite on a level with other men, and other leprous men, too, if he was to be healed by the living and the true God. Elisha was not permitted to minister to his pride, and when he came in state with his horses and his carriages to the door of Elisha's house, there was nothing either in his renown as a warrior, nor yet in the splendor of his cortege which could make the smallest impression on God's prophet. Elisha had seen "the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof;" he had seen Elijah ascend up into heaven, and he ceased to have an eye for earthly glory.

And the king of Israel! God had sought after Jehoram, as he had sought after Ahab. Already Jehoram had experienced the deliverance of the Lord in his war against Moab (II. Kings 3), but he had never yielded himself up to the Lord God of Israel. Now an opportunity presented itself. Syria was the enemy of Israel but at this time there was peace between the two nations, and the great Naaman came with a message from the king of Syria. It was an unusual mission—a letter which ran thus, "When this letter is come unto thee, behold I have sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy." A startling demand, indeed! But was there no God in Israel, no prophet of the Lord to whom Jehoram might have directed the leprous general whom his enemy, the king of Syria, had sent to him? It was a humiliation for the king of Syria to ask any favor of Jehoram. What an opportunity for the king of Israel to confess his own impotence and to introduce the heathen nobleman to the prophet of the Lord! But Naaman also must be humbled. God is not to be approached from above. Every one of us must come down to get near to God, down as low as the cross of Jesus, where we find ourselves judged, condemned, nothing worth. His first repulse was from the king. It was no light thing for this proud general to ask a favor, and when he had done so to be rudely repulsed. And had not Elisha interfered, and sent word to the king of Israel, "Let him come now to me and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel," he might have returned at once, utterly disgusted, to his own land. But the lack of deference to his high position, and the utter disregard of his august personality, exasperated him to the utmost. Who was this prophet that he should prescribe to so great a man a course of treatment so humbling, so almost ridiculous? Who was this prophet that he should send a simple message by his servant without taking the trouble even to salute a man of his position and renown? It was too much. Wounded pride and bitter disappointment that had not turned out as he expected got the better of him. Oh how many there are who give the rein to their imagination as to how God will act in such and such a situation, and because God does not work in the line of their thoughts they believe he has not answered prayer at all. God works on his own lines: it is not for us to dictate or to prescribe for him. "He doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth, and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?" (Dan. 4: 35).

THE RIVER BARRADA (THE ANCIENT ABANA) OF DAMASCUS.

Another very humbling lesson Naaman was to learn from his servants. They not having the same weight of personal dignity to maintain, could not perceive the reasonableness of their master sparing his pride at the expense of continuing in his terrible state of disease and suffering. They knew the character of their master, and said to him, "My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldst thou not have done it? How much rather then when he saith to thee, Wash and be clean?" O how many a sinner is willing to do some great thing! How many a child of God is ready at any time to do great things which shall draw attention to them, and bring credit to them! But to do that which shall abase ourselves and bring honor to God needs grace which is not in man, and which proceeds from God only.

God met the proud man and gave him grace to listen to his servants. He left his chariot of state laid aside his gorgeous garments, and went down into the Jordan, a miserable, unclean leper. But even then he must dip seven times "according to the saying of the man of God." Nothing must be dispensed with; he must know that there can be no trifling with Israel's God. And there obedient to the Word of God, Jehovah met him; and life and health came back, while pride and leprosy fell slain together. With a broken heart and humbled spirit the once proud man returned to the man of God to give God glory, and no longer desired that the prophet should stand before him; he "stood before Elisha." God had conquered. "Behold now," he said, "I know that there is no God in all the earth but in Israel."

Naaman was humbled, but God was exalted. He had triumphed. The spirit of the proud Naaman had failed before him (Isa. 47: 16), and he had taken his place in the man's life. It had been worth Naaman's while to listen to the little slave girl who brought the message of Israel's prophet. The journey into the despised land was worth while, the successive blows to his proud spirit from the king, the prophet and the Word of God, had been worth while, for Naaman had met with God, and the spirit being brought into its true relation and the soul of the man having bowed down before God, the healing of the body followed as a matter of course.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

NAAMAN'S story, singularly beautiful and true to life, is another of the incidents incorporated by the writer of the Kings from some record of the Sons of the Prophets. It is remarkable that Josephus, who mentions Naaman as the man who slew Ahab, does not relate this story of his cure, which we should have thought would have made a sensation throughout Syria and Israel. The great captain was probably in the earliest stage of the disease, otherwise he would not have been able to command in the Syrian army. It may be that the discovery of the white place on one of his limbs may have only just been made. He would be horrified to see it, knowing how surely it would spread until his whole body was covered. In the desolation that the discovery would cause in his household and in the court, when it was known that the valued officer was attacked by the dread disease, the remark of the child would be eagerly passed from lip to lip, until it reached the king. There had been times when communication between Syria and Israel would have been dangerous, but at this time Benhadad of Syria was, ostensibly at least, on good terms with Jehoram, of Israel, and could ask a favor, for which he was willing to pay. Naaman, therefore, was sent with a magnificent present and the request that Jehoram would have him cured.

That thou mayest recover him. The king was powerful: he was the head of the nation; he could make a man a captain or a general; but this was one thing he could not do. There was, even down to modern times, a superstition in Europe that scrofula, one of the most loathsome and fatal diseases, could be healed by the touch of a king. It came to be popularly known on this account as "the king's evil," and it is still so called by ignorant people in country districts. One sufferer from the disease came with his father and mother to George III., of England, beseeching the king to give him the healing touch which would make him well. George, with all his faults, was kind, but knew that there was no healing in his touch. He would not refuse the poor sufferer the boon he craved. He laid his hand on the lad's head with the ejaculation: "God give thee better health and more sense." There was evidently need of both. The king of Israel could not get out of his difficulty so easily.

He rent his clothes. The customary sign of mourning and desolation. He felt sure that when Naaman went ba to Syria uncured, Benhadad, believing at Jehoram could cure him, but would pt, would make war upon him. He doe of seem to have thought of Elisha, th zh he knew him as a servant of God an ad consulted him in a difficulty (II. I ss 3: 11-16). Kings are apt to leave od and his servants out of their calcula ns when they are in difficulties, yet the re enough deliverances on record in hi ry and especially in the history of Isra have taught them better. There w time in the history of England wh seemed lost. The king of Spain had out a navy which he had fair reas call "Invincible." It certainly se able to annihilate the English flee to land an army on the English s that would vastly outnumber Eliza forces. Protestantism seemed to be ed. Nothing short of a miracle ently could save the country. But was offered to God, and the miracl worked. The storm which disperse Armada and left the wrecks an easy to Drake was God's answer to the de men who put their trust in him.

He seeketh a quarrel. Jehoram's ence was quite natural. He could ably remember how much his f Ahab, suffered at the hands of this gant, quarrelsome king. Benhada been thoroughly beaten, but he was stronger than Jehoram, and might ious to retrieve the disaster and re his prestige. Therefore he, as Je thought, made a demand with wh would be impossible to comply. Th have a legend of a crafty trick th played upon them at an Oriental u The Sultan, they say, had a favorit of whose intelligence he was very An enemy of the Jews told the Sult the Jews knew how to teach bears t Immediately the Sultan se the chief rabbi and ordered teach his bear to read. The of course, declared he was to do any such thing, wher as the enemy of the Jews ha seen, the Sultan became ang commanded that all the Jew dominions be put to death. month was given them to whether they would save the by teaching his bear to Among the Jews was one r crafty as their enemy. He took the task, and the be committed to his care. H one of his large folio v and carefully laid lines of across a few pages. The he induced to touch it with his and, after a few days' p would follow the lines acr page and even turn the le with the tip of his tongue to g honey on the next leaf. Before of the month, the bear would go the book, turning each leaf in and grumbling as he went if the honey did not yield all he expected passed for reading with the Sult the Jews were delivered.

Thou shalt be clean. There is no cure for the leprosy. When it the victim knows that it will spre eat away his flesh until he dies. of Naaman was therefore mira There was nothing in the waters Jordan that could cure him. But made it a condition that he sho seven times in Jordan to test his ence. When a man has sinned an for cleansing, his obedience has tested in a similar way. A famous tells the story of a man who killed in a moment of passion. He w but escaped punishment. But h science began to punish him, and in every way he could think of to it. He built a monument over his grave, but still he was miserab took his victim's child and suppor educated her, but still he could no peace. He would willingly have la his life if that could have und murder he had committed. Yea year he suffered until it seemed t mind was failing and he would go Happily he became acquainted Christian minister, who pointed Christ. He could not see how Christ could help him, but he w suaded to go to God and ask par Christ's sake. Then for the first t was at peace and learned that th of Christ "cleanseth from all sin."

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

A Quaint Home.

Old-World Peasant Life—Basket Weaving The "Big Sister's" Place in the Home.

OUR picture shows a very happy family, whose presiding genius seems to be the big sister—not so very big, after all, and wearing her honors during mamma's absence. Mamma, perhaps, is working in the fields, or milking the goats, or gathering grapes and figs that will be pressed and dried, and sent off to market. Meanwhile mamma in gorgeous holiday costume, consisting with many buttons and wearing a most wonderful headgear, may be really going to market, carrying eggs, poultry or other produce, and she will doubtless bring back new ribbons and neckerchiefs for the little lassies, and playthings for the babies, all purchased from shops that line the narrow, old-fashioned streets in the quaint town near by. The little lassies meanwhile are busily making straw baskets, which will go to market later; but we see, they deserve the neckerchiefs or the ribbons.

In handindustry they are plying is a very ancient one. It is said that the textile arts of the world had their origin in the interweaving of grasses, reeds and rushes. The shields of warriors, huts and boats—the latter covered with the skins of animals—were used in Britain down to the time of the Roman invasion. The hide and bamboo mat is still employed in Java. We remember that the ark in which Moses' mother placed him when she set him among the flags was made of bulrushes. The monuments of ancient Egypt show agricultural scenes in which excellent baskets full of grain and fruit are borne apart, and very heavy burdens were carried thus. In the wandering life of the Israelites, the basket was a very necessary piece of furniture. "And through a window in a basket was I let down by the wall and escaped his hands," says St. Paul, at the time when the governor of Damascus sought to take him.

The scene in our picture is one that may be found in the peasants' home of almost the Old World country — in Dalmatia, for instance, where "the peasant builds his corn with his own hands, weaves his own cloth, and prepares his own furniture." Even baby's cradle is a product of home industry. In the New World, there are few, if any places, even of our least known interiors, where such crude domestic and agricultural implements are found in use as in various parts of Germany, Switzerland and Russia. The dear old story of home-life and home-love, however, is the same the world over; and the moral of this pretty picture is commended to all the "big sisters" in our families and home circle. The big sisters can help mamma greatly and exercise a wonderful influence in creating the happiness of the home.

Tenderness in Home Life.

Tenderness is one of the fine arts of life," says Rev. F. B. Meyer, "just as it is one of the rarest fruits of the Spirit. It hangs on the topmost boughs, where there is most opportunity for ripening and painting its soft and delicate hue. The tenderness of strong man to weak, a nestling-child: of wife to the worn and overwrought worker: of mother to querulous and complaining babe: of other to the child-sister, who puts her little hand in his: of elder sister to younger brothers and sisters, is a sight that angels linger to look at on their way home to God. The bliss, the music, the fragrance of the home life consist just in this, that tenderness carpets the bare floors with deep piles of velvet.

Caves of Matanzas.

The Caves of Bellmar (Caves of the Beautiful Sea) in Matanzas are said to be as beautiful and wonderful as those of Luray and Mammoth Cave. Among its exquisite things are:

The Virgin's Mantle, a robe of delicately tinted, satiny texture, studded with a myriad glistening brilliants, and in rich, graceful drapery seeming all ready for some fair and pure one to throw about her form. Another fair, airy creation fashioned here by nature is the Lady's Skirt, falling in soft, sheeny folds of snowy muslin, with even a dainty fluted ruffle at the bottom. Then there is the Lake of Dahlias, for all the world like a garden of dahlias that had been flooded with water and then so quickly frozen that not a single yellow bud or petal had had time to curl or droop, and there in all their beauty they lift themselves above the lake. Here are the Three Angels, who sit side by side and weep, their faces veiled, their wings drooping, as our guardian angels might be when we push on in sin and refuse the help they bring. Here, also, is the Vase of Flowers, carved, one feels compelled to believe, out of a single dazzling pearl. One splendor more is a frozen waterfall.

DALMATIAN PEASANT CHILDREN—THE STRAW-PLAITING LESSON.

Master Blue-Stocking.

A certain firm which publishes books for children, hit upon the novel but happy plan of employing a thirteen-year-old boy for manuscript reader. One book which the grown-up readers thought excellent, he cast aside, saying: "I don't think the boys in school would read it." A half hour after he had been given another, they saw him out playing with his dog and that book went back to the writer. When Henry takes a healthly interest in a book, the firm accept it. And this brings to mind the fact that many of our best books for children are stories first told to little ones in the home circle, and by their interest proven to be worthy.

"Thank You, Reagan."

These were the last words of Ensign Bagley. Ordinary words, such as we use many times a day. Yet they were beautiful words—beautiful enough for a brave man not to be ashamed to own for his last. It was, as we remember, on the torpedo boat Winslow, at the engagement off Cardenas; a shot had practically torn through his body; and as he sank over the rail Reagan caught him, lifted him up, and laid him on the deck. The young officer uttered no cry or murmur; knew his last hour had come, opened his eyes, stared at the sailor, and simply said, "Thank you, Reagan." What a tribute to the mother who had trained him to such a spirit of appreciation and courtesy, that it asserted itself in the hour of battle and of sudden death!

Grandma's Game

"Never talk back, dears." The children were quarreling under the window, when grandma just looked out and smiled down on them, with a love that included everybody. "Granny," said Rob, "if I keep my mouth shut, folks'll believe all she's sayin' mean about me." "I think not, dear. I think"—with a loving glance at Rob's sister—"she will be ashamed to go on talking, and will get tired of it, if you don't talk back. How many does it take, Rob, to play ball? Not less than two, does it?" "No'm." "Then, if somebody throws you a ball, and you don't throw it back, the game has to stop, don't it?" "Yes, Grandma." "Well, dear, when people throw pretty words at you, throw them back, but when an ugly word comes, let it alone, and the game must stop. And, Rosy, try to throw pretty balls, dear. It's more fun. You're too nice a little sister and love Rob too well not to throw pretty balls at him; and there, now, I've thrown a pretty ball, children. See which can pick it up first!"

The Restless Child.

"The child that annoys a whole household," writes an authority on child culture, "by his restlessness, by a constant turning from one mischief to another, is the child who has generated a superfluity of nervous force and seeks to relieve it in needed activity. Instead of repressing this natural instinct, find it a legitimate outlet; it is the instinct which is necessary to his physical growth and development; let him go out, run and play, and change his superabundant vitality into increased muscle, good digestion and the thorough circulation of the blood. If he cannot go out, seek in his surroundings something to engage his active mood.

THE HUMBLEBEE.

Burly, dozing humblebee!
Thou in sunny solitude,
Rover of the underwoods,
The green silence dost displace,
With thy mellow, breezy bass.
Hot midsummer's petted drone,
Sweet to me the drowsy tone,
Tells of countless sunny hours,
Long days and solid banks of flowers.
—EMERSON.

THE LITTLE SOLDIER.

"MAMMA, may I be a soldier boy?"
"Yes, my little man;
Shoulder your musket and off to the wars,
Fast as ever you can!"

The musket, friends, was only a broom,
But he gallantly marched around,
And beat the tin-pan valiantly,
With my room for his battle-ground.

"Mamma, there's nothing for me to kill,"
My baby wearily said,
And casting the old broomstick away,
In my lap, laid his curly head.

And then—with fear my heart stood still—
"Dear Christ, be it always so!
Nothing to kill through his whole sweet life,
May my baby ever know!"

Again, "Shall I have him a coward?" Ah, no!
I lifted his golden head:
"Baby, dear, there are things to kill,
Hate, and fear and wrong," I said.

"And it is not men we will kill, dear heart,
When all men fight these foes so dread,
And there'll never again be cause for strife,
'Twixt brother and brother, when sin is dead!"

"Then, mamma, I'll fight every day with sin!
Where can I find it and kill it dead?
And what is my sword?" my little one asked,
"God's Spirit and Word," to my child I said.
—MYRTA LOCKETT AVARY.

Aunt Polly's Reading-room.

AUNT Polly (she was "aunt" to everybody, and just a dear little old maid who took delight in doing the small kindnesses that came within her limited means and opportunity) conceived the idea of enlarging her usefulness to the village by starting a "public library" in it. The village was not given to literary pursuits, and she had more books than anybody else — except the Belfords, who had a great house on the hill, and only lived there during the summer season. Aunt Polly's "library" consisted of three modest book-cases, which occupied the place of honor in her front room; she had a cousin who worked in a city library, whom she had visited frequently, and from whom she had learned something of cataloguing and the card-system: through this cousin she had received frequent gifts of new and pretty books—some of them for children. Aunt Polly had a little money, plenty of time and enthusiasm; she tacked up a set of rules on the walls of her small front room, converted it into a public reading-room, invited in her neighbors, especially the children and half-grown lads and lassies, and busied herself, in spite of discouragements in her self-constituted office and generous charity, till the Belfords became interested in her "eccentric" work and lent a generous hand to its aid. Many a boy who might else have wandered to the grog-shop, spent happy, profitable hours in "Aunt Polly's Public Library."

Work Wisely.

We all know what we think of the servant who sweeps a room and slights the corners, or gets all the dust in one place and puts a mat over it. "Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well," is an old saying. It is chiefly true because to do anything ill, though no one else may know of it, is an injury to character. Whenever we do a thing well, however small the task and however unrecognized by others its accomplishment, we are building up character, and, in the long run, it is character that tells. Teach your little boy and girl that they owe it to themselves to do everything well. This being true, it follows that we should be careful not to do unworthy and unnecessary things. We should select or accept our tasks as carefully and conscientiously as we may that precious time and labor may not be wasted. And we should be as careful and conscientious in imposing tasks on those under our direction for the same reason. Wise house-mother, be just to yourself and your help; do and exact good work, but be careful not to do, or to exact drudgery.

The Other Fellows and Croydon Church.

THE STORY OF A . . . PASTOR'S EXPERIENCE

By Bishop John H. Vincent.

ONE day in the late autumn the pastor of Croydon Church was called upon to attend a funeral service ten miles from town, and his driver on that trip was a seventeen-year-old boy, a hanger-on at the large livery stable of the town, to whom on this occasion was assigned the service of "taking the preacher to the funeral" in a "buggy" with a single seat. Ten miles out and ten miles back gave to Arthur Manning a three hours' opportunity with a representative of a class about which he knew but little—a class of neglected, generally aimless, thriftless fellows, who pick up jobs when they can, waste time over cards, drink a little when they have a chance, consider themselves despised by "society," which in turn they despise, and gradually losing all ambition and self-respect, become tramps or criminals. They have no home-life with its protecting memories, no family fireside, "no perspective, no ambition," as Victor Hugo puts it.

BISHOP J. H. VINCENT.

Manning had been greatly inspired by his success with Albert Lawton and the better class of young men who formed the new, prosperous and promising "club" of Croydon Church. On his ride with Rob Roberts to the funeral he undertook to talk with this new type of young fellows concerning reading and study, church life, business ambitions, society and the cultivation of manly qualities. It was a surprise and a source of sorrow to the minister to find a young man whose only response to his questions and hints was a sort of sullen silence, broken only by grunts or monosyllabic negatives. Manning wanted to be friendly. Rob was persistently, and the preacher thought, obstinately non-communicative. "How many such fellows I wonder," thought Manning, "are there in Croydon?" After a few minutes of silence, the preacher asked about the horse, and Rob told all he knew about him and compared him with other horses in the same livery stable, and a horse the proprietor tried to buy from a man in the village to which they were now bound; and the trouble now existing between the three livery stables in Croydon. Rob showed a great deal of partisan interest in his employer. "The boy is not obstinate," thought Manning. He then told Rob his own experience as a boy with horses, his mishaps, a trick or two he was up to when a boy and some of the blunders he made. He told Rob about the story of "The Black Beauty," and got his promise to read the book if he ever saw it. And he made up his mind that Rob should see it. The boy then told Manning about a horse trainer he once saw and the wonderful things the man could do with a wild and savage horse. Arthur Manning listened. When the time came he, too, talked about the power of training and of self-training, and he was wise enough not to carry his applications too far nor to dwell on them too long, and suddenly asked Rob if while in the village after the funeral they might not together go and look at the horse his employer thought of purchasing. Rob was delighted. And he went to the little church to be sure to be able to go with Mr. Manning after the service. Manning saw Rob there. And while he spoke about the dead man he spoke to the living boy, and one or two things he said Rob never forgot.

After the service, and before they started back to Croydon, Manning went with Rob to inspect the horse. On the way home, the driver was communicative. He told his story—mother dying when he was five years old—faint memory of hand on his head and words of advice, father married again, no place for him at home, nobody cared for him, he cared for nobody, never went to church. Clerks and young fellows at school too "stuck up" even to speak to him; fellows he was with were drivers and stable boys and truckmen and railroad brakemen "and mostly fellows that don't work;" he was accustomed to swear and hear oaths, told stories he didn't "dare repeat to a minister," played cards, gambled, went to low theatres and other hard places; a good many fellows of the same sort, didn't go to Y. M. C. A., "the chaps there too religious and stuck up;" didn't read anything but stories about adventure and tramp travel and hard living and "all that sort of thing." Nobody ever spoke to him except to give him orders. Before they reached Croydon, Rob Roberts heard some words he sorely needed. And they were spoken so simply and tenderly, and in a way so friendly, that the boy in leaving Mr. Manning promised that he would "go to church."

When Croydon Club came together the next time, twelve young men listened to Arthur Manning's report of his long ride with Rob Roberts, and the revelation it had been to him. And then they began to think and to tell of the neglected young fellows they knew, towards whom they had never turned with any sense of obligation. The number and the kinds increased as the club continued to think and to talk. "I had no idea there were so many of these young fellows in town," said Albert Lawton. "Of course most of those named to-night are not low fellows, nor in any sense corrupt. They work, some of them very hard. They have poor homes. They don't dress with any taste. They have no social ambition. They don't study."

"How shall we help them?" asked the minister. "They will not come to me. I do not know how or where or when to find them. And if I should find them, they would at once regard me as a 'missionary' trying to make them 'good' in the 'church' way of being 'good.' They would think that I was 'patronizing' them. Thus I should make the gulf between them and myself deeper and broader." Arthur Smith, one of the new club, replied, "I am sure they cannot be reached—all of them at once. Your motto, Mr. Manning, 'one at a time,' is the secret of success with such fellows."

"And every one of us should find and win and save at least one of this large out-of society class," said Walter Colton. Mr. Manning was inspired by the zeal of his club of the better class that was resolved to make better the classes below, and he gave a few hints with help in them: "1. Look out for self-discouraged fellows who are in danger of despair and pessimism. 2. For fellows who have personal ambition, that it may be fostered and rightly directed. 3. For fellows who are athirst for sympathy and love, and who may be won by real sympathy to a better life. 4. For fellows whose religious nature has lacked stimulance and guidance." And as the club bowed in prayer, the faithful pastor poured out his soul in appeals to God for the spirit of courage, persistency, patience, sympathy and self-sacrifice.

* * * *

The limitations upon these columns render it impossible to tell in detail what the club did in pursuance of the purpose formed and the plans developed at and after the evening session I have reported. In wise ways fellows were found, their confidence won, their presence at church secured. There were held under the auspices of the club, lectures on the "Lives of Successful Men," on "Current Topics of News," about China, Russia, Cuba, Spain, etc. Debates were conducted. Books, magazines and newspapers were loaned. A dozen young fellows were introduced to the rooms of the Croydon Y. M. C. A. A "Business Club" was organized to discuss laws of personal economy, principles of trade, methods of earning, saving and investing money. There were "Story-Telling" evenings and concerts. Many parlors of the families connected with the church were opened to boys who had never crossed a threshold at the bidding of a genuine Christly love.

One evening Arthur Manning gave a talk to his congregation on "Helping: 1. Not through one, but many agencies. 2. Not 'now and then,' but all the time. 3. Not for one class of people, but for all classes. 4. Not to reach one side of a man's nature, but every side. 5. Not through the sympathy of one person, but of many and of all in the church of Christ." It was a good sermon, for it came from a heart that had inspired to brave deeds; and the fruits of the doing were in the pews to prove true the doctrines of the pulpit.

THE SOLDIER'S FUNERAL.

A Touching Incident at One of Our Great Military Camps.

A FEW nights ago while sitting at one of my preaching places in camp here at Tampa, several soldiers stood talking with me, one of whom remarked that a man had died in the Fifth Regulars that afternoon. Upon inquiry I found that the young fellow had very lately enlisted, and was one of the new recruits The "Fifth" was organized far back in the "Fifties," and has a noble record. At the opening of the late war, Albert Sidney Johnson was its Colonel, Robert E. Lee was Lieutenant Colonel, John B. Hood, Captain; all of whom afterwards became distinguished Generals. Recently the Colonel of this regiment, L. C. Carpenter, has been made Brigadier General, and commands the Fifth Maryland, First District of Columbia, and several New York recruits. This regiment has just been recruited to the full, and is made up of a magnificent set of men.

The one who had died had come with all the high hopes and ambitions of a noble young heart, and enlisted his name among the defenders of his country's honor. God willed otherwise, and far away from home and loved ones, among his fellow soldiers he had breathed out his life. No woman was there with tender hands to make his lowly bed, or with soothing voice to comfort his drooping spirits. Rough hands, but gentle, ministered to his wants, and hearts stout and brave, but soft and true, loved and sympathized with the dying boy.

The next day while walking down the crowded street, I saw a long line of cavalry approaching, and heard the low, sweet strains of music which announced the funeral train. I called one of the multitude of little hacks which throng the streets of Tampa, and stepping in, ordered the sable driver to follow the troops. As we drove slowly along, keeping at convenient distance to avoid the dust (and mine was the only carriage) the driver turned to me and said: "Is dis a officer or is it des a soger?" That expressed it all.

Twelve hundred men on horseback seem like a small army to the peaceful citizen, and all Tampa stood and looked on until they had passed. First came the band, all mounted and playing as they rode along. The music was extremely sad and pathetically sweet. Then the ambulance, which contained the body, in a plain pine coffin. Behind the ambulance rode the fellow-soldier of the dead man. He led his comrade's horse. The empty saddle, the boots and spurs, the toes of the boots turned toward the rear, the sabre and the carbine, and the riderless horse, made a picture which needed no explanation. It was a sermon, a history, a solemn warning. As long as memory is left me, I shall have that picture before my eyes. The officers followed next, and then the long, long line of men two by two.

We had several miles to go, far [illegible] town, where a small lot had been en[illegible] as a military cemetery. In obedien[illegible] orders given in a low and respectful [illegible] the regiment formed a hollow [illegible] around the shallow grave. The Ch[illegible] read the burial service as the boc[illegible] lowered. As I stood there in the b[illegible] sun of that hot day, while the s[illegible] were burying the body of their co[illegible] my thoughts were far away. I th[illegible] of the loving mother who had he[illegible] bright-faced boy in her arms, ar[illegible] thanked God for the joy he had se[illegible] her life. How she had watched [illegible] evidence of his opening mind, h[illegible] ingly she listened for the first [illegible] word. And then how happy she [illegible] he played around her, or climbed i[illegible] lap and threw his little arms abo[illegible] neck. Oh, the unspeakable rapt[illegible] that kiss! The school days came, [illegible] went to and fro, she watched his [illegible] and listened with loving impatien[illegible] his returning steps. And then h[illegible] "Good-bye, mother, I'll soon be ba[illegible] country calls." Again and aga[illegible] hugged him to her yearning hea[illegible] looked after him through blinding [illegible] until he went out of her sight n[illegible] come back any more. I wonder [illegible] she is to-day. Like many othe[illegible] waits and waits for tidings of her [illegible] but the mails come and go, and n[illegible] from her darling boy. He tells th[illegible] to write until he is better, as she [illegible] uneasy about him. Well, he is be[illegible] day, mother. The long, weary [illegible] the lonely night watch of the pic[illegible] day of battle will come no more t[illegible] You will hear to-morrow, for ill n[illegible] winged foot. Yes, you will hear to n[illegible] and another tired, heavy heart w[illegible] more wearily, if it does not bre[illegible] soon will stop and rest.

A detachment of dismounted [illegible] stood near the grave. In slow and [illegible] ured tones the officer in charg[illegible] "With blank cartridges, Load! [illegible] Aim! FIRE! Load! Ready! A[illegible] FIRE!" As volley after volley br[illegible] stillness of the solemn hour, the sc[illegible] become more sad, more painfully [illegible] sive. But the climax was reache[illegible] the bugler slowly walked to the [illegible] the grave, and looking down upon e[illegible] covered coffin, placed his bugle to [illegible] and three times sounded "Taps. T[illegible] is the last call at night before the d[illegible] retire, and means all lights out, sl[illegible] rest.

In a few minutes the grave was [illegible] and only a little mound of sand [illegible] the place where we had left the so[illegible] his rest until the Son of God sha[illegible] him from his deep and quiet slee[illegible]

Sleep, soldier, though many regre[illegible]
Who stood by thy lone grave to [illegible]
Soon, soon will the kindest forget [illegible]
And thy name from the earth pa[illegible]
The man thou didst love as a broth[illegible]
Soon a friend in thy place will hav[illegible]
Thy dog shall keep watch for anot[illegible]
And thy steed by a stranger be r[illegible]

It is so in life's great warfar[illegible] comrades fall from the ranks one [illegible] We who survive, lay them away [illegible] narrow beds, with every tribute ar[illegible] we can bestow, and then turn [illegible] the strife, until it shall fall to o[illegible] surrender the places we have trie[illegible] to those who come after us. But [illegible] triumph will come, when every [illegible] be put under our feet, and the las[illegible] shall be conquered and destroyed.' [illegible] be unto God who giveth us the [illegible] through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Tampa, Fla. H. M. WHA[illegible]

A "Raffle for Souls."

The result of the raffle for souls in [illegible] ican Roman Catholic Church, mention[illegible] weeks ago in this paper, is now a[illegible] The priest thus phrases it: "Ticket [illegible] soul of the lawyer, James Vasquey, [illegible] delivered out of purgatory and [illegible] ushered to heavenly felicity. Ticket [illegible] soul of Madame Calderan has be[illegible] happy for ever. Ticket 762: The so[illegible] aged widow Francisca de Parras has [illegible] livered for ever out of the flames of p[illegible] Another raffle will be held in this ho[illegible] of the Redeemer on the first of Ja[illegible] means of which four bleeding souls [illegible] livered out of purgatory to heaven [illegible] to the four winning numbers in this [illegible] tle. Tickets one dollar. To be ha[illegible] father in charge. Will you for the s[illegible] of one dollar leave your dear ones to [illegible] ages in purgatory?"

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

Life Journey and What to Take—Unhappy Jealousy—A Missionary Meeting—A Good Mother and her Children.

THE bright days of summer invite us to little jaunts here and there, for while to some people summer brings the hardest toil of the year, to others it affords a pleasant season of recrea- . Your question, Miss Alice May, as to propriety of a young girl's traveling is very easily answered. In our time anywhere and by any route which papers, a woman, young or old, may travel with perfect security from one end of the continent to the other, No one will molest or interfere with her; she will not be exposed to danger or insult, and ordinary common sense and discretion will be as safe and as comfortable on the train or in the steamer as in her father's house. When a young woman is traveling by herself, she should not be over-free to make acquaintances on the train. At least, she should be wary about entering into long conversation with strangers. The conductor or other official will always give her the information she needs, but she should ask advice from him only, or from a policeman on the street, rather than from some unknown person whom she may happen to meet.

* * *

THE requisites for a short journey may easily be carried in a hand-bag. One needs her comb and brush and tooth-brush. If her journey is to be for one or several nights she should carry with her a dressing-sacque, of outing flannel, which she can slip on at night after undressing behind the shelter of her curtains. Women generally show a great deal of selfishness about the dressing-room in a drawing-room car. This room is intended for the convenience of all women passengers alike. It is manifestly thoughtless and selfish for one woman to monopolize the room as she would her own bath-room at home, while a string of impatient fellow passengers are waiting outside the door for their turn shall come. The art of traveling quickly should be mastered by every one who has to travel, and if it is necessary for the comfort that they shall make as complete a toilet as they do at home, then should adopt one of two courses, they should rise at a very early hour before others are stirring, or they should wait until a late hour when every one else has finished. One should carry dainty, carry with her on a journey her own soap and sponge. These occupy little room. The one may be carried in a small celluloid box, the shape of a soap; the other in a little oil-silk bag.

Before starting on a summer journey the lady should write to her friends at the other end, informing them of her route, so that they may be waiting to meet her when she reaches her destination. Any change in arrangements should be carefully noted, so that there may not be disappointment or failure to meet her in a strange place.

* * *

It is well to carry more money than absolutely needed. A little change for current expenses, the money to pay for meals and refreshments, and whatever else is absolutely necessary, should be carried in one's purse. But the bulk of the money should be in the place to which you feel it may be sent you by check or express order. If you carry with you the money for the entire trip, let it be safely kept in some inside pocket in a corset or under dress to which thieves cannot readily find access when you happen to be in a crowd. Your trunk will be no less safe whatever, as by our system of checking it will be forwarded on your ticket, and you will not have to think about it at all until you receive it at your friend's house. Nothing is pleasanter at this season than a journey through the open country in a carriage or on horseback. Many Americans regard as very fortunate the women who live in rural places, where they may go about in freedom, visiting their horses and riding to market or to church or to visit a friend. Some of you will say that the bicycle answers the same purpose. In a way it does; but a bicycle is not alive, and there never can be the same sympathy between it and its rider that there is between a horse to which one is accustomed and the person on its back.

* * *

WHEN two young people are engaged and anticipating marriage, they should have so much faith in each other that the question of jealousy shall not intrude. I have been asked by one of my correspondents what she shall do in a certain contingency, which has arisen. Her fiance, hitherto devoted and all that she could wish in his loving attentions, has been alienated through her constant faultfinding on the subject of his courtesy to other young ladies. This, I am bound to say, seems to my judgment, taking the story as she tells it to me, to have been merely the polite consideration which a man owes to all women. The outcome of the lady's caprice and faultfinding has been something very like a break between her and her friend, and the man now gives her the option of giving him up altogether or ceasing to be jealous. As I fear her disposition will stand in the way of the latter alternative, I think it would be on the whole as well for her to accept the former. At least, I fancy that when the situation has become strained, as it evidently has, there will not be very much chance for happiness in marriage between these two. I am surprised that so many of my readers send letters on so intimate a subject, but perhaps the old, old story of love will continue to be the most interesting one in the world until the end of the chapter.

* * *

I WANT to tell my friends about a missionary meeting which I attended the other evening. It was addressed by persons who have attained distinction in the world of letters, and one of the most interesting speakers was a young woman about to go out to the foreign missionary field, a granddaughter of the Rev. Dr. Judson, one of the most heroic men who ever lived. There was some very beautiful singing, and the large church was filled with enthusiastic young people, the occasion being the anniversary of a most active society of young girls. This society is called "Farther Lights." It was founded in Brooklyn by Mrs. Will Carlton five years ago, the first meeting being held in her own parlor. There are now five hundred circles of "Farther Lights" connected with the Baptist denomination. The object of the members is first to gain all the information they can about foreign fields. After that they support whichever field of work most enlists their desires, and many of these societies have a "Farthest Light" of their own in India, or Japan, or Ceylon, or somewhere in the outlying regions of the world.

Do you realize, dear friends, that there are to-day over eight hundred millions of people in this world who are bowing down to false gods; who know nothing of Christ and his love, and do you not wish in some way to help send the light into this gloom? A pleasant feature of this meeting was the appearance, dressed in costume, of several young ladies, each of whom represented a character. One was a Hindoo widow; another a Mohammedan bride; still another represented a Chinese woman, and a fourth had the picturesque costume of the Karens. Each told the history of her life in the character she had taken, and the result was most interesting and delightful.

* * *

A DEAR, far-away friend writes to me about her children. She is obliged to be everything to them for most of the time, as her husband's business compels him to take long journeys and to be absent from home. She says that she is nurse, cook, dressmaker and everything combined to her family, just as many of the noblest women in the land are. Indeed, in my candid judgment, the children are to be congratulated whose mothers thus take care of them themselves, in that they are not handed over to the care of hirelings. The best nurse in the world cannot be to a child what its own mother can. My correspondent has a dear little son of four and a daughter of two. She promises to send me their pictures, and I hope she will. I have a great many beautiful pictures of children among my treasures. I am quite sure that these dear children will grow up to be a great comfort and joy to their mother.

* * *

I WILL take it as a personal favor if my Southern friends will tell me as they have opportunity of any working girls' clubs or college settlements in any of the larger Southern cities. I have a reason for asking this information, and I thank in advance any friends who send it to me.

Margaret E. Sangster

Evangelizing Africa.

THE New World is doing its part in the regeneration of the Old. Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, states that a college has been established at Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, with Prof. Camphon, a black man educated in the United States, at the head of the institution. Bishop Hartzell is also preparing to establish a system of primary education, with competent teachers from the United States in charge of the scholars, and he is also endeavoring to organize industrial schools. His work is not confined to one section of Africa. He proposes to send missionary carpenters to Angola, where the Portuguese government has donated land for mission purposes — an act of generosity on the part of the Portuguese authorities strikingly suggestive of the progress of liberal sentiment in that country. In British South Africa also the mission work is being pushed forward with the sympathetic aid of England's great South African statesman, Cecil Rhodes. There is no reason except lack of funds, why any part of the Dark Continent should remain deaf to the Gospel. A railway has been pushed to the heart of the Congo region, the slave-traders have mostly been crushed or dispersed, and England and France are cutting their way into the heart of the Soudan.

The United States takes no part in African land-grabbing, but is doing a full share in the nobler task of diffusing the light of the Gospel and of secular education among the people of Africa; and the African will find out, as the Turks and others have found out, that the American missionary is not a herald of the sword. It would be a grand achievement if partitioned Africa should be redeemed for Christ by America, and it is gratifying to learn from Bishop Hartzell that "Englishmen on every hand co-operate in the endeavor to plant Anglo-Saxon civilization where barbarism has held sway for thousands of years."

MINISTERS AND POLITICS.

In the recent Montreal Conference of the Canadian Methodist Church, Dr. Jackson brought up the question of restraining ministers from offering themselves as candidates for Parliament. No motion was passed, Rev. J. Armstrong laughing the matter out of court with the remark that he did not think many ministers were in danger of being called to Parliament.

ROYAL
Baking Powder
Most healthful leavener in the world. Goes farther.
ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

INTELLIGENT, refined ladies are offerred a chance to earn big money in their leisure hours. Lillian M., 189 Ross Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

"I'm so Tired!"

As tired in the morning as when I go to bed! Why is it? Simply because your blood is in such a poor, thin, sluggish condition it does not keep up your strength and you do not get the benefit of your sleep. To feel strong and keep strong just try the tonic and purifying effects of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Our word for it, 't will do you good.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Is America's Greatest Medicine.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills. 25 cents.

Babies Only

Vol. VI "Mother's Free Library"—a little booklet on baby's needs and troubles, sent free on receipt of your name on a postal card addressed to Davidson Rubber Co., Boston, Mass.

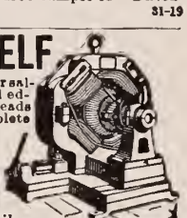
If you have a nursing baby—send us a 2c. stamp and we will send you a free sample of "Davidson's Health Nipple." 31-19

HELP YOURSELF
to a better position, a better salary, by securing a technical education. Our method leads to sure success. Complete courses in



ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
Steam, Mechanical or Civil Engineering; Mathematics; Chemistry; Mining; Mechanical or Architectural Drawing; Surveying; Plumbing; Architecture; Metal Pattern Drafting; Prospecting; Book-Keeping; Shorthand; English Branches
TAUGHT BY MAIL
Circular free. State subject you wish to study. Estab. 1891. 45,000 students and graduates.
The International Correspondence Schools, Box 861 Scranton, Pa.
$2.00 a Month

Better than Ever.
Oberlin College
The College, the Theological Seminary, the Conservatory of Music, the Academy.
Sixty-sixth year begins Sept. 21. Full information from the treasurer.
JAMES R. SEVERANCE, Oberlin, Ohio.

National... 27 Builders' Exchange, Buffalo, N.Y.
ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED 1893. UNDER LAWS OF N.Y.
Architects, Builders of Auditoriums
We publish a book on Architectural Acoustics.
We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. A room built acoustically correct costs no more than built totally defective.
E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. SCHICKER, Prest. WM. A. MICKLE, Sec'y.

Earn a Camera
by selling 10 lbs. Baker's Teas, etc., or sell 25 lbs. for a Silver Watch and Chain; 50 lbs. for a Gold Watch and Chain; 60 lbs. for a Boye' or Girls' Bicycle; 100 or 150 lbs. for the larger size Bicycles; 6 lbs. for an Electric Battery. Express prepaid.
Write for Particulars.
Size 6½ x 4¼ x 4. Takes 3 x 3 Pictures.
W. G. BAKER (Dept. 76), Springfield, Mass.

New England CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC
Unequalled advantages in all departments of Music and Elocution. The Conservatory home for young women provides every comfort and safeguard.
George W. Chadwick, Musical Director.
Pupils received at any time. For prospectus address FRANK W. HALE, General Manager, Boston, Mass.

JUST OUT ROYAL HYMNAL for the Sunday School
By Rev. Robert Lowry and Ira D. Sankey.
This new collection contains 232 pieces, the productions of over 100 prominent hymn writers.
The best Sunday School song book offered.
$30 per 100 by express; 35c. each, if by mail.
THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO., New York and Chicago.

$18 per week and expenses to several good parties to travel. No canvassing. Also several good local workers. Permanent position. Give references.
R. H. WOODWARD CO., Baltimore.

OUR LITTLE FOLKS AT MONT-LAWN.

Suffering in the Tenements—Kind Words—Little Strangers Within Our Gates—A Group of Eleven Nationalities at the Home.

DURING the past few weeks of high temperature and great humidity, when a suffocating vapor seemed to enfold the city, when strong men have been prostrated with heat, and horses have dropped in the streets, the suffering in the crowded tenement districts, especially among the children, has been very great, and the list of deaths among the young correspondingly large. The burden carried by tenement-house mothers existing—it can hardly be called living—in cramped quarters, where, with the thermometer over 100, they must cook, wash, iron, eat and nurse sick children, is greater during the heated term than one who does not actually see it can ever imagine. And the relief, when several of the children are carried off to the Home to be fed and cared for for ten days and brought back in good, strong clothes, is greater, also, than more fortunate mothers, can easily realize.

The House-mother at Mont-Lawn greatly desires that the friends of the Children's Home should visit it and show by their presence their interest in the beautiful work which they are helping us to carry on. Many letters assure us that prayers are with us, and some of these letters have been taken to the Home and read to the children. Below are extracts from a few of the many encouraging letters received, all of which we would like to publish in full:

MR. & MRS. CHAS. W. ($3). We pray for God's blessing upon the work.

D. I. W. ($1). May God put it into the hearts of many to give as they are able.

C. L. W. ($3). Am sure the dear Lord blesses the work that is so much like him.

MRS. W. R. B. (50c.) My prayers go up for your efforts to help the dear little ones.

M. E. ($3). May the little child who receives the benefit of this be led to God is my prayer.

ELIZABETH DAVIS. ($5). I shall enjoy my own outing more in knowing I have helped the little ones.

A. M. P. ($9). God bless the work and bless the children; being a teacher myself I love them very dearly.

MR. E. I. L. ($3). You have my prayers that God will bless such a great work and that many of the little ones may prove a blessing in years to come.

E. L. P. ($5). I wish to do something for my Saviour who has done so much for me, and I know nothing will please him better than work for his little ones.

P. E. N. ($5). I am so glad that in addition to the children being under the care of Christian women, they are given a certain amount of religious instruction which must certainly do them good.

IN HIS NAME.—G. H. Ely Pale Circle of Kings Daughters ($5). We trust that our mite may be the means of benefiting some child both spiritually and physically, and that God may bless and increase the blessing she receives in return. I expect to visit Nyack soon and shall call at Mont-Lawn.

One feature of the work at Mont-Lawn is brought to our readers' notice in our photograph of a group of our little guests, in which eleven nations were represented, American, Italian, German, Dutch, Irish, Danish, Syrian, French, Swiss, Japanese, Hebrew. Four more could have been added, making fifteen, for, at the same time with these, there were English, Scotch, Roumanian and Cuban children at the Home. Postal cards and letters in all sorts of languages go back to tenement homes. The influence which the Home will have in shaping the Christian American citizenship of the future through the many children whom it entertains is beyond calculation. The purifying rivulets of influence flowing from it into tenement districts may make rivers in due time. These children have not only been fed by our readers and clothed in garments sent by them (most of them come to us as little tatterdemallions), but through them a way is opened for us to do the best sort of foreign missionary work right at our doors.

ELEVEN NATIONS ARE REPRESENTED IN THIS GROUP.

The nationalities are: Hebrew, Dutch, French, Syrian, Irish, American, Italian, Swiss, Dane, Japanese, German.

While the tenements are sweltering with heat and the air heavy with sickening vapors, many children who dwell there, like prisoners released, are playing on the green hillsides at Mont-Lawn, listening to bird-songs, gathering posies, sleeping at night in clean sweet cots in cool dormitories, eating and drinking their fill of good wholesome food; and every day in the pretty chapel thanking the Heavenly Father for all these blessings and praying for the kind friends through whom these joys have come.

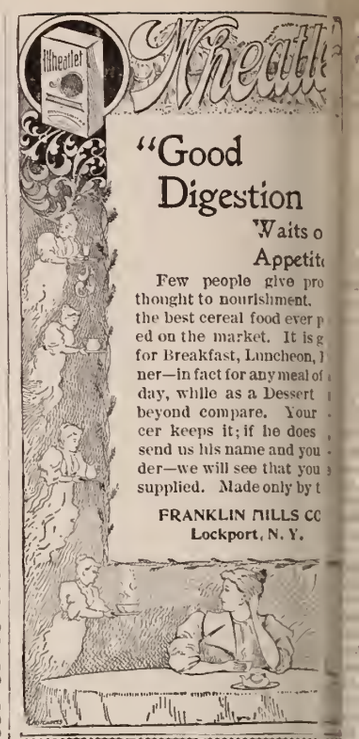
Our friends have been exceedingly thoughtful of the children in the matter of clothing; and we wish they could see the transformation wrought when a little waif is divested of his rags and tatters and put into good clean garments, and many of our readers will surely hear sometime the blessed words: "I was an hungered and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in; naked ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye came unto me . . . Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me."

Three dollars sends one little child to the country; $9 sends three, and only $1 helps to make one little child happy.

During the past week the following contributions have been received:

Prev ack	$2105 31
Jane Hope	50 00
Mary L Hallman	3 00
L C Tobias	3 00
Mrs A Wright	1 00
Wm Schober	50
Mrs Theo D Dunon	3 00
Mrs S D Buckley	1 00
Josie L Weber	2 00
Mary I Penney	3 00
Mrs L E Jones	2 00
J H Mulford	6 00
Edwin H Brumm	1 00
M Manchester	3 00
S Manchester	3 00
M E Gallup	2 00
Mr & Mrs T H Somerville	6 00
Friend Dorchester	1 00
Mrs Geo L Warner	1 00
Andrew Moore	2 00
Mrs S M Gilliers	3 00
A L Pease	1 00
Maud Hilton	6 00
Mrs E M San Saba	5 00
From a lover of little girls, Rhinebeck	3 00
Mrs E M Anderson	3 00
In memory of one gone home	3 00
Mrs Edw Bryan	5 00
Edith M Skilton	5 00
Salem	3 00
Friend, Mt Joy	5 00
Friend, Cobourg	1 00
Helen and Gertrude Mulvihill, Tillie and Cassie Bauer, Sadie Pearsall and Hattie Boyes	2 00
Miss Dockstader	6 00
Dora Cadle	3 00
Robert Emery	3 00
Mr and Mrs W B Grant	3 00
L Chamberlain	1 00
Infant Class of Olivet S S, Brockton	3 00
A V and G B, B'klyn.	1 00
Birthday Fund of Prim Dept of First Baptist S S, Nyack	6 00
Mrs and Mrs E J Parmelee	3 00
John M Parker	1 00
In His Name, Denver	1 00
C H K, Brandon	3 00
Mrs Rose McMechan	6 00
H D Dark	25 00
B M C, Chanmont	50
E H Nichols	1 00
Wm Boshart	10 00
Edwin Rear	1 00
Mrs A A Cram	1 00
Mrs O R Sargent	3 00
Mrs C S Ferry	3 00
Gertrude I Van Natter	1 00
Methacton Chs, Cheney	6 00
Lillie I D N, Palmer	3 00
Mrs J E C Higbee	10 00
Friend, Adrian	6 00
Mary E Adams	3 00
Sent in baby name, S Orange	3 00
Mrs V Gailey	5 00
J Eddy	3 00
Miss F J Cox	2 00
Peter Meyer	1 00
Mary, Lomsville	3 00
A E Eaton	2 50
W Ehel	2 00
Mrs M E Harrison	1 00
M L M	50
IHN, mother & dau	6 00
Friend, New Berlin	3 00
Mrs A F Shoenkerr	2 00
J A R, Summit	3 00
Mrs R A Armstrong	2 00
Chester Co Friend	3 00
E B L, Canastota	10 00
Jer W Kleppinger	1 35
Mabel & Joseph Rogers	1 50
M T A, Atlantic Highl'ds	3 00
H M, Brooklyn	3 00
L H M, New York	3 00
Mae & Charlie, W Hoboken	9 00
IHN, Bushong	3 00
Mrs Florence Lockhart	1 00
Amenda, New Paynesville	3 00
Henry & Emily Carrell & Katrine & Helen Hoffman	16 00
Mrs J T Burns	2 00
——, Morristown	1 00
Enfield Prim S Sch Mass	3 00
Miss Ella W Page	3 00
P V Bryant	1 00
Friend, Vanderbilt	1 00
F M E & H V D, Chicago	30 00
X Y Z, St Joseph	3 00
Friend, Haverhill	2 00
P S F, Dudley	1 00
Friend I H N, Ashland	3 00
Emeline B Cheney	2 00
Herbert Wilhard Ada & Irvine Acheson	3 00
M E M, Waterbury	6 00
Mother & daughter, Clyde	6 00
Frank W Simmous	2 00
Mrs T P Worre & E P Edmonds	6 00
Sarah B M Maris	3 00
M S, Beach Haven	5 00
——, Merrittville	1 00
Mr & Mrs J C Youngken	3 00
Sub, Adairville	3 00
Jennie Peterson	1 00
F F, New Haven	5 00
A Gullinore	2 00
Mary Davis	1 00
Mrs M J Ralston	3 00
Mrs A C Leonard	5 00
Thomas Smith	2 00
Anson Woods	3 00
Joseph B Thume	6 00
Mrs M A White	1 00
Friend, Braceville	2 00
Mrs W S Colburn	9 00
G R G, Seattle	1 00
Fredk Nientkee	3 00
Mrs S S Thompson	12 00
Friends, Lake Linden	5 00
Miss Adele Tromp	3 00
Mrs Mary Adams	1 12
Mrs T P Lyman	1 00
In Jesus Name	3 00
L M Damon, Brimfield	3 00
Eugene Smith	1 00
Friend, Rose City	50
Friend, Centerburg	1 00
Reader, Phila	1 00
A B Kuhns	50
Mr & Mrs W J H, Newark	3 00
J T Lowe	1 50
Gert'de Montgomery	1 00
Emma Thomson	2 00
Mrs H A Halsey	19 00
Friend, Auburn	50
Mrs Malcolm Park	1 00
M E K, Mt Vernon	3 00
J B S, Bridgeport	2 00
Friend, Ont	1 00
M C Johnson	6 00
C S S, W Northfield	3 00
Baptist SS, Arlington	3 00
Five Friends, Erie	2 60
Friend, Sonyea	2 40
Mary L See	6 00
S S Yoder	1 00
Miss M Stevenson	1 00
Do What You Can Circle of King's D's, Decorra	3 00
Lawn party given by Miss Ruth Hong	25 80
Reader, Maine.	3 00
J L F & A M J, Mankato	1 00
Nellie Flavel	10 00
Mr & Mrs & Mary Grimes	4 00
I M S, Kansas City	3 00
Geo B Sitter	1 00
Laura Sterner	1 00
Jas & B Craven	2 00
Mr & Mrs J N Broyles	3 00
Ruth & Grace Horney	3 00
K C, Harrisburg	3 00
Ella Comstock & Albert Everett	3 00
E S Walton	3 00
Mrs M E Stevenson	1 00
J Miller Smith	1 00
Audrey Freeman	25
Clara Freeman	25
Stella Freeman	05
Friends, Salida	8 40
R H Hannan	5 00
Anna Okeson	3 00
Forget not Circle of K D, Bath	5 00
Mrs Wm Birry	3 00
Total	2,774.06

All contributions for this purpose will be acknowledged in these columns.



PRISCILLA MFG. COMPANY, Box 51, HARTFO

BLYMYER CHURCH BELLS. UNLIKE OCT SWEETER, LOUDER, MORE DURABLE, LOW PRICES. OUR FREE CATALOGUE TELLS ALL. Write to Cincinnati Bell Foundry Co., Cincinnati, O.

THE SANITARIUM, Union Spring, N. Y. A well-equipped Institution for the rational treatment of Nervous Affections, Diseases of Women, Tumors, and chronic ailments. Write for our illustrated booklet. Dr. F. D. PIERCE

CRAZY WORK 800 SILK REMNANTS Quilt 4 sq. yds, 50c. Tapestry Boss & patterns, 10c, postpaid. Lemarié's Silk Mill, Limited, Easton, Pa.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. Steady work. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ARMSTRONG & McKELVY, Pittsburgh.
BEYMER BAUMAN, Pittsburgh.
DAVIS CHAMBERS, Pittsburgh.
FAHNESTOCK, Pittsburgh.
ANCHOR, ECKSTEIN } Cincinnati.
ATLANTIC, BRADLEY, BROOKLYN, JEWETT, ULSTER, UNION } New York.
SOUTHERN, SHIPMAN } Chicago.
COLLIER, MISSOURI, RED SEAL, SOUTHERN } St. Louis.
JOHN T. LEWIS & BROS CO, Philadelphia.
MORLEY, Cleveland.
SALEM, Salem, Mass.
CORNELL, Buffalo.
KENTUCKY, Louisville.

GOOD painting costs no more than bad painting—in fact, it costs less. Good painting is done with pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil. Bad painting is done with any of the mixtures of Barytes, Zinc, Silica, Whiting, etc., which are often branded and sold as "White Lead," "Pure White Lead," "Tinted Lead," "Colored Lead," etc., etc. You can avoid bad painting by making sure that the brand is right. (See list of brands of White Lead which are genuine).

FREE By using National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, any desired shade is readily obtained. Pamphlet giving valuable information and card showing samples of colors, also folder showing pictures of house painted in different designs or various combinations of shades forwarded upon application to those intending to paint.

National Lead Co., 100 William St., New York.

TRIBES OF THE PHILIPPINES

The Strange and Half-Savage Race we Now have to Civilize and Evangelize.

An most interesting and well-informed article in the Scientific American, by Prof. J. B. Steers writes thus of the native inhabitants of our new possessions in the Pacific:

The native inhabitants of the Philippines may conveniently divided into four groups—the civilized Indians, the Mohammedans, the wild Indians, and the Negritos or Negros. The wild and civilized Indians and the Mohammedans seem to be all of Malay origin, and are closely related to each other and the native tribes of Borneo on the north and Borneo and Celebes to the south. The civilized Indians have increased rapidly since the Spanish occupation, and are the real owners and inhabitants of the Philippines. They occupy the coasts, and the rich level lands of the northern, central and eastern islands, and have recently occupied new territory in Mindanao, Basilan, Palawan and Mindoro. Their number, according to Spanish statistics, about three million thousand. The Negritos or Negros are supposed to be of Papuan origin, and are, no doubt, the oldest aboriginal man inhabitants of the Philippines. They appear to have been driven before the flood of Malay invasion far into the interior to the mountains, where they have dwindled to a few thousand wandering homeless savages. They are still found in certain portions of Luzon, Panay, Negros, and, according to some authorities, in Mindanao.

The civilized Indian tribes occupy the interior and mountainous parts of all the large islands of the group except Cebu and Bohol, in which they have been Christianized and merged with civilized Indians, or driven out. They occupy nearly all the territory of the great islands of Mindoro and Palawan. They number, according to Spanish estimates, some four or five hundred thousand, belonging to many different tribes. They are shut off from the sea and means of communicating with one another and the outside world by the wild Indians about them, and probably retain much the same condition of savagery that was first observed by the Spanish. It is the contrary to Spanish policy in the Philippines to subdue them by force, and, as a result, have usually remained at peace with the more powerful and better armed Christian neighbors, they still continue to exist between.

Many of the civilized Indians, when in war are unable or unwilling to pay tribute or escape to the mountains and forests, where they either join the savages directly or form little settlements of their own.

Like the civilized Indians, the savages are brown in color, with coarse, straight black hair and little beard. They seem to be somewhat smaller and slighter of figure than their civilized neighbors. Their languages show relationship to those of the civilized tribes and also close to those of the savages of Oceanica. Few of the tribes possess lands for the cultivation of lowland rices, and rarely have the necessary skill and implements to plough beasts (buffaloes) for cultivating lands. Their method of cultivation compels continual change of place. Their patches of cleared forest can only be used in their rude way for one or two crops, when they are abandoned and new patches of forest chosen. Their houses are poorly built after the plan of those of the civilized Indians—a basket-like structure of bamboo and palm-leaves raised upon posts above the ground, but they are not so well built. They are occupied but for a few years. They are not built into compact villages, but the scattered houses are formed without regularity, but near enough to be within call. Their clothing usually consists solely of the breech-clout, all else generally being the nature of ornament, and consists of beads about the neck and head and bracelets and anklets of boar's bristles, and frequently bright-colored pearl shells hanging on the back or breast. The Spanish missionaries do not allow the savages to enter the church in their ordinary state of nakedness. They frequently blacken the teeth and in many cases file them to a point. Their arms are the kris, a knife or cutlass carried in a wooden sheath, thus serving for an axe and hoe as well as a weapon of war. In addition to this they carry a lance or spear, and some tribes go into battle with bows and arrows. The more warlike tribes have shields of various forms.

They all seem to have some idea of a great spirit who rules over the affairs of men. They also recognize spirits of lower orders, some of which are good, some evil, the evil ones causing disease and death in men. Each village usually has one who serves as priest and doctor, who is supposed to be a special favorite of the great spirit. His chief duties seem to be to cure disease or to foretell its result. He is usually aided by certain old women who undertake to frighten away the evil spirits by cries and wild gestures. They do not appear to have idols, but some pay reverence to certain stones before which they place food and drink. At the death of a person, a fence of bushes is built about the village, and for a certain period no one is allowed to enter or depart, food for those within being brought by friends to the fence, where it is received. They are usually monogamists, the wife being purchased from her parents. Divorce is common, the purchase price being returned with the divorced woman. Laws are proclaimed and enforced by the elders of the village, rather than by chiefs or kings.

EMILIO AGUINALDO.
President of the Philippines.

The hundred thousand Chinese and the two hundred thousand Mohammedans of the southern islands will form powerful factors in making future history as they have already in making that of the past.

For a Klondike Hospital.

In a letter from Captain de Soto, of the Klondike Gospel Band, to a friend in New York City, written from Seattle, under date of June 28, the writer states that he is gathering together the necessary equipment for his party to enter the Klondike region. He has with him a number of zealous Christian workers, some of them trained nurses and physicians, and all are eager to reach the new territory and begin work there. Captain de Soto has had plans prepared for establishing a hospital on an extensive scale, and although he is but poorly furnished with funds for the enterprise, he is going forward in faith and confidence, believing that at the proper moment the funds will be supplied by friends who have been moved to take an active interest in the work in which he is engaged. He has had many encouragements, and, among others, relates the following instance, illustrative of the kindness he is continually receiving:

"Upon receiving the drawings and specifications for the new hospital (covering forty closely written pages, and taking the architect four weeks to complete), I sent and asked for the bill. In a letter just to hand, Mr. Franklin, the architect, says: 'This work is a gift to you, and perchance by it our Saviour will be glorified. God bless you! When I can serve you, command, and I shall obey.'"

July 29, Captain de Soto writes: "The steamer Humboldt left yesterday with a load of passengers, among them Dr. Sheldon Jackson. Forty of his Laplanders sailed on the Nevarro."

The Judgment Against Spain.

The Almighty God is fighting our battles for us, in rebuke and condemnation of Spain's thousand years of bloody, oppressive misrule. It is with Spain as it was with the Canaanites in the days of Moses. In Deuteronomy 9: 4-6, Moses, in admonishing the children of Israel, says: "Speak not thou in thine heart, after that the Lord thy God hath cast them [the Canaanites] out from before thee, saying, For my righteousness the Lord hath brought me in to possess this land; but for the wickedness of these nations the Lord doth drive them out from before thee." Because Spain has so long adhered to her oppressive, debasing form of government, rather than because of our righteousness as a nation, the Lord has numbered her kingdom and finished it—her oppressions must and will cease. Nor must we as a nation become elated and haughty, and forget God because of our signal victories. His all-seeing eye is on us. If we continue to fear and honor him, and adhere conscientiously to the fundamental Christian principles upon which our Government is founded, he will lead us, care for, and preserve us as a nation. But if we forget God, turn aside to wickedness, desecrate his holy day, oppress the poor, and glorify, exalt, and favor the rich, then will he turn against us as he did against Israel. If, with all our successes, we would escape Israel's doom as a nation, we must avoid Israel's sin. To this end let all Christians pray. Many sins, such as Sabbath-desecration, the rum traffic, oppressing the poor, and favoring the rich, are crying aloud to heaven against us.—Religious Telescope.

A Bible College at Home.

Under this title a new plan of Bible study has been published by the American Society of Religious Education. The work may all be done at home in thirty minutes each day. The whole Bible is covered in three years. The college is under the supervision of seven Washington pastors, representing as many denominations. Intending members may enter at once by communicating with the College Dean, Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D.D., Washington, D. C., when all the necessary information will be forwarded.

Asthma and Hay-fever Cure—Free.

Our readers who suffer from Asthma or Hay-fever will be glad to know that a positive cure has been found for these diseases in the Kola Plant, lately discovered in West Africa. The cures wrought by this new botanic agent are really marvelous. Among others the editor of the Farmer's Magazine, of Washington, D. C., Mr. Alfred Lewis, testifies that after many years' suffering, especially in Hay-fever season, the Kola Plant completely cured him. He was so bad that he could not lie down night or day for fear of choking. After fifteen years' suffering from the worst form of Asthma, Mrs. A. McDonald, of Victor, Iowa, writes that the Kola Plant cured her in two weeks. Rev. S. H. Eisenberg, Centre Hall, Pa.; Rev. John L. Moore, Alice, S. C.; Mr. Frank C. Newall, Market National Bank, Boston, and many others give similar testimony of their cure of Asthma and Hay-fever, after five to twenty years' suffering, by this wonderful new remedy. If you are a sufferer we advise you to send to the Kola Importing Company, No. 1164 Broadway, New York City, who, to prove the wonderful power of the Kola Plant, will send every reader of The Christian Herald who needs it a Large Case by mail entirely free. Hay-fever sufferers should send at once, so as to obtain the effects before the season of the attacks. It costs you nothing, and you should surely send for it.

The best story we've heard lately is the one Jenkins is telling about how he got his nervous, dyspeptic wife to take Hood's Sarsaparilla without her knowing it. It cured her.

Bright Silver

"Silver can be brightened by washing in hot suds made from Fairy Soap. Rinse in boiling water and dry with soft towels."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century

Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and one Fairy Soap wrapper to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of our booklet, "Fairy Tales," second series, larger and handsomer than the first, and containing new stories and illustrations.

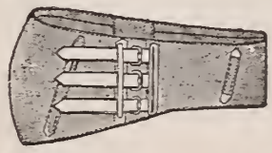
THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

Are You Getting Stout?

Corpulence brings with it the risk of NAVEL RUPTURE or Umbilical Hernia. The greater the weight of the abdoman the greater the risk.

Many ladies and gentlemen of full habit find that our IMPROVED

ABDOMINAL BELTS



WORK WONDERS.

They prevent the rupture, diminish corpulency, give a firm support and permit active exercise with ease and comfort.

If you are getting stout it may be of immense importance to you that you should wear one of our easy and comfortable belts.

We never use drugs, obesity tablets or pills of any kind to reduce fat.

Those interested in the subject call on or write and get a catalogue free of charge from the

IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO.,
785 Broadway, New York.

EXAMINATION FREE. Lady in attendance for ladies. Established in New York 16 years.

GAIL BORDEN EAGLE BRAND
CONDENSED MILK
HAS NO EQUAL AS AN INFANT FOOD.
"INFANT HEALTH" SENT FREE. N.Y. CONDENSED MILK CO. NEW YORK

Pale, Thin, Delicate people get vigorous and increase in weight from the use of

Somatose

A Perfect Food, Tonic and Restorative.

It is a powder made from the most nourishing elements of meat, prepared for the nutriment and stimulus of weak systems. May be taken in milk, water, tea, coffee, etc.

At druggists' in 2-oz., ¼, ½ and 1 lb. tins.

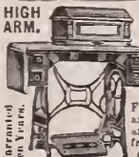
Pamphlets mailed by Farbenfabriken of Elberfeld Co., 40 Stone St., New York City, selling agents for Farbenfabriken vorm. Friedr. Bayer & Co., Elberfeld.

A good lamp-chimney dealer keeps Macbeth and no other.

Index tells what Number to get.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

HIGH ARM.



USE IT FREE

30 days in your own home before paying one cent in advance; shipped anywhere, to anyone, for 30 days' test trial. We risk you.
$60 White Star Machine, . . $22.00
$50 Pearl Raeline . . 18.00
Standard Singers, $9, $12.50, 16.00
Full set of attachments free; buy from factory and save $10 to $40. WE PAY FREIGHT, thousands in use; catalog, showing 20 other styles, free. Each machine guaranteed 10 years.
Address (in full) Consolidated Wholesale Supply Co. Dept. 67 215 S. Clinton St., Chicago, Ill.

Warranted Ten Years.

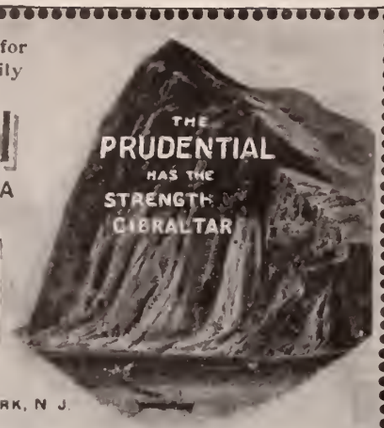
$9.50 BUYS A HIGH GRADE VICTOR SEWING MACHINE
Adapted to Light and Heavy Work. Reliable and Finely Finished. Guaranteed for 10 Years. Write for Free Catalogue. Attachments Free. 30 DAYS FREE TRIAL. Address Dept. 65, VICTOR MFG. CO., 90-98 Market St., Chicago.

"He that works easily works successfully." 'Tis very easy to clean house with SAPOLIO

Now is the time to prepare for future needs of the family

The Prudential
INSURANCE CO. OF AMERICA

Issues profit-sharing Life Insurance policies for Fathers, Mothers or Children.



JOHN F. DRYDEN, PRES'T, NEWARK, N. J.

THE RISING SUN STOVE POLISH AND SUN PASTE

For durability and for economy this preparation is truly unrivalled
3000 TONS SOLD YEARLY

"IN CAKES FOR GENERAL BLACKING APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A BRUSH"

DUSTLESS LABOR SAVING BEST IN THE WORLD.

SUN PASTE
"FOR A QUICK AFTER-DINNER SHINE
APPLIED AND POLISHED WITH A CLOT.

Morse Bros.-Props.-Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

To Clergymen, Editors, Reporters Authors, and All Who Write,

The Smith Premier Typewriter
Is an Invaluable Aid.
Easy and Rapid Composition.
Clean and Legible Manuscript. More Work and Less Labor. New Art Catalogue Free.

The Smith Premier Typewriter Co.,
Syracuse, N. Y., U. S. A.

VICI
Leather Dressing

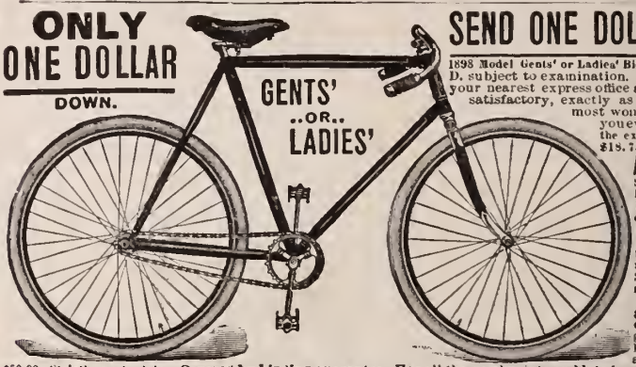
The best Shoe Dressing in the world. The genuine is made only by Robert H. Foerderer, Philadelphia, manufacturer of the famous

VICI KID

Ask your dealer for Vici Leather Dressing, and be sure the trade-mark with the name of the maker, is on each box or bottle. Imitations may ruin your shoes.

A book about buying, wearing and caring for shoes, mailed free. Address
ROBERT H. FOERDERER, Philada., Pa.

ONLY ONE DOLLAR DOWN.



SEND ONE DOLLAR and send OUR 1898 Model Gents' or Ladies' Bicycle by express C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your nearest express office and if found entirely satisfactory, exactly as represented in every particular, the most wonderful Bicycle value you ever saw or heard of, pay the express agent the balance, $18.75 and express charges, and it is yours.

At $19.75 SPECIAL regular 1898 High-Grade, guaranteed 1898 Model Gents' or Ladies' Bicycle. We Have for 1898 a $19.75 and $20.00 Such value was never offered before. THIS SPECIAL at $19.75 of value, strictly high grade and equal to any bicycle you can buy anywhere at $40.00. Strictly up-to-date. Covered by binding guarantee. Has all the good points and late improvements of high grade bicycles with the defects of none. Our SPECIAL Bicycle at $19.75 is made by one of the largest, oldest, best and most reliable bicycle makers in America. The identical same bicycle as is sold everywhere under their special name and name plate at $40.00 to $50.00, never less. The name of the maker is a household word among bicycle riders and will recognize the bicycle the moment you see it as the same high-grade bicycle sold everywhere at $40.00 to $50.00. In offering 3,000 at the unheard of price of $19.75, we are pledged not to use the maker's name or make known.

DESCRIPTION. OUR SPECIAL 1898 Bicycle now offered at $19.75 is made from the very best stock throughout, only first-class mechanics are employed and the finish is such as is only found only in the highest grade wheels. FRAME is 24 inches deep, true diamond, (Ladies' is 22 inches, curved with two center braces) 1⅛-inch highest grade imported German seamless tubing. FORK CROWN, drop forged polished and finished and nickel-plated. HANDLE-BARS, very latest and best wood or nickel, up or down curved horn. WHEELS, highest grade, 28-inch. SPOKES, highest grade, 14-16 swaged. HUBS, latest large tubular, tool steel. RIMS, highest grade non-warpable wood. TIRE, our own special guaranteed strictly high-grade tube pneumatic, complete with pump and repair kit. CRANKS, highest grade forging, 6½-inch throw, highly nickel-plated. PEDALS, handsomest and best rat trap. BEARINGS, highest grade tool steel, highly finished. Set of finest forgings, heavily nickel-plated, detachable. SADDLE, strictly high-grade, padded. Weight, 25 lbs. Ball bearing with ball retainers throughout. Finished in the highest possible enamel in blue, black or maroon, and complete with tool bag, pump, wrench, oiler and repair kit.

OUR GUARANTEE. We issue a written binding, one year guarantee, during which time if any piece or part gives out, by reason of defect in workmanship or material, WE WILL REPLACE IT FREE OF CHARGE. With care the bicycle will last 10 years.

SEND US ONE DOLLAR State whether Ladies' or Gents', kind of handle bars and color wanted, and we will send you the bicycle by express C. O. D. subject to examination, you can examine it at the express office and if you find it equal to any bicycle you can buy anywhere for $50.00, and such a bargain as you never saw before, pay the express agent the balance, $18.75, and express charges, and it is yours. FREE BICYCLE CATALOGUE shows a complete line of Bicycles at $18.95, $19.75, $22.50, etc. Also a full line of sundries, bicycle clothing, etc. SEND FOR IT.

AS TO OUR RELIABILITY. We refer to the publishers of this paper, our customers everywhere, Metropolitan Nat'l Bank, Nat'l Bank of Republic, Chicago; German Exchange Bank, New York; any business house or resident of Chicago. Our entire one of the largest business blocks in Chicago, employ 700 people, and we guarantee to save you $20.00 to $30.00 on a high-grade bicycle. Order to-day. Don't delay. Only 3,000 to be sold at $19.75.

SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO., (Inc.) Fulton, Desplaines and Wayman Sts., CHICAGO.

Rheumatism Cured.....

Mr. J. F. Brookfield writes from Salisbury, N.C.: "While in Knoxville, Tenn., last December, I met an elderly gentlemen, a professor of music, who has been troubled for several years with rheumatism. I told him I would send down before I left town a bottle of Tartarlithine, which I believed would help him if it didn't entirely cure him. While in Montgomery, this trip, his son told me it did his father so much benefit that they had written to you to send their father half a dozen bottles. The benefit given to the old gentleman is very remarkable, after exhausting all the physician's skill, and the legion of remedies advertised for his complaint had been used.

Pamphlet on the treatment of Rheumatism by Tartarlithine sent free by

McKESSON & ROBBINS,
93 FULTON ST., NEW YORK,
Sole Agents for
The Tartarlithine Co.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite till you investigate WHITE BRONZE

More artistic and enduring; less expensive. Prices to suit all. Work delivered everywhere. Color greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Cost nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO.
70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

HEALTH, LUXURY, BEAUTY

Obtained by use of our NEW IMPROVED VAPOR BATH CABINET (Patented). Excels all others in material and workmanship. All varieties of Dry and Vapor Baths enjoyed at home at a trifling cost. Its curative properties are invaluable. Renovates the system and beautifies the complexion, opening the pores of the skin and expelling all poisonous matter from the body. Our Cabinet is not a cloak or sack, but supported by a galvanized frame. Size, 39 in. by 1 in., folded; weight, 7 lbs. A child can adjust it. Descriptive pamphlet sent free. Price low. Agents wanted. O'MOLLENKOPF & McCREERY, Toledo, O.

7000 BICYCLES carried over from last season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money. E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

"For bargain list and art catalogue of swell '98 models, BICYCLE FREE.

High Arm

TRY IT FREE for 30 days in your own home and save $10 to $25. No money in advance.
$60 Kenwood Machine for $23.00
$50 Arlington Machine for $19.50
Singers (Made by us) $8, $11.50, $15 and 27 other styles. All attachments FREE. We pay freight. Buy from factory. Save agents large profits. Over 100,000 in use. Catalogue and testimonials Free. Write at once. Address (in full), CASH BUYERS' UNION
Warranted Ten Years.
168-164 West Van Buren St., B-18 Chicago, Ills.

NEW WAIST SET,

Our new '98 some design pair rigid-lin cuff buttons, collar button latest belt tra heavy gold or ster plate, worth store. We set, with new of bargains, ONLY 10c., or Ingersoll & 67 Cortlan

Lady Agents Make $18 a Week Easy. If you are in need of employment, send us your address, and we will show you how to make $18 a week easy and sure. If you are in need of employment, write to us at once. We guarantee that you can make this week absolutely sure. You will be surprised at how easy it can be done. Send us your address anyway, it will be to your interest to investigate. Write today. You can positively make $18 a week easy. ROYAL MFG. CO., Box 207, Detroit, Mich.

$60 Sewing Machines for $18.

We sell every reliable sewing Machine made. We employ no agents, pay no commissions. Buy for cash in large quantities, which enables us to save you from $25 to $42 on any Sewing Machine you may select. All machines brand new, guaranteed latest improved, with all attachments, and warranted for 10 years. (Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.) Our illustrated catalogue gives full particulars, and will be mailed free. Don't think of buying a machine before investigating our catalogue. Address

We pay the freight.

J. N. HOOK & CO., A CINCINNATI, O.

DO YOU LOVE YOUR WIFE

Then save her health and strength by buying her a
DILLEY'S QUEEN WASHING MACHINE
Washes cleaner, easier, and in one-third the time it can be done by hand. LIVE AGENTS WANTED. Exclusive territory to right parties. Get our circulars and prices, SENT FREE.
The Muir Washing Mach. Co. Dep. C Muir, Mich.

CONSTIPATION,
CANCER, SALT RHEUM, RHEUMATISM, CATARRH and all Blood Diseases cured by use of the extract of Red Clover Blossoms.
Send for circular and prices. Prepared and sold by
D. NEEDHAMS' SONS,
70, Inter Ocean Bldg., Chicago.

"Sanitas" Book Free.

"How to Disinfect," an illustrated book giving practical instruction for disinfection in everyday life and during cases of infectious illness, sent free.

Every one having the care of a house or an institution should have it.

The American & Continental "Sanitas" Co. Ltd.
636 to 642 West 55th St., New York City,
Disinfectant and Embrocation Manufacturers.

Your Dinner all at one time on one burner of kind of stove if you use
THE IDEAL Steam Cooker
Prevents steam and odors from escaping, and reduces fuel bills 50 per cent. Will cook three meals when cooker needs replenishing. Will hold 12 one quart cans. Agents wanted in Canning Fruit. Agent's outfit free. Toledo Cooker Co., Box 16

NAZO for 25 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. I promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN in every locality, local or traveling, to introduce a new discovery and keep our show cards tacked up on trees, fences and bridges throughout town and country, steady employment; commission or salary. $65 00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES not to exceed $2.50 per day; money deposited in any bank at start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N.Y.

$2-OUTFIT FREE TO AGENTS

In order to introduce our new novelties in Pure Aluminum, Scotch Granite and Tin Ware. Write quick. J. P. SIDNEY NOVELTY WORKS, 25 Randolph St., CHICAGO.

CURED TO STAY CURED. HAY FEVER Dr. HAYES, Buffalo, N.Y.

WANTED NOW. AGENTS AT ONCE to sell Sash Locks and Door Holders. Sample Sash Lock free for 2-cent stamp. Immense, better than weights, burglar proof. $10.00 a day. Write quick. Address BROBARD & CO., Dept. 14, Philadelphia, Pa.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES, no one needed; position permanent; address PEASE MFG. CO., P.O. Box A, Cin

LARKIN SOAPS

AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to family. The Larkin idea fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free if you send tf mention this magazine.
The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

FICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 33.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor.

NEW YORK, AUGUST 17, 1898.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

Blooms that Brighten Sick-rooms.

The New York West-side Flower Mission and its Fragrant Ministry Among the Poor Invalids—A Truly Beautiful Charity.

THE West Side Fruit and Flower Mission, which has its headquarters in the Amity Building, 312 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York City, has lately taken on a new feature of activity in sending War Testaments, comfort-beautiful ministry, they have uplifted many a sin-sick soul, have soothed many an invalid's bed of pain, and gladdened many an aged and many a childish heart.

FLOWER MISSION WORKERS MAKING UP BASKETS FOR THE HOSPITALS AND TENEMENTS.

It was by perfectly natural processes that the work outgrew the limitations suggested by its name. Charitable people living in the country wanted to know if fresh eggs would not be acceptable to the sick; some wanted to send jellies and other delicacies; others had books and magazines, which they thought would interest sick people or people too poor to buy. This summer the W. C. T. U., of Highland, sent 200 hats for fresh-air children. Some mourning bonnets, which have been given to the mission, are lent out when there is a funeral, and the humble mourner, anxious to show respect, is yet too poor to buy. Once somebody brought in a handful of old spectacles, and the good workers were at their wits' ends to know what could be done with them, when a nurse from the Eye and Ear Hospital said they would be a special providence to patients for whom glasses were prescribed and who were unable to buy. Some poor women who had to walk back and forth in the sun found a great blessing in some hats with brims which came in. Somebody sent a few cans of condensed milk which proved so opportune in the case of sick babies that contributions of condensed milk have been invited ever since, and can always be put to good use. So it happened with a consignment which included call-bells, aprons, picture-cards, calendars, hat trimmings, shoes, clothing, odds and ends for dressing dolls. One of the loveliest features of this charity came into it with a lot of bright, pretty

(Continued on page 658.)

...gold linen, ...ad bandages our sailors through ...Seamen's Institute, ...appealed to them for assistance in ...rection. ...tle it ...m—and it ...be a trifle ...f space ...ight—a ...ll-made ...ft-bag. ...little ...at you ...se your ...er, but ...tains ...ed, thread ..., wax, ...er-pins, ...g, and ...imes ...nd tiny ...nr. The ...son has ...t out 500 ...the bags ...k, who ...doubtless ...r them ...elp in ...g his ...s to ...h. And ...e the finest old ...en at ever ...er a poor ...low's ...ls has ...om the ...t Side ...r and ...ission, ...field of ...ness has ...dually so ...l since ...ablish... ...n No... ...1896. ...seems ...almost ...n the ...ons of ...lutiful, ...odest ...e bears. ...t above ...several ...who ...rked ...years ...terest ...down... ...it and ...mis... ...It that ...ficient ...uld be ...larger ...ers ...each, and interest and aid in the beautiful work greatly increased by establishing ...each institution in that district of the upper West Side, towards which of late ...ears impoverished population has gravitated. A station house and that depraved ...eighborhood known as "Hell's Kitchen" are close neighbors to the Amity Building, ...here dwellers breathe their message of God's love for man. In their humble, but

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

R. D., Harrington, Wash. What is the largest clock made?

That on the House of Parliament, London, is the largest in the world. The dials are 32 feet in diameter. The pendulum is 15 feet long. The hour bell is 8 feet high and 9 feet in diameter, and weighs nearly 10 tons. The hammer alone weighs more than 400 pounds.

Politician, Washington, D. C. What is the origin of the nursery rhyme, "Little Jack Horner?" Did it not have a political origin?

An ancient English tradition is said to be responsible. A certain abbot in the time of Henry VIII., made incautious remarks about "building such a kitchen that the king could not burn down," and hearing that the remark had been reported to the king, who was ill-pleased by it, he sent his steward, Jack Horner, to Henry with the gift of a Christmas pie, which he besought His Majesty to open as he had baked therein his choicest plums for him. These plums were the transfer deeds of twelve manors. The tradition goes on to say that before he got to the king, Jack Horner, sitting in the corner of the wagon which was conveying him, abstracted a title deed for himself, and told the abbot that Henry had given it to him.

M. J. R., Deposit, N. Y. Please give the correct pronunciation of Hawaii.

It is variously pronounced Hah-wah-yee and O-why-ee, the accent on the second syllable. The first is the generally accepted pronunciation.

Mother, Providence, R. I. Do you prefer a contribution of money or clothing for Mont-Lawn? I can send $3 or I can spend the money in cloth and make it up. I wish to use it in the way that will be most helpful.

In suggesting the sending of garments to the Home, we usually consider many readers who have garments which their children have outgrown, and which they wish to apply to some good use. One gift is as gratefully received as the other, but in a case like your own, we would suggest sending the money.

The following is a copy of a fly-leaf from a pocket Testament carried by a soldier during the war of 1861 and 1865, (which a reader has copied and sent to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD):

Presented to ——— ———, a soldier in ——— Regiment, ——— Vol., by ——— ———. Should I die on the battle-field or in the hospital for the sake of humanity, acquaint ——— ———, residing at ———County, and State of ——— of the fact, and where my remains may be found.

Rev. Arthur Goodenough, Winchester, Conn., writes:

Inquirer wishes to know the ancestry of Samuel J. Mills, the founder of the A. B. C. F. M. Rev. Samuel Mills, Jr., was born April 21, 1783, in Torrington (town of Torrington), Conn. He was the son of Rev. Samuel John Mills, pastor of the church in Torringford from 1769 to 1833. His grandfather was John Mills, a farmer in Kent, Conn. His great-grandfather was Peter Mills, who lived in Bloomfield, Conn., but was born in Holland, and whose name before it was Americanized was Pieter Van der Meulen.

Letters can be sent to friends or relatives in Santiago and in almost any part of Cuba with comparative certainty of its being delivered. Mail matter should be forwarded to Key West, just as is the mail matter for those on board Admiral Sampson's fleet. The navy keeps a vessel for no other purpose than for carrying mail between the front and Key West.

One of our readers, Mrs. Ada Wooten, of Deer Park, Wash., proposes to inaugurate a new flag into the hurches, to be known as "The Flag of the Cross." This she wants to have placed at the right of every pulpit and at the head of every Sunday School parade, Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League, or other church or Sunday School organization. The proposed flag is to be composed of seven stripes, four white and three blue, with a square of blue in the upper corner containing a cross, above which will be a crown, surmounted by a star, in memory of the Star of Bethlehem. Blue and white are to be the only colors used, the blue representing freedom and the white purity and truth. Mrs. Wooton suggests that the flags be made of silk and that two-tenths royalty on all sales should be applied to the establishment of Sunday Schools and the education of children in country districts.

Miss M. Hasbrouck, Burlington, Kansas, writes:

In THE CHRISTIAN HERALD of July 13, L. S. Sterling, Canada, asks for the author of the poem, "A Voice from Heaven." I have the poem, only it is called "Voice from the Departed." The author's name is Rev. Luzerne Rae.

Subscriber, Decatur, Ind. Is it not misleading to repeat in the Apostle's Creed, "I believe in the holy Catholic church?" Does it not convey the impression that the Roman Catholic Church is meant? What constitutes the church of Christ?

To some uneducated persons it may give that impression, but we think there are few who have not had it fully explained to them. It refers to the universal church of Christ, that is the churches which individually are animated by the spirit of Christ. It is this which in reality constitutes a church of Christ. There are some churches which we are apt to regard as heterodox in doctrine, which are really churches of Christ, because their members are men and women who show that in their private and church life they are ruled and energized by Christ's spirit. The Lord knoweth them that are his.

Reader, Reading, Mass. What do you consider the chief events during the progress of the war up to the present time?

The chief events were: The battle of Manila Bay, the extinction of Cervera's fleet, the heroic act of Hobson, the surrender of Santiago, the bloodless victory at Ponce, and the generous offer to send home the Spanish army from Cuba without cost to Spain.

N. F. M., Conifex Colo. Please state briefly the duties of an Ambassador.

An Ambassador represents, in the fullest degree, the rights and interests of his country and of its citizens in the land to which he is accredited. He is received at court, and has the entree to the highest political circles, and can command the attention of cabinets and statesmen and even of royalty itself. He holds the highest rank that can be conferred on the representative of a country. All communications between his own government and that to which he is accredited are made through him and he is the official spokesman of his own government. Consuls and Consuls-Generals are subject to his authority. He shares precedence, on all State occasions, with the highest nobility, next to royalty itself. There is usually a very elaborate code of instructions defining Ambassadorial powers and privileges. An Ambassador should be a person of ripe judgment and experience, cultured, well versed in international law, and especially familiar with the history of his country, its institutions and its foreign and domestic political relations.

L. H. K., Ennis, Tex. Can a man perform any labor on the Sabbath day and be a Christian? If so, what character of labor can he do and still be on the side of the Lord?

Works of necessity or mercy, and no other. Your own conscience will quickly distinguish between those that are and those that are not in this category.

Rev. A. Inwood, Pastor of M. E. Church, Long Beach, Cal., writes as follows, in reference to our answer in this journal of July 6, to "Baptist, Tacoma, Wash.," who asked whether his son would be justified in the absence of facilities for baptism by immersion, in partaking of the Lord's Supper in a Methodist church without being baptized:

Tell your Baptist friend his son can commune right away. Baptism is necessary to full membership in the Methodist Church, but not to communion. The invitation with us is always to all Christians—indeed to all penitent souls. This is the form: "Ye that do truly and earnestly repent of your sins, and are in love and charity with your neighbors, and intend to lead a new life, following the commandments of God, and walking from henceforth in his holy ways, draw near with faith and take this holy sacrament," etc. Many a Methodist preacher—I presume every one, at some time or other—urges penitent seekers to come to the Lord's table that there they may be helped to accept Christ, and many a soul has in doing so found him. The Baptist's son can be baptized any time, unless the Methodist preacher is unordained, in which case he must wait till the ordained presiding elder or some other ordained preacher comes there, and the Methodist preacher will leave the form of baptism—whether sprinkling, pouring or immersion—to be settled by the young man himself, and will baptize by immersion as readily as by sprinkling. We believe and practice most earnestly your last sentence, "that all who love the Lord ought to be welcomed at his table." This is not written in any captious spirit. I thank you for the admirable answers so frequently given.

G. W. Y., San Antonio, Tex., writes:

In speaking of the noble women of the past and present, Miss Helen Gould's name often seems to be overlooked. It is an old saying that when you touch the pocketbook you touch the heart. When Miss Gould signed that check to aid the government in freeing a starving people it was proof that her heart was not wrapped up in dollars and cents. If all the wealthy were like her there would be less suffering among the poor.

I. D. B., Carthage, Ill. 1. Do you think that at the last judgment the sins we have repented of will be brought up against us and published before the whole world? 2. Do you think that our departed friends know what we are doing now?

1. No. We believe that when a man repents of sin and goes to God humbly asking pardon in the name and for the sake of Christ that God fulfils his promise and blots out his sin (See Isa. 43: 25, 44: 22 and other passages). 2. It is possible. We do not know the conditions of life without the body. We imagine, however, that there must be a desire, which God in his love may grant, to revisit the scenes of life and unseen minister to the loved ones left behind. This, however, is only conjecture.

Herbert J., Portage, Wis. 1. Does Admiral Dewey or the United States commanders generally employ English or other European gunners on their ships, because of their superior marksmanship? 2. Has the United States the best navy in the world?

1. No. A statement to that effect was published, but has been authoritatively contradicted. In almost every instance, the gunners on American ships were Americans. From a point of men, yes, the United States has the best. In point of ships and fighting strength Britain leads the world, her principle being to have her navy at all times equal to any two other navies. This is called the "two power plan."

Robert S., Scofield, O. 1. On what grounds do civilized and educated nations that profess to, and resort to killing, burning and destruction, justified, exalted, applauded and upheld for doing by Christian men and women that God says "thou shalt not kill . . . shalt not steal . . . nor covet anything that is thy neighbor's?" 2. Why on the other hand if the subjects of such nations disagree with each other, destroy and burn property, are condemned and denounced and sometimes hung and imprisoned, and why is war upheld and approved by Christian men and women?

Your questions are very broad ones, and fairly put, but the very same questions have been asked times innumerable, and never satisfactorily answered. We believe that war is always and under all circumstances an evil, then it is never justifiable on Christian ground, and the making of it in any form or for any provocation, is sin. If, on the other hand, it is admitted that there may be a supreme justification for a war, going to war, such an admission in fact admits the whole principle of offensive and defensive. The world has many instances of wars in which divine assistance was implored. Christians the world over were of their creed; if the so-called civilized and Christian nations were so in unity and not merely in name there would be no war, nor need of war. Every international difficulty would be settled by arbitration. But this supposing a condition of things unfortunately not yet attained. Arbitration is the hope of the future, and every Christian should pray and work for it.

E. F., Boxford, Mass. We are unable to discover.

W. O. Jenkins. 1. Catholic, we believe. 2. Protestant.

Reader, Pitman, N. J. See answer to Inquirer on this page.

M. L., Rahway, N. J. We cannot find the quotation you send.

Mrs. A. H. L., Missouri Va., Yes. They will appear as usual.

Mrs. A. Evans, Camden. All matters have been forwarded.

I. F. C., Summertown, Ga. See article in our issue of July 27.

L. V. D., Milton, Ky. Quo vadis means, "Whither goest thou?"

H. L. R., Mankato, Minn. You can cure it of A. S. Barnes & Co., N.

Esther A. McG., Kennard, Pa. It is published by Dodd, Mead & Co.,

Student, Binghamton, N. Y. Pronounced "Ser-vay-rah," "A-hee-naldo."

Mrs. J. M. We believe them to be reliable. Consult Bradstreet, or R. G. Dunn.

J. B. E., Montgomery, Mo. Write to Mother T. Anthony, 591 Broadway, N. Y.

Mrs. H. C. P., San Jose, Cal. Write Charles Scribner & Son, publishers, New York City.

M. J. L., Columbia City, Ind. Address the organization at No. 58 William St., N. Y.

Reader, Hampshire County, Mass. Write to the Librarian, Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

C. E. Cornell, Box 334, Geneva, O., will be pleased to have full name and address of Cornell, Hawthorne, Fla.

H. H. J., Waterloo, Ont. We have no work on the subject. Write Fowler & Wells, publishers, New York City.

Miss Osborne, Wellington, Ont., Can. Send some reader of this journal to send her the book entitled "The Childless Sexton."

F. B., Hamilton, Can. Yes.

Miss M. S. P., Dutchess Co., N. Y. You forgot to give your P. O. We will take pleasure in answering when address is forwarded.

J. M. P., Utica, O. Your case is a hard one indeed. We wish we could advise you, but unfortunately there is no provision anywhere in such cases.

Pearl Woodward. 1. Yes, if they will send the premium and forward the advertisement. 2. Address the Numismatic Bank, Boston, Mass., to ascertain value of the stamps and coins.

Inquirer. There are two excellent training institutes in Chicago—one, the Moody Bible Institute; the other, the Baptist Training Institute at Upland, Ind., there is the Taylor University.

A. A., Skead's Mill, Ont., Can. 1. There are a large number of Americans, as well as other nationalities in Cuba. We do not believe they were responsible than others. 2. It doubtless originated the trouble.

THE NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

This great aerial highway across the East River recently gave unmistakable signs of weakness. On a day when travel was heavy and when the trolley cars were closely packed on the bridge, the superstructure was heard to crack and to give forth a noise like a mighty moan. It was discovered that, either owing to the tremendous weight of many thousands of tons of traffic, or through the expansion produced by the intense heat, the great bridge had "sagged" at a point some 220 feet from the Brooklyn tower. It was originally declared by the builder to be capable of sustaining four times its own weight. Its condition has lately been investigated, and the engineers declare that it is in no danger.

PERILS OF THE KLONDIKE.

Dan rs and Privations that Beset the Gold-Seekers on Every Side—Large Parties in Danger of Starvation—Some Rich Finds.

THE return of miners from the Klondike with millions of dollars' worth of gold, shows that the pictures of weal in that region have not been overdraw. Gold is evidently to be found in pavi quantities, and throughout a territ- ry r more extensive than indicated by hee v discoveries. The Klondike stream in e heart of the gold-producing dist, at there are other fields almost as , id gold seems to be present along e eterly watershed of the Yukon for ever hundred miles. On the westerly ide the Yukon prospecting has been me ith some success, but the lack of cilis to transport provisions to that o and difficult country, has retarded e erprise of the miners.

MAKING A LANDING AT SKAGUAY.

TH CHRISTIAN HERALD has received ter from correspondents, adding many ter ing particulars to those already ese ed in these columns regarding the on se. These reports verify what E HRISTIAN HERALD has already nt out, that while the region is one va and wonderful riches, the hardsperils and privations to be encounred n getting at those riches may not l anced even by the successful hie ment of fortune.

Th Klondike gold-fields have long ease to be confined to that river and its bury creeks. The Indian River, iclimpties into the Yukon about fifty les below the Klondike, and Quartz ree and its various forks, have yielded con erable share of the millions which e ers are bringing to Seattle and an rancisco. It was to the Indian Rive that one of our correspondents, w th several companions, directed his steps rly in the present year. The descrip n of the trials and sufferings which they ve undergone is full of instruction for o ers. No one, the writer says, should start r the Klondike unless he is able to have 600 left when he reaches Seattle to begin his journey by steamer to going to the Klondike to work as a laborer for some one else, he should have the means to provide for himself before his gold—if he discovers any—begins to pan out. He need not burden himself with requirements for Arctic residence before reaching Seattle, as he will be able to get what he wants there. Not long ago the people of New York were surprised to see, on an exceptionally warm day, several Swedes attired in heavy furs, making their way through the city. They were on their way to the Klondike, and had attired themselves in advance for the weather they expected to find there. They might just as well have waited until after having crossed the continent. It takes a robust constitution to stand up under the hardships of the Klondike, the great heat in summer and the extreme of cold in winter. It should be stated, however, that the cold, however far below zero, is dry and crisp, and therefore more easily borne. Not many instances of freezing to death are reported, although cold, added to other hardships, has undoubtedly hastened the death of many an adventurer in the Klondike.

A GOLD-SEEKERS' CAMP AT DYEA.

It is gratifying to learn that law-abiding conditions are beginning to prevail, both on the American and the Canadian side of the gold-fields. Until recently the only law was that of the miners' camp. The accused was brought before a meeting of miners, and had a trial more or less formal and fair. If convicted, he was immediately punished. Civil cases were decided in a similar manner, but it is said that the decisions were not always guided by a sense of justice, and that prejudice often led to the imposition of unmerited penalties. Constituted authority is taking the place of informal justice, and the Klondike is probably as safe for a man of peace as any part of the United States.

Those who think of going to the Klondike in time for the season of 1899 need not start until April. Too early a start is likely to be attended by such excessive hardship, owing to the severity of the weather, that the traveler will in all probability arise at his destination broken down by his journey, and too weak and exhausted for immediate effort. In this way he loses instead of gaining time.

Dawson City, it is said, is improving. The gambling-den and the saloon no longer have a monopoly of attraction, and the message of the Gospel is listened to with a reverence that promises much for the future of that Arctic region. The miners are not, as a rule, of the spurious type of desperadoes and ruffians confined in the imagination of some sensational writers. Most of them, by far the large majority, are intelligent, earnest men, bent on acquiring wealth honorably, and thoughtful of those whom they have left at home.

Large finds are reported and rich cargoes recently arrived at Seattle. The steamer Mananense brought to Victoria, B. C., about $3,000,000 of treasure from the Klondike. The Roanoke brought to Seattle $3,000 pounds of gold, or about $1,500,000. Late advices describe many cases of starvation on the Aschcroft trail, which with the Stickeen and Edmonton makes the third Canadian route to the Klondike which has been proved impracticable. The road follows an old telegraph line to Quenelle, thence runs northwest to Fort Frazier and west of Babine Lake and past Hazelton Post, beyond which point about 700 miners are encamped, waiting for help to extricate them from the trap into which their eagerness to reach the gold-fields has involved them. Three thousand miners on the great Valdez glacier made a rush to avoid starvation, and in their haste to escape, a number lost their lives.

FLOODS AT DYEA.

READ ON TENTED FIELDS.

The Vest Pocket War Testaments Eagerly Asked for by Our Soldiers and Sailors.

SEVERAL more consignments of vest-pocket War Testaments were sent to the troops at the front last week. Besides those forwarded through the Christian Commission there were numerous orders from persons interested in the soldiers' spiritual welfare. One of those was Miss Helen Gould, who sent 150 vest-pocket Testaments to the troops. Among recent consignments were 1,000 to Mr. E. J., McCoy, Y. M. C. A. Secretary, San Francisco, for the Philippines, and 1,500 to Mr. A. C. Irons, at Newport News, for Porto Rico. Shipments have been made to all the camps in the United States. These Testaments are furnished to the soldiers through the kindness of friends who contribute for that purpose. $1 will supply ten Testaments. They will be forwarded for distribution through the Christian Commission or the chaplains, or they may be sent to private individuals who desire to personally forward them to the front. The contributions to the Fund last week were:

Prev Acknowl'd, $803.13. E J Acton, $1; Mrs Geo A Bailey, $1; Mrs Annie Baker, $3; Martha A Barnes, $5; Mrs T W Boyce, $1; The Misses Bradley, $5; Mrs John Brock, $1; L E Brooks, 50 cts; S E Brownlee, $1; Nels Burvold, $1; Mattie Bnssell, 25cts; Mrs R J Butterfield, $1; Miss A E Button, 30 cts; Mrs E Button, 10 cts; Mrs C S Button, 20 cts; A Carlton, $5; Miss Christie G Cheever, 75 cts; Sarah A Calhoun, $1; S Conant, $1; J A Cook, $1; Mr and Mrs W T Dodd, $2.50; M Dominque, 50 cts; Mrs F M Dyckman, $1; Mrs Elsie Ellsworth, $5; W G Erwin and family, $2; Mrs K E Fay, 50 cts; Mrs L A Fisher, $2; Haris Foot, 50 cts; J C Foot, 25 cts; Mr and Mrs Godbold, $1; Elzora Handfield, $1; J G Hart, 50 cts; Miss Martha E Haynes, $1; L Hazzard, $2; Mrs J T Hoge, $1; Miss Sarah Huntington, 10 cts; Mrs W A Huntington, 10 cts; Rev W A Huntington, 10 cts; Adela Jans, 50 cts; Sam'l Jones, $1; Mrs R M Kellogg, $1; Miss L Estella Knowles, 25 cts; Mrs J Lemmenes, 50 cts; Miss Ernestine L Libby, $2; Rufus Lord, $2.50; Nannie McEwen, 25 cts; Mrs A E McGahen, 50 cts; Edw McGahen, 25 cts; Mrs Sarah E Mead, 90 cts; Chas H Merritt, $5; O D Mervin, 25 cts; Mrs T Mountcastle, $1; D W Mowrey, $1; Mrs C D Needham, $2; Mrs E Neil, $1; Mrs E S Newton, $1; Mrs D S Noyes, 90 cts; Mrs A H Perry, 25 cts; S A Pritts, $1; M J Rogers, $1; Mrs A D Saxter, $1; Mrs Anna Y Schledorn, 90 cts; Rev E G Smith, $1; M E Smith, 75 cts; Frank Suits, 50 cts; Capt Annie Swanson, $1; Mrs S Tomlinson, 50 cts; Hattie M Twiss, $1; J C Underwood, 65 cts; Wm Underwood, $1; M B White, $6.15; Mrs Adeline Williams, $2; Mrs Esther Williamson, $1; Willie F, 25 cts; "Paterson" Jackson, $10; A C M, Nunda, $1; B M C, Chaumont, 50 cts; C B B, Charlestown, $1; E P B, Orange, $1; Mrs E N, San Jose, $1; G D M, Plainfield, $1; Mrs L G, Md, $1; S E B, Chittenango, $1; In Jesus' Name, Bismarck, $1; ——, Fernandina, $1; ——, W Summit, $1; Friend, Altamont, $1; Friend, Colebrook, $1; Friend, Norfolk, $1; Friend, Liberty Prairie, 70 cts; Two Friends, Andrew, $1.50; Reader, Gansevoort, 50 cts; A Reader, Cleveland, $1; Constant Snbscriber, Elyria, 25 cts; Subscriber, Lambertville, $1; Subscriber, Memphis, $1; Widow's Mite, Eldora, $1 20; A Tenth, Soquel, $2; For His Sake, Wareham, $1 A. Sister, Santa Barbara, $1; Ixonia, Wesh Pres Chu, Church C E, $1.07; Mrs S E Wagner, $1. Total, $932.75.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

People of Many Troubles.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: I. Samuel 14: 4, ... There was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side.

THE cruel army of the Philistines must be taken and scattered. There is just one man, accompanied by his bodyguard, to do that thing. Jonathan is the hero of the scene. I know that David cracked the skull of the giant with a few pebbles well slung, and that three hundred Gideonites scattered ten thousand Amalekites by the crash of broken crockery; but here is a more wonderful conflict. Yonder are the Philistines on the rocks. Here is Jonathan with his bodyguard in the valley. On the one side is a rock called Bozez; on the other side is a rock called Seneh. These two were as famous in olden times as in modern times are Plymouth Rock and Gibraltar. They were precipitous, unscalable and sharp. Between these two rocks Jonathan must make his ascent. The day comes for the scaling of the height. Jonathan, on his hands and feet, begins the ascent. With strain and slip and bruise, I suppose, but still on and up, first goes Jonathan, and then goes his bodyguard. Bozez on one side, Seneh on the other. After a sharp tug, and push, and clinging, I see the head of Jonathan above the hole in the mountain; and there is a challenge, and a fight, and a supernatural consternation. These two men, Jonathan and his bodyguard, drive back and drive down the Philistines over the rocks, and open a campaign which demolishes the enemies of Israel. I suppose that the overhanging and overshadowing rocks on either side, did not balk or dishearten Jonathan or his bodyguard, but only roused and filled them with enthusiasm as they went up. "There was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side."

My friends, you have been, or are now, some of you, in this crisis of the text. If a man meets one trouble he can go through with it. He gathers all his energies, concentrates them on one point, and in the strength of God, or by his own natural determination, goes through it. But the man who has trouble to the right of him, and trouble to the left of him, is to be pitied. Did either trouble come alone, he might endure it, but two troubles, two disasters, two overshadowing misfortunes, are Bozez and Seneh. God pity him! "There is a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side."

In this crisis of the text is that man whose fortune and health fail him at the same time. Nine-tenths of all our merchants capsize in business before they come to forty-five years of age. There is some collision in commercial circles, and they stop payment. It seems as if every man must put his name on the back of a note before he learns what a fool a man is who risks all his own property on the prospect that some man will tell the truth. It seems as if a man must have a large amount of unsalable goods on his own shelf before he learns how much easier it is to buy than to sell. It seems as if every man must be completely burned out before he learns the importance of always keeping fully insured. It seems as if every man must be wrecked in a financial tempest before he learns to keep things snug in case of a sudden euroclydon.

When the calamity does come, it is awful. The man goes home in despair, and he tells his family "We'll have to go to the poor-house." He takes a dolorous view of everything. It seems as if he never could rise. But a little time passes, and he says, 'Why, I am not so badly off after all. I have my family left."

Before the Lord turned Adam out of Paradise, he gave him Eve, so that when he lost Paradise he could stand it. Permit one who has never read but a few novels in all his life, and who has not a great deal of romance in his composition, to say, that if, when a man's fortunes fail, he has a good wife—a good Christian wife—he ought not to be despondent. "Oh," you say, "that only increases the embarrassment, since you have her also to take care of." You are an ingrate, for the woman as often supports the man as the man supports the woman. The man may bring all the dollars, but the woman generally brings the courage and the faith in God.

Well, this man of whom I am speaking looks around, and he finds his family is left, and he rallies, and the light comes to his eyes, and the smile to his face, and the courage to his heart. In two years he is quite over it. He makes his financial calamity the first chapter in a new era of prosperity. He met that one trouble—conquered it. He sat down for a little while under the grim shadow of the rock Bozez; yet he soon rose, and began, like Jonathan, to climb. But how often is it that physical ailment comes with financial embarrassment! When the fortune failed it broke the man's spirit. His nerves were shattered. His brain was stunned. I can show you hundreds of men in our cities whose fortune and health failed at the same time. They came prematurely to the staff. Their hand trembled with incipient paralysis. They never saw a well day since the hour when they called their creditors together for a compromise. If such men are impatient, and peculiar, and irritable, excuse them. They had two troubles; either one of which they could have met successfully. If, when the health went, the fortune had been retained, it would not have been so bad. The man could have bought the very best medical advice, and he could have had the very best attendance, and long lines of carriages would have stopped at the front door to inquire as to his welfare. But poverty on the one side and sickness on the other are Bozez and Seneh, and they interlock their shadows, and drop them upon the poor man's way. God help him! "There is a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side."

Now, what is such a man to do? In the name of Almighty God, I will tell him what to do. Do as Jonathan did—climb; climb up into the sunlight of God's favor and consolation. I can go through the churches, and show you men who lost fortune and health at the same time, and yet who sing all day and dream of heaven all night. If you have any idea that sound digestion, and steady nerves, and clear eyesight, and good hearing, and plenty of friends, are necessary to make a man happy, you have miscalculated. I suppose that these overhanging rocks only made Jonathan scramble the harder and the faster to get up and out into the sunlight; and this combined shadow of invalidism and financial embarrassment has often sent a man up the quicker into the sunlight of God's favor and the noonday of his glorious promises.

It is a difficult thing for a man to feel his dependence upon God when he has ten thousand dollars in the bank, and fifty thousand dollars in Government securities, and a block of stores and three ships. "Well," the man says to himself, "it is silly for me to pray, 'Give me this day my daily bread,' when my pantry is full, and the canals from the West are crowded with breadstuffs destined for my storehouses." Oh, my friends, if the combined misfortunes and disasters of life have made you climb up into the arms of a sympathetic and compassionate God, through all eternity you will bless him that in this world "there was a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side."

Again, that man is in the crisis of the text who has home troubles and outside persecution at the same time. The world treats a man well just as long as it pays to treat him well. As long as it can manufacture success out of his bone and brain and muscle, it favors him. The world fattens the horse it wants to drive. But let a man see it his duty to cross the track of the world, then every bush is full of horns and tusks thrust at him. They will belittle him. They will caricature him. They will call his generosity self-aggrandizement and his piety sanctimoniousness. The very worst persecution will sometimes come upon him from those who profess to be Christians.

John Milton—great and good John Milton—so far forgot himself as to pray, in so many words, that his enemies might be eternally thrown down into the darkest and deepest gulf of hell, and be the undermost and most dejected, and the lowest down vassals of perdition! And Martin Luther so far forgot himself as to say, in regard to his theological opponents: "Put them in whatever sauce you please, roasted, or fried, or baked, or stewed, or boiled, or hashed, they are nothing but asses!" Ah, my friends, if John Milton or Martin Luther could come down to such scurrility, what may you not expect from less elevated opponents? Now, sometimes the world takes after them; the newspapers take after them; public opinion takes after them; and the unfortunate man is lied about until all the dictionary of Billingsgate is exhausted on him. You often see a man whom you know to be good and pure and honest, set upon by the world, and mauled by whole communities, while vicious men take on a supercilious air in condemnation of him; as though Lord Jeffreys should write an essay on gentleness, or Henry VIII. talk about purity, or King Herod take to blessing little children.

Now, a certain amount of persecution rouses a man's defiance, stirs his blood for magnificent battle, and makes him fifty times more a man than he would have been without the persecution. So it was with the great Reformer when he said, "I will not be put down; I will be heard." And so it was with Millard, the preacher, in the time of Louis XI. When Louis XI. sent word to him that unless he stopped preaching in that style he would throw him into the river, he replied, "Tell the King that I will reach heaven sooner by water than he will reach it by fast horses." A certain amount of persecution is a tonic and inspiration, but too much of it, and too long continued becomes the rock Bozez throwing a dark shadow over a man's life. What is he to do then? Go home, you say. Good advice, that. That is just the place for a man to go when the world abuses him. Go home. Blessed be God for our quiet and sympathetic homes! But there is many a man who has the reputation of having a home when he has none. Through unthinkingness or precipitation there are many matches made that ought never to have been made. An officiating priest cannot alone unite a couple. The Lord Almighty must proclaim banns. There are many homes in which there is no sympathy, and no happiness, and no good cheer. The clamor of the battle may not have been heard outside; but God knows, nothwithstanding all the playing of the "Wedding March," and all the odor of the orange blossoms, and the benediction of the officiating pastor, there has been no marriage. So sometimes men have awakened to find on one side of them the rock of persecution, and on the other side of them the rock of domestic infelicity. What shall such a one do? Do as Jonathan did—climb. Get up the heights of God's consolation, from which you may look down in triumph upon outside persecution and home trouble.

Again, that woman stands in the crisis of the text who has bereavement and a struggle for a livelihood at the same time. Without mentioning names, I speak from observation. Ah, it is a hard thing for a woman to make an honest living, even when her heart is not troubled, and she has a fair cheek, and the magnetism of an exquisite presence. But now the husband, or the father, is dead. The expenses of the obsequies have absorbed all that was left in the savings bank; and, wan and wasted with weeping and watching, she goes forth—a grave, a hearse, a coffin behind her—to contend for her existence and the existence of her children. When I see such a battle as that open, I shudder at the ghastliness of the spectacle. Men sit with embroidered slippers and write heartless essays about women's wages; but that question is made up of tears and blood, and there is more blood than tears. Oh, give women free access to all the realms where she can get livelihood, from the telegraph office to the pulpit! Let men's wages be cut down before hers are cut down. Men have iron in their souls, and can stand it. Let the way free to her of the broken-hearted. May God put into my hand the coldest cup of privation, and give me not a palace but a windowless hut for shelter for many years, rather than that after I am dead there should go out from my home into the pitiless world a woman's arm to grapple the Gettysburg, the Austerlitz, the Waterloo of life for bread! And yet, how many women there are seated between the tomb of bereavement on the one side and the rock of destitution on the other! Bozez and Seneh interlocking their shadows, and dropping them upon her miserable fate. "There is a sharp rock on the one side, and a sharp rock on the other side.

What are such to do? Somebody has told them climb up into the heights of that glorious promise: "Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive; and let thy widows trust in me." Or get up into the heights of that other glorious promise: "The Lord preserveth the stranger, and relieveth the widow and the fatherless." O ye sewing women, with starving wages! O ye widows, thrust out from the once beautiful home! O ye female teachers, kept on nigardly stipend! O ye despairing women, seeking in vain for work, wandering along the docks, and thinking to throw yourselves into the river last night! O ye women of weak nerves, and aching sides, and pained breath, and broken heart, you need something more than human sympathy—you need the sympathy of God. Climb up into his arms. He knows it all, and he loves you more than father, or mother, or husband ever could or ever did; and instead of sitting down, wringing your hands in despair, you had better begin to climb. There are heights of consolation for you, though now "there is a sharp rock on one side, and a sharp rock on the other side."

Again, that man is in the crisis of the text who has a wasted life on the one side, and an unilluminated eternity on the other. Though a man may all his life have cultured deliberation and self-poise, if he gets into that position, all his self-possession is gone. There are all the misthoughts of his existence, all the misdeeds, all the wrong words—strata on strata, granitic, ponderous, overslaughing. That rock I call Bozez. On the other side are all the retributions of future, the thrones of judgment, the eternal ages, angry with his long delay. That rock I call Seneh. Between these two rocks ten thousand times ten thousand have perished.

O man immortal, man redeemed by blood-bought, climb up out of these shadows! Climb up by the way of the Cross. Have your wasted life forgiven, have your eternal life secured. Then not just take one look to the past, at what it has been; and take one look to the future, and see what it threatens to be. You can afford to lose your health, you can afford to lose your property, you can afford to lose your reputation, but you cannot afford to lose your soul. The bright, gleaming, glorious, precious eternal possession you must carry aloft the day when the earth burns up and the heavens burst.

You see from my subject that when a man gets into the safety and peace of the Gospel, he does not demean himself. There is nothing in religion that looks like meanness or unmanliness. The Captain of Jesus Christ only asks you to climb as Jonathan did—climb toward God, climb toward heaven, climb into the sunlight of God's favor. To become a Christian is not to go meanly down; it is to go gloriously up—up into the communion of saints; up into the peace that passeth understanding; up into the companionship of angels. He lives upward; he dies upward.

Oh, then, accept the wholesale invitation which I make this day to all people! Come up from between your misfortunes and financial embarrassments. Come up from between your bereavement and your destitution. Come up from between a wasted life and an unillumined eternity. Like Jonathan, climb up with all your might, instead of sitting down to wring your hands in the shadow and in the darkness—"a sharp rock on the one side and a sharp rock on the other side."

LIFE IN A FREE AFRICAN COLONY.

Phil ican Settlement No. 1 Named After Abraham Lincoln—Director Chatelain's Arrangements and his New Recruits.

OUR readers will be glad to see the portraits on this page of three young men who, as announced in a previous number of this journal, have gone to We. rn Africa to help in the development

MR. HENRI NEIPP.

DR. GEO. H. DOWKONTT.

DR. JOHN E. HENDERSON.

t first settlement of the Philafrican ge. This, as will be remembered, is ca near Caconda to the southeast of ella in fourteen degrees south lati- e Mr. Heli Chatelain, the leader of he edition and the originator of this iq project for helping the most un- pp of the human race, is familiar with ole of that important section of ri and was specially qualified by his d l and scientific knowledge to choose e hy site for the settlement. After arefully over the region, he chose s und, and has had no reason since ch ge his opinion, that it is one of the st adapted to the purposes of the ag. As it is to be a refuge for men men wrested from the clutches of e ve-raiders, he has given the settle- n he appropriate name of Lincoln. e ork of building huts, digging wells d eparing the ground for ti ion has kept the little ty of six very busy since ir rival. It has also been ece ry to make the acquaint- nce f the tribes in the neigh- orh d, by paying and receiv- g v ts, in order that the na- es ay understand that the ewners are the friends of ll ar desirous of maintaining mi le relations with their e gbors. Mr. Chatelain's re- rts showed how inadequate e f e on the ground was to ry on this work, and how g period must elapse be- e e settlers were ready to ter n the main purpose for ic the colony was estab- she —that of affording a ref- ge the poor creatures whom e European troops might de- er m the hands of the slave- de. The Philafrican League N York has therefore de- ded strengthen Mr. Chate- n's ands by sending him e pe consecrated like himself th noble work of redeeming e v ims of the trade in flesh d lood.

Th three devoted men who ave ne out are men after Mr. hat in's own heart. One of em Dr. George Harry Dow- ntt he son of Dr. George D. ow ntt, the Christian phy- cia oy whose aid Mr. Chate- n a quired his medical train- g. ung Dr. Dowkontt also is a physi- ian. d has been in close touch with r. Chatelain's work from the beginning, vir served as secretary to the Phil- fric League in New York. His travel- g e enses and his support in Africa do ot f upon the League, but are defrayed y th Fifth Avenue Baptist Church ot New ork, of which Dr. Dowkontt is a em r. With him went Dr. John E. Hend son and Mr. Henri Neipp, both f wm embued with the missionary pirit olunteered for the work. Dr. Hen- erso s a native of Jamaica, in the West ndie and is thirty-two years of age. He ecei d his medical education at Mary- land University. Since he was seventeen years of age, he has been in active Christian work in Sunday School and Y. M. C. A., and there have been few Sundays during the latter part of that period in which he has not found opportunity to preach either in the open-air, or in some mission or church. For some time, while preparing for his course in medicine, he was under the care of Dr. George D. Dowkontt in the International Medical Missionary Institute in East Forty-fifth street, in New York, where Mr. Chatelain and so many devoted missionaries have been trained. Mr. Henri Neipp is a Swiss by birth, like Mr. Heli Chatelain. He is twenty-four years of age. In his native country he earned his livelihood as a machinist, but coming to America in 1892, he made the acquaintance of Mr. Chatelain, and became active in Christian work. He had an intense desire to go out with the first party to found the settlement of Lincoln, but at that time the way was not open. The chief difficulty was the fact that his aged mother in Switzerland was mainly dependent on his earnings. That burden has now been assumed by Rev. Dr. Chamberlain, the President of the Philafrican League, so that Mr. Neipp has gone out free of home anxieties. A cordial welcome has doubtless by this time been accorded by Mr. Chatelain and his companions to these three new helpers, who are so thoroughly qualified to render efficient service in the new settlement.

Mr. Chatelain writes that "about one acre of forest has been cleared hoed, planted with sweet potatoes and manioc, and enclosed with a substantial fence. The potatoes are growing finely. The seed for both was brought to us by the natives of the nearest village, who were pleased to sell it to us for a quantity of brass tacks which are highly prized in this region. The women covet them for the decoration of their hair and necklaces, and the men use them for ornamenting their weapons. We are glad to find something they will take as payment, for the one thing they all want is rum and that it is against our principles to supply.

"The Kwayama tribe we find to be of a very fearless, war-like disposition. They are not afraid of either whites or blacks. One of the most influential of the tribe has become quite friendly. He has become opposed to slave-raids and cattle-raids, and is anxious that I should go to his people and tell them about our religion. He said pathetically, referring to some raids which had taken place recently: 'They do not know any better. Why do you not come and teach them? If they knew you wished to help them they would be glad to have a mission.'

"The dry season has now set in and we have blue sky, cool nights and weather which everybody declares most delightful. We have begun a dam in the Cucala River just above us, and hope to get enough power to work a small mill and to raise water so that an irrigating ditch may bring it to the lower part of our land. We are completing our workshops which will be twelve by thirty feet."

Mr. Chatelain has succeeded in persuading the governor of Caconda to release seven herdsmen of the Caluquemba towns who were prisoners in the fort. Two of them came personally to the station at the suggestion of the governor to thank him and to ask his advice and his help in the government of the tribe. Their king had been killed in battle and there was anarchy in their district. The men were evidently grateful and seemed glad to have made friends of the new missionary settlers.

Thus the way is being prepared for the great mission which Mr. Chatelain is longing to organize. As soon as the settlement is ready, the governments will be notified and the first convoy of liberated slaves will be received. Money is sorely needed for implements and necessaries. Any contribution sent to us for the work will be gladly welcomed and will be acknowledged in these columns.

MOSELE GIRL OF NOVO REDONDO—MOUNTAINS IN PUNGO NDONGO, WEST AFRICA.

THE LORD'S COMING.

To be Before the Millennium, Suddenly, in Person, to Establish His Kingdom.

BY REV. CLARMONT SKRINE, M.A.

ALL the descriptions of the condition of the world at the time of our Lord's coming imply that it will be before the millennium, and the same fact is taught in the parables of our blessed Master. Take just two of them and glance for a moment at the 19th of Luke. "A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himself a kingdom and return." Now if he is to receive the kingdom and only to return when he has received it, what place is there for the kingdom prepared for him before he returns? And the 13th of Matthew looks in the same direction. The tares and wheat grow up together, the field which is the world, and in which the church is containing up to the very last moment tares among the wheat, and no human hand and no other power is able to clear them away until he send forth his angels at his coming to gather the tares into bundles and carry the wheat into his barn; all that looks like a pre millennial coming.

And what a sad aspect would the mission-field have, if I believed that the Gospel of our Lord Jesus, faithfully preached and zealously carried to the ends of the earth, was God's appointed means for bringing about millennial glory. Take the best mission you know of, the most successful society, and where most has been done for many centuries, and where most has resulted for the glory of God—where do you see in any community of professing Christians—anything like the description of the millennial glory on the earth, anything like that united service worship of a loving and obedient people—anything like the subjection of all things of the earth to the Lord Jesus Christ?

But if I believe what the Lord tells me—that the Gospel is to be preached for a witness unto all nations, and nothing more, and that then will the end come; then I look for the appearing of that time when nations shall be born in a day, and when the redeemed and saved nations shall be as the dew from the Lord among many nations, and Jerusalem becomes the centre of worship on the earth, and the knowledge of the glory of the Lord covers the earth as the waters cover the sea.

There is another view of the pre-millennial glory, and that is: it is to be a sudden coming:—"As the lightning cometh out of the east and shineth unto the west, even so shall be the coming of the Son of Man." "Behold I come as a thief, blessed are they that watch and have not defiled their garments," everything speaks of a sudden appearing—"in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump." Now, if the coming of the Lord Jesus is thus sudden, then we understand the warning given, "Watch ye, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of Man shall come."

Is it to be a personal coming? We feel that he who was raised from the grave in the body, shall come again in the body and become visible to men. Now we believe that the coming of the Lord Jesus for his saints is not the same thing as the coming of the Lord Jesus with his saints. We take such texts as that in Acts 1, where it is said to the disciples the moment they lost sight of the up-lifted hands, of those pierced feet, the moment the clouds came under him and took him away, the first blessed message after his ascension was this: "This same Jesus which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven." Doesn't that look like a personal coming? And the words in Revelation 1 are to the same point: "Every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him." And once more, the words in the 14th of Zechariah, "His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives," and this is a personal Christ; and to a personal Christ we look.

The Sunday School

ELISHA AT DOTHAN.

S. S. Lesson for Aug. 28. II. Kings 6: 8-18. Golden Text, Psalms 34: 7.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

AGAIN and again Benhadad, King of Syria, had had reason to know the power of Israel's God. In his war against Israel in Ahab's time he had to learn the lesson that the God who created the heavens and the earth is "the God of the valleys," as he is "the God of the hills" (I. Kings 20: 23-30). He had seen the unprecedented healing of his general, Naaman, and had the opportunity to turn to the only true God. Although Jehoram was an idolater, as was his father, Ahab, and his brother, Ahaziah, had been before him, yet Benhadad could not excuse himself because the kings of Israel were ungodly. Deep in the conscience of every man their lies a conviction that every one of us must one day give an account of himself to the one true God. But the exceptional opportunities which this man had were thrown away, and he ended as he began, a lost sinner. After the healing of Naaman, he warred again against Israel. No mention is made of Naaman in this war, and it is not to be conceived that he could have taken part in it.

Benhadad took counsel with his servants as to the pitching of his camp, but he was not to have things all his own way, and another counsel between God and his prophet was going on simultaneously, the result of which was that Elisha sent to the King of Israel, saying, "Beware that thou pass not such a place, for thither the Syrians are come down." Jehoram acted on the information, and again and again "saved himself there," so that the King of Syria suspected that there was foul play, and that some of his people were guilty of treachery. "Will ye not show me," said the suspicious king, "which of us is for the King of Israel?" "None, my Lord, O King," was the reply, "but Elisha, the prophet that is in Israel, telleth the King of Israel the words that thou speakest in thy bed-chamber." What was this? Was he ever to be thwarted, he the great King of Syria, the renowned warrior, the ruler over so large a territory, by the mysterious power of the God of Israel? Did the man ever give time to reflect whether it were not his wisdom and duty to seek the face of this mighty unknown God, whose unseen hand was so often at work through his prophet to thwart his designs? If so, the thirst for power, the determination to carry out his own designs, got the better of him, and he issued the command regarding Elisha: "Go and spy where he is, that I may send and fetch him." And when he was told, "Behold he is in Dothan," he took stringent measures to secure the capture of the man whom he regarded as his personal and political enemy, and who might have led him, as he had led his servant, Naaman, to the blessed knowledge of the true God, if he had once bowed before God. But Benhadad lost his opportunity, and it never returned.

Benhadad showed his estimation of the force which was opposed to him by the force which he sent to take Elisha—"horses and chariots and a great host, and they came and compassed the city about." So thoroughly were they hemmed in that Elisha's servant, Gehazi's successor, said to him, "Alas, my master! How shall we do?" "Fear not," said the prophet, "for they that be with us are more than they that be with them." And then, ceasing to speak to the terrified servant, he lifted his eyes upward to his God, and prayed that the young man's eyes might be opened. God answered the prayer, and then he wondered no more that Elisha could take things so quietly, for he saw within the lines of the Syrian army "the mountains were full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them" (Ps. 34: 7).

How true it is that "our light affliction, which may seem to hem us in (as to mortal eyes Elisha was hemmed in and could not escape), worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." But it is while we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal (II. Cor. 4: 18). The great and good fight of faith is to keep our eye always on the unseen, on our God.

The besieging hosts of the Syrians roused no feeling of alarm in the prophet's heart. "They that be with us are more than they that be with them," was his rock of defence; the living God was on his side; what had he to fear? Elisha's confidence was not in what he was for God, but in what God was for him. His prayers, his work, his zeal, all this is not mentioned; his history consists in what was good for him, and what God did by him. Quietly he waited until the Syrian hosts came down to him. He was in the secret of the Lord, who doeth "nothing but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets" (Amos 3: 7), and he had the thread of clear guidance from the Lord. Just as the soldiers were ready to apprehend him, and carry him off in triumph to their master, Elisha, who spoke no word to them, prayed aloud to Jehovah, "Smite this people, I pray thee, with blindness," and the hands just stretched out to take him moved gropingly about in helpless confusion, while the man whom they were sent to take, in all the dignity which the presence of his God gave him, took command of the blinded host and said: "This is not the way, neither is this the city; follow me, and I will bring you to the man whom ye seek." What could they do, the poor, sightless men, but follow; they could not help themselves. But he led them to Samaria. They were caught in a trap. Perhaps they had laughed among themselves that the king had thought it needful to send so large a force to capture one man, and he unarmed. But that prayer of his and its answer had shown them an unsuspected force in the living God, and many may have been the thoughts within them on that ten mile march in utter darkness. And now they were in Samaria, in the very stronghold of their enemies, and they knew it not. Elisha prayed again: "Lord, open the eyes of these men that they may see. And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw; and behold they were in the midst of Samaria," at the mercy of their enemies, as some hours before Elisha had seemed to be at their mercy. Only the answer of God to his servant's prayer had reversed the state of things. O, what apprehensions may have arisen within them as to what should be their doom! But God was surely speaking to the Syrians at this time.

THE PLAIN OF DOTHAN AS IT NOW APPEARS.

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

THE incident which forms the subject of the lesson evidently belongs to the same category as the narrative of the healing of Naaman and the other miracles worked by Elisha. It is doubtful whether they formed part of the Book of Kings, as it was originally written. They probably were reminiscences of Elisha, which were current in the schools of the Sons of the Prophets, which he founded or superintended. Either the author of the Kings, or some later compiler, appears to have inserted them in the book as they were told, without revision. They shed a light on the life of those days; but they were incorporated in this book, doubtless, chiefly for the sake of their religious lessons, to show how God honored the faith of a man who believed in him and trusted him. The compiler knew the character of the Hebrew mind, and remembering how much more easily it was impressed by the wonderful and the supernatural than by direct teaching, dwelt on those features of the prophet's life which best served that purpose. In this instance, the picture he draws of Elisha surrounded by celestial chariots, which were interposed between him and his foes, but were invisible to the ordinary eye, would teach the doctrine of divine protection more vividly than the most cogent arguments. Like our Lord's parables, such narratives lived in the memory and have strengthened the faith of believers in all ages when they were prosecuted and menaced.

Saved himself there. The story is not quite clear here. It probably means that the Syrian king wanted to capture Jehoram, king of Israel. Benhadad had been a prisoner himself (see I. Kings 20: 26-34), and knew how humiliating it was to have to beg a foe for life and liberty. He may have wished to get Jehoram in that position and have posted an ambuscade to catch him in some of his journeys. But heeding Elisha's warning, Jehoram sent a strong force there and did not fall into the trap. This happened so many times that Benhadad suspected that his servants were disclosing his secrets to the enemy; but some of them, who had heard of Elisha's supernatural powers, explained to the king the reason of his plans failing. The servants of God in our day often try to render similar service. They tell young people that it is not safe to go to the saloon, the theatre, the gambling rooms and other places, for there the enemy of souls lies, with the design of making them captive. A clergyman in New York, who took a deep interest in a young man, made a hard fight recently to save him from ruin. He knew that the young man was strongly tempted to drink, and was fearful that some evening he would go to a saloon and get drunk. Every evening he watched for him to start from home and would meet him casually and invite him to go to his rooms to see pictures, or to go out with him fishing, or in some other way occupy his time. Of him, it might be said as of Jehoram that he was thus saved, not once nor twice, but many times.

He is in Dothan. This was a district which still bears its ancient name. It is twelve miles north of Samaria. It is an interesting place, because it was there that Joseph was put in a pit by his envious brethren, and afterwards taken out and sold to a passing company of Midianite traders (Gen. 37: 17). This was not Elisha's usual abode, but he was probably there looking after some of the schools of the "Sons of the Prophets." The youths who were called by this name were not literally sons of the prophets, but were sons of ordinary citizens getting their education under the direction of Elisha and other men of God, and would be called in an ordinary way, "pupils of the prophets." The ease with which Benhadad surrounded it in one night shows that it was not a safe place for Elisha, but he evidently was a man who did not allow danger to keep him from his duties. A Christian journalist who was working in the year 1877 on a journal in Bombay, India, received an anonymous letter warning him of a plot against his life. The writer said that some of the Europeans whose vicious practices the journalist had been exposing had arranged to have him shot as he walked through a certain square according to his usual habit about midnight after getting his paper out. The journalist printed the letter in his paper the next morning, with a statement that he believed God would protect him until his work was done, and that when it was done, he was quite ready and willing to die, either by the assassin's bullet or any other way. He was in the hands of God and should not change his habits to avoid his enemies. That night and the following nights he walked fearlessly across the square and was not molested. His enemies were apparently ashamed to attack a man who trust in God was so implicit.

He smote them with blindness. The Hebrew word does not convey the idea of blindness so much as dazzling bewilderment. At any rate, it was not permanent loss of sight, as the subsequent narrative showed. Dean Farrar tells the story of Athanasius who was trying to escape from the soldiers that Constantine had sent to arrest him. He was in a boat on the Nile, and finding that he would soon be overtaken, he boldly turned back towards his pursuers. They did not recognize him, but they asked him if he knew where Athanasius was. The saint pretended to be in haste, and answered as he shot past them, "He is not far off." The soldiers pushed on with redoubled energy, while Athanasius made good his escape to Alexandria.

They that be with us. There is a story of Felix of Nola who, escaping from his pursuers, who were instructed to bring the Christian man back, dead or alive, hid in a cave. A spider spun its web over the entrance to the cave, and when the pursuers came by and were about to enter the cave where Felix lay hidden the leader saw the spider's web and said there was no need to search there as that showed that no one could have entered. Felix's words on hearing his remark were, "Where God is, a spider's web is a wall; but where he is not a wall is a spider's web."

THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Our erms Acceptable to Spain, but Considerable Delay in Arranging Details — The Treaty Commissioners—Removing Our Army From Cuba.

ALTHOUGH it was understood more than a week ago that Spain had decided to accept our peace terms, and the general opinion prevailed both countries that the war had reached an end, the Madrid Cabinet seemed in haste to announce its conclusions. Considerable time was consumed in cable communication between Madrid and Washington. Premier Sagasta and his associates desired to be fully advised as to many details which were not explicitly set forth in President McKinley's statement of our terms. These principally related to the ultimate disposition of the Philippines, the control under which the Spanish troops in Cuba and Porto Rico were to be returned to Spain, and the question of debt. The Madrid government viewed with apprehension the prospective return of nearly 150,000 soldiers at a time when a civil rising was imminent. The followers of Don Carlos, so far until now, had abstained from any attitude of hostility, declared that if peace were concluded on conditions that did not fully preserve Spanish honor, the Pretender would at once lead a revolution against the present government.

Spain's final reply was presented on August 7, and it accepted all the peace conditions proposed by us, but insisted that no territory should be ceded until the treaty meets. The substance of the peace portocol had been practically arranged by Secretary Day, of the State Department, and M. Cambon, the ambassador of France at Washington. In view of Spain's delay, however, hostilities may not be suspended, as was originally expected. It is not believed that the delay will seriously imperil the peace negotiations. Secretary Day, General Horace Porter, our ambassador in Paris; Hon. John Hay, our ambassador in London; ex-Secretary of State Richard K. Olney of Mass.; Hon. Cushman K. Davis, U. S. S., and possibly one other, will probably be named as the United States commissioners to arrange a treaty of peace in conjunction with an equal number of Commissioners to be appointed by Spain.

HAVANA VOLUNTEERS MARCHING DOWN THE PRADO.

These are members of the military organization which has been the bitterest opponent of peace.

This last week of the war, as far as our campaign in Porto Rico is concerned, was unusually active. Town after town surrendered to our soldiers without striking a blow. At Guayama, Gen. Hains' brigade had a slight skirmish with about 500 Spanish regulars outside the town, and three American soldiers were slightly injured. Guayama, however, surrendered subsequently without opposition.

As our troops entered the town, a few shots were fired, but several volleys from the American ranks seemed to satisfy the Spaniards that sharp fighting would follow any opposition. When Gen. Hains and his staff rode through the streets, every house was closed, and the place looked deserted; but soon doors and windows began to open and people came into view. Someone shouted a salute to the Americans, and instantly the entire population streamed out of their houses, uttering "vivas" and welcoming the troops. It was virtually the same scene that had been enacted in every Porto Rican town along the route — the people glad to be freed from Spanish rule and to come under protection of the "Stars and Stripes."

Now that the end of the war is in sight, a protracted period of negotiation may follow. The Queen Regent has approved the course of the government in accepting peace, and the Spanish people as well as the political leaders, are said to be heartily glad that the hopeless conflict is nearly over.

Peace means much more than the mere cessation of hostilities. It means the surrender of Havana, and possibly of Porto Rico and Manila without bloodshed; the saving of thousands of precious lives, which otherwise must have been sacrificed in the struggles by land and sea, at the taking of these Spanish strongholds. Captain-General Blanco, who has till now been the most uncompromising opponent of peace, has bowed to the will of his government in Madrid, and will make no opposition to the capitulation of Havana. Even the Havana Volunteers, who were disposed to rebel against the wishes of the imperial government, are now represented as eager for peace. The prospect of release will be welcomed by the hundreds of political prisoners who now crowd the two largest prisons in Cuba—the Cabanas fort and the Women's Prison, both in Havana. Many of these unfortunates have suffered incarceration most unjustly, and had long ago abandoned all hope of ever again breathing the air of freedom.

The continued ill-health of our troops in Cuba has given rise to most serious apprehensions. Nearly half of Gen. Shafter's army has been prostrated by malarial fever and many deaths have occurred. The leading officers united in an appeal to Gen. Shafter to remove the troops from Cuba in order to save their lives, as it was feared they would perish by thousands during the fever season which begins this month. Our Government promptly decided upon a wholesale removal, and the troops are now being transported to Montauk Point, N. Y., where an extensive health camp has been established. Immune regiments and colored troops will be used for garrison duty at Santiago.

THE WOMEN'S PRISON, HAVANA.

Here many Cuban suspects are now held in close confinement.

FORT CABANAS PRISON, HAVANA.

Where hundreds of male political prisoners are now incarcerated.

The Gospel in the Camps.

Work of the Christian Commission Steadily Progressing—Grand Spiritual Results.

MORE encouraging letters have been received during the past week from evangelists at the front, showing the wonderful results of the work of the Christian Commission and its coadjutors. Among those who, thus far, have been most active in aiding Mr. D. L. Moody and his associates on the Commission are many of the leading pastors and Christian workers, embracing representatives of every Protestant denomination.

Probably none of the camps has seen more earnest and conscientious effort than that put forth at Camp Thomas, Chickamauga Park, Ga. Besides the evangelistic work on week days, there is a Sunday service schedule, which affords ample opportunity for the entire camp to share the Gospel privilege. These meetings are being conducted by Fred B. Smith, Harry S. Maxwell, Rev. D. S. Toy, John Best, Dr. Boggs, F. E. Shipp, H. P. Anderson and W. H. Jones. A good work is also going on in the hospitals. Lately the War Department accepted the proposition of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., to provide a House Chaplain for the Leiter Hospital at Chickamauga.

During the past week, Secretary Long of the Navy Department, has issued a permit to the Christian Commission to work among the Spanish prisoners at Portsmouth, N. H., and two evangelists who speak the language, have been appointed to undertake this duty. Two others are now in Santiago, opening up a new and inviting field there.

The Moody Gospel Fund.

The following contributions for carrying on Christian work in the Camps, under Mr. Moody's auspices, have been received during the week:

Previously ack	$1,766 31	Tomlinson, Mrs S	50
Alley, Mrs S A	1 00	Vandermnelen, Mrs M A	1 00
Boss, Mrs Cornelius	75	Walther, H A	1 00
Boyd, C F	1 00	Witson, Dr	50
Burdick, Mrs D C	5 00	Infelice, Chesapeake City	2 00
Bussell, Mattie	50	A. ., Bklyn	2 00
Clement, Clara	30	K T E, Goshen	50
Dodd, Mr & Mrs W T	2 50	——, Bklyn	1 00
Dorton, F T	5 00	X Y, Coos	1 00
Gardner, Miss M	2 00	Friend, Liberty Prairie	1 00
Goff, Mrs	25	Friends, ——	1 20
Handfield Elyora	1 00	I H N, Seneca Falls	5 00
Harrel, Mrs J E	50	I H N, Sodus	1 00
Henry, Mrs W C	1 00	Lietz, C E Societies	4 50
Howard, John	1 00
Layson, Mrs	25
Leigh, Geo	50
Lord, J M C	3 00
Terry, Mrs	10	Total	$1,814 16

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD
AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES
LOUIS KLOPSCH, PROPRIETOR.

T. DeWitt Talmage
EDITOR.

B. J. FERNIE, G. H. SANDISON,
Associate Editors.

The Christian Herald is published every Wednesday. The subscription price is $1.50 per year, payable in advance.

Subscriptions may commence with any issue.

Remittances should always be made in the safest manner available to the remitter. Post-office and Express Money Orders are always safe and may be sent at our own risk.

Register your letters when you remit by cash.

Foreign Postage. For each copy to be mailed outside the United States, the Canadas and Mexico, foreign postage at the rate of one dollar a year should be added to the regular subscription price.

Renewals.—It is always best to renew two weeks before the date on your wrapper to ensure uninterrupted service.

Back Numbers.—We cannot undertake to supply back numbers, nor to make good omissions caused by tardy renewals.

Change of Date.—It takes two weeks to change the date, after your subscription is renewed.

Expiration of subscriptions. The date on the wrapper indicates when your paper will be stopped unless promptly renewed.

Change of Address.—Always give both your old and your new address when you ask us to change your address.

The Name of your Post-office and of the State you live in should always follow your own name when writing to this office. We cannot find your name on our books unless this is done.

The Christian Herald will not be responsible for the return of unsolicited manuscripts forwarded to it with a view to publication.

Letters should be addressed

THE CHRISTIAN HERALD,
Bible House, New York City.

Entered at the Post-office at New York, as Second-class Matter.

Indemnity Not Revengeful.

THE misgovernment of Spain in Cuba made it obligatory on the United States to take up arms against her. When she vacates on this continent the war will end. But the expenditure of millions to right Cuba's wrongs is a necessity put upon us by Spain. Shall we right the wrong and yet be compelled to pay for that privilege? Spain never can repay the United States or the world for so misruling Cuba as to compel us to take the field. Large expenditures of money, of industries, of time, of life have been made. We make no account of them. But, in the fortunes of war—and our appeal was to the God of Battles—the Philippines have fallen to us. Cuba will share the same lot. It is right for us to accept both responsibilities, until good government and a better state of things are assured to both.

We may decide to exact no indemnity, but even if we did, indemnity is not for revenge. It is not for material aggrandizement. It is merely an administration of a decision made by the God of Battles. Germany kept Alsace-Lorraine. France had put Germany to the expense of an unnecessary war. That was something in compensation. But, Germany also demanded one billion dollars in money. We are fighting for philanthropy. Shall we let up our antagonist as though philanthropy is to pay the bills? Let it be that indemnity will still further disable this mediæval tyranny. Is this not just what the best interest of the world requires? Let Spain know, and let the world remember, that there is a power among the nations that stands for the right against the wrong, and that when the wrong kicks the beam, it is becoming that she suffer the penalty she has provoked.

The Time of Awakening.

THERE comes a time in every man's life when he wakes up to an appreciation of his sinful nature. The thought may not have enough heft to fell him—it may only be like the flash of a cloud at the close of a hot summer day—but the man must somehow get rid of that feeling. One man flies to prayer, another man stimulates himself with ardent spirits, another man dives deeper into secularities. It is not wonderful when a man sees his eternity poised on an uncertainty, that he is determined to do something violent and immediate. Now, can it be that there is in all our circle of acquaintance, one man who is unwilling to have the cancer of sin taken from his soul, when the divine Surgeon is ready to do the work, and do it successfully? We cannot believe it.

The first thing for you to do if you are oppressed with a sense of your sinfulness, is to go and tell Jesus. Why, my friends, that is the business of Christ. He does other things, but we think the great business of Christ is to pardon. To relax the grip of death from your soul, and to plant your unshackled foot on a golden throne, Christ allowed the tortures of the bloody mount to transfix him. With the beam of his own cross he will quickly crush in the door of your dungeon. Out of his own thorny crown he will pick enough gems to make your brow blaze with eternal victory.

We have heard people say they were never tempted—people who have come to middle life that never have been tempted. It is because they have never tried to do right! If a man be handcuffed and hobbled, and he lie quiet, he does not test the power of the chain or the manacle; but let him once try to rise up and break off the shackles, then he finds out the power of the chain. If you do not know the power of temptation, it is because you are bound hand and foot to sin, and have never made the attempt to be emancipated. Why, it is easy enough to row down stream in a boat. You can lie upon your oars. You go just as the tide goes. But suppose you turn around and head up stream, then it is not so easy making progress. As long as you go down with the tide of sin and iniquity it is easy enough to go that way, but when you turn around and head toward God and heaven, then it is a struggle—an awful struggle.

God's Remembrance.

WE never liked "Remember the Maine" as a watchword for revenge. But we are ready to study God's providences as to our naval operations. We believe the Maine was destroyed maliciously by Spanish hands. It was one of the most awful deeds that could be perpetrated. At Manila, on the other hand, the Spanish fleet was utterly destroyed; at Santiago the story was exactly repeated. This with the loss of scarcely a life. It was as though God's avenging angels had drawn the sword of war, remembering the Maine in the sight of all the earth. It was as though God's protecting angels covered the heads of our seamen, covered the decks of our vessels, lest some ill should befall them, as though a voice came from heaven: "Be still and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the heathen. I will be exalted in all the earth."

A Free Church in Cuba.

WHEN Cuba is ours to redeem, we must insist on a Free Church. The present ecclesiastical arrangements there are an inheritance of the middle ages, come down to this generation from the period of the Inquisition. Indeed, Spain and the Inquisition are regarded by the popular mind as virtually synonymous. Since the twelfth and fourteenth centuries a new life of Christianity has filled the earth. That Christianity is best illustrated by Americans. With the "Stars and Stripes" unfurled over Cuba, must go that type of Christianity. We should not need to repeat the long struggles through which we have attained this great freedom. It has been bought for her by the blood of free Americans.

With Cuba free, let us have a Free Church. And let President McKinley see to that. We cannot doubt that he will do anything less. To this end, not only American Protestants, but, also American Catholics must bend their energies. A free ballot, should that come, as come it will, requires free churches and free schools. Let us have them.

THE VINE OF THE WORLD.

THE tendrils of the grape vine have twined themselves around the heart of humanity; and if—as all later theologians believe—by this fruit came sin and all our woe, there is a beautiful propriety in the fact that in the juice of the grape is hidden the mystery of the expiation for sin. Before the deluge, the cultivation of the grape and the making of wine must have been understood, or Noah would not, so soon after it, have planted a vineyard and abused the blessing thereof. Indeed it is not unlikely that the sin of habitual drunkenness may have been one of the causes of the deluge.

Next to wheat, no plant is so universal, and even in the most ancient times, from India to Egypt, the vine was prized, and nowhere more so, before the era of Christ, than in Palestine. The value placed upon its careful culture is shown by the permission given in Deuteronomy 20:6 for the man who had planted new vineyards to be excused from going to war. Judah is metaphorically said to have washed his garments in wine, and the prophets frequently used the vine as the type of the Jewish nation. Again, the Gospel depicts the labor of humanity under the emblem of the vineyard of the Lord, while Jesus Christ—with an intimate knowledge of all its symbolic beauty—emphatically accepts it as his type, and says: "I am the true vine."

The vine has a wonderful history, but it is of its personal characteristics I am at this time going to write. These are very interesting. First, notice what a generous, good-natured plant it is, not at all too particular about conditions. It gives lavishly and regularly; and, with the beautiful modesty of true generosity, conceals its magnificent clusters beneath a veil of leaves. Even if we expose the fruit, it will soon adapt itself again. Other crops drain and impoverish the land; the vine, in scattering its dead leaves on it, gives more than a compensation for what it has taken.

Of all plants, it is the friendliest and most affectionate. It loves to climb and cling. It has much to say to every tree near it; and supports itself confidingly on the stateliest of them. It has no fear of being unwelcome, but throws out its tendrils here and there, and is willing to embrace whatever support is offered, and to repay that support—though it be but a bare pole—with translucent clusters of its best fruit. The French naturalist, Toussenal, tells a most charming story of a grape vine in his father's garden, which, not content to garland the southern face of an immense wall, scaled its crest, in order to be friendly with the espalier in the next garden. The most cordial friendship existed between the two trellises. But one day came a new master to the next house, who wishing to add a few feet to the dividing wall, severed the tendrils which bound together the friendly vines. The first autumn afterwards, the harvest from both vines diminished one-half in weight and flavor; the next three years, both of them put forth only wood; and it was decided to tear them down, when one morning in April the down of the buds of both trellises opened, and allowed a double gemmula to be seen, the sure promise of a rich harvest. The branches, which had been separated three years before, had met above the wall, and five months afterwards, amid the joy of harvest, the owner said: "Do you know this is very queer, the coalition of these two vines, which three years ago gave each other the word to strike, and then resumed bearing at the same time?"

Now, why did these two vines refuse to bear? Because in separating the two friendly espaliers, they were subjected to the order of the cloister, condemned to silence, and a destiny forced on them, which they refused. They re-entered the path of fecundity and joyfulness, when they re-entered the path of mutual attraction and helpfulness, and may not this little vegetable drama of Toussenal's teach us a lesson of Christian unity?

Nothing indeed could be more natural and appropriate than it was in Christ to say, "I am the true vine." Some teachers love images, which show forth their learning; Christ never took his comparisons from the arts and sciences, he chose the natural objects intelligible to all. And like the vine, how full of fellowship he is! How rich! How generous! How ready to enrich the humblest pole, or the most stately tree! At Hanover, Pennsylvania, a vine in 1840 bore 4,000 clusters; but in Christ, all fullness dwells.

Its fruit is meat and drink and medicine. And Christ brings us more than angel's food, for

> "Never did angels taste above, > Redeeming grace and dying love," and as the vine yields shade from the [illegible], the Church says: "I sat under his shadow with delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste."

The comfort, however, of the image goes far further, for if Christ is the vine, we are the branches. Then we are part of the vine, and no one can say, "I did not hurt the vine, I only injured the branches." For the branches and the vine are of the same wood, and nourished by the same sap; and they that are the Lord's, are of one spirit; "the same mind is in them, which was also in Christ Jesus." Again, the branch does not bear the tree, but the tree that bears the branches; then as Christ says, "Abide in me." And as the branches are the beauty and excellence of the vine, and blossom and bear fruit, so we also are to be filled with the fruits of righteousness, unto the praise and glory of God. See even how Nature may be the handmaid of the, and how truly

> "One impulse from the vernal wood
> May teach us more of man;
> Of moral evil, and of good,
> Than all the sages can."

Amelia E. Barr

BRIEF NOTES.

Charles Elmer Furman has been conducting a very successful evangelistic work at [illegible] wins, L. I. Other Long Island villages will be visited.

The first Baptist chapel in Switzerland was recently opened at Zurich, in one of the principal streets of the city. It has a seating accommodation for 650, with pastor's house.

Sunday is strictly observed in Honolulu, the capital of our new Hawaiian possessions. "There is no saloon, no gambling-place open," writes Brother Woo Ming, the Chinese missionary there, but all quiet."

Visitors to Jerusalem have been much surprised to hear Handel's "Rejoice, O daughter of Zion," played by the Turkish military band which is practising special music in expectation of a visit of the German Emperor.

The Mother's Circle is the name of a society of Christian women which has been doing excellent work for our soldiers on the Pacific coast. They meet once or twice a week, and look after the comforts of the men, and especially of the sick.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, pastor of the New Court Congregational Church, London, and one of the Keswick leaders of England, is spoken of as probable successor to Rev. John Hall, of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York.

Miss Mamie E. Melton, who went to Osaki, Japan, from Jacksonville, Ills., writes of her joy in the work of that mission. Kuassa, the name of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society school there—means "Fountain of Living Waters."

Miss Helen Gould, with several other members of the Women's National War Relief Association, visited the hospital ship Relief previous to its departure from New York, and gave $500 to be expended in providing for the comfort of the patients on the vessel.

The American Bible Society has instructed Rev. John R. Hykes, D.D., its agent in China, to visit Manila and learn what opportunities there now are, or are likely to offer, for the circulation of the Scriptures. It is also proposed, as speedily as possible, to resume the work in Porto Rico, which was suspended two years ago.

The effort being made in Australia to unite Methodists of the Wesleyan variety, Primitives and others in one strong church is meeting with success. Union has been already recognized in Queensland. In South and West Australia it is to be accomplished next year, when the first conference of the united bodies is to be held at Adelaide in March.

Rev. John T. Vine, the well-known evangelist, has returned to New York after a successful campaign in England. He has conducted services at Dr. T. J. Barnardo's Mission and Mr. Charrington's East End Mission in London and in other cities. Mr. Vine intends labor in his own country next season. His address is 141 West Forty-seventh street, New York.

The annual report of the Presbyterian Church (North) shows that the number of communicants is now 975,877. Additions on confession of faith were 57,041, thirty more than in the previous year. The ministerial roll is 7,190, and the membership about 28,000. The total number of churches is 7,635, an increase of four over the previous year. The total contributions for all purposes aggregate $13,503,561, of which $749,497 was for foreign missions.

The managers of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, make a request with which we gladly comply. They ask us to notify any of our readers who may have young relatives or friends newly come to New York, that if they will send their names and addresses to Mr. Robert A. [illegible], 4 West Forty-sixth street, New York, he will see that they are invited to the Bible class for young men or young women in connection with the church and are welcomed to the church. Such an act is of great value to a young man or young woman who is alone a stranger in a great city.

The Jews of Jerusalem take a lively interest in such news of our war with Spain as reaches them. Appreciating the liberty Jews enjoy in the United States, they go often to the Wailing Place to offer prayers for the victory of the United States. Chief Rabbi Salant took part in one special service which was attended by the United States Consul and his staff, as also by the wives of the Consul and American Consuls. Rabbi Salant composed a prayer for the occasion, which was offered after the recital of portions of the Psalms. The prayer and sermon expressed the sympathy of the Jews and the people of the United States in their struggle on behalf of the victims of Spanish oppression.

Holland's Royal Pageant.

DUTCH statesmen and the general public of the little Kingdom of the Netherlands are busy preparing for a series of celebrations of national interest. Their young Queen, Wilhelmina, ai her majority on August 31, and is to e s mnly inaugurated and invested h r royal functions. In other mon- i countries, the ceremonies would c ed a coronation, but the Dutch p ure conservative and they do not their monarch, but take an h m her that she will do er d , and on their part give a ath of fidelity. Wilhel- a as been Queen since 0. hen her father, Wil- m l. died, but as she en only ten years t l duties of the crown e len performed by her th Queen Emma, who de regent. Under e D ch constitution, as e e English, the mon- . woman, is deemed be f age at eighteen, a Wilhelmina attains at the end of this t her mother's func- s ase, and Wilhelmina n Queen in fact as well nne. The ceremonies of lhion are to be very elabo- e a the accompanying festivi- w cover a period of about two ks The chief ceremony is to take e the Nieuwe Kerk, or great church merdam where the Queen's father, d her and great-grandfather were ted. There the combined houses e ates General, the Parliament of f, will assemble, and the Queen m t them, either wearing the royal n r having it borne on a cushion reer. Standing at the head of the rc she will recite the oath prescribed e Constitution, pledging herself to nc nd guard the independence and o of the empire, to protect the t her subjects, and to "foster uphold the national and individual b g as a good queen should do;" ngwith the prayer: "And may God n" The response comes from the s d t of the States General who, in ne of the Dutch people, swears y her and promises to maintain ri ts of her crown. Each of the b of the States General individu- m es the same promise. A clergy- th offers prayer and thus the sim- u impressive ceremony comes to a . he festivities which will follow g e next few days, are to include e sns of representative princes from ans East Indian possessions, naval ew nd illuminations of the city. The h ople are full of enthusiasm and v r proud of their girl queen, who has efully educated and is said to thoughly well-equipped for the du- of er exalted station. It may be e r the sake of both queen and na- t the promises of her girlhood b lfilled and that the prayer with h closes her inaugural oath will be en o her lips, that she may fulfill the ne al of a sovereign:

The G of Israel said: he that ruleth over n mu be just, ruling in the fear of God (II uel 3).

WILHELMINA, QUEEN OF THE NETHERLANDS—THE ROYAL PALACE.

Croo n Uniform.

An rest at Camp Black a few days o ap ars to have thwarted a cunning eme Among the early enlistments in Y k was a man who was very anx- s to oin a regiment that was soon g the front. He was accepted and t to amp Black. From the day of s arr l he proved to be a disturbing emen n the regiment. He was arro- nt, d neering and quarrelsome. One ght offensive manners provoked a awl a canteen, which became a general fight. The camp guard was sent to suppress it; but the men, urged on by the man who had caused the trouble resisted, and he personally insulted the officer in command. As the ringleader, he was put in the guard-house. It happened that two detectives from New York were on a visit to the camp when the prisoner was brought in, and they looked at him closely. His features seemed so familiar that they followed him to the guard-house for closer inspection. There they recognized him as a notorious crook, whose arrest the police of the city have long been trying to effect. The officers of the regiment have been notified, so when the prisoner has suffered the penalty of his military offence, he will be handed over to the civil authorities to be tried for the robberies he has committed. He has himself to thank for the failure of his scheme, which clearly was to baffle the police, who, as he must have known, were searching for him. He might have succeeded but for this escapade. One would have thought that a man who had enlisted to escape the penalty of wrongdoing, would have had the sense to behave himself as a soldier. But he seems to have been incapable of acting rightly in any capacity. This trait is not uncommon in criminals, and must be sadly discouraging to those who hope that the impenitent after death may be restored and permitted to enter heaven.

Let favor be showed to the wicked, yet will he not learn righteousness: in the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly (Isa. 26 : 10).

A New Element.

News comes from Italy that still another element hitherto unknown to man has been discovered. Elementary substances are those which cannot be resolved into anything more simple than themselves. Twenty years ago it was believed that there were only sixty three such substances in the world, but since then, six new elements have been added to the list, the latest being argon, the gas forming a minute component part of the air. It was known that there was another element in the sun, as the spectroscope showed in the sun's halo a definite green line, which had never been found in the spectrum of anything on earth. Various suggestions were made as to the cause of this green line, but eventually it was agreed that it must come from some unknown element. Now, however, the element has been found in Italy. Three Italian chemists who have been analyzing certain volcanic mineral springs, applied the spectroscope to the emanations of these waters, and were amazed and delighted to discover the green line which it was supposed could come only from the element peculiar to the sun. Extremely minute as the element must be, in comparison with the quantity in the sun, the discovery shows that the constitution of our planet is identical with that of the great luminary. If men could only realize the fact, it is possible in like manner, for them to be of the same nature as God himself, or as the Apostle Peter said, "partakers of the divine nature," to actually become God-like through the Holy Spirit given to all who seek.

One God and Father of all, who is above all and through all, and in you all (Eph. 4 : 6).

Diagnozed by Dogs.

A singular fact not generally known, which may be useful in this intensely hot weather, is communicated by a veterinary surgeon to a New York journal. He says that dogs detect at once a case of rabies in another dog. He mentions an illustration of the fact which occurred recently in Brooklyn, N. Y. A man was strolling along Fulton street, with a pug dog at his heels. Suddenly the dog gave a low howl and rolled over on the pavement. He recovered in a few minutes and stood up. His owner sat down on a step to let the dog rest. Presently the animal gave another howl and appeared to have a fit. Several persons stopped to look at him, and among them was a man with a St. Bernard dog. No sooner did the big dog hear the howl of the pug than he gave a cry and ran off at his fastest speed. Other dogs were about, but they, too, at the sound of that howl ran away. A man came up with a bull dog which he was leading by a chain. He said he understood dogs, and examining the pug declared that there was no need to kill him as some of the bystanders suggested; for it was only a fit that the dog had. But the pug gave another howl, and the bull dog the man was leading struggled to get away, and almost strangled himself in his frantic pulling at his collar. "You cannot be too quick in killing him," he said, reversing his former opinion. "My dog knows what is the matter with him better than I did." When he heard that the other dogs had run away, he was confirmed in his opinion. While they were waiting for a policeman to kill him, the pug sprang into the air, whirled around, frothed at the mouth and gave unmistakable signs of rabies. By this time a policeman came up, and with a bullet ended the poor creature's sufferings. Evidently dogs are quicker than men to recognize the symptoms of rabies, and though they cannot help or cure, they have the sense to get out of the way of injury. Men are not always so wise, when infidels and blasphemers in their madness of rebellion against God, utter their ravings. They sometimes pay to listen to them instead of trying to escape injury by avoiding them.

Surely the serpent will bite without enchantment and a babbler is no better (Eccles. 10 : 11).

His Last Thoughts.

A pathetic incident is reported by a newspaper correspondent with the army at Santiago. Referring to the deplorable lack in our system of the arrangements existing in European armies for the rescue and relief of the wounded, especially to what is known as "bearer corps," whose duty it is to search along the line of fire for wounded men and carry them to the hospital, he mentions an incident which came under his own observation. Seated under a tree, he saw a soldier who looked as if he was alive. Coming nearer, the correspondent saw that he was dead. He had evidently been wounded and had tried to crawl back to camp. He had struggled along about half way, and then, his strength failing, he had sat down and died. In one hand he held the photograph of his wife, and in the other, a photograph of a group of his children. They were evidently the last objects on which his eyes rested before they closed in death. In those sad moments, it was not of the passion or the glory of war that he thought, but of the loved ones in their peaceful home far away. One may hope that he may have had in his sorrow the comfort of the promise which has sustained many a dying man:

Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive; and let thy widow trust in me (Jer. 49 : 11).

Funeral for a Living Man.

An unnecessary funeral service was held recently at Riverside, Mass. A young man from that town is a sergeant in the Massachusetts volunteers, and was in the thick of the terrible fight on San Juan hill. He was hit three times by the flying bullets, and the third struck him on the head and stunned him. A major saw him fall, and dragged him out of the range into the bushes and there left him. He lay in a dazed condition for some time, and when he tried to get back to his quarters, he, like many others, lost his way in the chaparral. His comrades who had seen him fall concluded when he did not return, that he was dead, and his name was inserted in the list of the killed. His family saw it and grieved over his death. His father determined that although the body could not be found, a funeral service should be held. The young sergeant being popular in his native town, there was a large attendance at the service and all had some appreciative words to say of his character. Meanwhile the young sergeant had found his way to Siboney and was getting well under medical treatment. The Olivette brought him among the wounded to Brooklyn and once more his name appeared in the lists, but this time among the living. His father hurried to Brooklyn and had the happiness of taking him home to be nursed back to health. To his family and friends it seems like a resurrection from the dead. The Apostle Paul describes an analogous experience which, when a man passes through it, so changes him that thence forward he, as a new man, lives a new life.

I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith of the Son of God (Gal. 2 : 20).

An Industrious Heiress.

Washing dishes, and other routine housework provoked a young woman of Brooklyn, New York, said to be an heiress to $20,000, to leave the home of a relative and seek protection of a Probate Court. Whether the young woman complained that she had to do too much work or objected to the character of the work, does not clearly appear from the reports, but it is to be hoped and presumed that she was not averse to doing a fair share of the household duties. If she wished to prepare herself for the responsibilities of a home of her own she could have no better schooling than experience in household work in some respectable home: and she should not hesitate to do that work because it may seem tiresome or momentarily disagreeable.

She seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands . . . she looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness (Proverbs 31 : 13-27).

MONT-LAWN'S LITTLE HELPERS.

"Gather Them In"—Ring-a-Rosy—Little Missionaries from Afar—Memorial Gifts—Children Working for Our Children's Home.

A "RING-A-ROSY" AT MONT-LAWN.

SUCH a large, happy "Ring-a-Rosy" as we have here! "teachers" and children all playing together; and would it not be really very nice if some of their distant friends, big and little, could join hands with them? Our children would like it. The guest who comes to Mont-Lawn is sure of welcome. As soon as a vehicle appears in the gateway, cheers begin and ring merrily out from over a hundred little throats. They are hospitable, our children, and grateful for the interest their friends take in them. They are so happy at the Home, and under such benign influences that their hearts go out, with even more than the usual spontaneity of childhood, in response to kindness shown them.

Some of the most beautiful kindness that has come to our children has come through other children; thus, in memorial gifts, little missionaries reach out helpful hands from the better land.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. ($3). The money is the savings found in the toy bank of our own dear little only son, who left us just two months ago. He was three and a half years old, and earned the money himself by performing conscientiously a self-imposed duty, for which his papa paid him five cents a week. We meant to take him with us for his first trip to the shore this summer, and it will afford us pleasure to know that some little one is made happy through our darling, now in the happy land, of which he loved to sing.

Others send:

Two dollars, in memory of little Johnnie; M. C. W. ($1), in memory of a departed darling; A. E. R. ($3), in memory of Fannie.

And here is the way little missionaries from Maine to Florida, and from Massachusetts to California, are working and practicing self-denial for poor children at Mont-Lawn:

Raymond E. Millman ($1) (seven years old) last summer began to save his pennies until now he has enough to send one child.

Rhuy Wood ($1). I am a little girl eleven years old, and my grandma gave me $1 on my birthday, and I send it for a child at Mont-Lawn.

Mabel Cronin: I am a little girl eleven years old. Mamma reads about the little children the HERALD sends to the country. I send fifty cents that will help a little. I wish I had more to send. I live in the country and know how nice it is.

Paul Carter (five years old) earned and sends $1.

G. W. B. sends $1 for the sake of a little girl to whom God has been very good.

Groups of children banded together for good work are giving their prayers to Mont-Lawn—surely the work must prosper where little children are praying for and helping one another.

A Legionarian.—Six dollars from the Harrington Sunday School Children's Day collection for Mont Lawn Home. Also $15 from one who is glad of the chance to give a part of the tenth where it will be so helpful and thankfully received.

Presbyterian Y.P.S.C.E., Charleston, Ill. ($3). Praying that some child may find his Master.

The Junior Endeavor Society of the First Congregational Church of Sidney, N. Y., wish to give some little boy or girl the pleasure of a two weeks' outing at Mont-Lawn, so have sent their offering ($3) to you. God's blessing go with it.

Mrs. B. U.—($10). Contributed by my Sunday School class. My girls are much interested in this charity.

C. M. B.—($3). Would it be possible for the children of my class to know the name of the child benefited? I desire to have them make a personal mention of the child in their prayers. God bless the work.

The children of Mt. Hope S. S. at their children's service took up $2 for Mont-Lawn.

This money ($11) is from the Birthday Bank of the primary class of the Reformed Sunday School of Clifton, N. J., for Mont-Lawn. That the Lord will continue to bless you in your Chist like work is the prayer of the whole primary class.

The Busy Bee Society of Princeton Junction send $2 for Mont-Lawn.

From a band of seven little girls called "The Sunbeams" ($2) to help one little girl go to Mont Lawn.

Little friends in Eldorado County, Calif., send $10.

"Helping Hands," Crenshaw, Pa. ($3). Their first earnings.

Derby, Conn., "I Will Try Band" ($6). Represents work and self-sacrifice.

MATRON COLLINS AND A GROUP OF HER ASSISTANTS.

The following contributions in aid of the work at Mont-Lawn have been received during the week:

Prev. ackd.	$2723 06	Mrs W A Greenough	1 00
John Howard	1 00	E C H, Washington,
2 Sisters, Elmsport	6 00	D C	1 00
Mrs Ella A Perry		John E Smith	3 00
Woodhaven	4 00	William, Bklyn	1 00
Mrs Mary M Miller	9 00	M M Reed	3 00
Josie Knowles	2 00	Mrs J M Allen	2 00
I Will Try Band of Derby Neck Soc	6 00	Barn Festival, Towners	19 00
Geo M Gillespie	2 00	J Clave	2 00
Two friends of the cause, Chanute	1 50	L M Creager & wife	3 00
Mrs D B Traux	1 00	Mrs N Martz	1 00
J W Countryman	1 00	Eddie Russell	1 00
Martha Countryman	1 00	Friend, Lodi	1 00
A M Waterbury	3 00	A Lover of Children, W Summit	1 00
M T H, Hackensack	3 00	L Maynard	25 00
Mrs O J Rollis	1 00	—, Winchester	3 00
Mrs C A Voris	40 00	Ina C Cooper	5 00
Ada Werry	3 00	Mr & Mrs R G Dunn	2 00
L Hazzard	3 00	Jack, E Jefferson	31
I H N, Sodus	1 00	W Underdown	3 00
Two friends, Andrew	1 00	Hattie M Twiss	3 00
I H N, Seneca Falls	5 00	Mr & Mrs Godbold	2 00
Sue E Howe	50	—, Paterson	30 00
Julia B Gregg	3 00	Nels Bruvold	3 00
A tenth, Soquel	7 50	Mrs S A Alley	3 00
Friend, Moravia	1 00	Mrs M A Vandermue len	3 00
C E, Niskayuna	6 00	Subr, Lambertville	3 00
Mrs F W Pinka's S S Class, St Paul	2 50	Mrs A R Wright	5 00
G J Bronwer	1 00	Mary E Shears	3 00
K B, Marceline	3 00	Mrs H, Phila	1 00
Christian Endeavor, Hampton	3 00	—, W Hanover	1 00
Jr C E, Whittling	3 00	C S H, Hermitage	1 00
A F Crossman	3 00	E C L & L E H, Camden	2 00
J N & M H, Grimsby	2 00	Friend, Bridgeton	2 00
Annie Patterson	1 00	Mrs A Bachelor	2 00
A O R, No Lansing	10 00	Martha E Haynes	1 00
—, Ames	3 00	M C C, Montrose	3 00
Mrs M L Albertson	5 00	I H N, Cincinnati	3 00
Anna Albertson	1 00	Miss F A Baker	3 00
L W, Middletown	10 00	H L F, Kansas City	1 00
A A Perdomo	3 00	L A Wentworth	1 00
E J Acton	1 00	Mr & Mrs W T Dodd	5 00
Jas Mc C Sieg	6 00	G R, Junction City	2 00
Sarah A Calhoun	3 00	Sunday School, Daytona	6 00
Mrs T Mountcastle	1 00	Mrs O Shanklin	5 00
Infelice, Ches'peake Cy	3 00	Wm Nichols	1 00
Mrs R M Kellogg	3 00	Christian Endeavorer Troy	1 00
Chris J Christensen	1 00	Friend, Carson City	1 00
Rufus Lord	5 00	Mrs H M Maxson	1 00
Mrs Myra Merrill	1 00	T W Riday	1 00
Mr & Mrs O S Mills	18 00	Wm Brewster	9 30
Madeline, Yonkers	3 00	Auntie & L, Hartford	3 00
Friend, Aspen	5 00	Mrs D S, Noyes	1 00
Ida Piper	1 00	X Y, Coos	1 00
Mr & Mrs E H Letterman	5 00	Martha A Barnes	5 00
Mr L T Chamberlain	5 00	Mrs Roscoe Brown	50
H C H, Syracuse	3 00	Mrs M W White	50
Mrs S A Cochran	3 00	Mrs Wood	3 00
A countrywoman, Le Roy	1 00	Q X Z, Central Falls	1 00
—, Rockford	3 00	Mrs Wilkinson	3 00
Friend & Reader, Dartmouth	3 00	Mrs E S Hicks	3 00
Friend, Can	3 00	F M Hex	70
" Corunna	1 00	—, Worlendyko	4 00
" Westgrove	3 00	Adela L Ians	50
Subr, Edisto	2 00	Friend, Fonthill	3 00
Hattie Butcher	1 00	In Jesus Name, Rip Raps	1 00
Mrs A B Sheldon	1 00	Miss Ada Watkins	1 00
F Van Wormer Walsh	3 00	Mrs C E Watkins	1 00
J Quelch	1 00	C E Walkins	1 00
A little boy & girl, Capps	2 00	H S B, Amesbury	1 00
F L Putnam	3 00	A J Throop	3 00
Charlotte Ryland	6 00	W F M	3 00
A N Parry	1 00	Addie Shepard	75
Elizabeth Backman	3 00	Wyatt Williams	25
E Carlson	3 00	Henry Kiel	1 00
Eva Brown	50	Friend, Tarrytown	5 00
Fannie Brown	2 50	Friends, Hunneston	3 00
Miss Jean Day	3 00	Brandy Camp Union S S	1 00
Reader Bunker Hill	1 00	R V M, Worry	50
S J Love	2 00	A Kings Daughter Worry	50
Miss Almira Haynes	10 00	Delphine, Asbury Pk	5 00
Miss Taylor	1 00	Mrs A L Fisher	1 00
Mrs E F T, Bklyn	3 00	Mrs Platt Smith	1 00
E G Deitz	1 00	Mrs David Clark	2 00
Friends, Griswold	3 00	Mrs F C G, N Belfast	2 00
Mrs J G Shoemaker, Newark	5 00	J C M, Emlenton	2 00
Friend, Newburgh	3 00	Mary H Bancroft	3 00
I H N, E Orange	3 00	Friend, Mystic	3 00
John Beltman	25	I M S, Seneca Falls	3 00
Mrs Geo Bennett	10	B'd of Helping Hands Greenshaw	3 30
Elva & Mattie Smith	1 00
Miss E M Pitcher	1 00	Total	$3,350.52

All contributions for this purpose will be acknowledged in these columns.

SORTING THE FLOWERS FOR THE HOSPITALS AT THE FRUIT AND FLOWER MISSION.

Blooms that Brighten Sick-rooms

(Continued from first page.)

scraps of silk, wool and cotton s[cra]ps. There are a number of Old La[dies'] Homes, to which the mission wo[rkers] carry flowers, and it occurred to the to take these scraps there, as aged [la]dies might find interest in using them [for] patchwork. The old ladies were delig[hted] they wanted all the scraps they coul[d get], and when Christmas came, lo! these [kind] workers sent piles of neat, warm [quilts] they had made, to be given out to [the] poor, with the message that they we[re so] thankful an opportunity for useful[ness] had been opened to them.

The distribution of flowers is don[e by] the voluntary service of ladies conn[ected] with the mission, who visit the hosp[itals], homes, asylums and infirmaries. [Mis]sions, day nurseries and industrial sc[hools] send to them for flowers. The tene[ments] are supplied through various so[cieties]. Special cases of sickness or destitu[tion] brought to their notice, are visited at o[nce] Missionaries or "Bible readers," emp[loyed] by the New York Bible Society, visit the tenements, apply to the m[ission] for flowers and delicacies. Nurse[s] longing to the Society for Improvi[ng the] Condition of the Poor are also furn[ished] with flowers, fruits and delicacies. [The] Cuban refugees in the city have [been] helped, especially in the gifts of c[lothing] which they appreciate highly, no[tably] ing for tea.

Some of the people into whose [homes] this mission has placed flowers had [not] before owned a flower. People wh[o see] the flowers should see child fac[es] older faces (many of them used to l[ives] careworn, and often wicked) light [up] at sight of the pretty blossoms. A[ll] should see how much good is d[one] impoverished homes by fruit and del[icacies] for the sick. People from great di[stance] send the latter, and the express com[panies] are helping forward the good w[ork] making no charges on packages [of] twenty pounds. The officers of th[e mis]sion are: Mrs. George Morton [Van] President; Mrs. Gherardi Davis, [Vice] President; Mrs. H. Le Roy Cox, Tre[asurer] Mrs. Waddington, Recording Sec[retary] Mrs. William L. Elselfer, Corresp[onding] Secretary. The Distributing Com[mittee] is composed of Miss Jeanie Dunc[an], Miss Ellen King, and there is an ad[visory] committee of gentlemen. The [store]rooms are open on Tuesdays and F[ridays] and flowers and perishable del[icacies] should be sent so as to reach the [store] in the Amity Building as nearly [noon] sible on those days. It is desired [that] donations be accompanied by nam[es and] address of donor, and that a list [of] tents be placed inside each box o[r bas]ket.

THE FAMILY AND HOME CIRCLE

The Old Soldier.

Grandfather as a Story-Teller—The Veteran's View of War.

More tient than a father's—his the ripe, wee isdom of long years, the love mature,
Who gives without exacting,

GRANDFATHER usually knows a good many stories to tell, and the grandfather in our picture can doubtless relate most interesting experiences from his own life, since he is a Grand Army n, nd his snowy beard is an evi- ence hat he went through the trying s the sixties. We are sure if he s l these stories to his little grand- s, will be in a way that, while it ke hem honor patriotism and cour- ge. vl not make them eager for war -for en who have borne the brunt of ttleest know its horrors—yet there e my beautiful things to tell about th soldier's life—the very things t se us grieve that he needs to be sol r. There is the story of the e narch; of generous help to faint- ades; of hardships patiently en- f long nights, when, with lids or sleep, he was faithful to l kept awake at his sentry's ; how the delicacy sent him was to the sick soldier who needed of the letters he got from home; tters he wrote home; and, best how, when an enemy was in r. he was gentle and merciful. o. he can tell of the Testament he to him from wife, mother, or f how he read it by camp-fires; ent with him into battle, and, of how it turned a bullet from st.

a irginia home during the sixties, of women were making up a cel of things, to be returned to orthern home should chance r. There was a sword, a lock some letters, a miniature, and The latter was a small, thin worn and blood-stained. On eaf was written, "To Albert mother." On another, "Re- my boy, that your mother's are with you. Do not cast k away. Carry it with you le. When you bring it back to ert, I shall know you prized her's gift. I want to hold this my hands again." Was it any that those Southern mothers s were reverently and tearfully these things away to send to rthern mother? A Southern ut in a little note of her own ow sorry she was; that she had im; that he had fallen with this his breast and died with it un- llow. After the war was over, age went home, and a friend- ch lasted until one of them ng up between the Northern thern mothers. Many golden this were forged out of the tu- sorrows of our civil strife; for irit is everywhere, teaching les- ove. Even though swords are and cannon booming, the "still ice" can make itself heard. the wrath of man shall praise the remainder of wrath shalt rain." Grandpa, in our picture, g accounts of our present war tle grandchildren, and though true and patriotic Americans the flag and the soldiers who t, and are proud Grandpa is an er, we can see that Grandpa has them to love war for war's sake.

Pair Clogs.

In of the most magnificent drawing- oms Yorkshire, England, the visitor old in a glass case a pair of factory ssies' logs, such as are worn about Bradford, Leeds, and other manufacturing towns. The mistress of the mansion, once a factory girl, and now the generous dispenser of wide charities, is proud of her old days of faithful toil, and takes pains to call attention to the fact that she is in truth the sister of the workingwomen, and of God's poor, whom she tries to help.

Japanese Neighbors.

When people move into a new neighborhood in Japan, they are expected to make the first calls on neighbors and to give a present of money; the amount of the gift depending upon social status and the locality. Who is one's neighbor is a question settled differently in different parts of the empire; in some places you have five, the houses on either side of you and the three opposite; in other places you are expected to do the first honors and make gifts to nine houses.

THE OLD SOLDIER AND HIS GRANDCHILDREN.

A Traveling Society.

A party of working girls, all employed in the same establishment, resolved themselves recently into a travel society, in modest imitation of wealthier ladies in their town, who, before going on journeys to an unfamiliar country, study the customs, history, geography, etc., of that country, and on returning from such a journey, talk over their experiences together, exchange ideas, compare notes, and frequently, in the bosom of their own little charmed circle, deliver finished lectures. Our working girls have just begun. This summer each started off on her vacation with note-book and pencil, and jotted down observations in a free-and-easy way, for they did not intend turning holiday into labor. When all are home again, they will meet in the evenings at each other's houses, and read or tell the result to the others. In this way, each girl gets in a way the benefits of many journeys and experiences, and becomes familiar with parts of the country which she has not seen. And all the while an attractive feature of social home-life is being inaugurated, and kindly feeling fostered.

Little Fathers.

Two young ladies who went "slumming" and "playing missionary"—a pretty play in which they made many poor children happy—in describing their experiences, mention an East-side character, which is perhaps too little known:

There is a great deal written and said about the "little mothers" among the poor. One doesn't hear any sentiment about the little fathers; and yet they deserve it. Now that school days are over, the boys seem to have the lion's share of the baby tending business. Almost every East-side door-step is occupied by an eight or nine-year-old boy who despondently joggles a baby wagon, or trots a baby on his knee or keeps a watchful eye on a scrap of humanity that is tumbling about the sidewalk. He is good to the baby, this little father. He rescues it, and consoles it, and amuses it with real professional skill, although he watches with longing eyes the free boys who are playing in the middle of the street.

Perhaps these little fathers, in their blessed experience of love and service, are more fortunate than the poor little children of the rich, for whose little brothers and sisters hired servants do everything.

My Lady.

In my poor cot there dwelleth not
A lady lulled in laces
And satins fine; none such is mine.
But very sweet her face is:
For God, when first her heart did beat,
Smiled on her face and made it sweet.

Frank L. Stanton in Songs of the Soil. D. Appleton & Co.

BETTER AND WORSE.

"And how is my little girl to-day?"
A mother tenderly said,
As she stroked the little one's shining curls,
And knelt by the side of the bed.

"I'm a little better to-day, mother, dear,"
And she lifted her little white hand;
"And though I'm still very sick, mother, dear,
I know I will quickly mend."

The doctor came. With her hand in his,
"She's a little worse," said he,
"She's growing weaker all the time—
I fear she will soon be free."

"O! I'm very much better, mother," she said.
"I just feel like I want to play;
But the good old doctor gazed on her face,
And knew she was passing away.

"I'm entirely better, dear mother; good-bye—
I'm perfectly well," she said.
But the doctor turned, and with weeping eyes,
Said: "The little one is dead."

—GEORGE LANG, JR.

The Afro-American Servant.

ONE of the most memorable conferences ever held by Afro-Americans, is that which occurred last month at Hampton Institute. Practical problems were considered by members and speakers in a practical manner, the conference wisely determining that the first step towards altering unpleasant facts is to look them squarely in the face—a thing which this conference did in a manner which their white compatriots can hardly improve upon. Dr. Furman J. Shadd, of Washington, D. C., in his able paper suggesting means by which Afro-Americans may diminish the mortality of their race, struck the keynote of the spirit in which other questions were considered when he said:

"It is our duty to stop quibbling over criticism and set to work to stop alarming causes. Facts and statistical data cannot be brushed away with the rejoinder that they were collected by prejudiced agents."

Victoria Earl Matthews, of the White Rose Mission in New York, treated with forcible candor the question of the disappearance of the Afro-American servant from domestic service in New York in her paper "The Dangers Confronting Southern Girls in Northern Cities." She said: "So questionable have been the operations of certain agencies in bringing young girls from the South, that Afro-American girls are now regarded as morally unreliable by the employing class. Every honest girl, in leaving her Southern home in search of work in Northern cities must expect to meet this distrust, which in most cases serves as an insurmountable barrier to securing desirable employment. So many of the careless, untrained, shiftless class have been taken North simply as 'blinds,' and imposed upon people desiring domestics of this Southern class, for the special purpose of lessening the demand, that the demand has greatly fallen off. Employing agents engaged in importing Southern girls into New York, cannot get as much money in fees from respectable people as from the disreputable class, hence every effort is made to increase the demand among the latter. Our girls and women must become enlightened. They must get into the habit of investigating things and stop placing themselves involuntarily in the hands of strangers. If they have no means of knowing something of the agent let them remain at home."

We will add to Mrs. Matthews' paper that among colored and white domestics as well, domestic service needs to be raised to the dignity of a fine art. In every school and college domestic science—the one upon which home-making and home-keeping depend—should certainly have equal importance with Greek, Latin, biology, athletics, and the study of far-away stars.

The Duck's Dilemma.

There is a story of a distressed hen who, having hatched out a setting of duck-eggs, nearly lost her mind when she saw her brood sail off on the pond. Here is the reverse side as related by a poulterer of Phillipsburg, N. Y. His little boy, "just for fun," slipped a hen's egg into the duck's nest; the old duck mothered the chick, when it came along, all right, and promptly took it down to the pond with the rest of her brood. The ducklings of course set sail, but chickie stood on the bank peeping dismally. Mother Duck came back and dutifully pushed it in the water, in which it fared so badly that she picked it up with her bill, and carried it back to shore. The poulterer says she is still trying to give that chick swimming lessons, and evidently thinks it the queerest duckling she ever knew.

OLD BEN'S SACRIFICE . . . .

Written Specially for "The Christian Herald"
By Wilfred Mortimer Pease . . . .

"I NEVER was much on religion before two years ago," said Sheriff Haight, while we were seated in his cozy sitting-room one evening. "But something happened in our family then that rather changed my views. I had a very hard case on hand at the time. One of the paymasters down at the Dover Iron Works had been waylaid and robbed of about $3,000. We were pretty hot on the trail of the highwayman, and expected to land him in jail within a week. Well, one evening, while I was working on some papers in the case, my daughter Bessie came into the room and putting her arms around my neck, said, 'Papa, they have started revival meetings at our church, and every one has been asked to try and bring a soul to God. Now, I want you to help me.'

"I laughed and said, 'Well, Bess, I don't know how an old sinner like me is to help you in such a matter; but if you'll tell me how, I will.' 'All right, papa. I have thought of a plan. I am to have the privilege of reading to the prisoners, and giving them books whenever I wish.'

"I told her I would think over it. The next night I received a message from my lieutenant, in Newark, to come at once, that he had the culprit located, and wanted me to help in trapping him. As I was going out the door, Bessie came to kiss me good-bye, and said, 'Papa, don't forget.'

"The case had been worked down to a fine point, and the next morning we captured our man. As I glanced at his face, it seemed as if I had seen him before, but I was not positive. On the way up to Dover, however, it suddenly dawned upon me that my prisoner was old Ben Nesbitt, or the 'Rabbit,' as he had been christened by his 'pals.'

"After the hearing, at which 'Old Ben' refused to make a statement, I took him up to the jail, and then went around to the house, thinking on the way that Bessie had a tough case ahead of her, if she wanted to convert 'Old Ben.'

"As soon as I set foot inside the door, she had her arms around my neck, and, between kisses, was eagerly questioning me about my prisoner, and claiming my consent to her plan. To my surprise, she was not at all discouraged at my recital of the thoroughly bad character of 'Old Ben.' Next morning I was called down town on business, and upon my return was somewhat surprised to hear that Bessie had gone to the jail to read to the prisoners. I immediately went around and found her seated on a soap-box, in front of one of the cells, reading to an audience of six. When I entered, the men rose from their seats and were moving away; but I said 'Don't move, boys, I'll sit down, too, and we will hear the story out.'

"She was reading the parable of the prodigal son, and had just reached the scene of the home-coming. 'Old Ben' had not left his cell previous to this; but as Bessie's clear voice sounded through the jail he came out and joined the listening group, and no wonder, for who can resist the thrilling power of that tender and beautiful story?

"Each morning found Bessie at her reading; but at the end of two weeks her audience, through discharges of the men, had dwindled down to two, 'Old Ben' and a boy who was in for stealing coal. That week he, too, was discharged, and Old Ben was left alone. By this time, however, Bessie and he were good friends, and one morning Bess came home with her cheeks flushed with joy, and told us that she had at last induced 'Old Ben' to talk about himself and his boyhood, and that he had even promised to try and read a little from a Testament she had given him.

"'Old Ben's' was a sad story. He had never known his father, and his mother had been a drunkard, so that he had grown up without healthy home influences, without love, and had received nothing but kicks and cuffs from the world until he had slipped into the way of crime and had given the world kick for kick and cuff for cuff.

"He had a fine face, a broad forehead, with large kindly eyes. Shaved and well dressed he might pass anywhere for a prosperous business man.

"On Monday morning of the next week court met, and such a crowd as there was in the small court-room over the jail! 'Old Ben' was brought up, a jury empanelled, and the case went to trial. The first day proved very tedious, and we all left court tired out. I took Ben down stairs and they locked him in the jail. As he was the only prisoner, I had given him the liberty of the whole place during the day and up to nine o'clock in the evening.

'OLD BEN' JOINED THE LISTENERS BEHIND THE BARS.

"Bessie had been unable to have her usual chat with Ben that morning, and when she asked if she might go around for a little while after supper, I told her yes, and after she had gone, settled myself down for a good read and rest.

"Bessie had hardly been gone an hour, when our door-bell rang as though some one was taking a grudge out on it. I opened the door, and there stood little Fred Bailey, gasping for breath. 'Oh, Mr. Haight,' he exclaimed, 'they want you around at the jail right away; something's wrong, and they told me to run for you as fast as I could.' When I reached the jail I found quite a crowd, with 'Old Ben' in the centre, stretched out on a mattress, and Bessie bending over him.

"How it ever happened, no one has been able to tell; but one of the great beams running over the jail became loosened and fell. Poor 'Old Ben' noticed it as it started to fall, and in saving Bessie he had received the whole crushing weight on his back. Gently, I told the boys to bring him around to my house, where I had him placed on a bed in the spare room.

"Dr. Himstone examined him and found that his spine was injured, one leg broken, and a severe cut on his head. I asked the doctor if 'Old Ben' would get well. He shook his head: 'He can live but a short time.'

"All that night I watched by Ben's bed. He lay there unconscious, but kept muttering: 'I loved the little one, save her.' It was two days before he regained consciousness and the first question he asked was, 'Is the little one safe?' When told, "Yes," he sank into a quiet sleep.

"No prisoner ever had such care taken of him as 'Old Ben.' My wife and Bessie lavished attentions upon him. Nothing was too good for him, thought wife and I, because we felt the great debt of gratitude we owed him for saving our darling's life.

"A favorite story of Ben's was 'The Prodigal Son.' How he would listen and coax Bessie to read it over and over again! He would look up and ask wistfully, 'If she thought that God, who she said was his Heavenly Father, would take him to heaven, and would he see the brother that she called Jesus?'

"How my wife would cry at the simple faith of the sin-hardened criminal. 'Old Ben' believed: through Bessie's simple teaching he was learning of God; and daily my wife and Bessie prayed that God in his infinite mercy would forgive, and when the end came, receive Ben into his heavenly kingdom.

"One Sunday evening we were summoned to 'Old Ben's' bedside: the end was near. He was holding Bessie's hand and murmuring, 'You're sure it's all right, little one? You wouldn't tell me wrong, would you? There, don't cry, little Bessie; it's all right; you'll see me again.'

"Tears were running down our cheeks; Ben's pulse was growing fainter and fainter in its beating and his eyes were closed. Suddenly he opened them and looking up at Bessie, said, 'Little one, sing that verse about the dying thief, you know the one I mean.'

"Softly Bessie sang the well-known words:

> "'The dying thief rejoiced to see
> That fountain in his day;
> And there may I, though vile as he,
> Wash all my sins away.'

"'Now tell me the story of the Prodigal again; but tell it slowly, for my mind ain't working right, somehow.'

"Ben closed his eyes, while Bessie told the story. When she had finished he looked up and said very faintly: 'I know I'm goin' now. You're sure it's all right?'

"His eyes closed, but his lips moved and Bessie bent over to listen:

"'Father,' came from the dying lips in a broken whisper, 'You'll take me, won't you? The little one said so, and she was sure—of—it—all—right——,' Then again trustfully 'Father, I have sinned against—no more worthy—make me as one of thy hired servants. Father.——.' That was the last fluttering word.

"And 'Old Ben' went to meet his God. The Prodigal was home at last."

Washington as an Athle.

GENERAL WASHINGTON was fond of athletic sports, and many stories told of him show that if he were living to-day he would doubtless be the champion of his college team or club. One story tells that he once threw a stone from the top of the arch of Natural Bridge, Virginia, while standing on the bed of the stream that runs beneath, two hundred feet below the bridge. One better authenticated is told of the athlete, soldier and artist, Charles Willson Peale, who wrote:

"Some young fellows were 'pitching the bar' on the lawn at Mt. Vernon, when Washington came among them and took the bar. No sooner did the heavy iron feel the weight of his hand than he sent it whizzing through the air, striking the ground far, very far beyond the utmost limits any one had previously thrown it. We were indeed amazed as we stood around, all stripped to the buff in our shirtsleeves rolled up (Washington having stopped to take off his coat, even), and we thought ourselves very clever fellows. Washington, on retiring, pleasantly observed, 'When you beat my pitch, I'll try again.'

Knowledge of the Farm.

The great work of knowing the farm says a writer in The Farmer's Review has just begun, even in the case of the most progressive farmers. When our science has reached a high stage in years to come the manner of treatment of the farm will be far different from that of the present day. There will be a geography of the farm as much as of the nation. The map will show not only geographical but geological. The formations will be carefully studied as any important part of the science. Knowing the composition of every rood of the land, it will be possible to find out the needs of each, and to apply the remedy. The boys and girls want to get off the unknown farm if they really knew the farm they would not be so anxious to forsake them. They would see in them not only the possibility but the certainty of a sure and a return for all their work. Geology, chemistry, botany, agrostatics, hydraulics, and so forth are studies that the farmer's sons and daughters can undertake. They will be found full of delight. With their advent will come a new life to the farm, and a feeling of security to the farmer. Nature is a bountiful mother if she but be studied. We cannot be expected to know all nature, but we can know that part of all nature that is comprised in the little spot we call the farm. Whatever we cultivate an unknown farm is a known farm is the difference between the muscle and the brain. The man that farms an unknown farm, farms by force. He that has a knowledge farm, farms by the power of his mind.

The Christian Herald in the ru

During the week the following has been received to aid in sending THE CHRISTIAN HERALD to troops in the

Prev. ack'd	$843.44
Anderson, Robert	1 00
Baird Mrs M	1 00
Barton, Fred	1 00
Beaty, Mrs Alice W	25
Belden, Mrs S A	1 01
Bisgrove, Eva	25
Blaisdell, Horntio	50
Cass, Miss Hattie	25
Cook, F B	25
Crawford, Mrs John	25
Cryst. J	26
Cummings, Frank	25
Curry, G G	25
Douglas, Mrs M & Misses M & A	1 00
Dring, Chas	50
Gamblin, H S	2 00
Grow, Mrs J C	25
Hollister, Mrs F W	25
Johnson, J D	25
Koerber, Henry	1 00
Lancaster, Mrs F A	1 00
Lawrence, Mrs Anna	25
Leonard, Mrs A C	1 00
McFail, Mary A	25
Massey, Mrs Callie	25
Park, E J	25
Putnam, Mrs Ella A	25
Ralston, Mrs M J	1 00
Walsh, Richard	25
Smith, Mrs H E	25
Smith, Williamson	25
Ware, Mrs Jas F	25
Wasson, Mrs H L	50
Weld, Mary B	1 00
White, Lois L	25
Winter, Emanuel	2 50
F H. Greene
J E D, Trenton
M E P, New Ha
Mrs M F. Ranso
MTA, Atlantic H lands
S W Decorra, Ills
——, Rumpden
Waterloo, Ind
Free Baptist Ch
Windham Cen
Anonymous
Rover, Alleghan
Blair, Miss S E
Davis, Mrs Geo
Gadberry, G P
Hart, J G
Hedley, Mrs M J
Kellogg, Mrs R
Lord Rufus
McClain, J W
Rising, Mrs M J
Rogers, M J
Smith, Rev E G
Switzer, Lucy A
Underwood, J C
Underwood, Wil
Van De Venter,
Ward, H
Wood, Mrs
—, Cleveland, O
—, Jefferson City
A C, Brooklyn
Q X Z, Central L
A Subscriber, W
Total

FRIENDS IN COUNCIL

ew Y k Scenes and Sights—Fashionable Hats—Concerning Perfumery—An Orphan in Search of a Home.

O many of you write letters to me that I think it is only fair for me once in awhile to write a good long letter to you. I wish that a crowd of the out-of-town friends could sometimes take a walk th n in New York on one of these ht lays of the summer. To the r es the scene would vividly recall sting times of our Civil War. Every-e r flag is flying; fluttering from dov and steeples; floating from the ppi in our harbor; here and there eam g over our heads as we cross wide eets nd avenues; never before seem-to lovelier or more worth the na-s lyalty than now. What is our try flag? A bit of silk or bunting, wh e and blue, with alternate stripes twkling stars? Yes, it is that; but mu more. It is an epitome of our try history. Under that flag, shoul-to oulder, brave men have fought; m have died, and it is a flag for h have and true men are still willing figh and under which they are not d die. The true patriot does not at h life dear when his country has d of. Women and children look up he f with eyes alight with love and a young girls trip along with lit-ag pinned to the lapels of their wle you pass few people young or wh clo not somewhere show a touch he n ion's colors in this day of breath-s ense and anxiety. Whatever on y of us held while yet the mat-as indecided, now that we are at wi Spain, we desire that our flag be uccessful and that the tyranny pai on this hemisphere may cease er.

che true hearts' hope and home,
y el hands to valor given;
y s's have lit the welcome dome,
And thy hues were born in heaven.

* * *

KE AY this week I happened to find ell own town in the neighborhood of spar Row at an hour when exciting s w coming from the front. A h y rong of men in close ranks d bore the bulletin boards eagerly in the words which were being ten ereon. As exultant tidings of ry me out in great letters on the k bds, the whole throng with one blse gan to sing the "Star Spangled ner," and the sound of our national em as lifted from the throats of the d, de the moment a thrilling one; e th blood flow faster and will not be gotten.

It its not only about the flag and sigh in the streets that I wish to to ou to-day. While wars and its e going on, the sweet proces-of n ure's rarest flowers is not inter-ed, d though no doubt you who in t country see acres of daisies, wh fields of fragrant blossoms, vist of creamy dogwood, where to city es are shown only a few flowers, wed have our share of the beautiful her The other day, as I sat at my buy writing, there came to me lov hands a great basket of sweet and magnificent bunch of lilies; ers wh could have grown at this on o he year in this latitude only in t-hou. The flowers, brought to me he lo hands of children, filled my wit such fragrance and beauty as ansf m it into a bower fit for a m. hen one walks up Broadway or ugh ne of the side streets and av-s of New York, one passes many sts' ops, and their windows are a ect d am of beauty.

* * *

OW F my letter-bag. Rose See has ten to sk me what sort of trimming shion ble on hats this season. It is le dif ult to answer such a question itely because one sees almost every-thing; but Rose cannot go far wrong if she trims her pretty best hat with flowers and ribbon and omits altogether feathers and plumes and wings of birds. She need not be afraid either of putting too much on her hat, as just now people like very profuse trimming.

* * *

MRS. A. K. A. Since I received your letter sometime ago, I have had so many things to do that I have not been able to attend to the request you made, but I have now sent you an answer by mail. I thank you very much for the kind opinion of the little book of which you speak. An author is always made very happy by hearing that people like her books.

* * *

WHY should you not let your boys help you in the housework, dear tired Mother Elsie, since it has not pleased the Lord to give you any daughters. For my part, I do not see why boys should be excused from helping in some of the tasks of the house. They are quite as handy, quite as obliging, and certainly quite as clever as girls, and I am sure that any mother-loving boy will be willing to lend a hand when he sees that there is need for one. No child, son or daughter, who truly loves a mother will see her wearing herself out without trying to save that dear and unselfish one from needless toil; yet I heard the other day of several beautiful young ladies whose custom it is to lie in bed very late in the morning while their mother rises early, prepares the breakfast, does the housework, and keeps something very nice and appetizing for them until they are ready to come down. Then my informant told me that these girls wore most beautifully fluted and ruffled white dresses which their mother took great pleasure in doing up for them with her own hands. They never touched a fluting iron or a flat iron or anything of that sort themselves. Everything was left for their mother to do. Visitors at the house seldom met this lady, as she was too busy in the kitchen waiting on her idols, to help them entertain their friends in the parlor. Such a state of affairs, whatever girls may think of it, is a burning shame and disgrace, and the day will dawn when if they have any sensitiveness of conscience they will weep bitter tears over the grave of the mother who they suffered to be their slave and drudge during the years of their young lives.

* * *

ELLEN K. asks about perfumery. This toilette adjunct should be used very sparingly. A single drop of violet or rose upon a lady's handkerchief is enough to make it fragrant for the day, and it is in bad taste to use perfumes in such a way that they are obtrusive. There should be just a whiff suggested rather than forced upon one's attention. In passing, let me say that one should never use perfumery on the hair, and it is wise to avoid all oils and ingredients in hair dressing. If your hair is harsh and dry, I advise you to give it a thorough course of brushing. Brush it thoroughly for a long time every night before you retire. I think that you will find that this will improve its condition. And mind that everything about your apparel is delicately clean and scrupulously neat. Purity is the essential in a woman's dress and appearance.

* * *

ORPHAN. You are certainly in a very difficult position, and I do not wonder that you are at present a little discouraged. I advise you to mention to your pastor or any elderly friend in your own town your desire to find a home with some old lady who needs a companion; but, dear child, bear in mind that old ladies are apt to be exacting and that the path of her who sets out as a companion to one is not always a very easy one. You might possibly do better to secure a position with some young or middle aged person who requires a secretary or who wishes a young woman to accompany her when traveling. Such positions can best be obtained by advertising. Do not think of trying to be a daughter to any benevolent old gentleman. Such an idea cannot be entertained for a moment. Most old gentlemen have somebody belonging to them who can serve them in that capacity. Nor do I advise your giving a present to the teacher of whom you speak. It will be quite enough to take leave of him in a courteous manner, thanking him for the care he has bestowed upon you, and being very sure to avoid even the appearance of sentiment in the matter.

Margaret E. Sangster

Royal Baking Powder is made of pure crystal cream of tartar and is beyond all question as to wholesomeness and strength. It is the best and most economical to use.

I Have No Stomach

Said a jolly man of 40, of almost aldermanic rotundity, "since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." What he meant was that this grand digestive tonic had so completely cured all distress and disgreeable dyspeptic symptoms that he lived, ate and slept in comfort. You may be put into this delightful condition if you will take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

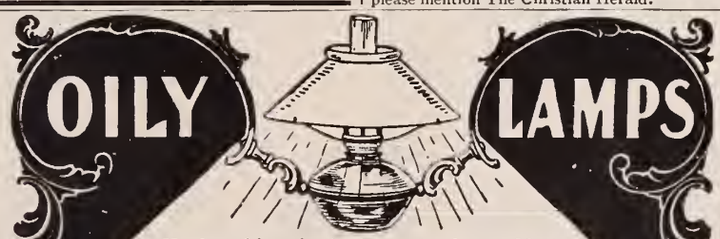
America's Greatest Medicine.

If You Suffer

From Epilepsy, Epileptic Spells, Fits, Spasms, St. Vitus' Dance, Falling Sickness, Vertigo, etc., have children or relatives that do so, or know people that are afflicted, My New Discovery, Epilepticide, will cure them, and all you are asked to do is to send for a Free Bottle, and try it. I am quite prepared to abide by the result. It has cured thousands where everything else has failed. Please give full name, AGE, and postoffice and express address

WM. H. MAY, M.D., May Laboratory,
94 Pine St., New York City.

NOTE.—All sufferers are advised to send for Gratuitous Expert Advice and a Free Bottle of this New Discovery, which is an Unfailing Cure for any and all of the frightful forms of Epilepsy and allied nervous diseases. When writing Dr. May, please mention The Christian Herald.



OILY LAMPS

Hardest things in the house to clean. Most contrary things to keep clean. Most unpleasant when not cleaned. Are made clean and kept clean easily with that enemy of oil and grease and dirt—

GOLD DUST Washing Powder

Largest package—greatest economy.
THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. New York. Boston. Philadelphia.

That Appetizing Odor

coming from griddle cakes made from Franklin Mills FINE FLOUR OF THE ENTIRE WHEAT,

Is simply irresistible. It makes you hungry, and you can eat them with relish for they're healthful. Can be eaten by the most dyspeptic. They contain the nutriment of the entire wheat berry. If your grocer does not keep this flour, send us his name with your order—we will see that you are supplied. The genuine made only by the

FRANKLIN MILLS CO., Lockport, N. Y.

Booklet free for the asking.

A Special Offer

Send $60 and we will deliver, carriage paid, a

Wellington Typewriter No. 2

If it does not prove satisfactory after ten days' trial, we will refund the money. The WELLINGTON is guaranteed equal to any $100 typewriter. It possesses all the advantages of the high-priced instruments, and none of their defects.

Our Catalogue tells all about it. Send for it.

The Williams Mfg. Co., Ltd., Box 43, Plattsburg, N. Y.

Royal Hymnal, for Sunday Schools, $30 per 100

THE BIGLOW & MAIN CO. New York City and Chicago.

STEWART'S DUPLEX SAFETY PINS.

IN ALL SIZES.

The Guard

Must be on Inside of Spring

DUPLEX PINS have the only effective Guard to prevent catching or tearing. It is on the arm of pin that passes through the cloth. Patented and cannot be used on any other pin.

DUPLEX PINS work as easily in the dark as in the light: fasten from either side, but cannot slip through, as all others do. Dealers may offer other pins with so-called guards. Demand the genuine "STEWART'S DUPLEX." Take no others. If dealers cannot supply you, send 3 two-cent stamps for samples of 12 assorted sizes.

Made in Nickel-Plate and Jet Black.

CONSOLIDATED SAFETY PIN CO., BOX 10, BLOOMFIELD, N. J.

Makers of Holdfast Aluminum Hairpins.

AGENTS HERE'S A MONEY MAKER

Our Automatic Carpet Stretcher & Tacker

Sells itself. Works on an entirely new principle. Operator stands in stretching and tacking carpet. Can stretch and tack two thicknesses. Stretcher draws your weight with the carpet. Don't pound fingers or wear out knees. Drives 50 tacks per minute. Every Mch. guaranteed. Sample Ex. paid in U. S., $1.50. Tack puller post paid 20c. Write for terms, cartoon circular and catalogue. Good com. Splendid seller. Other spec.

GODDARD, ALLEN CO. 271 State St. Beloit, Wis.

GEMS FROM NEW BOOKS

The Early Races—A Greek Myth.*

THE first race of men was created, (according to the Greek Myth) when Chronos was lord of the world. They are called the Golden Race, because they led a perfectly happy life. Neither pain nor work had come into the world then; the earth brought forth fruit of her own accord, and this sufficed for food, since mankind had not learned in those days to kill and eat animals. They built no houses, for it was springtime all the year, and there was no need of shelter, either from the biting wind or the scorching sun. They never grew sick, nor weary, nor old, and at last death came to them in sleep.

After a time, this race passed from the earth, and Zeus, who was then king, made another, which was less happy than the Golden, and is known as the Silver race. The perpetual Spring now gave way to other seasons, for Zeus made Summer, Autumn and Winter as well. The earth no longer brought forth of its own accord, but had to be ploughed and sown, and men were forced to work before they could eat. They had a long, happy childhood; but when they grew old they became wicked and began to fight with one another. At last they even neglected the altars of the gods, and then Zeus destroyed them in his wrath.

Afterwards he made another race. It was said that he formed them out of the hard wood of ash, which is used for spears and other murderous weapons because it is tough and strong and firm. These men were true to their origin, and loved war and fighting. It was their one delight, and they did not care to till the ground for food. They made weapons and houses of brass, and were known as the Brazen race. At last by perpetual fighting they destroyed one another; and Hesiod, the poet who tells the story, says they went down unremembered in the broad realms of Hades.

Last of all came the Iron Race, and this was very, very wicked. The bonds of faith were broken, sons fought against their fathers, and brother against brother. Injustice and insolence, envy and hatred, grew rife; the bad were held in greater honor than the good, and the right of the stronger prevailed. Reverence and Retribution, two fair goddesses who had hitherto dwelt on earth, wrapped their white robes about them and fled to Olympus, that they might no longer behold the evil deeds of men. But Sorrow and Sickness and Strife remained on earth.

The Poets of Armenia.†

IN his book, Mr. Azhderian gives some charming examples of the riches of Armenian literature. After an interesting review, the writer refers to the Armenian poets, more especially those that deal with objects in nature. From Bishop Khorene Nar-bey he gives this beautiful extract:

Come, come, O leaves, and with sweet wings
Of hope from yonder sky,
Cover the sad earth of the graves
Wherein our dear ones lie.

Weave o'er the bones so dear to us
A garland wet with dew,
Ye wings of Hope's bright angels,
Young leaves so fresh and new.

Another singer, Totochian, thus adjures the swallow:

Fly to my birthplace, Ashdarag,
The spot I love the best;
Beneath my father's roof-tree,
O swallow, build thy nest.

There dwells afar my father—
A mournful man and gray—
Who for his only son's return
Waits vainly, day by day.

If thou should chance to see him,
Greet him with love for me;
Bid him sit down and mourn with tears
His son's sad destiny.

The mountains, rocks and beautiful valleys of Armenia have been the subject of many famous poems. A poet concludes a sweet and characteristic ballad addressed to Lake Van, with these lines:

The savage sea has no pity!
It hears not the plaintive voice of my broken heart;
The blood freezes in my veins,
Black night descends upon my eyes.

Go, tell to my mother
To sit and weep for her darkened son;
That Hovhannes was the prey of the sea,
The sun of the young man is set!

There are several poems relating to the Christ-child, one being as follows:

The lips of the Christ-child are like two twin leaves;
They let roses fall when he smiles tenderly.
The tears of the Christ-child are pearls when he grieves;
The eyes of the Christ-child are deep as the sea.
Like pomegranate grains are the dimples he hath,
And clustering lilies spring up in his path.

Naturally, much of the poetry of Armenia is sad. Mr. Azhderian writes: "A literal translation of the following stanza, though sadly marring its artistic effect, does not destroy the poetic thought and religious hope which save from despair a bereaved mother, grieving for her child:

"I gaze and weep, mother of my boy,
I say alas! and woe is me!
What will become of wretched me?
I have seen my golden son dead!
They seized that fragrant rose
Of my breast, and my soul fainted away;
They let that beautiful golden dove
Fly away, and my heart was wounded.

"The falcon, Death, seized
My dear and sweet-voiced turtle-dove and wounded me.
They took my sweet-toned little lark
And flew away through the skies!
Before my eyes they sent the hail
On my flowering green pomegranate,
My rosy apple on the tree,
Which gives fragrance among the leaves.

"They shook my flourishing, beautiful almond tree,
And left me without fruit;
Beating it, they threw it on the ground
And trod it under foot into the earth of the grave.
What will become of wretched me?
Many sorrows surround me!
O my God, receive the soul of my little one,
And place him at rest in thy bright heaven."

Among the best known of the Armenian love poets are Bedros Turian, Raphael Patkanian, Michael Ghazarian, Nalbandian and others, all of whose strains are known and loved by the simple, earnest, patriotic, and artistic people of Armenia.

* From Old Tales from Greece, by Alice Zimmern of Girton College, Cambridge; a book designed to present to youthful readers the history of the ancient deities and heroes who played so large a part in the thoughts and writings of the Greeks. Each tale is taken direct from some Greek author and will be followed with intense interest by adults as well as children. Pp. 296, illustrated, cloth covers, price 75 cents. Thomas Whittaker, New York, publisher.

† From The Turk and the Land of Haig, or Turkey and Armenia. A descriptive historical and picturesque work. By Antranig Azhderian. This is the most comprehensive and valuable of recent books on this subject. Mr. Azhderian has devoted a number of years to the collection of material for his book, and has succeeded in producing a volume that will stand the test of critical examination, and will commend itself alike to the student of history and the lover of all that is beautiful and true in the story of one of the greatest races of earth. There is an able introduction by Bishop Huntington. The book is handsomely bound in cloth, copiously illustrated with half-tone engravings, many of them exceedingly rare, and makes a substantial volume of 408 pages. Price, $1.50. The Mershon Company, publishers, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Free Cure for Kidneys and Bladder.

We advise our readers who suffer from Kidney and Bladder disorders, weak back or Rheumatism, to try the new Botanic Discovery, Alkavis, made from the Kava-Kava shrub. Convincing proof of the wonderful curative powers of Alkavis is given by Rev. A. C. Darling, Constantia, N. Y.; Hon. R. C. Wood, Lowell, Ind.; Mrs. L. D. Fegely, Lancaster, Ills., and others cured of various diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, after many years' suffering. The Church Kidney Cure Company, No. 400 Fourth Avenue, New York, to prove its great value, and for introduction, will send you a treatment of Alkavis prepaid by mail free. Alkavis is certainly a wonderful remedy, and every sufferer should gladly accept this free offer.

Do you seek safe investment?

There's nothing more certain to yield big returns in nerve strength, pure blood and good health than Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"I want a good soap for washing the clothes. I find that our clothing wears out too fast, and I believe the damage is done in the laundry."

"Let us send you a box of Ivory Soap. We know it is pure, and will not injure anything. Many of our customers will not have any other for their laundry work."

The box was sent, and one more family uses no other. Try it for one week in your laundry, and ask your laundress what she thinks of it.

Copyright, 1898, by The Procter & Gamble Co., Cincinnati.

As the eyes are the windows of the soul, so are the teeth the doorway to the portal from whence issue the creations of the mind.

RUBIFOAM is a dentifrice in every way worthy of its great mission. It cleanses perfectly, and delightfully perfumes the breath, on which are wafted the words that reflect the thoughts.

Popular price, 25c. Send 2c. stamp for sample vial. Address E. W. Hoyt & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Did anybody anywhere ever object to a Macbeth lamp-chimney?

But get the Number made for your lamp. Get the Index.

Write Macbeth Pittsburgh Pa

"Cleanliness is nae pride, dirt's nae honesty." Common sense dictates the use of SAPOL

"It Cannot Break at the W...

CRE...

Discorcted at Wa... with I... Lac...

which combine... any figure perfec... with comfort and ren... the breaking at t... wa... and hip impo... ble.

There is nothing in C... dom to com... re...

Ask your dealer for a Cres... or send a long, short or mediu... waist sired in white or drab, on receipt of $1, postpaid.

MICHIGAN CORSET CO., Ja...son, ...

National... 27 Builders' Exchan... Bulla...

ACOUSTICS CO., INCORPORATED UNDER LAWS OF...

Architects, Builders of Auditor...

We publish a book on Architectur... Acoustics

We build audience rooms warranted to be absolutely perfect for hearing an orator, singer or music. Any room built acoustically correct costs no more than one totally defective.

E. HENRY KELLY, Acoustician. G. L. ... WICKER... WM. ... MICHAEL...

$18 per week and expenses... eral good part... travel. No canvassing. Also several good local ... ers. Permanent position. Give refer... R. H. WOODWARD CO., ... timore...

WITH YOUR MIGHT.

Energy and Consecration May Enable Christians to do for Christ's Cause. 9: 10; John 4: 27-37.

The old proverb that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well applies to religion as to other matters. The dull perfunctory, lifeless discharge of religious duty is an offense to God and like the conduct of the Laodicean it is nauseating. The man who treats the Lord's Day by lying late in bed, dressing over his breakfast, then goes to church as a matter of duty and to the Sunday School or prayer-meeting without preparation, proves by his conduct that he has not the root of the matter in him. Few men look after their financial interests in that way. In business they are wide awake to seize opportunities, really alive to prospective advantages, and full of energy in plan and execution. The spiritual life demands the same concentration of vigor. We have only allowed the talk of "deadly piety" to have too much influence over us. Our trust in Christ, not in our own strength nor our own conduct. Salvation is of grace, but the development of Christian character demands and the service which Christ expects of us requires energy and activity. A glorious service that should call forth our enthusiasm and enlist our whole energies. It is not necessary that we withdraw from our business or profession in order to give attention to spiritual matters. There are, we believe, some of the most successful characters and some of the most efficient servants of the Lord to be found in the world's pursuits. There is a sense in which business that the minister or evangelist misses. The effort to live a Christian life in the turmoil of commerce; to show that the principles of Christianity always paramount in our lives and conduct of the world; are conditions with all the powers that make for a Christian character are called into exercise and in which the soul learns its necessity and how blessed is the help which Christ imparts. Then, too, happy is the man that gives his leisure hours freely and without reward to the Master's service. When his business is done and he can visit a sick friend or speak words of Christian consolation, or go to the tenements with words of cheer and encouragement and with substantial aid for the needy and the burdened, or to some mission where the Master's business man who has nothing to do with men who will not hear, to the man who they sneeringly say they did preach. All this he may do, and let this town the light set on a hill cannot be hid.

Traveling Libraries.

The publication of official reports of a month ago, the Women's Clubs of Berlin, Marienette and Berlin, Wisconsin, have made arrangements to establish a county systems of traveling libraries. The County boards in Eau Claire and Marathon counties have appointed committees to consider the subject of establishing such systems under their own supervision. Public spirited citizens in Menominee have lately given nineteen such libraries, which are to go regularly to the villages, which will agree to establish and maintain a permanent free public library.

History of Opium in China.

Opium has existed as a medicine for over a thousand years, says a writer in The Contemporary Review, the curse of smoking has only been known one-third as long as that, or less than one hundred years, and then it spread from India, the import steadily increasing in the hands of the Portuguese, but the chief hands of the British. This latter supports the ordinary anti-opium, which is that opium is in-spoken of as Yang-yen—i. e., "foreign tobacco)," and not by its Chinese name, that the habit of opium smoking, with its attendant evils, came from across the seas and as introduced by foreigners.

Clothing for Mont-Lawn.

Children at Mont-Lawn return thanks to their kind friends for the following contributions of clothing which have been received since our last acknowledgement:

Charlotte Van Winkle, 2 dresses; Mrs Herbert C Adams, box clothing; Mrs Wm L Bigelow, box clothing; Miss Emily Purey and Miss Carrie Norton, box clothing; Mrs E Wood, pkg clothing; Mrs G T Hazen, pkg clothing; Whatsoever Circle, K D, Middlehoro, pkg clothing; Inter Art Pub Co, New York City, box card, calendars and clothing; Mrs Martin Smith, pkg clothing; Friend to the children, pkg clothing; Miss Amelia V W Fisher, Pres Inasmuch Circle K D, pkg clothing; Mrs Fannie B and Master Amos Hershey, box clothing; L J G, Bklyn, pkg clothing; Mr C A Neide, box clothing; Mrs J C Van Gelden, pkg clothing; Mrs Walter Baker, 7 suits boys' clothing & shirts; Mrs A Young & Miss A T Jones, pkg clothing; Mrs Eliza A Banon, 4 dresses; Mrs Mary C McCauley, pkg clothing; Mrs F L Henry, pkg clothing; Miss Annie M Wiestling, box clothing; Mrs Walter L Pierce, box clothing; S Sen, pkg clothing; Mrs Lexow, pkg clothing; Mrs E N Lyman, box clothing; Mrs Belle Jones, box clothing; Morris Weaver, box clothing; Mrs Martha Williams, box clothing; J F Miner, box of hats; Mrs Thos P Taylor, Miss Reed, Mrs F I McCred, F H Butler, E Vanderpaugh, Friends of the Children, Mrs M F Abbott, Mrs P Stratton, box of clothing.

Contributions of clothing should be sent, prepaid, to THE CHRISTIAN HERALD Children's Home, Nyack, N. Y.

PEACE.

AT last the nation, tired of strife, as conqueror reposed:
The temple of the god of war with shouts of joy was closed;
For many blessed days the camp had blossomed as a home;
The dove of peace was brooding o'er the seven hills of Rome.
Not now the frenzied call "To arms!" fell on the startled ear—
Not now in every street was heard the clash of sword and spear.
For many calm and peaceful days—the first of thousands known—
A laborer could earn his bread and share it with his own.
A maiden wandered through the dusk, and heard her lover's vow,
And did not fear she soon must bind a helmet on his brow;
A mother kissed her babe in joy; and though it were a son,
She did not grieve lest he be killed before his youth was done;
For many blessed days the world rang glad the tidings out,
"The men of Rome are all at peace with the world about!"
Those tranquil times from Comfort's lips threw kisses, near and far;
And everything was brighter, from a flower unto a star;
And every swinging blade of grass, and every towering tree
Seemed hoping then that war was dead, and ever thus would be;
The shepherd fed his dappled flocks, the farmer stored his grain,
Nor said "This humble wealth may swell a foeman's bloody gain;"
The cottage walls were ivy-grown, and fenced with peace around,
And did not look for foeman's fire to burn them to the ground;
And many thought the gods above had listened to their plea,
And Peace was ruler of the land and evermore would be.

—Will Carleton's Magazine.

Ancestral Cleanliness.

Proverbial for its thoroughness. Pearline users admire the pluck that a woman needed to get such cleanliness in such laborious ways. No excuse for lack of cleanliness now. Pearline has changed the situation. Thorough cleanliness, with ease, comfort, safety, economy, and time to spare—by the use of Pearline. A modern woman does her work in a modern way—with Pearline. 573

Millions NOW USE Pearline

The Berkshire Hills Sanatorium,

An Institution for the Scientific Treatment of Cancer

Tumors, and all forms of Malignant Growths
WITHOUT THE USE OF THE KNIFE

We have never failed to effect a permanent cure where we have had a reasonable opportunity.
Books and circulars giving description of Sanatorium, Treatment, Terms, and References, free.
DRS. W. E. BROWN & SON, North Adams, Mass.

RIDE YOUR WHEEL,

hnt not with a truss like the one above, an instrument of torture. Use one of our latest Improved Elastic Trusses. It holds the rupture under the severest strain. Can be WORN WITH EASE NIGHT AND DAY, THEREBY EFFECTING A PERMANENT AND RADICAL CURE. Call or write for free catalogue. IMPROVED ELASTIC TRUSS CO., 785 Broadway, New York.
Lady in attendance for ladies. Examination Free. Established in New York 16 years.

HARTSHORN'S SELF-ACTING SHADE ROLLERS
NOTICE NAME THUS Stewart Hartshorn ON LABEL AND GET THE GENUINE HARTSHORN

NAZO for 20 years has never failed to cure a case of Catarrh, no matter how chronic. It is endorsed by hundreds of doctors. It gives immediate relief in all cases. Some druggists won't sell it because price is so low and the profit so small. Promptly mailed for 25 cts. SECURITY MED. CO., Box 105, Newark, N. J.

$3 a Day Sure Send us your address and we will show you how to make $3 a day absolutely sure, we furnish the work and teach you free, you work in the locality where you live. Send us your address and we will explain the business fully, remember we guarantee a clear profit of $3 for every day's work, absolutely sure, write at once. ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO. Box 138, DETROIT, MICH.

THE SANITARIUM, Union Springs, N.Y., on Cayuga Lake. A well-equipped Institution for the rational treatment of Nervous Affections, Diseases of Women, Tumors and other chronic ailments. Write for our illustrated booklet. Dr. F. D. PIERCE, Supt.

$5 to $35 OVER 50 MAKES Largest assortment in America. Write for confidential offer. You can earn a wheel acting as our agent. Brown-Lewis Cycle Co. W. Chicago, U.S.A.

Ladies Wanted To learn stamping at their homes. We pay 10c. an hour until competent. McGREGOR & CO., 671 Gates Av, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Black Stockings

"Black stockings will not crock if first dipped in salt water and then washed in a lukewarm light suds made from Fairy Soap."
Mrs. Sarah Tyson Rorer.

FAIRY SOAP

PURE—WHITE—FLOATING.

The Soap of the Century
Sold everywhere in three convenient sizes for the toilet, bath and laundry.

FREE Send us your name, address, and five Fairy Soap wrappers, to nearest office below, and we will mail you free a copy of a beautiful painting in water colors entitled "Fairy Tales," by the celebrated artist, Leon Moran. Size 17½x24 in. without lettering, ready for framing.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY,
Chicago. St. Louis. NewYork. Boston. Philadelphia. Pittsburgh. Baltimore.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY Comprehends six Schools. The Law School (with Day and Evening Classes), Medical College, Graduate School, Pedagogy, Engineering and University College. For circulars address L. J. TOMPKINS, Registrar, Washington Square, New York City.

Rheumatism Cured.....

Mr. J. F. Brookfield writes from Salisbury, N.C.: "While in Knoxville, Tenn., last December, I met an elderly gentlemen, a professor of music, who has been troubled for several years with rheumatism. I told him I would send down before I left town a bottle of Tartarlithine, which I believed would help him if it didn't entirely cure him. While in Montgomery, this trip, his son told me it did his father so much benefit that they had written to you to send their father half a dozen bottles. The benefit given to the old gentleman is very remarkable, after exhausting all the physician's skill, and the legion of remedies advertised for his complaint had been used.

Pamphlet on the treatment of Rheumatism by Tartarlithine sent free by McKESSON & ROBBINS,
93 FULTON ST., NEW YORK,
Sole Agents for
The Tartarlithine Co.

NEW WAIST SET, 10c.

Our new '98 set of handsome design includes 1 pair rigid-link ball-end cuff buttons, 3 studs, 1 collar button, and the latest belt retainer. Extra heavy 14k Roman gold or sterling silver plate, worth 40c. at any store. We send complete set, with new catalogue of bargains, postpaid for ONLY 10c., 3 for 25c. Ingersoll & Bro., Dept. 61 67 Cortlandt St., N.Y.

1898 High Grade BICYCLES

for Men, Women, Girls & Boys. Complete line. All brand new models.
$75 'Oakwood' for $32.50
$60 'Arlington' " $24.50
No Money in Advance. Others at $15, $17 and $20
WRITE TODAY for SPECIAL OFFER. Juveniles $7.00 to $12.50
Shipped anywhere C.O.D. with privilege to examine. Buy direct from manufacturers, save agents & dealers profits Large Illus. Catalogue Free. CASH BUYERS' UNION, 163 W. VanBuren Street, B. 18, Chicago, Ills.

7000 BICYCLES

carried over from 1897 must be sacrificed now. New High Grade, all styles, best equipment, guaranteed. $9.75 to $17.50. Used wheels, late models, all makes, $3 to $12. We ship on approval without a cent payment. Write for bargain list and art catalogue of swell '98 models. BICYCLE FREE for season to advertise them. Send for one. Rider agents wanted. Learn how to Earn a Bicycle and make money.
E. A. MEAD CYCLE CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

"MY OWN" CYCLES with Patent Automatic Coaster and Brake. Coast with pedals stationary and feet on them; perfect control. Direct to rider below wholesale prices. No rash, no job lots. Send for cata. and special offer. F. S. BEAVIS, 41 B St., Peoria, Ill.

STAMMERING Cured at LEAST! expense by thorough, educational methods Cure guaranteed. Address, RURAL HOME SCHOOL, Salem, W. Va.

BLINDNESS PREVENTED CATARACTS ABSORBED

LARKIN SOAPS AND PREMIUMS.—Factory to Family. The Larkin idea fully explained in beautiful free booklet. Free sample Soap if mention this magazine.
The Larkin Soap Mfg Co., Larkin St., Buffalo, N.Y

..CLOTHING..

Salesmen Wanted.

$150.00 PER MONTH and expenses made by all our active men. We pay many far more.

We want men in every County in the United States. If your reference is satisfactory we will start you at once. No experience necessary. No capital required. We furnish a full line of samples, stationery, etc. A tailor's-for-the-trade complete outfit ready for business. No commission Plan, you regulate your profits to suit yourself. No house to house canvas. This is not one of the many catchy advertisements for agents, but one of the very few advertisements offering a rare opportunity to secure strictly high grade employment at Big wages.

We are the Largest Tailors in America.

We make to measure over 300,000 suits annually. We occupy entire one of the largest business blocks in Chicago. We refer you to the Bank of Commerce in Chicago, any Express or Railroad Co. in Chicago, any resident of Chicago. Before engaging with us, write to any friend in Chicago and ask them to come and see us, then write you if it is a rare opportunity to secure steady, high class, big paying employment. BETTER STILL—come to Chicago yourself and see us before engaging and satisfy yourself regarding every word we say. You can get steady work and big pay. Work in your own county 300 days in the year, and you can't make less than $5 every day above all expenses.

Rio, Wis., June 30th, 1898.

GENTLEMEN:—In reply to your letter requesting the use of my photograph for advertising purposes, and asking how I am pleased with the work, would say I do not object to your using my photograph, as your prices are very low and garments so exact to my measurements that I gladly recommend you. I would add that I have never made less than $60.00 per month since I received your first outfit, and in the best months have made as high as $350.00 per month. Very truly, E. J. DOYLE.

Should you write Mr. Doyle, be sure to enclose a 2c stamp for reply.

We have hundreds of letters similar to Mr. Doyle's.

We Want to Engage You to take orders for our Made-to-Order and Measure Custom Tailorings, (Men's Suits, Pants and Overcoats). We put you in the way to take orders from almost every man in your county, a business better than a store with a $20,000.00 stock. You will have no competition.

WE ARE THE LARGEST TAILORS IN AMERICA of Fine Custom-Made Garments. We buy our cloth direct from the largest European and American Mills. We control the product of several woolen mills. We operate the most extensive and economic custom tailoring plants in existence, thus reducing the price of Suits and Overcoats made-to-order to $5.00 and upward; Pants from $1.50 to $5.00. Prices so low that nearly every one in your county will be glad to have their Suits and Overcoats made to order.

WE FURNISH YOU A large, handsome leather bound book containing large cloth samples of our entire line of Suitings, Overcoatings and Pantaloonings, a book which costs us several dollars to get up, also Fine Colored Fashion Plates, Instruction Book, Tape Measure, Business Cards, Stationery, Advertising Matter, your name on rubber stamp with pad complete. We also furnish you a Salesman's Net Confidential Price List. The prices are left blank under each description so you can fill in your own selling prices, arranging your profit to suit yourself. As soon as you have received your sample book and general outfit and have read our book of instructions carefully, which teaches you how to take orders, and marked in your selling price you are ready for business and can begin taking orders from every one. At your low prices business men, farmers, and in fact every one will order their suits made. You can take several orders every day at $1.00 to $5.00 profit on each order, for every one will be astonished at your low prices.

YOU REQUIRE NO MONEY Just take the orders and send them to us and we will make the garments within 5 days and send direct to your customers by express C. O. D., subject to examination and approval, at your selling price, and collect your full selling price, and every week we will send you a check for all your profit. You need collect no money, deliver no goods, simply go on taking orders, adding a liberal profit, and we deliver the goods, collect all the money and every week promptly send you in one round check your full profit for the week. Nearly all our good men get a check from us of at least $40.00 every week in the year.

THE OUTFIT IS FREE We make no charge for the book and complete outfit, but as EACH OUTFIT COSTS US SEVERAL DOLLARS, to protect ourselves against many who would impose on us by sending for the outfit with no intention of working, but merely out of idle curiosity, AS A GUARANTEE OF GOOD FAITH ON THE PART OF EVERY APPLICANT, we require you to fill out the blank lines below, giving the names of two parties as reference, and further agreeing to pay ONE DOLLAR and express charges for the outfit when received, if found as represented and really a sure way of making big wages. The $1.00 you agree to pay when outfit is received does not begin to pay the cost to us but insures us you mean business. WE WILL REFUND YOUR $1.00 AS SOON AS YOUR ORDERS HAVE AMOUNTED TO $25.00, which amount you can take the first day you work.

Fill out the following lines carefully, sign your name, cut out and send to us, and the outfit will be sent you at once

AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO., Enterprise Bldg, CHICAGO, ILL.

GENTLEMEN:—Please send me by express C. O. D., subject to examination, your Sample Book and Complete Salesman's Outfit, as described above. I agree to examine it at the express office and if found exactly as represented and I feel I can make good big wages taking orders for you, I agree to pay the express agent, as a guarantee of good faith, and to show I mean business, One Dollar and express charges, with the understanding the One Dollar is to be refunded to me as soon as my sales have amounted to $25.00. If not found as represented and I am not perfectly satisfied I shall not take the outfit or pay one cent. B.V.

Sign your name on above line.

Name of Postoffice, County and State on above line.

On above two lines give as reference the names of two men over 21 years of age who have known you one year or longer.

Your age.....

Married or single.....

On above line give name of your nearest express office.

Address your letters plainly to AMERICAN WOOLEN MILLS CO., Enterprise Building, CHICAGO, ILL.

Steel Wheels

Staggered Oval Spokes.

BUY A SET TO FIT YOUR NEW OR OLD WAGON

CHEAPEST AND BEST way to get a low wagon. Any size wheel, any width tire. Catal. FREE.

Electric Wheel Co., Box 136, Quincy, Ills

HARTMAN

STEEL PICKET FENCE.

Stronger than Iron. Cheaper than Wood.

Made of best steel wire and woven into a handsome fence, which when constructed with our ornamental steel posts adds greatly to the beauty of the lawn or cemetery lot.

THE IDEAL FENCE

for enclosing Public Grounds, Church Yards, Court Yards, School Grounds, etc. Catalogue and circulars sent FREE.

HARTMAN MFG. CO., Ellwood City, Pa. or 271 Broadway, New York.

"ELI" Baling Press

All Steel, Strong, Fast, Easy Power. Illustrated Catalog free. Horse and Steam power.

COLLINS PLOW CO., 1127 Hampshire St., QUINCY, ILL.

WANTED RELIABLE MEN

bridges throughout town and country. $65.00 PER MONTH AND EXPENSES. Address deposit of in any bank as start if desired. Write for particulars. THE GLOBE MEDICAL ELECTRIC CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

$75 MONTH AND EXPENSES no experience needed; position permanent. Write quick. FRASE MFG. CO., P. O. Box A, Cincinnati, O.

MONUMENTS

DON'T buy marble or granite until you investigate WHITE BRONZE. More artistic and enduring, less expensive. Prices reduced. Work delivered everywhere. Colors greatly improved. Write for designs and information. Costs nothing to investigate.

NO MOSS GROWING. NO CRUMBLING. NO CLEANING. NO CRACKING.

THE MONUMENTAL BRONZE CO., 70-80 Howard Avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

An Exceptional Opportunity

To Secure a Beautiful and Useful Book at a Bargain

The CHURCH ...at HOME

By...

Bishop John H. Vincent, D.D., LL.D.,

Is the title of a magnificent manual for family worship and home reading, and a book that should be in every Christian home in the land, and those who are fortunate enough to secure a copy of this book will find a delightful companion. It contains 480 pages,

210 ILLUSTRATIONS,

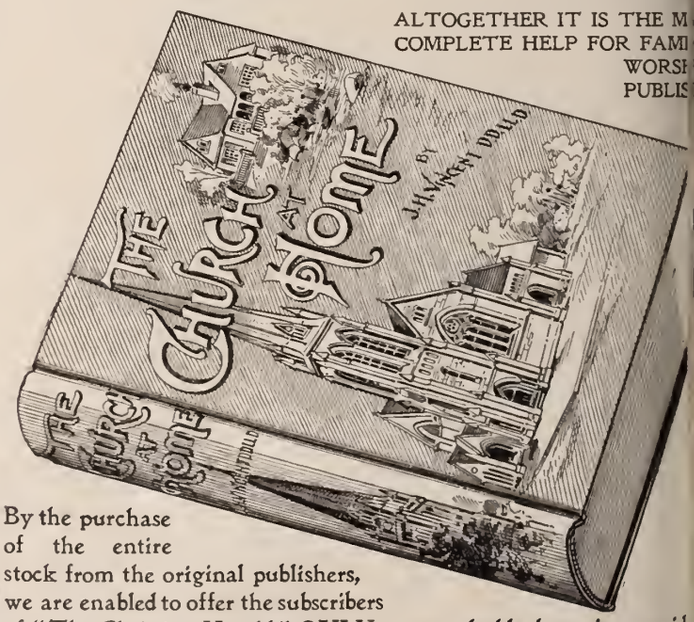
TWO BEAUTIFUL COLORED PICTURES, THE LORD'S PRAYER and THE TEN COMMANDMENTS.

LESSON, HYMN and PRAYER FOR EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR, constituting a complete family worship for the whole year.

READINGS and MEDITATIONS for SPECIAL OCCASIONS, NEW YEAR'S DAY, GOOD FRIDAY, EASTER, WHIT SUNDAY, INDEPENDENCE DAY, THANKSGIVING DAY, CHRISTMAS DAY, AND DAYS OF AFFLICTION.

Memory Texts for Every Day in the Year,	Picture Lessons for Children,
The Church Steps,	Old and New Tunes,
Home Lessons,	Wisdom in Proverbs,
Special Collects,	Blank Pages for Records
Bible Biography.	and Autographs

ALTOGETHER IT IS THE MOST COMPLETE HELP FOR FAMILY WORSHIP PUBLISHED.



By the purchase of the entire stock from the original publishers, we are enabled to offer the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" ONLY a remarkable bargain, provided the stock is not exhausted when your order is received, as follows:

Cloth, Illuminated Cover, former price $4.00. Special Price, $1.50

ONLY CLOTH BINDING LEFT
ALL OTHER STYLES SOLD OUT.

Remember this special price pays all express charges and delivers this magnificent book weighing 4 lbs. 5 ounces, size when closed 8½ x 10½ inches, absolutely free of expense. If the stock is exhausted when your order is received, we will return the money at once, and as we have only sufficient copies to supply a small percentage of the subscribers of "The Christian Herald" we trust you will be fortunate enough to avail yourself of this exceptional offer. Send money by money order or registered letter. Write name and address plainly, giving your nearest express office.

P. B. BROMFIELD & CO., Bible House, New York City.

CHRISTIAN HERALD

AND SIGNS OF OUR TIMES

OFFICES: BIBLE HOUSE, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT 1898, BY LOUIS KLOPSCH.

VOLUME 21.—NUMBER 34.

Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., Editor. NEW YORK, AUGUST 24, 1898. PRICE FIVE CENTS.

BACK FROM THE WAR—TRANSPORTS FROM CUBA LANDING OUR SOLDIERS AT MONTAUK POINT, N. Y. (See Page 671.)

OUR MAIL-BAG

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Essayist, Newburg, N. Y. What poet is called "The Glory of Scotland"? Is it not Burns? And who applied it to him?

Burns certainly deserves such a title, but we believe it was given first to Ossian by Wordsworth. "The Glory and Reproach of Scotland" has sometimes been applied to Burns.

I. D. M., Watertown, N. Y. I earnestly desire to have faith, but seem unable to get any. If I pray to God and have no faith shall I receive it?

This is a most extraordinary condition. What do you know of God that leads you to have no faith in him? If you believe in his existence, one would think you must have some faith in him. If some banker, or person of well-known benevolence, made an offer to all the people in your town, would it not be strange if some one should say he had no faith in him? Would not such a person be expected to have very good reason? If he knew of people fulfilling the conditions and getting the benefit offered, and he still had no faith, one would question his intelligence. Those who go to God "must believe that he is and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him" (Heb. 11: 6). Such persons may pray as the disciples did: "Lord, increase our faith," and their prayer will be heard.

Richard X., Tyler Fex. Where is the phrase, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb"? I have looked through the Bible for it but do not find it?

It was first used in English by Sterne, and is from a French proverb, A brebis tondue Dieu mesure le vent.

M. K., Plainfield, N. J. What is the meaning of the phrase, "Gold of Nibelungen"?

The phrase is borrowed from German legendary lore, and is applied to wealth which seems to bring a curse with it—to ill-gotten gold.

F. L. A., Ocean Grove, N. J. Can you inform me of the genealogy and family of Titus, to whom Paul addressed one of his epistles?

Titus was of Greek origin and was thought to be a native of Antioch. Paul after converting him called him his own son. This is all that is known of the early history of Titus. Some writers have endeavored to identify him with Timothy, but the evidence all goes to show that they were two entirely individuals.

Mrs. R. T., Niagara, Ont. Would a Christian girl be justified in marrying a man who [illegible]? Would her soul be [illegible]?

The [illegible] question (II Cor. 6: 14—"What part hath he that believeth with an infidel?") The Christian girl who married such a man would be separated from him in the [illegible] but not part of her nature by a [illegible]. She would have no communion with her in the [illegible] and [illegible] she should [illegible] part of her life. We [illegible] a union merely [illegible]. We do not know [illegible] the unbelieving husband [illegible] the way, [illegible] it [illegible] the mercy for the wife [illegible].

C. W. Longmont, Colo. [illegible] Dr. [illegible] Universal Love [illegible] Dr. [illegible] addressing [illegible] Advocate would [illegible]

[illegible] titles are [illegible] sarcastic [illegible] badly, or to [illegible] of them. The [illegible] Archbishop [illegible] to "His Grace," [illegible] to "Honorable," and [illegible] to "Rev. D. D." [illegible] are [illegible] to be free with [illegible] sation or letters. 2. It is not customary to use such degrees as B.A., A.M., Ph.D., &c., in addressing a person, although it may be done in some cases where it is peculiarly appropriate.

S. C., Ironton, O. Every man is full of evil tendencies which he has inherited from his ancestors. Is it possible for a man to rid himself of them?

We are not quite sure that he is justified in holding his ancestors responsible for the evil tendencies, altogether. Some people like to hold Satan responsible for a share. It is, however, always advisable to inquire how far the man himself is deserving of blame. Probably, if it can be proved that he had nothing to do with the origin of them, he has assisted in their development. That, however, is not your question, though it relates to it. There is no doubt that he can, at least, be delivered from indulging his evil tendencies, even if they are not entirely extirpated. That is what Christ came to do. He offers us the power we need to bring our natures under subjection. The Holy Spirit in the heart so reinforces the better part of our nature that it gains power enough to hold the evil tendencies in subjection. They then so lose their power that they cease to be a danger, and, like any other part of our being that is not used, become weak. The man himself must help in working out his own salvation. He must avoid temptation, and must be vigilant in preventing outbreaks. God will help him if he is sincere, and with Almighty help, what is there that is not possible?

H. B. Brumer, Germantown, Pa. Where can I find the poem, the first line of which I only remember [illegible] Scottish, I think, by Burns, the first line being "I see beyond the hills of Ayr." I have looked over the index of the poems, but [illegible] to find it.

No poem written by Robert Burns begins with the line you quote. Perhaps you are thinking of "Man was made to mourn," the opening lines of which are:

> When chill November's surly blast,
> Made fields and forests bare,
> One evening as I wandered forth
> Along the banks of Ayr

A. H. C., Hyde Park, Mass. Who was "the apostle of the Indians?" Where did he live? What work did he do? In what year and at what age did he die?

John Eliot, "the apostle to the Indians," was born in Essex County, England, in 1604, came to New England in 1631, and studied the Indian language with a view to converting the natives. His first Indian church was established by the Protestant Americans in 1660. Those who wished to be organized in a Christian body were strictly examined as to their faith, after which Mr. Eliot administered to them baptism and the Lord's Supper. Many other Indian churches were organized, but he gave his personal attention to the first and frequently visited the others. He died May 20, 1690, his last words being "Welcome joy." For the other information desired in your letter write to the American Baptist Missionary Society, Boston.

J. G. F., Fishkill, N. Y. What is a protocol?

A protocol is the original copy or draft or outline of any writing, as of a treaty, dispatch or other instrument.

Reader, Harcourt, Ia. Would you advise a man over forty years of age to enter the ministry? How may one know if he has a call?

Age is not a determining factor in the question. If he can preach and has the spirit of self-sacrifice necessary for a good minister, and God blesses his words to the conversion of sinners, we would not care if he were over sixty. One of the best methods of finding out if he has a call is to let him preach in a mission, or on a street corner, or in some church which cannot afford to maintain a regular minister. Let him labor without pay and if his labors lead to conversions and to the growth of grace in the souls of his hearers, there is little doubt of his being "called," though even then circumstances may point to his continuing his labors unpaid. If God wants his services in the pulpit he will open the way.

Constant Reader. Is there any hope for a person who is the slave of a particular sin, into which he falls every time he is tempted, in spite of his resolutions and his prayers?

Yes, every hope if he honestly desires to be delivered. If the thing were distasteful to him he would not do it; so that what he has to do is to overcome his own desire. God will help him to do this if he will ask his help. But he will not help a man who does not want to be helped. The man should carefully avoid temptation and the circumstances in which it assails him. He should assure himself that with God's help he can resist and should pray earnestly for the necessary strength. God will give it.

N. V. B., Jamaica, L. I. What was the "school of the prophets?" where was it situated and what was the nature of its instruction?

There were schools where young men were educated under teachers who instructed them in religious knowledge and sacred music, to fit them for public preaching. The first mentioned in Scripture is that in I Sam. [illegible] where a company of prophets came [illegible] from the "high places" to prophesy. [illegible] young men are supposed to have be[illegible] dents at the college of prophets at Gebo[illegible] ("Hill of God"). There was also [illegible] company of prophets mentioned in [illegible] 19: 20, who were "prophesying and [illegible] standing as appointed over them." T[illegible] dents of these schools, who were ver[illegible] erous, were called "sons of the prophe[illegible]

S. P., Chesterfield, Conn. I am a slave to [illegible] Being a member of the Methodist E[illegible] communion, I have realized that I [illegible] give it up and have tried, but when I [illegible] tinue its use for a week I almost die. [illegible] sin? Shall I be excluded from hea[illegible] using it?

If you have come to the conclusio[illegible] you ought to give up the use of tobac[illegible] your duty to do so. You remember th[illegible] ciple laid down by the Apostle Paul fo[illegible] lar cases: "There is nothing unclean o[illegible] but to him that esteemeth a thing to [illegible] clean, to him it is unclean" (Rom. 14: 1[illegible] serious feature, according to this rule, is [illegible] use of tobacco, but is that you are doing [illegible] thing you believe you ought not to do. A [illegible] tian who is convinced that a certain t[illegible] wrong, ought immediately to aban[illegible] without any question as to what the [illegible] of wrong-doing is. The question of m[illegible] difficult. You will suffer, but is it not [illegible] suffering to put yourself right with Go[illegible] may be sure that if you ask God for st[illegible] it will be given you. There are multitu[illegible] men who have been delivered from r[illegible] bacco, and other en[illegible] habits, who could t[illegible] that an honest, since[illegible] sistent effort made in [illegible] strength is sure to l[illegible] cessful.

D. S. C., Bethlehem, [illegible] the proposed treaty [illegible] between Spain a[illegible] United States, is it [illegible] that any agreem[illegible] pledge will be mad[illegible] cerning the treatme[illegible] future government o[illegible]

If any such pled[illegible] agreement should be [illegible] ed in the treaty, i[illegible] doubtless be in line w[illegible] declaration of the [illegible] dent's message befo[illegible] war began, in which [illegible] foreshadowed that [illegible] the principal objects [illegible] undertaking was to [illegible] self-government to th[illegible] ple of Cuba. It has [illegible] any time been the p[illegible] of the United States [illegible] nex Cuba, or to hold [illegible] longer than is necessa[illegible] its people to demo[illegible] their capacity for se[illegible] ernment.

Mrs. F. C. S., Bertha, [illegible] Is it wrong for youn[illegible] ple in the country [illegible] have no time duri[illegible] week to play with [illegible] comrades, to indu[illegible] such games as ba[illegible] quet, blindman's buff[illegible] the handkerchief, et[illegible] Sunday.

It is simple Sa[illegible] breaking, without qua[illegible] tion. We do not wish [illegible] hard on young people [illegible] have few opportunitie[illegible] recreation, but if they [illegible] to be known as follo[illegible] of Christ, they must in[illegible] his example and wa[illegible] his steps even though [illegible] of their pleasures and amusements have [illegible] sacrificed in the doing.

D. B. V. W., New Berne, Ala. We do not [illegible] of such a book.

Nettie P., Lynn. We have no means of su[illegible] ing the desired information.

W. H. A., Hersher, Ill. The answer is E[illegible] and Elijah, Adam and Christ.

Eveleen F., Fisherport, N. Y. Write to [illegible] Philadelphia Ledger for information needed.

Mrs. H. McQ., Ruffins, Va. 1. Both. 2. W[illegible] not know. Write to Fleming H. Revell Co.,

C. E. Stambach, Anchorage, Ky., can use [illegible] numbers of this journal, or other good Christ[illegible] literature to advantage, in connection with [illegible] mission work.

Mrs. Geo. D. Fowler, 108 Mineral Spring [illegible] Pawtucket, R. I., would like some reader to [illegible] her a copy of the verses by Mary Frances [illegible] beginning, "Build a little fence of trust arou[illegible] day."

P. Marks, Shasta, O. It is probable there [illegible] rain. The book of Genesis does not profe[illegible] give all the details. The deluge was probab[illegible] inundation, caused by some sudden convulsio[illegible] well as a rain storm.

S. S., Philadelphia, Pa. The first regularly [illegible] missioned war vessel was the Massachusetts [illegible] cruiser Lee. Some of the others were the [illegible] homme Richard, Pallas, Vengeance, Cerf, Le[illegible] ton, Hyda Ally, and Constellation.

N. H. B., Milford, N. H. Antigua is the [illegible] important of the Leeward Islands, and the [illegible] dence of the Governor-in-chief of the British po[illegible] of the group. It is in west longitude, betwee[illegible] deg. 44 min. and 61 deg. 58 min., and in north [illegible] tude between 17 deg. 2 min. and 17 deg. and 13 [illegible] It was settled in 1632. St. John, the principal t[illegible] is situated on a beautiful bay, which is too sha[illegible] to admit large vessels.

"THE PROCESSION OF THE SUN" IN AN INDIAN CITY.

This is one of the many annual festivals of India. Countless multitudes gather to do honor to the ancient gods, and the temples and streets are crowded. Our photograph affords some idea of the appearance presented by many of the larger Indian cities in festival time.

GOD'S WORK ON THE FRONTIER.

C ying the Gospel to Men and Women who Never Heard a Sermon—Children Ignorant of what "Sunday School" Means—Missionaries Welcomed.

MANY of the readers of this journal are already familiar with the missionary work of the American Sunday School Union in our outlying States and Territories. During the year, great progress has been made by the Indians in the founding of new schools and churches and in the dissemination of the Gospel by pioneer missionaries who are entering into new localities. We are privileged to make extracts from some recent letters written by workers of the Union in the S nern and Western States. One of missionaries in South Dakota writes:

A RANCHMAN.

d Never Been to a Sunday School.

one neighborhood visited, many of eople had never been in Sunday since coming to South Da- In a family of eight, not f the children had ever to Sunday School; perfectly ignorant of was done there. were desirous to and to have one. have been faith- in attendance how much in- . The people sed much in- ed in having sion school; ther, they could be or- ed. They willing to of their s, but are in re circum- es, and I was glad that I our gift to aid in getting neces upplies. An ex- t report comes this school. other school helped twenty-five miles west e Missouri wire, over in w-boy land) is at a place where never had one before. It is twenty- iles from the nearest town. Here a or more families live shut out from rld. All are engaged in stock-raising other farming can be carried on When a Sunday School was men- i, they gladly responded in its favor. gh the meeting for the organization eld on a stormy week-day evening at ding house, a goodly number gath- and a promising school was the re- This school has fifty or more in dance. The people gave for the sup- of the school, but the amount fell and your gift enabled me to equip hool with needed helps for the pres- arter.

Dm South Carolina comes a letter h will be read with interest. Mr. K , the writer, says:

M would hardly be prepared to believe a he only two churches in fifty or sixty e miles of territory are without Sunday hools, and that I failed to interest them ently to take up the work. All the ter- t canvassed is very hilly, almost moun- s. One of the points at which I organ- e Sunday School was pointed out to me l was ten miles away in a direct line. I d to drive double that distance before ng it, and over some of the roughest imaginable. The people along these are poor, with thin, hilly land to culti- t badly washed into gullies. The crops e ry poor, and I do not see how many of e are to provide even the common neces- r of life. The houses are in a general un e-down condition, and I certainly feel e ity for these people. They are far re- l from railroad facilities, which, how- e oes not make any great difference, as e ave little to market and not much to y ith. I have said this much to show you eedful your contribution to our work n order that we might better equip the h s organized for efficient work. This is e the beauties of the work of the Ameri- an unday School Union: it not only seeks t ese destitute localities and enlists them t work, but where they are not able to ro e a sufficiency of helps for the study of G Holy Word, it supplies their needs by supplementing whatever they may be able to do. The hard lines of care and pinching want are deeply graven on many of the faces seen. Mothers with little ones about their knees, seemed so grateful when they heard the good tidings that they were really and truly to have a Sunday School near by, and that their little ones should have nice lesson cards and books to study. Almost all the young men and women enrolled themselves, and many of the parents and older ones pledged themselves to attend, and also to study the Scriptures. I do not know when I have made a missionary tour that has made me feel so cheerful and encouraged in our great work for Christ and the children. Still there is much territory untouched and sadly in need.

Nebraska has been of late years a peculiarly fertile field for the missionary efforts of the Union. Under what conditions of need and with what promise of abundant reward, several letters give evidence:

Had Never Known a Religious Meeting.

I made a trip with a converted cowboy (whose picture I send), and became acquainted with others. This man was out with me a few days and we organized two good schools. He became interested and intends to devote his life to the work. The Sunday Schools organized on the edge of the sand hills were much needed. I went to a picnic there and wanted a snap shot of the Sunday School only, but everybody belonged to the school that day, so I send you the picnic party. The school has about fifty on the roll. The superintendent said to me the day I organized the school: "Half of these children were never in a Sunday School." Both schools are doing good work.

There is a large territory in these sand hills in which until the past two years little Christian work was done. One man called a meeting at a place and went through the hills hunting out the few settlers, and asked me to come out and give them a stereopticon lecture. I went and at the close of the meeting a young lady about twenty years old came up and thanked us, saying she had never known what a religious meeting was. On the following Sunday, a man about thirty-five came to my friend and said he was that lady's brother. His sister was so interested he had come to see and that was his first meeting. They had come fifteen miles. This large territory is not fit to farm; a farm is good-for-nothing except as a range for cattle. The people are far from each other and it is hard to get them together. I found one family so far from any Sunday School or church that we took them into a home department, having pledged them to study the lesson at home.

Missionary E. B. Young supplies an interesting glimpse into the life of the Red Men of the Western Reservations:

Among the Winnebagos.

With your offering I have started three schools, and bought books for a school started in February. The latter, the Drake Sunday School, is on what is known as the Winnebago Reservation. The land is all owned by the Indians, but is leased to poor white people, though some of the Indians pretend to farm. They raise a crop every two years—that is—they plant and grow corn one year, and next year they harvest it at the time when they should be growing another crop. While we may set them down as indolent, yet they have a certain amount of shrewdness and some of them are quite enlightened. The Winnebagos claim to be superior to the Omahas whose reservation joins theirs on the south. They do not intermingle. I send a picture of an Indian family. The Indian is what is known as a "Medicine Man," and he with others was about to go away several miles, when I was there, to attend a "Medicine dance," or "Preacher's dance," he called it. He imagines he can control the weather, and said: "I make clear weather pretty quick when I get there." The baby in the group is large for its age, only four months, weighing thirty-five pounds. The Indian said they had lost all their children but one, so have given this baby to his wife's sister, because "She raise all her babies." Every winter the Indians gather in at what is known as the Agency; in fact they live there a good part of the time. There, the schooling of the children is provided for by the government. The school buildings at the Winnebago Reservation Agency burned down this year, and it is said that instead of rebuilding, there will be several small schoolhouses built at various parts in the territory, when the Indian children will receive instruction in the district school the same as the white children. If these schoolhouses are built, it will open up places for organizing more Sunday Schools.

A FAMILY GROUP OF WINNEBAGO INDIANS.

The story of need and darkness and of missionary advance is continued in our extract from another missionary's letter. Writing from the sand hills, he gives this interesting description:

In the Sand Hills.

A short time ago, two young men on their way from New York City to the Klondike as missionaries to the miners, stopped at my home, and for several days we traveled together over my field, doing missionary work. One day, after a morning's trip through the sand-hills which lie between the Loup and Platte rivers, we stopped for dinner with one of my Sunday School friends, and as my companions had never seen a sod house before, I took a picture of it with themselves in front—which I send as a specimen of the interest to see regular out and out "soddy." Another picture shows my team and missionary wagon; and still another is the Prairie Union Sunday School in Nance county, Neb. The latter was taken a, the line of organization. The nearest Sunday School was five miles in one direction and the next nearest twelve, and there I found families growing up in ignorance of God's Word. I found but one person in the entire community who attended services anywhere; and on account of their indifference it seemed an impossibility to plant a Sunday School. But difficulties vanished before prayerful effort, and now they have a very nice school indeed, with bright prospects for its development into a church in the near future.

While engaged in working among the people, trying to persuade them to help me plant a school, I was entertained by kind friends, the picture of whose home I send. I shall never forget the hospitality received at their hands; nor how they knelt in that humble home, around the family altar, for the first time in their lives, the husband and wife consecrating themselves to the Master's service.

Our readers will heartily agree, after reading the above letters, that such work as the American Sunday School Union is doing is one greatly needed and also that it is work which will bring abundant reward. Any of our readers who are interested in this work, and who desire to aid in its support, may do so. Mr. E. P. Bancroft, Sec'y, 111 Fifth ave., New York, will answer all inquiries.

"THE MISSIONARIES' REST"—A PRAIRIE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A NANCE COUNTY, NEB., HOME.

THE METROPOLITAN PULPIT

WHERE WE CAME FROM.

A Sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., on the Text: I. Timothy 6: 20, ... { O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy trust, avoiding oppositions of science falsely so called.

THERE is no contest between genuine science and revelation. The same God who by the hand of prophet wrote on parchment, by the hand of the storm wrote on the rock. The best telescopes and microscopes and electric batteries and philosophical apparatus belong to Christian universities. Who gave us magnetic telegraphy? Professor Morse, a Christian. Who swung the lightnings under the sea, cabling the continents together? Cyrus W. Field, the Christian. Who discovered the anesthetical properties of chlorotorm, doing more for the relief of human pain than any man that ever lived, driving back nine-tenths of the horrors of surgery? James Y. Simpson, of Edinburgh, as eminent for piety as for science; on week days in the university lecturing on protoundest scientific subjects, and on Sabbaths preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the masses of Edinburgh. I saw the universities of that city draped in mourning for his death, and I heard his eulogy pronounced by the destitute populations of the Cowgate. Science and revelation are the bass and soprano of the same tune. The whole world will yet acknowledge the complete harmony. But between what my text describes as science falsely so-called, and revelation, there is an uncompromising war, and one or the other must go under.

At the present time the air is filled with social and platform and pulpit talk about evolution, and it is high time that the people who have not time to make investigation for themselves understand that evolution in the first place, is up and down, out-and-out infidelity; in the second place it is contrary to the facts of science, and in the third place, that it is brutalizing in its tendencies. I do not argue that this is a genuine book, I do not say that the Bible is worthy of any kind of credence—those are subjects for other Sabbaths—but I want you to understand that Thomas Paine and Hume and Voltaire no more thoroughly disbelieved the Holy Scriptures than do all the leading scientists who believe in evolution. And when I say scientists, of course, I do not mean literary men or theologians who in essay or in sermon, and without giving their life to scientific investigation, look at the subject on this side or that. By scientists I mean those who have a specialty in that direction and who through zoological garden and aquarium and astronomical observatory, give their life to the study of the physical earth, its plants and its animals, and the regions beyond so far as optical instruments have explored them.

I put upon the witness stand living and dead the leading evolutionists—Ernst Heckel, John Stuart Mill, Huxley, Tyndall, Darwin, Spencer. On the witness stand, ye men of science, living and dead, answer these questions: Do you believe the Holy Scriptures? No. And so they say all. Do you believe the Bible story of Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden? No. And so they say all. Do you believe the miracles of the Old and New Testament? No. And so they say all. Do you believe even that Jesus Christ died to save the nations? No. And so they say all. Do you believe in the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost? No. And so they say all. Do you believe that human supplication addressed to heavenward ever makes any difference? No. And so they say all.

Herbert Spencer, in the only address he made in this country, in the very first sentence ascribes physical ailments to fate and the authorized expert of that address leaves the world late with a big "F." Professor Heckel, in the very first page of his two great volumes sneers at the Bible as a so-called revelation. Tyndall in his famous prayer test defied the whole of Christendom to show that human supplication made any difference in the result of things. John Stuart Mill wrote elaborately against Christianity, and to show that his rejection of it was complete, ordered this epitaph for his tombstone: "Most unhappy." Huxley said that at the first reading of Darwin's book he was convinced of the fact that teleology had received its death blow at the hand of Mr. Darwin. All the leading scientists who believe in evolution, without one exception the world over, are infidel. I say nothing against infidelity, mind you. I only wish to define the belief and the meaning of the rejection.

Now, I put opposite to each other, to show that evolution is infidelity, the Bible account of how the human race started and the evolutionist account of how the human race started. Bible account: "God said, let us make man in our image. God created man in his own image; male and female created he them." He breathed into him the breath of life, the whole story setting forth the idea that it was not a perfect kangaroo, or a perfect ourang outang, but a perfect man. That is the Bible account. The evolutionist account: Away back in the ages there were four or five primal germs, or seminal spores from which all the living creatures have been evolved. Go away back, and there you will find a vegetable stuff that might be called a mushroom. This mushroom by innate force develops a tadpole, the tadpole by innate force develops a polywog, the polywog develops a fish, the fish by natural force develops into a reptile, the reptile develops into a quadruped, the quadruped develops into a baboon, the baboon develops into a man.

Darwin says that the human hand is only a fish's fin developed. He says that the human lungs are only a swim bladder showing that we once floated or were amphibious. He says the human ear could once have been moved by force of will just as a horse lifts its ear at a frightful object. He says the human race were originally web-footed. From primal germ to tadpole, from tadpole to fish, from fish to reptile, from reptile to wolf, from wolf to chimpanzee, and from chimpanzee to man. Now, if anybody says that the Bible account of the starting of the human race and the evolutionist account of the starting of the human race are the same accounts, he makes an appalling misrepresentation.

Prefer, if you will, Darwin's "Origin of the Species" to the Book of Genesis, but know you are an infidel. As for myself, as Herbert Spencer was not present at the creation and the Lord Almighty was present, I prefer to take the divine account as to what really occurred on that occasion. To show that this evolution is only an attempt to eject God and to postpone him, and to put him clear out of reach, I ask a question or two. The baboon made the man and the wolf made the baboon, and the reptile made the quadruped, and the fish made the reptile, and the tadpole made the fish, and the primal germ made the tadpole. Who made the primal germ? Most of the evolutionists say: "We don't know." Others say it made itself. Others say it was spontaneous generation. There is not one of them who will fairly and openly and frankly and emphatically say, "God made it."

The nearest to a direct answer is that made by Herbert Spencer in which he says it was made by the great "unknowable mystery." But here comes Huxley with a cup of protoplasm to explain the thing. This protoplasm he says, is primal life giving quality with which the race away back in the ages was started. With his protoplasm, he proposes to explain everything. Dear Mr. Huxley, who made the protoplasm?

To show you that evolution is infidel, I place the Bible account of how the brute creation was started opposite to the evolutionist's account, of the way the brute creation was started. Bible account: You know the Bible tells how that the birds were made at one time, and the cattle made at another time, and the fish made at another time, and that each brought forth after its kind. Evolutionist's account: From four or five primal germs or seminal spores all the living creatures evolved. Hundreds of thousands of species of insects, of reptiles, of beasts, of fish, from four germs—a statement flatly contradicting not only the Bible, but the very A B C of science. A species never develops into anything but its own species. In all the ages and in all the world there has never been an exception to it. The shark never comes of a whale, nor the pigeon of a vulture, nor the butterfly of a wasp. Species never cross over. If there be an attempt at it, it is hybrid, and the hybrid is always sterile and has no descendants.

These men of science tell us that a hundred thousand species came from four, when the law all through the universe is that, starting in one species it keeps on in that species, and there would be only four now if there had been four at starting. If I should say to you that the world is flat, and that a circle and a square are the same, and that twice two make fifteen, I would come just as near the truth as when these evolutionists tell you that a hundred thousand species came from four. Evolution would have been left out of question with its theory flatly contradicting all observation and all science, had not its authors and their disciples been so set on ejecting God from the universe and destroying the Bible that they will go to any length though it lead them into idiotic absurdity. You see what the Bible teaches in regard to it. I have shown you also what evolution teaches in regard to it.

Agassiz says that he found in a reef of Florida the remains of insects thirty thousand years old—not three, but thirty thousand years old—and that they were just like the insects now. There has been no change. All the facts of ornithology and zoology and ichthyology and conchology, but an echo of Genesis first and twenty-first: "every winged fowl after his kind." Every creature after its kind. When common observation and science corroborate the Bible I will not stultify myself by surrendering to the elaborated guesses of evolutionists.

To show that evolution is infidel I place also the Bible account of how worlds were made opposite the evolutionist's account of how worlds were made. Bible account: God made two great lights—the one to rule the day, the other to rule the night; he made the stars also. Evolutionist account: Away back in the ages, there was a fire mist or star dust, and this fire mist cooled off into granite, and then this granite by earthquake and by storm and by light was shaped into mountains and valleys and seas, and so what was originally fire mist became what we call the earth.

Who made the fire mist? Who set the fire mist to world-making? Who cooled off the fire mist into granite? You have pushed God some sixty or seventy million miles from the earth, but he is too near yet for the health of evolution. For a great while the evolutionists boasted that they had found the very stuff out of which this world and all worlds were made. They lifted the telescope and they saw it, the very material out of which worlds made themselves. Nebula of simple gas. They laughed in triumph because they had found the factory where the worlds were manufactured, and there was no God anywhere around the factory! But in an unlucky hour for infidel evolutionists the spectroscopes of Fraunhofer and Kirchoff were invented, by which they saw into that nebula and found it was not a simple gas, but was a compound, and hence had to be supplied from some other source, and that implied a God, and away went their theory shattered into everlasting demolition.

So these infidel evolutionists go wandering up and down guessing through the universe. Anything to push away back Jehovah from his empire and make the one book which is his great communication to the soul of the human race appear obsolete and delusion. But I am glad to know that while some of these scientists have gone into evolution, there are many that do not believe it. Among them, the man who by most is considered the greatest scientist we ever had this side of the water—Agassiz. A name that makes every intelligent man the earth over uncover.

Agassiz says: "The manner in hi[ch] the evolution theory in zoology is t[aught] would lead those who are not s[pecial] zoologists to suppose that observ[ations] have been made by which it can [be] ferred that there is in nature such [a thing] as change among organized beings u[nder]ly taking place. There is no such [thing] on record. It is shifting the gro[und of] observation from one field of obser[vation] to another to make this statemen[t] when the assertions go so far as to e[ject] from the domain of science those [who] will not be dragged into this mire o[f] assertion then it is time to protest.'

With equal vehemence against th[e] trine of evolution Hugh Miller, Far[aday] Brewster, Dana, Dawson, and hun[dreds] of scientists in this country and [other] countries have made protest. I [am] that the few men who have adopte[d] theory make more noise than the [thou]sands who have rejected it. The B[ritannia] of the Cunard line took five hundre[d] sengers safely from New York to [Liver]pool. Not one of the five hundred [made] any excitement. But after we had [been] four days out, one morning we fou[nd] deck a man's hat and coat and ves[t] boots, implying that some one had ju[mped] overboard. Forthwith we all beg[an] talk about that one man. There [was] more talk about that one man over [board] than all the five hundred passenger[s] rode on in safety. "Why did he [jump] overboard?" "I wonder when he ju[mped] overboard?" "I wonder if whe[n he] jumped overboard he would liked to [have] jumped back again?" "I wonder if [they] caught him, or whether he went [right] down to the bottom of the sea?" [And] for three or four days afterward we t[alked] about that poor man.

Here is the glorious and magni[ficent] theory that God by his omnipotent [power] made man, and by his omnipotent [power] made the brute creation, and by his [omni]potent power made all worlds, and [a] hundred scientists have taken pa[ssage] on board that magnificent theory, bu[t one] or fifteen have jumped overboard. [One] make more talk than all the five hu[ndred] that did not jump. I am politely [asked] to jump with them. Thank you, g[entle]men, I am very much obliged to yo[u] I think I shall stick to the old Cunard[er] If you want to jump overboard, jump[and] test for yourselves whether your han[ds] are really a fish's fin, and whether you [were] web footed originally, and whether [your] lungs are a swim bladder. And [in] every experiment there must be a divi[sion] of labor, some who experiment and [some] who observe, you make the experi[ment] and I will observe!

I tell you, my friends, that natural e[vo]lution is not upward but it is al[ways] downward. Hear Christ's account of it. Fifteenth Matthew and nineteenth verse: "Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies." That is what Christ said of evolution. Give natural evolution full swing in our world and it will evolve into two hemispheres of crime, two hemispheres of penitentiary, two hemispheres of lazaretto, two hemispheres of brothel. New York Tombs, Moyamensing Prison, Philadelphia, Seven Dials, London, and Cowgate, Edinburgh, only festering carbuncles on the face and neck of natural evolution. See what the Bible says about the heart and then what evolution says about the heart. Evolution says "better and better and better gets the heart by natural improvement." The Bible says: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. Who can know it?" When you can evolve fragrance from malodor, and can evolve an oratorio from a buzz-saw, and can evolve fall pipins from a basket of withered crab apples, then you can by natural evolution from the human heart develop goodness. Ah! my friends, natural evolution is always downward; it is never upward.

What is remarkable about this thing is it is all the time developing its dishonesty. In our day it is ascribing this evolution to Herbert Spencer and Charles Darwin. But it is a dishonesty. Evolution was known and advocated hundreds of years before these gentlemen began to be evolved. The Phœnicians thousands of years ago declared that the human race wobbled out of the mud. Democritus, who lived 400 years before Christ—remember that—knew this doctrine of evolution when he said: "Everything is composed of atoms, or nfinitely small elements, each with a de ite quality, form and movement, whose in itable union and separation shape al different things and forms, laws and ef ts and dissolve them again for new co binations. The gods themselves and th human mind originated from such at is. There are no casualities. Everything is necessary and determined by the na re of the atoms which have certain m al affinities, attractions, and repulsi s." Anoximander centuries ago decl d that the human race started at the pl e where the sea saturated the earth. Lu etius developed long centuries ago, in his poems, the doctrine of evolution.

It is an old heathen corpse set up in a m gue. Charles Darwin and Herbert Sp cer have tried to galvanize it. They dr this old putrefaction of three thousa years around the earth, boasting th it is their originality, and so wonderfu the infatuation that at the Delmonico inner given in honor of Herbert Sp cer, some fifteen years ago, there we those who ascribed to him this great or nality of evolution. There the ban quers sat around the table in honor of H bert Spencer, chewing beef and turke and roast pig which according to the doctrine of evolution made them ea g their own relations! Slicing up the own cousins! Driving a carving-fork int their beloved kindred! Dashing W cestershire sauce, bedaubing mustard ov their uncles and aunts. And while Hoert Spencer read a patronizing lectu to Americans, the banqueters sat arou d the table with their hands up, saying "Dear me, it is the voice of a god and ot of a man."

There is only one thing worse than Engli snobbery, and that is American snobery. I like democracy and I like ari ocracy; but there is one kind of ocracy in s country that excites my contempt, and hat is what Charles Kingsley, after he ha witnessed it himself, called snobocrac Now I say it is a gigantic dishonest when they ascribe this old heathen do ine of evolution to any modern gentlem n!

I m not a pessimist but an optimist. I do ot believe everything is going to destr tion; I believe everything is going on o redemption. But it will not be thr gh the infidel doctrine of evolution, bu through our glorious Christianity wh n has effected all the good that has ev been wrought and which is yet to reconstruct all the nations.

What is that in the offing? A ship got on the rocks at Cape Hatteras. The hu is breaking up, crew and passengers are drowning. The storm is in full blast and the barometer is still sinking. What do that ship want? Development. Develop her broken masts. Develop her ro en rudder. Develop her drowning cre Develop her freezing passengers. Develop the whole ship? That is all it wa s. Development. Oh, I make a mis ke. What that ship wants is a lifeboa from the shore. Leap into it, you me of the life station. Pull away to the wre . Steady there! Bring the women and children first to the shore. Now the sto men. Wrap them up in flannels, and between their chattering teeth you can our restoration.

Well, my friends, our world is on the roc . God launched it well enough, but thr gh mispilotage and the storms of six housand years it has gone into the bre ers. What does this old ship of a wo want? Development? There is enough old evolution in the hulk to evolve and er mast and another rudder and to evo e all the passengers and evolve the ship out of the breakers. Development? No no, my friends, what this old shipwre of a world wants is a lifeboat from the hore. And it is coming. Cheer, my lad cheer. It is coming from the shining hore of heaven, taking the crests of ten aves with one sweep of the shining pa es. Christ is in the lifeboat. Many wo ds on hands and feet and side and bro showing he has been long engaged in t work of rescue, but yet mighty to sav –to save one, to save all, to save forever. My Lord and my God, get us into he lifeboat! Away with your rotten, dec tive, infidel and blasphemous evolution and give us the Bible, salvation thr gh Jesus Christ our Lord.

Salvation! let the echo fly
The spacious earth around,
While all the armies of the sky
Conspire to raise the sound.

THE WORLD'S SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

Meeting of the World's Third Sunday School Convention in London—Welcoming the American Delegates—Sessions in City Temple and Crystal Palace.

A WONDERFUL convention representing Sunday School work in all the countries of the globe has recently closed its sessions in the British metropolis. This was the third of these great gatherings. The first was held in London, in 1889, the second in St. Louis, Mo., in 1893. A hearty reception was given to the American delegation, which was the largest from any land outside of Great Britain. It would have been still larger, but for the war, which detained at home several prominent delegates whose presence had been counted upon. Prominent among these was Mr. John Wanamaker whose interest in Sunday School work is famous on the other side the Atlantic as well as on this. Another conspicuous worker whose coming was expected, was Mr. B. F. Jacobs, who was detained at home by illness. A pathetic incident in connection with the American delegation was the absence of four delegates who were drowned in the Burgogne disaster. Four beautiful floral wreaths to their memory occupied conspicuous positions among the decorations of the City Temple in which the sessions of the Convention were held.

CITY TEMPLE, LONDON, WHERE THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION WAS HELD.

A hearty and cordial reception was given by our English friends to the American visitors. Mr. P. B. Bromfield, of this journal, who was one of the delegates and who has kindly furnished us with the picture on this page, of the City Temple and a sketch of the proceedings, reports a genuine friendliness positively enthusiastic as manifested everywhere in Great Britain toward the people from the United States. There were receptions by the Lord Mayor of London at his state residence, by the Bible Society at the Bible House, and by other societies and prominent officials. The English Sunday School Union, of course, acted as host, and gave all foreign guests a most cordial reception.

At the first regular session of the Convention, as the Chairman called on the different countries represented, the delegates stood up in their places—over 250 from the United States, 300 for England, sixty from Canada, seventeen from India, and five from Newfoundland—all young people, who were greeted with a special cheer. Out-of-the-way places like Honolulu and Prince Edward's Isle had their representatives, and delegates were present from nearly every European country except Spain, Germany in particular sending an array of well-known workers, with Count von Bernstorff at their head. Altogether, there were about 2,300 delegates from every quarter of the globe, representing two and a half millions of teachers and twenty-five millions of scholars. Most of the first session was occupied by addresses of welcome and the responses to them.

First, the Marquis of Northampton, as President of the Sunday School Union, offered, "in Christ's name, welcome; a hearty and affectionate welcome," to his fellow-teachers. He declared that the Sunday School was never more necessary than to-day, when the sense of parental responsibility—owing, he thought, in part to State education—is weakened in thousands of homes. He referred to the text on the delegates' cards, "With one mind striving together for the faith of the Gospel," and provoked a great outburst of cheering by declaring that the Convention knew nothing of sectarianism.

After Dr. Clifford and other eminent clergymen had spoken, Rev. Dr Spalding responded for America. His first words were dramatically given: "Dear old America, the world salutes thee!" and he raised a perfect tempest of applause by his glowing references to Anglo-American unity. He was followed by the Hon. S. H. Blake for Canada, and then Mr. Stock spoke for Australia, and took the opportunity of glorifying the great colony for a series of virtues, among others that it set the example of vote by ballot to England and America. Europe was represented by Professor Fetzer, Count von Bernstorff and Pastor Trouvet; Bishop Thoburn spoke eloquently for India, and was followed by Rev. W. P. Richards, who represented South Africa, and had traveled to England to take part in the Convention.

One of the most interesting sessions of the Convention was that at which reports of Sunday School work were received from various lands. Rev. A. Jewson, of Calcutta, read a stirring paper sent by Rev. Richard Burges, Sunday School missionary in India, pleading for an executive secretary and funds for vernacular literature; and he added to it some passionate words of his own on behalf of India's "one hundred and seventeen millions of get-at-able children." Dr. Burt reported progress in Italy, where there are now 15,000 children in Protestant Sunday Schools, in spite of active persecution, and declared his conviction that the destiny of Christianity may yet be linked with Rome; and Mr. Ikehara, missionary to Japan, described the work of its 901 Sunday Schools, carried on in the face of many difficulties and bitter hostility. He said that though Christians in Japan are only one in 1,050, it is always easy to get children together and teach them, and Japan has 901 Sunday Schools, 100 in Tokio; and an increase of 4,000 scholars during the last year. An eloquent appeal on behalf of the colored children in our Southern States was made by Rev. L. B. Maxwell, a colored minister.

The field day of the Convention was that it spent at the Crystal Palace when over twenty thousand persons, including a large number of children, listened to descriptions of primary teaching, the use of the blackboard and other appliances in which it was demonstrated that the United States is far ahead of all other lands. Rev. R. J. Y. Pierce, Mr. J. W. Barnes, Mrs. W. J. Semelroth, Miss Vella and other American Sunday School workers were listened to by the English and foreign delegates with rapt attention.

The concluding sessions of the Convention held in the City Temple were practical business meetings. Dr. Potts of Canada, the President of the International Lesson Committee, read the report for the year, and forecasted the work of the next course, which is to be for six years instead of seven, and will give special prominence to the biographical element, and devote about half its available time to a chronological life of Christ and other New Testament lessons. This led to a discussion of methods and a host of suggestions from prominent workers.

Among others, Dr. S. G. Green, of London, referring to the present system of International Lessons, said: "Can we suggest improvement? In one direction, very obviously; but I fear the suggestion will be voted impracticable. The suggestion is that there should be two lessons on the Sunday, so balanced that the New Testament should never be out of sight, and that no child, by any possibility, should ever come into our schools and remain two years and a half without being led by the prescribed lesson of the day to the cradle of Bethlehem or the hills of Galilee. The Sunday School teachers of two hemispheres will owe a debt of gratitude to any one who can arrange this.

"But in the meanwhile the teachers themselves may do something to amend the disproportion. For one thing it would be well to pay more attention than is sometimes given to the connected parallel and illustrative readings by which the lists of lessons are now accompanied, and to get their scholars to read them carefully during the week. But, after all, everything depends upon the manner in which the scheme is worked out. You may have the best conceivable system of lessons; but the treatment of them will determine their value."

The place of meeting for the next Convention was left to the selection of the Executive Committee. Three cities, Toronto, Geneva and Stockholm, are anxious to entertain it.

The Sunday School

THE DEATH OF ELISHA.

S. S. Lesson for Sept. 4. II. Kings 13: 14-25. Golden Text, Psalms 116: 15.

BY MRS. M. BAXTER.

GOD had said to Elijah, when he had that interview with him on Mt. Horeb, "Anoint Hazael to be king over Syria: and Jehu, son of Nimshi, shalt thou anoint to be king over Israel: and Elisha, the son of Shaphat, of Abelmeholah, shalt thou anoint to be prophet in thy room" (I. Kings 14: 15, 16). Before all was ripe for the accomplishment of this commission, Elijah was called away without dying, to a higher ministry. He seems to have had an intuition, perhaps an intimation, that his time on earth was to be short, and he knew the mind of his God enough to be sure that the anointing of Elisha to carry on the prophetic office, was of supreme importance, while the anointing of the kings might take a secondary place, and perhaps be accomplished by his successor. Who knows how much of his last days on earth were spent in prayer and in training the follower who was to carry on his work?

Elisha's ministry was typical of that of Jesus: Elijah's that of John the Baptist, the stern reprover. Generally, Elisha was made a minister of life and blessing: the healed waters (II. Kings 2: 19-22): the miraculous water supply (3: 17-20): the pots of oil and the raising of the Shunammite's son: the healed porridge and the multiplied loaves (chap. 4): the healing of Naaman, the swimming axe-head, the direction of Israel's king and the deliverance of the Syrians into Elisha's power, and then the history of the lepers (5, 6, 7), are witnesses to this. But the postponed ministry of Elijah in anointing Hazael and Jehu must yet be accomplished, as soon as things were ripe; and Elisha knew that he must have part in this, which came to him as a service to God. Hazael was to be an instrument of judgment. Elisha, trained in the school of Elijah's last days, had learned to wait God's moment. He had told his message to Hazael and had anointed Jehu. God had begun through Hazael to cut Israel short (II. Kings 10: 32), and Jehu had already accomplished his mission to exterminate the race of Ahab; the wicked queen, Athaliah, being the last to perish. And now the days of Elisha were drawing to a close, and he had to leave the beloved land without seeing his country saved from idolatry, and without leaving a truly godly king reigning either over Judah or Israel! But Elisha had not labored in vain. Many individuals and a whole school of prophets were brought into living contact with God through him. Of the nature of Elisha's sickness we know nothing. Such diseases do not occur in the Holy Scriptures as baffled the Word Incarnate when He came to see him, and the details of which are left on record for posterity. Hatred to the sick in hospitals are looked upon as a gracious condescension. But in this case the king came to receive from the prophet not the prophet from the king. During the dynasty of the wicked Ahab, and now still longer during the regency of Jehu, God had paused for the salvation of Israel: there were two great prophets who lived continually in His presence. Ahab, Ahaziah, Jehoram, Jehu, Jehoahaz and Joash all of them had every opportunity to turn to God. God had personal dealings with each one through the prophets, but not one of them had fully turned to Him. Now Joash felt perhaps that the opportunity was slipping away. Wicked men feel a kind of safety in the presence of a man of God in their house or in their city. They do not want to have too much to do with them, but they dread to lose them altogether. It may have been something of this feeling which prompted Joash to come and visit the dying prophet. The king came and wept over him and said, "My father, my father, the chariots of Israel and the horsemen thereof."

The dying man was aroused. God had one last message to give to him. "Take bow and arrows," he said to the king, and again: "Put thine hand upon the bow," and the king obeyed. But a prophet's hand must be laid upon the king's hand, for no royal power could accomplish that which that arrow signified. Elisha laid his hand upon the king's hands, and he said, "open the window eastward," and it was done. "Shoot!" and with the action the prophet of the Lord proclaimed Jehovah's arrow of victory, even the arrow of victory over Syria, "for thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek till thou hast consumed them" (II Kings 13: 17).

This was the mind of the Lord, and had the king fully met him in his purpose, it would have been accomplished. But Elisha was dying, the feeble hand which he had laid upon the king's was removed, now he must act alone. "Take the arrows," was Elisha's next direction, and when the king obeyed, he said: "Smite upon the ground!" and he smote thrice and stayed. And the man of God was wroth with him and said, "thou shouldst have smitten five or six times: then hadst thou smitten Syria till thou hadst consumed it, whereas, now thou shalt smite Syria but thrice." They were Elisha's last words, at least to the king, and Elisha died and they buried him. O, how much we lose for lack of this perseverance in prayer and in faith. How ready we are to leave off smiting before we have any direction to leave off. Do we not often work longer than God directs, and pray less than God directs? O to learn this lesson fully! God had said by Elisha to the king, "Thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek till thou hadst consumed them," but now since Joash failed fully to meet God he had determined for himself a limitation which God had not at first intended. "Thou shouldst have smitten five or six times, then hadst thou smitten the Syrians till thou hadst consumed them." O to learn this deep, important lesson fully!

PANEL OF BLACK OBELISK.

JEHU'S SERVANTS BEARING TRIBUTE.

It was the prophet's last ministry. And now he was no more. Jonah was, perhaps to me, but who shall speak of the loss which the removal of such a testimony as that of Elijah and Elisha to the kingdoms of Judah and Israel? "Elisha died and they buried him."

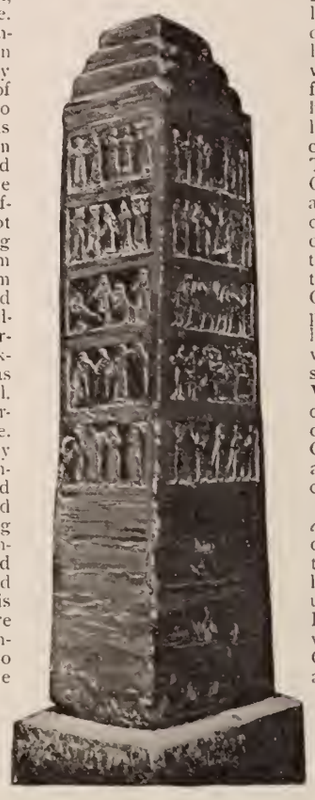
All through the days of Jehoahaz, Hazael oppressed Israel. Once "Jehoahaz besought the Lord, and the Lord hearkened unto him: for he saw the oppression of Israel how the King of Syria oppressed them." The army was reduced to fifty cavalry soldiers, ten chariots and 10,000 infantry. God sent them deliverance: there was a suspension of his judgment for a time." Nevertheless they departed not from the sins of the house of Jeroboam wherewith he made Israel to sin (II. Kings 13: 4-7). Jehoahaz died with the usual sad character of the kings of Israel, he "did evil in the sight of the Lord."

LESSON POINTS.

Suggestions and Illustrations for the Use of Sunday School Teachers.

MANY eventful years elapsed between the deliverance of Elisha at Dothan which we considered last week, and this death-bed scene. They were years of national humiliation, revolution and blood-shed. They must have been years of profound sorrow to Elisha, and unless he was quite sure that his own part in public events had been divinely directed, he must have felt some self-reproach. If he did not anoint Hazael to be king over Syria, he told him that God had showed him he would be king, and Hazael went back and fulfilled the prophecy by murdering his master and taking his crown. That was an evil day for Israel. Hazael proved a most persistent and implacable foe. He ravaged the country with fire and sword, committing brutalities and outrages horrible beyond description, and bringing all Israel into the dust. Another of Elisha's acts led to murder and widespread massacre. He sent his servant to the camp where Israel's army was assembled, with instructions to anoint Jehu, one of the generals, king of Israel. The mission was executed, and immediately Jehu returned to Samaria, murdered the king and the king of Judah, who was visiting him, caused the death of Jezebel, the king's mother, and massacred all the royal family, seventy persons in all. Afterwards he treacherously gathered the Baal-worshippers into one building and butchered every one. Fierce and relentless as he was, he was unable to protect his own dominions. Hazael took city after city from him, sold his people for slaves and stripped him of his treasure. His reign and that of his son, covering a period of forty-five years, were full of disasters. Israel was almost crushed when Joash, the grandson of Jehu, came to the throne. He it was who visited Elisha, when the prophet, an old man over ninety years old, lay on his deathbed.

The arrow of deliverance. Unexpected confirmation of the Biblical description of this humiliating period of Israel's history has recently been discovered. Among the Assyrian relics in the British Museum, is a Black Obelisk, covered with sculptured scenes in relief and various inscriptions. The latter have now been deciphered and are found to be boastful records of the achievements of Shalmaneser II., who reigned over Assyria from B. C. 860 to 824. One of these says that Jehu, of Israel, sent him presents, as tribute. Above this inscription, is the picture of Je... tail bearded man crawling in abjec... mission before the Assyrian conq... and, behind him, are his servants l... bearded, bearing the tribute. This ... sists of goblets, golden vessels, ing... gold and silver, spear-shafts, ba... bags, and trays full of treasure. It ... not appear that Shalmaneser f... against Israel. We infer that Jehu ... ing himself unable to cope with H... of Syria, offered himself to Shalma... as a vassal, in the hope that A... would protect him from his enemy, ... was a futile hope. Like the kingd... Poland, which appealed to Russi... protection from her other enemies. ... ultimately became captive to the ... she invoked and her name and ... as a nation were extinguished.



OBELISK OF SHALMANESER.

His hands upon the King's hands. Pro... he wished the king ... derstand that it was ... his own strength th... would triumph. Is... forces were at their l... but in her history ... had seldom been ... ciated with material p... Time and again me... Gideon conquered wi... army ridiculously i... quate to the work ... dertook. The one ... tion which determine ... tory or defeat was wh... God was supportin... people, or whether, ... having deserted him ... was leaving them to t... selves. The triumph ... Washington, of Cron... of Garibaldi, and ... other heroes, prove ... God can make a ... army effective in a ... cause.

His sickness where ... died. Elisha was a ... old man and he had ... troubled life. Death ... have seemed to hi... unwelcome messe... Perhaps to every ... who has lived nea... God, it is not so te... as its anticipation. A ... ous writer compa... to the experienc... Don Quixote. ... knight hung by ... wrist from a win... and imagined th... tremendous al... yawned beneath ... feet. Maritornes cut the thong and he gentleman instead of dropping many y... fell just four inches. "Perhaps natures ... of unexplained ironies reserves as b... some a surprise for her offspring, ... their time arrives to discover the si... city of the process called dying." ... look of sweet content on the faces o... pious dead seems to say to us as C... said: "Thy brother shall live again.

Revived and stood up on his feet. ... is the last of the wonder records of E... which, as previously suggested, see... have come from the Sons of the Prop... The narrative stands alone in the B... no parallel case is on record until we co... to the Roman Catholic legends of ... and resurrections proceeding from ... relics of saints. There was an inst..., however, of a more blessed revival w... occurred in connection with a corps ... our own land a few years ago. It ... the case of a boy whose misconduct ... broken his father's heart. The f... was a good man, proud of his family n..., and when his son disgraced it he sp... some very bitter words. The old ... died, and the son who had not seen ... in many years, read the notice of his ... in the newspapers, and went home to ... tend the funeral. There a friend of ... family (the mother was dead) gave h... loving message from his father and ... him how in his last days the old man ... yearned for him and prayed for him. ... son leaned over the casket and kissed ... cold brow, and there and then, in G... strength, resolved to begin a new li... vow he has been enabled to keep. ... day of such miracles as this at Elis... grave is past, but this change of th... pentant son is far better, having the p... ise of eternal life.

WELCOME PEACE AT LAST!

War With Spain Over, and the Peace Protocol Signed—The Commission to Meet in Paris—Our Troops and Fleet Returning—The Christian Commission's Work.

AFTER 114 days of actual hostilities, the war between the United States and Spain ended on August 12th, on which date the protocol, or preliminary draft of a treaty of peace was signed by Secretary Day, of our State Department, and M. Cambon, the diplomatic representative of France at Washington. Upon the same day, the United States naval and military commanders were ordered to cease hostilities, and the blockades of Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila were lifted. The war began on April 21st and on the 25th of that month, Congress passed the declaration recognizing that a state of war existed between the two countries. It has already cost our government approximately $150,000,000, of which $98,000,000 have been actually taken out of the Treasury: $3,000,000 in March, $11,000,000 in April, $19,000,000 in May, $23,000,000 in June, $35,000,000 in July, and $7,000,000 in August. $65,000,000 are charged to the War Department and $32,000,000 to the Navy. During the early stage of the war, the average cost to this government was $700,000 per day, but during the latter part, when hostilities were being conducted in Cuba, Porto Rico and Manila simultaneously, the daily cost was over $1,000,000.

The Cessation of Hostilities.

Although the formal cessation of hostilities was announced on August 12th, our commanders in Porto Rico and Manila continued active operations until the actual receipt of the order. Fighting took place at several points in Porto Rico, along the line of our advance and Aibonito, the nearest inland fortified possession in San Juan road, was cannonaded on August 13th. Mayaguez, on the east, had already capitulated to our troops, and Lares, another important positions were threatened. Captain-General Macias, the Spanish commander in Porto Rico, ceased opposition to the American advance, and fighting in Porto Rico was ended immediately after the news reached the front that the peace protocol had been signed. Manila capitulated to Admiral Dewey on August 13, after a sharp assault by land and sea, surrendering unconditionally. Captain-General Augusti and family were sent to Hong Kong on the German warship Kaiserin Augusta. The city was then turned over to the American troops and the Spanish garrison will be practically all prisoners and largely dependent upon our army for support pending the peace negotiations, and until the evacuation of the Philippines by Spain.

